The proper way to do is to eat what you want, and let Kodol digest the food.

Nothing else can do this. When the stomach is weak it needs help; you must help it by giving it rest, and Kodol will do that.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today, and purchase a dollar bottle, and if you can honestly say, that you did not receive any benefits from it, after using the entire bottle, the druggist will refund your money to you without question or delay.

We will pay the druggist the price of the bottle purchased by you.

This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family.

We could not afford to make such an offer, unless we positively knew what Kodol will do for you.

It would bankrupt us.

The dollar bottle contains 2½ times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is made at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

SOLD AT GEDDES' DRU STORE

DECEMBER

0409

L1134

Local and Personal

Tell it to the HERALD.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

O. A. Garber is in Bryan on business.

See Fred Briggs for cement blocks. tf

George Stout is on the sick list this week.

J. A. Bolinger spent Sunday in Fort Wayne.

Frank Abram was at Fort Wayne on business Monday.

E. C. Sheets of Auburn was a Butler visitor Monday.

Wm. Copeland of Waterloo was in the city Monday on business.

Fred Briggs will sell you cement blocks cheaper than anyone else. tf

Mrs. O. A. Garber is the guest of her sister, Mrs. James Wiley at Artic.

Wm. Mutzfeld spent Thursday and Friday at Fort Wayne on business.

Elroy Brooks and wife of Edon spent Sunday with Mrs. Chloe Robinet.

John Schneider spent Sunday at La-Otto, the guest of his father, Peter Schneider.

Miss Iva Smith and Tom Simon spent Sunday with the latter's parents at Edgerton.

Boost for Butler and you will help yourself, as she is the coming town of the county.

The L. A. S. of the U. B. church will meet Friday evening with Mrs. Elmer Creager.

We have some 5 per cent money to loan on mortgage security. First National Bank. tf

The Royal Neighbors entertained Wednesday evening for the benefit of the Public Library.

Ross Boyle, of Marion, spent a few days the fore part of the week with relatives in this city.

Miss Eva Parker is spending a few days at Fort Wayne, the guest of her sister, Miss Marie Parker.

Dr. Link of Indianapolis spent Saturday and Sunday with Dr. A. A. Kramer and other friends.

Miss Mabel Kenestrick, of Auburn, spent Saturday and Sunday here the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Moore.

W. H. Ware has moved his family into the house on Depot street formerly occupied by John Lowe and family.

Valma Brown, of Warsaw, spent Tuesday with his parents here. Valma was promoted from Three Rivers to Warsaw.

Mrs. Frank Eckhart of Auburn and Mrs. Fred Coats of Lexington, Ky., spent last Thursday with relatives and friends here.

Dr. C. W. Beechler has sold his residence on West Ook street to J. Geo. Wagner, manager of the Trebert Engine company.

Mrs. T. J. Knisely, Mrs. L. C. Harding and daughter Helen, Mrs. H. L. Tess and Miss Ethel Tess spent Wednesday in Fort Wayne.

Class No. 12 of the M. E. church met at the home of Miss Ethel Tess Monday evening. The evening was spent in work for Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Brindley entertained at dinner Sunday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Shapland and Miss Josephine Baughman of Kendallville.

With a new gasoline factory, cigar factory, cement mixer factory, brick and tile yard, all of which will be in operation soon, Butler will undoubtedly boom during the next year.

W. E. Baxter has made a deal with H. Reasoner whereby he has become the owner of his coal trade. Mr. Baxter expects to enlarge his sheds and make room for something else.—St. Joe News.

It may be of interest to some of our readers to know that the business transacted by the city of Butler for one year amounts to about $20,000. This does not include the special assessment for sewers.

There were a number of drunks in town Saturday night, but they seemed to be careful so as Marshal Lowe wouldn't see them. Fortunately they were out-of-town fellows and won't return soon.

Herman Groscup of Garrett was here Monday looking up a location for a brick and tile yard. Mr. Groscup has been in this business for the past thirty years and we hope he may be able to locate here.

Over in Williams county, Ohio, where Fred Showalter goes once in a while to hold a Buckeye, the report was current a few days ago that Fred had died, as a result of the shot which he received on Hallowe'n. When we told him of the report he said, "You tell them I will soon be able to hunt Buckeyes again."

Al Briggs returned last Friday from a couple weeks visit in Whitley county. He stopped a few days at a brother-in-law's in Columbia City and dined on fresh strawberries with cream, both of which were home grown. The strawberries are kept growing during the winter months in a long box kept in the house.

Elmore H. Ammong, Esq., of Whitley county, Indiana, has refused to take his copy of the Commercial-Mail out of the office and also refuses to pay for the same. It's not so much, not worth suing him for, but we want the residents of the county to know just how honorable Mr. Ammong is. In our opinion he's a dead beat and a jackass to boot.—Columbia City Commercial-Mail.

The Oberlin Grocery Company

THE STORE where you can do your shopping with the least effort. The store where you buy Standard Brands. The store that guarantees every article it sells. We don't give you a short price on one item and then double it back on something else. When you buy here, you buy right. If you don't like it bring it back. We don't buy this advertising space to tell our regular customers about the square deal, the service and quality this store afffords---they know---but is to induce the stranger, the non-buyer to enter this establisment, so you may see for yourself and that we may have the opportunity to convince you that your money goes farther, that you get better goods and that you will be satisfied on every purchase. :: :: :: ::

Fruits

Oranges (large) 25c & 35c a doz. Dates, per lb. - - 10c
Tanzarines, per dozen - 25c. Figs " " - - - 12c
Bananas, per dozen 15c and 20c. Grapes, (white) per lb. - 15c
Plenty of Nice Apples 20c to 30c a peck.

Nuts

California Walnuts 20c a pound. French Walnuts 15c a pound.
Black Walnuts - 20c a peck. Mixed Nuts, - 15c a pound.
Nut Meats - 50c a pound. These are strictly new.

Dried Fruits

Prunes, sweet, 10c a lb. Peaches 10 and 12c a lb. Apricots 15c a lb.
Raisins 10c a lb. Currants 12c a lb. Citron 25c a lb.
Raisins on the Stem for Eating 18c a pound.
Everybody Likes Good Fruit.

Candies

Just arrived the finest lot of candy ever sold in Butler or elsewhere. The best from Fort Wayne, Detroit, Toledo and Kalamazoo. It makes your mouth water to look at it. Try a pound to-day. We know you will want more for Xmas. A good line of Pure Sugar Candy at 10 cents a pound. A nice line of Soft Creams at 15c a pound. Delicious Chocolates and Bon Bons at 20c a pound and for 30c, worth 40c to 50c, the kind that makes the old grow young and the young grow happy.

Mince Meat

Package - - - 10c
Three Packages for - - 25c
Always Fresh

Chocolate

German Sweet - - - - - - 10c
Bitter - - - - - - 10c
Bitter (large size package) - - - - 25c

Cocoa

Bakers' - - - - 25c
Lowney's - - - 25c
Always Fresh

Table Luxuries

White Cherries 25c
Cali Peaches 25c
Cali Pears 25c
Maraschine Cherries 15c
Imported Olive Oil 25c
Olives in Quart Cans 25c
Olives in Bottles 10c
Olives in Bottles 15c
Plenty of Lettuce and Celery
Phone Your Orders Early

UP TO 40¢ DOWN TO 20¢

You find more flavor in most coffee advertising than you do in the coffee.

We have spent all our time making the coffee unusually delicious. You'll find the flavor there—where it belongs.

Black Cross Coffee

20c 25c 30c 35c 40c per lb.

It Means Something

When we say you cannot secure better service, better prices and better quality, we are stating a fact which a trial will prove. We carry everything that you would expect to find in a first-class grocery. Try it.

Black Cross Tea

We want you to try a package of it.
One-half pound package - - 25c
One-fourth pound package - - 13c

Indian Coffee

We buy it by the ton
That's why it is cheap
We roast it every week
That's why it is good
17c a pound

Indian Canned Goods

Try one can of these and you never use any other kind.
Corn, per can 15c Peas, per can 15c
Succotash, a can 15c String Beans 15c

Semi-Porcelain

In all the latest patterns and designs. We guarantee this ware against checking and crazing. Made up in 100 piece sets. Can sell you just what you need, if you don't need the whole set.

100 Piece Set plain white - $10.00
100 " " blue decoration 10.00
100 " " with gold tracings 12.50
100 " " with gold tracing and a delicate green border - $15.50
100 Piece Set, English Rose design with gold tracings - 16.50
100 piece set in light blue or delf blue beautiful patterns at - $16.50

Fancy Imported China

Berry Sets from $1.50 to 3.50.
Cracker Jars a varied stock 50c to 2.00
Cake Plates all kinds and all prices ranging from 25c to $1.50.
Water Sets, Regular $1.50 at 1.35.
Spoon Trays 25c to $1.
Salads, special at 25c. They will surprise you.
Cups and Saucers
Pretty Patterns at - - 25c
Mustache Cups at - - 40c
Extra Fancy - 50c to $1
Sugars and Creamers in two piece sets at 25c, 50c, 75c, 1.00 and 1.50.
Bread and Butter Plates. Many pretty patterns at 50c to 90c a set.
English Tea Pots—a big lot. Your choice at 65c.
Vinegar Cruets in Bohemian glass. A nice line. Your choice at 25c.
Salt and Pepper Shakes from 10c to 25c
Sauce Dishes from 60c to 90c a set.
Vases (colored glass) at - - 10c each
Celery Trays—a special line at 25c
More at 50c and 1.00

The Oberlin Grocery Co. - - - Butler, Indiana

DECEMBER

0410

L1134

To Enjoy

the full confidence of the Well-Informed of the World and the Commendation of the most eminent physicians it was essential that the component parts of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna should be known to and approved by them; therefore, the California Fig Syrup Co. publishes a full statement with every package. The perfect purity and uniformity of product, which they demand in a laxative remedy of an ethical character, are assured by the Company's original method of manufacture known to the Company only.

The figs of California are used in the production of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna to promote the pleasant taste, but the medicinal principles are obtained from plants known to act most beneficially.

To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

A Literal Distinction.

Bishop Potter was known as quite a wit, and often took delight in turning his humor loose on his associates, but here is an instance where the joke, although quite unintentional, was on the bishop. He was to preach at a certain parish in the West in the evening, and the congregation was not a little amused at the somewhat ambiguous announcement of their worthy pastor, who said:

"Remember our special service next Sunday afternoon. The Lord will be with us during the morning services and Bishop Potter in the evening.—Success Magazine.

WISHED DEATH MIGHT COME

To Relieve the Awful Suffering of Advanced Kidney Disease.

William Gibson, Greenup, Ky., says: "Three months I was in bed, and would have died, I believe, but for Doan's Kidney Pills. My doctor said the case was hopeless. My back felt as if it were being seared with a red-hot iron. The kidney secretions were painful, irregular and full of sediment. There were puffy spots beneath my eyes and my head pained terribly. I was miserable in every way and often wished death might relieve me. When I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills my condition was so serious that they had little effect, but I persisted, getting gradually better, and it was not a great while before I was cured. The effect has been lasting."

Remember the name—Doan's. Sold by all dealers, 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Our Own Minstrels.

"Mistah Walkah, kin yo' tell me de diff'unce 'tween a lady's gown an' de driver of a public libr'y delivery wagon?"

"No, George; I give that one up. What is the difference between a lady's gown and the driver of a public library delivery wagon?"

"De one has hooks in de back, an' de uddah has books in de back."

"Ladies and gentlemen, the gifted tenor, Mr. Stannup N. Howell, will now sing the popular sentimental ballad, 'Baby, Please Don't Scatter Cracker Crumbs in the Bed!'"

A Rare Good Thing.

"Am using Allen's Foot-Ease, and can truly say I would not have been without it so long, had I known the relief it would give my aching feet. I think it a rare good thing for anyone having sore or tired feet. —Mrs. Matilda Holtwert, Providence, R. I." Sold by all Druggists, 25c. Ask to-day.

Caves of Gloom.

"You seem to look with jaundiced eyes on everything," said his physician. "I shall have to prescribe some kind of——"

"No, doctor," interrupted the other, "it isn't the condition of my liver this time. For the last week or so I've been reading those horrible stories of crime published in the monthly magazines."

Are Your Clothes Faded?

Use Red Cross Ball Blue and make them white again. Large 2oz. package, 5 cents.

Explicit Directions.

The Langworths lived in a corner house so easily accessible from the street that they were being continually annoyed by persons ringing to ask where other people lived. At last the son of the house, says a writer in the New York Times, decided to put an end to the nuisance.

"I guess," he said, complacently, "there won't be any more folks asking if the Browns, the Biddles or the Hansons live in this house. I've fixed 'em."

"What have you done?" queried Mrs. Langworth.

"Hung out a sign."

"And what did you print on it?"

"Just five words," replied Harold, proudly. "'Nobody lives here but us.'"

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES OR RHEUMATISM BRIGHT'S DISEASE DIABETES BACKACHE

NUMBER 375 "Guaranteed"

Best for Children

PISO'S CURE

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS AND COLDS

Gives instant relief when little throats are irritated and sore. Contains no opiates and is as pleasant to take as it is effective.

All Druggists, 25 cents.

ALONG THE CANAL of the SANITARY DISTRICT of CHICAGO

A MAJORITY of the cities of the world have grown to greatness through their water-borne commerce, writes R. R. McCormick, President of the Sanitary District of Chicago, in the Record-Herald. All cities are dependent for existence upon their fresh-water supply. Hence it has been that the larger part of the greater engineering works of history have been concerned in improving harbors and creating or preserving water supplies. The peculiar situation of Chicago has permitted us to protect our water supply and create opportunity for water transportation by one and the same work. The proper development of our harbor, river and canal system to secure the maximum efficiency for sanitation and transportation is at the same time our greatest problem and our greatest opportunity. To it must be brought the maximum of engineering and legislative study. It must combine results of scientific research and mature business judgment.

At the present time there is much sentiment in the waterway movement and little information. The same is true in the field of sewage disposal. There are strong opinions and little knowledge. While preparing to act it is well to study. Irrespective of the rights of taxpayers living in different localities and the duty of meeting such expenses as must be incurred for the construction of a waterway, it is essential that legislators have placed before them all the available knowledge bearing on such important subjects. Such knowledge, when obtained, will tell what capacity of channel had best be built for navigation and for sewage disposal.

The water flowed through the drainage canal is flowed primarily for the purpose of purifying sewage without permitting it to become putrescible at any time during its decomposition. A given amount of water is considered necessary for the purification of sewage from a given population—namely, a flow of five cubic feet of water per second for each inhabitant. On this theory engineers have worked out tables of cost for the purification of the sewage of various populations which will at future times drain into the Chicago canal.

The Size of Vessels.

The size and design of ships which will most effectively and economically carry freight in the waterways which we find in this country or which can be achieved by proper improvements have not been investigated with any approach of accuracy. While the old-time river boat appears to be obsolete, the new type of boat which will be practicable has not been developed in this country. How far the class of boats used on European rivers will be profitable in America, and how far river improvement of the kind practiced abroad can be adopted in this country, should be studied. Of late years transportation of freight in lighters on the Chicago river has grown with mushroom rapidity. The older and larger lighters are being replaced by smaller ships because the smaller ship handles package freight more economically than the larger ship, and not because the larger ship cannot be easily navigated in the Chicago river.

The development of dockage has been pushed with considerable success in recent years. Revenue has been derived in leasing in considerable sums and industries have been located there which otherwise would never have come within the range of the Chicago business districts.

The possibilities of creating an income from the leasing and developing of the dock property and selling of the stone along the banks was early recognized by the Board of Trustees. There are now located on the docks a number of large concerns who find the economy in traffic by reason of water and railroad facilities a very substantial advantage.

In addition to development of dockage, the sanitary district has developed another valuable asset—water power. At Lockport, along the line of the canal, the land drops away rapidly, affording an ideal water power location. This water power, of course, is as much a natural asset of the canal as its dockage. The development of this asset on the part of the trustees of the district has stirred up more opposition and created more controversy, public and private, than any other one thing connected with its entire history. And yet this same water power is, by all means, the greatest natural asset which belongs to the people of Cook County and of Chicago.

History of the District.

Work on the Sanitary District was started Sept. 3, 1892, and on Jan. 2, 1900, water was turned in. The canal filled in thirteen days. The canal begins on the west fork of the south branch of the Chicago river at Robey street and is completed 28.05 miles to Lockport. Its minimum depth is twenty-two feet. The channel is cut partly through glacial drift and partly through rock. From Robey street to Summit, about eight miles, the channel is 110 feet at bottom and 198 feet at water line. From Summit to Willow Springs, about five miles, the channel is through earth and hard mixture. This section is 202 feet at bottom and 290 at water line.

From Willow Springs to Lockport, fifteen miles, the channel is through rock, 160 feet at bottom and 162 at water line. The depth of the rock cutting in this section averages thirty-five feet. The channel's grade is 1⅝ inches to the mile through earth sections and 3¼ inches through the rock sections. At Robey street the channel bottom is 24.448 feet below Chicago datum; at Lockport, 30.1 feet. Chicago datum is 579.63 feet above mean tide at New York, and 578.56 feet above mean tide at Biloxi, Miss., on the Gulf of Mexico.

The total amount of excavation included 28,500,000 cubic yards of glacial drift and 12,910,000 cubic yards of solid rock, or an aggregate of 41,410,000 cubic yards. One of the most interesting features of the work of construction was the diversion of the Des Plaines river. As the plans provided that the channel should follow the bed of the river for a distance, it became necessary to excavate a new channel for the Des Plaines about thirteen miles in length.

The material excavated from the river diversion included 1,810,000 cubic yards of glacial drift and 258,659 cubic yards of solid rock, making a total of 2,068,659. Adding this to the excavation from the main channel gives a grand total of 43,478,659 cubic yards of material which was excavated. The whole volume of spoil (earth and rock), if deposited in Lake Michigan in forty feet of water, would make an island one mile square, with its surface twelve feet above the water line.

It is no exaggeration to say that the Chicago Sanitary and Ship Canal is one of the greatest artificial waterways ever constructed. Other canals may have cost more and may have exceeded this in depth, but this canal has a greater cross-section than any other. To this work neither the general government nor the State of Illinois has yet contributed a single dollar.

Up to date the total expenditures of the Sanitary District have been as follows:

Right of way	$ 8,946,138.39
Construction	30,734,292.86
Electrical department	3,278,216.19
Capitalization and maintenance of bridges	647,423.43
Interest	9,601,083.35
Taxes on lands	133,908.05
Administration	5,557,233.26
State inspection of main channel	$3,075.97
Land damages	105,090.15
Marine damages	15,473.16
Personal injuries account	5,075.20
City of Chicago	16,360.63
Bridgeport pumping works	90,388.90
Machinery and tools account	98,770.58
Total	$59,262,530.02

BEWARE OF NEW HATS AND THEIR DEADLY PINS

Pictures of the Latest Designs in Women's Headgear Showing the Poniard-Like Hatpins Worn in Them

From London Sketch

The crusade against the deadly hat pins of great length started here recently has received new impetus as a result of the latest style in women's headgear which call for a bristling array of veritable poniards surrounding their heads. Many persons have lost an eye or received other injuries from the long pins. The new pins greatly increase this danger.

CURTAIN LECTURES.

Now, I'm not going to let you bully me into saying one single word about women—the cats!

I should think you'd be afraid of growing into that horrid old chair—and all the theaters open, too!

When I look around and see how nice other women's husbands are to them I could cry my eyes out.

Well, if you think I'm going to let you stay in town by yourself while I go to mother's for the holidays you've got another guess, Mr. Foxy!

Last evening, in going over the household accounts, you became peevish because the item lamb chops appeared upon the butcher's bill four times in one day. The ignominy of it! As if I can help what the butcher does!

You tell me that you love me. It used to be that you adored and idolized me. How long, O pitiless stars, am I to live in this Inferno of neglect?

An effort made in Russia to form a gigantic steel corporation, on the lines of the one existing in this country, has failed.

There is still pending in the English law courts a case which was initiated in 1707.

GLOBE SIGHTS.

There is one good thing about girl clerks in dry goods stores: they do not smoke while on duty.

Nothing makes a woman quite so indignant as to hear of a wife who supports her husband.

An amateur singer's great ambition is to sing so pathetically that people in the audience will cry.

After a man has been sick a week, his wife looks worse than he does, from taking care of him.

When we say actresses, we mean any woman who acts as though she loves any man not her husband.

We all hate rich men, but there is no denying that they attract attention: Croesus is still being talked about.

When you hear a man telling about the troubles incident to his business, doesn't it seem to you that yours are ten times worse?

It takes men two generations to get used to riches, but a woman will look as though she were born rich before she has had her good luck a week.

WAS "INFORTUNATE."

Young Man Who Used Term Won Money from His Unwise Friends.

Just by way of showing how easy it is for some men to pick up a few dollars by their wits a young fellow strolled into a Chestnut street cafe the other afternoon, and joining in a conversation that was being carried on by convivial spirits, declared he was the most "infortunate" individual on earth, the Philadelphia Record says. He immediately began telling a story of his personal troubles, but before he had got the narrative well under way there was a chorus of interruptions and the talkative young man was politely informed that his English needed revising, since he should have used the word "unfortunate" instead of "infortunate." The newcomer insisted that infortunate was the correct word to use, and the argument waxed warm. Finally, with a show of heat, the young man who started the trouble declared that while he only had a few dollars, he would wager them that he was correct. So anxious were his friends to law wagers with him that he did not have money enough to meet all the demands, but he succeeded in putting up $15 in separate small bets. The men who were certain that the garrulous young man was wrong in the use of the word infortunate sent out for a dictionary, only to find that they had been "stung" on a "sure thing" bet, the big book on spelling showing that infortunate is perfectly proper and means unfortunate. "Yes," said the winner of the bets, as he pocketed his new portion of wealth, "I have won money on that before; I collected $10 this afternoon on a similar wager."

BEAR MANGLES A CHILD.

Frightfully mangled by a captive bear in Idora Park, 10-year-old Selma Lewis, daughter of Fred Lewis, was saved only by the interference of the companion bear in the cage. The little girl was feeding acorns to the bear when it suddenly reached through the bars of the cage, scalping her, frightfully mangling her right arm and biting off three of her fingers. She screamed and the other bear in the cage rushed at its mate, compelling it to loosen the hold of the child. The girl was taken to the hospital, where her death was expected.

DANGEROUS TO YOUR LUNGS.

Meals at irregular hours.

Dusty occupations generally.

All forms of dissipation and excess.

Exposure to dust containing germs.

Unwholesome and improperly cooked food.

Loss of sleep, worry and confinement.

Drinking excessive amounts of alcoholic liquor.

YOUNG KINGS WHO ARE FACING STRIFE

Future of Youthful Rulers of Spain and Portugal Is One of Gloom Says London Writer.

"MANUEL A PATHETIC FIGURE"

Old Regime of Graft Restored Under Him—Partisan War Perils the Throne of Alfonso.

The London Sphere, in an article by S. L. Bensusan, discusses "The Future of Europe's Youngest Kings"—Alfonso of Spain and Manuel of Portugal. King Alfonso is described as "reigning, but not ruling," and King Manuel is pictured as a pathetic figure.

In Portugal, as in Spain, one says of the government: "The more it changes the more it is the same. But Senor Franco was in earnest; he cut down monopolies, he put an end to scandals that enjoyed all the prestige of long standing, and, finding that the constitution was in his way, he assumed the powers of a dictator.

For this offense Dom Carlos and the crown prince paid the penalty, and today the pathetic figure of Dom Manuel stands rather ineffectively between the republicans and their goal. But oddly enough there is in Lisbon no very definite anticipation of further change.

The old order of things so rudely threatened by Senor Franco is obtained once more, the scramble for loaves and fishes has been resumed, the excesses of the noisiest and most violent party have shocked moderate opinion, and many good judges believe that the young king has at least a sporting chance of a happy reign.

Across the border the case is different. Between unregenerate Castile and progressive Catalonia there can be no abiding peace. So widespread is the discontent that when King Alfonso went to his coronation many of the great ladies of the court received absolution before they set out, and nobody was surprised at the outrage that marred the ceremony.

To-day further outrages would not create astonishment, for between the governing powers and the revolutionary party there is war to the knife. If Spain were united, the rule of the Bourbon house could not last to the end of the year, but religionalism is the dominent force throughout the country and may be said to keep King Alfonso on his throne.

The four quarters of Spain differ in thought, dialect, literature, costume and food. Everywhere outside the Castiles the governing body is hated, but down to the present no power has availed against the common foe. By landing his country in a costly, devastating and wholly unremunerative war Senor Maura forfeited the respect of his friends; by conniving at the judicial murder of the revolutionary Francisco Ferrer he placed himself beyond the pale of his enemies' forgiveness. Senor Maura started public life in the Balearic islands, where he was soon one of the most powerful of the political "bosses," who are known in Spain as caciques.

The whole political and military machinery of the country is controlled from Madrid, and if the government is clever and fortunate it may yet patch up the African trouble by cutting its losses and placate some of its worst enemies by reducing the severity of the campaign against the intellectuals.

When people eat different food, speak a different dialect, read different books, wear different clothes and sing different songs they are apt to forget that they are citizens of one country. The central government in Madrid takes fullest advantage of these differences through some of the best devised political machinery in the world. King Alfonso may yet conciliate the malcontents as his father did before him—but will he be allowed to try? He reigns, but he does not rule.

Certainly Spain's respite from trouble has been brief, and he would need to be a prophet indeed who could forecast what a year or two will bring forth. Meanwhile Spain's new premier, Senor Moret, has more or less "justified" the sentence on Ferrer. The Republican and Socialist parties have made friends, and in that alliance there is the greatest danger to the throne.

EUROPE'S YOUNGEST MONARCHS.

DOM MANUEL of Portugal — FROM LONDON "SPHERE" — ALFONSO of Spain

When Father Makes the Fire.

Whenever father makes the fire—
For sometimes mother's sick—
We children run and climb a tree
All on the double-quick,
And though we climb up to the top,
We wish the tree was higher,
For chips just scatter everywhere
When father makes the fire.

We always know when it's his turn
'Cause 'fore he comes down stairs
He rips out words that sound just like
Our iceman when he swears,
And cats and dogs, and hens and geese,
From out his path retire
And scat away to our back lot,
When father makes the fire.

Then, 'fore he gives the kitchen stove
A rakin', like as not
He kicks the scuttle 'cross the floor
And breaks the coffee pot,
And when he takes the ashes out
The fates and him conspire
To sift them on the table cloth—
When father makes the fire.

They say that war is terrible,
And plagues and pestilence,
And that they bring to sons of men
Great suffering and expense.
But I'll just bet they can't compare
With woes that we acquire
When ma's away, or sick abed,
And father makes the fire.
—Boston Courier.

Abdul Hamid's 2,000 waistcoats and the hundreds of boxes of shirts and waistcoats found in Yildiz kiosk recall the posthumous sale of King George IV's wardrobe, which realized $45,000.

Austria is the country most lenient to murderers. A very small percentage of those convicted are executed.

During the year 1908 the 544,935 acres under tea in India produced 3,722,551 pounds.

LEOPARD SLAIN WITH AN AX.

In St. Paul, Minn., three hundred persons were thrown into a panic when a leopard, which was being exhibited in the city, broke from its cage. The animal attacked Martin Martinson, 4 years old, and in the presence of the boy's father, tore the child's right arm almost from its socket and severed one ear. The boy would have been killed had not Charles Reustrom, a blacksmith, rushed from his shop and killed the beast with an ax.

SPLINTERS.

It is better to go slow than to jump the track.

Best manners, like best clothes, are only worn in company.

A man that talks to himself cannot be accused of gossiping.

Boyce—Who were the speakers at the ladies' banquet? Joyce—Everybody.

The man who thinks that he owns the earth rarely ever pays tax for even a building lot.

WANTS HER LETTER PUBLISHED

For Benefit of Women who Suffer from Female Ills

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. My pains all left me, I grew stronger, and within three months I was a perfectly well woman.

"I want this letter made public to show the benefit women may derive from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JOHN G. MOLDAN, 2115 Second St., North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She will treat your letter as strictly confidential. For 20 years she has been helping sick women in this way, free of charge. Don't hesitate—write at once.

MILLIONS

OF WOMEN

Regard Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment as unrivaled for Preserving, Purifying and Beautifying the Skin, Scalp, Hair and Hands, for Sanative, Antiseptic Cleansing and for the Nursery.

Sold throughout the world. Depots: London, 27, Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5, Rue de la Paix; Australia, R. Towns & Co., Sydney; India, B. K. Paul, Calcutta; China, Hong Kong Drug Co.; Japan, Maruya, Ltd., Tokio; Russia, Derrein, Moscow; So. Africa, Lennon, Ltd., Cape Town, etc.; U.S.A., Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston.

Post Free, Cuticura Booklet on the Skin

Keeping cheerful is an easy matter, with the bowels open. Millions carry candy Cascarets. At the first sign of bowel clogging, they take one tablet. They end the trouble in an hour. Thus many dull days are avoided.

Vest-pocket box, 10 cents—at drug-stores. People now use a million boxes monthly.

Dr. McINTOSH celebrated Natural Uterine Supporter gives immediate relief. Sold by all surgical instrument dealers and leading druggists in United States and Canada. Catalog, price list and particulars mailed on application.

THE HASTINGS & McINTOSH TRUSS CO. 812 Walnut St., PHILADELPHIA, Pa., manufacturers of trusses and sole makers of the Genuine stamped "McIntosh" Supporter.

Paper-Hangers & Painters

You can greatly increase your business with no extra investment by selling Alfred Peats' Prize Wallpaper. We want one good worker in each vicinity, and to the first worthy applicant will send FREE, by prepaid express, five large sample books showing a $250,000.00 Wallpaper Stock for customers to select from. We offer liberal profits to our representatives. Answer quickly that you may get the agency in your vicinity for 1910.

Alfred Peats Co., 161-163 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

Let us do your Printing using

Eagle Linen

for your office stationery. You can get the paper and envelopes to match.

It is the real thing. Take no exceptions.

DECEMBER

L1134

For Pain in Chest

For sore throat, sharp pain in lungs, tightness across the chest, hoarseness or cough, lave the parts with Sloan's Liniment. You don't need to rub, just lay it on lightly. It penetrates instantly to the seat of the trouble, relieves congestion and stops the pain.

Here's the Proof.
Mr. A.W. Price, Fredonia, Kans., says: "We have used Sloan's Liniment for a year, and find it an excellent thing for sore throat, chest pains, colds, and hay fever attacks. A few drops taken on sugar stops coughing and sneezing instantly."

Sloan's Liniment

is easier to use than porous plasters, acts quicker and does not clog up the pores of the skin. It is an excellent antiseptic remedy for asthma, bronchitis, and all inflammatory diseases of the throat and chest; will break up the deadly membrane in an attack of croup, and will kill any kind of neuralgia or rheumatic pains.

All druggists keep Sloan's Liniment. Prices 25c., 50c., & $1.00.
Dr. Earl S. Sloan, BOSTON, MASS.

WESTERN CANADA

What Prof. Shaw, the Well-Known Agriculturist, Says About It:

"I would sooner raise cattle in Western Canada than in the corn belt of the United States. Feed is cheaper and climate better for the purpose. Your market will improve faster than your farmers will produce the supplies. Wheat can be grown up to the 60th parallel (200 miles north of the International boundary). Your vacant land will be taken at a rate beyond present conception. We have enough people in the United States alone who want homes to take up this land." Nearly

70,000 Americans

will enter and make their homes in Western Canada this year.

1909 produced another larger crop of wheat, oats and barley, in addition to which the cattle exports was an immense item.

Cattle raising, dairying, mixed farming and grain growing in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Free homestead and pre-emption areas, as well as lands held by railway and land companies, still provide homes for millions.

Adaptable soil, healthful climate, splendid schools and churches, and good railways.

For settlers' rates, descriptive literature "Last Best West," how to reach the country and other particulars, write to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the following Canadian Gov't Agents: W. H. Rogers, 34 Floor Traction-Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Ind., and H. M. Williams, Room 29, Law Building, Toledo, Ohio. (Use address nearest you.)

Please say where you saw this advertisement.

Fort Wayne List

Paxtine
TOILET ANTISEPTIC

Keeps the breath, teeth, mouth and body antiseptically clean and free from unhealthy germ-life and disagreeable odors, which water, soap and tooth preparations alone cannot do. A germicidal, disinfecting and deodorizing toilet requisite of exceptional excellence and economy. Invaluable for inflamed eyes, throat and nasal and uterine catarrh. At drug and toilet stores, 50 cents, or by mail postpaid.

Large Trial Sample
WITH "HEALTH AND BEAUTY" BOOK SENT FREE
THE PAXTON TOILET CO., Boston, Mass.

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills. They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature Brent Good
REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

TOWER'S FISH BRAND
WATERPROOF
OILED CLOTHING
will give you full value for every dollar spent and keep you dry in the wettest weather.

SUITS $3.00
SLICKERS $3.00
POMMEL SLICKERS $3.00
SOLD EVERYWHERE CATALOG FREE
A.J. TOWER CO. BOSTON, U.S.A.
TOWER CANADIAN CO. LIMITED TORONTO, CAN.

If afflicted with Sore Eyes, use THOMPSON'S EYE WATER

No More Walking.

What the inventor says will be a great boon to small farmers, as the invention, it is claimed, will do the work of six horses, is in use in California, but it can be adapted to any locality. It is a gasoline tractor and is a help in plowing, harrowing and harvesting. It will keep running as long as it is fed gasoline.

Built with a two cylinder motor, the tractor has plenty of power. It has two speeds, forward and reverse, and is easily operated from an extension seat, from much the same position a driver would occupy with his team.

It is particularly an orchard tractor, having low, wide wheels, narrow tread, short wheel base and short turning raidius. A special feature is that the tractor may be driven from the seat of the ordinary wheel plow or harrow, enabling one man to drive and operate the levers of this plow and cultivator with perfect ease and convenience. It is a one man machine, light in weight, with all control levers conveniently arranged.

To obtain the greatest efficiency the front wheels are made the traction wheels; also the steering wheels. In the rear are smaller plain wheels, close together, with flanges to hold against side slipping, used simply as trailers, to which the plow, cultivator, harrow or farm wagon is hitched the same as though coupled to the small wheels used on the rear of the ordinary tongue when plowing with a team.

THE HORSELESS CULTIVATOR.

The power plant is built in a stiff steel frame, mounted rigidly to the main axle, and is composed of a two cylinder opposed engine of standard make, rated at twenty-four horsepower.

Thumps in Pigs.

Thumps in pigs is caused by a surplus of fat and a lack of exercise. The thumping is due to violent beating of the heart, causing shaking movement of the sides and flanks of the animal. Often it is so violent that the whole body trembles and shakes with the movements. In aggravated cases the pig is weak and uncertain in his walk and lies down most of the time. Before death the nose, ears and other parts of the body become red and purple with congested blood, due to weak circulation.

Advanced cases of the thumps are difficult to cure. When first symptoms are noticed reduce the bedding if there is much in their sleeping quarters; reduce the feed and compel the pig to exercise in the open air. Fresh air will purify the blood and exercise will promote circulation. When pigs become fat and lazy they will lie in bed a great part of the time, often completely covered with bedding, so that they breathe impure air and dust. This poisons the blood and reduces the vitality in general, which, with compression of the heart with surplus fat, causes the malady.

In the spring or summer when pasture is good it is well to change pasture of hogs afflicted with the thumps so that they will be induced to take more exercise and eat green food. Reduce heavy feeding and keep the bowels of the animal loose by doses of castor oil. A little turpentine in the slop or drinking water is said to be good.

Selecting Seed Corn.

In gathering the corn crop, it is well to look out for next year's seed. Next to good soil and good cultivation, is good seed. Do not place too much confidence in abnormal individual ears. Select good ears from rows which produce a large yield. And when seeding time comes next year, do not rely too much on the character of the seed. With well-prepared soil and thorough culture, a large crop of corn can be grown from almost any kind of seed, which will germinate, but good seed will increase the yield, and will fully repay the trouble and cost of obtaining it.

The Bee's Sense of Direction.

A French beekeeper made a test which satisfied him that the sense of direction is more finely developed in the bee than in the pigeon. He took a dozen pigeons and a dozen bees about eight miles from his garden and there released them. To recognize the bees he dusted them with flour, and had a friend stationed near the hive and well in view of the dovecote. The first bee arrived home exactly fifteen seconds before the first pigeon, and their companions followed in due order.

Value of Coal Ashes.

There is more value in coal ashes than is generally realized by the farmer. For the amelioration of heavy clay land they are exceptionally valuable. This is particularly so with the ashes of soft coal, as such usually are reduced almost to a dust.

Coal ashes have a fertilizer value. This opinion, however, is not held generally. The coal beds contain phosphorous, potash, nitrogen and lime, as well as the other less important ingredients. When the original trees out of which were formed the coal beds were reduced to coal the mineral elements remained in them, and consequently those same elements go with the ashes. One authority says that the reason why people have formed an idea that coal ashes contain no fertility is that the trees now grown have in them less carbon than those in the old days and thus the percentage of other elements to carbon is probably greater now than then, which gives a larger value to our wood ashes but does not annihilate the value in the coal ashes. Ashes can be used to advantage without sifting, but large quantities of half-burned coal are by some considered a detriment to the soil.

Newest Posthole Auger.

An invention that will be found useful by fence-makers and farmers generally, is the post-hole auger designed by a Michigan man. This implement digs a narrow, fence or other post hole and digs it quickly. In appearance the auger resembles a clean hole, just the right diameter for a huge auger of the ordinary carpenter's kit. It is pressed down into the earth, the jaws taking in the amount of dirt a post would replace, and then withdrawn, bringing up the dirt just as a dredger would. Indeed, the implement works much like a dredging machine. The advantage of auger is in the small, clean hole it makes. Without it a post hole must be dug with a spade and the smallest spade not only makes a hole too big, but one that necessarily slants from the rim to the bottom and must be filled again. It is easy to understand that a post will stand much more firmly in a hole that does not have to be filled in.

FOR CUTTING FROG

Snails and Slugs.

A woman gardener wrote to State Zoologist H. A. Surface at Harrisburg, Pa., asking for instructions how to overcome the snails in her garden. Prof. Surface replied: "Snails and slugs, although very great and serious garden pests, especially where the gardens are damp and the vegetation rank, can be prevented by the use of an impassable barrier of powdery substance around the beds of plants to be protected. Soot is excellent for this, although dry ashes will serve the purpose, and air-slaked lime will be found very good. Also, you can kill them by dusting them with some freshly slaked lime mixed with paris green, using about thirty parts of the lime to one part of the paris green, which is dusted abundantly over their bodies. Also dusting their food plants with flour and paris green will destroy them. Another method is to poison some leaves of plants of which they are particularly fond, and put this where the snails will find and eat them and be destroyed. Another method is to place boards loosely on the ground, as traps, and in the morning examine them and pick out and gather the snails and brush them into a vessel containing salt, which will kill them. If the ground is dry and cracked pour salt water into the cracks and thus destroy them. The barriers mentioned above should be kept dry, or renewed every time after a rain. Keep the vegetation around the garden mowed low, or keep the ground cultivated, so that these pests will not find suitable places where they can multiply."

Homemade Feed Cutter.

Here is a feed cutter which anyone can make from a little cheap lumber. The knife, a, is a common broad ax, which most farmers have. Put a handle in, as shown, and build a frame of 2x2-inch hard wood and inch boards. The end of the handle is fastened to the standard at b with a piece of strap iron. Another piece of strap iron, c, acts as a guard and keeps the ax close to the edge of the box.—Farm and Home.

Oil from Potatoes.

The United States Department of Agriculture is conducting experiments in the manufacture of oil from potatoes by the introduction of four varieties of coarse, heavy, starch-producing potatoes from Moscow, Russia. These are sorts adapted to the steppe region of Russia and are believed to be promising for our great plains. It is hoped that these potatoes will demonstrate whether it will be profitable for our farmers to grow a special alcohol crop.

Check-Rein on Horses.

When a horse stumbles he is far less likely to go down when his head is left free. In England, where they are far ahead of us in everything pertaining to horses, the check-rein has been abolished, the last surreader being that of the artillery and commissariat trains of the British army, the change having been made by Sir George Bourgoyne, the late commander-in-chief, and he testifies to the beneficial results attending it.

A Valuable Cow.

Grace Fayne II.'s Homestead a Holstein-Fresian cow, valued at $8,000 died recently at the Harvey A. Moyer Farm, just north of Syracuse, N. Y., from pneumonia. The animal was heavily insured and held the world's butter record of 35.55 pounds of butter in one week and the thirty-day record of 134.18 pounds. She broke a former record of 35.22 pounds for a week. One of her calves sold recently for $2,000.

Self-Heating Flat-Iron.

From across the seas comes an unusually useful invention in the form of a self-heating iron evolved by a German brain. It will be understood at once, that this iron does its work in a neat and orderly manner. The top of the iron is hinged to form a lid and across the bottom of the interior is a grating, on which charcoal is to be burned. The method of heating insures the untensil being always at a temperature that fits it for use and there is no danger of dirt of any sort accumulating on the bottom. In addition to doing its work clean, the new iron has the advantage of being without offensive odor, the small amount of charcoal required to heat it causing no unpleasant smell. The time saved in having an implement with which to do all of your ironing without waiting to heat an iron or exchange it for another on the stove, can readily be appreciated. Then, too, the risk of soiling the clothes is eliminated.

CHARCOAL IRON.

English Veal Loaf.

Boil in as little water as possible, four pounds of shoulder; when cold chop fine. Mix the following and add to the chopped meat: Two eggs, one cup cracker crumbs, one cup liquor meat was boiled in, two tablespoons butter; salt, pepper and little sage. (Do not omit sage.) Pack in a loaf pan (not tin, but granite), bake slowly twenty-five minutes, but do not brown. Loaf should be quite moist when put in oven. Set on ice for several hours.

Nesselrode Pudding.

Take one quart of milk and eight eggs and make a custard. Then stir in a quart of heavy cream, and freeze in the ice cream freezer until it is half stiff. Chop a pound of marrons glaces, remove the dasher and stir them into the cream, thoroughly close the freezer, pack in salt and ice as you would ice cream, and let stand for three hours. Serve on a chilled platter with whipped cream poured around it.

Cannelon of Beef.

Two pounds of lean beef from top of round, one-half cup bread crumbs, one tablespoonful chopped parsley, one beaten egg, one teaspoonful each salt and onion juice, one-quarter teaspoonful each mace and pepper. Pass meat several times through a chopper; mix thoroughly with other ingredients; shape in a loaf. Bake from thirty to forty minutes, basting frequently with fat from salt pork.

Vegetable Soup.

Two quarts of water, 2 ounces of haricot beans, 2 ounces of split peas, 1 onion, 1 carrot, half stick of celery, parsley and herbs, pepper, salt, 5 cloves and a blade of mace. Boil in two quarts of water for three or four hours all the above vegetables, spice and herbs. Strain it off. It will keep for some time if it is let to stand and poured off from the sediment.

Maple Parfait.

Beat four eggs slightly, pour on slowly one cup of hot maple sirup. Cook in double boiler until very thick, stirring constantly. Strain and cool then add one pint of cream beaten stiff. Mold, pack in salt and ice and let stand three hours.

Brains.

Boil in salted water twenty minutes brains that have been well washed and tied in a piece of cheesecloth. Let them cool, then cut in rather thin slices, and dip in beaten egg. Fry brown in hot lard. They taste very much like oysters.

Apple Pudding.

Pare, core and quarter as many tart apples as will fill two-thirds of a pudding dish. Sprinkle with sugar and flavoring, dot with butter, and moisten with a little cold water. Fill the dish with a nice cake batter and bake in.

Short Suggestions.

When suede shoes become worn or shiny rub them wth emery paper and they will look like new.

Steam white mercerized cotton floss to shrink it. Place it in the steamer, allow it to steam for one hour and then dry it.

To make a green mayonnaise blend chopped parsley with butter until it is a bright green. Omit yellow of egg or catch-up.

While heating rugs, it is an excellent and hygienic plan to fasten a handkerchief over the nose and mouth, which will prevent the inhaling of dust.

Sun blinds and shades should be unrolled and examined to see if they require mending or cleaning. The best way to mend a tear is to paste a piece of the same material on at the back.

Spots in light dresses may be generally removed by laying on them a paste of fuller's earth and eau de cologne. Let it dry before brushing off. If necessary, make a second application.

A strong tea and common hay is said to preserve the color of French linens. Put vinegar in the rinsing water for pink or green calicos to brighten them. Soda answers the same purpose for purple and blue.

If the loaves of bread are a little too light and in danger of running over, cut strips of heavy brown paper three or four inches wide, grease one side and pin around the loaf, being careful that it does not touch the side of the oven.

MAKING A JOURNALIST.

Dr. Warren Admits It's Difficult to Mold Raw Material.

Up at the New York university a department of journalism was initiated this year, with Dr. Frank J. Warren in charge, says the New York correspondent of the Cincinnati Times-Star. Seventy-five pupils have been enrolled and it is Dr. Warren's hope to make regular newspaper men out of them in a short time. "Just the same," he admits, "it isn't any fun to make a reporter out of a raw youngster, who has not the slightest knowledge of the manner in which newspapers get or handle their news. It makes me think of the experience of a confrere of mine in the Missouri College of Journalism. He put his students through a course of theoretical sprouts," said Dr. Warren, "and after they had achieved a moderate degree of knowledge of the business it was his custom to send them out to report events for the daily newspaper of the college. The paper handled the news of the vicinity just as a real daily would. On one occasion he sent out a student reporter to report a big railroad wreck near the city, in which a number of cars were in flames and several people were reported killed. Time went on and nothing was heard from the student reporter. Finally, in desperation, the dean telegraphed him 'What is the matter?' he demanded briefly. 'No story yet; edition soon go to press. Rush, rush, rush!' By and by he got a jaunty little message from the student reporter. 'I have not written story yet,' said he. 'Too much excitement here. I am all of a tremble. Soon as things quiet down I will ask some questions.'"

Legal Information

Conducting the business of pool-selling and book-making in the State of Kansas, except within the inclosure of a race track for not exceeding two weeks in any year, was prohibited by fine and imprisonment. Subsequent to the passage of this law Kansas City, Kan., enacted an ordinance entitling any person to carry on such business in that city for an annual license fee of $5,000. Two days after plaintiff had purchased a license he was compelled by force and threats and repeated arrests to cease business. In Levy vs. Kansas City, 168 Federal Reporter, 524, plaintiff sued the city for the $5,000 paid to it for the license. The Circuit Court of Appeals held that, as plaintiff was guilty of a violation of a general law enacted to effectuate the public policy of the State of Kansas, his action arising from his own moral turpitude was not maintainable.

In Biermann vs. Guaranty Mut. Life Ins. Co., 120 Northwestern Reporter, 963, payment of insurance was denied for the alleged reason that deceased, a drunkard, had represented that he took a drink occasionally, but not to excess. The Iowa Supreme Court, allowing a recovery by the widow of the insured, remarked that sufficient disclosure was shown to suggest to a discreet person the advisability of further inquiry if the subject was of vital importance. What constitutes "excess" in this respect is largely a matter of opinion, and varies all the way between a "drink" and a "drunk;" while an occasional glass of beer may mean anything from a glass once a month to one every 15 minutes, according to the capacity of the individual, or, perhaps, according to the liberality of his views. Although testimony was elicited showing deceased to have been a drunkard when he applied for insurance, it is apparent that the company had means of knowledge of this fact when it made the contract.

While a buggy in which were a man and a boy was being driven on a highway, a heavy automobile tried to pass it, but struck its rear wheel. The boy was thrown beneath the feet of the frightened horse, and literally kicked to death. The owner and driver of the machine were convicted of manslaughter in the second degree. In People vs. Scanlon, 117 New York Supplement, 57, the defendants appealed from an order denying a new trial. The New York Supreme Court, affirming the conviction of the chauffeur, said that it was the reckless driving which is the cause of many accidents, and which should disqualify any one who practices it. With a heavy machine, weighing 3,000 to 4,000 pounds, going at the rate of 26 miles an hour, it is indefensible negligence to attempt to pass a buggy within a few inches. The owner of the machine, who was sitting next to the driver, had given orders to give full leeway to passing vehicles. He was powerless to deflect its course in time to avoid the catastrophe. The whole thing was, as it were, instantaneous, in the control of the chauffeur, but in no way in the owner's control. The conviction of the owner was reversed, and a new trial granted.

The Good Dinner.

The successful housekeeper was planning a dinner for a few of her husband's friends.

"I must have apple pie and cheese for dessert," she remarked without a flicker of indecision.

"But I should think you would want something more dainty this time of year," suggested the woman who always worried herself sick over a company dinner, "an ice or a frozen pudding."

"Oh, but apple pie is my husband's favorite dish. When he has company I always serve what he likes best; then he thinks his guests have had such a good dinner, and everybody is happy. At least my husband and I are happy, and if the guests aren't no one is the wiser."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

When a man marries a woman older than himself the couple is never mentioned without some comment on their difference in ages.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Canada's Day of Thanks a Month Earlier than in the United States.

For some reason, better known to the Canadians themselves than to the people on this side of the line, our Canadian cousins celebrated their Thanksgiving a month or more earlier than we do. It may be that the Canadian turkey had become impatient, and sounded a note of warning, or it may be that the "frost on the punkin" declared itself. But whatever the reason, their Thanksgiving day is past. It may have been that the reasons for giving thanks so much earlier than we do were pushing themselves so hard and so fast that the Canadians were ashamed to postpone the event. They have had reasons, and good ones, too, for giving thanks. Their great broad areas of prairie land have yielded in abundance and here, by the way, it is not uninteresting to the friends of the million of Americans who have made their home in Canada during the past few years to know that they have participated most generously in the "cutting of the melon." Probably the western portion of Canada, comprising the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, have the greatest reason of any of the provinces to express in the most enthusiastic manner their gratitude. The results in the line of production give ample reason for devout thanksgiving to Providence. This year has surpassed all others in so far as the total increase in the country's wealth is concerned. There is no question that Providence was especially generous. The weather conditions were perfect, and during the ripening and harvesting period, there was nothing to interfere. And now it was well it was so, for with a demand for labor that could not be supplied, there was the greatest danger, but with suitable weather the garnering of the grain has been successfully accomplished. There have been low general averages, but these are accounted for by the fact that farmers were indifferent, relying altogether upon what a good soil would do. There will be no more low averages, though, for this year has shown what good, careful farming will do. It will produce 130 million bushels of wheat from seven million acres, and it will produce a splendid lot of oats, yielding anywhere from 50 to 100 bushels per acre. This on land that has cost but from $10 to $15 per acre—many farmers have realized sufficient from this year's crop to pay the entire cost of their farms. The Toronto Globe says:

"The whole population of the West rejoices in the bounty of Providence, and sends out a message of gratitude and appreciation of the favors which have been bestowed on the country. The cheerfulness which has abounded with industry during the past six months has not obliterated the conception of the source from which the blessings have flown, and the good feeling is combined with a spirit of thankfulness for the privilege of living in so fruitful a land. The misfortunes of the past are practically forgotten, because there is great cause to contemplate with satisfaction the comforts of the present. Thanksgiving should be a season of unusual enthusiasm."

Recipe for Catarrh.

The only logical treatment for catarrh is through the blood. A prescription, which has recently proved wonderfully effective in hospital work is the following. It is easily mixed.

"One ounce compound syrup of Sarsaparilla; one ounce Toris compound; half pint first-class whiskey." These to be mixed by shaking well in a bottle, and used in tablespoon doses before each meal and at bedtime." The ingredients can be gotten from any well stocked druggist, or he will get them from his wholesale house.

Fitting Ideas.

"So Mrs. Dumps wants her new house decorated to suit her own personality. How is the architect going to set about it?"

"I heard him say since she was of such a worrying and nagging disposition, the ornamentation would be chiefly fret work."—Baltimore American.

Now's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

The supply of bamboo in Japan is gradually decreasing, the groves having been attacked by a disease which causes them to decay.

Distemper

In all its forms, among all ages of horses and dogs, cured and others in the same stable prevented from having the disease with Spohn's Distemper Cure. Every bottle guaranteed. Over 500,000 bottles sold last year. $.50 and $1.00. Good druggists, or send to manufacturers. Agents wanted. Write for free book. Spohn Med. Co., Spec. Contagious Diseases, Goshen, Ind.

A newly married woman's dinner table always looks pretty, but it takes an older housekeeper, with her best china smashed by time, to get up a dinner that tastes good.

If you wish beautiful, clear, white clothes, use Red Cross Ball Blue. Large 2oz. package, 5 cents

Information.

Mrs. Chugwater—Josiah, what is an infernal machine?"

Mr. Chugwater—Any political machine.

FOR DEEP-SEATED COLDS and coughs, Allen's Lung Balsam cures when all other remedies fail. This old reliable medicine has been sold for over 40 years. 25c, 50c, $1.00 bottles. All dealers.

General Booth's dream is a fleet of Salvation Army steamers carrying the army's emigrants across the Atlantic.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

Sunken Roman Galleys.

Beneath the waters of Lake Nemi, in Italy, lie buried two pleasure galleys. They belonged to the Emperors Tiberius and Caligula, and it is said they contain art treasures that have been covered for many centuries. Systematic efforts were made to recover the contents of the old hulks by Signor Borghi in 1895. Divers were engaged, and the two galleys located, measured and carefully examined, and from both bronzes, pieces of wood, anchors and ornaments of all kinds were collected. The larger vessel measures about 230 feet in length and 80 feet in beam, and the smaller 200 feet in length and 65 feet in beam. Some pieces of lead pipe were found in the vessels. They bear the inscription, "Caesaris Aug. Germanice," the official name of Caligula.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take. Do not gripe.

Hard to Place Himself.

"Engaged to that beautiful girl, and yet not happy?"

"Well, she's gone in by turns for rowing and tennis and horses and golf and dogs."

"Say on."

"Sometimes I wonder if I am a sweetheart or merely a fad."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

FERRY DAVIS' PAINKILLER should be taken without delay when sore chest and tickling throat warn you that an annoying cold threatens. At all druggists in 25c, 50c and 35c bottles.

The first thing a lot of people will look for when they get to heaven will be fault, and the second thing will be souvenir postals to send to friends on earth.

VITALIZER

There Is Hope

RESTORES LOST POWERS. A weak man is like a clock run down. MUNYON'S VITALIZER will wind him up and make him go. If you are nervous, if you are irritable, if you lack confidence in yourself, if you do not feel your full manly vigor, begin on this remedy at once. There are 75 VITALIZER tablets in one bottle; every tablet is full of vital power. Don't spend another dollar on quack doctors or spurious remedies, or fill your system with harmful drugs. Begin on MUNYONS VITALIZER at once, and you will begin to feel the vitalizing effect of this remedy after the first dose. Price, $1; post-paid. Munyon, 53rd and Jefferson, Phila, Pa.

USE SAFETY ANTI-PAIN CAPSULES
PRICE—10 CENTS.

PILES PAY IF CURED We pay postage and send FREE Rx for these Pills and Fistula Cure.
REA CO., DEPT. 85, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

F. W. N. U. - - - - - No. 48—1909

When writing to Advertisers please say you saw the Adv. in this paper.

Silence!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indelicate. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to care a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of FREE consultation by letter. All correspondence is held as sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores and regulates the womanly functions, abolishes pain and builds up and puts the finishing touch of health on every weak woman who gives it a fair trial.

It Makes Weak Women Strong, Sick Women Well.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION.

When Cold Winds Blow

When cold winds blow, biting frost is in the air and back-draughts down the chimney deaden the fires, then the

PERFECTION Oil Heater

(Equipped with Smokeless Device)

shows its sure heating power by steadily supplying just the heat that is needed for comfort.

The Perfection Oil Heater is unaffected by weather conditions. It never fails. No smoke—no smell—just a genial, satisfying heat. The new prevents the wick being turned too high. Removed in an instant.

Automatic Smokeless Device

Solid brass font holds 4 quarts of oil—sufficient to give out a glowing heat for 9 hours—solid brass wick carriers—damper top—cool handle—oil indicator. Heater beautifully finished in nickel or Japan in a variety of styles.

Every Dealer Everywhere. If Not At Yours, Write for Descriptive Circular to the Nearest Agency of the

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (Incorporated)

W. L. DOUGLAS $3.00 $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

THE LARGEST MANUFACTURER OF MEN'S FINE SHOES IN THE WORLD

Wear W. L. Douglas comfortable, easy-walking shoes. They are made upon honor, of the best leathers, by the most skilled workmen, in all the latest fashions. Shoes in every style and shape to suit men in all walks of life.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer and are of greater value than any other make.

CAUTION.—See that W. L. Douglas name and the retail price is stamped on the bottom. Take No Substitute.

BOYS' SHOES $2.00 & $2.50

Wherever you live, W. L. Douglas shoes are within your reach. If your dealer cannot fit you, write for Mail Order Catalog. W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass.

THE Famous Rayo Lamp

Once a Rayo user always one

THE STEADY WHITE LIGHT

The RAYO LAMP is a high-grade lamp, sold at a low price. There are lamps that cost more, but there is no better lamp at any price. The Burner, the Wick, the Chimney-Holder—all are vital things in a lamp; these parts of the RAYO LAMP are perfectly constructed and there is nothing known in the art of lamp-making that could add to the value of the RAYO as a light-giving device. Suitable for any room in any house. Every dealer everywhere. If not at yours, write for descriptive circular to the nearest Agency of the

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (Incorporated)

HAMLINS WIZARD OIL THE OIL THAT PENETRATES GREAT FOR PAIN

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Illinois

DECEMBER

0412

L1134

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS

Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

Suitable Xmas Presents

In giving gifts one should be careful to give something that will stand the test of time. A cheap worthless present is really no present at all. There are many things in our store which would be a very acceptable present. We invite you in to see our line of

Silverware

Jewelry

Clocks

We also have a nice and carefully selected line of novelties. In fact everything from a $1.50 watch to $300 diamond.

We guarantee prices to be just as cheap as any concern.

See our window display. It will do your eyes good to take a look.

All articles engraved free of charge when bought from this store.

Yours For A Square Deal

L. J. DIEHL

Local and Personal

Tell it to the HERALD.

F. A. Brink is on the sick list.

Try the new meat market in the old Boos stand.

Mrs. Jake Cook was an Auburn visitor last Friday.

C. A. Apt was in Logansport Monday on business.

Frank Campbell of Corunna was in the city Monday.

Harmon Parker has been on the sick list this week.

Miss Belle Haverstock is the guest of her sister, Mrs. N. Thiel.

Miss Esta Reed is helping in the Racket store during the holidays.

Ralph Orwig, of Pleasant Lake, was the guest of Victor Davis Sunday.

The Penelope club met with Mrs. Clark Brown Wednesday afternoon.

Misses Nelle and Honore Albertson spent Saturday shopping in Toledo.

Mrs. H. L. Witt left last Frdiay for a visit with her parents at Kendallville

Geo. A. Powers spent Sunday and Monday at Lansing, Mich., on business.

George Griffith of Corunna spent Monday with J. H. Latson and wife.

Mrs. Furney of Waterloo spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Sarah Chambers.

Mesdames Eugene Oberlin and E. F. Albertson spent one day this week in Toledo.

Misses Ruby Sawyer and Tillie Hoffer are spending the week with friends at Hamilton.

Rev. O. B. Wells, of Roanoke, was in the city Monday calling on old acquaintances.

Mrs. Gehring came home Tuesday evening from an extended visit with relatives in the East.

Rev. Davis will preach at Big Run next Sunday morning and at Jerusalem in the evening.

Mrs. J. E. Sturgis and children are staying with Mrs. Arthur Haley during Mr. Sturgis' absence.

The farmers' auxiliary institute will be held in Thompson's opera house Thursday, Dec. 30th.

The women call a man fickle because he does not have the same opinions at 40 as he had at 25.

The Butler Co. shipped three hundred tank heaters Saturday and three hundred again Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Griffith and daughter Edra of Toledo are the guests of J. H. Latson and family.

C. L. Rohrabaugh and wife, of Fort Wayne, were the guests of relatives here the fore part of the week.

Young girls believe that if a bride finds things do not suit her, she should make a bluff at being happy.

Most people are forgetful. Most people think children used to be more obedient than they are today.

The ladies of the Christian church will hold a bazaar sometime about March 1. Watch further particulars.

If in need of furniture step in and choose from our catalogue and we will send and get it for you. Eugene Treesh.

Misses Jessie Bolinger, Mabel Murch and LaNore Dunten and Glen Seibert, Harmon Parker and Arthur Mutzfeld spent Sunday at Hicksville.

Mrs. Hattie Maxwell returned to her home at Tacoma, Wash., Sunday, after a two months visit with relatives and friends in and around Butler.

The Pythian Sisters initiated a candidate into the mysteries of their order Wednesday evening, after which a banquet was served and a very pleasant evening was spent by all present.

The peculiar properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy have been thoroughly tested during epidemics of influenza, and when it was taken in time we have not heard of a single case of pneumonia. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 48-m

Charles Adams, living a few miles north of this place sold a team of draft horses last week to Mr. Bowser of Topeka for $450.00. Mr. Bowser will use them on his farm. They were a match team of grays.

B. Beard will leave within a few days for Oklahoma, to spend the remainder of the winter. Mr. Beard has not been in very good health for some time and 'tis hoped that the change of climate will be of benefit to his health.

C. H. Fanning, night man at the pump station goes to work for the Illinois Northern Ry., as locomotive engineer with headquarters at Chicago. Billy Colgan, who has been firing heating plants in some of the big Toledo hotels for the past year, is now in charge of the station during the night shift.—Stryker Advance.

Friends in his home district have heard from Newton W. Gilbert, who is in the Philippines, that he is just recovering from a fever which has had the better of him for a few weeks. He declares he is now recovering, however, and expects to soon be able to be around and attending to his duties as federal judge.

We want to contract for the milk of 200 more cows, price $1.25 per cwt. for the year round the same number of cows in winter as summer. All summer cows $1.00 per hundred pounds. Parties bringing in their own cream receive this week 32 cents per pound for the butter fat. Those that are doing so are so well pleased that they are putting in more cows. 49-2

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

Full line of Christmas candies at Si's

Buy your Xmag decorations at Si's

Mrs. Geo. Bloomfield is on the sick list.

Don't forget to see Si before buying Xmas candies.

Mrs. J. H. Latson returned from Toledo Monday.

Here's a nice Christmas present—the HERALD, $1.50.

Robert Elden spent Sunday evening in Angola with friends.

Eugene Treesh will frame your pictures cheap. Try him.

Ed Gengnagel sends the HERALD to a friend as a Christmas present.

Edgar Mitchell, of Chicago, is the guest of his father, John Mitchell.

Mrs. Henry Bowman entertained the Culture Club Tuesday afternoon.

For springs and mattresses at reasonable prices call on Eugene Treesh.

Jim Firestone, wife and baby spent Tuesday with Mrs. Elizabeth Cannon.

Christmas tree decorations. Finest and most up-to-date in the city at Si's

Call at the new meat market and get acquainted. C. C. Harper, Prop.

Mrs. Wm. Lovejoy of Bryan was the guest of Bert Kissinger and wife last week.

Mrs. Roy Maxwell entertained the L. T. club at her home on West Main street Wednesday.

Mrs. C. R. Sawyer and daughter left Thursday for their future home at Poulson, Montana.

Mrs. Pauline Hafft of Chicago came Wednesday for a visit with her parents, D. D. Diehl and wife.

Miss Lulu Lockwood spent a couple of days in this city before returning to her home at Milford, Mich.

Harry Latson and George Bowman were initiated into the Modern Woodman lodge Monday evening.

Mrs. Ernest McDonald and son returned home Wednesday from a visit with relatives at Defiance.

Geo. A. Powers was at Lansing and Battle Creek, Mich., the first of the week on business for the Butler Co.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Shapland, of Kendallville, were the guests of Chas. Noragon and wife the fore part of the week.

Mrs. Frank Mitchel and son Kenneth of Toledo came Monday to attend the funeral of the child of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Griffith.

Mrs. Joe Miller has been in Auburn the past two weeks taking treatment.

Sam Tyson butchered for Riley and Chas. Madden Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Acker of Detroit, Mich, and Mr. and Mrs. George McCurrie of Adrian, Mich., were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Harrington last week.

Chas. Powers, father of Geo. A. and A. S. Powers was taken to Hope hospital, Fort Wayne, by the former, where it is expected he will undergo an operation.

The second quarterly meeting of Butler circuit, United Brethren in Christ, will be held at Jerusalem church Dec. 27, 1909, at 9 a. m. J. A. Davis, pastor.

The greatest danger from influenza is of its resulting in pneumonia. This can be obviated by using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, as it not only cures influenza, but counteracts any tendency of the disease towards pneumonia. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 48-1m

Mr. and Mrs. Preston, parents of the groceryman, are moving here from LaGrange this week. They will occupy the Lutheran parsonage. Mr. Preston will be associated with his son in the store.

Strongest Business Course In The Country—Bookkeeping, Typewriting, Shorthand, Courses in Literature, Science and Art, Music, Training of Teachers, Engineering and Pharmacy. Winter term opens Dec. 28th. Tri State College, Angolo, Indiana. 47-4

The HERALD erred last week in stating that Miss Fay Moughler had sued a traveling man from Cleveland. The fellow who she has brought suit against is a contractor from Newark, Ohio, who claimed to Miss Moughler that he was unmarried. Miss Moughler is a respectable young lady, and we hope the law will reward her for the deception and give the guilty contractor the full benefit of the statutes.

If you are suffering from biliousness, constipation, indigestion, chronic headache, invest one cent in a postal card sent to Chamberlain Medicine Co., Des Moines, Iowa, with your name and address plainly on the back, and they will forward you a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 48-1m

The Pythian Sisters entertained at their beautiful hall Wednesday evening Each Sister was to bring one guest, consequently the rooms were well filled with the Sisters and their friends. After a musical program, splendid refreshments were served by the committee after which all enjoyed a good social time, until a late hour when each left for their home voting the Pythian Sisters royal entertainers. Miss Leona Madden of Auburn was an out-of-town guest.

Could Not Be Better

No one has ever made a salve, ointment, lotion or balm to compare with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Its the one perfect healer of Cuts, Corns, Burns, Bruises, Sores, Scalds, Boils, Ulcers, Eczema, Salt Rheum. For Sore Eyes, Cold Sores, Chapped Hands its supreme. Infallible for Piles. Only 25c at Stone's drug store. 48-1m

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

A nice line of burnt leather goods at Si's.

Wm. Chambers is improving very nicely.

Try the new meat market for that Sunday roast.

Mr. Brock of Newville is attending Butler High school.

Here's a nice Christmas present—the HERALD $1.50.

The First National bank solicits your fire insurance. tf

Merritt Seehler spent Sunday in St. Joe with his parents.

Jay Thompson has returned from an extended stay in the west.

Chas. Adams has been quite sick for the past week with lagrippe.

Mrs. L. Hazen is spending the week with relatives in South Bend.

A. Beckley, of Hillsdale, Mich., spent Sunday with his wife here.

Miss Aletha Carrie of Angola spent Sunday with Miss Wilda Crouse.

Mrs. Lewis McInturf spent Sunday in Kendallville, the guest of relatives.

Pay your bills by check. Deposit with the First National bank. tf

Merril Franks and wife have moved from Depot street to West Oak street.

Miss Josephine Baughman, of Kendallville, is the guest of Chas. Noragon and wife.

I have for sale, houses in all parts of the city. Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

Henry Weber, of Montpelier, was the guest of Eli Bryan and family Wednesday.

Miss Genevieve Gordon, of Fort Wayne, spent a few days the fore part of the week with Miss Esther Hiner.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Griffith, of Toledo, buried their youngest child in the Butler cemetery Monday morning.

Mrs. Haskins left Wednesday morning for an extended visit with relatives in Ohio. She expects to be gone nearly all winter.

Chas. Thurston, of Clyde, and Bud Thurston, of Toledo, O., were here to attend the funeral of their brother-in-law, Clark Snyder, Thursday.

Miss Ethel Boyle entertained several of her friends Tuesday evening, it being the anniversary of her birth. A good time was enjoyed by all.

I would like an offer for any one, or all, of several houses in Butler, owned by people not living here. If you want a home, this is your chance. Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

The Christmas presents in the different stores are attracting a great deal of attention, and the attractive manner in which the business places are decorated is an honor as well as a credit to our Butler merchants.

Many persons find themselves affected with a persistent cough after an attack of influenza. As this cough can be promptly cured by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, it should not be allowed to run on until it becomes troublesome. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 48-1m

Word was received Tuesday morning from Mrs. Coats at Lexington, Ky., that John who had received injuries last week in a gasoline explosion, was getting along very well considering everything, and we all hope to hear before long that John is able to be about.

A sprained ankle will usually disable the injured person for three or four weeks. This is due to lack of proper treatment. When Chamberlain's Liniment is applied a cure may be effected in three or four days. This liniment is one of the best and most remarkable preparations in use. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 48-1m

Frank Cottrell, of Newville, who was a guest in the home of Chas. Webster, was shot Wednesday. He and another man were hunting and the other fellow's gun, which was half-cocked, went off and part of the load entered his side and arm. The shot was all removed.—Edgerton Earth.

Ninety-three years ago Saturday, December 11, Indiana was admitted to statehood. There was no general celebration nor was the event celebrated by any of the schools of the state so far as known. Governor Marshall has declared his intention of asking the legislature for an appropriation to erect a monument on the 100th anniversary of the date.

Every farmer boy wants to be a school teacher, every school teacher hopes to be an editor, every editor would like to be a banker, every banker would like to be a trust magnate, and every trust magnate hopes some day to own a farm and have chickens and cows and pigs to look after. We end where we begin.

Trouble Makers Ousted

When a sufferer from stomach trouble takes Dr. King's New Life Pills he's mighty glad to see his Dyspepsia and Indigestion fly, but more-he's tickled over his new, fine appetite, strong nerves, healthy vigor, all because stomach, liver, and kidneys now work right. 25c at Stone's drug store. 48-1m

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Ingredients: Sulphur. Glycerin. Quinin. Sodium Chlorid. Capsicum. Sage. Alcohol. Water. Perfume.

Anything injurious here? Ask your doctor.
Anything of merit here? Ask your doctor.
Will it stop falling hair? Ask your doctor.
Will it destroy dandruff? Ask your doctor.

Does not Color the Hair

J. C. AYER COMPANY, Lowell, Mass.

SCHOOL NOTES

Pithy Paragraphs From Our Public Schools

SENIOR NOTES

Mae Daily was absent from school Monday and Tuesday on account of sickness.

Ernest Hose was a B. H. S. visitor Monday forenoon.

A commercial student's soliloquy—
"I will go to my tent and lie down in dispair,
I will paint me with black, I will sever my hair.
I will go to the shore where the hurricane blows
And reveal to the God of the tempest my woes."

That Cicero class is positively awful. My! but you kids are dumb.

Some of the B. H. S. students are incessantly talking about their "kith and kin."

Lost by one of the Senior girls: A knife, two pencils, a pen, an eraser and the good opinion of one of the Sophomore "youngsters."

The Seniors are now taking reviews in American history, Physics and Commercial arithmetic.

Ross Boyle visited high school Monday.

A favorite quotation of the Sophs—
"To stone the gods have changed her but in vain,
The sculptor's art has made her breathe again."

JUNIOR NOTES

(Mr. A.) "So Roy you shoed (shewed) the cat did you?"

(Roy) "I'm no blacksmith."

(Mr. A.) "I mean chased the cat."

Miss Tillie Hoffer visited the B. H. S. last Friday morning.

Two Freshmen, Pete and Deb, are now taking eighth grade grammar.

Roy Apt was absent Monday.

The fourth year English class have finished "The Life of Addison" and have taken up "The Life of Johnson."

Ross Tomlinson has taken up Latin again.

The Sophie English class has just finished "The Deserted Village" and are taking up "The Lady of the Lake."

Harmon Parker has been absent for several days on account of sickness.

Goldie Swantusch has withdrawn from school.

The Junior English class is about a month behind the last year class. They are just now taking up "The Rime of the Ancient Marines," and last year's class had finished it by this time.

A Chinaman's version of a lady school teacher:
"Teachee, teachee,
All day teachee,
Night marke papers,
Nerves all creepy,
No one kissee,
No one hugee,
Poor old maidee
No one lovee."

Mr. Brock, of Newville, started to school Monday and is a member of the Junior class.

(R. T.) "Blanch, have you your history notes prepared?"

(Blanch) "My Dear!!! You bet I have."

A note was found on the floor which read, "Dear J. B., am you goin' to use 'Der Lady of Der Lake' the next period?" Yours, E. C.

FRESHMEN NOTES

We were all sitting quietly in the assembly room when an ominous sound was heard in the distance; nearer and nearer it came until it now resembled the shrieks of a frightened animal. The Juniors turned pale, the Sophies trembled and the Seniors cowered in their seats. Then the awesome stillness was broken by a dauntless Freshman. "Don't be afraid kids," said he, "It's nothing but Ross Tomlinson and his new shoes."

(Mr. A.) "Now the Freshmen might lay on this desk—"

Forgive us, Mr. A., we couldn't help laughing.

Miss A. says we are to have no monthly test in Latin.

Jennie Cain has quit school.

R. H. and M. C. ask pardon of the class for claiming the distinction of being the smartest in the class. We thought you all knew that we were only joking.

Biff! Bang! What's the matter? Oh, nothing! Loren just dropped another book.

(Miss A. in English Class) "Ruth, why did Gratiano tell Antonio to give Shylock a halter? What did he want him to give him a halter for?"

(Ruth, quoting from book) "For God's sake."

(Carrie in Botany Class) "Deciduous trees are trees that shed all their leaves yearly," (short pause) "Oh, I didn't mean yearly, I meant annually."

Butler cats are becoming interested in the fundamental principles of education. One of these progressive felines decided to visit the school last Friday, but his presence was not desired by the faculty and he was seized and borne triumphantly from the room, in the arms of our intrepid and fearless president.

Ladies shampoo and massage. First class barber work and baths. West side Broadway, Tomlinson's old stand. Give us a call. M. J. Harrigan, Prop.

An official in the Indiana Brewers association denies very vigorously to the News that the brewers put up any money for the local option fight in DeKalb county. Possibly this is correct, but certainly the money to wage the "wet" campaign came from some place Thousonds of dollars were spent in advertising and the other expenses ran even higher. There was no lack of money and it was dispensed with a lavish hand. Where did it come from? Assuredly it did not fall as manna from the favoring heavens in the wilderness between Elim and Sinia.—Fort Wayne News.

Women Who Are Envied

Those attractive women who are lovely in face, form and temper are the envy of many, who might be like them. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation or Kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin emptions and a wretched complexion. For all such, Electric Bitters work wonders They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion. Many charming women owe their health and beauty to them. 50c at Stone's drug store 48-1m

W. S. Troyer

Auctioneer and Salesman

Leave orders at this office or Central Grocery.

I speak three different languages.

Mr. Walter H. Snyder, of Thorncreek township, and Miss Lulu Snyder, of Battle Creek, Mich., will wed the latter part of this week in Michigan. Both parties have the same name, but are not related. The groom is a son of John H. Snyder, of Thorncreek township, and the bride is a daughter of William Snyder and wife, deceased. They have the congratulations of their friends. The bride is a bookkeeper in a Battle Creek sanitarium.—Columbia City Post.

A man often says: "I will do bette tomorrow." But when tomorrow comes he does just about the same.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

WABASH

EAST BOUND

No. 2—Express	6:48 a. m
No. 28—Mail	8:48 a. m
No. 6—Toledo Mail & Exp	5:12 p. m
No. 78—Local Freight	9:50 a. m

WEST BOUND

No. 9—Fast Mail	4:29 a. m.
No. 11—Ft. Wayne Mail & Exp	10:16 a. m.
No. 3—Express	8:17 p. m.
No. 79—Local Freight	2:04 p. m.

All trains daily except Local Freights.

O. C. WATERMAN, Agent, Butler, Ind.

Special Fare

CHRISTMAS

and

NEW YEAR

EXCURSIONS

For which tickets will be sold Dec. 24, 25 and 31, 1909, and Jan. 1, 1910, good returning until Jan. 3, inclusive. Sale covers all points on Lake Shore Ry. and many connecting lines. For particulars apply to agents.

Lake Shore Railway

YOUR CHRISTMAS GROCERIES

Of course you are going to make some special preparations for the holiday celebration.

Naturally the first thing too be thought of is a good dinner for all at home. With out it there there would be do real pleasure in the event.

Groceries, therefore, you must have—and fresh ones too. Not the kind that have stood upon the shelves for for the past year, but new and delicious in every respect.

Candies, nuts, etc., sound, pure and fresh. At least once a year you cannot afford to buy anything in these lines but the best.

We have made every preparation for your satisfaction, and guarantee everything we sell to be absolutely as represented.

Come in and let our stock suggest what you shall buy.

M. L. DIEHL - - The South Side Grocer

Overcoat Time Is Here In Earnest

The time of year has at last come when an overcoat is a great need and you might say a necessity. Our line of samples consist of the season's latest goods and we can make them up in the very latest styles Call and see us before letting your order. Satisfaction guaranteed.

OTT, THE TAILOR

DECEMBER

0413

L1134

butler public library

THE DEKALB COUNTY HERALD

VOLUME XL — BUTLER, DEKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, FRIDAY, DEC. 24, 1909 — NUMBER 51

DANIEL W. WEITZ, President — HENRY M. SHOWALTER, Vice-President — WALTER SNIDER, Cashier
AMOS SNYDER, Vice-President — ALBERT L. SHULTZ, Vice-President

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK
BUTLER, INDIANA
Capital Paid Up $25,000.00. Your Business Respectfully Solicited.

The Foot Form "Burro Jap" Shoes

are made from the hide of the "Burro." There is no leather made that give better service and wear. They are guaranteed in this way, if the upper breaks through before the first sole wears through, you get a new pair of shoes free of charge.

The Ladies' Flexible Sole shoes, "La France" are made in patent and dull leathers, both button and lace. The sole is very flexible and easier on the feet than a turn shoe. These shoes cost yon no more than others, that are not near as comfortable.

Remember our special offer on made-to-measure clothing closes Dec. 31. An extra pair of trousers free with a suit. One hundred and thirty-seven patterns to choose from.

Sewing Machines all new and bright, from $15.00 to $25.00 and are guaranteed.

J. C. Brown & Son - - - The Foot Fitters

We Wish You A Merry Christmas and we wish many pleasant and appropriate presents

This is Gift Week at Our Store and what to give her or him is the problem of these days

Let's Help You Solve The Problem

We still have many useful and suitable presents both for old and young and would be pleased to have you call and look over our elegant lines of Cut Glass and Silverware.

STONE'S DRUG STORE

And remember that with each Dollar Purchase, you get a coupon on the Washington Trip Voting Contest. Your money back if not satisfied.

Don't Forget That The

Central Grocery

Has a Choice Line of

Xmas Candies

Chocolates
Bon Bons
Creams
Taffies
and Nuttens

Nuts, Dates, Figs, Raisins and Currants

Choice Apples
Oranges
Bananas
Grapes
Celery
Lettuce

Get Our Prices on Queensware

A Merry Christmas To All

Telephone Number 91.

PRESTON & COMPANY
BUTLER, INDIANA

A good opportunity to get in touch with a

Good

Banking institution and to Start

Success and prosperity

For

the coming year is offered you when we place at your disposal

The

services of this bank. The

New year is starting out with the brightest kind of an outlook. It will be a

Year

of strong endeavor and we offer you the services of

THE

First National Bank

BUTLER, IND.

CUPID'S PRANKS RECORDED HERE

Three Young Couple Tire Crawling in Alone on Cold Sheets.

REINHART—HEADLY

Archie, son of Gus Reinhart, of Wilmington township, and Miss Beulah, daughter of James D. Headly, secured a marriage license Wednesday afternoon and immediately thereafter wended their way to the Lutheran parsonage, where Rev. Neuhauser spoke the words that made them one. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the brother of the bride and cousin of the groom. After the ceremony the happy young couple left for Fort Wayne, where they will remain for some time on their honeymoon, after which they will return to Wilmington township and take up temporary abode with the bride's parents. Both parties are well and favorably known in this vicinity and have the well wishes of their many friends.

DAY—WARSTLER

At the home of the bride's parents, Miss Kate May Warstler and Julius Day, of near Newville, were quietly married on last Thursday. A big wedding dinner was served and the guests present had a most enjoyable time. Some nice and useful presents were received by the happy couple. In the evening the bridal couple were given an old fashioned belling, and when the boys were invited into the home they were treated to a fine luncheon and cigars. Those present besides the immediate family were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Parleton, of Garrett, and Mr. and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Rinehold and son, Eli Joseph.

MOORE—CAMPBELL

At the home of the groom on Sunday, Dec. 19, at 3 o'clock p. m., occurred the marriage of George M. Moore and Sylvania Campbell.

The contracting parties are favorably known, being residents of DeKalb county from childhood, the groom being the hustling merchant and farmer of Moore, and the bride the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Staley.

Many are the congratulations of a host of friends and associates. The happy couple will be at home to their friends on their fine farm, one mile east of Moore, where they have commenced housekeeping. We predict a successful future for this industrious couple.

Beginning Jan. 1, the following stores will close at 8 o'clock each evening except Saturday: Stone's drug store, Geddes' drug store, Phillips' drug store, McIntarf's grocery, Preston's grocery and Oberlin's grocery.

ANOTHER FACTORY FOR BUTLER

Company Organized and Will Begin Operations As Soon As Machinery Can Be Installed.

The factory proposition referred to in the HERALD last week has met with success. Mr. J. W. Miller, of Jackson, Mich., who has been in the business of manufacturing concrete mixers for some time, became dissatisfied with conditions at Jackson and decided to come to Butler provided a company could be organized to carry on the business. The proposition was put up to our people about the time the stove factory bubble bursted, and the matter dragged until a few days ago when Mr. Fred Countryman was sent to Jackson to investigate the matter. He reported favorable and on Monday Mr. Miller came here and the organization was affected.

The machine is a portable one, being mounted on four wheels and is used to advantage in building cement walks, etc. It can be set to use any proportion of cement and sand, and when locked cannot be changed except by the person holding the key making it absolutely sure that the party having the work done will get what he pays for.

There is no question but that the company will find ready sale for their products. Other tools besides the mixer will be made by them. The new concern will be known as the Concrete Machinery Co.

The business will be started in the old foundry building, but later the company will seek more commodious quarters. Mr. Miller will move his family here from Jackson next week.

Grand Jury Reports

All the grand jurors who were selected for the December term reported Monday morning except George Holman, who had moved to Oklahoma. Henry Showalter, one of the men selected, petitioned the court to be excused inasmuch as he was the father of the boy who was shot by W. H. Ware. Judge Bratton granted his wish. Mr. Showalter did not desire to be a member of the jury and he should be commended for being so disposed. The grand jury will make a thorough investigation of the shooting affray and if the evidence warrants it an indictment will be returned against Ware. The judge ordered the jury commissioners to draw two more names from the list of talismen to supply the vacancies made and the successors to Messrs. Showalter and Holman are Jacob Christoffel of Stafford township and Peter Coyles of Concord township. The grand jury will begin the examination of witnesses at once after selecting a foreman and from indications they will be in session for a goodly number of days.

Had a Jolly Time.

Another one of Uncle Sam's bluecoats captured, after being held prisoner only a short time was released and promoted to the commander of the new boat which was christen "Years 64." That was the decision of Meade Post No. 44, of the G. A. R. on the 21st of December when we surprised Shipmate William L. Love and the first time on record that the navy was captured by the land forces. After a joyous time we partook of a bounteous repast which the comrades had provided for before we started on the campaign then we proceeded to christen the new life (in years) with the same solemn rites as U. S. christen their ships, then bidding adieu to Shipmate Love we wended our ways to home and loved ones wishing him many happy years to come.

ONE OF THE STORMING PARTY.

Obituary

Louisa E., daughter of Allis A. and Joseph Noriot, was born Sept. 11, 1908, died Dec. 9, 1909, aged 1 year, 2 months and 27 days.

The obsequies were held from the Mt. Pleasant church on Saturday, Dec. 11. Interment in the Ginder cemetery.

May the sorrowing friends find consolation in Him who said, "I will not leave you comfortless."

A letter from Leopold Stiefel, formerly of this place, to C. J. Coats, under date of 19th inst., says: "I go east in April to buy goods for our two stores, one in Marlow and the other at Duncan, Oklahoma, and will then see you. Business has been good at both places. I am pleased with my surroundings." Leopold is a deserving fellow and his many friends in Butler will be glad to know of his success out west.

Ladies shampoo and massage. First class barber work and baths. West side Broadway, Tomlinson's old stand, Give us a call. M. J. Harrigan, Prop.

LOCAL ORDERS ELECT OFFICERS

Annual Election of F. & A. M, Followed by Banquet.

Forest Lodge No. 239, F. & A. M. of Butler, held their annual election last Friday evening. The following officers were elected and appointed:

E. P. Masters—W. M.
C. T. Apt—S. W.
C. C. Shaffer—J. W.
M. Brunstetter—Secretary.
S. G. Stone—Treasurer.
O. C. Waterman—S. D.
M. M. Knepper—J. D.
C. Miller and J. Daniels—Stewards.
Peter Whitman—Tyler.

After adjournment the entire lodge was invited to the Waverly hotel by E. P. Masters where they were treated to a fine banquet after which all went home feeling well pleased with the evening they had spent.

At the regular meeting of the Lady Maccabees, the following officers were elected and appointed:

Mrs. W. C. Webster—L. C.
Mrs. J. R. Norford—L. C.
Mrs. Abbie Rogers—R. K.
Mrs. Jerome Brown—F. K.
Mrs. Wm. Knisely—M. of A.
Mrs. J. C. Eviston—Sargeant
Mrs. Wm. Wilson—Sentinel
Mrs. C. Reed—Picket
Nora Brown—C. of G.
Esta Reed—pianist

Obituary

Harry Clark Snyder, son of Amos C. and Hannah N. Snyder, was born in Shelby, Richland county, Ohio, on the twenty first day of July, 1883. At the age of three years his parents moved to Butler, Ind., where he spent his boyhood days. He was married April 30, 1907, to Maud Thurston in Butler, Ind., and moved to Bryan to begin the duties of life. He worked in the Bryan Show Case factory where he met instant death, December 14, 1909, at the age of 26 years, 4 months and 28 days. He was baptized in infancy by Rev. D Sommers. In the year 1907, he and his wife joined the United Brethren church in Bryan, where he remained a faithful member until his death. He was preceded to the other world by a sister who died in infancy. He leaves to mourn his departure, a wife, an infant son, a father and mother, four brothers, one sister and many friends.

On Wednesday, December 15, at 8 a. m., a short service was held in the home on North Walnut street, Rev. D. C. Hollinger of the U. B. church officiating, after which the body was taken to Butler, where on Thursday at 10:30 funeral services were held in the Methodist church. By request of the Butler I. O. O. F., the Bryan lodge tendered their assistance and formed an escort for the body from the home to the station in Bryan. The pallbearers in Bryan and in Butler were fellow workmen from the Show Case factory.

The deceased had been in the employ of the Show Case Co. for about two years. John Weber, owner of the factory, speaks of him as one of the best men in the plant, always steady and careful. He was a cabinet maker.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to tender our sincere thanks to the many friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us in our sad bereavement. We also wish to thank the I. O. O. F. and the employees of the Bryan Show Case factory for kindness shown.

MRS. MAUD SNYDER
MR. AND MRS. AMOS SNYDER
AND RELATIVES.

Obituary

Allen Benton Shultz was born in Ashland county, Ohio, April 15, 1846, and departed this life December 19, 1909, aged 63 years, 8 months and 4 days.

He with his parents came to this county and state. Settled in Franklin township, where he resided until his death. He was united in marriage to Miss Amanda Mann, daughter of Philip Mann, January 20th, 1867. To this union were born nine children, of whom six survive him.

The deceased has always been an ambitious and industrious man, a kind neighbor, holding the office of county commissioner two terms. He has been confined to his home for more than three years from an attack of paralysis, causing him to be helpless.

He leaves to mourn his departure, a wife, three sons, three daughters, four brothers, two sisters and twelve grandchildren. He was a member of order of the Knights of Honor and of the Modern American. Interment in the Hamilton cemetery, Rev. Couch officiating.

EXTENSION OF TRACTION LINE

T. & I. is to Be Built On West to Connect With T. & C. I.

(District Press)

It will be remembered the Toledo & Indiana road which was sold a few days ago at a receiver's sale and was purchased by the Longnecker interests at a little over $1,000,000, the purchasing representing the minority stockholders. The sale was declared invalid by the court at Toledo upon motion by the majority stockholders, because of a minor technicality which will give the above mentioned Ohio Electric railroad another chance at coming into possession of it.

Both of the bidders of this electric railway have expressed intentions of extending the line westward from Bryan. A representative of the Longnecker interests made a statement following the first sale that an extension would be built westward, but whether to Waterloo or to Fort Wayne he did not know. Should the Ohio Electric people get it at the next sale, and their intention is to secure a line to Chicago the gap between Bryan and Waterloo will be closed, and within all probability between Waterloo and Kendallville by way of the short route, following the Lake Shore. Whoever gets the T. & I. DeKalb county people would like to see Bryan and Waterloo connected.

It is stated that if the Ohio Electric Railroad should be successful in buying the Toledo & Indiana road, the road running from Toledo to Bryan will be extended to Chicago and the Lima-Defiance division, now beinfi electrified, will be extended to give the Ohio a direct line from Toledo to Cincinnati. It is also said that the negotiations are on between the Ohio Electric and the Defiance Street Railway company for the purchase of the Fort Wayne street line by the Ohio Electric. Trolly poles are all in position between Lima and Defiance and the wire hung, and it is now being connecred up. It is expected that the first interuban car will be operated tomorrow.

CHAS. DUNN FINALLY IS A FREE MAN

Prosecutor Thomas, of Allen county, on Thursday dismissed the charge of murder against Chas. Dunn, the aged man charged with the murder of little Alice Cothrell, of Waiden, Allen county, and Dunn is now a free man, although penniless.

Dunn's conviction occurred about seven years ago. Dunn was sent to the penitentiary where he remained until he was granted a new trial. He was again convicted and at a third trial the jury disagreed. Since that time Dunn has been free under bail of $5,000.

The late Henry Colerick was Dunn's attorney and always insisted that Mary Sampleson, who died at the poor farm, murdered the child.

Democratic Call

To the Democrats of DeKalb County and all those who desire to co operate with them:

In compliance with an order from the Democratic State Central Committee, the democrats of DeKalb county will meet in "Mass Caucus" at the Old Armory hall in Auburn, Ind., on Friday, December 31, 1909, at 2 p. m. for the purpose of selecting delegates to the 12th District convention which meets at Fort Wayne on January 5, 1910, at 2 o'clock p. m. at Assembly room in court house, to elect a district chairman to represent us from the state committee for the ensuing two years. The basis of representation is one delegate for every 200 votes and one for each additional fraction or more than 100 votes cast for governor, Thomas R. Marshall, at the November election, 1909.

DeKalb county is entitled to 19 delegates, and we will have same representation in state convention which will be apportioned to the several townships as follows:

Butler Township	½	vote
Concord "	1	"
Spencer "	½	"
Fairfield "	1	"
Franklin "	1	"
Grant "	1	"
Jackson "	1	"
Keyser "	4	"
Newville "	½	"
Richland "	1	"
Stafford "	½	"
Smithfield "	1	"
Troy "	½	"
Union "	4	"
Wilmington "	2	"

MILES BAXTER,
County Chairman.
E. O. LITTLE, Secretary.
Dated at Auburn, Indiana, this 21st day of December, 1909.

Compliments of The Season

In looking backward at the year just passing, we are happy at this season to extend to our many friends and customers our heartiest thanks for their patronage. I recall with pleasure the business relations that have existed between us in the past and sincerely hope they may continue just as cordial in the years of prosperity to come. Wishing you the Compliments of the Season, and a Prosperous New Year.

I remain very truly yours,

A. F. BRINDLEY
Furniture and Undertaking

The Rexall Store — GEDDES' DRUG STORE — Always at Your Service

The Place and The Reason That Geddes' Drug Store is The Place Where You Can Buy Your Xmas Gifts, is a Fact in Truth

FIRST Personal service has a meaning here—for we have quantity, quality, price and courteous treatment. Satisfaction or money back

SECOND We believe in the "highest standard of quality and the highest in selling—low margin—profit prices" marked in plain figures.

THIRD It is conceded by our patrons, that this store stands first and foremost for merchandise of unquestioned correctness and quality.

GEDDES' DRUG STORE
West Side Broadway Phone 31

Greetings from

Rickey & Company

"Love is the leading string of youth;
Memory, the staff of old age."

May a
Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year
be yours

The Herald Can Be Had From Now Till January 1st, 1911, For Only $1.50

DECEMBER

0414

L1134

DeKalb County Herald

BUTLER, INDIANA.

A. S. POWERS, - - - Publisher.

Throughout all the turmoil the north pole remains cool.

Every woman, before she is allowed to vote, should be able to make a cherry pie.

Home is a place where a man can do as he pleases—if he is married to the right woman.

Why should a girl approve of being called a duck and object to being described as a goose?

To those whom it may concern: A Philadelphia scientist declares a man need not die unless he wants to.

What a man can't understand about a woman is how she never realizes how smart he has to be to shave himself.

Yes, Mr. Rockefeller, "it is a blessed thing to struggle," even if you can't make the old stovepipe fit. It brings the higher moral qualities into play.

Says Dean Breckinridge of the University of Chicago: "The hired girl is queen in the American household." True, undeniably, but why rub it in?

Few girls of 20 are as considerate as one described by a Western newspaper, who wears her hair braided down her back to help her mother to retain an appearance of youth.

Why not extend the voting privilege to our American women, with a gentle God bless 'em? It would save lots of trouble, and they are bound to get what they want, anyway?

King Edward has bestowed knighthood on Lieutenant Shackleton for getting farthest south. The lieutenant was lucky in that his performance did not interfere with the regular business of any other south pole hunter.

Knud Rasmussen, a Danish navigator, who has lived amongst the Eskimos and is married to an Eskimo woman, says Cook went to the pole all right. Perry says Rasmussen knows about as much about it as a yellow dog.

W. T. Stead claims to have had an interview with the spirit of Gladstone, who is reported to have said that he was not interested in worldly affairs. Nevertheless we can't keep from believing this to be a pretty interesting world.

In cases of collisions and accidents at sea, salvage will be paid on human life as well as on property. Life, by this provision, is made as valuable as property, though, on the other hand, some might argue that life is above all price and that its salvage is merely a plain duty incumbent on all, to humanity.

If the Indians continue to increase and prosper, the time will soon come when the government will cease to treat them as wards. The present Indian population is in excess of three hundred thousand, or nearly forty thousand more than when the last census was taken. The number of taxed Indians in 1900 was almost double the number in 1890. "Playing Indian," if the sport keeps up with the times, may become a game of managing a successful farm instead of scalping white settlers.

Who owns the north pole may some day become a live question, but today, in spite of the speculation on the subject, it is of little greater practical moment than the question about the age of Ann. If it is frozen sea nobody owns it, and nobody cares for it. But, in the distant future, when flying-machines are so perfected that they can beat against the fierce arctic winds, and fast enough to go to the pole and back from Chicago in twenty-four hours or thereabouts, the polar ice may be valuable for cooling summer drinks—if, indeed, some one in the meantime has not invented a way of bringing the arctic cold to the temperate clime by a pipe-line.

It used to be an accepted theory that the business world has nothing to do with the private life of business people. As long as a man attended honestly to his business occupation, was true to his obligations and paid his debts, that was considered sufficient. It is no longer considered sufficient. The business world, before it will accord to any man the highest rate of credit, must be shown that the man is not only faithful and reliable, but is not addicted to habits and occupations which may impair his standing. The business world has a right to know of any business man "not only where he spends his days, but where he spends his nights." It has a right not only to know his financial standing, but also his status in the scale of social decency. The man who is faithful to the duties of his office and false to the standards of domestic decency must have his financial credit marked down and the business confidence of his fellow men lowered to the class of extra-hazardous risks.

A learned doctor lays the blame for the increasing baldness that is becoming apparent among women, to the men. Men get bald from wearing silk or other stiff hats, and the disease becomes hereditary and spreads to both sexes. If they would save their hair, the doctor says, the human race must establish the fashion by going about their various vocations bareheaded. The reason why the stiff hat is particularly provocative of baldness is because it presses close about the temples and cuts off the blood supply to the head. It might seem that the monstrous contraptions with which women surmount their craniums would be more injurious than the light silk or derby male head coverings; but not so. The feminine headgear is fastened on to the hair with hatpins, does not press upon the tissles at any point, and permits the free circulation of air through the hair and all around the scalp. In fact, the feminine hat, outlandish as it often appears, illustrates in all its forms the superior genius of women in solving the problems of clothes. The women demonstrate it also by dressing in such a manner as to appear cooler and more comfortable in summer and warmer in winter, to say nothing of the degree to which their garments excel those of the male sex in beauty of detail and general effect. It is difficult to imagine what the poor male of the human species is covering. The ladies can go bareheaded if they choose, without much inconvenience or lack of ornamentation, because they can dress their abundant hair in becoming ways, and its mass furnishes an adequate protection against the weather, even in the cold season. But there are comparatively few men past the first flush of youth who have enough hair to keep their scalps warm or protect it from the rays of the sun. And if they adopt a light, soft hat that will not press upon the temples, how are they going to keep it upon their heads on a windy day? The matter might be arranged for the coming generation. Boys could be taught to go bareheaded and thus save their hirsuite heritage; but the case of the mature or middle-aged man who is already inclined to baldness is rather a sad one.

STARTED LIFE AS A JOCKEY.

But Phil McGovern May Wind Up as a Champion of Prize Ring.

Nearly every boy when he starts out in life has an ambition to shine either in a commercial or a professional career. For a kid to aspire to be a jockey may not be considered a laudable ambition, but frequently environment has much to do with shaping one's life. Phil McGovern, born of Irish parents in Brooklyn twenty years ago, exhibited an early aptitude for the horses—or, as his mother used to say, he would straddle a broomstick and parade his "gee-gee" around the house as though he were riding the greatest thoroughbred, a Philadelphia dispatch to the Cincinnati Enquirer says. When Phil was but a kid in knickerbockers his brother Terry was the undisputed feather-weight champion of the world. The elder had a penchant for horses, but not as a jockey. Money came easily for a while to Terry McGovern, and soon he was a regular habitue of the race-track, and often would return home separated from his roll, trying to beat the bookmakers. His experience was not a new one. Soon he was tempted to invest in a small stable of horses, which burned the money up more quickly. The result is now history. Poor Terry McGovern, one of the greatest pugilists of his class who ever wore a glove, is in a sanitarium, a mental and physical wreck.

It was while Terry was at the flood tide of his success that little Phil would steal away to the racetrack with his big brother. The little fellow did not linger around the bookies, but was soon long among the maze of bangtails in the paddock. One morning he slipped away from his Brooklyn home before the sun had lighted up the eastern sky, and the next day the papers came out and said that the world's champion's little brother had been given a chance exercising some of the handicap horses at Sheepshead Bay. The little fellow's ambition had been fulfilled. He was now a jockey, and he pictured himself parading to the post in the stirrups of a Domino, Colin or a Salvator.

Almost simultaneously reverses came to the McGovern family with the modification of racing in New York. Phil McGovern's turf career had been short lived. There were only a few places at the top, and he had not had time as yet to reach the goal. Terry had lost the championship and his bank roll had melted away. Hughey, the next brother, had broken his arm and also suffered with a dislocated shoulder. The McGovern family was considered a scrappy one. Terry could fight, Hughey could fight, and why not Phil? At the racetrack he had trimmed a half-dozen stable boys who had taunted him about his brother's defeat, so he determined to take to the ring.

This was the beginning of a career which promises to land him at the top of his class. There was a charm about the name of McGovern. Terry always made good, and why not Phil? Engagements came rapidly, and his record is one of unbroken victories. Today there is only one man in America who, it is believed, stands between Phil McGovern and the bantam-weight championship—Monte Attell. McGovern has cleaned up all the boys in the East, while Attell has done the same on the Pacific slope. The two are sure to come together, and then the best boy may be pitted against Great Britain's champion.

Phil McGovern, like all professional boxers who have studied the scientific side of the game and its healthful advantages, is abstemious in his habits, confines his fighting to the ring and lives a life which many young fellows could well emulate.

Which Is Why.

It is an honest girl who tells her young man that he won't think she's an angel when he knows her better.—Toledo Blade.

But, of course, she knows he won't believe her.—Boston Globe.

Which, of course, is why she never says it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Not Particular.

An absent-minded gentleman, whose absent-mindedness was always present, put down a sovereign at the booking-office at Charing Cross, says a writer in the London Globe, and demanded a ticket.

"What station?" asked the clerk.

"What stations have you?" asked the traveler.

Just before a girl gets marired, she is treated with the same consideration that is shown a turkey before Christmas.

LEARN TO COOK CHEAP MEAT TASTILY

TO REDUCE PRICES OF CHOICE CUTS.

HOW A BEEF CARCASS IS CUT FOR THE CONSUMER.

		Supply.	Demand.
Loin and Ribs	224 lbs	28 per cent	80 per cent
Balance of Carcass	576 lbs	72 per cent	20 per cent

Beef is high or beef is cheap. It all depends upon the consumer. The above illustration shows how an average 800-pound carcass of beef is cut for the general trade in Denver, says the News-Times, and the average price paid for the best grade of beef. Taking the cuts as a whole, the prices range from 8 cents to 35 cents per pound, according to the portion of the carcass from which the meat is purchased. In the subdivision of these cuts, however, prices actually range from 4 cents per pound to 35 cents per pound. That is to say, that the choicest cuts are worth more than eight times the price demanded for the cheaper cuts.

The class of carcass illustrated above costs the butcher from 8 to 9 cents per pound, so that he is compelled, in retailing, to sell a large part of the carcass for less money than he pays for it. Eighty per cent of the demand for beef is for cuts from the loin and ribs, which constitutes only 28 per cent of the carcass. This is the reason why beef is high. Twenty per cent of the people who purchase meat in butcher shops consume 72 per cent of the carcass, and that not to exceed 20 cents per pound, with an average of about 12½ cents per pound for the cheaper cuts.

In the European countries, where the people have learned how to prepare and cook the cheaper cuts of beef, the demand is more evenly equalized over the whole carcass, and instead of the higher priced cuts being worth seven to eight times the value of the cheaper cuts, the difference is not over three times the value than for the cheaper cuts. It is all in the cooking and preparation. It is now generally conceded that the beef supply is rapidly falling below the demand. This means higher prices for beef for some time to come, at least. It is in the power of the consumer to equalize the demand on the carcass, and thus be able to eat beef at a reasonable price.

Below is a description showing the subdivision of the various cuts in the carcass illustrated above:

Loin—The loin of beef is subdivided into porterhouse or short cuts, T-bone and sirloin. The porterhouse consists of the first four or six steaks from the small end next to the ribs. Next to this come the T-bone steaks, regarded by many as the very choicest part of the loin. The last six or eight steaks next to the round are known as the sirloin. The tenderloin is the inside portion of the lean meat near the rib end of the loin. As a rule the tenderloin is only cut from the cheaper carcasses and the balance of the loin is used for canning in such cases. Where the tenderloin is cut from the choice carcass, a fancy price is charged for it, as it seriously injures the value of the rest of the loin.

Round and Rump—The rump is the fleshy portion over the thigh. After it is cut off, the round extends on down to the shank, having only one bone near the center.

Flank—A section of lean meat overlies the flank, which is stripped off and is known as the flank steak, and is much sought after. The balance of the flank is mostly used for sausage and hamburger, but can be boiled.

Ribs—This section consists of the first seven ribs and is mostly used for roasts. The cuts nearest the loin are considered the choicest and sell for the most money. Next to the chuck the meat is deeper and rather coarser.

Chuck—The lower eight or ten inches of that portion marked chuck is known to the trade as the "clod." This lies just above the brisket and extends up to the lower portion of the neck. This is cut mostly for pot roasts and contains much lean meat. Most of the chuck is cut into steaks, the best portions being on the end nearest to the ribs. The portion next to the neck usually sells for pot roast or boiling.

Plate—The plate is the lower portion of the carcass below the ribs, taking in the covering of the belly. It is mostly used for boiling, but contains some good meat.

Brisket—This takes in the portion between the shank and the clod, or lower part of the chuck. It is a very fleshy piece, with some heavy bone, but makes fine pot roast or boiling meat.

Shank—That portion of the shank from the knee, or heel, to the cut above, is fleshy, though coarse, and is mostly used for boiling. The lower part is mostly bone and sinew, and it is for soup and boiling.

Neck—This part usually sells with a part of the chuck, and is fit mostly for boiling. It is fleshy, but coarse.

Sirloin Ends—In some markets the ends of the sirloin and T-bone steaks, which run down into the flank, are cut off at the point where the flesh widens and are sold separately. These ends are coarser than the loin meat, but properly cooked are as good as any part of the animal.

Mushroom-Poisoning.

When one considers the frightful consequences of gathering and eating poisonous mushrooms in mistake for the edible variety, it is little short of marvelous that one without knowledge should dare go into the fields and woods and pick and eat any of the fungi growing there.

If one is thoroughly familiar with some particular variety of edible mushroom, and can distinguish it at sight from all others, however similar in color and form, it is safe to eat that particular variety; but one must beware of other kinds that resemble it, for however slight the difference in appearance, one may be edible and the other poisonous. There is no absolute rule for distinguishing the edible from the poisonous kinds, and it is better, therefore, to give no general rules, but to follow only one: Suspect every mushroom which you do not know positively to be edible. To this rule, perhaps, may be added a second: Learn to distinguish the white-spored agarics and avoid them all; for although there is an edible species, it requires an expert to tell it, and the poison of another species is deadly, and there is no known antidote for it.

The chief poisons in mushrooms are two in number—muscarin and phallin. The first of these produces symptoms resembling those of alcoholic intoxication, followed by convulsions or paralysis, collapse, and death from heart failure. These symptoms come on soon after the mushrooms have been eaten.

In poisoning by phallin the symptoms do not appear until several hours after the meal. They resemble cholera, beginning with severe abdominal pain, soon followed by vomiting, purging and collapse.

In all cases of mushroom-poisoning, vomiting should be induced as soon as possible, and a large dose of castor oil may be given to hasten the elimination of any as yet unabsorbed portions of the mushroom.

Stimulants are needed to support the heart, and milk containing an abundance of magnesia or bi-carbonate of sodium may be given.

Injections of a salt solution into the veins and—in case of muscarin poisoning—hypodermic injections of atropin are often employed by physicians with benefit.

Ladies First!

Scratch a Southerner and you will find a knightly soul, might be said to be one of the morals of the Chicago Record-Herald story below—the second moral is reasonably obvious.

"What is the reason," began the irritated traveler from the North, "that the trains in this part of the country are always behind time? I have never seen one yet that ran according to its schedule."

"That, suh," replied the dignified Georgian, "is a mattah that is easily explained. It is due to Southern chivalry, suh."

"Southern chivalry! Where does that come in?"

"You see, suh, the trains are always late in this country because they wait for the ladies, God bless them!"

NO PLACE FOR MAN WITH A JAG.

This diagram shows the discoverer of the pole standing a little distance away from it, first looking north and then south to the book, in a straight line. Also two Eskimo, both shooting arrows to the east, and yet in plain sight of each other, shooting in opposite directions.

There is another case in town of a man trying hard to get away, and the girl refusing to give him the slightest excuse.

No Central Bank.

The Sun will always oppose a central bank of issue. Such a bank is intended by the monetary commission. The policy of that body as now formally disclosed by Senator Aldrich points to no other consummation.

It is our conviction that a central bank of issue bearing the same relation to the money of this country that the Banks of France and England bear to the money of those countries would prove a national evil.

This country is traditionally and temperamentally unsuited to such an institution. If Mr. Aldrich and his associates by their united genius can fashion a central bank whose functions and powers shall be purely automatic and mechanical, well and good. But such a bank with us is impossible.

We have developed no class in America from which we could create or recruit the administration and control of such an institution, while to isolate it from our political life is hopeless.

We wish it were otherwise. It is a national misfortune that we cannot create a bank of issue, regulation and control like the Bank of England. But it is a misfortune to which we are habituated and which is an accepted condition of our economic existence.

It might be possible in time, but that time is remote.

The temperament, the political genius and the geography of our country assure us that the creation of such an institution would lead inevitably to disaster graver and more far-reaching than that which our recurrent panics and speculative convulsions entail. They constitute an evil, but it is a negligible evil compared with the sinister possibilities of another Bank of the United States.

In a country of vast wealth where there is not a dollar of money for which a dollar's worth of gold cannot be had there must, from the operation of natural forces, presently develop a system or a habit whereby the minimum of physical mobility of actual money shall be combined with the maximum of stability and liquidity of credit. That end can be attained, and in our belief will be attained, without the injection of any Federal dogma of any kind.—New York Sun.

Storming the Citadel.

High-tariff apologists affect something like scorn at the manifest restlessness of the American West under the rule of Eastern mill bosses.

They are never weary of pointing with pride to the inflexible Senate majority. They tell us that even if the West should elect a Democratic House of Representatives, it will be a barren victory. For they own the Senate.

It must be something of a shock that these "stand-patters" find that two-thirds of the sovereign States have passed resolutions calling for a constitutional convention to change the method of electing United States Senators.

Also that the constitution gives no option to Congress in the matter, but makes the constitutional convention mandatory when enough States have joined in it.

The old order of a trust-owned Senate is perilously near the supreme jolt that will put national law-making power back into the hands of the people.

The change will not come in a day, nor in a year. Special privilege will not descend from its throne without a prolonged fight. But it is reassuring to know that the people are storming the citadel of trust power at Washington.

The times and the seasons are propitious for a change. A Democratic House of Representatives next year may still find a stone wall erected by the American House of Lords. But the fact that the people want a change will be demonstrated.

And it will serve notice to the upper house that the supreme fount of authority—the people—are getting ready to make the Senate itself a responsible body.

Thus the mills of justice grind on, and special privilege approaches its doom.

The Sugar Trust and the Tariff.

A year ago the secretary of the American Sugar Refining Company laid before the Ways and Means Committee of Congress a long statement setting forth the precarious nature of his company's business, and demanding a high import tariff as the only means of keeping the sugar refining industry alive. The committee granted the sugar monopoly the privilege of imposing a special tax on every consumer of sugar in the United States, so that the people of this country pay about 2 cents a pound more for sugar than the same article would cost them in Europe. But the sugar barons were not satisfied with this.

They bribed poor weighers and clerks in the New York custom house, and stole $30,000,000 from the United States treasury. Besides paying 7 per cent dividends on $90,000,000 capital, they rolled up a vast surplus and became the biggest money-lenders in Wall street.

The Taft administration cannot satisfy Western protest by merely prosecuting the weighers who foolishly accepted bribes. Public sentiment demands the imprisonment of a few sugar barons and those persons in high places whose complaisance permitted the sugar trust to continue its stealing long after the facts had been made known.—Exchange.

Figures That Don't Lie.

The man who imports $1,000 worth of diamonds pays a tax of but $100, 10 per cent. If he imported 1,000 shirts, worth $1 each, he would have to leave at the custom house and tack onto his selling prices $601.60, 60.16 per cent. If he decided he would bring in $1,000 worth of champagne, one of the items upon which there is a large increase, the tax levied by the tariff is $500. If he brought in $1,000 worth of blankets he would pay a tariff tax of $1,645.42. If he brought in $1,000 worth of paintings and statuary, all he would have to pay as customs duties would be $200, but if it were sugar he would pay $788.70 tax on $1,000 worth. If he brought in $1,000 worth of jewelry he would have to pay $600 tariff tax, but if he brought in $1,000 worth of woolen dress goods he would pay $1,050.92 tariff. If he imported a $5,000 automobile the tariff takers would relieve him of $2,250. If it were $5,000 worth of yarns the tariff tax would be $6,960. If the importation were $5,000 worth of furs the tariff tax would be $4,330. If some New York millionaire brings in a $100,000 ocean yacht the tariff would be $35,000, but if the importation were stockings the tariff collected would be $87,950.—Exchange.

Between the Millstones.

Eighty per cent of people of this country are unjustly handicapped in their fight for existence. On one side they are victims of high cost of living created by an iniquitous tariff. On the other they are harassed by increasing extravagance in administration of government.

This tendency is not confined to national affairs. It exists in state, city and county. It is increasing taxes of this generation and piling up a mountain of debt to burden the next.

Municipal indebtedness of the twelve largest cities in the United States has increased from $444,967,167 to more than $1,000,000,000 in the last ten years. Our marvelous growth, our commercial expansion, our national optimism, seem to have gone to the heads of public officials.

We have a great country; why quibble about expense? This seems to be the theory on which affairs are conducted. Meanwhile the tax burden grows heavier, and purchasing power of the weekly pay check contracts.

This is the real problem with which this nation has to deal. It is magnificent to govern on a large scale, to build splendid buildings, to order vast public improvements and issue bonds to pay for them.

But every dollar thus expended is a lien on incomes of the people. In the last analysis it must be deducted from the pay check.

Public officials should spend less time devising means to evade debt limitations and consider whether the people can afford to continue creating new debts.

The Sectional Issue.

The bulk of American "protection" manufactures are from concerns located in the Eastern States. The Middle West and South have some, but the East by far the majority.

The American West is populated mainly by producers and consumers. Manufactures cut comparatively small figure—as yet. Agriculture is the chief industry.

That is why we have a "sectional" tariff issue. It is not the West's fault that this line is as sharply drawn between East and West as was the old slavery line between North and South.

Sectionalism is the natural outgrowth of a robber tariff. When the late Gov. Johnson of Minnesota said that the West was organizing against the East to resist tariff robbery, he merely voiced an economic truth.

The West is fighting for basic principles of American equality. Eastern "protection" interests are fighting to hold the great West in tariff chains.

This kind of sectionalism must continue to grow as long as tariff robbery exists under cloak of law.

Negligence in High Places.

If the Cherry mine was equipped and operated within the law, then the law should be changed. A mining board of five practical men has controlled mine regulation in this State for years. Five months ago this board was supplemented by a mining investigation commission, wrose especial duty is to study mining conditions with the view of safeguarding human life.

The holocaust at Cherry was clearly preventable, but no steps were taken to prevent it. This is simply another instance of the policy of appointing to important commissions men who regard their appointment as merely a mark of the high honor in which they believe themselves to be held by their fellow-men, and involving no obligation to the public.—Chicago Journal.

Tariff Is a Live Issue.

At least three-fourths of the voters in this country know that the Payne-Aldrich tariff is a betrayal of political good faith and a violation of party promises; that, with the exception of print paper and a dozen or so other articles, no effort was made to ascertain the difference between home and foreign cost of production. The voters know, also, that when the inquiry was made no attention was paid to the information obtained and that Congress voted blindly on the bill under the dictation of a boss in each house. The facts are so notorious that the tariff cannot sleep during the coming session of Congress. Efforts to drive the insurgents out of the Republican party have made it necessary for them to keep that issue very much alive.

Fooling the Farmer.

The worthlessness of a tariff on agricultural products to increase the farmer's profits is well illustrated by potatoes. Last year there was a shortage in the crop, so much so that many farmers were compelled to buy their supply for table use and for seed. Millions of bushels were imported, the tariff tax being added to the price, which the consumer, including the farmer, was compelled to pay. This year there is a large crop of potatoes, and the tariff on them does not increase the price one cent, as in many localities in our own and other States the price paid the farmer is less than the tariff imposed by the latest monstrosity.—Fairmont Sentinel.

Handy Cooking Utensil.

Time, money and space are saved by the cooking utensil designed by an Ohio man, and all housekeepers will readily understand the merits of this article by merely glancing at the illustration. This utensil consists of a stewpan with three separate compartments in which three vegetables may be cooked at once over one lid of a stove or one flame of a gas range. The pan comprises a skeleton frame of bottom and top hoops and side bars and three receptacles, one taking up half of the capacity and the others being quarters. Each of these receptacles has a clip which fits over the rim of the frame and by which it may be lifted into place or out aagin. As each of these vessels is separate it is not necessarily that the vegetables to be cooked in them require the same length of time. As one is done the partition can be lifted out. Such a utensil, when used on a gas stove, uses up only one-third as much gas as under ordinary conditions.

SAVES TIME.

Queen Cream Biscuits.

Two cupfuls of sifted flour, half a cupful of cream, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one of sugar and a half saltspoonful of salt. Mix the flour, sugar, salt and baking powder together, then add the cream and one well-beaten egg, mixing all together with a silver knife. Handle the dough as little as possible while making it into small round cakes. Bake in a hot oven for about ten minutes. This quantity will make a dozen biscuits.

Potato Chowder.

Shred a large onion in three pints of milk, add two stalks of celery, cut fine; put in a double boiler and let it come to a boil. In the meantime pare and boil six or seven medium-sized potatoes; when done, mash thoroughly, beat light and add to the boiling milk; put in a lump of butter equal to two tablespoonfuls; when melted season with pepper and salt, put through a sieve and serve at once.

Old Paraffin.

That has been used to cover jelly and fruit may be cleaned in the following way: Put all together in a large pan with boiling water. Let boil rapidly for a while till paraffin is thoroughly melted. Set aside to cool. All dust will settle to the bottom and any jelly or fruit juice in the paraffin will be dissolved. Paraffin will harden at the top and may be removed, clean and white, and with no waste.

Ham and Bean Loaf.

One cup boiled ham and one cup baked beans; put through meat grinder; one-half cup fine bread crumbs, one beaten egg, one tablespoon melted butter. A little milk or water, if needed to make the ingredients hold together. No salt will be needed, but a pinch of mustard and a little onion juice may be added if liked. Pack in baking powder cans and bake half an hour.

Apple Pudding.

Mix together one-half cupful of sugar and the juice and grated rind of one lemon. Blend one-half cupful of butter with one pint of soft bread crumbs, three beaten eggs and six pared and finely chopped tart apples. Mix with sugar and lemon and flavor with cinnamon. Bake in a pudding mold placed in a moderate oven and serve with hard sauce.

Chocolate Nut Caramels.

Put into a porcelain-lined kettle two pounds of granulated sugar, one-quarter pound of grated chocolate, one-half pound of milk, one-quarter pound of flour. Boil steadily until a little dropped into cold water hardens; flavor with vanilla, stir in a cupful of broken walnut meats, turn into a greased pan and mark off into squares.

Short Suggestions.

When frying mush, dip the slices first in the white of an egg. This makes it crisp.

It is said that prunes are greatly improved if a little cider is added to the water in which they are cooked.

To keep the white of eggs from falling after being whipped try adding while whipping a pinch of cream of tartar.

A vanilla bean kept in the sugar box will impart a delicious flavor to the sugar. This is a bit of advice from a French chef.

Discolored cups and dishes used for baking can be made as new by rubbing the brown stains with a flannel dipped into whiting.

Milk may be kept from scorching, says a good cook, if the pan in which it is to be cooked is rinsed in cold water before the milk is poured in.

Celery may be kept for several days if it is placed in a glass jar, sealed and kept in a cool place. When wanted, it should be soaked in ice water.

Leave no canned goods in a can that has been opened; remove at once. This may rob the vegetables of some food value, but it is safest and best to do so.

Before cooking canned goods place in a colander and drain off all juice and rinse with cold water. The seasoning must be supplied with good fresh butter, milk, salt and pepper.

Hot dishes sometimes leave whitish marks on varnished tables, when not, as they should not be, carelessly upon them. For removing them pour some lamp oil on the spot and rub it hard with a soft cloth. Pour on a little spirits and rub it dry with another cloth and the whole mark will disappear, leaving the table as bright as before.

THE WAVERLY HOTEL

CLYDE OBERLIN, Prop.

Warm Meals and Lunch served at all hours, day or night.

Fine line of Candies, Cigars and Tobacco.

East Side Broadway

Dr. Harrison

PHYSICIAN and SURGEON.

BUTLER, - IND.

Dr. Bulson

OFFICE AND RESIDENCE 219 WEST WAYNE STREET

FORT WAYNE.

PRACTICE LIMITED TO DISEASES OF THE EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT.

GLASSES ADJUSTED.

E. B. DUNTEN,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.

Prompt, Careful and Efficient Attention given to All Legal Business.

Office over Phillips drug store, Butler.

BEECHLER & SON,

DENTISTS.

CROWN AND BRIDGE WORK

Plates and all Dental Surgery given prompt attention. Office over Shapland's store. Sunday 9:30 to 12 o'clock

BUTLER, INDIANA.

FRANK A. BRINK

Attorney-at-Law

Notary Public.

Special Attention Given to Collections

Dr. W. F. Shumaker

Special Attention Given to Chronic Diseases

OFFICE HOURS

7 to 8 a. m. 1 to 3 p. m.

7 to 8 p. m.

5 DROPS

TRADE MARK

THE STANDARD REMEDY FOR ALL FORMS OF

RHEUMATISM

LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, NEURALGIA, KIDNEY TROUBLES, CATARRH, ASTHMA and KINDRED DISEASES

GIVES QUICK RELIEF

Applied externally it affords almost instant relief from pain, while permanent results are being effected by taking it internally, purifying the blood, dissolving the poisonous substance and removing it from the system.

DR. C. L. GATES

Hancock, Minn., writes:

"A little girl here had such a weak back caused by Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble that she could not stand on her feet. The moment they put her down on the floor she would scream with pains. I treated her with '5-DROPS' and today she runs around as well and happy as can be. I prescribe '5-DROPS' for my patients and use it in my practice."

TEST "5-DROPS" FREE

If you are suffering with Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble or any kindred disease, write to us for a trial bottle of "5-DROPS." "5-DROPS" is entirely free from opium, cocaine, morphine, alcohol, laudanum and other similar ingredients. Large Size Bottle "5-DROPS" (300 Doses) $1.00. For Sale by Druggists.

SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE COMPANY

Dept. 80. 174 Lake Street, Chicago

He Hustled.
He Advertised.

He put himself and his business before the people, and is now reaping his reward. If you desire to reach the buying classes you must patronize the newspaper that is widely circulated. ... You take no chances when you advertise in

This Paper.

DECEMBER

0415

L1134

The Redemption of David Corson

By CHARLES FREDERIC GOSS

Copyright, 1900, by The Bowen-Merrill Company. All Rights Reserved

CHAPTER XVII.—(Continued.)

To his own unbounted astonishment this young man who had long ago abandoned his faith in Christianity, began to plead like an apostle for the practice of its central and fundamental virtue.

"My friend," he said, with a new solemnity in his manner, you are on the threshold of another world; how dare you present yourself to the Judge of all the earth with a passion like this in your heart?"

In the momentary rest the beggar had recovered strength enough to reply: "It is, t-t-true. I am on the threshold of another world. I didn't use to b-b-believe there was one, but I do now. There must be! Would it be right for such d-d-devils as the one that wrecked my life to g-g-go unpunished? Not if I know anything! They get away from us here, but if eternity is as long as they s-s-say it is, I'll find D-D-Dave Corson if it t-t-takes the whole of it, and when I f-f-find him—" he paused again, gasping and strangling.

"And so you really mean to die without bestowing your pardon upon those who have wronged you?"

"I swear it!"

With a heavy heart, Mantel left him and hurried home to report the interview to David. He found him just returning from his work, and conveyed his message by the gloom of his countenance.

"Has anything gone wrong?" David inquired, anxiously, as they entered their room.

Casting himself heavily into a seat and answering abstractedly, Mantel replied, "Each new day of life renders it more inexplicable. A man no sooner forms a theory than he is compelled to abandon it. I fear it is a labyrinth from which we shall none of us escape."

"Do not speak in parables," David exclaimed, impatiently. "If anything is the matter, tell me at once. Do not leave me in suspense. I cannot endure it. Is he worse? Is he dying?"

"He is both, and more," Mantel answered, still unable to escape from the gloom which enveloped him. "I have at last drawn from him a brief but terrible allusion to the tragedy of your lives."

"What did he say? Quick, tell me!"

"He said that he had been wronged by those whom he had benefited, and that he would spend eternity in revenging his wrongs."

"Horrible!" cried David, sinking into a chair. "Did he show no mercy? Was there no sign of pardon?"

"None! Granite is softer than his heart. Ice is warmer."

David rose and paced the floor. Pausing before Mantel, he said, piteously, "Perhaps he will relent when Perpetua comes!"

"Perhaps! Have you heard from her?"

"No, but her answer cannot be much longer delayed, for I have written again and again."

"Something may have happened," said Mantel, who had lost all heart and hope.

"Do not say it," David exclaimed, beseechingly. "It is a long distance. She may have changed her residence. She may never go to the postoffice. She may be sick."

"Or dead!" said Mantel, giving expression in two words to the fulness of his despair.

"Impossible!" exclaimed David, his face blanching at this sudden articulation of the dread he had been struggling so hard to repress.

They passed out into the night together and hurried away to the beggar's room. Each was too burdened for talk and they walked in silence. Arriving at the house, they ascended the stairs on tiptoe and paused to listen at the door. "I will leave it ajar, so you may hear what he says, and then you can judge if I am right," said Mantel, entering quietly.

He approached the table and turned up the lamp which he had left burning dimly. By its pale light David could see the great head lying on the pillow, the chin elevated, the mouth partially open, the breast heaving with the painful efforts to catch a few last fluttering inspirations. Nestling close to the ashen face and licking the cheek now and then with his little red tongue, was the terrier.

Mantel's footfall, quiet as it was, disturbed the sleeper, who moved, turned his head toward the sound and asked in a husky and but half-audible voice, "Who is there?"

"It is I. How are you now? A little better?" said Mantel, laying his soft, cool hand upon the broad forehead, wet already with the death-damp.

"I am getting weaker. It won't—last—long," he answered painfully.

"I do not want to bother you, but I cannot bear to have you die without talking to you again about your future; I must try once more to persuade you not to die without sending some kind word to the people who have wronged you."

The expression of the white face underwent a hideous transformation.

"If you do not feel like talking to me about a matter so sacred and personal, would you not like to have me send for some minister or priest?"

The head moved slowly back and forth in a firm negation.

"In every age, and among all men, it has seemed fitting that those who were about to die should make some preparation to meet their God. Have you no desire to do this? If there absolutely no word of pardon or of kindness which you wish to send to those who have injured you, as a sort of legacy from the grave?"

"None!" he whispered fiercely.

"Suppose that your enemy should come to see you. Suppose that a great change had come over him; that he, too, had suffered deeply; that your wife had discovered his treachery and left him; that he had bitterly repented; that he had made such atonement as he could for his sin; that it was he who has been caring for you in these last hours, could you not pardon him?"

These words produced an extraordinary effect on the dying man. For the first time he identified his enemy with his friend, as as the discovery dawned upon his mind a convulsion seized and shook his frame. He slowly and painfully struggled to a sitting posture, lifted his right hand above his head and said in tones that rang with raucous power of by-gone days:

"If I had known that I was eating his b-b-bread, it would have choked me! Send him to me! Where is he?"

"I am here," said David, quietly entering the door. "I am here to throw myself on your mercy and to beg you, for the love of God, to forgive me."

As he heard the familiar voice, the beggar trembled. He made one last supreme effort to look out of his darkened eyes. An expression of despairing agony followed the attempt, and then, with both his great bony hands, he clutched at the throat of his night robe as if choking for breath, tore it open and reaching down into his bosom felt for some concealed object. He found it at last, grasped it and drew it forth. It was a shining blade of steel.

Mantel sprang to take it from his hand; but David pushed him back and said calmly: "Let him alone."

"Yes, let me alone," cried the blind man, trembling in every limb, and crawling slowly and painfully from the bed.

The movements of the dying man were too slow and weak to convey any adequate expression of the tempest raging in his soul. It was incredible that a tragedy was really being enacted, and that this poor trembling creature was thirsting for the life-blood of a mortal foe.

David did not seek to escape. He did not even shudder. There was a singular expression of repose on his features, for in his desperation he solaced himself by the reflection that he for a sin whose atonement had become was about to render final satisfaction otherwise impossible. He therefore folded his arms across his breast and stood waiting.

The contorted face of the furious beggar afforded a terrible contrast to the tranquil countenance of the penitent and unresisting object of his hatred. The opaque flesh seemed to have become transparent, and through it glowed the maleful light of hatred and revenge. The lips were drawn back from the white teeth, above which the great moustache bristles savagely. The lids were lifted from the hollow and expressionless eyes. Balancing himself for an instant he moved forward; but the emaciated limbs tottered under the weight of the body. He reeled, caught himself, then reeled once more, and lunged forward in the direction from which he had heard the voice of his enemy.

Again Mantel strove to intercept him, and again David forced him back. Uncertain as to the exact location of the object of his hatred, he raised his knife and struck at random; but the blow spent itself in air. The futility and helplessness of his efforts crazed him.

"Where are you? G-g-give me some sign!" he cried.

"I am here," said David, in a voice whose preternatural calmness sent a shudder to the heart of his friend. With one supreme and final effort, the dying man lurched forward and threw himself wildly toward the sound. His hand, brandishing the dagger, was uplifted and seemed about to descend on his foe; but at that very instant, with a frightful imprecation upon his lips, the gigantic form collapsed, the knife dropped from the hand, and he plunged, a corpse, into the arms of his intended victim.

David received the dead weight upon the bosom at which the dagger had been aimed, and the first expression of his face indicated a certain disappointment that a single blow had not been permitted to end his troubles, as well as terror at an event so appalling. He stood spellbound for a moment, supporting the awful burden, and then, overpowered with the horror of the situation, cried out:

"Take him, Mantel! take him! Help me to lay him down! Quick, I cannot stand it; quick!"

They laid the lifeless form on the bed, while the little dog, leaping up beside his dead master, threw his head back and emitted a series of prolonged and melancholy howls.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Bewildered by the scene through which he had just passed, Corson returned to his rooms and spent the night in a sort of stupor. What happened the next day he never knew; but on the following morning he accompanied Mantel to the cemetery where, with simple but reverent ceremony, they committed the body of the doctor to the bosom of earth.

Just as they were about to turn away, after the conclusion of the burial service, a strange thing happened. The limb of a great elm tree, which had been tied back to keep it out of the way of the workmen, was released by the old sexton and swept back over the grave.

It produced a similar impression upon the minds of both the subdued spectators. They glanced at each other, and Mantel said, "It was like the wing of an angel!"

"Yes," added David with a sigh, "and seemed to brush away and obliterate all traces of his sorrow and his sins."

They did not speak during their homeward journey, and when they reached their rooms David paced uneasily backward and forward until the shadows of evening had fallen. When he suddenly observed that it was dusk, he took his hat and went out into the streets. There was something so restless and unnatural about his movements as to excite the suspicion of his friend, who waited for a single moment and then hurried after him.

The night was calm and clear, the autumn stars were shining in a cloudless sky, and the tide of life which had surged through the busy streets all day was ebbing like the waters from the bays and estuaries along the shore of the ocean.

A few moments' walking brought David to a weird spectacle. A torch had been erected above a low platform on which stood a man of most unique and striking personality. He looked like a giant in the wavering light of the torch. He was dressed in the simple garb of a Quaker; his head was bare; great locks of reddish hair curled round his temples and fell down upon his shoulders. His massive countenance bespoke an extraordinary mind, and beamed with rest and peace. As he sang an old familiar hymn, he looked around upon his audience with an expression such as glowed, no doubt, from the countenance of the Christ when He spoke to the multitudes on the shores of Lake Genessaret.

Close to the small platform was a circle of street Arabs, awed into silence and respect by the charm of this remarkable personality. Next to them came a ring of women—some of them old and gray, with haggard and wrinkled countenances upon which Time, with his antique pen, had traced many illegible hieroglyphs; some of them young and bedizened with tinsel jewelry and flashy clothing; not a few of them middle-aged, wan, dispirited and bearing upon their hips bundles wrapped in faded shawls, from which came occasionally that most distressing of sounds, the wail of an ill-fed and unloved infant, crying in the night.

Outside of this zone of female misery and degradation, there was a belt of masculine stupidity and crime; men with corpulent bodies, bull necks, double chins, pile-driving heads; men of shrunken frames, cadaverous cheeks, deep-set and beady eyes—vermin-covered, disease-devoured, hope-deserted. They clung around him, these concentric circles of humanity, like rings around a luminous planet, held by they knew not what resistless attraction.

The simple melody, borne upon the pinions of that resonate and cello-like voice, attained an almost supernatural influence over their perverted natures. When it ceased, an audible sigh arose, an involuntary tribute of adoration and of awe. As soon as he had finished his hymn, this consecrated apostle to the lost sheep of the great city opened a well-worn volume.

The influence which he exerted over the mind of David was as irresistible as it was inscrutable. His language had the charm of perfect familiarity. Every word and phrase had fallen from his own lips a hundred times in similar exhortations. In fact, they seemed to him strangely like the echo of his own voice coming back upon him from the dim and half-forgotten past.

(To be continued.)

WHERE THE PINS ARE MADE.

England, Germany and the United States Largest Producers.

Of brass, iron and steel pins between fifteen and sixteen tons (2,240 pounds to a ton) are made each week in the united kingdom, a consular report says. In view of the great difference in the size of the pins, which necessarily affects their weight, it is impossible to calculate how many millions of pins are represented in this output, but the number must be almost incalculable. A great majority of the pins manufactured in the united kingdom are made in Birmingham by two firms, one of which has been manufacturing pins for over eighty years and the other for about a century. The only other country except the United States which manufactures pins in great quantities is Germany, whose output is said to be about twelve tons per week. A few steel pins are made in France, and the United States makes an enormous quantity of pins. In view of the prominence of the British pinmaking industry, comparatively few pins are imported into the united kingdom. These come from Germany, and, I am informed, are of the cheapest grade, but the aggregate is not more than fifteen tons a year. The chief pin-using countries are the United States, Great Britain, Germany and France.

Of the united kingdom production, about 25 per cent is exported by the manufacturers, not including pins purchased by merchants, many of whom undoubtedly buy for export. None of these goes to Germany, but large quantities go to the United States and France, while other countries take pins in comparatively small quantities. The pins that are exported to the United States from the united kingdom come almost exclusively from Birmingham, from the two firms mentioned, and the pins exported from the united kingdom are almost exclusively pins of the highest grade, and are invoiced at prices as high or perhaps higher than pins of American make are sold in wholesale quantities in the United States. In fact, the American market demands on the average a pin far better than the British market, and one cannot buy in the shops in the united kingdom as good a quality of pins as in the United States. The German pin, it appears, is not as good as the English pin of the best quality and ranks about with the American pin, although the color of the German pin is said to be a little better.

The Regimental Barber.

A major in an English regiment has a great contempt for incapacity of any kind and is somewhat impatient. A sergeant complained to him that he could get no man to undertake the duty of barber to the company.

"Is there no gardener in the company?" asked the major testily. "See if you can find one, and send him to me."

The man was duly sent, but on receiving orders to act as barber ventured to expostulate.

"Great guns!" cried the major. "If you can cut grass you can cut hair! Go and do it!"

Missed His Only Chance.

There once lived a woman who never gave her husband a chance to say a word. The moment he opened his mouth she closed it with a torrent of words. It happened that he fell sick when his wife was out of town, and before she could get home death came and took him away.

"I would feel better about it," she is still saying between her sobs, "if I could have been with John when he died. There must have been some last words he wanted to say to me."—Atchison Globe.

Installment Plan.

"Do you keep up your automobile all winter?"

"No. It's all I can do to keep up the payments on it."—Cleveland Leader.

Boasts.

1809—I was the year that great men were born.

1909—Well, I'm the year great things are done.—New York Sun.

The value of wheat ruined by thrust is estimated at $5,000,000 a year.

A DEPARTMENT FOR WOMEN

Homemaking Requires Study.

Many women make the mistake of thinking that the calling of homemaking needs no preparation, and the result is disappointment on both sides.

Every girl should be taught plain cooking and sewing and have some knowledge of every branch of domestic work; it will prove a valuable asset in whatever line of business she may engage, and should she marry, the duties of keeping house will not be nearly so difficult.

Some do not marry, many late in life; others still are left widows, often with dependent families, and for such a practical education is desirable; but each one should select the work that she thinks she would like to do, and not for the reason that others have succeeded in it.

A grammar school education, at least, is necessary for any one who would enter an office. A high school education is desirable, and even one year of this latter is of great advantage as a general preparation.

I agree with one of your correspondents that stenography is a good business for a bright girl; it does not require as long a time as some other branches for study and brings quicker returns than almost any other. I speak from experience, as the widowed mother of two daughters, both stenographers, who took care of themselves, assisted the family and always had a snug account to their credit in the bank.

Girls, whatever you do, do with all your might, and you will be sure to "make good."

Woman Judge in Denmark.

A woman has lately been made a judge in Denmark, and the Danish women are reported to be much excited, as they think it is the first and only case of the kind in the world. To say nothing of Mrs. Esther Morris of Wyoming, Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch of Illinois, and Mrs. Mary Cooper of Kansas, do not our Danish sisters read their Bibles? Have they forgotten Deborah, the wife of Lapidoth, who judged Israel for forty years, sitting under a palm tree, and led out the forces of the chosen people to battle because the general refused to march without her? Mr. Blackwell was very fond of quoting Deborah to those who claimed that the Bible teaches the subjection of women, and he emphasized the fact that Deborah was a married woman.—Woman's Journal.

Passing of the Puff.

This beauty's masses of hair were wound tightly around her head and held in place by huge jade-headed pins, and long jade earrings dropped from her ears. The effect was startling, but undoubtedly picturesque. Another new and unusual fashion, which will be of interest to girls, is that of tying a kerchief around the head. A three-cornered silk or satin scarf is tied around the head, the bows coming at one side just above the ear. These are worn in London even with evening gowns. To some girls they are extremely becoming, especially if a few curly locks escape around the edges of the kerchief.

Fads and Fancies in Dress

The jet button craze already shows signs of waning.

Rough homespun is intended for motor coat and for outing wear.

Bullet-shaped buttons are more in use now than lozenge shapes.

The toque still reigns supreme for walking in Paris and is seen in wide variation.

Kimono silks that have large watered silk blotches of blurred tints are fashionable.

Fur is to be generously used on many of the afternoon as well as undress tailor-mades.

Smart tailored suits are being made of the new diagonals, which are very rich in coloring.

The newest fur muffs are finished with dangling heads and tails that almost sweep the ground.

The roll that has been removed from the pompadour allows hats to sit more firmly and they will be worn low on the head.

The lovely meteor crepes and liberty satins will still be worn, but will probably come second to the rough materials this winter.

Dancing slippers, whether patent leather or velvet, have several straps over the insteps, each decorated in some manner with beads or tinsel.

Pretty semi-evening gowns, which the French call casino gowns, are being worn with but slight decolletage and transparent guimpes of tulle or mousseline.

Skirts, while cut on broader lines, still retain more or less the sheath effect. The silhouette is almost exactly the same as it was last winter.

ATTRACTIVE COSTUMES FOR YOUNG GIRLS.

The figure on the right shows a street costume of King's blue wide wale cheviot with narrow skirt and long coat fastened with large buttons covered with the material and braided buttonholes. There is one rever similarly trimmed with smaller buttons. The turban is of panne velvet in King's blue and the furs are lynx. The figure on the left shows a gown of amethyst satin finished cloth elaborately trimmed with cross-stitch embroidery in amethyst and silver. The square yoke and lower sleeves are of net. The hat is of black moire, trimmed with an immense wired bow of white Chantilly lace. The turban at top is of black Ottoman silk, banded with panne velvet and trimmed with a gold quill and a twist of cloth of gold. The figure at the bottom shows a graceful house gown of silk cashmere in apricot yellow, with an overskirt effect, bordered with band of embroidery. The bodice is collarless, with a yoke of chiffon cloth run with designs in silk floss. The sleeves are loose and are in one piece with the bodice, with an under sleeve of chiffon cloth. Bands of embroidery also trim the bodice.

Staining Floors.

When carpets become worn and must be renewed, it is a good time to change to a bare floor and a few rugs. The finishing of the floor is a very simple matter. It may be painted, stained, oiled or waxed. In any case it should be cleaned thoroughly, all stains removed and given a coat of filler. If the floor was made for a carpet there will probably be cracks which will need filling. Putty colored like the wood is very satisfactory for this. If the boards are knotty, they should be painted. Otherwise a transparent finish may be used. Stains made by paint or varnish are easily removed with ammonia, but it should be put on with a brush. The whole floor may be cleaned in this way. The ammonia darkens the wood somewhat. Merely oiling with a crude oil, linseed or kerosene gives a good finish, provided a very small quantity is used and that it is thoroughly rubbed in and no superfluous oil is left on the floor.

Rule of the Corset.

If Cleopatra wore corsets she may rank as a royal champion of them with Catherine de Medici, who is credited with having introduced the busked corset in France from Italy. Male monarchs have been less friendly. Joseph II. of Austria tried to discourage the corset by making it part of the costume of a convicted woman of bad character. Napoleon, shaking his head over the tight lacing of his day, told Dr. Corvisart that he saw in it a sign of frivolous tastes and a menace of coming decadence. The Restoration kings, Louis XVIII. and Charles X., were equally hostile. Formerly, said the latter, France had been full of Venuses, Dianas and Niobes, but now there were only wasps. The revolution alone temporarily put down the garment that has triumphantly defied kings.

Snap Shots at Women

The Princess Stephanie, daughter of King Leopold, has taken out a patent for a new kind of gas stove.

A 10-year-old girl named Minna Weicbein has astonished the United States immigration authorities by her ability to speak and read Russian, Polish, French, German, Italian, Spanish and English.

Two hundred women employed by a firm of hatters at South Norwalk, Conn., went on strike because their employers wanted to know their ages in order to promote the three oldest to the positions of inspector.

Stained Table Cloths.

Table cloths, as every housekeeper knows, have a disagreeable habit of getting something spilled on them, particularly after the table has been set. The best way to treat such refractory cloths is to place a bowl under the spot and pour boiling water upon it. Then place a dry napkin over the spot and iron it dry.

Blouse for the Tailored Suit.

The problem of what sort of a blouse to wear with the tailored suit is a serious one this year. Many will not have to face this question, having chosen a three-piece suit at the start. But the woman who decided in favor of a simple tailored coat and skirt will don a simple tailored shirtwaist of white linen for morning wear, varying this by selecting for afternoons a chiffon, satin or soft silk blouse just the shade of her suit. The above model of satin followed this plan, just matching a cloth suit of "raisin," the popular bluish purple shade. The waist proper was of soft satin, plaited at the shoulders and top of sleeves, the chiffon yoke was of corresponding shade, ending in embroidered velvet reveres. Soutache embroidery embellished the bodice below the yoke, also the collar and cuffs of the full-length sleeves.

The Deeds Undone.

The bitterest tears shed over graves are for words left unsaid and deeds left undone. "She never knew how I loved her." "He never know what he was to me." "I always meant to make more of our friendship." Such words are the poisoned arrows which cruel death shoots backward at us from the sepulcher.—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

Good Servants Rewarded.

The German Housewives' Association gave prizes recently in New York to those servants who had two or more years in one place. Golden bees were given to twenty-five young women who had been two years in one place. Eight who had four-year records got rings, and two who had been six years in their places got $10 gold pieces. The prizes are given every two years.

Washing White Ribbons.

White ribbons washed with pure soap and soft water and rolled about a wide card or piece of pasteboard, draped in muslin, and placed under a heavy weight, look fresher than when ironed.

Civil War Stories

Allatoona.

The morning of October 5, 1863, dawned brightly. The Confederate army under Hood had advanced to the picket lines, and firing along the outposts warned Allatoona's defenders that deadly work was in store for them. The guards around the railroad shed had been withdrawn to the forts on the hilltop, at the right and left of the railroad. The first artillery practice from the fort on the left of the railroad, facing Atlanta, resulted in dismounting a Confederate batteryman and battery planted near the railroad by the Johnnies; then, the bloody work of the day began.

I do not wonder why the battle of Allatoona has not been written up by some one of the survivors of that dreadful carnage which lasted from dawn till four o'clock in the afternoon. The great mistake of General Hood in attacking Allatoona is this: The Confederate scouts reported to Hood that there were but two or three regiments guarding the place and the million rations stored there, whereas there were two brigades of the best troops in the field that had quietly arrived in the night before the battle; and nobly did they resist the onward charges of the Southern hosts and storming parties, until the leading Confederate officers were fully convinced that instead of two or three regiments a whole army of Union troops had in some mysterious manner, suddenly come to the rescue of Allatoona and the rations. The fact was that the troops coming from Rome, by order of General Sherman, for the defense of Allatoona just fooled Hood and the officers under him, and it was another George Washington military movement. The foresight of General Sherman in ordering plenty of men to defend Allatoona proved one of the greatest gains to his success "through Georgia."

And though the people of this age may never realize the importance of the defense of Allatoona, Ga., I am sure the troops engaged in that defense will fully sustain me in the statement that had General Corse surrendered on account of the "useless effusion of blood," as General Hood expressed it, the "march through Georgia" would have been delayed many moons.

I always admired General Sherman, and saw at once as I gazed at him for the first time that he meant business; and what little of a warrior I ever had in my make-up was inspired in me by General W. T. Sherman; for I considered him all that man could desire as a soldier, and a man desperately determined to do all in his power to show to the world that the American army was not a pack of bloodhounds, but gentle and kind in peace, and, in war, furious and unrevengeful. That the whole Southern army, navy and Confederate States were deceived in fighting the Government of the United States is exemplified in the terrible carnage of Allatoona. The troops under Hood were shamefully deceived, for there were too many troops defending the place, as they bitterly realized at the time.

Was Poor Tom A-Cold?

"Vets" and those who like good word painting will enjoy this from the San Francisco Examiner:

The night of Dec. 31, 1863, was exceedingly cold in the vicinity of Murfreesboro, Tenn. The first day's battle at Stone River had been fought, resulting in disaster to the Federal army, which had been driven from its original ground at every point except its extreme left. The weary troops at that point lay behind a railway embankment, which had served them during the last hours of the fight as a breastwork to repel repeated charges of the enemy. Behind the line of ground was open and rocky. Great bowlders lay about everywhere, and among them lay many of the Federal dead, where they had been carried out of the way. Before the embankment the dead of both armies lay greatly thicker, but they were not molested. It was not a dark night, being clear.

Among the dead in the bowlders lay one whom nobody knew—a Federal sergeant, shot directly in the center of the forehead. One of our surgeons, from idle curiosity, or possibly with a view to the amusement of a group of officers during a lull in the engagement (we needed something to divert our minds), had dropped his prone clean through the head. The body lay on its back, its chin in the air, and with straightened limbs as rigid as steel; frost on its white face, and its beard and hair. Some Christian soul had covered it with a blanket, but when the night became pretty sharp a companion of the writer removed this, and we lay beneath it ourselves.

With the exception of our pickets, who had been posted well in front of the embankment, every man lay silent. Conversation was forbidden; to have made a fire or even struck a match to light a pipe would have been a grave offense. Stamping horses, moaning wounded—everything that made a noise had been sent to the rear; the silence was absolute. Those whom the chill prevented from sleeping, nevertheless, reclined as they shivered, or sat with their heads on their arms, suffering, but making no sign. Every one had lost friends and all expected death on the morrow. These matters are mentioned to show the improbability of any one going about during those solemn hours to commit a ghastly practical joke.

When the dawn broke the sky was still clear. "We shall have a warm day," the writer's companion whispered as we rose in the gray light; "let's give back the poor devil his blanket." The sergeant's body lay in the same place, two yards away. But not in the same attitude. It was upon its right side. The knees were drawn up nearly to the breast, both hands thrust to the wrists between the buttons of the jacket, the collar of which was turned up, concealing the ears. The shoulders were elevated, the head was retracted, the chin rested on the collar bone, the posture was that of one suffering from intense cold.

But for what had been previously observed—but for the ghastly evidence of the bullet-hole—one would have sworn the man had frozen to death.

Dear Mother.

I was in Company H. One Hundred and Forty-eighth New York Volunteers, Eighteenth Army Corps, and among the skirmishers at early dawn June 3, 1864, at Cold Harbor, Va. My brigade (Wistar's) charged "en masse" and was repulsed, as indeed was the whole Army of the Potomac. After our repulse we were ordered to fortify.

A battery of artillery in our rear was firing over our heads, its objective being a point of the enemy's works. Suddenly an explosion occurred, enveloping our whole right with powder smoke, hurtling iron, and dust. As the air cleared we know that a shell from the battery in our rear had burst just over us, either by mistake or faulty manufacture.

Some one said it had killed a man in the next company. Passing along into and among the next company, I saw a fine-looking young may lying partly against the breastwork, apparently unconscious. His uniform was torn from his left breast and left arm, and his flesh, lacerated and torn, hung in shreds, exposing his ribs. I remember noting the pulsations of his heart as seen between the bare ribs.

The surgeon was quickly called. He came reluctantly, looked an instant, and turned on his heel and retired.

The murmuring of the men became decidedly emphatic over his apparently brutal conduct. Soon the hospital steward appeared with a sponge and a bottle of colorless liquid. Saturating the sponge he held it to the unconscious soldier's nostrils. The brave heart soon ceased beating forever. A sheet of paper was in his hand, headed: "Cold Harbor, Va., June 3, 1864—Dear Mother." His comrades said they would send his unfinished letter to his mother, of whom he was thinking at the instant he was smitten down.

Imagine her reception of that last letter, accompanied by the explanation of its unfinished state.

His "Boys."

There are times when the so-called "red tape" of the army gives way under the stress of circumstances. At the battle of Chickamauga, Gen. Willich, who was commanding a brigade, incurred the displeasure of General Rosecrans, the commanding general, by some very slight omission. General Willich was sent for, and informed by the general commanding that he must consider himself under arrest for the present.

"General," said Rosecrans, sternly, "consider yourself under arrest, and leave your sword here until your case is tried."

"Yes, general, I will consider myself under arrest," was the reply, "and shust so zoon as dis fight's over I'll come and fix him up."

"But, sir," said the astounded Rosecrans, "I want you to consider yourself under arrest now."

"Of course I do," responded Willich, promptly, "and so zoon as I get off dis fight, I'll be up and settle him."

"But, sir," expostulated the commanding general, "I can't let you go into this fight. You are under arrest. I will assign an officer to your brigade."

"You send an officer to fight my boys!" cried Willich, indignantly. "He can't do it; they don't know him. Me they know; I teach them. I fight them, and none of the boys would know how to fight or what to do, only when I go with them. My boys belong to me! yes, me, General Willich. I command the brigade, and I must fight the brigade!"

General Rosecrans gave it up. General Willich was requested to return and "fight his boys," which he did most successfully. And that was the end of the matter.

Jackrabbit Dinner.

I was one of about a dozen to spend the fall and winter of '64 near Cleveland, Tenn., repairing an old sawmill. We were out one day felling some trees for the foundation of the sawmill, when suddenly the teamster came and told me he had shot a sheep and wished I would go quick and skin it. I did so, and soon that sheep was skinned, quartered and in a bag. The teamster then took the bag of mutton to camp and our good old cook prepared it for dinner. During the forenoon one of the boys had been out around camp shooting jackrabbits. He had killed quite a number of these Hesperian creatures when he had come into camp, but he and the cook preferred them for supper, so the rabbits were laid away and the mutton was used instead. The sergeant of our little squad had oftimes said that he could not eat mutton. This, of course, gave chance for a good joke. The table was set, the boys called and before they sat down to "feed" each had been given the wink. The sergeant seated himself with the remark, "I am, indeed, fond of jackrabbit," and in fact, he ate as though he was.

After dinner the boys told him of the huge joke played on him; but he swore it was jackrabbit. This, of course, made the laughter so much the more, and the sergeant was led to the bag and shown the three remaining quarters.

Throughout the remainder of our stay at Cleveland our "dude" sergeant could eat as much mutton as any of us.

Why She Wept.

Mr. Styles—What are you crying about, dear?

Mrs. Styles—I'm crying because I didn't spend that $20 you gave me this morning.

Mr. Styles—Well, you shouldn't cry about that. You're better off not to have spent it.

Mrs. Styles—No, I'm not, either. I lost it!—Yonkers Statesman.

Natural Supposition.

"He is due to learn some time that he cannot always have his own way."

"Why, is he engaged?"—Houston Post.

DECEMBER

0416

L1134

DeKalb County Herald

A. S. POWERS, Editor and Publisher

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

ONE YEAR, $1.50 SIX MONTHS, 75c THREE MONTHS, 40c

The Herald is entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, Butler, Indiana

Weak Throat—Weak Lungs

Cold after cold; cough after cough! Troubled with this taking-cold habit? Better break it up. We have great confidence in Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for this work. No medicine like it for weak throats and weak lungs. Ask your doctor for his opinion. He knows all about it. His approval is valuable. Follow his advice at all times. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Always keep a good laxative in the house. Take a dose when your cold first comes on. What is the best laxative for this? Ayer's Pills. Ask your doctor his opinion. Let him decide.

Christmas Memories

Yep! Chris'mus time has come 'round agin,
With all of its joys jest tumbled in—
To our hearts tel they're full an' the weight purt nigh
Is as great as th' weight of the stars in th' sky;
An' as they shine,'it jest shines out
In rays thet you know all about.

They's many a year thet's come an' gone
Sence I'uz a boy, but when along
About this bloomin' time o' year,
My heart fills up with Christ'mus cheer.
No difference what is left undone
You'll alluz find me in fer fun.

Then Ho! fer th' merry, merry jingle an' th' ringle
Of the bells; how th' frosty Chris'mus air seems all a-tingle
To the music of th' bells
As it sweetly swells
From the merry, merry ringling jingling Chris'mus bells.

It makes me feel like a boy onct more,
When I see the kids on th' kitchen floor,
A-playin' around with th' toys an' things
Thet alluz on Chris'mus Santy brings—
An' I jest git down an' join their play,
Fer fun is what goes on Chris'mus day.

An' it brings to mind thet long gone night,
When th' sleighin' wuz good an' th' stars were bright,
An' I tucked they're mother in side o' me,
An' we both went to th' Chris'mus tree—
An' I mind on partin' o' hearin' her say:
Come over tomorrow 'n spend Chris'mus day.

Oh, Ho! fer th' merry, merry jingle an' th' ringle
Of th' bells, how the frosty Chris'mus air seemed all a-tingle
As I rode away
With a Hip, Horray!
To see th' best girl livin' on thet Chris'mus day.

Wall, long to'rds noon-time found me there—
An' mebby now I did'nt fare
As th' Lordliest feller ever seen—
As a knight 'ud fare at th' hands of a queen—
An' of thet dinner she wuz th' cook,
An' her own bright head wuz th' cookin' book.

They wuz cramberry sauce an' rich mince pie,
An' mashed pertaters piled way up high,
An' chicken an' gravy, an' big pound cakes,
An' pickles an' honey an' bread an' steaks—
(If the rest of my life is all forlorn,
It paid me onct fer bein' born!)

Then Ho! fer a stummick filled, an' heart with joy o'reflowing,
By a warm an' merry Chris'mus fire with winter winds a-blowing
On th' pane outside—
(An' a girl beside)
On the merry, merry, merry, merry Chris'mus tide.
Wall, time went off in th' nicest way,
I'd ever spent a Chris'mus day.
We sung th' old songs—far th' best—
An' she played th' organ, the purtiest
Of any mortal I ever saw:
An' th' fun we had till night time, La!

I never expected to see th' like,
While I'd be treadin' this mundane pike—
Fer a jug o' cider o' high degree
Seemed to sort o' hitch with me,
Jest like old Jenny hitched with Nance,
When we drove thet night to th' Chris'mus dance.

Oh, Ho! fer th' merry, merry jingle an' th' ringle
Of th' bells, how th' frosty Chris'mus air seemed all a-tingle,
As we rode thet night
In th' bright starlight
To th' dance where happiness wuz at it's height.

Wall, she's cooked up a dinner as fine today,
An' we're go' to spend Chris'mus th' same old way.
Though we haint as young as we used to be,
We're 's happy an' 's lively too, fer we
Would'nt dare, she sez, miss th' splendid chance
O' goin', tonight, to th' Chris'mus dance.

—By John William Barber.

The Herald Can Be Had From Now Till January 1st, 1911, For Only $1.50

ARE YOU JEALOUS SEE EAST LYNNE

Will Be at The Opera House on Tuesday Evening

Are you jealous? Do you want to be cured?

If so THE HERALD will help to reform you and shame you out out of it.

Here is the scheme at the Opera House next Tuesday night. A more powerful sermon against jealously was never preached from any pulpit. We believe that any jealous man or woman who will go and see this play will have at least some jealousness eliminated.

We are so impressed with this that we have bought tickets for the performance of this play, and to the first 10 jealous men or women who will come to the Herald Office and say to us "I am jealous and really want to reform" we will give froe these tickets.

This is the Herald's missionary work against jealousness.

King.s "East Lynne" is based upon jealoueness. The heroine is one of the most jealous women that existed. Her jealousy is not of the mild type, but sne is cursed with that cankering, blighting sort—the kind that eats into one's heart ond brain until everything good and elevating is destroyed.

There are jealous men and women in every community. No woman wonts to marry a jealous man. It is true that they oftentimes do, and no doubt they are sorry for it. Jealousness is a trait in the charactar of women and men that is hidden during courtship. It is embodiment of many evils. Peaceful domesticity is usually an unknown duantity where jealousness reigns. Some jealous people have reformed. They have been made to see and realize that others are entitled thoughtful consideration. Thousands upon thousands of men have been heard to remark after seeing the play "Isn't that just like a woman."

"East Lynne" is not without a history. It was first produced in 1855 in London and was witnessed by Queen Victoria.

When Stores Will Close.

We, the undersigned will close our places of business beginning January 1st according to the following schedule.

Mondays and Wednesdays at any time.

Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays at 6 p. m.

Saturdays at 10 to 11 p. m.

It will be understood that we will be allowed the privilege of keeping open on L. S. & M. S. pay days.

This schedule to continue through January and February. And if the weather conditions are bad, through March.

THE KNISELY DRY GOODS CO.
WM. ELDEN
W. R. HOLDEN CO.
J. C. BROWN & SON
50-2

Mrs. Northup, Quincy, Ill.

Mothers should be grateful to know of a remedy for their own stomach, bowel and liver troubles as well as for those of their children. Mrs. Alice Northup, of Quincy, Ill., after trying many methods is free to admit that the best one is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which she uses herself and gives to her family. She believes no household should be without it. This grand laxative and tonic is absolutely guaranteed to do what is claimed, and if you want to try it before buying, send your address for a free sample bottle to Pepsin Syrup Co., 119 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1 a bottle. 48-1m

WABASH

EAST BOUND

No. 2	Express	6:48 a. m
No. 28	Mail	8:48 a. m
No. 6	Toledo Mail & Exp	5:12 p. m
No. 78	Local Freight	9:50 a. m

WEST BOUND

No. 9	Fast Mail	4:29 a. m.
No. 11	Ft. Wayne Mail & Exp	10:16 a. m.
No. 3	Express	8:17 p. m.
No. 79	Local Freight	2:04 p. m.

All trains daily except Local Freights.

O. C. WATERMAN, Agent, Butler, Ind.

Nervous

"I was very nervous," writes Mrs. Mollie Mirse, of Carrsville, Ky., "had palpitation of the heart, and was irregular.

"On the advice of Mrs. Hattie Cain I took 2 bottles of Cardui and it did me more good than any medicine I ever took.

"I am 44 years old and the change has not left me, but I am lots better since taking Cardui."

E 54

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Cardui is advertised and sold by its loving friends. The lady who advised Mrs. Mirse to take Cardui, had herself been cured of serious female trouble, by Cardui, so she knew what Cardui would do.

If Cardui cured Mrs. Cain and Mrs. Mirse, it surely will cure you too.

Won't you try it?

Please do.

Program

Of the thirteenth convention of North Wilmington Sunday School Association to be held at the M. E. church, Sunday, Dec. 26, 1909, at 2 o'clock.

Devotional.

Subject, Class Organization—C. A. Husselman.

Discussion—J. E. Tresch, Rev. Albertson.

Subject, Will the Cradle Roll Pay? Miss Daily.

Discussion—A. S. Kester, Mrs. J. C. Brown.

Subject, How Far Should the Superintendent and Teachers go in Enforcing Order—Prof. H. R. Bean.

Question Box—M. Knepper.

Another Honor for Shively

United States Senator Benjamin F. Shively, of South Bend, who came to LaGrange in October of 1908 and delivered an address in connection with our Farm Products Show and Corn School Week, was last week selected as the vice chairman of the democratic caucus of the senate. Senator Money of Mississippi is the chairman and, consequently, the floor leader of the democrats in the senate. Senator Money, however, is not strong physically, and will probably be absent from the senate chamber much of the time. Senator Shively as vice chairman will therefore be in charge of affairs, an honor that will make him prominent in his party and make his name, according to some of the democratic newspapers in Indiana, and elsewhere, one to be reckoned with in the next national democratic convention.—LaGrange Standard.

Louis B. Fretz Preaching

Lois B. Fretz, who is well known the county over, being a preacher-printer-author has been heard from at Bloomfield. He is conducting a meeting near that place and meeting with much success.

Mr. Fretz is in the employ of the church of God and it is said of him that he is very eloquent and succeeds in entertaining his audiences well. His friends in Auburn will be glad to learn that his preaching is meeting with marked success.

He is a pecular character in many ways. He is author of the little book entitled, "Benny, the Pythian of Syracuse."

Paper Factory For Garrett

The Old Bertrand Paper company's plant will be moved from South Bend to Garrett, the citizens of that city having pledged the amount of $1,200 to Mr. A. B. Smith, the company's manager. The plant will be located on the Baker farm and is to be in operation by the middle of February.

A POPULAR VERDICT

Based on Evidence of Butler People

Grateful thousands tell it—
How weak backs were made strong—
Weak kidneys made well—
Urinary disorders corrected.
Butler people add their testimony.
They gladly praise Doan's Kidney Pills.
For quick relief and lasting cures.
Butler evidence is now complete.
Butler testimony is confirmed:
Reports of early relief substantiated.
Cures doubly proved by test of time.
Let a Butler citizen speak.

D. D. Melroy, of Butler, Ind., says: "I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Stone's drug store and they relieved me of a lame back and other symptoms of kidney trouble that had caused me much annoyance for several months. Shortly after I publicly endorsed this remedy and at this time, I willingly confirm that statement and add that my trouble has never returned."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. 51-2

COST OF COMPULSORY EDUCATION IN INDIANA

It may be interesting to DeKalb county people, more especially the parents of children, and the taxpayers, to know that "it cost the state of Indiana $54,158.89 to enforce the compulsory education law during the fiscal year ending September 30," according to the annual report of the board of the state charities, which is now being compiled by the secretary. Of this amount $31,648.50 was spent for salaries for truant officers, while the remainder, $22,510.39 was used to supply books and clothing for needy children that they might attend school. Nearly twenty-five thousand children were placed in the schools of the state under the law during the year, of whom 21,931 were placed in the public schools. Of the number of children aided financially to attend school, 7,467 in all, 7465 went to the public schools. Two hundred and seventy-six prosecutions of parents for failure to observe the law were brought, of which 254 were successful, twenty-one unsuccessful, and one pending at the close of the year. One hundred and ten truant officers were employed." It is reported that "the per capita cost of taking children into the schools was $2 27, while the per capita of financial assistance furnished was $2.94. Truant officers were employed in every county except Ohio. Children taken into the schools by counties range from none in Henry and Jennings counties and fewer than twenty five in Benton, Boone, Fulton, Hendricks, Jefferson, Switzerland, Wabash, Warren, Washington and White, to Floyd, 1,572, Clark, 627, Allen, 629, Saint Joseph, 1,299, Vigo, 1,305, Marion, 4,165, and Madison, 3,359. Seventy-six prosecutions were begun in Marion county, thirty-three in Floyd, nineteen each in Orange and Fountain and fifteen in Saint Joseph. In the other eighty-one counties from which reports were received there wese fewer than fifteen prosecutions in thirty-four counties and none in forty-seven."

The President and the Children.

Mrs. Frederick Schoff has had recently an interview with President Roosevelt, to talk over what could be done for the cause of the education of children in this country. She says in regard to this interview: "I told the President that people wanted a children's department of the government, but education could cover the whole thing if it would. The President said if there was to be such a department in Washington he would put a woman and a mother at the head of it. I also spoke about the immigrants.

"Those people are coming from every country to America, I pointed out, and we are not doing anything to help them when they get here. I had visited one woman who had twelve children—beautiful children as you would want to see. She only had $15 a week and they were living in two rooms. We accept that as a thing we have to endure, and we should not do so.

"I have prepared a letter addressed to Mr. Roosevelt and to be sent to him by Commissioner Brown, embodying these thoughts and suggestions. As head of the bureau of education, Commissioner Brown, at my request, will send out leaflets printed in various languages for use in the education of mothers in physical and moral care of children."

Trouble Makers Ousted

When a sufferer from stomach trouble takes Dr. King's New Life Pills he's mighty glad to see his Dyspepsia and Indigestion fly, but more-he's tickled over his new, fine appetite, strong nerves, healthy vigor, all because stomach, liver, and kidneys now work right. 25c at Stone's drug store. 48-1m

A Random Shot.

"Mr. Cleveland," said a New York banker, "took much to heart the revelations of our rich men's corruption. He told me one day at luncheon that, if these revelations continued, it would be hard to name a multi-millionaire without naming a criminal. He said that an English capitalist came to New York last year with letters to the greatest captains of industry. He dined with one of these captains one night, and after dinner his host's little son was presented to him. He was a fine, well-grown lad. The Englishman patted him on the head, and said, by way of a joke:

"'You are a dear little fellow. I hope you'll grow up a better man than your father.'

"The Englishman laughed merrily at his joke, but the millionaire father looked grave. And after the boy was gone, the father said, in a heartbroken voice, with tears in his eyes:

"'I am indeed grieved that you, sir, a gentleman of education and refinement, should cast reflections on my character, and that, too, in the presence of my son. It is true that the missing stocks were charged to my account, but I was honorably acquitted by the courts.'"

A Good Ending

Old people are especially prone to stomach, liver and bowel ailments. Old age can be made the pleasantest time of life if these diseases can be avoided. They can be avoided, and cured, by the use of Dr. Calwell's Syrup Pepsin, which cures chronic constipation, dyspepsia, liver troubles, heartburn, sour stomach, flatulency, indigestion, etc. It is absolutely guaranteed to do what we claim, and if you want to try it before buying, send your address for a free sample bottle to pepsin Syrup Co., 119 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1 at bottle. 48-1m

HERALD ADVERTISING BRINGS RESULTS. TRY IT.

Scott's Emulsion

is a wonderful food-medicine for all ages of mankind. It will make the delicate, sickly baby strong and well—will give the pale, anemic girl rosy cheeks and rich, red blood. It will put flesh on the bones of the tired, overworked, thin man, and will keep the aged man or woman in condition to resist colds or pneumonia in the winter.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send 10c., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each bank contains a Good Luck Penny.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., New York

Public Sale

I will sell at public sale, at my residence, one mile north of Newville, or four miles south and one mile east of Butler, Indiana, on the Harrison Smith farm, on Friday, Jan. 7th, '10, at 10 o'clock, a. m., the following property, to wit:

Eight head of cattle, consisting of five head good milch cows, all will be fresh in February and March, giving a good flow of milk now. Two year old red Poll Durham bull. Two yearling Durham bulls. Poland China brood sow, due to farrow in March. Nine head of shoats weight about 50 pounds Six head of shoats weight about 100 pounds. One single buggy, two sets of single harness one nearly new, one cane crusher and pan, spike tooth drag, about 6 tons of good timothy hay and many other articles too numerous to mention.

Terms: All sums of $5.00 and under cash. All sums of over $5 a credit of 10 months will be given without interest if paid when due. If not paid when due 8 percent interest will be charged from day of sale. No property to be removed unless settlement is made. A discount of 3 percent will be given on all sums over $5.00 to parties paying cash.

C. H. SMITH.
J. L. RHODENBAUGH, Auctioneer.
A. D. BRONSON, Clerk.

To Cure a Cold in One Day.

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25c. 52-12m

FASHION PLATES

NOW IN

And we are ready for the fal business.

We do all kinds of button covering for the ladies'.

Cleaning and repairing on short notice.

Edward May

Reliable Tailor

A Notre Dame Lady's Appeal

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbagos, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address

Mrs. M. Summers, Box R, Notre Dame, Ind.

A Guaranteed Cure for Piles

Itching, Blind, Bleeding, Protruding Piles. Druggists are authorized to refund money if Pazo Ointment fails to cure in 6 to 14 days. 50c. 52-12m

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS

WITH Dr. King's New Discovery

FOR COUGHS COLDS PRICE 50c & $1.00. Trial Bottle Free

AND ALL THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.

GUARANTEED SATISFACTORY OR MONEY REFUNDED.

O. W. HINER, V. M. D., M. F.

Veterinary Surgeon and Dentist - -

All calls promptly answered day or night

OFFICE AT RESIDENCE

HOME PHONE 21

Christmas Gifts For Everybody

We have Christmas gifts suitable for everyone from "Baby" to "Grandfather."

Our holiday lines are the largest and most complete.

Our patterns are exclusive and up-to-date.

Visit our store and be convinced—but don't wait until the last minute. Come before the rush begins.

G. F. GENGNAGEL & SON

HARDWARE

INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS COLLEGE

"CENTRAL STATES' GREATEST SCHOOL OF BUSINESS."

FORT WAYNE, INDIANA

COMMERCIAL DEPT.—Prepares for Bookkeeping, Accountant Civil Service, Banking, Office Manager, Etc.

STENOGRAPHIC DEPT.—Prepares for Stenographer, Expert Correspondent, Court Reporting, Private Secretary, Civil Service. English, Penmanship, Spelling, Banking, Arithmetic, etc., included in all courses.

Board $2.00 Per Week. Positions Guaranteed Graduates.

Winter Term, Monday, January 3rd

Catalogue Free. Write for it before deciding where to go.

H. A. POPE, Vice Pres. T. L. STAPLES, President

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it. Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with Indigestion.

A great many people who have trifled with indigestion, have been sorry for it—when nervous or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to cure it.

Use Kodol and prevent having Dyspepsia.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse, just as naturally and just as surely as a sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol.

When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and nauseating fluid, bloated sensation, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headaches, dullness or chronic tired feeling—you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. Eat what you want, let Kodol digest it.

Ordinary pepsin "dyspepsia tablets," physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Pepsin is only a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all.

Kodol is a perfect digester. If you could see Kodol digesting every particle of food, of all kinds, in the glass test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do.

Nature and Kodol will always cure a sick stomach—but in order to be cured, the stomach must rest. That is what Kodol does—rests the stomach, while the stomach gets well. Just as simple as A, B, C.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today and get a dollar bottle. Then after you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you can honestly say, that it has not done you any good, return the bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money without question or delay. We will then pay the druggist for the bottle. Don't hesitate, all druggists know that our guarantee is good. This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family. The large bottle contains 2½ times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

SOLD AT GEDDES' DRUGSTORE

NEW YORK CLIPPER

IS THE GREATEST THEATRICAL & SHOW PAPER IN THE WORLD.

$4.00 Per Year. Single Copy, 10 Cts.

ISSUED WEEKLY.

SAMPLE COPY FREE.

FRANK QUEEN PUB. CO. (Ltd), PUBLISHERS, 47 W. 28TH ST., NEW YORK.

ALBERT J. BORIE, MANAGER.

REAL ESTATE

We have some splendid farms and other excellent properties or investment.

We have the Thompson Opera House for sale and many other properties in Butler.

Farms from 40 to 160 acres. It will pay you to see us before buying. We are in the business to stay and are able to place you right.

Wilcox & Creager

FALL AND WINTER

OH! YES

We are now ready to sell you in bulk the best

Fresh Oysters

you ever ate—also a fresh line line of wafers and the regular oyster crackers.

George Stout

If your grocers can not satisfy you with their bread? Try the

Home Bakery

The best tasting bread in the city. It has no equal. Bread 4c a loaf.

Anton Panhuysen

DECEMBER

0417

L1134

BUTLER MARKETS

PRODUCE

The following prices are paid for produce and other farm products by Butler merchants:

Eggs	$ 28
Butter	24
Lard	13
Potatoes	40
HAY, GRAIN AND WOOL
Wheat (per bu.)	$ 1.18
Oats	41
Rye	70
Corn (per cwt.)	70
Red Clover (per bu.)	7.50
Alsike (per bu.)	7.00
Hay	11.50
POULTRY
Chickens	10

Local and Personal

Tell it to the HERALD.

Complete line of slippers at Holden's

Craun's feed store will be closed Christmas.

Try the new meat market in the old Boos stand.

Shannon Shultz, of Fort Wayne, was in the city Monday.

Get a Christmas tree for the children at Murch's restaurant.

Save money on groceries for your Christmas dinner at Holden's.

Roy Johnson spent Friday in Fort Wayne, the guest of relatives.

Ross Boyle, of Marion, is expected home Friday to spend Christmas.

Fred Briggs will sell you cement blocks cheaper than anyone else. tf

Miss Sarah Burrel of Huntertown is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Norford

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Rinehart of Newville spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Craun.

Mrs. A. Karle leaves Friday for Bryan to spend the holidays.

Willis Benward and wife of Three Rivers, Mich., are the guests of friends in Butler and Auburn.

Harry Fisher and family of Winamac spent Saturday and Sunday with friends and relatives here.

The Racket store is still giving away one (1) pound of good mixed candy with each one ($1.00) purchase.

The First National Bank are handing out to their customers a nice souvenir in the way of a calendar plate.

T. J. Knisely and wife went to Indianapolis Wednesday to be present at the wedding of Judge Roby's daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Robinett entertained Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Croninger Mrs. Martin Blume, of Fort Wayne, and Grandma Robinett, to an oyster supper Tuesday.

Mrs. D. B. Croninger, who has been visiting in Des Moines, Iowa, Bethany, Missouri, and Chicago, Ill., returned home last Friday. She reports the corn crop not very good in Missouri this year, on account of the heavy rain fall in the spring.

Wm. Grindle and wife of Auburn were in the city Saturday to complete arrangements with Jeff. N. Boyle in renting the building at the corner of Oak street and Broadway, where he expects to engage in the cigar manufacturing business. Mr. Grindle will push this business to quite an extent and we all hope the merchants will handle his goods, as he expects to be a permanent citizen in Butler in the future. He expects to be located by the first of the year.

Tell it to the HERALD.

Furs in abundance at Holden's.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

Wm. Chambers is improving nicely.

See Fred Briggs for cement blocks. tf

A merry Christmas to all our friends —and enemies also.

Mrs. J. C. Everetts spent a few days last week in Mooresville.

Rev. Burke will spend next week with friends at Bryant, Ind.

Several Salvation Army people were in town a few days this week.

Bert Shapland of Kendallville was in the city Tuesday on business.

Walter Keyser has gone to Lansing, Mich., where he has accepted a position

Amos Snyder and Mrs. Clark Snyder and son spent Tuesday in Bryan.

A. L. Haley, the evangelistic singer, is spending the holidays with his family.

Make the kid happy with a Christmas tree. Get them at Murch's restaurant.

John Mitchell is assisting at the Brindley furniture store during the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bolinger and daughter Jessie will spend the holidays in Auburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sechler of St. Joe spent Saturday here as guests of Merritt Sechler.

Cyril Wilson, of Angola, is helping Geo. Geddes in the drug store during the holidays.

If you want to send money away buy a New York draft of the First National bank. tf

Mrs. C. M. Fanning spent a few daye last week with friends and relatives in Auburn.

Mrs. Eston McCague of Waterloo spent last Thursday with her mother, Mrs. G. W. Haines.

C. J. Coats has an 80 acre farm he will trade for a smaller piece. If he cannot do this, will take Butler city property in exchange. tf

Harry and Fred Latson spent Saturday and Sunday in Edon, the guests of J.H. Mumaw and family.

Benton Beard left Tuesday for Chickasha, Okla., where he will spend the winter with relatives.

Mrs. John Mickey and daughter Winona will spend Christmas with relatives in Three Rivers, Mich.

Raymond Garber and C. H. Staine, of Chicago are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Garber, for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Showalter of Three Rivers, Mich., are the guests of the latter's parents, W. S. Troyer and wife.

Mrs. Gus Gebhard of Bryan spent Thursday here the guest of her parents, S. G. Stone and wife and attended the funeral of Clark Snyder.

H. B. Swantusch, wife and daughter Virginia, of Three Rivers, Mich., are the guests of W. S. Troyer and family and other relatives and friends.

Miss Ora Eviston, of Ratoon, New Mexico, came Sunday to spend the winter with her mother, Mrs. J. C. Eviston. She is much improved after her recent illness.

Dr. C. W. Beechler says, regarding the report that he is going to leave Butler, that he has rented a house near the school house, and so far as he knows now he will be here a thousand years yet. In other words, he has no intention of leaving Butler.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

Useful Chrsitmas presents at Holden's.

Miss Mildred Kenestrick, of Auburn, spent Sunday with friends here.

Chas. Croninger spent Sunday in Kendallville, the guest of friends.

Sleds at the Racket store 25c, 35c, 50c, 85c, and on up to $2 00. 50-1

Miss Ada Mountz spent Friday and Saturday at Angola and Pleasant Lake.

Guy Apt of New Rochelle, N. Y., is the guest of his parents, C. T. Apt and wife.

John DeBelius of Auburn spent Saturday with Henry DeBelius and family.

Dorothy Clark, of Montpelier, is the guest of her grandparents, Eli Murphy and wife.

Mrs. Joe Daniels returned home Sunday from a few days visit with relatives at Chicago.

Henry Hatch, wife and son, Harry, will spend Christmas at Fort Wayne the guests of relatives.

Nice little Christmas trees for the parlor and Santa Claus. Get the tree at Murch's restaurant.

Henry DeBelius and family will leave Friday for Kendallville to spend Christmas with relatives.

Miss Ada Mountz left Thursday for Milwaukee, Wis., to spend the holidays with her sister, Mrs. Lowe.

J. M. Norford and wife will spend the holidays in Fort Wayne, the guests of Harry Norford and family.

Misses Bessie Baker and Marguerite Jacoby of Auburn spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hallauer.

Mrs. Graham Torrence, of Bemidji, Minnesota, will spend the holidays with her parents, Mayor Webster and wife.

The Racket store has received a fine lot of articles in the art of pyrogryphy. Burnt wood is coming back. Come in and see the outfits and learn prices.

Arthur Vernier and wife, of Toledo, will spend Christmas here the guests of his parents, George Vernier and wife.

Mrs. S. G. Stone entertained Mrs. E. L. Fosdick, of Auburn, Mrs. C. W. Kimmel, of Kendallville, Mrs. Gus Gebhard, of Bryan, Mrs. H. H. Root and Mrs. D. H. Knisely at dinner last Thursday.

The Lady Maccabees entertained Santa Claus and his two fairies last Wednesday evening after lodge. A present was given to each one present from the depth of a clothes hamper and a jolly social time was had by all.

The G. O. P. is certainly giving the laboring man something to think about. With wages at $1.25 and $1.50 per day and wheat $1.20 per bushel and all other necessities for the average family in proportion, he must know something about economy in order to eke out an existence.

A noteworthy production of everybody's favorite drama, "East Lynne" will be given at Thompson's opera house, Dec. 28, by Joseph King's New York company. The production will be given under the personal supervision of Mr. Joseph King, a stage director of reputation and ability, and a high artistic, meritorious performance is assured.

The HERALD editor is in receipt of a picture from Edon, O., showing a large portion of their business men. They are most all looking pleasant and natural. Mayor Lacer, who occupies a position in the bald headed row is the handsomest as well as the smallest. Editor Heaton is the most conspicuous because of his absence. All in all, it is a good advertisement for the town, although the strain must have been something awful on the camera.

Thomas W. Preston and family moved this week to Butler, Indiana, where Mr. Preston will enter into partnership with his son, Earl Preston, who has been in the business there for several years. They disposed of their home on the East Side to Mrs. Merriman. Mr. Preston has for the past two years been the efficient delivery man for the G. M. White grocery. The Call expresses the hope that he may sucdeed in his new undertaking. Mrs. Preston is still in feeble health.—LaGaange Call.

Judge O'Rouke of Fort Wayne, has just discovered a flaw in the law that will be the means of helping some poor cuss who don't want to support his wife. Should she file a suit for support, it might be continued, however, from time and time, and unless the wife had means of her own she would have a hard time subsisting while the action is pending. Judge O'Rouke claims that the wife is entitled to the support of her husband at all times and would have the laws changed to that effect.

J. D. Wilcox says Butler needs a hotel worse than she does factories. We have the factories coming our way now, and no doubt the hotel will come in time. We certainly are in need of a first class, up-to-the-times hotel, and it is up to some enterprising individual or company to erect the building. The proprietor will be easily found who will be willing to pay a good big rental for a hotel in a live town like Butler. Think it over seriously, some of you fellows with money who are losing sleep pondering over where to make your investments. It's a safe proposition and a good one. We have the location, the land and the money. Who is going to have the honor of building a nice big up-to-date building for a hotel in one of the livest towns in Northeastern Indiana?

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

Special Christmas handkerchiefs at Holden's.

Dr. H. T. Berkey spent Monday in Auburn on business.

Clarence Murch of Ann Arbor, Mich. is home for the holidays.

Walter Hallauer and wife are the guests of relatives in Auburn.

Mrs. Martin Blume of Fort Wayne is the guest of her son, Earl Eakright.

Merritt Sechler spent Sunday in St. Joe, the guest of relatives and friends.

Read the Christmas poem by John William Barber, found on editorial page.

We have some 5 per cent money to loan on mortgage security. First National Bank. tf

Geo. Vernier spent Saturday at Toledo the guest of his son, Arthur and wife.

Miss Mabel Cabana will leave Friday for South Bend to spend Christmas with her father.

Miss Emma Wilts of Kendallville spent a few days last week with D. B. Croninger and family.

Morris, Mary and Raphel Weber will spend Christmas at Fort Wayne the guests of relatives.

Henry Showalter will spend Christmas with his sister, Mrs. Shannon Shultz, at Fort Wayne.

WANTED—50 ladies and gentlemen at once at McGuire's Telegraph School, Edgerton, O. Good positions furnished when competent. tf

Mrs. J. B. Pessell and children will leave Friday to spend the holidays with relatives in Quincy, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan McCarthy and daughter wil spend Christmas in Jackson, Mich., the guests of relatives.

Mrs. Mayme Grund and son, Arthur, of Logansport, will spend Christmas with her parents, J. J. Mack and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis McInturf entertained Mr. and Mrs. Sherm Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Christoffel at dinner Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Webster will spend a few days at Garrett the latter part of the week the Christmas guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Atkinson.

"East Lynne" is almost half a century old, yet people are as vividly stirred by it now as those of the Civil war times were and as the ones in the next fifty years will be. Joseph King who produced "The Ninety and Nine" the great rural play that ran six months at the Academy of Music, New York, will present his New York company in this wonderful play at the Thompson opera house, Tuesday evening, Dec. 28.

It is not unlikely that when the new court house project gets far enough along that the little city of Waterloo will get busy and push the opportunity for petitioning the commissioners to hold an election and give the people over the county a right to say where the new temple of justice is to be built. That city is unquestionably the place for the court house and they could carry the election hands down. And why not? Waterloo is exactly in the center of the county. They have two steam roads and the electric line which makes it a very easily place reached.

The local newspaper should be found in every home. No child will grow up ignorant who can be taught to appreciate the home paper, says an exchange. It is the stepping stone of intelligence in all of those matters not to be learned in books. Give your children a foreign paper which contains not a word about any person, place or thing that they ever saw, or perhaps ever heard of, and how can you expect them to be interested? But let them have the home paper and read of persons whom they meet, and places with which they are familiar, and soon an interest is awakened which increases with every arrival of the local paper, thus forming a habit of reading the paper all their lives and becoming intelligent men ann women, a credit to their ancestors and strong in their knowledge of the world as it is today. It might be added that in selecting a local paper the first consideration should be the moral tenor of the publication. The paper that fails to hold to the highest moral principles is an unsafe one for the family. Good morals well inculated in the child life makes for good citizenship, while the opposite tends to lawlessness and becomes a dangerous factor in its influences.—Ex

More and better goods for your money at Holden's.

Mr. Groscup of Garrett was in the city on business Tuesday.

Mrs. Luther Knisely spent Sunday in Bryan with relatives.

Harry Karle of Auburn spent Thursday with his brother, Ed Karle.

Dan and Carrie Schott of Edgerton spent Thursday with friends here.

Victor Davis will leave Friday for Pleasant Lake to spend Christmas.

Mrs. Eugene Oberlin spent Friday and Saturday in Toledo, the guest of friends.

Mrs. A. F. Brineley and son Alfred are visiting in Toledo, Ohio during the holidays.

Jay Thompson returned to South Bend Sunday evening after a few days visit here.

Mr and Mrs. James Mayes, of Bunker Hill, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Reed.

Dr. M. M. Acker and family will spend the holidays with relatives in Fayette, Ohio.

The Crescendo club will give a Christmas dance at the Crescendo hall, Friday evening.

Mrs. Wm. Rickey and daughter, Vera, will spend Christmas at Three Rivers, Mich., with relatives.

Miss Jennie Steward has gone to Jasper, Mich., where she will be the guest of her sister, Mrs. McCory.

Valma Brown, of Warsaw, is expected home to spend Christmas with his parents, Mort Brown and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Felske and children, of Kokomo, are the guests of M. F. Long and family over Christmas.

FOR TRADE:—An improvdd twenty acre tract of land in Michigan. Value about fifteen hundred dollars. Want Butler property. Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

The Misses Jennie Steward and May Daily left Tuesday for their homes in Spencerville, where they will spend the holidays.

Mrs. Laura Agler and Miss Euphemia Agler of Fort Wayne will be the guests of Dr. and Mrs. F. D. Fanning unti after Christmas.

Rev. Brock, of Newville, and Rev. Davis attended the funeral of Rev. Oiler, the elder of the U. B. church, at North Manchester.

H. H. Root of Medina, Ohio came Tuesday to spend Christmas with Mrs. Root and daughter, who are the guests of D. H. Knisely and wife.

Wm. Baron, of Newville, while attending his chores, Monday evening, was seriously kicked by one of the horses on the head which caused him to loose conscious and did not revive until Tuesday noon. The doctor thinks although he is seriously hurt that he will recover nicely.

A small accident occurred in the Lake Shore yards here Tuesday morning which caused J. N. Norford to lose his position as watchman at the tower. Mr. Norford threw the wrong switch, running No. 3, a passenger train off the main track. The train was running slow and only the engine left the rails. No doubt the changing of the double track system which took effect Sunday and the large number of trains to take care of is what confused Mr. Norford and caused the accident. Mr. Norford has been in the employ of the company for several years and has been faithful to his duties, and so long as there was no damage done it doesn't show much charity on the part of the officials to discharge an employe on so small an offense.

Merry Christmas

Our Holiday Stock is Complete in The Lines of Gold Watches

Gold Bracelets
Gold Rings, Signet and Set
Gold Watch Fobs. Silk Watch Fobs
Gold Emblem Pins
Gold Watch Chains
Gold Emblem Charms
Gold Cuff Buttons
Gold Tie Pins and Fancy Combs
Silver Knives and Forks
Silver Tea Spoons and Coffee Spoons
Sugar Butter Knives and Sugar Shells
Silver Pie Forks, Oyster Knives and Pickle Forks
Silver Meat Forks and Berry Spoons
The Silverfilled Ware, The Kind That Wears
Cut Glass Water Sets, Cream and Sugar Sets
Cut Glass Salt and Pepper Sets, Tumblers, Etc.
Toilet Sets, Manicure Sets, Collar and Cuff Boxes
Military Sets, Post Card Albums
Teachers' Bibles, Fancy Candy in Boxes
Gillette Safety Razors
Fancy Pocket Knives
Fancy Writing Paper in Fancy Boxes.
Perfumas in Fancy Packages
Guitars, Violins and Mandolins
Empty Holiy Boxes of All Sizes
Children Linen and Paper Books
Xmas Tags, Stamps, Cards and Labels of All Kinds
Finest Line of Xmas Post Cards in The City

PHILLIP'S DRUG STORE

The Knisely Dry Goods Co.

Christmas

The one time in the year when all should live in the spirit of good will. It is Christmas that keeps the world from growing old, for in its pleasures the world renews its youth.

The Best Expression

Of the spirit of Christmas is in the exchanging of gifts. No custom is more beautiful, to remember your friends; cheer the lonely and relieve the needy.

For The Last Week

We expect and have prepared for a greater business during the last week than ever before. Stocks are being replenished continually—and every arrangement make to facilitate prompt attention.

The store that serves you best all the year round, is naturally the one best equipped to serve you well at Christmas time.

Everybody Should Be Happy

And thoughts of giving pleasure to others. With some the gift list is too long and purse too light. This is the store where every penny will do its work. We want to show you that we have suitable gift things for everything at most reasonable prices.

Look Where You will

In fact any part of this store and you some will see happy suggestions for a gift, whether your thoughts turn to the useful or otherwise. So visit every department. Our store is filled with beautiful goods and best of all prices are rersonable.

Come and See

THE KNISELY DRY GOODS CO.

Farm For Sale

I have a well cultivated and well drained farm of 160 acres for sale with a good dwelling house, barns, sheds and wind mill thereon. A nice lot of growing timber and a good orchard on it. This farm is situated in the St. Joseph river valley and the fertility of its soil cannot be excelled. For price and terms of payment write or call on me at Butler, Indiana.

48-4 JERRY MCCLINTOCK

CRAUN'S FEED STORE CLOSED

All day Saturday for Christmas

Thanking our customers for their liberal patronage, we wish you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

J. D. CRAUN

REAL ESTATE

SHAW & CREAGER

Farm and city property for sale or exchanged.

We have city property ranging in price from $400 to $2500.

Farms from 13 acres up.

See us if you wish to buy or sell.

Office Second Hand Store, South Side. Phone 203.

SPECIAL ENGAGEMENT

Thompson Opera House

(One Night Only)

Tuesday, December 28th

Jos. King's New Version

"East Lynne"

A Play That Will Live Forever. A Story of a Woman's Wrong Doings. It Touches The Hearts of All. Without Question The Greatest Emotional Drama of The Present Generation

Prices - 25c, 35c and 50c

Seats on Sale at Usual Place—Stone's Drugstore

N. B.—This is the New York Company. No. 1 guaranteed attraction. It was orginally booked at Fort Wayne for the above date, but time being moved up, I secured this attraction for this date.

W. R. LENNON, Mgr.

To Ye All We Wish

A Merry Christmas
and
A Happy New Year

The Oberlin Grocery Company

DECEMBER

0418

L1134

An Averted Duel.

There was nothing old Pomp enjoyed more than telling stories of the importance of his position in the days "befo' de wah;" when he was a conspicuous figure on a Southern plantation of the best sort. "I brung up Marse Charlie an' Marse William," he often said, solemnly. "Deir own fam'ly owed I saved bofe deir lives once, besides all de res' I done fo' 'em.

"'Twar jes' like dis: Marse Charlie an' Marse William, dey bofe tuk de mos' 'greejus fancy to a young lady dat come a-visiting de house; an' somebody had fill deir foolish haids all up wid talk about duels; an' dey jes' promulgated to hab one, an' find out which ob 'em was to hab de young lady.

"Marse Charlie he was sebenteen, short an' fiery, an' Marse William he was sixteen, slim an' cool; but dey was bofe sot an' 'termined on de duel.

"Course dey didn't tell me 'bout it, but I 'spected it, same as I always did, 'kase I looked after dem boys fo' deir paw an' maw, when dere was comp'ny.

"So I watched out, an' I follered, an' I crep' up to where dey was beginning to take p'sition fo' de duel, an' an' I jes' broke it up."

"How did you do it, Pomp?" each listener is sure to ask.

"How did I do it, chile? Why, I jes' emptied a pail o' water right on Marse Charlie's haid, an' I tuk an' spanked Marse William—dat's how."

A NURSE'S EXPERIENCE

Is a Good Guide for Any Person Who Does Not Understand Kidney Troubles.

A nurse has to know just what to do for common ailments, and those who suffer backache, languor and other common signs of kidney trouble, should heed the example of Mrs. Judson Ellis, 414 Francis St., Jackson, Mich., known for many years prior to her marriage as "Nurse Baker."

"My back ached a good deal and was lame and weak, so that I had difficulty in straightening up or turning in bed," said she. "Doan's Kidney Pills benefited me wonderfully, and since using them I have been able to do my own work again."

Remember the name—Doan's. Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Felt the Home Incomplete.

The editor of one of the leading magazines of New York has a viewpoint which often cheers his friends. His social affairs are such that on some occasions he and his wife dine in the homes of sumptuous wealth, while on other occasions they partake of chafing dish spreads in the candle-lighted studios of artists more or less struggling.

Not long since they dined with a family where the evidences of wealth were numerous. Among them was a platter of rare and costly porcelain. Mrs. Editor was enthusiastic over the beauty of it and its priceless antiquity, and the hostess called attention to the fact that it had been broken many times and that the pieces were riveted together with gold. In fact, she had a servant pass it around for examination to show how badly it had, on different occasions, been shattered, and how, on the back, it showed a mass of gold rivets.

The next morning, when the editor came to his own breakfast table, he appeared to be in a chastened, not to say, depressed, frame of mind. Mrs. Editor inquired the cause.

"Yes," he mused, reflectively, looking around on the dainty table and at the neat little apartment. "Yes, it is a comfortable and well-kept little home, but so—ah — my dear — so sort of mended."

Savings Banks.

An Irishman was explaining American institutions to a green countryman.

"A savings bank," he said, "is a place where you can deposit money to-day and draw it out to-morrow by giving a week's notice."—Success Magazine.

Seems Probable.

"They were looking at that celebrated statue, the Venus of Milo.

"But where are the hands?", asked Mr. Plumtich.

"They were laid off, madam," explained the police attendant, "in consequence of a disastrous break in marble stock."

SECRET WORKER.

The Plan Upon Which Coffee Operates.

Coffee is such a secret worker that it is not suspected as the cause of sickness or disease, but here is a very sure way to find out the truth.

A lady in Memphis gives an interesting experience her husband had with coffee. It seems that he had been using it for some time and was an invalid.

The physician in charge shrewdly suspected that coffee was the "Worm at the root of the tree," and ordered it discontinued with instructions to use Postum regularly in its place.

The wife says: "We found that was the true remedy for his stomach and heart trouble and we would have gladly paid a hundred times the amount of the doctor's charge when we found how wise his judgment was.

"The use of Postum instead of coffee was begun about a year ago, and it has made my husband a strong, well man. He has gained thirty-five pounds in that time and his stomach and heart trouble have all disappeared.

"The first time I prepared it I did not boil it long enough and he said there was something wrong with it. Sure enough, it did taste very flat, but the next morning I followed directions carefully, boiling it for fifteen minutes, and he remarked 'this is better than any of the old coffee.'

"We use Postum regularly and never tire of telling our friends of the benefit we have received from leaving off coffee."

Look for the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true and full of human interest.

"La Charmeuse Steinheil"

French Court Procedure Tottering to a Fall over Her Remarkable Trial for Murder—

It is "la charmeuse Steinheil"-again. A bas la Court des Assizes!

The trial in Paris of Mme. Marguerite Steinheil, charged with the murder of her husband and her mother, Mme. Japy, threw the French capital into a condition of excitement not equalled since the historic Dreyfus case. No other mystery of recent years has so disturbed the French nation as this double murder, in which a strange woman, with a shady past, was coupled not alone with the victims of the tragedy, but also with the tragic death of the President of the French republic. Political parties were plunged into the case, the Dreyfus affair was resuscitated, and the charge was made that government officials shielded the woman, so that the affair was more like a political campaign than a capital case.

A French trial is a strange sight to an American or Englishman, familiar with the English common law and taking its principles as a matter of course. The English law says: "A man is innocent until he is proven guilty." The French law says: "A man is guilty until he is proven innocent." And this is the distinction that has aroused France to a storm of bitter protest. For years the law has stood unchallenged and hundreds of supposed criminals have been browbeaten by magistrates playing the role of prosecutors and sent, under it, to prison or to death. The French people have been aroused to the need of a change. Now the conservative press of France is demanding that the law of decades be changed. The criminal code must unbend. French court procedure is tottering to a fall.

Dramatic and, to our American minds, outrageous as were the scenes attending the trial of Madame Steinheil, that which accompanied her acquittal was the most dramatic and sensational. Few there are who are acquainted with the career of this woman who do not believe her capable of the frightful crime of which she was charged—the murder of her husband and that of her stepmother.

Madame Steinheil was a woman who succeeded in numbering among her admirers men high in social life and government circles. Even a former President of the republic was but a fly in the web she spread and he was alone with him when his heart failed and he passed from life. It is believed in some quarters that fear of a national scandal alone prevented the production of proof that the President died of poison.

Mme. Steinheil.

Vile, cunning and unscrupulous as she was, her woman's charms affected not only the jury which tried her, but swayed the emotions of the multitude so that when acquittal came there was such mad demonstrations of joy as would have been denied the rescue of a national heroine from a dire fate. Tears, protestations, appeals, supplications, scanty garments suggestive of scanty—these and, more than all else, the pathetic simulation of an innocent woman in distress, had their effect, and anything short of an acquittal would have meant a riot.

To be sure, the prosecution did not produce absolute evidence of guilt, says the Utica Globe, and no jury could have convicted on the woman's vile record and the damning circumstances alone. An acquittal was compelled; but that this meretricious female should have been crowned with the halo of popular approval is an outrage on decent womanhood.

RAILWAY OFFICIAL WHO IS VICTIM OF MONEY MANIA.

Gambled with Company's Cash and with More Stolen Funds Purchased Silence of Blackmailers.

Speculation with other people's money—a not uncommon phase of the modern mania for acquiring wealth—has proved the undoing of another trusted official. The victim is Charles L. Warriner, the local treasurer of the Big Four Railroad Company at Cincinnati, who is held in $20,000 bonds on the charge of stealing $643,000. The stealing had been going on for years and might have continued without detection were it not for his failure to pay blackmail any longer to a woman who possessed knowledge of his guilty procedure. In a spirit of revenge she informed on him to the railroad company and an investigation was started.

Warriner accompanied Vice President Carstensen to New York, where he made a full confession of his crime in the general office of the Vanderbilt lines, after which, without being arrested, he returned to Cincinnati, there later to be taken into custody and held in $20,000 bonds for the action of the grand jury, which later returned an indictment against him.

The defalcation of Warriner created a sensation not only in Cincinnati, but throughout the country. His habits, it has been said, were correct. He did not drink, nor smoke, nor, we are assured, associate with questionable persons of the opposite sex. Yet, on his own admission, he was the victim of a woman blackmailer. He accounts for the disappearance of the vast sums he stole in four ways: Through speculation; through efforts to recoup his losses; through blackmail levied upon him by a former employe, who claimed to know of his irregularities, and through blackmail levied upon him by a woman friend of that employe.

Warriner, according to his admission, began taking money from the company immediately after he became treasurer at Cincinnati, with which to speculate. When he lost, he appropriated more money in an endeavor to recoup himself, and thus gradually sank deeper into the mire. Then he paid other large sums to the blackmailers with which to purchase their silence.

While a large part of the stolen money went to blackmailers and in speculation on the stock market, yet Warriner made a number of shrewd investments. He purchased a chemical factory in Kentucky, a pulley works in Ohio and land in various places. The sole object of his life seemed to be to pay back the money that was stolen. With that one idea in mind his speculations became more desperate as the deficit grew, and during the last year he permitted nearly half of the entire sum of $643,000 to slip through his hands.

The method which he adopted in stealing was to cover his defalcation in the item, "cash in transit." At the

SEEKING TO DIVIDE A STATE

If the Congress of the United States should, by any chance, pass a bill that has been lying before it for action for fifty years, and if the Supreme Court of the United States should declare such action by Congress to be legal and constitutional, there would be two States on the Pacific coast within an area where there is now but one. There would be consequent great rejoicing in the southern portion of that State and proportionate chagrin in the northern portion. The area is California, a strip of land on the Pacific ocean, 200 miles wide, covering about 156,000 square miles.

HOW THEY WOULD DIVIDE CALIFORNIA.

The existence of that division bill now lying before Congress, until recently all but forgotten, has been made a subject of heated discussion from one end of the State to the other, as a result of the eighth outbreak in the history of California, of bad feeling between the north and the south. Just what is at the bottom of the unbrotherly feeling that has, for half a century, existed between the peoples north and south of "The Techachapi" has never been well defined. In the eight instances in State history there has always been some specific condition or event that has brought the ill feeling to a head. Whether it is diversity of interests and industry, the location of the capital, sectional jealousy, a combination of all, or something entirely different, the fact remains that the feeling exists and so far as the south is concerned, is at the boiling point right now.

The State Board of Equalization started the trouble only a few weeks ago, a Los Angeles correspondent says, by raising assessed valuation in southern California cities—notably Los Angeles—increases amounting in some instances to 100 per cent. Hardly had the action of the equalizers been taken before things began to happen. There was an immediate protest. An organization of business men was formed and before a meeting of that organization, former State Senator Robert N. Bulla advocated in a speech the creation of a new State to be known as Southern California. He was greeted with cheers. Other prominent southern Californians, including E. W. Hopkins, assessor of Los Angeles county, rallied to Bulla's standard, and for several weeks there have been numerous organization gatherings and mass meetings of taxpayers at which State division has been warmly advocated and ways and means discussed.

To put the agitation on a definite basis a committee of ten was appointed to take the proper steps for calling a convention to take the matter properly before Congress. The principal arguments set forth have been based on the conflict of interest between the north and south, alleged unfair expenditure of taxes and partiality in distributing State improvements.

Can Congress or can't Congress? That is the question over which the south is struggling right now. The question centers around that bill that has been before Congress since 1859.

The bill proposes to divide California along the northern line of San Luis Obispo, Kern and San Bernardino counties about the line of the present proposal.

This bill was passed by the legislature, voted for by more than two-thirds of the voters of the State, signed by Governor Milton S. Latham and presented to Congress. At that time the Civil War was threatening and the bill was sidetracked as its passage was thought to mean the addition of another southern State.

Bulla and his followers declare that all that is necessary is action by Congress. He is opposed in his views by former Governor Henry T. Gage, who declares that State division can not be accomplished without an amendment to the national constitution.

BREAKS A COLD IN A DAY

And Cures Any Cough that Is Curable—Noted Physician's Formula.

This prescription is one of the very best known to science. The ingredients can be gotten from any good druggist, or he will get them from his wholesale house.

"Mix half pint of good whiskey with two ounces of glycerine and add one-half ounce Concentrated pine compound. The bottle is to be well shaken each time and used in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours."

The Concentrated pine is a special pine product and comes only in half ounce bottles, each enclosed in an air-tight case, but be sure it is labeled "Concentrated."

Following the Fashion.

Many women, and men as well, are disturbed if they feel that the clothes they wear are in the slightest particular obsolete. They cannot buy a pocket handkerchief without the anxious inquiry whether it is what everybody else is wearing, or purchase a shoestring without critical scrutiny and comparison. Not merely in clothes is the fashion followed, but in social diversions. One game gives place to another, one popular ballad with a whistleable refrain ousts its forerunner completely; no sooner is a tune learned than it is gone like the snows of yesterday. Books suffer the same incessant vicissitudes of the favor of "Fortune in men's eyes." In most things it does not matter if there is a continual cycle of changes. It is only when it comes to our beliefs and our opinions that it is not well to try to keep pace with the vagaries and eccentricities of fashion.

Rough on Rats in Out Buildings.

In setting Rough on Rats in out buildings after mixing it well with any food decided upon, separate into small bits, place on several pieces of boards, and put these here and there under the floors. Close up all openings large enough for Dogs, Cats or Chickens to enter, but leave some small openings for Rats to get in and out. One 25c. box of Rough on Rats, being all poison, will make enough mixture to clear out in one or two nights setting, hundreds of Rats and Mice. 15c., 25c., 75c., at Druggists. E. S. Wells, Jersey City, N. J.

Stung.

The old gentleman went into the parlor the other night at the witching hour of 10:30 and found the lights out and his daughter and a dear friend enjoying a tete-a-tete in a corner by the window.

"Evangeline," said the old man, sternly, "this is scandalous."

"Yes, papa," she answered, sweetly. "It is candleless because times are hard. Lights cost so much Ferdinand and I said we would get along with the starlight."

And papa turned about in speechless amazement and tried to walk out of the room through a panel in the wall paper.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by the inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

A Bible Name.

An Alabama man tells of an old negro in Birmingham who became possessed of a seedy and forlorn-looking dog, to which he promptly assigned the name "Moreover." The story is printed in Harper's Weekly.

"Jefferson," he was asked, "how did you hit upon such a name as 'Moreover' for the dog?"

"I sits it 'cause de Bible," he replied.

"The Bible?"

"Sure, sah. Don' yo' 'member where it says, 'When Lazarus lay at de rich man's gate, Moreover, de dog, came an' lick his sores?'"

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, small, sugar-coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Do not gripe.

Promissory Salaries.

The suspicion that the incomes of stage performers are not always so large as they are publicly represented to be is given concrete form thus by a writer in the Washington Star:

"I understand that the manager is paying fabulous salaries to his leading singers," said the inquisitive reporter.

"Not fabulous," rejoined the cynical press agent—"fictitious."

DOCTOR YOURSELF

when you feel a cold coming on by taking a few doses of Perry Davis' Painkiller. It is better than Quinine and safer. The large 50c bottles are the cheapest.

By Candle Time.

"It did me good," observed a young girl who had just returned from England, "to see, in real life, one of the old customs my grandfather used to tell me about—the burning of the time candle at an auction. In Berkshire the old custom still prevails, and when an auction is in progress and an article is put up for bidding a short length of candle is lighted as the bidding begins. The shouting continues until the candle burns out, and the last bid before it flickers its last is the one that takes the cake. I don't know but it has an advantage over the 'going, going, gone' variety, but it is fearfully slow and un-American."

WOMAN SWIMMER WHO BROKE WORLD'S RECORD.

Miss Fletcher of Leicester, according to the London Sketch, "holds the English women's swimming championship. At Manchester she reduced the world's record for 100 yards from 1 minute 14 seconds to 1 minute 12½ seconds."

The patent office is some $7,000,000 ahead on revenue from patents, nearly $1,000,000 last year alone. Considering the measureless, multiplied millions of blessings and dollars from inventions, and considering the silent tragedy and despair of poor inventors, this seems like seething the lamb in its own mother's milk.

Italy levies a graduated income tax as well as a direct tax on land and houses. Small incomes are exempt from taxation. The minister of finance estimates that the income tax for this year will amount to about $49,600,000, while the land tax will bring in $36,000,000.

Last year about thirty thousand persons visited the birthplace of Shakespeare.

Smoking was a penal offense at one time in Turkey.

A FALL THAT COST $3,000,000

AN international racing contest of universal interest was the one hundred and thirty-first English Derby. Great Britain pinned its faith to Minoru, the horse of King Edward. France was represented by Louviers, ridden by the noted French jockey, Stern. America stood confidently by Sir Martin, the best 2-year-old of the American turf last year, ridden by the American jockey, Martin.

Great Britain finished first by a nose. France was second. America fell at the historic Tattenham Corner. When Sir Martin was thrown America lost a chance to show Great Britain that she could beat her at her own game of breeding and developing race horses. Incidentally, when Sir Martin fell, probable winnings to the amount of $3,000,000 went glimmering.

Several leading American owners shipped horses at the close of the season, with the idea of having them thoroughly acclimated by the time the racing of the year began. The Britishers simply said: "Oh, another American invasion, don't you know!" and ostensibly took no further notice of the coming of the American horses. It was soon evident, however, that they had a wholesome respect for American horses, for as the handicaps were announced it was seen that the weights assigned to them were so heavy that the sporting writers of the United States felt justified in pointing out that it looked as if the Britishers were trying to keep the American invaders from starting.

There was great curiosity to see Sir Martin on the part of the public. The race was at a mile. Sir Martin carried 138 pounds, a formidable weight for a 2-year-old, and was conceding as much as thirty-eight pounds to some of his opponents. "Skeets" Martin, the noted American jockey, was up. The bookmakers gave odds of 7 to 1. There was a loyal American delegation on hand and they backed the American horse patriotically.

The Britons had plenty of chance to see him run, especially at the finish, for he came home with lots of daylight between him and his field, galloping easily in the fast time of 1:38 3-5. A length and a half back was a 4-year-old to whom he was giving twenty-nine pounds. Sir Martin came back to the paddock in no wise distressed, and stood the mobbing to which he was subjected by a great crowd with superb disdain.

Immediately Sir Martin's odds in the Derby were cut squarely in two. Before the race they were 10 to 1; after the race 5 to 1 was the best the bookmakers would give. All at once Britain buzzed like a beehive over Sir Martin and his Derby chances. Though the list of probable starters in the Derby numbered twenty, the conviction suddenly became all-pervading that the great race lay between Sir Martin and King Edward's Minoru, the favorite at 5 to 2.

To appreciate what the prospect of an American horse winning the Derby means to a Briton it is only necessary to take a glance at the race as a national institution. For the Derby is a national institution. Its history for more than a century has been no small part of the history of England.

ATCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS.

Once a candidate, generally a candidate.

If you have a lot of poetry notions, get rid of them.

The trouble is all of us have such a lot of fool habits.

Every man believes his business is the most monotonous.

Show less indignation behind the backs of people, and be bolder to their faces.

There is one fortunate thing about mistakes; many of them are easily corrected.

It is hard to tell which is the more worthless business, prospecting, or working on inventions.

Of course women are not mercenary, but gambling seems a greater sin to them when you lose.

Fat men are lazy, but you can't help admitting that there is something likable about them.

If people were as afraid of hurting their stomachs as they are of catching cold, they would live longer.

You can account for very few marriages.

If you want to take a prize for unpopularity, act superior.

Every time any big bill is presented to you it looks like robbery.

If a woman can get her first man, she needn't worry about her second, or third.

A man and woman going on a wedding trip try hard not to look happy, and on their return try just as hard to look happy.

There is plenty of cooking as good as "mother's," but very few appetites like a boy's.

When you hear a smart saying by a child, it is a sign the child has a smart mother, and that she made it up.

When a mother shows her baby's picture she always says: "The baby moved, or the picture would have been better."

Two brakemen were arguing to-day, and one of them said to the other: "I don't believe that. Produce your Eskimos."

end of each month there are considerable sums of money on their way to the treasurer at Cincinnati from the station agents and others. It was by including in this item the money which he had in fact stolen that Warriner was enabled to conceal his defalcation.

With modern antiseptics in surgery 6 per cent of amputations result fatally.

An inch of rain is rain falling at the rate of about 100 tons to the acre.

There are thirty-nine miles of books on the shelves of the British museum.

In a month a caterpillar eats food weighing 6,000 times its weight.

At an elevation of 2,000 feet the atmosphere is free from microbes.

A Hungarian washing machine makes use of electrified water.

Canada produces nearly one-half the world's supply of maple sugar, about 18,000,000 pounds annually.

BEATS THE WEST.

Horse Thieves in New York Steal Hundreds of Animals Yearly.

For the last few weeks New York detectives have been rounding up a gang of organized horse thieves who, according to the authorities, have been working in that city on a scale unknown even in the days of "horse lifting" in the west. It is estimated that as many as 800 horses, worth $300 each, have been stolen in and around New York within the last year.

The horse thieves in the city operate either as "rig-hoppers" or "stable breakers." The "rig-hoppers" are those who jump on vehicles left by drivers before the doors of business houses and drive off. These men usually work in pairs, one man, who does the head work, selecting both the horses to be driven off and the time to do it. His associate is generally a tool, with more daring than brains, but with cleverness enough to dress the part of the driver whose team he is about to take.

Detectives say that a thief never takes a horse worth less than $300.

The horse thief, after seizing a team, usually drives about 20 blocks before daring to unhitch the team. He is pretty sure by this time to have eluded the rightful driver, and the police, for the time being. From the start the horse-stealing business must be conducted, to be safe and successful, with the help of confederates at every stage. As soon as the team is unharnessed it is taken directly to the stable of a confederate—a stable ostensibly kept for hiring and boarding horses, but in reality for receiving stolen horses. Then they are shipped to confederates in other cities.

Only a few weeks ago two detectives captured a car loaded with stolen horses consigned to a confederate, after the train had actually started.

WORDS OF GREAT MEN.

Nobody does anything well that they cannot help doing; work is only well done when it is done with a will. —Ruskin.

It is not possible to secure distant permanent happiness but by forbearance of some immediate gratification.—Johnson.

WITH HIS FOOT IN A FROG SWITCHMAN AWAITS DEATH

W. R. Skinner, 35 years old, a railroad switchman, stood with his foot caught in a guard rail and fought vainly to free himself until a train crushed him to death in Franklin Park, a Chicago suburb. Skinner threw his lantern in the air—the death signal of all switchmen—but it was not seen by the engineer and fireman of the train which bore down upon him around the curve at that point. He was switching cars at the curve when his foot became caught. He wrenched and struggled desperately, and his shouts for help were lost in the roar of the approaching train. Just as he was thrown down by the train he tossed his lantern high in the air. His rocket signal was seen by the other members of the crew, and the train stopped. His body was found beneath the train.

USING OLD NEWSPAPERS.

Crushed newspapers are splendid to clean lamp chimneys.

Wet in water they clean out the stove oven splendidly.

They can even be used for an iron holder in an emergency.

Irons not much soiled can be rubbed on old newspapers and thus made fit for use.

To wipe up spilled water or grease from the floor they save the wringing out of a cloth.

DECEMBER

0419

L1134

VITALIZER

RESTORES LOST POWERS. A weak man is like a clock run down. MUNYON'S VITALIZER will wind him up and make him go. If you are nervous, if you are irritable, if you lack confidence in yourself, if you do not feel your full manly vigor, begin on this remedy at once. There are 75 VITALIZER tablets in one bottle; every tablet is full of vital power. Don't spend another dollar on quack doctors or spurious remedies, or fill your system with harmful drugs. Begin on MUNYONS VITALIZER at once, and you will begin to feel the vitalizing effect of this remedy after the first dose. Price, $1, post-paid. Munyon, 53rd and Jefferson, Phila, Pa.

WESTERN CANADA

Senator Dolliver, of Iowa, says:—

"The stream of emigrants from the United States to Canada will continue."

Senator Dolliver recently paid a visit to Western Canada, and says: "There is a land hunger in the hearts of English speaking people; this will account for the removal of so many Iowa farmers to Canada. Our people are pleased with its Government and the excellent administration of law, and they are coming to you in tens of thousands, and they are still coming."

Iowa contributed largely to the 70,000 American farmers who made Canada their home during 1909. Field crop returns alone during year added to the wealth of the country upwards of

$170,000,000.00

Grain growing, mixed farming, cattle raising and dairying are all profitable. Free Homesteads of 160 acres are to be had in the very best districts, 160 acre pre-emptions at $3.00 per acre within certain areas, schools and churches in every settlement, climate unexcelled, soil the richest, wood, water and building material plentiful.

For particulars as to location, low settlers' railway rates and descriptive illustrated pamphlet, "Last Best West," and other information, write to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the following Canadian Gov't Agents: W. H. Rogers, 34 Floor Traction-Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Ind., and H. M. Williams, Room 20, Law Building, Toledo, Ohio. (Use address nearest you).

Please say where you saw this advertisement.

Fort Wayne List

TAKE A DOSE OF

PISO'S CURE

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS AND COLDS

It will instantly relieve that racking cough. Taken promptly it will often prevent Asthma, Bronchitis and serious throat and lung troubles. Guaranteed safe and very palatable.

All Druggists, 25 cents.

Suicide—

Slow death and awful suffering follows neglect of bowels. Constipation kills more people than consumption. It needs a cure and there is one medicine in all the world that cures it—CASCARETS. 859

Cascarets—10c. box — week's treatment. All druggists. Biggest seller in the world—million boxes a month.

Let us do your Printing using

Eagle Linen

for your office stationery. You can get the paper and envelopes to match.

It is the real thing. Take no otherwise.

USE

SAFETY ANTI-PAIN CAPSULES

HEADACHE LA GRIPPE NEURALGIA

PRICE—10 CENTS.

EARN CASH COMMISSIONS. Big profit; no work; merely give the names of men interested in buying Texas land. Confidential. Address Charles Marquis, foot of Convent St., St. Louis.

The Professor Explains.

"Why is it," inquired the doctor, "that astronomers, whose work must be peculiarly trying on their powers of vision, almost uniformly have strong eyes?"

"My friend," answered the professor, "it is because they have strong eyes that they are astronomers."

Does Sometimes.

Youthful Customer (at book store)—What does "Bridge Whist for Beginners" cost?

Sombre Salesman—It will probably cost you your entire wad.—Chicago Tribune.

Where It Pinched.

"Spelling may be a gift," groaned Mr. Tyte-Phist, whose boys were in school, "but it costs a heap to buy the spelling books!"

TORE HIS SKIN OFF

In Shreds—Itching Was Intense—Sleep Was Often Impossible—Cured by Cuticura in 3 Weeks.

"At first an eruption of small pustules commenced on my hands. These spread later to other parts of my body, and the itching at times was intense, so much so that I literally tore the skin off in shreds in seeking relief. The awful itching interfered with my work considerably, and also kept me awake nights. I tried several doctors and used a number of different ointments and lotions, but received practically no benefit. Finally I settled down to the use of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Pills, with the result that in a few days all itching had ceased and in about three weeks' time all traces of my eruption had disappeared. I have had no trouble of this kind since. 'H. A. Krutskoff, 5714 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., November 18 and 28, 1907."

Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props. of Cuticura Remedies, Boston.

The Natural End.

The "actors" that Lionel knows most about are the sort that do lofty feats in the circus. He has a proper appreciation of the danger of their calling and the means adopted for their safety. Recently, declares a writer in the Buffalo Express, he heard his father mention the name of Sir Henry Irving.

"Who is Sir Henry Irving, father?" asked Lionel.

"He was a great actor," said the father.

"What show is he with?"

"He isn't with any show now. He's dead."

"What happened? Did he miss the net?"

The next time you have a cold on the lungs try rubbing Wizard Oil on your chest and see how quickly it will draw out the inflammation and break up the cold.

Their First Encounter.

Mr. Pecksniff and Mr. Turveydrop had met for the first time.

"You look like a person of some consequence, sir," spoke Mr. Turveydrop, "but your Deportment is not quite up to the correct standard."

"Sir," quoth Mr. Pecksniff, surveying him with lofty scorn, "I cannot forget that you probably have an Immortal Soul, but you look like an Ineffable Ass."—Chicago Tribune.

Nothing Impossible.

Inquirer—What do you suppose will happen when the world's supply of India rubber is exhausted?

Information Editor—Providentially some chemist in the employ of the Standard Oil Company will discover a process for making a good substitute out of petroleum.

Clear, white clothes are a sign that the housekeeper uses Red Cross Ball Blue. Large 2oz. package 5 cents.

No Use.

"Can I interest you in the subject of noiseless sewing machines?" asked the man at the front door.

"No, sir," said the man of the house; "my daughter always sings when she's using a sewing machine, no matter what kind it is."

Then he slammed the door in the caller's face.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will cure not only a fresh cold, but one of those stubborn coughs that usually hang on for months. Give it a trial and prove its worth. 25c, 50c and $1.00.

Startled Him.

Twynn—I hear that the weather prophet has had to be taken to the hospital.

Triplett—That is true. The shock was too much for him.

"What shock?"

"One of his forecasts came true."

The Chugs.

Mrs. Chugwater—Josiah, this paper talks about "peanut politics." What is peanut politics?

Mr. Chugwater—It's the kind they use in a goobernutorial campaign. Think you understand it now?—Chicago Tribune.

FASHION HINTS

A "Coachman's" Cape and Rug Muff are the very latest in fur novelties. Rug Muffs were popular last season, but the three headed one of skunk here illustrated, is the last word in muffs.

The toque is of brown velvet, shirred, and is relieved by a brim and bow of white kid, quite the newest touch for walking hats.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid rising in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of native American medicinal forest plants. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Farm and Garden

Are Farm Land Prices Too High?

How long will the price of farm lands continue to increase? Just so long as the price of farm products continue to increase, and these prices will remain firm so long as labor finds steady and profitable employment. In no other country in the world is labor so well rewarded as here. Where prices are low, wages are necessarily low. The man who receives liberal returns for his work can buy liberally, and can pay a fair price. There seems to be no probability that industrial conditions will be radically changed in this country soon. The people generally are too well satisfied with them. Good markets may, therefore, be expected to continue indefinitely.

Farm lands which may be relied on to product satisfactory crops of grain and grass are not selling too high. Land which, with proper management, will produce from 60 to 100 bushels of 50-cent corn per acre is well worth $150 an acre or more. There is a large amount of such land in Kansas and adjoining states.

The sure way to increase the value of land is to increase its productiveness. Under existing conditions prices will take care of themselves. The days of large surpluses are past. Demand crowds close upon the heels of supply. Mouths are multiplying faster than food for them.—Kansas Farmer.

Individual Hog Houses.

"Noticing articles from time to time on the construction of individual hog houses, I wish to submit the plan of houses that we use," writes a correspondent of the Breeder's Gazette. "I make them six feet square on the ground, both doors to be hinged so they will open and close readily. Twelve-foot boards make side and roof. I use good soft pine flooring, as it is lighter and much easier to move when necessary than heavier lumber. Four pieces 2 by 4 inches and six feet long are for sills. Two pieces 2 by 4 inches and 6 feet long are for ridge and plate.

"If this plan is used it will be found much more satisfactory than a plain A shaped house. The door in the roof can be opened when the sun shines.

INDIVIDUAL HOG HOUSE.

Sunshine is the best tonic known for little pigs, and the door is essential when the sow needs attention at pigging time as a means of entrance and, as is sometimes the case, a very hasty exit."

Value of the Home Market.

Farmers should encourage their home town, to build up a good home market for their dairy and poultry products, fruit, vegetables and many things that sell far more profitably at home than they could by shipping them away. Here is where the French farmers gain their prosperity; they have good home markets, where they market everything at high prices direct to their customers in their thrifty home towns and villages.

Towns can be revived by the farmers and merchants working together to get new industries, and the home market soon develops for all the farm products that make a prosperous community, and as the town grows the farms increase in value.—Inland Farmer.

Squashes and Pumpkins.

With care in storing, there is very little difficulty in keeping these, especially the former, in good condition until spring, and I have kept some varieties of the genuine pie pumpkins until well into March in just as nice condition as they went into storage. Select those that are well matured, and make sure that they are gathered before being touched in the least with frost. Store in a cool, dry place as late as safety from freezing will permit, then remove to a garret where they will keep cool and dry, but always safe from frost. Do not pile them, but set them on the floor and, better still, separate them so that they do not touch. In this way, well matured specimens can be kept almost at will.—Exchange.

Goats for Workmen.

A large firm in Wurtemberg supplied forty-seven goats to a number of workmen on easy payments, first arranging a stable with each house, and also supplying small pasture plots. The experiment seems to have proven quite satisfactory, and by keeping several goats, which yield from three to four quarts of milk daily, and properly arranging time of calving, the workmen have a sufficient milk supply for their families, but are even in a position to sell milk to others.—Molkerezietung.

Bees in America.

Bees were unknown to the Indians, but they were brought over from England only a few years after the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers. It was more than two centuries after the first white invasion of New England, however, before modern beekeeping began. The industry of the present day dates from the invention of the movable-frame hive by Langstreth in 1852.

Prizes for Peasants.

The hilly territory of Trieste, it is stated, in a consular report on that district, is covered by pointed stones which prevent any cultivation, and some years ago the Society Agraria offered prizes for those who would remove them and thus change the waste ground to meadows. The work has now been going on for some years and every autumn a commission ascertains the area of the proposed redemption and the difficulties to be encountered and fixes the prize to be given. In spring it again visits the improved grounds and pays the prizes if deserved. This year in the different parishes sixty-six peasants improved forty-four acres and received $1,040.

Beehive of Concrete.

Among the occupations which offer profit and amusement, and at the same time entirely suited to women, is that of bee raising. Its advantages are that little space is required, there is no great expense and the work is light, requiring only a limited amount of time and care. Much of the apparatus required may be made at home and where the facilities for this are not present, the things may be purchased without any great outlay of money.

CONCRETE BEEHIVE.

There have been many improvements lately in the manner of constructing the beehives, and probably the most interesting is one which is made of concrete. A patent has been recently issued covering the manufacture of concrete beehives, but any one with a little ingenuity may easily make them, and a set of molds once having been made satisfactorily, may be used indefinitely and any number of hives made from it. Anyone attempting to make a hive of this material should acquaint themselves with the character of the cement and should also be familiar with the habits of bees.

Why They Don't Lay.

Many who keep hens are asking themselves just about now why their pullets don't lay, when the fact is that a lot of their young stock was hatched too late, or was not given proper food and care during growth. The size and general appearance of a pullet does not always denote the time when she should commence producing eggs. I have seen flocks of pretty big nice pullets and they would lay hardly an egg all winter. The first essential for winter eggs is the right kind of stock to produce them. Food will not supply that want; it may help some and in some instances it's pretty difficult to help the matter very much by giving extra care. The strain has got to be of the right sort if they prove themselves reliable and profitable layers. After being in the poultry business so long and seeing so many people fuss and experiment and work in the effort to get eggs from stock that had no eggs to lay, no inclination to make eggs or ability to commence to get ready to lay, it is impressed all the stronger upon my mind that there is a whole lot to this hen business besides feed and care.—Inland Farmer.

Sunshine in the Dairy.

Sunshine is the dairyman's best friend. When the sun beats down hot in the summer we are apt to think it an enemy, but a week of clouds, even in July, casts a gloom over everything and makes both man and beast at cross purposes with the world. Sunshine is required to kill germs and microbes and keep both animal and human dispositions sweet. The Vermonter's cow barn that must be built so warm and tight lacks sunshine to keep the inmates in the best of health. All along our country's northern border, tuberculosis is on the increase in dairy herds.—Farmers' Mail and Breeze.

Convenient Light for the Barn.

Many fires may be avoided when the short winter days require the use of a lantern in the barn by having some such device as here shown to keep the lantern in place. This affair requires only two small pulleys and a rope. The rope is run through the pulleys, the lantern attached to one end and then pulled up to a convenient height, the loose end of the rope being fastened to a cleat on the wall. If this device is arranged in about the center of the barn much better light will be given than if the lantern were carried around from place to place.—Cor. of Farm and Home.

FOR SAFETY.

Robbing the Soil.

The value of the manure that is annually produced in Kansas has never been measured, but it will probably compare favorably with the value of some of our greater field crops. Wheat raising has made Kansas famous, but this fame has cost the State heavily in the depletion of her soils. The vast area of the wheat belt is contracting each year, and the rotation of crops is beginning in earnest. The chief cause of this depletion of our soil wealth lies in the continuous robbing of the soil without ever feeding it. Live stock farming will save this section and restore its fertility. Manure and rotation of crops mean money.—Kansas Farmer.

Warning to Dairymen.

We have repeatedly warned the dairymen that the oleomargarine law is likely to be amended next winter, and that the amendments proposed will destroy the value of the law, so far as concerns the protection of dairy products. Again, we ask you—have you written your congressman about it? Do you know his views? Does he know what you want him to do in the matter? Does he know what you are going to do to him in the campaign next year if he doesn't give you a square deal? This is no joke. It is a serious proposition, and no time is to be lost if the oleomargarine law is to be preserved in its present form.—Missouri Dairyman.

Smiles of the Day

Appropriate Grace.

At a dinner the other evening Dr. Charles F. Aked—familiarly known as the pastor of Rockefeller's church—told the following story about a daughter of a fellow minister:

"It was the custom of the household to have dinner at noon on Sunday and to have a very light meal at night. One Sunday evening little Helen's father was absent and her mother said to her: 'Papa is away to-night. Suppose you say grace.'

"Helen was hungry. There was very little to eat on the table. Casting a sweeping glance over the board, she tilted back her head and said solemnly: 'For pity's sake! Amen!'"—Leslie's Weekly.

Occupation.

"Every time I see you you have a new and more ornamental sign reading: 'This is my busy day.' Do you make 'em yourself?"

"Yes."

"What do you want with so many?"

"Well, I've got to do something with my spare time."—Washington Star.

Truthful.

Theatrical Manager—Young man, what is your greatest asset in life?

Press Agent—My liability.

His Weakness.

"Beautiful hats are your wife's weakness, are they not?"

"Rather I should say that they are my weakness."

"You are fond of them?"

"No, but my wife can always make me put up for them."—Houston Post.

Getting Even.

Miss Passay—What a lovely gown you have on! But haven't I seen it before?

Miss Tartleigh—No, I think not. You see, I've only worn it at very smart affairs this season.—Brooklyn Life.

Selfish Man.

She—I don't see why you should hesitate to marry on $3,000 a year. Papa says my gowns never cost more than that.

He—But, my dear, we must have something to eat.

She (petulantly)—Isn't that just like a man. Always thinking of his stomach.—Boston Transcript.

Juvenile Wisdom.

"What did people do before steel pens were invented?" asked the teacher.

"The pinions of one goose were used to spread the opinions of another," answered the wise boy at the pedal extremity of the class.—From Judge's Library.

Offensive Humor.

"What are you doing down town?"

"Trying to get something for my wife."

"Find any bidders?"—Kansas City Journal.

A Kick.

Irate Customer—Say, this is a scab clock.

Jeweler—What's the matter with it? I. C.—It won't strike.—Yale Record.

Never Satisfied.

Titewodd wants the earth, doesn't he?"

"Yes, and if he got it he'd kick about having to pay taxes on it."—Cleveland Leader.

Where He Stands.

"Where do youse stand at school dis year, Chimmie?"

"In de corner most o' de time, Mag."

The Unattainable.

"Does your heart ever reach out for the unattainable?"

"No, but my hands do when my husband is not at home; there are three buttons in the back of my gowns that I just can not reach."—Houston Post.

One Accomplishment.

Friend—What has your son learned at college?

Father—The yell.

A Transferable Pleasantry.

"You insist on laughing at my new hat," said Mrs. Cumrox, severely.

"Yes," answered her husband. "I can't get away from the idea that it is a joke."

"A joke? On whom?"

"Well, when your wear it, the joke's on you, and when I pay for it it's on me."—Washington Star.

Saving in One Way.

"Is she very saving?"

"She's collected more cigar bands and decorated more vases with them than any other girls I know."—St. Louis Star.

It Seems So Anyhow.

"What jokes go the best in your business?" the humorist's friend asked him.

"To tell the truth," said the funny man, "they're usually the ones the other fellow writes."

Looking Ahead.

Gerald—Will you marry me?

Geraldine—Wait awhile. I don't want to get tired of you just yet

One on the Doctor.

As a South Jersey country physician was driving through a village he saw a man amusing a crowd with the antics of his trick dog. The doctor pulled up and said:

"My dear man, how to you manage to train your dog in that way. I can't teach mine a single trick."

The man looked up with a simple rustic look and replied:

"Well, you see it's this way; you have to know more'n a dog, or you can't learn him nothin'."—Scranton Truth.

Marked Down.

Kitty—Life is what we make it.

Peggy—But you make yours ten years less than it really is.

Up North.

First Eskimo Wife—The north pole has been discovered.

Second Eskimo Wife—I'm glad of that, for now when my husband comes home late he can't give me that old excuse about being out looking for it.—New York Times.

Savings Banks.

An Irishman was explaining American institutions to a green country man.

"A savings bank," he said, "is a place where you can deposit money today and draw it out to-morrow by giving a week's notice."—From Success Magazine.

An Illogical Boast.

"I owe nothing to luck," said the pompous individual. "I am a self-made man."

"Perhaps," answered Miss Cayenne, "but I wouldn't say much about it. So many who have claimed to be self-made have come to be regarded as nature fakes."—Washington Star.

Not on Her Heart.

He—I've just danced with Miss Bute and I think that I made a decided impression on her.

She—You must have. I noticed she was limping.—Boston Transcript.

Her Sad Finish.

"Did you ever know a girl to die for love?"

"Yes."

"Did she just fade away and die because some man deserted her?"

"No; she just took in washing and worked herself to death because the man she loved married her."—Houston Post.

Very High Prices.

"I was down to the milliner's and she had just been to the dentist's and had a nerve killed."

"Well, from the prices she asks for hats, I should say the dentist must have killed the wrong one."

Wonderful.

"I shaved off my mustache the other day and my wife didn't know me."

"That's nothing. My wife left off her phony curls, switches, rats and hair pads and I didn't know her."—Detroit Free Press.

Money in Moving Pictures.

"I am going to embark in some sort of business and want to know whether you think there is much money in moving pictures?"

"There was for the fellow who moved a half dozen of ours," said the flat dweller. "He charged us $10."—St. Louis Star.

Oh, Fine.

Teacher—Johnnie, do you know what a blotter is?

Johnnie—Yessum. It's de t'ing wot youse hunts for while de ink gets dry.—Chicago Daily News.

Easy.

School Teacher—Who can make a sentence using the word "indisposition"?

Tough Pupil (assuming a pugilistic pose)—When youse wants to fight youse stand in dis position!—Town Topics.

That Depends.

Teacher—Now, boys, here's a little example in mental arithmetic. How old would a person be who was born in 1875?

Pupil—Please, teacher, was it man or a woman?"—Red Hen.

A Meteorological Man.

Bertha—Why do you never save up for a rainy day?

Bertie—Oh, I suppose my disposition is too sunny!

Our Queer Language.

When the English tongue we speak
Why is "break" not rhymed with "freak"?
Will you tell me why it's true
We say "sew," but likewise "few";
And the maker of a verse
Can not cap his "horse" with "worse"?
"Beard" sounds not the same as "heard";
"Cord" is different from "word";
"Cow" is cow, but "low" is low;
"Shoe" is never rhymed with "foe."
Think of "hose" and "dose" and "lose";
And of "goose"—and yet of "choose."
Think of "comb" and "tomb" and "bomb";
"Doll" and "roll," and "home" and "some."
And since "pay" is rhymed with "say,"
Why not "paid" with "said," I pray?
We have "blood" and "food" and "good";
"Mould" is not pronounced like "could."
Wherefore "done," but "gone" and "lone"?
Is there any reason known?
And, in short, it seems to me
Sounds and letters disagree.
—Edwin L. Sabin, in Church Review.

If a man is both bad and worthless there isn't much hope for him.

If You Cut Your Finger

would you take cod liver oil, or would you cleanse and bandage the wound? The most rational way to treat the diseases of women is to apply a local remedy. PISO'S TABLETS destroy disease germs, control inflammation and eradicate the disease itself. They are so clean and easy to use that they appeal to every woman who suffers from female trouble. They are an ideal home treatment. Let us prove it by sending you a week's trial free.

For sale by all druggists. Trial package and a treatise entitled "Causes of Diseases in Women" sent free on receipt of accompanying coupon. Write your name and address PLAINLY and address THE PISO COMPANY, DEPT. D., WARREN, PA.

Name _____

Post Office _____

State _____

Oil Heat

Without Smoke

No matter how sensitive your olfactory nerves may be, or under what working conditions you encounter the

PERFECTION Oil Heater

(Equipped with Smokeless Device)

you'll not detect the slightest odor of smoke. The new positively prevents both. Removed in an instant for cleaning.

Automatic Smokeless Device

Solid brass font holds 4 quarts of oil—sufficient to give out a glowing heat for 9 hours—solid brass wick carriers—damper top—cool handle—oil indicator. Heater beautifully finished in nickel or Japan in a variety of styles.

Every Dealer Everywhere. If Not At Yours, Write for Descriptive Circular to the Nearest Agency of the

STANDARD OIL COMPANY
(Incorporated)

W. L. DOUGLAS $3.00 $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

THE LARGEST MANUFACTURER OF MEN'S FINE SHOES IN THE WORLD

Wear W. L. Douglas comfortable, easy-walking shoes. They are made upon honor, of the best leathers, by the most skilled workmen, in all the latest fashions. Shoes in every style and shape to suit men in all walks of life.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer and are of greater value than any other make.

CAUTION.—See that W. L. Douglas name and the retail price is stamped on the bottom. Take No Substitute.

BOY'S SHOES $2.00 & $2.50

Wherever you live, W. L. Douglas shoes are within your reach. If your dealer cannot fit you, write for Mail Order Catalog. W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass.

Nerve.

A woman went to the telephone office with a kick. She said she tried for half an hour to get the answer to a telephone call and she wanted to know the reason why.

"What is your number?" asked the manager.

"Oh, we have no phone ourselves," was the astonishing reply. "I was using my neighbor's."—Kansas City Journal.

Do Your Clothes Look Yellow? If so, use Red Cross Ball Blue. It will make them white as snow. Large 2oz. package 5 cents.

Force of Habit.

The woman with a sense of humor smiled. "It is funny," said she, "how content some people are to sit jammed together in cars."

"But they can't help themselves," protested her companion.

"I know, but I refer to the times when they are not obliged to occupy the same six inches with their next neighbors." When a crowded car begins to thin out, most people expand, but some forget to. I have seen the woman who has been shopping squeeze into a seat beside a laborer at the rush hour, and, just as often as not, she continues to tickle his nose with her plumes clear up to Austin after the car is half empty, and to rest her bundles on his lime coated overalls.

"One night, quite late, away up town on a State street car, a young man and young woman sat propped together midway of a long, empty seat. There was not another passenger left in that side of the car. They paid no attention to each other, and I supposed that they were too tired to talk. It was quite a shock to my calculations when the young man got off and left the girl sitting apathetically in the empty seat. I had estimated them as first cousins at the furthest."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

HOMESEEKERS' RATES WEST VIA NICKEL PLATE ROAD

Dec. 7 and 21. Ask Agent or write F. P. Parnin, T. P. A., Fort Wayne, Indiana. (0945)

Circular Nuisance.

The woman intercepted the postman as he was about to stuff a thick wad of circulars into her mail box and relieved him of them. "I wish," she said, "you would be allowed to use your discretion about such mail matter and to dump it into the refuse can instead of into my box, or could even omit ringing my bell when you have delivered no other mail than such stuff as this. It makes me a great deal of trouble and I never look at it. Then the janitor and the paper man simply have to remove it. How it would lighten your load if you did not have to carry it around!"

"Indeed it would! I also wish we did not have to handle it. We not only have a great burden in delivering it, but when we cannot find the person to whom it is addressed we have still more trouble, for we have to spend a great deal of time looking up addresses and trying to trace the consignees. We don't mind it in the case of first class mail, but to spend hours trying to find the owner of a circular seems to us like false economy. However, I suppose the postmaster general knows his business. I don't have to fill his job—at present. All I have to do is what I'm told. Good morning!"

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

F. W. N. U. - - - - No. 49—1909

When writing to Advertisers please say you saw the Adv. in this paper.

A SURE WAY OUT

QUICK RELIEF

It Is a Positive Fact That in Not One Out of a Thousand of Supposed Kidney Cases Does the Trouble Really Lie with the Kidneys.

Practically all the so-called Kidney trouble is in reality Bladder Trouble. Although sometimes intensely painful, and always annoying, it may be easily and quickly cured with GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES.

There are other troubles arising in organs connected with the Bladder which are also quickly relieved by the use of GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES. Full information is given in the printed matter enclosed in each box.

The Bladder is the receptacle for discharges from the Kidneys. Under normal conditions nature disposes of the contents of this reservoir (the Bladder) promptly and without pain. Once inflammation sets in, however, the contents may be retained for an unusual length of time, thus producing much pain and discomfort, or may be expelled with abnormal frequency and be the cause of much inconvenience and trouble. All of this may be relieved and finally cured by the use of GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES.

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL is put up in two forms, in CAPSULES and BOTTLES. Capsules 25c. and 50c. per box. Bottles, 15c. and 35c. At all druggists. Be sure that you obtain the Gold Medal Tilly brand, otherwise you will get an imitation. Literature free.

HOLLAND MEDICINE COMPANY, SCRANTON, PA.

COLT DISTEMPER

Can be handled very safely. The sick are cured, and all others in same stable, no matter how exposed, kept from having the disease, by using SPOHN'S LIQUID DISTEMPER CURE. Give on the tongue, or in feed. Acts on the blood and expels germs of all forms of distemper. Best remedy ever known for mares in foal. One bottle guaranteed to cure one case. Sold at $1 a bottle; $6 and $10 dozen of druggists and harness dealers, or sent express paid by manufacturers. Get above how to position abscesses. Our free booklet gives everything. Local agents wanted. Largest selling horse remedy in existence—twelve years.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists, Goshen, Ind., U. S. A.

DECEMBER

0420

L1134

900 DROPS

CASTORIA

A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of

INFANTS / CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.

Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER

Pumpkin Seed - Alx Senna - Rochelle Salts - Anise Seed - Peppermint - Bi Carbonate Soda - Worm Seed - Clarified Sugar - Wintergreen Flavor.

A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.

Fac Simile Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

NEW YORK.

At 6 months old 35 DOSES – 35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Suitable Xmas Presents

In giving gifts one should be careful to give something that will stand the test of time. A cheap worthless present is really no present at all. There are many things in our store which would be a very acceptable present. We invite you in to see our line of

Silverware

Jewelry

Clocks

We also have a nice and carefully selected line of novelties. In fact everything from a $1.50 watch to $300 diamond.

We guarantee prices to be just as cheap as any concern.

See our window display. It will do your eyes good to take a look.

All articles engraved free of charge when bought from this store.

Yours For A Square Deal

L. J. DIEHL

Newville

We just learned of the marriage of Alkie Rhinehart to Buelah Headley ond Julian Day and Katie Washler, of Concord. Our best wishes go with them.

Goldie Hobbs spent Saturday in Hicksville.

Clarence Wyatt is moving from the Lesty Ryan farm to that of Mrs. Coffe. John Engle is moving his family into the house vacated by Mr. Wyatt.

Elmer Wyatt and wife spent Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. Simington, at St. Joe.

Elmer McDonald was elected road supervisor Saturday with a good majority.

Wm. Baron was kicked in the head by his his horse Monday afternoon and at this writing Tuesday morning he has not gained consciousness. Dr. Brunson is the attending physician.

Mrs. D. J. Blair and Jessie Headley spent Monday in Hicksville.

Edward O'Brien, of Baltimore, Md., is the guest of Hugh Traxler.

Mrs. Lulu Loomis and Mrs. Cleland, of Hicksville, spent Thursday at Geo. Engle's.

Women Who Are Envied

Those attractive women who are lovely in face, form and temper are the envy of many, who might be like them. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation or Kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. For all such, Electric Bitters work wonders. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion. Many charming women owe their health and beauty to them. 50c at Stone's drug store 48-1m

Franklin

Mr. and Mrs. David Gearhart, of Edon, Ohio, were the guests of relatives in this neighborhood the latter part of last week.

Frank Huntington and wife spent last Friday and Saturday with friends at Newville.

Allen Shultz died Sunday after a long illness and his burial was held Tuesday.

There will be quarterly meeting at Jerusalem next Sunday evening.

Grover Klinkel and wife were given a miscellaneous shower Saturday evening and Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Jennings were treated the same on Tuesday of this week.

Samuel Wolff sawed wood for Earl King last Friday.

B. F. Firestone fell on the ice Monday and sprained his wrist.

Benj. Firestone and wife expect to entertain their children and families at dinner Christmas.

Glena Eaton and Zella Huntington were at Hamilton last Saturday.

A Thrilling Rescue

How Bert R. Lean, of Cheny, Wash. was saved from a frightful death is a story to thrill the world. "A hard cold," he writes, "brought on a desperate lung trouble that baffled an expert doctor here. Then I paid $10 to $15 a visit to a lung specialist in Spokane, who did not help me. Then I went to California, but without benefit. At last I used Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me and now I am as well as ever." For Lung Trouble, Bronchitis, Coughs and Colds Asthma, Croup and Whooping Cough its supreme. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Stone's drug store. 48-1m

Moores

Miss Eva Albright spent last Friday with her sister, Mrs. Marvin Stroh.

Mrs. W. H. Forrest was in Auburn last week with her daughter, Mrs. Fred Oiler, who has been quite sick.

Bruce Boyd is in Waterloo, learning the blacksmith trade.

George Moore and Mrs. Sylvia Campbell were united in marriage at Mr. Moore's home Sunday afternoon by Rev. Shilling. They were given an oln fashioned belling Monday evenidg.

Miss Nellie LaTier spent Sunday in Auburn with her runt, Mrs. George Noirot.

John Parker and wife of Hicksville visited with John Moore and wife Monday.

Milo Weinhold, wife and daughter visited Sunday at F. Albrights'.

Otis Lautzenhiser has bought the store at this place, and has taken possession.

John Pifer of Auburn spent part of last week with Wm. Cook and family.

The peculiar properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy have been thoroughly tested during epidemics of influenza, and when it was taken in time we have not heard of a single case of pneumonia. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 48-1m

Spencerville

Geary Wasson and wife spent Sunday with W. W. Wasson at Concord.

Geary Wasson is getting his hay, corn and potatoes home from Frank Henderson's this week.

John Means was up to Butler last week. John has contracted with Geo. Howey to help him. They will make it go. George is to canvass the town and John the country.

Supervisor elections are over. M. Shudel lost by five votes. C. B. Jackson is the lucky man.

C. W. Watson is going around on crutches. He got caught in the gravel pit and the result is the small bone in his leg was broken.

Program

For Christmas eve entertainment at the U. B. church is as follows:

Orchestra.
Song—"Joy To The World."
Prayer—Rev. Parker.
Song.
Recitation—Gertrude Worthington.
Recitation—Bessie Swinehart.
Solo—Marie Campbell.
Song.
Recitation—Loa Cosper.
Recitation—Gorden Antwerp.
Recitation—Glada Ackley.
Recitation—Lorene Wartord.
Solo—Verdis Hall.
Piano Duett—Helen Kester and Veda Davis.
Solo—Fredrice Stoner.
Song.
Distribution of Presents.
Benediction.

ATCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS.

Some people might as well be crazy; they have no sense.

What some men enjoy would cause others to commit suicide.

Parents and turkeys are always treated well before Christmas.

When a woman is not in a dry goods store she is at the dentist's.

No man is as good to his wife as he expects his father to be to his mother.

When you have seen one celebration, or one circus, you have seen them all.

It is as natural for a boy to have dirty hands as it is for a cat to have fits.

Every man we ever knew had ambition, but only a few had application with it.

We occasionally meet a man who ought to stay at home and send his wife out.

It isn't proper to bring a baby downtown until it is at least two weeks old.

LITTLE ABOUT EVERYTHING.

Venezuela has eight-ounce beeties.

The French Congo has a pigeon postal service.

The population of Canada is now about 6,500,000.

The average height of the Laplander is less than five feet.

Sixty languages are in everyday use in Freetown, Sierra Leone.

A monument to Capt. James Cook was unveiled in New Zealand.

Forty years ago artificial teeth were often made of hippopotamus ivory.

In Belgium a revenue of $65,000 is derived from roadside fruit trees.

A 7,000-foot pier is under construction at Minster-on-the-Sea, England.

Palermo exported to the United States last year $2,653,627 worth of lemons.

An acre of cotton land in Egypt yields four times as much as one in this country.

Every shilling turned out by the English mint shows a profit of nearly threepence.

Elephant's foot takes longer to cook than any other dish. It must be baked for thirty-six hours.

When a woman is not in a dry goods store she is at the dentist's.

An elephant's burden is from 1,800 to 2,500 pounds, and that of a horse from 200 to 250 pounds.

Out of every million letters that pass through the postoffice it is calculated that only one goes astray.

The oldest national flag in the world is that of Denmark, which has been in use since the year 1219.

Louisiana has 7,000,000 acres of marsh lands which, if properly treated, are capable of great fertility.

Women are barred from the Island of Ferdinand de Noronha, belonging to Brazil. It is reserved for convicts.

It is stated that the incomes of physicians in England have decreased 25 per cent during the last three years.

A two-mile railroad bridge has been recently completed across the Columbia River, in the State of Washington.

There are more than 120 india rubber manufacturers in the United States, employing more than 15,000 operatives.

A hen attains her best laying capacity in her third year. She will lay in an average lifetime from 300 to 500 eggs.

The first English regatta took place upon the Thames, between London Bridge and Millbank, on Friday, June 23, 1775.

The clock at St. Chad's, Shrewsbury, has a record pendulum, its length being 22 feet and the weight of the ball 200 pounds.

In Persia bells ring for prayers five times a day, and merchants rush off to the mosques, leaving all business at a standstill.

The Church of England bishopric of Mackenzie River, in British North America, is five times as large as the United Kingdom.

The reclamation of the marsh lands of the United States is one of the most important natural developments confronting us at this time.

At a recent church fair in England one of the means used for increasing the receipts was a guessing contest as to the weight of the pastor.

Sir Boyle Roche once made the doubtful submission to an eminent judge: "Your lordship is right and I am wrong, as your lordship always is."

Sums have now been received amounting to a total of $225,000 for the Koch endowment, to be applied in the crusade against tuberculosis as Dr. Koch may direct.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

Local and Personal

Try the new meat market for the Sunday roast.

Here's a nice Christmas present—the HERALD $1.50.

O. D. Hull of Hamilton spent Sunday with Ike Love and wife.

The First National bank solicits your fire insurance. tf

Pay your bills by check. Deposit with the First National bank. tf

Call at the new meat market and get acquainted. C. C. Harper, Prop.

Hoyt Cook will spend Christmas in Coldwater, Mich., the guest of his father, L. C. Blaine.

I have for sale, houses in all parts of the city. Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

George Mocharman and family spent Sunday at Hamilton, the guests of Ike Firestone and family.

Mrs. John Moughler spent Wednesday with her uncle and aunt, Ira Hendershot and wife.

Mrs. R. P. Troyer and son Ralph are visiting her parents, Porter Casebeer and family at Fort Wayne.

While unloading steel for the railroad company, Jesse Wagoner had three of his fingers mashed last Monday.

Ralph L. Hart of Ludington, Mich., came home Saturday to spend the holidays with his parents, T. H. DeWitt and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hamilton and children spent Tuesday in Fort Wayne attending the funeral of A. H. Bittinger, the former's uncle.

Levi Husselman, who has been making his home with Arthur Freed near Artic, came to spend the winter with Arb Furney and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Hamilton are in Fort Wayne this week, having been called by the death of A. H. Bittinger the former's brother-in-law.

Mrs. J. W. DeWitt returned to Defiance, O., after taking care of her daughter, Mrs. T. H. DeWitt, who has been seriously ill, but is slowly improving.

Rev. J. A. Davis attended the funeral of Rev. L. O. Oyler of Huntington. Nearly every minister in the district were present, forty being in attendance.

I would like an offer for any one, or all, of several houses in Butler, owned by people not living here. If you want a home, this is your chance. Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

Rev. J. A. Davis will speak at Zion next Sunday morning and at the Jerusalem church at 7:00 p. m Quarterly meeting at the latter place at nine o'clock Monday morning.

Arthur Haley has recently composed the music and words for several sacred solos. Two of these selections were rendered by him at the Christian church Sunday and greatly appreciated by the audience.

Sunday will be the time of the second quarterly meeting. Preaching at 10:30, followed by the communion service. Preaching at 7:00 p. m. The business meeting will be held Monday evening at 7:00 p. m.

The greatest danger from influenza is of its resulting in pneumonia. This can be obviated by using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, as it not only cures influenza, but counteracts any tendency of the disease towards pneumonia. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 48-1m

L. C. Parker and wife of South Whitley, M. C. Parker and wife and Harry Dory and wife of Kendallville and Miss Marie Parker of Fort Wayne will spend Christmas at the U. B. parsonage, the guests of their parents

Many persons find themselves affected with a persistent cough after an attack of influenza. As this cough can be promptly cured by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, it should not be allowed to run on until it becomes troublesome. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 48-1m

We are glad to learn that Clyde Patee of Detroit, Mich., formerly of Butler, who is employed as brakeman on the Wabash railroad, has been promoted to the rank of conductor on that division. His many friends here wish him success in his rank of promotion and are glad to learn of his progress.

A letter from Mrs. Coats written Tuesday of this week to her husband says that their son, John, who was so badly burned on the 8th of this month is slowly but steadily improving, and was able to sit up in a wheel chair two hours Sunday. Such news at this time has somewhat of Christmas cheer in it for his parents, and also a joy to his other friends here.

A sprained ankle will usually disable the injured person for three or four weeks. This is due to lack of proper treatment. When Chamberlain's Liniment is applied a cure may be effected in three or four days. This liniment is one of the best and most remarkable preparations in use. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 48-1m

Elder Braden has resigned his pastorate of the Christian church at this place and accepted a call from the Christian church at Edon, Ohio, the change to take effect some time in January. Elder Braden has been pastor at this place about two years and has filled his position with credit. When the congregation heard of his intentions of leaving our city it caused universal disappointment. Mr. and Mrs. Braden are both faithful workers in the church, and the HERALD commends them to the Edon congregation with the fullest assurance that they will find in them the qualities which are required of people filling the responsible position which they represent.

Here's a nice Christmas present—the HERALD, $1.50.

Mrs. Henry Stell spent Monday in Fort Wayne.

Miss Corrine Mack wishes to thank the party who had her cat for taking such good care of him.

Notice

There will be no coal delivered or grain taken in on Christmas Day either by the elevator or Butler Milling company.

THE BABY.

A Comment on What Childhood Ought to Mean in a Community.

The saviors of men come ever as tender babes, says a baby lover, and there is no child ever born, in palace or hut, but carries with it the divine possibility of becoming a rescuer of its race. "You may be Christ or Shakespeare, little child, a savior or a sun to the lost world," says one child worshiper.

The wonder and mystery of a fresh young soul with all its infinite and immortal possibilities peering out of that tiny bundle of flesh may well make worshiping magic bow before every cradle of infancy. Forever, too, it is the children's crusade that moves in white and mystic procession on the pilgrimage to the holy sepulcher, the capture of the Holy City. Older feet have wearied of the march. "Age, aching hands," have dropped the sacred banner, but ever in zestful joy the white army of childhood gathers it up and moves in shining garments toward the Savior's tomb, the hallowed city. "Liberty bless you and keep you to be as you are," is the prayer that more than the poet might offer for the child's future, yet about the last one that society allows. Hence the world's loss.

Savages to restrain, rather than "slips of God" to foster, is a view that even sociologists encourage in the treatment of the child. Even a compromise between the two often leaves the case as one bright victim of our educational systems declared it when, to his teacher's question, "Johnny, what is a hypocrite?" he replied, "A boy wot comes to school with a smile on his face." Out of one of State schools for dependent children comes another picture of the boy with a smile on his face. "Dear papa," wrote this exploiter of happy childhood, "we children are having a good time here now. Mr. Sager broke his leg and can't work. Many children here are sick with the mumps. The man that is digging the deep well whipped us boys with a buggy whip because we dropped sand in his machine and made black and blue marks on us. Ernest cut his finger badly. We are all very happy."

The irrepressible spirits of childhood stand many a strain that cruel fate imposes, yet the stories of puny lads of 10 who kill themselves for a blow or heartless reproof show what a weight of heaviness is being brought to bear upon it. An Eastern writer recognizes this, in commenting upon a judge's advice to a father to try the old-fashioned remedy of the birch or strap for a recalcitrant youngster. He forgets, says the writer, that the boy of to-day is years and years older than the boy of yesterday. The spirit of the man and not the child is the one to appeal to, and though this may be well, and always was, where discipline is concerned, there is something woeful in it where a lost childhood goes with it.

The famous Frenchman's comment "Alas there are no longer any children," is one of the saddest in history, and Brigadier Lamb is right in claiming that the most pathetic feature of the high pressure and tension of modern life is that it takes hold of childhood and leaves us much as the Frenchman said, without any children. Even priggishness among children—mere infants of 3 or 4 years—is dolefully presented by the students of the times. And yet the author is right, too, who tells us that "only childhood is eternal," the one haunting voice that breathes forever through "the wistful song of humanity" and babbles of green fields and boyhood days, when the weary man drops the last vestige of humanity.

Whoever in life or song can best preserve the childhood notes comes nearest to finding the place "where joy resides and giving it a voice past singing."

The babe in the house may not be a well spring of pleasure to the landlord, but while poets and seers, to say nothing of some parents, can turn him to such good account, it is to be hoped that neither man nor germs, fashions nor divorce courts, will quite banish him from our midst.

W. S. Troyer

Auctioneer and Salesman

Leave orders at this office or Central Grocery.

I speak three different languages.

Special Fare

CHRISTMAS and NEW YEAR EXCURSIONS

For which tickets will be sold Dec. 24, 25 and 31, 1909, and Jan. 1, 1910, good returning until Jan. 3, inclusive. Sale covers all points on Lake Shore Ry. and many connecting lines. For particulars apply to agents.

Lake Shore Railway

Church of Christ Items

The Christmas entertainment of the Bible school will be given on Friday evening. A cordial invitation is extended to all to enjoy the Xmas eve with us.

There will be a meeting of the official board after the service on Sunday morning Some important matters are to be considered, therefore a full attendance is desired.

Services on Lord's Day at the usual hours. The sermon themes will be in harmony with the spirit of the Christmas time

We clip the following article from a description of an English church by an American preacher, Dr. A. H. Armstrong. Is it not a trenchant criticism against many an American church?

"The evening found me at the door of Westminister Chapel, Dr. Campbell Morgan's down town church. Another crowded house! Another visiting card. Another last vacant seat. Here is a recipe for a congregation with a dull preacher. Let every member of the church with his children, the servant in the house and the stranger within his gates hie himself to church, arriving ten minutes early. Let every sitting be filled Let every one sing with spirit from his own book. When the Scripture lesson is announced let every one follow the reading in his own Bible. When the preacher prays let every one bow his head and pray silently and 'hard.' When the text is announced let a forest of rustling leaves announce to the pulpit that the index finger of every right hand is coming to a 'point' on the passage in the new Bible. When the benediction is announced let every worshiper sit down and offer a silent prayer for the effect of the message. All this an English audience does. No wonder those English preachers can preach."

S B. BRADEN, Minister.

If you are suffering from biliousness, constipation, indigestion, chronic headache, invest one cent in a postal card sent to Chamberlain Medicine Co., Des Moines, Iowa, with your name and address plainly on the back, and they will forward you a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 48-1m

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CHURCH OF GOD

H. E. HERRENDEEN, Pastor

Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 7:30.
You are cordially invited to attend the above services.

LUTHERAN CHURCH

J. H. CROUSE, Pastor

Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.
Services every alternate Sabbath morning at 10:30.
Services every Sabbath evening at 7:30.
Everybody welcome.

U. B. CHURCH

W. F. PARKER, Pastor

Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.
Preaching at 10:30 and 7:00.
Y P. C. U. meeting at 5:30 p. m.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening.
Everybody welcome to all these services.

M. E. CHURCH

E. F. ALBERTSON, Pastor

Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.
Junior League at 2:30 p m.
Epworth League at 5:30 p. m.
Courteous ushers and a brotherly greeting to all.
Every Thursday evening the midweek devotional meeting is held. Themes of every day interest are considered at these services.

Could Not Be Better

No one has ever made a salve, ointment, lotion or balm to compare with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Its the one perfect healer of Cuts, Corns, Burns, Bruises, Sores, Scalds, Boils, Ulcers, Eczema, Salt Rheum. For Sore Eyes, Cold Sores, Chapped Hands its supreme. Infallible for Piles. Only 25c at Stone's drug store. 48-1m

M. E. Notes

Christmas services will be held at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Christmas music will be rendered by a large choir. Prof. Haley will sing at the evening service.

The Sunday School enteriainment will be given Friday evening and is open to all. There will be no Aid society this week.

The evangelistic meetings will begin Sunday, Jan. 16, 1910.

E. F. ALBERTSON, Minister.

Your Christmas Groceries

Of conrse you are going to make some special prepations for the holiday celebration.

Naturally the first thing too be thought of is a good dinner for all at home. With out it there there would be do real pleasure in the event.

Groceries, therefore, you must have—and fresh ones too. Not the kind that have stood upon the shelves for for the past year, but new and delicious in every respect.

Candies, nuts, etc., sound, pure and fresh. At least once a year you cannot afford to buy anything in these lines but the best.

We have made every preparation for your satisfaction, and guarantee everything we sell to be absolutely as represented.

Come in and let our stock suggest what you shall buy.

M. L. DIEHL,

South Side Grocer

Overcoat Time Is Here In Earnest

The time of year has at last come when an overcoat is a great need aud you might say a necessity. Our line of samples consist of the season's latest goods and we can make them up in the very latest styles Call and see us before letting your order. Satisfaction guaranteed.

OTT, THE TAILOR

DECEMBER

L1134

0421

butler public library

THE DEKALB COUNTY HERALD

VOLUME XL — BUTLER, DEKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, FRIDAY, DEC. 31, 1909 — NUMBER 52

DANIEL W. WEITZ, President — HENRY M. SHOWALTER, Vice-President — WALTER SNIDER, Cashier
AMOS SNYDER, Vice-President — ALBERT L. SHULTZ, Vice-President

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK
BUTLER, INDIANA
Capital Paid Up $25,000.00. Your Business Respectfully Solicited.

The Foot Form "Burro Jap" Shoes

are made from the hide of the "Burro." There is no leather made that give better service and wear. They are guaranteed in this way, if the upper breaks through before the first sole wears through, you get a new pair of shoes free of charge.

The Ladies' Flexible Sole shoes, "La France" are made in patent and dull leathers, both button and lace. The sole is very flexible and easier on the feet than a turn shoe. These shoes cost yon no more than others, that are not near as comfortable.

Remember our special offer on made-to-measure clothing closes Dec. 11. An extra pair of trousers free with a suit. One hundred and thirty-seven patterns to choose from.

Sewing Machines all new and bright, from $15.00 to $25.00 and are guaranteed.

J. C. Brown & Son - - - The Foot Fitters

A Happy New Year To All Our Patrons

Thanking you for the very liberal patronage accorded us for the year 1909, we solicit a continuance of the same. With best wishes for the new year, we remain

Yours truly

STONE'S DRUG STORE

THE CENTRAL GROcery wishes you a Happy New Year and we are here to start in the new year with you. We appreciate all past favors and we solicit your business for the coming year. With compliments of

PRESTON & COMPANY
BUTLER, INDIANA

A good opportunity to get in touch with a

Good Banking institution and to Start Success and prosperity

For the coming year is offered you when we place at your disposal

The services of this bank. The

New year is starting out with the brightest kind of an outlook. It will be a

Year of strong endeavor and we offer you the services of

THE
First National Bank
BUTLER, IND.

CUPID'S PRANKS RECORDED HERE

Miss Lulu Husselman, and Mr. William Herron, were quietly married at the Methodist parsonage in Garret last Thursday at four p. m. py the Rev W. B Freeland. The bribe is the accomplished daughter of John Husselman, who resides on a farm near Corunna. The groom's father, John Herron residing near there. The many friends of the young couple join in best wishes.

S. E. Moorhead and Miss Martha Moorhead of McComb, O.; Mr. and Mrs Albert Moorhead of Valparaiso; Mr. and Mrs. A. Reams of Fort Wayne; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Vance of Kansas City; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sell and Mrs Bratten, of this City; Miss Mary Gaden of Lexington Ky., Mrs Jennie McNinch of Pittsburg Pa.; and Mrs Talp Gidley of Roann were guests at the wedding of Mr. Samuel Moorhead and Miss Edna Ronsh, which occurred Wednesday night at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. Mrs J. W. Roush in South Whitley. Rev. Benjamin Kendall united them and they will reside in South Whitley, where the groom is employed at the Grip-Nut plant. —Columbia City Post.

Prof. O. E. Ewan of the Edon schools was united in marriage to Miss Mary Isabelle Abry, Friday, December 24. Mrs. Ewan is also a teacher, having charge of the primary department. They announce that they will be at home after January 10, at Edon, Ohio. They have a large circle of friends who will join the HERALD in wishing them a long and happy voyage on the matrimonial sea.

A Christmas Surprise.

A very happy surprise was given at the home of S. W. Chubb, of Edon, O., in honor of Mrs. Chubb's mother, Mrs. M. J. Best, of Butler. Regardless of the heavy snowstorm, the entire family was present consisting of Mrs. Mary Seoville and daughters, Maude, Phosa and Coral, of Angola, J. F. Best and family, of Cooney, O., Geo. Bechtol, wife and son, Earl, Lee Reinhart, wife and daughter, Mabel, Dallas Crain, wife and daughter, Evelyn, of Butler, and Geo. Fairfield, of Angola.

At 12 o'clock they sat down to a three course dinner which was prepared by the daughters and served by the granddaughters.

After dinner a fine program was rendered consisting of recitations, solos and a quartette. The best of all was the heavily laden Christmas tree which was enjoyed by old as well as young. At a late hour they departed for their respective homes, looking forward to happy Christmas.

NEW OFFICIALS TAKE CHARGE JAN. 3

Only One Member of the Old Board to Succeed Himself

KNOTTY PROBLEMS TO SOLVE

But the Herald Believes They Will Be Met in a Business Like Manner By the New Board

On next Monday, Jan. 3, the new city administration, which the HERALD believes will be the best ever, will begin. The law provides that all newly elected officials shall assume their duties at noon on the first Monday in January following the election, and as that date falls on the 3rd day of January, 1910, that will be the time the new officials will enter upon their duties as the guardians of our little city.

One of the first and most important questions to be considered by the new body is the paving of three streets, some of the preliminary work having been gone over by the retiring council.

Some of our citizens are adverse to doing any paving this year, while many others are of the opinion that now is the time, and we believe the new officers were elected with the understanding that they would carry out the paving and that it would be done the coming summer. Butler is recognized the country over as having bad streets. We do not need to dwell on this point, as all of our readers know that last winter it was impassable for teams to get through our streets with any kind of a load, and while the tearing up for the sewer was partially the fault of the bad condition of the roads, yet it must be admitted that we have always had bad streets during the wet season of the year. There has been enough money spent in hauling gravel to pay for paving them. It is quite likely that the cost of paving is as low at present as it will ever be, and while there are some of our citizens who are not ready for paving we doubt if procrastination will better the condition any.

The city is on the verge of a substantial increase in her population and industries and the paving proposition would only be in keeping with the onward movement already under way, and we are quite sure that the new board will proceed with the work of paving.

We do not know of a time when there was so near an entire change of officers as at the present, A. S. Kester, councilman of the third ward, being the only member to succeed himself. The new members must not expect to conduct the city's business to the entire satisfaction of all of her inhabitants, but they should do their best to administer to the majority, remembering that all men's rights are equal.

The HERALD expects to have a representative at all of the meetings of the council and to furnish our patrons with a full and complete account of same. If you want to keep tab on the new council read the HERALD. The new officers are as follows:

Mayor—W. J. Mondhank.
Clerk—C. L. Buehrer.
Treasurer—S. G. Stone.
Marshal—William Holtzberg.
Councilman First Ward—M. F. Creager.
Councilman Second Ward—John J. Oberlin.
Councilman Third Ward—A. S. Kester.
Councilmen at Large—L. C. Harding and O. T. Waterman.

The retiring members are: Mayor, Wallace Webster; clerk, F. A. Brink; treasurer, R. C. Campbell; marshal, J. S. Lowe; councilman first ward, T. A. Hoffman; councilman second ward, D. A. Shaw; councilman at large, Geo. Rowe and E. C. Miller.

W. R. C. Ladies Entertain

The ladies of the W. R. C. entertained the Grand Army boys at their hall, Dec. 28, with a Christmas tree. The program was as follows:

Music—Mr. VanDusen. (Talking Machine)
Reading—Mrs. Henry Bowman.
Recitation—Mrs. Joe Morehead.
Reading—Mrs. Hoffman.
Recitation—Laura Stroh.
Song—Marlin Nichols.

The climax of the evening was the appearance of Santa, and being late in the season he brought his wife.

After the ladies had distributed their presents the Grand Army boys surprised the ladies by presenting each with a present.

SECRET ORDERS ELECT OFFICERS

The Royal Neighbors have elected the following officers for the next year:

Mrs. Carrie Oberlin—Or.
Mrs. M. Countryman—V. O.
Mrs. Ada Fink—Chan.
Mrs. Caroline Devore—Receiver.
Mrs. Hattie Sewell—Mar.
Mrs. Abbie Oberlin—Ass't Mar.
Mrs. Thorpe—I. Sen.
Mrs. Naomi Croninger—O. Sen.
Graces—Frances Treman, Dora Richard, Debra Diehl, Flora Stark, Allie Mumaw, Stella Swift.
Drill Master Managers—Sherman Robinett, Susan Sharp, Clarisa Olds.

At the regular meeting of the O. E. S. the following officers were elected and appointed:

Ellen Mondhank—H. M.
H. A. Waterman—H. P.
Sallie Willock—Ass't Hr.
Leah Apt—Sec.
Angie Stump—Treas.
Belle Norford—Cond.
Mrs. Rickey—Ass't Cond.
Carrie M. Fanning—Chap.
Martha Masters—Mars.
Effie Potter—Adah.
Mrs. T. A. Hoffman—Ruth.
Minerva Graff—Ester.
Effie Harrison—Martha.
Grace Edyvean—Electa.
Mrs. Dempsey—Warden.
Peter Whitman—Sentinel.
Lottie Masters—Pianist.
Mrs. Fanning—Installing Officer.
Mrs. Waterman—Gen. Marshal.

The K. of P.'s elected the following officers, Tuesday evening, for term beginning January 1, 1910:

Luther W. Knisely—C. C.
Frank Long—V. C.
T. A. Hoffman—Prelate.
C. W. Campbell—K. of R. and S.
T. J. Knisely—M. of E.
Geo. W. Geddes—M. of F.
E. L. Noragon—M. of W.
William Lennon—M. of A.
Carl Nimmons—I. G.
Elmer Myers—O. G.
A. A. Kramer—Trustee.

K. of P. Notice

On next Wednesday evening, Jan. 5, Butler lodge No. 158, will meet with Edgerton lodge and confer 3rd rank work. Leaving Butler on No. 16, at 6:10 p. m. All members are requested to go and enjoy a good time.

BY ORDER OF C. C.

Penelope Club Entertains

The Penelope club was very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs O. T. Knisely, Wednesday, Dec. 29, each lady being invited for six o'clock dinner.

At four o'clock all were ushered into the "mystic room," where a pleasant surprise awaited them, each receiving some beautiful and useful Christmas gifts.

We then went on a north pole hunt, one half going by the way of Chicago and the other by way of Toledo. Mrs. Harrison and helpers were the lucky explorers, but kindly divided the spoils with the disappointed ones.

After each lady had made an apron, we were then invited to the dining room where a delicious two-course dinner was served, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The guests departing declared it the most pleasant meeting of the season.

Bureau of Instruction

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 22, 1909.
HERALD Butler, Ind.

Gentlemen—Last year we spent $17,000 with the newspapers as an experiment against Magazine advertising. The results from the newspapers were so satisfactory that we have decided to spend $35,000 the coming year with the papers instead of the Magazines, and if your paper proves a good puller, you will get your share of it.

ATCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS.

Some people might as well be crazy; they have no sense.

What some men enjoy would cause others to commit suicide.

Parents and turkeys are always treated well before Christmas.

When a woman is not in a dry goods store she is at the dentist's.

No man is as good to his wife as he expects his father to be to his mother.

When you have seen one celebration, or one circus, you have seen them all.

It is as natural for a boy to have dirty hands as it is for a cat to have fits.

Every man we ever knew had ambition, but only a few had application with it.

We occasionally meet a man who ought to stay at home and send his wife out.

It isn't proper to bring a baby downtown until it is at least two weeks old.

AMONG THE CHURCHES

CHURCH OF GOD
H. E. BERENDEEN, Pastor

Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 7:30.
You are cordially invited to attend the above services.

LUTHERAN CHURCH
J. H. CROUSE, Pastor

Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.
Services every alternate Sabbath morning at 10:30.
Services every Sabbath evening at 7:30.
Everybody welcome.

U. B. CHURCH
W. F. PARKER, Pastor

Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.
Preaching at 10:30 and 7:00.
Y. P. C. U. meeting at 5:30 p. m.
Prayer meeting Thursday evening.
Everybody welcome to all these services.

M. E. CHURCH
E. F. ALBRIGHTSON, Pastor

Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.
Junior League at 2:30 p. m.
Epworth League at 5:30 p. m.
Courteous ushers and a brotherly greeting to all.
Every Thursday evening the midweek devotional meeting is held. Themes of every day interest are considered at these services.
The Aid Society will meet with Mrs Samuel Noragon Friday afternoon All are cordially invited.
Special meetings will be held at the Methodist church next week. Prof Haley, the evangelistic singer, will assist the pastor in these meetings. A large choir will sing. All are cordially invited.

A Family Reunion

A family reunion was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Brink on Saturday, Dec. 25.

Mr. Brink's brother and sisters with their families were present, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene W. Brink, Paul and Ruth Brink, Mrs. James Osborn, George, Anna, and Edith Osborn, Miss Edith Brink, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Mrs H. B. Somers and son, Robert T. Somers, of Huntington, Ind.

On the following Monday another reunion took place, and all the cousins and aunts were invited. Those present were J. W. Baxter and wife, Ella C. Baxter, A. J. Ralston and wife, Haddessa J. Ralston and Mrs. Mary Nimmons Rose, of Auburn, Mrs. Mary F. Nimmons, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nimmons, Mr. and Mrs. Emblem B. Nimmons and Mayor Webster and wife, of this city.

Church of Christ Items

We all appreciated the presence of our late Superintendent F. L. Farnsworth during the Bible school hour last Lord's day.

Next Thursday evening has been decided upon as the time for holding the Experience social. All those who received a dime a few weeks ago are expected to bring the dollar made by its use and tell how it was done.

The new officers of the Bible school for the coming year will be duly elected next Sunday.

As the time is rapidly drawing near when we shall sever our relations as pastor, we earnestly desire to meet each member of the church congregation at least once on each Lord's day.

Our success or failure in the New Year will be for most part of our own making. The time worn resolutions will count for little if there is not a vigorous application of all the powers of our being toward their realization. Every high resolve we make should be made subject to Divine power or guidance.

S. B. BRADEN, Minister.

A Random Shot.

"Mr. Cleveland," said a New York banker, "took much to heart the revelations of our rich men's corruption. He told me one day at luncheon that, if these revelations continued, it would be hard to name a multi-millionaire without naming a criminal. He said that an English capitalist came to New York last year with letters to the greatest captains of industry. He dined with one of these captains one night, and after dinner his host's little son was presented to him. He was a fine, well-grown lad. The Englishman patted him on the head, and said, by way of a joke:

"'You are a dear little fellow. I hope you'll grow up a better man than your father.'

"The Englishman laughed merrily at his joke, but the millionaire father looked grave. And after the boy was gone, the father said, in a heartbroken voice, with tears in his eyes:

"'I am indeed grieved that you, sir, a gentleman of education and refinement, should cast reflections on my character, and that, too, in the presence of my son. It is true that the missing stocks were charged to my account, but I was honorably acquitted by the courts.'"

WANTED—50 ladies and gentlemen at once at McGuire's Telegraph School, Edgerton, O. Good positions furnished when competent. tf

Pre-Inventory Sale

For the next two weeks we will give a big cash discount on all furniture.

A. F. BRINDLEY
Furniture and Undertaking

The Rexall Store — GEDDES' DRUG STORE — Always at Your Service

Our New Year's Greeting

We wish to take this opportunity to thank the people of Butler and vicinity for their liberal patronage during the past year. We wish for you a very

Happy and Prosperous New Year and many Happy New Years to come. Yours to please

GEDDES' DRUG STORE
West Side Broadway — Phone 31

Greetings from
Rickey & Company

"Love is the leading string of youth;
Memory, the staff of old age."

May a Happy and a Prosperous New Year be yours

If The HERALD Does Your Printing
IT'S RIGHT.

DECEMBER

0422

L1134

DeKalb County Herald

BUTLER, INDIANA.

A. S. POWERS, - - - Publisher.

Limburger cheese as a cure for cancer looks feasible. It would drive anything out.

Something worse than a hookworm is the matter with Breathitt County, Kentucky.

Nine feet of water in the Ohio would have the effect of keeping that river wet all summer.

Fewer marriages in Great Britain, says the statistician. Now will the suffragettes be good?

What is the man who puts his money in a stocking instead of banking it, pessimist or optimist?

It is a sweetly solemn thought that the people who have started a crusade against pie are not making much headway.

"Blest" may be reformed spelling, but it was in the dictionary long before Mr. Carnegie and Mr. T. Roosevelt got on the job.

The death of one man is credited to sauerkraut. He may or he may not have died happy. That is another question of taste.

Before the millennium breaks any speed laws getting here it will be necessary for all reformers to think alike and act in harmony.

English suffragettes have abandoned hatchets and hatpins and are now using corrosive acid. Later they may get around to gatling guns.

Suffragettes assert that there is no good reason why women should not vote. None at all, except that in most states the law provides that they shall not.

Some fellow is going to start for the pole with a lot of polar bears as companions, and the question is, when their food gives out will the man eat the bears or the bears eat the man?

If there were any way of impounding the aurora borealis that causes so much wire trouble and of selling it to the consumer for light and heat, the business would make a splendid public service corporation.

A Yale student has married a lady who is 70 years old, and some of the young man's friends suspect that it was not a love match. Some people will not be convinced that soul mating may result from intellectual attractions.

A Denver scientist says limburger cheese will cure cancer. If cancer results from a specific microbe and that microbe is a self-respecting bug, the introduction of a slug of limburger in the theater of his activities should cause him to withdraw in high dudgeon.

A pestiferous itch for something different seems to have beset the artistic souls responsible for the issue of our money and stamps. Our gold pieces first felt the innovator's touch, and since then the artists of the treasury and the postoffice have eagerly seized upon every pretext to foist the unfamiliar into our purses and upon our letters. Presumably the end is afar.

A chemical analysis of the human body results in some interesting disclosures. We are told that the normal, healthy man who weighs one hundred and fifty pounds is the exact equivalent, chemically speaking, of one thousand hens' eggs. He consists of thirty-eight quarts of water, which makes up over half his weight, sixty lumps of sugar, twenty spoonfuls of salt, iron enough for seven spikes, two pounds of lime, thirty-five hundred cubic feet of gas, oxygen, hydrogen and nitrogen, over twenty pounds of carbon, or enough for about ten thousand lead pencils, phosphorus enough for eight hundred thousand matches, and starch, sulphur, chlorid of potash and hydrochloric acid in lesser quantities.

Under the lately adopted amendment of the constitution of Maine, providing for a popular referendum on legislative enactments, three measures, passed by the legislature of that State last winter, will now be submitted to the people. In each case there were the necessary ten thousand petitioners within three months after the adjournment of the legislature. Two of the matters upon which the whole State will now vote are purely local in character, one being the proposed division of the town of York and the other the so-called Portland bridge bill,—and the third is a bill which declares intoxicating, within the meaning of the law, all drinks with 1 per cent alcohol. As Maine is the first Eastern State to adopt a general initiative and referendum scheme, this test of its operation will be watched with widespread interest. Its friends hold that it will prove a curb to the passage of improper laws, but others insist that it will become a general nuisance, and will result in careless and inefficient legislation. Thus far the initiative part of the plan has not been invoked in Maine.

Governor Deneen of Illinois said of the lynchings at Cairo that they grew out of atrocious crimes that shocked the community and that they indicated a lack of confidence in the outcome of criminal processes and a sentiment that in cases of intolerable atrocity the law's uncertainties and delays justify a recourse to mob violence. Put with this statement an assertion that was made by a New York paper recently: "More crimes of violence, venality and corruption go unpunished in New York than in the whole of Great Britain, with ten times the population." The law which should mean protection for society and for the innocent fails of its object. It has become a refuge for wrongdoers, and so actually encourages crime. In saying this we should, of course, take note of the fact that many crimes are committed without thought of the consequences, but in the long run a lax administration of the law must have its effect on the criminally disposed, and it is certain that its influence is felt when lynchings are advocated. They are often justified by the suggestion that the criminal is likely to escape with light punishment or to go free altogether if he is not dealt with summarily. We are not interested in justifying a plea to prevent lawbreaking by lawbreaking, but the more horrible the acts of the mob the more imperatively does civilization demand that we should seek a permanent preventive, something in addition to the immediate punishment of mob violence. That permanent preventive, as the governor says, is the improvement of our criminal jurisprudence and greater certainty and celerity in its administration. If murderers were brought quickly to trial, if the trials occupied a small fraction of the time that is now given to them, if there were fewer loopholes for the accused, this would probably not be such a notorious murder country, with its homicides exceeding 10,000 a year, against a comparatively insignificant number in England, and mobs would not undertake so often to do what the courts fail to do. While we are discussing politics let us not forget the subject of law reform, with all that it implies as to crime and injustice.

TWENTY YEARS AT LAW.

Serio-Comic Illustration of Legal Tardiness in the Courts.

A grimly humorous illustration of one of the results to the litigant may be found in another New York law suit which reached a final chapter recently in the Court of Appeals, says George W. Alger in the Atlantic. It was a complex case against an insurance company on some policies of insurance, and each time it was tried it took from a week to two weeks' attention of court and jury. Owing to reversals and new trials ordered by Appellate courts, it had to be tried nine times. It was in the courts from 1882 to 1902. The plaintiff became at last so sick and disheartened with his interminable lawsuit that he abandoned it, refused to go to his lawyers to consult with them about it or to appear when the case was being tried. The lawyers had themselves spent over $45,000 in fighting the case, and had worked on it for nearly twenty years. Their client having abandoned them, they settled the case for $30,000, and took the money themselves for their fee. The last chapter of the litigation was an unsuccessful attempt by the receiver in insolvency of the plaintiff to make the lawyers give up some of their fee to their client's creditors. How much the twenty years' delay in the lawsuit had to do with that insolvency it is impossible to say; but such an outcome, to the lay mind, seems hardly satisfactory as a result of twenty years of litigation, of nine trials and seventy-two days' time of over a hundred jurors.

DRINK 4 O'CLOCK COFFEE.

More New Yorkers Now Go in for What Used to Be Foreign Custom.

When he first got back from a trip abroad, the young man felt strongly the need of his afternoon coffee and cake when 4 o'clock came around. The New York Sun says this was not only custom, but a bit of medical advice, because the doctor at Carlsbad had told him that Americans didn't eat enough and that was a reason why they were so nervous.

The young man expected when he went into one of the small lunch places downtown that his request for coffee and cake might be looked upon as something odd, as typically foreign. It was to his surprise then that he found that he was not by any means the only person in the lunch place who was there with such an object.

There was a fair crowd, each man taking his coffee and cake. Some of the men appeared to be clerks and others were just office boys. So the young man spoke to one of the men behind the counter.

"Oh, yes," replied he, "there is always a good crowd in here at this hour. I think you will find the same thing in other food places. People seem to come in here just naturally for that mid-afternoon food, and with these fellows it isn't a case of a deferred luncheon either. They do it because they are hungry and they don't want too much. The habit ha come up very strongly in the last few years."

Cardboard Takes Qualities of Metal.

An eighth-inch disk of cardboard revolved on the shaft of an electric motor of highest speed gets stiff, owing to the rotary tension, which makes it behave like metal, and it can no longer be bent. If struck with a hammer a sound emits like that from bronze. It easily saws a cigar in two, similarly as a disk of soft iron, when rapidly rotated, cuts through heavy armor plate. Centrifugal force does many other strange things. Among others, when a small chain is looped around a high-speed rotary drum the chain can be shoved off the drum to the ground, where it bounces up and when struck acts like a ring of solid metal.

The Usual Custom.

Contributor—I should like to leave these poems with your editor. What is the usual procedure? I haven't done any magazine work before.

Office Boy—Well, the usual custom is to leave 'em an' call back in a day or so—and git 'em.—Human Life.

On Beacon Street.

"Why does the old frump, Miss Smith, always wear glasses?"

"She's afraid somebody would see her with the naked eye."—Harvard Lampoon.

A pretty girl is eagerly listened to even though she says nothing when she talks.

It's easy to have a good opinion of people you don't know very well.

His Luck.

"Why so glum to-day, Herr Professor?"

"Last time I walked through the forest the wasps bothered me frightfully. To-day I took my new wasp poison along and not a single one came near me."—Lachendes Jahrhundert.

An Eye to Profit.

"My wife says she would rather go to cooking school than play bridge whist," said one man.

"So would mine," replied the other. "But I'd rather have her play bridge."

"Is she a poor cook?"

"No, but she's a good bridge player."—Washington Star.

A Long Wait.

Golfer—The day I get round these links in under a hundred, I'll give you a shilling, Sandy!

Caddie—Hoo will I want it when I'm drawin' me auld-age pension?—Punch.

Not Yet "Finished."

"Is your daughter a finished musician?"

"Not yet. You see, the neighbors haven't dared to carry out their threats."

Pleasing Mother.

Daughter—So, mamma, you desire me to marry Mr. Baldhead. I simply detest him; he's a perfect idiot; it would take too long to enumerate all his faults.

Mother—Very well, my dear; you'll be able to tell him all that when you are married.—Pele Mele.

His Chief Aim.

"What will be your chief aim, now you are in Congress?" asked the interviewer.

"To stay there," answered the laconic young stateman.—Exchange.

A Proud Prerogative.

"When can a boy be said to have arrived at man's estate?"

"When he begins giving his old clothes to his father."—Kansas City Journal.

Mush.

"And what did you say you call this room?"

"The mushroom."

"What a queer name for a parlor!"

"Yes; but appropriate; my seven sisters became engaged in this room."—Houston Post.

Definition.

"How do you define 'black as your hat'?" said a schoolmaster to one of his pupils.

"Darkness that may be felt," replied the budding genius.—Columbia Jester.

A Novel Eruption.

"I want to get a good novel to read on the train—something pathetic."

"Let me see. How would 'The Last Days of Pompeii' do?"

"Pompeii? I never hard of him. What did he die of?"

"I'm not quite sure, ma'am, some kind of eruption, I've heard."—Ideas.

Neighborly.

"So you don't like that crowing rooster?"

"I haven't anything against the rooster personally. But every time he crows he reminds me that I don't like the people he belongs to."—Washington Star.

One Wish Unfulfilled.

Wife—You promised that if I would marry you my every wish would be gratified.

Husband—Well, isn't it?

Wife—No; I wish I hadn't married you.—Illustrated Bits.

Qualified Admiration.

"How do you like my hair, Jane?"

"Pretty well. But you can get better puffs than those at the store round the corner for 12 cents."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Cause for Nervousness.

"I am always horribly nervous when I buy a suit of clothes from a strange tailor."

"Yes, a person you don't know is hard to stand off."—Houston Post.

Better Not Said.

Mrs. Myles—I must go now.

Mrs. Styles—Oh, really, must you?

"Yes, really."

"Well, I'll come down and see you out."

"Oh, you needn't put yourself to that trouble, Mrs. Styles. I can find my way out."

"Oh, it's no trouble, I assure you, Mrs. Myles. I shall be delighted to see you out!"—Yonkers Statesman.

A Slight Mistake.

Old lady (to druggist)—I want a box of canine pills.

Druggist—What's the matter with the dog?

Old lady (indignantly)—I want you to know, sir, that my husband is a gentleman!

The druggist put up some quinine pills in profound silence.—Leslie's Monthly.

The Highest Tribunal.

Cheerless Chauncey— I tol' de loidy who owned dese tools dat I wuz once admitted to practice at de bar.

Drowsy Dan—What's dat you're sayin'?

Cheerless Chauncey—An' she asked me if I ever practiced at a bar o' soap.—Exchange.

Didn't Pay.

"So you don't think advertising pays?"

"Nope; I advertised for a wife once."

"And failed to get one?"

"Nope, got one."—Houston Post.

The Reason.

"Ah, well, wealth does not bring happiness!"

"Then why not give your wealth to me?"

"I think too much of you to want you to be unhappy."—Houston Post.

Varied Formula.

"Did he tell the whole truth?"

"Practically. He told the truth with a hole just large enough for him to crawl out of it."—Puck.

Shoe Pinched.

Photographer—Look pleasant, please.

Customer—One moment, then; I must take off these new shoes.—Fliegende Blatter.

No Chance to Learn.

Master—You should bring the glass of water on a tray; you learned very bad habits in your last place.

Servant—They never drank water.—Fliegende Blatter.

Arrived at a Conclusion.

"My husband is the biggest talker you ever heard," began the new acquaintance.

"Oh, I'm so glad," said the other lady who had been introduced; "my husband is a barber, too."—St. Louis Star.

Making Him Pay.

"I say," said the messenger boy, "that near-sighted man in 496 just fell ovar a broom and spilled a pail of water on himself."

"Take him up a towel," said the hotel manager, "and charge him for one bath."—Tit-Bits.

The Candidate.

"I hear he made his canvass in a touring car."

"Yes; he went around in a 1907 model."

"And it was shrewd campaigning. He caught the old-fashioned vote."—Kansas City Journal.

Tommy's Only Reason.

"You wouldn't be cruel enough to shoot a harmless little bird with a big gun, would you?" asked the kind lady.

"Naw," answered Tommy Tuffnut, "I kin hit 'em easier with a slingshot."—St. Louis Star.

Her Ambition.

Mary Ann had been Mrs. Gunther's cook and had left her service to marry Pat Mahone. A year later Mrs. Gunther heard that Mary Ann had not only become a widow, but was for the second time a joyful bride. It was therefore with a sense of shocked surprise that she met her former handmaid in the street one day clad in the deepest and darkest of widow's weeds.

"Why, Mary Ann!" exclaimed the lady, "I am sorry to see this—I thought that you were happily married again."

"'Tis true, I am," responded Mary Ann with a great cheerfulness, "and me present husband is a fine man. But you see 'twas this way: When Pat died, I couldn't, but I says to myself, if ever I can I will—and now I am!"

The Wish to Scatter Joy.

There is no beautifier of complexion or form or behavior like the wish to scatter joy around us.—Emerson.

Every time a man fails to make good he invents a new excuse.

THE MODEL CELLAR.

A Clean, Dry Place Quite Unlike the Damp Hole It Once Was.

A warm, dry cellar is literally and actually the foundation of a warm, dry, well-ventilated house. The evolution of the cellar is an interesting study in the development of human intelligence.

It was devised originally simply as a subterranean frost-proof pit, or cave, under the house, in which could be stored, first wines and later apples, potatoes, cabbages and other perishable fruits, together with milk, butter and cheese.

Next it was utilized, when the absurd insufficiency of stoves and fireplaces for heating purposes was recognized, as a convenient place to put the furnace. Then it was raised above ground to make the furnace draw better, and lighted and ventilated, until now it has become one of the most important sections of the house from a sanitary point of view.

It should be cleaned, lighted, heated and ventilated winter and summer as carefully and scrupulously as any other part of the house. When this is done, writes Dr. Hutchinson in Outing, we are rid at one stroke of dampness, with all its well-known rheumatic, tuberculous and other disease-breeding tendencies, of bad smells from decaying vegetables, accumulations of dirt in dark corners, leakage of sewer and other pipes, which are now in plain sight instead of buried in the earth, of cold floors and all the injurious effects which come from dampness and moist decay all through the house.

The complaint that heating the cellar has spoiled its use for storage purposes is simply a proof of its advantages. Nothing could be more utterly unsanitary in this twentieth century than to permit vegetables, cheese, fruits and milk to be piled together in dark bins and adjoining compartments, nibbled at and raced over by mice, rats and cockroaches, imparting the odors of decay from cabbage and rotting apples to milk, cream and cheese, and sending their combined aroma streaming constantly upward through the house on a natural automatic ventilation current.

SHORT METER SERMONS.

There are always some men and women who are willing to sacrifice the fragments of their self-respect in order to gain what they imagine to be social distinction, who will have social distinction even at the cost of moral extinction.—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Hebrew, New York City.

The little child that is familiar with his catechism is really more enlightened on truths that should come home to every rational mind than the most profound philosophers of pagan antiquity, or even than many so-called philosophers of our time.—Cardinal Gibbons, Roman Catholic, Baltimore.

Many a noble character has yielded to the tiny climbing of the vine of a sinful habit and practice. At first it was a small thing, but by tolerance, it grew and became stronger and stronger as the years passed by, and, alas, the sad end has come.—Rev. Dr. Broughton, Congregationalist, Atlanta.

Be loyal to the church, loyal to the lofty principles she has ever inculcated for the good of humanity, loyal to the memory and the godly inheritance transmitted by our forefathers, loyal to the country under whose free institutions we have flourished.—Archbishop Farley, Roman Catholic, New York City.

The kingdom of God waits because it seems to demand too much. To do good to men and to build up society is stopped midway because it takes too much heartache and too many weary hours. Everything of value in this world, it has been said, has been gained at the point of pain.—Rev. John A. Brown, Baptist, Providence.

To be king in the absolute sense in which Jesus asks it one must meet at least three demands. First, he must believe in me even more than I can believe in myself. Second, he must entirely and absolutely satisfy my intellect, and third, he must by his devotion and sacrifice win and hold my love. Jesus Christ does all these things.—Rev. Luther Freeman, Methodist, Chattanooga.

To-day the idea of heaven and hell as places of reward and punishment is almost wholly abandoned. Even the most conservative are teaching that there are states of life, whether here or hereafter. Consequently, we must find a new answer to the old question. Our answer is very simple. The measure of value in life here or hereafter is happiness. It is not money, nor position, nor influence, but the joy these are expected to bring.—Rev. A. G. Singsen, Baptist, Providence.

France's New Glory.

In this conquest of the air France has earned a glory of which nothing can deprive her. After all the foolish talk about French decadence it is refreshing to see the aspiring germs of France soaring triumphant into untraveled heights. Only America contests her supremacy in a domain which she has made her own. France may be proud of what is happening at Betheny. The spectacle is one full of reproach to ourselves, but we do not grudge France her glory. We rejoice in her renaissance. She has resumed her role as a pioneer of humanity.—London Chronicle.

Asking Too Much.

Charlie and Nancy had quarreled. After their supper mother tried to reestablish friendly relations. She told them of the Bible verse. "Let not the sun go down upon your wrath."

"Now, Charlie," she pleaded, "are you going to let the sun go down on your wrath?"

Charlie squirmed a little. Then: "Well, how can I stop it?"—Everybody's.

Some women look killing and others look daggers.

What Is a Republican?

Uncle Joe Cannon needn't swear so hard that he is a Republican. Everybody knows that he is. For half a dozen years or more the country has known him as the Gamaliel at whose feet neophites of the majority in the House have learned that robber tariff, moncpoly greed and avarice are the fundamental principles of orthodox latter-day Republicanism.

When Uncle Joe vehemently denies that he has tried to read Senator Cummins and the other insurgents out of the Republican party, while declaring in the same voice that if they are Republicans he is not one, he strengthens his claim to orthodox Republicanism, for latter-day Republicanism aims to fool all of the people all of the time, or as long as it can possibly be done.

It fooled the Republican voters of the West so badly last year that they sent to Washington Senators and Representatives who stood, and still stand, for the Republicanism of Lincoln and other Republican Presidents who were elected in the days when use of the word "protection" was carefully avoided in Republican platforms. These men know, upon the faith of Lincoln's word, that all of the people cannot be fooled all of the time and that it isn't profitable to keep on trying to do it. Therefore they are not Republicans, though they think they are and their constituents agree with them.

Uncle Joe proves that his Republicanism is all wool and a yard wide by making a last heroic effort to fool the people some more about the way the tariff plank of the Chicago platform was kicked into kindling wood in making of the Aldrich tariff. Carloads of information about foreign and domestic cost of production, he says, were dumped into the special session, but "no way has been discovered by which information can be put into a man's skull" unless he tries to get it there.

The cold record of the special session is that such information was sought by committees of the Senate and the House only in the case of about a dozen of the thousands of articles included in the schedules, and that when the most thorough of these inquiries obtained exact information about the cost of wood pulp and print paper Chairman Aldrich and the other orthodox latter-day Republicans of the Senate wouldn't read it.—Exchange.

England's Lesson.

Joseph Chamberlain some years ago tried to wave the "protection" flag and woo the Britishers from free trade, as a stepping stone toward the fulfillment of imperialistic dreams.

Other Britishers are now trying to galvanize the Chamberlain "protective" policy. Their motive is the same, and yet different. They have put imperialism in the background, temporarily, and are calling for a "protective" tariff as a revenue measure.

In other words, the British classes are grasping at any weapon in sight to defeat the demands of the masses for equitable taxation. Chamberlain's protection policy is seized upon not because intelligent Britishers believe in it, but because it affords an indirect way of keeping the chief government burdens on the backs of the common people.

Political economy is a familiar science to Britishers. They know, from the world's history and their own, that "protection" ultimately decreases revenue and that the better the protection the less government revenues there are.

Lloyd-George may be radical. But he has the masses of Britishers with him for one simple reason. He proposes by income taxes and land taxes to make the rich pay their just share of the burdens of government—something that the English classes have never done before.

And, by the same token, the British people will let Mr. Chamberlain's protection balloon collapse and sputter out. They don't want more taxes, as consumers, but less. And they are wedded to direct taxation, instead of indirect tariff robbery.

England's lesson to America will probably be clear and distinct when the British budget has been laid before the masses of Great Britain for final decision.

How the Tariff Works.

The man who imports $1,000 worth of diamonds pays a tax of but $100—10 per cent. If he imported a thousand shirts worth a dollar each he would have to leave at the custom house and tack onto his selling prices $600—60 per cent. If he decided that he would bring in a thousand dollars' worth of champagne, one of the items upon which there is a large increase, the tax levied by the tariff is $500. If he brought in $1,000 worth of blankets he would pay a tariff tax of $1,645.42. If he brought in $1,000 worth of paintings and statuary, all he would have to pay as customs duties would be $200, but if it were sugar he would pay $788.70 tax on $1,000 worth. If he brought in $1,000 worth of jewelry he would have to pay $600 tariff tax, but if he brought in $1,000 worth of woolen dress goods he would pay $1,050.90 tariff. If he imported a $5,000 automobile the tariff takers would relieve him of $2,250. If it were $5,000 worth of yarns, the tariff tax would be $6,960. If the importation were $5,000 worth of furs, the tariff tax would be $1,650, but if it were $5,000 worth of clothing, that tax would be $4,330. If some New York yacht the tariff would be $35,000, but millionaire brings in a $100,000 ocean if the importation were stockings, the tariff would be $87,950.—Henrietta (Tex.) Independent.

Sugar and the Campaign Fund.

The stories of bribery of underlings that are coming from the neighborhood of the New York Custom House are not necessary to inform anybody that such bribery was an inevitable adjunct to the sugar frauds for which several unimportant nobodies have been indicted. This is not the kind of news most desired from that quarter.

Of course the unsupported testimony of Parr and Corsa will not be accepted as proof that high officials of the Treasury had a guilty knowledge that the Government was being defrauded of millions by false sampling and tricky weighing. It is certain, however, that such information, if it came to their ears, was cruelly embarrassing.

It is known that for many years the Republican party has been winning its victories by means of the money which the great tariff-protected monopolies contribute to its campaign funds. In consideration of the cash the Republican leaders have permitted them to write their own tariff schedules by which the people are plundered. And when one of these concerns is caught plundering the Government, what are the party leaders to do?

Not a word of trustworthy evidence has yet been advanced to prove that the Treasury winked at the sugar frauds, though it is almost incredible that rumors of them should never have been heard in Washington. It is only human that party leaders hearing such stories would prefer to belittle or discredit them rather than to see their party go down to defeat in the light of full exposure.

The Republican party is hopelessly bound to the dead body of monopoly and corruption. It cannot be honest while the sources of its power are dishonest. It stands in a position where it cannot punish frauds upon the Government without destroying itself.

The surmise is not unwarranted that, however earnest Secretary MacVeagh may be in his desire for a thorough housecleaning in the "nest of corruption," which he describes the custom house service to be, the searchlight of the sugar prosecutions will not be turned too intently in the direction of the "men higher up." Turn the rascals out.—St. Louis Republic.

The Lumber Tariff Trickery.

Apologists for the Aldrich-Taft tariff as a measure of revision downward point occasionally to the reduction of the schedule on squared timber from one cent per cubic foot to one-half cent as an evidence that the poor man's burden has been lightened.

This is another instance where Mr. Aldrich's official compilation of statistics claims a reduction which is disproved by facts. Admittedly, the figures have been reduced. Practically the actual tariff has been increased. The trick is simple.

The Dingley tariff provided for a tax on "timber, hewn, sided or squared." To this phrase the Aldrich tariff adds the words, "otherwise than by sawing." Since timber is now all squared by the saw instead of by hewing with an ax, which was formerly the method, the four words inserted into the new tariff have the effect of taking squared timber out of the one-half-cent-a-cubic-foot class and putting it under boards.

This change in classification results in practically doubling the Dingley rate.

Unearthing these concealed schemes for raising the tariff under pretense of lowering it requires no wonderful skill. Lack of intelligent criticism by our national legislators while the measure was under discussion in congress is little tribute to the capacity of those opposed to the protective doctrine.—Chicago Journal.

The Craze for Big Warships.

To thoughtful persons the frequent Washington dispatches telling of plans for warships larger than anything European powers have dreamed of are disturbing. Reports that President Taft favors such additions to our navy do not allay apprehension.

Our naval architects promise vessels of forty feet draft and a tonnage that makes Britain's Dreadnoughts look like toys. This sounds very fine. Militant and imperialistic ambitions enjoy such visions of glory to come. The taxpaying public takes a different view.

Common-sense men who know both coasts of North America, and who are familiar with our navy yards, incline to the belief that leviathan warships are not only unnecessary, but would be, like the proboscidian of musical fame, an elephant on our hands.

The Mare Island navy yard cost $17,000,000, and is not available to some of our present battleships because of shoal water. Such ships as are proposed would be unable to enter New York harbor and could not be docked in any dry-dock in America.

Americans are justly proud of their navy. They have not complained at wholesale waste of naval appropriations for political purposes. But such manifestly Quixotic battleships as now proposed are too much even for patient America.

Getting at the Facts.

Directory Convasser—What is your husband's occupation?

Mrs. O'Hoolihan—Sure, an' it's a shovel engineer on a railroad he do be.

Directory Canvasser—You mean a civil engineer, don't you?

Mrs. O'Hoolihan—Faith, an' yez may be roight, sor. He's civil enough, Oi'm afther thinkin', but anny way he shovels the coal into the engine.—The Wasp.

How Could He Tell?

Bill—They say that mercury freezes at 40 degrees below zero.

Jill—That's right.

"Well, how could Dr. Cook tell it was 60 below at the North Pole?"

"Oh, when the temperature is below 40 degrees they keep the thermometer in the oven!"—Yonkers Statesman.

The Man in Need.

The director of a matrimonial agency says the young girls ask only: "Who is he?"

The young widows: "What is his position?"

The old widows: "Where is he?"—Pick-Me-Up.

THE WAVERLY HOTEL

CLYDE OBERLIN, Prop.

Warm Meals and Lunch served at all hours, day or night.

Fine line of Candies, Cigars and Tobacco.

East Side Broadway

Dr. Harrison

PHYSICIAN and SURGEON.

BUTLER, - IND.

Dr. Bulson

OFFICE AND RESIDENCE 219 WEST WAYNE STREET

FORT WAYNE.

PRACTICE LIMITED TO DISEASES OF THE EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT.

GLASSES ADJUSTED.

E. B. DUNTEN,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.

Prompt, Careful and Efficient Attention given to All Legal Business.

Office over Phillips drug store, Butler.

BEECHLER & SON,

DENTISTS.

CROWN AND BRIDGE WORK

Plates and all Dental Surgery given prompt attention. Office over Shapland's store. Sunday 9:30 to 12 o'clock

BUTLER, INDIANA.

FRANK A. BRINK

Attorney-at-Law

Notary Public.

Special Attention Given to Collections

Dr. W. F. Shumaker

Special Attention Given to Chronic Diseases

OFFICE HOURS

7 to 8 a. m. 1 to 3 p. m.

7 to 8 p. m.

5 DROPS

TRADE MARK

THE STANDARD REMEDY FOR ALL FORMS OF

RHEUMATISM

LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, NEURALGIA, KIDNEY TROUBLES, CATARRH, ASTHMA and KINDRED DISEASES

GIVES QUICK RELIEF

Applied externally it affords almost instant relief from pain, while permanent results are being effected by taking it internally, purifying the blood, dissolving the poisonous substance and removing it from the system.

DR. C. L. GATES

Hancock, Minn., writes:

"A little girl here had such a weak back caused by Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble that she could not stand on her feet. The moment they put her down on the floor she would scream with pains. I treated her with "5-DROPS" and today she runs around as well and happy as can be. I prescribe "5-DROPS" for my patients and use it in my practice."

TEST "5-DROPS" FREE

If you are suffering with Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble or any kindred disease, write to us for a trial bottle of "5-DROPS." "5-DROPS" is entirely free from opium, cocaine, morphine, alcohol, laudanum and other similar ingredients.

Large Size Bottle "5-DROPS" (300 Doses) $1.00. For Sale by Druggists.

SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE COMPANY

Dept. 60. 174 Lake Street, Chicago

He Hustled. He Advertised.

He put himself and his business before the people, and is now reaping his reward. If you desire to reach the buying classes you must patronize the newspaper that is widely circulated. ... You take no chances when you advertise in

This Paper.

0423

L1134

DECEMBER

The Redemption of David Corson

By CHARLES FREDERIC GOSS

Copyright, 1900, by The Bowen-Merrill Company. All Rights Reserved

CHAPTER XVIII.—(Continued.)

His interest and excitement culminated in an incident for which the listener was totally unprepared. The speaker who had been exhorting his audience upon the testimony of prophet and apostle now appealed to his own personal experience.

"Look at me!" he said, laying his great hand on his broad chest. "I was once as hardened and desperate a man as any of you; but God saved me! See this book!" he added, holding up the old volume. "I will tell you a story about it. I found it in a log cabin away out in the frontier State of Ohio. Listen, and I will tell you how. I had left a lumber camp with a company of frontiersmen one Sunday morning, to go to a new clearing which we were making in the wilderness, when I suddenly discovered that I had forgotten my axe. Swearing at my misfortune I returned to get it. As I approached the cabin which I had left a few minutes before, I heard a human voice. I paused in surprise, crept quietly to the doo rand listened. Some one was talking in almost the very language in which I have spoken to you. I was frightened and fled! Escaping into the depths of the forest, I lay down at the root of a great tree, and for the first time in my life I made a silence in my soul and listened to the voice of God. I know not how long I lay there; but at last when I recovered my consciousness I returned to the cabin. It was silent and empty; but on the floor I found this book."

"Great heaven!" exclaimed a voice.

So rapt had been the attention of the hearers that at this unexpected interruption the women screamed and the men made a wide path for the figure that burst through them and rushed toward the platform. The speaker paused and fixed his eye upon the man who pressed eagerly toward him.

"Tell me whether a red line is drawn down the edge of a certain chapter!" he cried.

"It is," replied the lumberman.

"Then let me take it!" exclaimed David, reaching out his trembling hands.

"What for?"

"Because it is mine! I am the man who proclaimed the holy faith, and, God forgive me, abandoned it even as you received it!"

The astonished lumberman handed him the Bible, and he covered it with kisses and tears. In the meantime, the crowd, excited by the spectacular elements of the drama, surged round the actors, and the preacher, reaching down, took David by the arm and raised him to the platform.

"Be quiet, my friends," he said, with a gesture of command, "and when this prodigal has regained his composure we will ask him to tell us his story."

Of what was transpiring around him David seemed to be entirely unconscious and at last the fickle crowd became impatient.

"What's de matter wid you?" said a sarcastic voice.

"Speak out! Don't snuffle," exclaimed another.

"Tip us your tale," cried a fourth.

"Go on. Go on. We're waiting," called many more.

These impatient cries at last aroused David from his waking dream, he drew his hand over his eyes, and began his story. For a time the strange narrative produced a profound impression. Heads drooped as if in meditation upon the mystery and meaning of life; significant glances were exchanged; tears trembled in many eyes; these torpid natures received a shock which for a moment awakened them to a new life.

But it was only for a moment. They were incapable of the sustained effort of thought, of ambition, or of will. Impressions made upon their souls were like those made on the soft folds of a garment by the passing touch of a hand.

To their besotted perceptions this scene was like a play in a Bowery theater, and now that the dramatic denouement had come, they lost their interest and sauntered away singly or in little groups. In a few moments there were only three figures left in the light of the flaming torch. They were those of the lumberman, David, and Mantel, who now drew near, took his friend by the hand and pressed it with a gentle sympathy.

"Where did you come from?" asked David, in surprise, as he for the first time recognized his companion.

"I have followed you all the evening," Mantel replied.

"Then you have heard the story of this book?"

"I have, and I could not have believed it without hearing."

"Can you spare us a little of your time?" said David, turning to the lumberman.

"I owe you all the time you wish and all the service I can render," he replied.

"You have more than paid your debt by what you have done for me to-night, but who are you?"

"I am only another voice crying in the wilderness."

"How do you support yourself?" asked Mantel, to whom such a man was a phenomenon.

"We do not any of us support ourselves so much as we are supported," he replied.

"And this life of toil and self-denial had its origin in those words I spoke in the empty lumber camp?" asked David, incredulously.

"It is not a life of self-denial, but that was its beginning."

"It is a mystery. I lost my faith and you found it, and now perhaps you are going to give it back again," David said.

The lumberman turned his searching eyes kindly on Mantel's face and said, "And how is it with thee, my friend; hast thou the peace of God?"

The directness of the question startled the gambler. "I have no peace of any kind; my heart is full of storms and my life is a ruin," he answered, sadly.

"Did thee never notice," said the lumberman, gently, "how nature loves to reclaim a ruin?"

"I shall never be reclaimed. I have gone too far. I have often tried to find the true way of life, and prayed for a single glimpse of light! Have you ever heard how Zeyd used to spend hours leaning against the wall of the Kaaba and praying, 'Lord, if I knew in what manner thou wouldst have me adore thee, I would obey thee; but I do not! Oh! give me light!' I have prayed that prayer with all that agony, but, to me, the universe is dark as hell!"

"There is light enough! It is eyes we need!" said the evangelist.

"Light! Who has it? Many think they have, but it is mere fancy. They mistake the shining of rotten wood for fire!"

"And sometimes men have walked in the light without seeing it, as fish swim in the sea and birds flying in the air, might say, 'Where is the sea?' 'Where is the air?'"

"But what comfort is it, if there is light, and I cannot see it? There might as well be no light at all!"

"The bird never knows it has wings until it tries them! We see, not by looking for our eyes, but by looking out of them. We say of a little child that it has to 'find its legs.' Some men have to find their eyes."

"It is an art, then, to see? Can you impart that capacity and teach that art?"

"No, it must be acquired by each man for himself. We can only tell others 'we see.' We see by faith."

"And what is faith?"

"It is a power of the soul as much higher than reason as reason is higher than sense."

"Some men may possess such power, but I do not."

"You at least have an imagination."

"Yes."

"Well, faith is but the imagination spiritualized."

Mantel regarded the man who spoke in these terse and pregnant sentences with astonishment. "This," said he, "is not the same language in which you addressed the people in the Battery. This is the language of a philosopher! Do all lumbermen in the west speak thus?"

The evangelist began to reply, but was interrupted by David, who now burst out in a sudden exclamation of joy and gratitude. He had been too busy with reflections and memories to participate actively in the conversation, for this startling incident had disclosed to him the whole slow and hidden movement of the providence of his life towards this climax and opportunity. He was profoundly moved by a clear conviction that a divine hand must have planned and superintended this whole web of events, and had intentionally led him from contemplating the tragic issue of his sinful deeds and desires, to this vision of the good he had done in the better moments of his life.

With that instantaneous movement in which his disordered conceptions of life invariably re-formed themselves, the chaotic events of the past shifted themselves into a purposeful and comprehensible series, and revealed beyond peradventure the hand of God.

And as this conclusion burst upon him, he broke into the conversation of Mantel and the lumberman with the warmest exclamations of gratitude and happiness.

They talked a long time in the quiet night, asking and answering questions. The two friends besought the evangelist to accompany them to their rooms, but he said:

"I have given you my message and must pass on. My work is to bear testimony. I sow the seed and leave its cultivation and the harvest to others."

CHAPTER XIX.

Too busy with their own thoughts to talk on the way home, on entering their rooms Mantel threw himself into a chair, while David nervously began to gather his clothes together and crowd them hastily into a satchel.

"What's up?" asked Mantel.

"I'm off in the morning. I am going to find Pepeeta."

"Do you really expect to succeed?"

"Expect to! I am determined!. I am going to find Pepeeta, take her back to that quiet valley where I lived, and get myself readjusted to life. I need time for reflection, and so do you. What do you say? Will you join me? I cannot bear to leave you? You have been a friend, and I love you!"

"Thanks, Corson, thanks. You have come nearer to stirring this dead heart of mine than any one since—well, no matter. I reciprocate your feeling. I shall have a hard time of it after you have gone."

"Then join me."

"It is impossible."

"But why? This life will destroy you sooner or later."

"Oh—that's been done already."

"Think of your mother."

"Mantel, you are carrying this too far. A man is something more than the mere chemical product of his ancestor's blood and brains! Every one has a new and original endowment of his own. He must live and act for himself."

"I cannot bear to leave you, Mantel. Join me. Such feelings as these which stir us so deeply to-night do not come too often. It must be dangerous to resist them. I suppose there are slight protests and aspirations in the soul all the time, but these to-night are like the flood of the tide."

"Yes," said Mantel; "the Nile flows through Egypt every day, but flows over it only once a year."

"And this is the time to sow the seed, isn't it?"

"So they say. But you must remember that you feel this more deeply that I do, Davy. I am moved. I have a desire to do better, but it isn't large enough. It is like a six-inch stream trying to turn a seven-foot wheel."

"Don't make light of it, Mantel!"

"I don't mean to, but you must not overestimate the impressions made on me. I am not so good as you think."

"I wish you had the courage to be as good as you are."

"But there is no use trying to be what I am not. If I should start off with you, I should never be able to follow you. My old self would get the victory. In the long run, a man will be himself. 'Nature is often hidden, sometimes overcome—seldom extinguished.'"

"What a mood you are in, Mantel! It makes me shiver to hear you talk so. Here I am, full of hope and purpose; my heart on fire; believing in life; confident of the outcome; and you, a better man by nature than I am, sitting here, cold as a block of ice, and the victim of despair! I ought to be able to do something! Sweet as life is to me to-night, I feel that I could lay it down to save you."

"Dear fellow!" said Mantel, grasping his hands and choking with emotion; "you don't know how that moves me! It can't seem half so strange to you as it does to me; but I must be true to myself. If I told you I would take this step I should not be honest. No! Not to-night! Sometimes, perhaps. I haven't much faith in life, but I swear I don't believe, bad man as I am, that anybody can ever go clear to the bottom, without being rescued by a love like that! I'll never forget it, Davy; never! It will save me sometime; but you must not talk any more, you are tired out. Go to bed, friend, brother, the only one I ever really had and loved. You will need your sleep. Leave me alone, and I will sit the night out and chew the bitter cud."

It was not until Daybreak that David ceased his supplications and lay down to snatch a moment's rest. When he awoke, he sprang up suddenly and saw Mantel still sitting before the open window where he left him, pondering the great problem. They parted, one to break through the meshes and escape, and the other—!

In Australia, when drought drives the rabbits southward, the ranchmen, terrified at their approach, have only to erect a woven wire fence on the north side of their farms to be perfectly safe, for the poor things lie down against it and die in droves—too stupid to go round, climb over, or dig under! It is a comfort to see one of them now and then who has determined to find the green fields on the southward side,—no matter what it costs!

Weak and bad as he had been, David at least took the first path which he saw leading up to the light.

(To be continued.)

IDIOTS CANNOT BLUSH.

Blushing Denotes Intellect and Is Caused by Desire to Please.

An eminent English medical psychologist has recently declared that it requires brains to blush; that the ability to blush is in direct ratio to mental alertness and that blushing is an achievement of which every one should be proud, for it is a positive sign of an active brain.

Idiots cannot blush and neither can animals, says Pearson's Weekly. Similarly infants do not blush, although they may learn to do so at an early age, just as soon, in fact, as the brain begins to exercise its higher functions. Moreover, the blush cannot be caused by any physical means; it is the mind which must be affected.

Aisde from the fact that blushing has its origin in the mind, its most striking peculiarity is that it is, with rare exceptions, confined to the face, ears and neck.

While the whole body may tingle with heat, there are few known cases where the actual reddening of the skin extended farther than the collar bones or the shoulder blades.

According to Darwin and Sir James Paget, our personal appearance and not our moral conduct is the fundamental element in blushing. It all started with the wish to be admired, in the mere thinking of what other people thought of us.

In the early stages of civilization people were judged more for their physical beauty than for their moral conduct, and the habit of blushing arose from the fear of blame or disapproval on that account.

Then, as the race progressed and moral and intellectual qualities became more and more to be valued, the fear of blame or disapproval became, as it were, grafted on to the other and simpler fear; and came to express itself, by mental association, in the same way.

As our ideals became more complex and we kept adding to our reasons for blushing, we were not able to change our physical make-up, and continued to blush in the same old way for all the new causes.

This brings us to the difference between the flush of anger and the true blush. As anger is a mental state incited from without, so the mental confusion which shows itself in the blush originates within us.

We have seen how blushing originated in an anxiety about our personal appearance. Now, our chief concern in this regard has always been the face, the natural seat of personal attractiveness.

Therefore, the first thought upon meeting those whom we desire to please was of our faces; and if for any reason we suspected that our faces did not please, our minds were naturally concentrated upon the defect there.

Shyness, modesty, shame—all have their foundation in the primitive love of admiration; and the blush of a girl who meets her lover is, after all, only a sublime sort of personal vanity, questioning its owner's power to please.

Modern Romance.

"Doll heart, tell me something," murmured the swain.

"What is it?" inquired the lady.

"Do you really love me?"

"Do I really love you? Ain't I giving up alimony for you?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Then He Went.

"I think I must be going," remarked the young man for the tenth time.

"You do not appear to be going," declared the young lady, after inspecting him carefully. "You seem to be perfectly stationary."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

His Better Half.

"I'm introducing a brand new invention—a combined talking machine, carpet sweeper and letter opener," said the agent, stepping briskly into an office.

"Got one already," answered the proprietor. "I'm married."—Bohemian.

Puns Fashionorum.

Mrs. Upper Tenne—Yes, doctor, black and red spots appear before my eyes every night. What would you advise me to do for it?

Doctor—Stop playing bridge, madame.—Boston Transcript.

Ways of Women

Why Women Do Not Marry.

It is possible that the woman never lived who was born without the instinct of romantic love and its less romantic sequels, but the sharpened intellects of the modern female teach her to observe not only that indulgence in the primitive blessings is often productive of a tame happiness at best, but that it is mere chance if she does not waste several years of her active youth for some man to exert his inalienable right to woo and propose.

A man may trample down barriers, make opportunities, persist, overwhelm, but a woman, with double the fascination and intelligence, must either stoop to contemptible scheming or proudly bide her time, as likely as not to miss her one chance of happiness because circumstances do not give her the opportunity to reveal herself to the kindred spirit.

If she cannot pursue a man as a man pursues a woman when he wants her, if she has not the supreme attractions which bring a man to a woman's feet with a flash of the eye, she can at least avoid the mean subterfuges of the husband-hunters, and lead a life in which a man as a love factor is practically eliminated. She can also enjoy much the same privileges as men, until, perhaps—who knows?—one day she may meet in this larger, fuller life a congenial, many-sided creature who wants something more than a reproduction of his grandmother.

Why Living Is High.

One reason why living is high is because we are in an era of rising prices, world wide and apparently progressive to yet greater heights. Scholars attribute this to increased gold production, multiplied demands of prosperity and a reckless spirit that does not count the cost of any indulgence that one can afford.

Another reason why the cost of living is high is because we live high. The right economics and systematic self-denials of former days are not now practiced; are not, indeed, necessary, even to those who amass wealth from most modest beginnings. On the other hand, lavish expenditure is the rule and the budget of the average family discloses many forms of outlay that were unknown or tabooed a generation ago. In the main this is well enough. It is all the accompaniment of progress and better standards of living. In spite of our increased outlays men get richer and get rich more quickly than they could possibly do forty years ago. So the high cost of living is not reducing us to poverty or depriving us of our comfort and luxuries. It is idle and perhaps wrong to "go it" at this pace and then complain that little is left after we have bought everything our hearts desire.—Indianapolis Star.

Fur Trimming Popular.

Fur bands appear everywhere on women's apparel. They are seen in tiny lines on dancing frocks and on heavy Russian hats and cloaks. A charming set seen recently was a scarf, short and 12 inches wide, and a hat trimmed with a band of the fur. The scarf was worn softly folded over the shoulders and gathered into buckles at the bust. The moire colonial hat had the edges softened by a generous band of the fur and little cockades of ribbon on either side.

For Greater Warmth.

Capes are cold things when worn in winter, but being fashionable they are popular in spite of colds and coughs. Here is a hint for making them more comfortable:

Make a pair of loose sleeves of silk the color of lining or outside of cape, as preferred. The latter is more serviceable. Wad well, finish on top and bottom and attach to the cape with a ribbon or elastic.

To adjust sleeves put them on, throw cape over them and tack near shoulder line. Take care that they do not pull the cape out of shape.

New Type of Gown.

Pretty semi-evening gowns, called abroad casino gowns, are being worn with but slight decolletage and transparent guimpes of tulle or mousseline. The materials used on gowns of this type are embroideries, laces or crepe de chines, for satin seems to be somewhat passe. Many of them are trimmed with deep silk fringe, and, as the guimpe is always collarless, beautiful dog collars of jeweled velvet or jet are worn, so that the gown may be becoming with a hat. Somehow a collarless gown and a picture hat are not always a pretty combination.

The Man Who Flirts.

The male flirt is one of the most detestable types that walk the earth, writes Betty Vincent. I mean the man who meets a girl, is apparently smitten to the heart with her charms, "rushes" her for a week or two, seeing her upon every possible occasion and then as suddenly loses all interest in her. To be sure, it is partly the fault of the girl who permits a man to call upon her almost every night and in other ways shows that her friendship is easily attained. On the other hand, there are very young girls of 18 or 20 who are too flattered by such attentions to give them their proper weight.

Usually the man belonging to this class is very careful to commit himself to nothing. His eyes look unutterable things, but he is very careful not to express them. He thinks of the girl as "one more conquest" and as soon as he is certain of her interest in him his own interest wanes. Be careful of these "rushers," girls. Remember that when a man really cares for you he respects you enough not to take it for granted that your friendship may be had for the asking. Do not be too flattered by sudden bursts of admiration. True love is slow and sure.

The designers make no secret now of the fact that they are making a strong endeavor to launch the short gown of Restoration days. Even wedding gowns of splendid satin and point lace clear the floor; not all of them, of course; no fashion is absolute, and few new ones are anything but experimental. Evening frocks in all degrees of formality and in the costliest fabrics clear the floor. These are not permissible for the woman over 45, but they will be suggested to all debutantes and young matrons. Just how far the style will be accepted it is hard to tell. Many women, especially those who are fond of dancing, will be only too delighted to accept it. Dignity and elegance can not be claimed for it, but it holds the blue ribbon of comfort, and that goes far toward its general acceptance. Both skirts to suits and one-piece frocks under top coats, for street year, are generally accepted. There is no sign of going back to the trailing directoire street skirts of last year. The tailors are busy cutting off hems. Their customers are only too glad to have the fashion change. One year was enough of it.

Home.

A man can build a mansion
And furnish it throughout;
A man can build a palace,
With lofty walls and stout;
A man can build a temple,
With high and spacious dome;
But no man in the world can build
That precious thing called home.

So 'tis a happy faculty
Of women far and wide,
To turn a cot or palace
Into something else beside,
Where brothers, sons and husband tried,
With willing footsteps come,
A place of rest, where love abounds,
A perfect kingdom—Home.
—Janet Jones.

Points in Ironing.

When ironing blouses or dresses with large buttons sewn on it will be found a much easier task if the work is done on several thicknesses of blankets or towels. Turn the garment button side down and press on the wrong side. The buttons sink into the soft padding, leaving a smooth surface for the iron to polish.

World's Largest Room.

The largest room in the world under one roof and unbroken by pillars is in St. Petersburg. It is 620 feet long by 150 feet in breadth. By daylight it is used for military displays, and a whole battalion can completely maneuver in it. By night 20,000 wax tapers give it a beautiful appearance. The roof is a single arch of iron.

Making Glue Stick.

Those who have had occasion to use glue extensively have found that frequently after the glue dries the article to which it has been applied breaks, tears or springs off, and will be glad to know that if glycerine in the proportion of one part of glycerine to four parts of glue be mixed with the glue the defect will entirely disappear.

Children Learn to Dance.

Miss Eleanor Davidson of Denver believes that children do better work if they learn how to dance, the exercise and the rhythm helping in the quickening of their minds. The only dance step used is the running hop of the old-fashioned polka, which, she says, comes as naturally to children as skipping.

Kipling Revised.

Rudyard Kipling slandered woman by defining her as "a rag and a bone and a hank of hair," but a Lonaconing lady seven years married, gets back rhythmically with this synopsis of a man: "A jag and a drone and a tank of air."—Springfield Republican.

Fireless Cooking.

In fireless cooking certain things must be remembered by the inexperienced cook. One is that if food is left indefinitely in the cooker it will sour. Soups, stews, vegetables and such things must be removed after twenty-four hours and less in hot weather. Another thing is that some foods require a longer time on the fire before being put in the cooker than others do. Cereals may require only ten minutes and tough meat half an hour. It is best to find out something about the length of time the different things require before beginning to use the cooker. Generally speaking, all indigestible things require much longer than other things. Oatmeal, beef stew, corned beef and beans need more time than steamed puddings, rice and chicken. A third thing to remember is this: Everything that takes a very long time to cook is improved and the process is hastened if when the time is half up and the food cooled, the pail is removed and reheated without opening it and put back again.

Shall Smiling Be Made Mandatory?

Is there no peace in the world for the person of serious mien? Must one smile, smile, smile from morning till night whether one feels like it or not?

Faddists say the dinner table joke is the best aid to digestion and promotes domestic peace. When dull care intrudes, laugh it away. If your neighbor flies to wrath because your cocker spaniel chases his fowls, dissolve his anger with a smile. In short, keep on smiling.

And now comes a new social disease which this panacean smile is guaranteed to cure. As if man had not already crystallized his features into a perpetual grin, he is now advised to smile to prevent his committing suicide! This new doctrine is advocated by a writer in a medical publication. "Play, smile and don't kill yourself," is the slogan in brief.

Let us harbor still a kind thought for the person who refuses to smile at society's behest. Not that any one would discourage smiling; merely let us not make the rule mandatory. At least, permit us some little opinion as to when and how much we shall smile. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Laugh of Woman.

A woman has no natural gift more bewitching than a sweet laugh. It is like the sound of flutes on the water. It leads from her a clear, sparkling rill, and the heart that hears it feels as if bathed in the cool, exhilarating spring. Have you ever pursued an unseen fugitive through trees, led on by a fairy laugh, now here, now there, now lost, now found? We have. And we are pursuing that wandering voice to this day. Sometimes it comes to us in the midst of care or sorrow, or irksome business and then we turn away and listen, and hear it ringing through the room like a silver bell, with power to scare away the evil spirits of the mind. How much we owe to that sweet laugh! It turns the prose to poetry; it flings showers of sunshine over the darkness of the wood in which we are traveling; it touches with light even our sleep, which is no more than the image of death, but is consumed with dreams that are the shadows of immortality.—Manford's Magazine.

Simple Style of Hairdressing.

There are two leading styles of hairdressing at this moment. For pretty youthful faces the "whirlwind" coil, that divides the hair into straight untwisted strands and outlines the head in straplike coils, is the first choice. The other style builds the head out moderately at the back and arranges upon it a knot or coil of some more or less natural kind. Women who have puffs are employing them on this padded back, but the puffs are frowned upon by the powers that be in the hairdressing world.

It is braids and switches that occupy the prominent places in hairdressing windows. All the puffs and curls that played a leading part so long have been relegated to the background or even to the abyss of past fashions. As a result of the radical change in the coiffure, heads are smaller than they have been for a good many seasons and everybody with a liking for the natural is glad to see the simple styles once more.

"What's in a Name?"

Irene was a little street waif. A kind-hearted woman called her into her home one day, gave her a bath, brushed her hair and arranged it becomingly, tying it with a clean, pretty ribbon; then stepped back to view the result. A friend who was present remarked that there was such a change, one would scarcely know that it was the same child. Then the little girl spoke up timidly, "But my name's Irene yet, ain't it?"—The Delineator for October.

Making Buttonholes.

When making buttonholes in material always choose a thread twenty numbers coarser than that which you would naturally use in the material. For instance, if you are sewing a piece of material with No. 80 cotton, you can work the buttonholes with No. 60.

Blacking a Hot Stove.

To blacken a stove when hot clean first with newspapers, then add a teaspoonful of sugar to one teacupful of mixed blacking. The sugar makes the blacking adhere to the stove.

Memories of the War

Capture of General Morgan.

A whole lot of questions that survived the Civil War will be discussed and never settled so long as any of the participants are alive. One of these is around the death of General John H. Morgan, the Confederate leader, who led a raid into Ohio and Indiana and penetrated farther into northern territory than any other Southern commander. General Morgan was captured near the Ohio river, carried to the Ohio penitentiary, escaped, reorganized his command and was killed at Greenville, Tenn.

N. H. Gaines, a dentist at No. 1116 Main street, Kansas City, was an adjutant in General Morgan's command and saw his commander killed at Greenville. He had investigated the causes of the surprise, capture and shooting of Morgan. An answer to a letter written to Greenville recently is, he believes, the true story.

"I had always believed that a young woman, the daughter-in-law of Mrs. Catherine D. Williams, whose husband was with the Union army, gave the Federals information which led to the surprise, capture and death of General Morgan," Mr. Gaines said. "When we approached the Williams home on the day before Morgan was killed we saw this young woman ride away from the house. General Morgan was supicious and asked Mrs. Williams who the young woman was and where she was going. The reply was that the young woman was going to a neighbor's house for watermelons. The answer was frankly given and we believed it at the time. But after the general's death every one believed that the woman who was seen to ride away from the house went to where General A. G. Gillem, the Federal commander, was camped and told him where Morgan could be found. Morgan stayed all night in the Williams house and was captured early the next morning. He was shot after he had surrendered and given up his arms.

"I wrote to Greenville some time ago, asking the postmaster to refer my letter to some one who knew of the circumstances of General Morgan's death. I received an answer from A. B. Wilson, of that place, who looked into the matter. His answer acquits the young woman of treachery forty-five years after the death of Morgan."

Mr. Wilson's account of the death of the Southern raider follows:

"It is impossible to down or refute all reports in relation to this event. Because a woman left the home of Mrs. Williams shortly after the arrival of Morgan, General Duke jumped to the conclusion that she had acted traitor and reported Morgan's whereabouts to General Gillem. This is false. The young Mrs. Williams, daughter-in-law of Mrs. Catherine D. Williams, while her husband was, I suppose, a Union man and within the Federal lines, was a Southern sympathizer just the same. She was, before her marriage, a Runbaugh, one of the best families of Virginia, and had two brothers in the Southern army. One was a captain and the other a major.

"The truth is that she went to a farm owned by her mother-in-law, four miles from Greenville, where she was seen by a number of persons. She intended to return with watermelons for the distinguished guest. On account of a heavy rain she did not return until the next day, but spent the night with Mrs. Bartly, a tenant on the farm, and came into Greenville that morning just after the Federals had entered the town. She was escorted into town by Federal pickets, thus arousing the suspicion that she had betrayed Morgan.

"I have also seen a dispatch from Washington giving the credit of Morgan's death to Mrs. Sarah E. Thompson, who died August 26, this year. This is equally false. Mrs. Thompson had been married about four times. Her first husband, Thompson, whose name she chose to go by, was a Federal scout, or, perhaps, a bushwhacker, during the Civil War. I have heard of her setting up the claim of having caused the death of Morgan with the idea of getting a pension by act of Congress. I am certain that she had nothing whatever to do with the matter. It would have been impossible for a woman to have made the trip of eighteen miles to General Gillem's camp.

"The person who did give the information to General Gillem, which caused Morgan's death and the capture of his command, was a boy named John Leady and others, who gave the directions as to how to move in order to effect the surprise of General Morgan. In fact, General Gillem sent a dispatch to his superior officers intended to put an end to the rumors of a woman having betrayed the Confederate general. In this he stated that no woman had given him the information that led to the capture and killing of General Morgan."

The young woman who was suspected of the treachery seems never to have denied the charge. Mr. Gaines does not know what became of her.

A Memory of Bull Run.

The following extraordinary letter was written by Horace Greeley to President Lincoln after the battle of Bull Run. It will be remembered that before the battle Mr. Greeley kept a standing headline in his paper urging the armies "Forward to Richmond—Forward to Richmond":

"New York, Monday, July 29, 1861—midnight.—Dear Sir: This is my seventh sleepless night—yours too, doubtless—yet I think I shall not die, because I have no right to die. I must struggle to live, however bitterly. But to business. You are not considered a great man, and I am a hopelessly broken one. You are now undergoing a terrible ordeal, and God has thrown the gravest responsibilities upon you. Do not fear to meet them. Can the rebels be beaten after all that has occurred, and in view of the actual state of feelings caused by our late awful disaster? If they can—and it is your business to ascertain and decide—write me that such is your judgment, so that I may know and do my duty. And if they cannot be beaten—if our recent disaster is fatal—do not fear to sacrifice yourself to your country. If the rebels are not to be beaten—if that is your judgment in view of the light—then every drop of blood henceforth shed in this quarrel will be wantonly, wickedly shed and the guilt will rest heavily on the soul of every promoter of the crime. I pray you to decide quickly and let me know my duty.

"If the Union is irrevocably gone, an armistice for thirty, sixty, ninety, one hundred and twenty days—better still, for a year—ought at once be proposed, with a view to a peaceful adjustment. Then Congress should call a national convention, to meet at the earliest day. And there should be an immediate and mutual exchange or release of prisoners and a disbandment of forces. I do not consider myself at present a judge of anything but the public sentiment. That seems to me everywhere gathering and deepening against a prosecution of the war. The gloom in this city is funeral—for our dead at Bull Run were many, and they lie unburied yet. On every brow sits sullen, scorching, black despair. It would be easy to have Mr. Crittenden move any proposition that ought to be adopted, or to have it come from any proper quarter. The first point is to ascertain what is best that can be done—which is the measure of our duty—and do that thing at the earliest moment.

"This letter is written in the strictest confidence, and for your eye alone. But you are at liberty to say to members of your cabinet that you know I will second any move you may see fit to make. But do nothing timidly nor by halves. Send me word what to do. I will live till I can hear it at all events. If it is best for the country and for mankind that we make peace with the rebels at once and on their own terms, do not shrink even from that. But bear in mind the greatest truth: 'Whoso would lose his life for my sake shall save it.' Do the thing that is the highest right, and tell me how I am to second you. Yours, in the depth of bitterness.

"HORACE GREELEY."

City Troops Were the Toughest.

"I noticed a few days ago an article concerning the mortality among the German members of the G. A. R.," said Captain William T. Haskell of Washington, D. C., to a reporter, "and was struck by the facts it presented. I have not hitherto paid any attention to this question, but since the matter has been called to my notice I recollect that the deaths among the German veterans of my acquaintance have been frequest during the last few years. Another point in regard to Grand Army mortality which I have studied with some care is the fact that the death rate of those who originally came from the country far exceeds that of the city men. It is generally supposed that a country life is conducive to health, but as far the records of the War Department prove anything, the contrary is the case.

"When in the Army of the Potomac I served in a regiment recruited in the city of New York. Stoddard's Vermont brigade was in our division, and it was a remarkable fact that those stalwart mountaineers, men of large size and great muscular development, were far more subject to disease than our city boys, and died like sheep in the Chickahominy swamps, while the death rate among the city regiments was very low, comparatively. Since the close of the war, and especially during the last ten years, the survivors of the country regiments, at least in the East, for I know nothing of the West, show a much higher mortality than the metropolitan troops, and sickness is much more frequent. I have heard from French and German officers that the same state of affairs prevails in the armies of those countries, and from all these facts I am inclined to believe that the general impression that city life is unhealthy is entirely false."

Weisiger's Shot.

In July, 1864, General Grant blew up a part of General Lee's lines in front of Petersburg, Va., with a mine. In his "Reminiscences," William L. Royall describes the scene and the heroism of brave soldiers.

Lee had known of this mine for some time, and had concentrated an artillery fire on the point that made it simply impossible for any troops to come through the gap made in the lines until he was able to re-enforce the point.

Two brigades of Mahone's division, the Virginia brigade and the Georgia brigade, were brought up by a covered way to retake the position then occupied by a large force of Union troops.

Mahone's brigade, under Weisiger, marched out of the covered way, leaving Mahone in it, formed in line some hundred yards from the point of attack, and charged the enemy occupying our lines. It was a heroic act, and was perfectly successful.

Just as poor old Weisiger had got possession of our lines and of everything in them, he was shot through the body. He was carried back to the covered way, to where Mahone was. Mahone said, "Weisiger, why are you and old Joe Johnston always getting yourselves shot?"

Weisiger said he thought it was all over with him, and he was therefore a little indifferent about insubordination, and so he answered, "General Mahone, if you would go where Johnston and I go, you would get shot sometimes, too."

"Whom are you going to give those cigars to?"

"To the janitor, so that he will give us more heat."

"Why, I thought I heard you abusing him terribly this morning."

"My dear woman, you don't think I dare address the janitor like that? I was talking to the landlord."—Lippincott's.

DECEMBER

0424

L1134

DeKalb County Herald

A. S. POWERS, Editor and Publisher

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

ONE YEAR, $1.50 SIX MONTHS, 75c THREE MONTHS, 40c

The Herald is entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, Butler, Indiana

Does not Color the Hair

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Stops Falling Hair
Destroys Dandruff

An Elegant Dressing
Makes Hair Grow

Composed of Sulphur, Glycerin, Quinin, Sodium Chlorid, Capsicum, Sage, Alcohol, Water, Perfume. Ask your doctor his opinion of such a hair preparation.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Does not Color the Hair

J. C. AYER COMPANY, Lowell, Mass.

Obituary

Harvey Nathaniel Hall was born in Onondago county, New York, Feb. 11, 1840. Died at his home on Green street, Butler, Ind., on Wednesday at 8 p. m., Dec. 22, 1909, aged 69 years, 10 months and 11 days.

He had been an invalid for a long time, he was confined to his bed for three weeks and died of paralysis. He was converted and united with the U. B. church at Butler, Ind., about fourteen years ago, during the pastorate of Rev. McCloe. He was among the first to answer to his country's call for volunteers in the time of the civil war. He enlisted in Company E., 25th Regiment Ohio Veteran Volunteers Infantry when the company was first organized. He served through the entire war. He fought in the battles of Bull Run, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Honey Hill, and others. He was wounded in the battle of Honey Hill.

His daughter, Alice, preceded him to the other world about a year ago. A companion, six sons and three daughters survive him. Also many friends and the remaining comrades of the Grand Army, of which he was a member.

The funeral services were held at the U. B. church Sunday afternoon. The Grand Army Post attended in a body and performed their part of the funeral rites as per their manual. Rev. Parker gave the funeral address. The interment was in the Butler cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to tender our sincere thanks to the many friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us in our sad bereavement. We also wish to thank the G. A. R. and W. R. C. for their kindnesses shown.

MRS. S. J. HALL AND FAMILY.

RAILWAY MAIL CLERKS WANTED

The Government Pays Railway Mail Clerks $800 to $1,200, and Other Employees Up to $2,500 Annually

Uncle Sam will hold spring examinations throughout the country for Railway Mail Clerks, Custom House Clerks, Stenographers, Bookkeepers, Departmental Clerks and other Government Positions. Thousands of appointments will be made. Any man or woman over 18, in City or Country can get Instruction and free information by writing at once to the Bureau of Instruction, 115 E Hamlin Building, Rochester, N. Y. 52-3m

Advertised Letters

Mr. Almon J. Gilbert.
Mrs. Elsie Hart.
Mrs. C. J. McBeth.
Mr. Dan Myers.
Mr. J. K. Ray.
Mertie Saunders.

THOS. RUDD, Postmaster.

A POPULAR VERDICT

Based on Evidence of Butler People

Grateful thousands tell it—
How weak backs were made strong—
Weak kidneys made well
Urinary disorders corrected.
Butler people add their testimony.
They gladly praise Doan's Kidney Pills.
For quick relief and lasting cures.
Butler evidence is now complete.
Butler testimony is confirmed:
Reports of early relief substantiated.
Cures doubly proved by test of time.
Let a Butler citizen speak.

D. D. Melroy, of Butler, Ind., says: "I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Stone's drug store and they relieved me of a lame back and other symptoms of kidney trouble that had caused me much annoyance for several months. Shortly after I publicly endorsed this remedy and at this time, I willingly confirm that statement and add that my trouble has never returned."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. 51-2

"The mere fact that a man is sent by his doctor to some particular baths or springs where he sees other invalids confident of a cure makes him think that he, too, can get well," said Dr. R. Murray Leslie, speaking at the Incorporated Institute of Hygiene in London.

Piles Cured at Home By New Absorption Method

If you suffer from bleeding, itching, blind or protruding Piles, send me your address, and I will tell you how to cure yourself at home by the new absorption treatment; and will also send some of this home treatment free for trial, with references from your own locality if requested. Immediate relief and permanent cure assured. Send no money, but tell others of this offer. Write today to Mrs. M. Summers, Box P, Notre Dame, Ind

A Song of the New Year

I hear afar the chiming bells
Ring out so sweet and clear;
The year is gone, their music tells—
Another year is here.

And as they ring, I backward glance
Across the year a-gone,
'Tis covered by the vast expanse
Of Time that rushes on.

'Tis mine no more, save only in
The memories of the past.
He sent it here; and now to Him
He's called it back at last.

'Twas leased to me a little while,
That I might make it be
A help to fit me for the smile
He has in store for me.

So I will take its better part,
And throw the worst away,
That I may make the New Year start
The best and brightest way.

The sound is gone, of chiming bells—
The night is still and clear.
The year is gone—the echo swells,
Another year is here.

—JOHN WILLIAM BARBER.

Democratic Call

To the Democrats of DeKalb County and all those who desire to co operate with them:

In compliance with an order from the Democratic State Central Committee, the democrats of DeKalb county will meet in "Mass Caucus" at the Old Armory hall in Auburn, Ind., on Friday, December 31, 1909, at 2 p. m. for the purpose of selecting delegates to the 12th District convention which meets at Fort Wayne on January 5, 1910, at 2 o'clock p. m. at Assembly room in court house, to elect a district chairman to represent us from the state committee for the ensuing two years. The basis of representation is one delegate for every 200 votes and one for each additional fraction or more than 100 votes cast for governor, Thomas R. Marshall, at the November election, 1909.

DeKalb county is entitled to 19 delegates, and we will have same representation in state convention which will be apportioned to the several townships as follows:

Butler Township	½	vote
Concord "	1	"
Spencer "	½	"
Fairfield "	1	"
Franklin "	1	"
Grant "	1	"
Jackson "	1	"
Keyser "	4	"
Newville "	½	"
Richland "	1	"
Stafford "	½	"
Smithfield "	1	"
Troy "	½	"
Union "	4	"
Wilmington "	2	"

MILES BAXTER,
County Chairman.

E. O. LITTLE, Secretary.

Dated at Auburn, Indiana, this 21st day of December, 1909.

To Cure a Cold in One Day.

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25c. 52-12m writes Mrs. Ethel Newlin, of Liberty Center, Ind., "that I began to take Cardui, for it has cured me, and I will never forget it.

"I Am Glad"

"I cannot praise Cardui too highly for what it did for me. Before I began to take it, I was very bad color, suffered great pain and weighed only 105 pounds. Now I have a good color, do not suffer and weigh 125 lbs."

E 55

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Beware of strong, noxious, mineral drugs, that sink into your system, like lead to the bottom of a basin of water.

Cardui is purely vegetable and contains no poisonous minerals, or dangerous drugs.

It is perfectly safe and harmless, for use by old and young, and may be taken, as a tonic, for months, without any possible harmful effect. Try it.

SERMON PREACHED AT M. E. CHURCH

Sunday Evening December 26, By Rev. Edmund F. Albertson, D. D.

Wherefore God also hath highly exalted Him, and given Him a name which is above every name.

Philippians 2:9.

Jesus Christ is the mystery of God. He is a divine character whose nature transcends the possibility of human comprehension. He remains an unsolved problem, defying every successive age in its attempts to account for Him. I am supremely anxious that we know our Redeemer, although we cannot apprehend His being. That we may know Him is evident, but this is possible only by revelation. "The secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him, and He will show them His covenant."

In art there is one pre-eminent figure. In sculpture there is one form, matchless in beauty. In literature there is a classic, the best the world has known. There is one star more brilliant and lovely than all others "hung in the golden galaxy," and this is the star of Bethlehem. One flower there is more fragant and graceful than others, and this is the Rose of Sharon. One mountain lifts its majestic and awful form above all others, and this is Mount Calvary. In history there is a Name which is above every Name in splendor and power; in dignity and gentleness; in love and tenderness. In creation there is a Name high over all, for without Him was not anything made that was made.

Among teachers He is the supreme embodiment of wisdom, the Teacher of men, the Teacher of teachers, the Teacher sent of God. He is exalted in nature. Men have delighted to exalt Him. Angels and archangels and all the company of heaven praise Him day and night, saying, Blessing and glory and wisdom and thanksgiving, and honor and power and might, be unto the Lamb forever and ever. God also hath highly exalted Him.

Men holding theories widely different have been attracted to Him and centered around Him. He has been studied in the interest of philosophy and sociology; by the devout mystic, the critical theorist, the unlearned, the student. He is admired as the embodiment of a creed. He has been compared and contrasted with Confucius, Buddha, Mohammed. His teachings, His words, His life have been the theme of poet, priest, philosopher, reformer. The slave in his dungeon has thought of Him, and in thinking has been made freer than his master. Children have heard from the lips of parent or teacher of the gentle, tender Christ who took the little ones in His arms and blessed them. The king on the throne with the scepter of power in his hand has looked upon Him and learned of Him, and been the better ruler for this knowledge.

God also hath exalted Him. How we rejoice to read this text. Our Christ is exalted not only on earth but in heaven, not alone by men, but by God also. Look at His portrait. Study His life. With the wise men we journey to Jerusalem led by the mysterious star, saying, Where is He that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen His star in the east and are come to worship Him. We are with the devout shepherds on the plain of Bethlehem and hear the annunciation in words more exquisite than poetry to Christian ears, "Fear not for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, for unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour which is Christ the Lord." We hear the heavenly harmonies of the angelic choir singing, "Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace, good will toward men." We kneel with those oriental sages and present to Him gifts, gold, frankincense and myrrh. At the presentatation in the temple we listen while that patriarch Simeon, as he takes the infant Jesus in his arms, blesses God and says, "Mine eyes have seen thy salvation." And the prophetess Anna gave thanks and spake of Him to all them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem.

We travel with Joseph and the holy Child and His mother on that long and lonely road to Egypt. Returning with them to Nazareth we see Him in the humble home being taught at His mother's knee out of the sacred scriptures, until at the age of twelve years we find Him in the temple conversing with the learned men. Then follow the silent years of growth and manhood, while "He was subject unto them, and increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man."

To the Jordon we go where that great man is baptizing. Jesus cometh unto him and being baptized, and coming up out of the water the Holy Ghost descended in a bodily shape like a dove, and a voice from heaven said, Thou art my well beloved Son; in Thee I am well pleased. He is tempted in the wilderness. He fasts. He prays. Angels minister to Him. He preaches. He heals disease. He feeds the multitudes. He casts out evil spirits. He stills the waves on dark Galilee. He calls the dead back to life.

Those who view this portrait of the Wonderful Christ give expression of admiration, wonder, love, fear, worship. In Caesarea Philippi He asks of His disciples, Whom do men say that I, the son of Man am? Peter answered by saying, Thou art Christ the Son of the living God. What do men say of Him today? Byron said, "If ever man was God, or God was man, Jesus Christ was both." French skepticism, through its most brilliant and versatile representative, Ernest Renan, says, "Jesus is unique in everything and nothing can compare with Him. He is a man of colossal dimensions." Strauss, the German rationalist, records his view: "Among the improvers of ideal humanity Jesus stands in the very first class." Lecky, the English historian, writes, "It was reserved for Christianity to present to the world an ideal character, which through all the changes of eighteen centuries has filled the hearts of men with an impassioned love." The words of Rousseau are strange, "Socrates died like a philosopher, but Jesus Christ died like a God."

What have people said of Him? Jean Paul Richter, "Thou, Jesus, holiest among the mighty." Julian, the apostate: "Galilean, Thou hast conquered." The Roman centurian: "Truly this was the Son of God." Judas: "I have betrayed innocent blood." Pilate: "I find no fault in Him." A pagan woman, "That just person." Thomas: "My Lord and my God."

Christ is exalted in prophecy. Running through all prophecies is the scarlet thread of allusion and type and symbol; promises of Christ's coming; pictures of His mission; descriptions of His nature. In the Pentateuch there are no less than seventy-five distinct prophetic references to the Messiah, and in the writings of the prophets about three times that number. When the world was new Balaam the Midianite said, "There shall come a Star out of Jacob and the Scepter shall rise out of Israel." The patriarch Jacob as he lay dying in Egypt said, "The Scepter shall not depart from Judah nor a lawgiver from between his feet until Shiloh come, and unto Him shall the gathering of the people be." Other seers wrote of His coming: "Thou art fairer than the children of men; grace is poured into Thy lips, therefore God hath blessed Thee forever." "His name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, the Mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace." "And thou Bethlehem—out of thee shall He come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel." "He shall sit as a refiner and purifyer of silver." Thus did prophets, priests, princes, kings unite to do Him honor. Poets sang of His greatness, priests chanted His praises, historians chronicled famous triumph in His name. In the homes of the patriarchs, in tent or tabernacle, upon the high alter in the temple, His life and sacrificial death were symbolized. And yet all these saintly men were merely as footmen running before the chariot of the coming King. They were humble messengers bringing news of the advent of the Lord of Glory. They were merely the advance guard preparing the way for the King of Kings.

The powers of nature exalted Him. A star guided the wise men to Bethlehem. A bright light shone roundabout the shepherds. Disease and death fled from His presence. Wind and wave obeyed His command. At His death the rocks beat a dirge, and the sun refused to look upon his agony.

Again, Christ is exalted in literature The best books of the world are those that tell of Jesus In Hebrew poetry we find the most exalted strains of the human heart, giving utterance to sublime and immortal truth about Jesus and His place in the hearts of men. The Bible is the Book of books. It teaches us the way of life. It reveals God to us, and shows us our need of Christ. The literature that is immortal is that which treats of our relation to our Creator. Milton, Bunyan, Knox and Wesley gave to the world literature that will not be forgotten.

Christ is exalted in Christian art The most celebrated pictures—those by the great masters are Bible scenes: "The Last Supper," "Christ Before Pilate," "The Descent from the Cross"

Sacred music has contributed its share of honor to Christ, in "Handel's Messiah," "Hayden's Creation" and "Mozart's Requiem." Hymns and spirited songs by the greatest authors speak of Christ and His salvation. "Lead Kindly Light," "Rock of Ages" and "Jesus Lover of My Soul," will be sung as long as mortal man lives upon the earth, and the song of Moses and the Lamb will be the theme of our redeemed spirits in paradise.

Our Christ is exalted in His mission upon earth. Mankind had fallen from his high and holy life in Eden. He had departed from the way of truth. He had wilfully and purposely sinned. How could he be redeemed? Truly there was no other way. Jesus gave His life for us that we might be redeemed from all iniquity. All the way from Calvary to Gethsemane He was giving His love, sympathy, help, and then He crowned all this by giving His life a ransom for many, saying as He expired, It is finished.

"He closed His eyes to show us God." He became man for a little time, that men might become like God forever. He lived on earth that we might live in heaven. "Though He was rich, yet He became poor that we through His poverty might be rich."

He is exalted in heaven, for God also hath highly exalted Him. He sitteth at the right hand of God the Father." "Being made so much better than the angels as He hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they." He is our Advocate and Judge. He is the premier of heaven. He is our Saviour and Redeemer, for He hath redeemed us and made us kings and priests unto God.

The happy Christmas comes again. Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men! We should observe it in such a manner as to exalt and honor our Lord Jesus Christ. He gave Himself a ransom for our souls. What have we given to Him? The best Christmas gift that we can make is to give our life and love to Him. A Spanish poet in one of his dramas tells of a beautiful Roman maiden. While a pagan she said, "I will never love until I find some one who has died for me." She was told of Christ and her heart won to Him. So may this Christmas be to us a joyful day, the type of the Great Christmas Day above when we shall see Him face to face and praise Him evermore. Christmas is a time for gratitude, for making others happy, for banqueting, for reunion of friends. As such it points toward heaven. A preacher of righteousness, now gone to his reward, pictures to us this glorious homecoming to our Father's house:

"One twilight after I had been playing with the children, I lay down to rest, and half asleep and half awake I seemed to dream that I was in a far distant land—not Persia, although more than Oriental luxuriance crowned the cities—not the tropics, although more than tropical fruitfulness filled the gardens; not Italy, although more than Italian softness filled the air. I wandered around looking for thorns and nettles, but I found none. I walked forth and saw the sun rise, and I said: "When will it set again?" And the sun sank not. I saw all the people in holiday apparel, and I said: "When will they put on workingmen's garb again and delve in the mine and swelter at the forge?" But neither the garments nor the robes did they put off. And I wandered in the suburbs and said: "Where do they bury the dead of this great city?" And I looked along by the hills where it would be most beautiful for the dead to sleep, and I saw castles and towers and battlements, but not a mausoleum nor white slab, nor monument could I see. And I went into the great chapel of the town and I said: "Where do the poor worship?" and a voice answered: "We have no poor in this great city." I wandered out, seeking to find the hovels of the destitute, but I found mansions of amber and ivory and gold, but not a tear did I see, not a sigh did I hear. I was bewildered and I sat under the shadow of a great tree and I said, "What am I and whence comes all this?" At that moment there came from among the leaves, skipping up the flowery paths and across the sparkling waters, a very bright and happy group. When I saw their step I thought I knew it, and when I heard their voices I thought I knew them; but their apparel was so different from anything I had ever seen, I bowed a stranger to strangers. But after a while when they clapped their hands and shouted, "Welcome! Welcome!" the mystery was solved, and I saw that time had passed and eternity had come, and God had garbered us into a higher home; and I said: "Are we all here?" and the voices of innumerable generations answered: "All here." And while tears of gladness were raining down our cheeks and the branches of the Lebanon cedars were clapping their hands, and the chimes of the great city were pealing their welcome, we began to laugh and sing, and leap and shout, "Home! Home! Home!"

It is being said down at Columbus that Brother Charley Taft is after the Governorship of Ohio. Brother Charley got sideswiped in his last efforts to land an office and if sentiment against the Tafts continues to grow it is possible that Charley will get swiped again. Why is it that when men become rich they thiek they have a special fitness for holding office? This is the condition in every community even right down here in Fayette. As soon as some of our citizens become fairly well-to-do they brgin to give the public to understand that that they are especially qualified to rule and forthwith begin proceedings to land any old thing they can find. The public generally gives them what they want when the truth is they are no better fitted than hundseds of poor devils. Does this condition exist because office holding is very largely a graft.—Fayette Review.

Nature makes the cures after all.

Now and then she gets into a tight place and needs helping out.

Things get started in the wrong direction.

Something is needed to check disease and start the system in the right direction toward health.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with hypophosphites can do just this.

It strengthens the nerves, feeds famished tissues, and makes rich blood.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send 10c., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each bank contains a Good Luck Penny.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., New York

The President and the Children.

Mrs. Frederick Schoff has had recently an interview with President Roosevelt, to talk over what could be done for the cause of the education of children in this country. She says in regard to this interview: "I told the President that people wanted a children's department of the government, but education could cover the whole thing if it would. The President said if there was to be such a department in Washington he would put a woman and a mother at the head of it. I also spoke about the immigrants.

"Those people are coming from every country to America, I pointed out, and we are not doing anything to help them when they get here. I had visited one woman who had twelve children—beautiful children as you would want to see. She only had $15 a week and they were living in two rooms. We accept that as a thing we have to endure, and we should not do so.

"I have prepared a letter addressed to Mr. Roosevelt and to be sent to him by Commissioner Brown, embodying these thoughts and suggestions. As head of the bureau of education, Commissioner Brown, at my request, will send out leaflets printed in various languages for use in the education of mothers in physical and moral care of children."

A Guaranteed Cure for Piles

Itching, Blind, Bleeding, Protruding Piles. Druggists are authorized to refund money if Pazo Ointment fails to cure in 6 to 14 days. 50c. 52-12m

FASHION PLATES

NOW IN

And we are ready for the fal business.

We do all kinds of button covering for the ladies'.

Cleaning and repairing on short notice.

Edward May

Reliable Tailor

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS

WITH Dr. King's New Discovery

FOR COUGHS COLDS PRICE 50c & $1.00. Trial Bottle Free

AND ALL THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.

GUARANTEED SATISFACTORY OR MONEY REFUNDED.

O. W. HINER, V. M. D., M. F.

Veterinary Surgeon and Dentist - -

All calls promptly answered day or night

OFFICE AT RESIDENCE

HOME PHONE 31

INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS COLLEGE

"CENTRAL STATES' GREATEST SCHOOL OF BUSINESS."

FORT WAYNE, INDIANA

COMMERCIAL DEPT.—Prepares for Bookkeeping, Accountant Civil Service, Banking, Office Manager, Etc.

STENOGRAPHIC DEPT.—Prepares for Stenographer, Expert Correspondent, Court Reporting, Private Secretary, Civil Service. English, Penmanship, Spelling, Banking, Arithmeiic, etc., included in all courses.

Board $2.00 Per Week. Positions Guaranteed Graduates.

Winter Term, Monday, January 3rd

Catalogue Free. Write for it before decidiug where to go.

H. A. POPP, Vice Pres. T. L. STAPLES, President

Overcoat Time Is Here In Earnest

The time of year has at last come when an overcoat is a great need and you might say a necessity. Our line of samples consist of the season's latest goods and we can make them up in the very latest styles Call and see us before letting your order. Satisfaction guaranteed.

OTT, THE TAILOR

Fireless Cooker Free

to users of Mother's Cereals

These cereals are famous for quality among the housewives of America. Carefully our buyers collect the finest grain in all American markets. They are known as being finicky. Carefully our mills pick from this cream the ripest, choicest grains. Carefully our mill hands pick from these kernels the biggest, the fattest, the finest. Only the best grains ever find their way to a Mother's package. Carefully this product is selected from the select, is cleansed, then sterilized and packed in a Mother's sanitary package. Here is a list of Mother's Cereals. Every one is the best of its kind.

Mother's Oats
Not like other oats. Not only rolled to make their cooking easy, but crushed to make them easily digested.

Mother's Wheat Hearts
(The cream of the wheat)
Is a pure granulated wheat food, thoroughly sterilized and easily digested.

Mother's Corn Flakes (Toasted)
The best corn, big, full, sweet corn, shaved as thin as a whisper and toasted into a rich golden yellow.

Mother's Old Fashioned Steel Cut Oatmeal
Thoroughly pan roasted, all of the natural sweetness of the oats retained and makes the best gruel.

Mother's Yellow Corn Meal
The kind from which you can make the corn bread, cakes, mush and muffins.

Mother's White Corn Meal
Carefully prepared from the finest grains. Delicious for corn bread and cakes. The kind dearest to the heart of the southern housewife.

Mother's Granulated Hominy
Made from carefully selected white corn, by modern methods of manufacture. A food far superior to the ordinary hominy.

Mother's Coarse Pearl Hominy
Made from selected white flint corn of the highest quality. Coarser than Mother's Hominy Grits and requires a little longer in the cooking.

The Mother's Oats Fireless Cooker, given free with coupons found in Mother's Cereals, needs no fuel of any sort. Ask your grocer how you can get one free. If he doesn't keep Mother's cereals, send us his name and yours and we will send you free a useful souvenir.

THE GREAT WESTERN CEREAL COMPANY

OPERATING MORE OATMEAL MILLS THAN ANY OTHER ONE CONCERN

AKRON BOSTON NEW HAVEN PITTSBURGH NEW YORK ALBANY PHILADELPHIA ST. LOUIS CHICAGO

Eat What

You want of the food you need Kodol will digest it.

You need a sufficient amount of good wholesome food and more than this you need to fully digest it.

Else you can't gain strength, nor can you strengthen your stomach if it is weak.

You must eat in order to live and maintain strength.

You must not diet, because the body requires that you eat a sufficient amount of food regularly.

But this food must be digested, and it must be digested thoroughly.

When the stomach can't do it, you must take something that will help the stomach.

The proper way to do is to eat what you want, and let Kodol digest the food.

Nothing else can do this. When the stomach is weak it needs help; you must help it by giving it rest, and Kodol will do that.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today, and purchase a dollar bottle, and if you can honestly say, that you did not receive any benefits from it, after using the entire bottle, the druggist will refund your money to you without question or delay.

We will pay the druggist the price of the bottle purchased by you.

This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family.

We could not afford to make such an offer, unless we positively knew what Kodol will do for you.

It would bankrupt us.

The dollar bottle contains 2½ times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is made at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

SOLD AT GEDDES' DRUGSTORE

NEW YORK CLIPPER

IS THE GREATEST THEATRICAL SHOW PAPER IN THE WORLD.

$4.00 Per Year. Single Copy, 10 Cts.

ISSUED WEEKLY.

SAMPLE COPY FREE.

FRANK QUEEN PUB. CO. (Ltd), PUBLISHERS, 47 W. 28TH ST., NEW YORK.

ALBERT J. BORIE, MANAGER.

REAL ESTATE

We have some splendid farms and other excellent properties or investment.

We have the Thompson Opera House for sale and many other properties in Butler.

Farms from 40 to 160 acres. It will pay you to see us before buying. We are in the business to stay and are able to place you right.

Wilcox & Creager

OH! YES

We are now ready to sell you in bulk the best

Fresh Oysters

you ever ate—also a fresh line line of wafers and the regular oyster crackers.

George Stout

If your grocers can not satisfy you with their bread? Try the

Home Bakery

The best tasting bread in the city. It has no equal. Bread 4c a loaf.

Anton Panhuysen

DECEMBER

0425

L1134

For A Cold or Grip

TRY

Nyals Laxacold

Every Box Guaranteed

For Rheumatism

Nyals Rheumatic Cure

AT

PHILLIPS' DRUG STORE

Local and Personal

Tell it to the HERALD.

Try the new meat market in the old Boos stand.

Try the new meat market for that Sunday roast.

John Young spent Tuesday at Auburn on business.

The First National bank solicits your fire insurance. tf

L. H. Higley is spending this week at Chicago on business.

Bert Rogers of Idaho is the guest of his mother, Mrs. Abbie Rogers.

Cyrus Evertts and wife spent Christmas with relatives at Mooresville.

Myrtle Miser, of Toledo, was the guest of her parents here Saturday.

Miss Grace Zerkle, of Garrett, is the guest of friends here for a few days.

Fred Briggs will sell you cement blocks cheaper than anyone else. tf

Ed May is spending the week at Hillsdale, Mich., the guest of relatives.

Harry Wilson, of Pontiac, Mich., is the guest of his parents, Wm. Wilson and wife.

For up-to-date picture framing at reasonable prices call on Eugene Treesh. 52-2

Mrs. Chloe Robinett is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Elroy Brooks, near Hamilton.

J. M. Norford and wife spent Christmas with their son, Harry, at Fort Wayne.

Mrs. F. L. Farnsworth, of Hillsdale, Mich., was the guest of Jasper Ocker and wife Tuesday.

Agnes Maxom, of Waterloo, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Smith, the fore part of the week.

Martin Heffelfinger and wife entertained Bert Kissinger, wife and son, Knight, at dinner Christmas.

Dr. D. X. Beechler and wife, of Garrett, spent Saturday and Sunday with his father, C. W. Beechler.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Blair entertained T. J. Knisely and wife and Luther Knisely and wife at dinner Sunday.

H. E. Lower and wife returned from Wolcottville, Tuesday, having spent Christmas with Mrs. Lower's parents.

Oscar Murden and wife, of Montpelier, Ohio, spent Christmas and remained over Sunday with Grandma Planson.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sechler entertained Flossie Sechler, of St. Joe, May Elton and Minnie Kehrer at dinner Christmas.

John Young and wife entertained Mr. Hutchinson and wife from the country and Mrs. Rosenberry at dinner Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Croninger, of Wauseon, Ohio, were the guests of the latter's parents, M. Brunstetter and wife, Christmas.

Miss Lois Powers was confined to her bed all day Christmas, suffering an attack of indigestion. She is much improved at this time.

Hubert Root, wife and daughter have returned to their home at Medina, Ohio, after a visit with her parents, D. H. Knisely and wife.

Mrs. Benton Beard has gone to the country to spend the winter with her aunt, while Mr. Beard is sojourning in the land of sunshine and flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Karle entertained Chas. Capp, wife and sons, Roscoe and Millard, Mr. Lake, Luther Knisely and wife and Mrs. Chas. Potter at dinner Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Rowe and guests, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Zeigler, of Shiloh, and C. W. Ehret, of Shelby, Ohio, spent Sunday and Monday with relatives at Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Rowe have as their guests this week Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Zeigler, of Shiloh, Ohio, C. W. Ehret, of Shelby, Ohio, and Miss Leta Sanxter, of Hamilton.

Jud Gee fell from the second story of his barn to the floor below, Christmas, and sustained severe injuries, though no bones were broken. He is compelled to carry his arm in a sling.

C. R. Sawyer has favored this office with a copy of the Lake Shore Sentinel, a paper printed at Polson, Montana, his present home. It is a weekly six column quarto and the subscription price is $2.50 per year, six months $1.50. It is well filled with home news and advertising.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

See Fred Briggs for cement blocks. tf

Miss Mabel Murch is visiting in Topeka this week.

The merchants all report a lively holiday trade.

Lee Noragon was at Fort Wayne on business Monday.

Harley Sechler spent Saturday with his parents near St. Joe.

Mrs. Elmer Seucher spent Saturday with relatives at Bryan, Ohio.

D. A. Baker is spending a few days this week at Fayette, Ohio.

Edna Fridenberger is spending her vacation with relatives at Garrett.

Carman Broderick, of Montpelier, Ohio, is the guest of Frank Stump and wife.

Bert Friend, of Hillsdale, Mich., spent Christmas with his aunt, Mrs. Deems.

Mr. Sandifur, of North Manchester, was the guest of relatives here Wednesday.

A. J. Price and wife spent Christmas at Wauseon, Ohio, with C. W. Bell and wife.

Deputy Sheriff John Hoff, of Auburn, was in the city Tuesday on business.

Mrs. Jennie Hall spent Christmas with her daughter, Mrs. Frank Aikens, at Newville.

Mrs. Bloyd, of Pioneer, Ohio, spent Christmas with her daughter, Mrs. Carl Oberlin.

Miss Mary Meyers spent Saturday and Sunday at Montpelier, Ohio, with her mother.

Will Burrell, of Huntertown, was the guest of friends in this city Saturday.

Rollo Moffett and family, of Auburn, were the guests of Henry Sechler and wife Monday.

If you want to send money away buy a New York draft of the First National bank. tf

M. Brunstetter was called to Bairdstown, Ohio, this week to see an uncle, who is very ill.

Harry Matheny, of Fort Wayne, spent Christmas with his parents, Win Matheney and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fanning, of Auburn, spent Christmas with Chas. Madden and family.

Miss Laura DeVinney, of Howe, Ind., is the guest of her parents, C. A. DeVinney, and wife.

Harry Waltershad and wife, of Toledo, were here Sunday to attend the funeral of Mr. Hall.

E. B. Dunten and family spent Christmas at Topeka, the guests of Amos Bowser and wife.

Sherm Moore and wife are spending several days in the country with Jake Christoffels' this week.

F. L. Farnsworth and wife, of Hillsdale, Mich., spent Saturday and Sunday with their Butler friends.

Charles Reign Scoville, of Chicago, is the guest of his parents, Wm. Scoville and wife, south of town.

Mrs. Frances Beidler, of Fort Wayne, was the guest of Mrs. Katherine Creager the fore part of the week.

Harold Tess and Millard Stone, of Crawfordsville, are spending the holidays with their parents in this city.

George Rogers, of Alma, Mich., came Monday evening for a few days visit with his mother, Mrs. Abbie Rogers.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Lennon entertained at Christmas dinner Mr. and Mrs. Morse, Mr. John Mitchell and Miss Mitchell.

Mrs. C. R. Sawyer and daughter, Ruby, left Wednesday for Polson, Montana, where they will make their future home.

Frank Fanning, of Auburn, Clyde Oberlin, Calvin Beard, Chas. Madden, and Wm. Holtzberg are at Hamilton hunting this week.

C. J. Coats has an 80 acre farm he will trade for a smaller piece. If he cannot do this, will take Butler city property in exchange. tf

The Lake meat market presented the HERALD editor with a nice, big fat hen for a Christmas present, and we here by express our heartiest thanks for same.

Orla Mack and son, Rolland, returned to their home at Hillsdale, Mich., Wednesday, after spending Christmas with his parents, J. J. Mack and wife.

Rev. E. F. Albertson and family will hold a public reception New Year's day from 2 to 4 p. m. They will be glad to meet all who will call and exchange New Year greetings. The invitation is to all the people.

The Lake meat market was one of the most attractive places in the city last week. Their Christmas display could not be surpassed by any of the markets in the larger cities. This meat market has always been a credit to our town.

T. L. Agnew writes the HERALD from Denver, Colo., under date of December 22, and says he is enjoying his trip and will probably remain as there is lots of work there. This will be sad news to his girl friends in this and other cities of the east.

Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Ocker entertained Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Sheets and children, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Tomlinson and daughters, of Auburn, Miss Belle Tomlinson, of Elkhart, and C. H. Fetters, wife and son, Clayton, at Christmas dinner.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

Miss Ethel Boyle is on the sick list.

Robert Elden returned to his school at Angola Monday.

Merritt Sechler spent Sunday with his parents at St. Joe.

Miss Rose Stell spent Christmas with relatives at Logansport.

Clyde Shaffer spent Christmas with his parents at Bryan, Ohio.

Miss Ellen Rooke is quite ill at the home of Mrs. J. C. Eviston.

Mrs. Electa Squires, eighty six years old, is confined to her bed.

Mrs. L. H. Harrison spent Christmas with her parents at Adrian, Mich.

Pay your bills by check. Deposit with the First National bank. tf

John Searfoss and family spent Christmas in the country with friends.

Jesse Wagner and wife are visiting friends near Pleasant Chapel this week.

Lewis McInturf and wife spent Christmas with relatives at Kendallville.

Lester Spurgeon, of McCool, Ind., is spending the holidays at his home in this city.

Mrs. Chas. Detwiler left Friday for Flint, Mich., where her husband has a position.

A. Beckley, who is employed at Hillsdale, Mich., is home to spend the holidays.

Mr. Hursh, of Spencerville, was the guest of friends in the city Thursday evening.

Springs and mattresses are a necessity. If in need of any call on Eugene Treesh. 52-2

Miss Myrtle Boyle spent Christmas with Jim Sechler and family, near St. Joe.

Earl Sewell, of Springfield, Ill., is the guest of his parents, Geo. Swift and wife.

Miss Fern Fridenberger is spending the week at Auburn the guest of relatives.

George Warner is here to spend the winter. He is staying at the Murch restaurant.

Wm. Blair and wife attended the 80th anniversary of Lew Blair at Waterloo Wednesday.

O. Surface and wife, of Huntertown, were the guests of J. R. Norford and wife over Sunday.

Erma Reagle, of Bryan, Ohio, was the guest of Bert Huey and family Saturday and Sunday.

Peter Whitman, wife and daughters, Hilda and Mrs. Grace Edyvean, spent Christmas in the country.

Mrs. Frank Owen, of Angola, spent a few days the fore part of the week with Mrs. Maggie Aldrich.

Gus Gebhard and wife, of Bryan, Ohio, spent Christmas with the latter's parents, S. G. Stone and wife.

The show at the opera house Tuesday evening was first-class and up-to-date, but was poorly attended.

Jack Patterson, wife and children, of Garrett, spent Christmas with her parents, S. G. Stone and wife.

Mrs. S. G. Haverstock and son, Harold, of Auburn, are the guests of her sister, Mrs. W. R. Lennon.

Mrs. Andy Diehlman, of Bryan, Ohio, was the guest of her parents, Ben Oberlin and wife, Saturday.

Jeff N. Boyle and family entertained Wm. Boyle and daughter, Cleo, and Roscoe Sechler at dinner Sunday.

Mrs. Ethel Griffith and daughter, Edra, of Toledo, spent Christmas with her parents, J. H. Latson and wife.

Walter Goodwin and wife, of Battle Creek, Mich., spent the fore part of the week with A. Watson and family.

Miss Minnie Dunn returned to Hillsdale, Tuesday, after spending Christmas with her mother, Mrs. T. Dunn.

A crowd of young folks had a bobride to Mrs. Sattison's Thursday evening. A good time was enjoyed by all.

George Coulon was called to Chicago Monday on account of the death of his father who has been ill for some time.

Chas. H. Powers, who underwent an operation at Hope hospital in Fort Wayne last Wednesday is slowly recovering.

Several of the Butler boys were called to Auburn, Wednesday, to appear in court relative to the Ware-Showalter case.

The Lady Maccabees will have a call meeting and initiation next Friday evening. All members are requested to be present.

Miss Lulu Elliott, of Toledo, and Miss Addie Elliott, of Montpelier, Ohio, spent Christmas with their parents, J. H. Elliott and wife.

Mrs. Mayme Grund and son, Arthur, returned to their home at Logansport, Monday, after a few days visit with her parents, J. J. Mack and wife.

I would like an offer for any one, or all, of several houses in Butler, owned by people not living here. If you want a home, this is your chance.
Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

The friends of A. G. Jones will be pleased to learn that he is slowly improving. He is with his sister in Kansas and may not return home until spring, when it is hoped he will be fully recovered.

Mrs. Albert Fisher was very much surprised and also pleased on Christmas morning by receiving a beautiful davenport, presented to her by her son-in-law, Frank Brown, it being more highly appreciated because of his own make.

Mrs. Ora Inhoff is on the sick list.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

Miles Baxter, of Auburn, was in the city Monday on business.

Dr. Frank Fanning spent Wednesday morning at Auburn on business.

Harry Richard, of Chicago, is spending the holidays with his parents.

Maud Kline was in the city Monday on her way home to Spencerville.

Call at the new meat market and get acquainted. C. C. Harper, Prop.

F. C. Fralick, of Chicago, spent Monday with Chas. Campbell and wife.

Mrs. Harrison, of Fayette, Ohio, was the guest of her son, Dr. Harrison, last week.

Will Miller and wife, of Indianapolis, are the guests of relatives here this week.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the U. B. church will meet with Lottie Brundage Friday.

John Peckhart and wife, of Auburn, were the guests of her mother, Mrs. Sybilla Showalter.

Furniture can be chosen from catalogue. Any one in doubt call on Eugene Treesh. 52-2

We have some 5 per cent money to loan on mortgage security. First National Bank. tf

The baby of Mrs. Clark Snyder is quite ill at the home of Henry Wilson and wife in the country.

Geo. Crider and wife, of Montpelier, Ohio, spent Christmas here the guests of her mother, Mrs. Planson.

Mrs. Clyde Oberlin and daughter, Mildred, are spending the week at Hamilton the guests of her parents.

Edgar Worthington, wife and baby were the guests of his parents, N. E. Worthington and wife, Christmes.

Mrs. S. B. Jones entertained Ora Knisely and wife and Chas. Campbell, wife and children at dinner Sunday.

Ladies shampoo and massage. First class barber work and baths. West side Broadway, Tomlinson's old stand. Give us a call. M. J. Harrigan, Prop.

The Misses Gladys Zimmerman, Edith Wagoner and Hilda Whitman, of Fort Wayne, spent Christmas in this city.

Mrs. Clark Brown and children spent the fore part of the week with her sister, Mrs. Winn Keep, at Hamilton.

Chas. Alwood and family, Arthur Deems and wife and Dorothy Thomas ate Christmas dinner with Wm. Richard and family.

WANTED—50 ladies and gentlemen at once at McGuire's Telegraph School, Edgerton, O. Good positions furnished when competent. tf

Miss Clela Funk and Rolland Kenyon spent Saturday and Sunday with the former's grandparents, C. M. Sharp and wife, at Angola.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Knepper entertained Mr. and Mrs. Phil Seibert and baby, Alex Wilson, wife and children, of Auburn, and Mrs. Clyde Knepper and daughter, Alma, of Toledo, at Christmas dinner.

William Holtzberg has sold his interest in the barber shop to his partner, Tod Warner. Mr. Holtzberg has been in the tonsorial business in Butler for fourteen years, during which time he has worked steady at the chair. He will now take the office of city marshal and administer the big stick to the unlawful.

Rev. Edmund Albertson of the M. E. church has kindly furnished this office with his last Sunday evening's sermon which will be found on editorial page of this paper. Rev. Albertson is a deep thinker and has a splendid delivery, and not only that, he has a faculty of making friends any where he goes. He usually says the right thing at the right time, and his pleasant sociable way makes him popular. His sermons are all good, but this one referred to is especially so. Read it.

A Good Ending

Old people are especially prone to stomach, liver and bowel ailments. Old age can be made the pleasantest time of life if these diseases can be avoided. They can be avoided, and cured, by the use of Dr. Calwell's Syrup Pepsin, which cures chronic constipation, dyspepsia, liver troubles, heartburn, sour stomach, flatulency, indigestion, etc. It is absolutely guaranteed to do what we claim, and if you want to try it before buying, send your address for a free sample bottle to pepsin Syrup Co., 119 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1 at bottle. 48-1m

Mrs. Hazen, on the south side, is on the sick list.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bechtol are visiting relatives at Angola.

Dr. Snumaker made a professional visit to Toledo Tuesday night.

Mrs. Carrie M. Fanning spent Christmas with relatives at Montpelier.

Mrs. Robert Wilson, living east of Montpelier, is in very poor health.

Earl Sewell spent the fore part of the week with friends at Adrian, Mich.

I have for sale, houses in all parts of the city. Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

Dea McDonald, of Indianapolis, is the guest of relatives in and around Butler.

Mrs. Shumaker and daughter, Doris, are visiting Eliza and Cora Emerick at Fayette, Ohio.

Ross and Leon Oberlin, of Hamilton, were the guests of friends here Tuesday evening.

The Public library wishes to express its appreciation to the Royal Neighbors for the gift of $5.00.

Miss Della Ruth Haskins, of Cleveland, Ohio, was the guest of Mrs. Bratton a few days this week.

A sleigh ride party from Auburn was in the city Monday evening and took supper at Murch's restaurant.

Eugene Treesh and wife entertained the former's brother, Earl Treesh and wife, of Toledo, several days this week.

Clarence Krontz and wife, of Toledo, were here visiting his parents, Henry Krontz and wife, the fore part of the week.

Hubert Farnsworth, of Hillsdale, Mich., and Rista Nimmons, of Indianapolis, spent Sunday with Cleve Grube.

FOR TRADE:—An improvdd twenty acre tract of land in Michigan. Value about fifteen hundred dollars. Want Butler property. Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

Dr. Beechler's family made a gift to the library of a large collection of books and magazines. The doctor's heart is in the right place.

Bob Albertson, Carman Acker, Esther Hiner and Helen Acker spent Wednesday and Thursday at St. Joe, the guests of Miss Flossie Sechler.

Tod Warner has secured the service of Roscoe Livergood and John Horner to assist in his barber shop. John will poke the fire while "Rockey" spreads the lather. Hot towel and ears washed free of charge.

J. S. Robinett and wife entertained at Christmas dinner Harry Wilson, of Pontiac, Mich., Miss Carrie Schott, of Edgerton, Ohio, Ernest Olds, wife and daughters, Fay and Gertrude, Beulah Howard, Chauncey McDonald, Mrs. Benton Beard, Grandma Robinett, Earl Eakright and Oliver Bungard.

Mrs. Northup, Quincy, Ill.

Mothers should be grateful to know of a remedy for their own stomach, bowel and liver troubles as well as for those of their children. Mrs. Alice Northup, of Quincy, Ill., after trying many methods is free to admit that the best one is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which she uses herself and gives to her family. She believes no household should be without it. This grand laxative and tonic is absolutely guaranteed to do what is claimed, and if you want to try it before buying, send your address for a free sample bottle to Pepsin Syrup Co., 119 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1 a bottle. 48-1m

New Year Resolutions

Good Goods
Honest Weight
Prompt Service and Courteous Treatment and all we can giue for the money all the time.

Remember
The Place

CRAUN'S FEED STORE

Phone 54

Appreciating the favors the public has bestowed upon us the past year, and to whom we are indebted in assisting us in the wonderful growth of our business, we hereby express our sincere thanks and extend our cordial greetings.

Wishing You All
A Happy and Prosperous
New Year

The Knisely Dry Goods Co.

We wish all our friends a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

And thank them for the very pattronage extended us in the past, and hope to merit a continuance of the same in the future. :: :: ::

G. F. GENGNAGEL & SON
HARDWARE

The Herald Can Be Had From Now Till January 1st, 1911, For Only $1.50

REAL ESTATE

SHAW & CREAGER

Farm and city property for sale or exchanged.

We have city property ranging in price from $400 to $2500.

Farms from 13 acres up.

See us if you wish to buy or sell.

Office Second Hand Store, South Side. Phone 203.

Trouble Makers Ousted

When a sufferer from stomach trouble takes Dr. King's New Life Pills he's mighty glad to see his Dyspepsia and Indigestion fly, but more he's tickled over his new, fine appetite, strong nerves, healthy vigor, all because stomach, liver, and kidneys now work right. 25c at Stone's drug store. 48-1m

HERALD ADVERTISING BRINGS RESULTS. TRY IT.

You Will Like Black Cross

Because we like it. We like it because it is good, in fact, the best for the price. When you buy Black Cross Coffee, you will find something there you like. When you buy Black Cross Tea you will find the quality in the cup and an aroma that can't fail to please. When you buy Black Cross Spices, you buy the best. These spices are put up in packages, it keeps them fresh. They don't cost you any more than others t ht are one-half the strength. Just try one 5c package and you will never use any other. At the price Indian Coffee 17c a pound has them all beat.

The Oberlin Grocery Company

DECEMBER

0426

L1134

NEW RAILWAYS IN CENTRAL CANADA.

American Settlers Welcome and Doing Well.

The Portland Oregonian, of Portland, Oregon, published a cartoon on the immigration of U. S. people to Canada, in its issue of October 5, 1909. The picture was accompanied by the following article:

"Losing American Citizens. The exodus of American farmers to Canada continues to be a phenomenon of the first importance. More of them are crossing the border this fall than ever before, and they are flocking thither from all parts of the country. Formerly it was the Middle West alone which thus lost the heart of its citizenship. Now all sections of the Union suffer alike. The regret which we cannot help feeling over the migration of many thousands of excellent citizens has an economic side which causes some concern. The 70,000 farmers who will go to Canada to live this fall will take with them some $70,000,000 in cash and effects. This is by no means a negligible sum, and makes a very appreciable drain on our resources. But, of course, the most serious loss is the men themselves and their families, who have forsaken the land of the free and the home of the brave to dwell under the rule of a monarch.

"Why do they go? Naturally the cheap and fertile land of Western Canada attracts them. Each emigrant goes with a reasonable expectation of bettering his fortune. Indeed, in a few years he may grow rich through the abundant crops he can raise and the increase of land values. But perhaps that is not the sole reason for the astonishing migration. There is a common notion abroad that in Canada life and property are appreciably safer than they are here. Murders are not so frequent, and are more speedily and surely punished. Mobs and the so-called 'unwritten law' are virtually unknown in Canada. Again, the law is a vastly more ascertainable entity there. Canada does not permit its judges to veto acts of a legislative body. When a statute has been enacted it is known to be the law of the land until it is repealed. This naturally imparts to Canadian civilization a security and stability which we have not yet attained.

"We must remember, in the same connection, that the Canadian protective tariff is far less exorbitant than ours, and much less boldly arranged for the benefit of special favorites. Hence there is an impression, very widely diffused, that the Canadians are not so wickedly robbed by the trusts as we are in this country. Reasons like these sufficiently account for the exodus of a body of citizens, whom we can ill afford to lose, but they do not much assuage our regret that they cannot be retained in the United States."

Speaking of this, a Canadian Government representative says that the Americans who cross the border are most welcome. The splendid areas of virgin soil, a large quantity of which is given away as free homesteads, lies close to existing railways and to those under construction. The railway lines that are assisting in this development are the Canadian Pacific, the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific. The latter is built entirely on Canadian soil, and has opened up a wonderful stretch of land. Along this line during the year about closed thousands of American settlers have made their homes. They have built the towns, and immediately began as factors in the building up of the great Canadian West.

Agents of the Government are located in various cities throughout the United States who will be pleased to give any information that may be desired to further the interest of the settler.

More Information.

Mrs. Chugwater—What is animal magnetism, Josiah?

Mr. Chugwater—Well, you know what an animal is, and you know what magnetism is. Just combine the two and you get animal magnetism. Isn't that plain enough?

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss
LUCAS COUNTY.

Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of Hall's Catarrh Cure. FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.

(SEAL.) A. W. GLEASON, NOTARY PUBLIC.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by all Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

House Numbers Changed.

Opportunity had knocked at the door of the man of genius.

"You've made a mistake," said the man, recognizing him. "The rising pugilist you are looking for lives next door."

This Will Interest Mothers.

Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for Children, used by Mother Gray, a nurse in Children's Home, New York, cure Constipation, Feverishness, Teething Disorders, Stomach Troubles and Destroy Worms; 30,000 testimonials of cures. All druggists, 25c. Sample FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Suiting the Action.

"When you talk about the ultimate consumer," said Uncle Jerry Peebles, filling his pipe with the remnants in his tobacco pouch and lighting it, "I'm him."

HAVE YOU A COUGH, OR COLD?

If so take at once Allen's Lung Balsam and watch results. Simple, safe, effective. All dealers. Popular prices—25c, 50c and $1.00 bottles.

Calling Her Down.

The little boy's mother had accidentally dropped a book on his head.

"Mamma," he said, after waiting a moment and hearing no apology, "you should say 'excuse you!'"

Red Cross Ball Blue

Should be in every home. Ask your grocer for it. Large 2oz. package, 5 cents.

About 60,000,000 barrels (of 196 pounds each) of wheat flour are consumed annually in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

This Man Has Given Away Nearly $5,000,000

Before Dr. D. K. Pearsons reaches his 90th birthday, he means to have disposed of the remainder of his once large fortune, the bulk of which he has given away within the last twenty years. This announcement as made by him recently has raised much comment and conjecture concerning Chicago's famous philanthropist.

How much has he been worth?

What has been his yearly income?

How much has he given to colleges and missionary enterprises?

How much has he given that has never been advertised or heard of?

How much has he left to give away before the time he has set when he will again, as when a young man, stand before the world empty handed, his coffers void and his bank book blank?

All these questions are being discussed by the curious.

All through his life Dr. Pearsons has maintained much reserve regarding his affairs.

"To listen is far better than to talk," has been his motto, and not even to his closest friends has he confided his exact financial status. But it has been possible to get from a number of persons who have been connected with nim in one way or another a general estimate which, while it may not be exactly correct, is at least as nearly so as any one except the philanthropist himself is capable of giving.

If twenty years ago Dr. Pearsons' fortune was, as it is thought to have been, in the neighborhood of $6,000,000, his yearly income, at a most conservative estimate, must have been at least $300,000.

During the twenty years his known gifts to colleges have amounted to $2,579,000. And to this the $20,000 gift just made to the Young Men's Christian Association of Chicago and the $100,000 which he has announced he will present to Berea College in the near future, and which, by the way, will be his last college presentation, and the amount is increased to $2,699,000.

It is taken for granted that his unknown gifts to charities and persons have been in the neighborhood of $2,000,000, at least. He has, then, within the last twenty years given away about $4,699,000. This would leave him with $1,301,000 of his income still untouched and his capital intact as it was when he retired from business. Besides this he has his magnificent suburban home at Hinsdale. This, it is thought, may be made into a home for the crippled children of Chicago, as Dr. Pearsons' big heart has always had a particularly warm spot for these unfortunate mites.

All this has been a most conservative estimate, but it shows that the Chicago philanthropist has, to say the least, a monstrous task before him if he would before his birthday dispose of the money he has left, which, taking the above as authority, amounts yet to over $7,000,000.

Following is a list of the colleges and other institutions which have benefited by his generosity:

Beloit College, Beloit, Wis.	$235,000
Chicago Theological Seminary	280,000
Colorado College, Colorado Springs, Colo.	150,000
Mount Holyoke College, Massachusetts	150,000
Berea College, Kentucky	150,000
Lake Forest University, Lake Forest, Ill.	125,000
Whitman College, Walla Walla, Wash.	120,000
Knox College, Galesburg, Ill.	100,000
Drury College, Springfield, Mo.	100,000
Yankton College, Yankton, S. D.	100,000
Presbyterian Hospital Chicago	70,000
Pacific University, Forest Grove, Ore.	60,000
Carleton College, Northfield, Minn.	50,000
Fargo College, Fargo, N. D.	50,000
Pomona College, Pomona, Cal.	50,000
Fairmont College, Fairmont, Kan.	50,000
McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago	50,000
Chicago Young Men's Christian Association	40,000
Olivet College, Olivet, Mich.	25,000
Marietta College, Marietta, Ohio.	25,000
Sheridan College, Sheridan, Wyo.	25,000
McKendree College, Kewanee, Ill.	25,000
Presbyterian Board of Missions	25,000
Grand Prairie Seminary, Onarga, Ill.	20,000
Anatona College Turkey	20,000
Women's Board of Foreign Missions	20,000
Chicago Art Institute	15,000
Chicago Missionary Society	12,000
First Presbyterian Church, Chicago	10,000
Public Library, Bradford, Vt.	2,000
Unknown college	20,000
Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill. J. J.	30,000
Colorado College, Colorado Springs, Colo.	50,000
Guilford College, Greensboro, N. C.	25,000
Piedmont College, Demorest, Ga.	25,000
Washington College, Tennessee	25,000
Grant University, Chattanooga, Tenn.	50,000
West Virginia Seminary, Morgantown, W. Va.	10,000
Huron College, Huron, S. D.	15,000

A WILL CONTEST which recalls the TEACHINGS of EMANUEL SWEDENBORG

HALF a century ago there died in Lancaster, Pa., a religiously-minded man who had become so imbued with the philosophic teachings of the mystic, Emanuel Swedenborg, that when making disposition of the wealth which had accumulated he left in charge of seven trustees $35,000 for the founding of an academy in which the Swedenborgian doctrine should be taught.

The name of this follower of Swedenborg was Frederick John Kramph. Being a careful man, who took long views of life, and knowing that the settlement of his estate would take some time, during which other zealous Swedenborgians would perhaps wax impatient and build an academy without waiting for his money, he had inserted in his will a clause which provided that should such an academy be built in Philadelphia before the trustees gained possession of the residue of his estate, the residue should then go to the trustees of the established academy.

Now, whatever the reasons for delay, the trustees did not build the academy, but in 1877, almost a score of years after the death of Frederick John Kramph, such an academy was built by others, who, under the provisions of the will, claimed the money.

Before either set of trustees could dispose of the money, which, if well invested, must in the intervening years have considerably increased, a granddaughter, Mrs. Eva T. Appel, loath to see so much good, hard money pass out of the keeping of the family, started proceedings against both sets of trustees, claiming that neither was entitled to the estate, because "the religious denomination of which the grandfather was a lifelong member is an immoral and illegal institution and the doctrines of Emanuel Swedenborg are in derogation of the laws of Pennsylvania and are repugnant not only to the law of the land, but to the public policy."

Such a charge at once enlarged interest in the suit, lifting it from the realm of the purely personal to the broader field in which judges had to uphold or condemn a philosophy which many thousands of people in this land and elsewhere have embraced as a religion.

The orphans' court decided in favor of the granddaughter, this condemning the work of the Church of the New Jerusalem, which is based on the teachings of Swedenborg. Carried to the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, the opinion of the lower court was reversed, the Supreme Court deciding that the works of the Swedish mystic are not in derogation of the laws of Pennsylvania or repugnant to public policy.

In many instances men instrumental in giving to the world what at least a portion of its people accept as religion have been of lowly birth, of little learning. Samuel Swedenborg, ennobled with his family by the queen, son of a bishop who had the confidence and favor of the king and was himself a learned man, was born into a world of intellectual rather than of emotional interests. That the works of such a man should have attracted and held the attention of thinkers like Emerson, Coleridge and Herder is not strange. He was of their class—as fine an intellectual Brahmin as any of them. But that at the same time there should be found in his writings the basis for a church to which the less learned could come and find comfort—that is the amazing thing.

Jesper Swedberg, bishop of Skava, preacher, teacher, reformer, writer and scholar, was the father of nine children, all born to the first of three well-beloved wives. "I am fully convinced," he wrote, "that children ought to be called such names as will awaken in them and call to their minds the fear of God and everything that is orderly and righteous. * * The name of my son Emanuel signifies 'God with us,' that he may always remember God's presence, and that intimate, holy and mysterious conjunction with our good and gracious God, into which we are brought by faith, by which we are conjoined with Him and are in Him. And blessed be the Lord's name, God has to this hour been with him."

Perhaps the good bishop was right and the name did play its part in making the son the mystic which he became. The father was a good bishop. Son of a mine owner whose large wealth was not so large when divided among many members of a large family, Jesper Swedberg, whose father was Daniel Isaksson, followed a custom of his country and took his name from the homestead, called Sweden. It seems a curious custom which thus gives each generation of the same family a different surname, for after the family was ennobled Emanuel, the son of Jesper Swedberg, became Swedenborg—his father was Swedberg; his grandfather, Daniel Isaksson, son of Isaac Nilsson, who was the son of Nils Ottesson, son of Otto of Sundborg.

After Jesper Swedberg had taken his theological scholarship at the University of Upsal, he married a wealthy widow and, with the aid of her fortune, traveled extensively, meeting men of learning and profiting thereby. Returning to his native land, he was made chaplain of the king's regiment of life guards. So ardent was he in the performance of his duties that he promised to give a catechism to every soldier of the regiment who could read it at the next annual inspection. The first year there were 300 who demanded catechisms and the next 600, so the poor preacher had to beg assistance from the king. A little later he was appointed by the king member of a commission to revise the Swedish Bible and was so eager to hasten the work that he advanced money belonging to his wife and children to import the materials and workmen for printing.

ATCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS.

The man who brags how honest he is, will stand watching.

If you are fair in giving both sides of a quarrel, it is a sign it is not your quarrel.

When you are very busy, don't waste valuable time in telling how busy you are.

How a woman does drawls out the word "Y—e—s!" when she is trying to be sympathetic.

Men always think that you women devote too much time to shopping.

"My duty," said an unhappy married woman to-day, "is anything HE objects to."

When a real old-fashioned woman gives a grunt of disapproval, it sounds as if it came all the way up from her heels.

Women inherit their religious creeds from their mothers, the same as men inherit the tobacco habit from their fathers.

REMOVING STAINS.

Medicine stains can be removed by soaking in alcohol.

Meat juice stains simply need to be washed in cold water, followed with soap.

Alcohol applied with a woolen rag will remove stains made from hot dishes.

Chloroform is one of the best-known cleansers for delicate fabrics. It does not leave "rings."

Medicine oil may be removed by washing in cold water and soap, or by rubbing the stain with turpentine.

Paint stains are removed by the use of benzine or turpentine. Rub well with the benzine or turpentine. For delicate colors chloroform in naphtha is best.

Kerosene may be removed by the use of fullers' earth. Cover the stain with a thick layer of hot fullers' earth and let it remain twenty-four hours; then brush off.

FIXING NATION'S CLOCK

Careful Methods at Washington Naval Observatory to Insure Accuracy.

DELICATE MECHANISM IS USED

How Mean Time Is Obtained and the Part Performed by Riefler's Sidereal Timepiece.

A few moments before 12 o'clock noon every day in the year a young man walks into a certain room of the main building at the naval observatory, which is set up on a hill in the northwestern part of the District of Columbia, the Boston Herald says. He glances at the various clocks in the room and then goes over to a table covered with electric apparatus.

He watches the clocks to his left closely and waits for the hands to reach 11:55. As the second hand approaches the 60 on the dial he prepares to shift a switch. The clock is so finely adjusted that when the second hand points to 60 it exactly marks the beginning of a new minute and the end of the old.

As it touches the 60 the switches are thrown on. That starts a signal that goes out instantaneously over 900,000 miles of telegraph lines. In Washington, New York, Buffalo, Cleveland, Newport, Baltimore, Newport News, Norfolk, Savannah, New Orleans, Key West, Galveston, Chicago and elsewhere the time balls go up on their poles. People know that it is five minutes before noon, Washington time.

The clock which keeps the time in the observatory ticks on. With each tick there is a contact of electric points. A circuit is closed and an instrument on the table similar to a telegraph sounder ticks away loudly.

It goes on to the twenty-ninth second, then skips one tick, then resumes its steady soundings until the last five seconds, then there is another gap. These gaps are for the purpose of giving listeners at other ends of the great system of wires a chance to know what part of the minute the clock is on. And so it goes up to the last minute.

At the thirty-ninth second there is again the skipping of one second. Finally the clock gets around to the fiftieth second. Then the circuit remains open for ten seconds. There is silence all along the telegraph wires.

The mean time is determined by astronomical observations. When certain stars pass the seventy-fifth meridian, called the meridian of Washington, it is a certain time. The operator watches for the stars through a telescope, the field of which is covered with fine wires.

As the stars reach a certain point in transit the operator presses a key in his hand. A contact is made and recorded on a chronograph. The chronograph consists of a cylinder covered with a paper. A fountain pen rests on the paper. It is held by an arm attached to the mechanism. The cylinder revolves once a minute and the pen moves along the surface of the paper, making a spiral line.

A sidereal clock of the finest make is running in a vault underneath the observatory. With each tick of the clock there is a contact of two points. These two points are attached to wires that lead to an electrogramnet attached to the arm that holds the pen of the chronograph. The clock is so adjusted that each minute the pen is made to jump to one side. Consequently there is no break in the line.

There are other breaks, too, when the observer watches the stars cross the lines in the field of the telescope. The mean times thus recorded for each star after being corrected for errors is the clock time of the star's transit. Whatever difference there is between the clock time and the sidereal time marked by the transit of the stars is the error of the clock. From these astronomical observations the sidereal time is obtained. The error amounts to but little, rarely being more than from five one-hundredths to ten one-hundredths of a second.

GOAT BUTTS AT HIS OWN IMAGE IN SHOW WINDOW.

"Bill Hector," a goat, looked through the window of a millinery store in Chicago. Amid a display of big hats he imagined he saw another goat leering at him. He plunged through the window. There was no goat to do battle with him, so he took revenge on the hats, to the dismay of the milliner and her assistants. He had only seen his own reflection.

The wood preservation industry of this country during the year 1908 called for the use of 56,000,000 gallons of creosote, 19,000,000 pounds of zinc chloride, with small quantities of corosive sublimate, crude oil and other chemicals.

According to Science, the Berlin Academy of Sciences has received a legacy of 30,000,000 marks (about $1,500,000), being the entire fortune of a millionaire named Samson, a Berlin banker, who recently died childless at Brussels.

WISCONSIN WOMAN OF 78 IS TAKING A COLLEGE COURSE.

MRS. A. D. WINSHIP.

Mrs. A. D. Winship of Racine, Wis., who is 78 years old, is studying hard every day at the Ohio State University, and by her diligence puts many youths and young women to shame. She recently entered the college as a freshman.

"I am not going to leave the college till I am 80 years old," she said. "I feel as young as a girl, and why should I not complete my education? In my girlhood we did not have the advantages that girls have now, though I had some education, even in those days. But learning is more advanced now, and I want to get some of it. Of course, I have read a good deal, but I wanted more of the rudiments. When I am called hence and go to the next world I don't want to be placed in the A, B, C class. I am going to specialize on psychology and literature."

Mrs. Winship is a sister of Truman Wright, who was greatly interested in education and who gave a college to the city of Racine. She is in robust health and declares she is not a faddist, but a true seeker after knowledge.

BEAR TREES BOY HUNTER.

Treed by a bear within sight of his own home was the thrilling experience of Dennie K. Birdsall, Jr., a Watson, Conn., lad of 14, as he was hunting. Birdsall might be there yet had not his father gone to his rescue with a pitchfork and driven off the bear. Young Birdsall was hunting for partridges with his dog Sport, when suddenly the dog came out from the brush as though mad. His tail was between his legs, the hair of his back was upright and his eyes were bulging from his head. After the dog came a brown bear. The boy had sand and emptied both charges of birdshot at Bruin from his gun, but the bear never stopped. Then Dennie sought the nearest tree.

SPLINTERS.

A man doesn't have to be much of an orator to be a good speaker.

The girl with the pretty ankle never gets mud on the bottom of her skirt.

A man doesn't have to blow his own horn if he has done anything worth blowing about.

Man usually shows his inconsistency by a front seat in a theater and a rear seat in church.

Half the steam wasted in attending to other people's business would keep your own business going.

Adele—Is he a good dentist? Estelle—No, a bad one; he stole a kiss from one of his pretty girl patients the other day.

Bowers—They say the world gets wiser as it grows older. Powers—Yes, nearly every man you meet nowadays knows it all.

Mr. Bills—They say that Jones is a recognized authority on all economical questions. Mrs. Bills—Yes, I have seen his wife's clothes.

VITALIZER

There is Hope

RESTORES LOST POWERS. A weak man is like a clock run down. MUNYON'S VITALIZER will wind him up and make him go. If you are nervous, if you are irritable, if you lack confidence in yourself, if you do not feel your full manly vigor, begin on this remedy at once. There are 75 VITALIZER tablets in one bottle; every tablet is full of vital power. Don't spend another dollar on quack doctors or spurious remedies, or fill your system with harmful drugs. Begin on MUNYONS' VITALIZER at once, and you will begin to feel the vitalizing effect of this remedy after the first dose. Price, $1, post-paid. Munyon, 53rd and Jefferson, Phila, Pa.

A Whistler Story.

Charles L. Freer of Detroit is America's leading collector of Whistler's paintings, among Mr. Freer's treasures being the famous Peacock room decorations from the dining rooom of the Leyland house in London.

Mr. Freer is also a collector of Whistler anecdotes, one of which he told me at a recent dinner.

"Whistler," he said, "once undertook to get a fellow-painter's work into the autumn Salon. He succeeded, and the picture was hung.

"But the painter, going to see his masterpiece with Whistler on varnishing day, uttered a terrible oath when he beheld it.

"'Good gracious!' he groaned, 'you're exhibiting my picture upside down!'

"'Hush,' said Whistler. 'The committee refused it the other way.'"

HELPLESS WITH RHEUMATISM.

The Experiences of Many Who Do Not Know the Kidneys Are Weak.

Jacob C. Bahr, 18 Broadway, Lebanon, Ohio, says: "For three months I was helpless in bed with muscular rheumatism and had to be fed. My feet swelled, my legs were rigid, black spots flitted before my eyes and I was sore all over. Doctors didn't help me and I couldn't raise hand or foot. To please my wife I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and in two weeks I was improving. Then by leaps and bounds I got better until well and back at work. After such mortal agony this seemed wonderful."

Remember the name—Doan's. Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

AN HONEST CAPITALIST.

Incident Illustrating the Integrity of the Late J. S. Kennedy.

The late John S. Kennedy, the New York banker, was a sturdy man, one who could be trusted.

In Wall street he was well thought of. He had been in some big deals. In the Northern Securities deal of 1902, which pushed Northern Pacific stock from 300 to 700 in three days, with an odd franticsale at $1,000, Kennedy stood with the Morgan syndicate and helped that great undertaking. With James J. Hill, Lord Strathcona and Lord Mount Stephen he held 200,000 shares of Northern Pacific certificates which the market could not tempt from the strong box.

These men had promised Mr. Morgan that they would stand by him against the effort to oust him from Northern Pacific control and with a soaring mark they resisted the temptation to possess themselves of a tremendous fortune. The opposition offered them $14,000,000 profit on their holdings at the beginning of the movement and toward the end they might have multiplied that twenty times. Mr. Kennedy was the mainstay in that combination, which saved the property to the Morgan interest and assured it the development that it afterward enjoyed.

Northwestern development was always of keen interest to him. It engaged his close attention for 30 years. He was one of the pioneers with James J. Hill in that field. He had part in the construction of the Great Northern road, and in 1881 was a member of the syndicate that contracted with the Canadian government to build the Canadian Pacific Railway. For some years he served as a director of that company. He figured also in the incorporation of the Union Pacific.

RESULTS OF FOOD.

Health and Natural Conditions Come from Right Feeding.

Man, physically, should be like a perfectly regulated machine, each part working easily in its appropriate place. A slight derangement causes undue friction and wear, and frequently ruins the entire system.

A well known educator of Boston found a way to keep the brain and the body in that harmonious co-operation which makes a joy of living.

"Two years ago," she writes, "being in a condition of nervous exhaustion, I resigned my position as teacher, which I had held for over 40 years. Since then the entire rest has, of course, been a benefit, but the use of Grape-Nuts has removed one great cause of illness in the past, namely, constipation and its attendant evils.

"I generally make my entire breakfast on a raw egg beaten into four spoonfuls of Grape-Nuts, with a little hot milk or hot water added. I like it extremely, my food assimilates and my bowels take care of themselves. I find my brain power and physical endurance much greater and I know that the use of the Grape-Nuts has contributed largely to this result.

"It is with feelings of gratitude that I write this testimonial, and trust it may be the means of aiding others in their search for health."

Look in pkgs. for the little book, "The Road to Wellville." "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true and full of human interest.

DECEMBER

0427

L1134

The Exceptional Equipment

of the California Fig Syrup Co. and the scientific attainments of its chemists have rendered possible the production of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, in all of its excellence, by obtaining the pure medicinal principles of plants known to act most beneficially and combining them most skillfully, in the right proportions, with its wholesome and refreshing Syrup of California Figs.

As there is only one genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna and as the genuine is manufactured by an original method known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only, it is always necessary to buy the genuine to get its beneficial effects.

A knowledge of the above facts enables one to decline imitations or to return them if, upon viewing the package, the full name of the California Fig Syrup Co. is not found printed on the front thereof.

Dangerous Risk.

"Look out, Hi," shouted the farmer's wife as the big balloon soared over the farm with a trailing anchor. "Them thar drynaughts will hook yeou up like a fish if yeou don't watch out."

"Gosh, Mandy!" gasped the old farmer as he dropped his rake. "Yeou don't think they'd try to do sech a thing purposely, do yeou?"

"Wouldn't trust them, Hi. That tall chap looking down here with the eyeglass is one of them thar Indiana writer folks and he's working on a book called 'The Uplifting of the Farmer.' Reckon yeou better keep yeour eye on that anchor."

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES

FOR RHEUMATISM BRIGHT'S DISEASE BACKACHE DIABETES

OVER 375 "Guaranteed" Cures

WESTERN CANADA

What J. J. Hill, the Great Railroad Magnate, Says About its Wheat-Producing Power:

"The greatest need of this country [United States] in another generation or two will be the providing of homes for its people and producing sufficient for them. The days of our prominence as a wheat exporting country are gone. Canada is to be the great wheat country."

This great railroad magnate is taking advantage of the attention by extensive railway building to the wheat fields of Western Canada.

Upwards of 125 Million Bushels of Wheat

were harvested in 1909. Average of the three provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba will be upwards of 23 bushels per acre.

Free homesteads of 160 acres, and adjoining pre-emptions of 160 acres at $3 per acre, are to be had in the choicest districts.

Schools convenient, climate excellent, soil the very best, railways close at hand, building lumber cheap, fuel easy to get and reasonable in price, water easily procured; mixed farming a success. Write as to best place for settlement, settlers' low railway rates, descriptive illustrated "Last Best West" sent free on application, and other information, to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the following Canadian Gov't Agents: W. H. Rogers, 3d Floor Traction Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Ind., and H. M. Williams, Room 29, Law Building, Toledo, Ohio. (Use address nearest you).

Please say where you saw this advertisement.

F Fort Wayne Lust

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

Baby Smiles— When He Takes PISO'S CURE

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS and COLDS

So pleasant that he likes it—and contains no opiates. There is nothing like it for Bronchitis, Asthma and all troubles of the throat and lungs. A Standard Remedy for half a century.

All Druggists, 25 Cents

IMPROVED FARM 330 acres 2½ miles from R. R. and town. Soil 3½ feet deep. 6 room house, barn, well, windmill and water tanks. This is a bargain. Price $35.00 per acre. ½ cash, long time on balance. Free transportation to purchaser.

E. C. HUGHES, 174 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Dr. McINTOSH celebrated Natural Uterine Supporter gives immediate relief. Sold by all surgical instrument dealers and leading druggists in United States and Canada. Catalog, price list and particulars mailed on application.

THE HASTINGS & McINTOSH TRUSS CO. 919 Walnut St., PHILADELPHIA, PA., manufacturers of trusses and sole makers of the Genuine stamped "McIntosh" Supporter.

PILES PAY IF CURED We pay postage and send FREE RED CROSS Pile and Fistula Cure. REA CO., DEPT. 85, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES

A convenient and effective remedy for Coughs and Hoarseness. Invaluable to Bronchial and Lung Troubles and to Singers and Speakers for clearing the voice. Entirely free from opiates or any harmful ingredient. Price, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00 per box. Sample mailed on request.

JOHN I. BROWN & SON, Boston, Mass.

THE HAPPY MARRIAGE.

How blest has my time been, what joys have I known,
Since wedlock's soft bondage has made Jessy my own!
So joyful my heart is, so easy my chain,
That freedom is tasteless, and roving a pain.

Through walks grown with woodbines, as often we stray,
Around us our boys and girls frolic and play:
How pleasing their sport is! The wanton ones see,
And borrow their looks from my Jessy and me.

To try her sweet temper, oftimes am I seen
In revels all day with the nymphs on the green;
Though painful my absence, my doubts she beguiles,
And meets me at night with complacence and smiles.

What though on her cheek the rose loses its hue,
Her wit and good humor bloom all the year through;
Time still, as it flies, adds increase to her truth,
And gives to her mind what he steals from her youth.

Ye shepherds so gay, who make love to ensnare
And cheat with false vows the too credulous fair,
In search of true pleasure, how vainly you roam!
To hold it for life, you must find it at home.

—Edward Moore.

I found myself in a little brown boat, on a wide, blue sea that began and ended in the round of the sky. The boat had no oars or sail, but it went swiftly, cutting a white track upon the swelling waters. The sun made a golden blaze, and a salt breeze blew. I felt cleansed by the sun and air, and the soils of life seemed washed from me and my memory. The last to go was a numbness in my head; as if I was being hurt without feeling it. When the numbness was gone I laughed; and the blue swell leapt at the boat as if it answered.

Presently a green island rose out of the sea and grew against the sky; a long, sloping hillside, covered with a carpet of flowers and grasses, and fringed with a border of glistening sand—many-colored, sand, like tiny moonstones. A creek of smooth sapphire water ran into the breast of the mountain, and ended in a pool overhung by weeping willows. The little boat took me there, moving slowly now, and with a pleasant ripple. A long tree-trunk lay along one bank, like a quay. Another little boat rested beside it. A woman in a flowing white robe sat upon the trunk, with her sandalled feet upon the boat. She was bright like the sea, and the breeze, and the flowers of the wonderful island—as if she had come fresh from the mint of creation—and she looked up and smiled at me without boldness or shyness; and I left my boat splashing in the water, and sat beside her.

"What place is this?" I asked.

"I do not know," she answered. Her voice was fresh, like everything else. "I have just come."

"Where did you come from?"

"I do not know. And you?"

"I do not know either," I told her, "but I think we have just died."

"Yes," she agreed. "I think so; and I think this is our new life."

"Like Adam and Eve," I suggested; and she smiled and nodded.

"We will call each other that," she assented; and we looked at each other for a long while.

"You are very beautiful, Eve," I said.

"Am I?" She clapped her hands and laughed. "I was wondering!"

"I shall like you very much," I told her.

"I shall like you, too, of course," she said, with a soft look in her eyes. "That is why we came here, I think. I saw your eyes call me."

"I remember that," I said. "I did not like to go alone; and you looked so sorry for me, and—I do not remember anything else. I must try to remember."

I set my lips and frowned; but I could not remember; and presently she touched my arm.

"Does it matter?" she asked; and I looked into her deep brown eyes.

"No," I said. "It does not matter, Eve. We will make this new world happy for each other. Still, should like to remember."

"I am happy," she said, "and I do not want to remember; and I do not want you to remember, Adam."

"Dear Adam," I corrected.

"I meant that, of course. You are very dear to me. That is why I do not want you to remember. You might find something dearer in your memory, perhaps another Eve. You must never remember, Adam. When I say that"—she smiled at me—"I always mean 'dear Adam.'"

"Dearest Eve, I cannot help if I remember, or do not remember."

"Ah! But you can. There is a tree. There was one in another garden; and the other Eve was curious—the first Eve—and she tasted it; and she showed it to Adam. Afterwards he knew more than she, or the knowledge made more difference to him—I think it was that—and she was sorry. Women were always sorry afterwards. So I shall not show you the tree."

"You know it, then?" I asked.

"Yes—I—I think so." She looked down at her feet.

"How did you find out?"

"Something whispered. It said that it would not hurt me to know. I expect that is right, because—because I should always like you so much that it wouldn't matter. Men are different. When they know——" She shook her head. "There is no one else here; but you might wish there was—if you remembered."

"You seem to be very wise, Eve," I said. "I think, when you went and looked at the tree—didn't you taste it?"

She rose hastily

"Let us go and look at the island," she said.

But I caught her by the arm.

"Did you, Eve?" I asked.

"No-o," she said slowly. "At least—— Do come and look at the island, Adam."

"Look at me, Eve," I said; and when she turned her head away, I took her face between my hands, and held it in front of mine.

"I never will again," she said, "and—please kiss me, Adam."

I kissed her, and we wandered through the groves with our arms round each other, and ate berries, and drank from a little spring that flowed from the rocks. We made cups with our hands, and gave the water to each other.

"Do you remember if we knew each other before, dearest Eve?" I asked. "In the world where we lived?" But she shook her head.

"No," she said, "I do not remember. It was a great world of many people, I think; and they did not really know each other often; not as we do. If we went back there we might not know that we were meant for each other, might not find each other. That is why I do not want to go back. I think we shall be happy together, because—— Do you not like to kiss me, Adam?"

I kissed her.

"I like to," I said.

"Then you always may," she assured me.

"You may, too," I offered; but she shook her head.

"Oh, no!" she said. "Not—not unless you ask me."

"Did the tree tell you that?" I asked.

"I don't want to talk about the tree," she said. "You mustn't, Adam. If you do——" She flung herself into my arms suddenly, and burst into tears. "If you do, you will go back, back to the world where—where you might not find me."

I stroked her hair, and comforted her.

"I don't want to go back, Eve," I said. "We won't talk about it any more. But if I went back, and found you? Would it matter, then?"

"Of course not! If you found me—nothing could matter then. But I am so afraid you wouldn't. Let us go and pick those flowers, Adam. You shall put them in my hair; and I will kiss you for them."

"May you kiss me, if I give you flowers?" I asked.

She laughed at me, with her head on one side, showing her white teeth; and I was sure that, in the world we came from, there was no one so beautiful.

"I am going to," she said.

And I picked the flowers, and put them in her pretty hair, and she kissed me; and we went hand in hand through the wonderful island singing. And this was a song that she sang:

O little singing bird,
O little smiling rose,
The world is just one word—
A woman knows!
O mother earth so tall,
O mighty rolling deeps,
The secret of it all
A woman keeps.
O sun and moon and sky,
And blinking stars above,
You know no more than I—
I——

"It is a pretty song," I said, "but what is the secret? And why do you only hum it? The last word?"

"Because you must guess it," she said. "But you can't."

"Well," I said, "I don't want to. I don't suppose I should agree, because I know what I think best about this new world."

"What is that?" she enquired, with her head on one side.

"You, of course," I told her. "You are so very beautiful."

And then she shook my arm and laughed at me.

"You will find out some day, Adam!" she declared. "Let us go and gather more flowers; and you shall put them in my hair."

"And you will kiss me then?" I asked.

"Why, yes!" said she. I thought the kissing had something to do with the secret. So, whenever we came to flowers, I gathered them and put them in her hair, because I wanted to learn the secret; and because it was such a strange new pelasure to kiss her; and she looked so pleased to be kissed. She sang the song many times, but always stopped at the last word and smiled; and when I wanted to know what it was, she hung on to my arm and laughed up at me.

"Do you think I am nice, Adam?" she asked.

"Yes," I said. "I like you, Eve. You are beautiful."

"That is because I have pretty flowers in my hair," she told me.

"Shall I find some more?" I suggested.

"Yes," she agreed; and laughed again.

We walked round the island till the sun grew low. We came back to the pool where we had landed, just as the great yellow disc sank below the horizon, and the red flooded the sea. Our boats rocked in the pool and the water lapped the edge, and rustled the sand of many-colored moonstones. The birds twittered as they went to their nests, and the willows waved softly over the water; and Eve sat with her chin on her hands, looking at it; and I sat and looked at her. Her eyes were deep and thoughtful; but mine were restless. And presently she put out her hand and I took it.

"What is it, dear Eve?" I asked.

"I want you to think of me as I think of you," she said, with a tearful softness in her voice.

"I like you very much," I told her, "better than the sea, or the flowers, or anything."

"Why?" she asked.

"You can talk, and they cannot."

She shrugged her shoulders.

"Would you like the flowers as well as me if they could talk?" she demanded.

"No," I said. "They would not be so beautiful; and perhaps they would not like me so well."

"No," she said. "No one would——. Suppose there was another—another Eve? Would you like her as well?"

"How can I tell without seeing her?" I asked, and Eve gave a sharp cry.

"I should never like anyone else so well as you," she said. "Besides—like isn't the word, Adam."

"Isn't it?" I asked. She shook her head. "Is it—the word that you won't say?" She nodded.

"Do you want to know the word?" she asked.

"Yes," I said; and she sighed.

"Come," she commanded, and we wandered round the edge of the pool together, and came to a little low tree, with fruit like cherries and she ate and so did I; and suddenly the world seemed to change, and I; and my heart felt big with my liking toward her.

"The word is—love!" I cried. "Dear Eve! I love you!"

"Dear Adam!" she answered. "I love you—so much!"

We stood folded in each other's arms till the moon rose out of the waters. The twittering of the birds ceased, and the waves grew still, and no longer lashed the moon-hand up and down the shore. It was so quiet that we could count our heart-beats, and they sounded louder and louder; and then there was a ripple in the water, and the boats drew slowly near to us; and Eve gave a cry, and so did I.

"Adam!" she wailed. "Dear Adam! I must go in the boat alone, back to the other world. And you must follow. We have lost our Eden—till you find me. If you do not find me! Or if we find each other and do not know? We shall think that this was only a dream, and be afraid to speak of it. Our lips will be closed to each other, and our lives— O Adam!"

"We will not go," I cried, fiercely; but the boats grounded on the beach, and our arms fell from each other, and I knew that we must go—alone!

"We will remember!" I declared, as I helped her into the boat; for she sobbed so that she could scarcely stand. "What shall I say to tell you that I remember?"

"Give me—flowers," she gasped. "Put them—in—my hair—— Good-by! Oh! Kiss me, Adam! If we never meet—"

"We will meet," I vowed. "I know we shall meet."

"But we may not remember, or understand?"

"We shall remember and understand," I declared. "Good-bye—my Eve!"

"Good-by—— Oh, Adam!"

Her boat went slowly across the pool, out at the opening. I watched her sitting, a bowed, white figure, in the stern; watched till her boat was out of sight. Then I entered mine, and we slipped away softly in the moonlight, away over the silver-gray sea, going swiftly and more swiftly; and the stars came out and blinked, and a soft breeze blew, and the still sea swelled stronger and stronger; and in the moonlight I saw the peak of the wonderful island sink below the horizon; and then the moon went out under a great black cloud, and the sea grew rougher and the wind stronger, and white spray flew over the prow of the boat and blew from the top of the waves till I seemed to fly through a stinging snowstorm. Through the spray a great, black mountain seemed to rise. I thought it was the world of memories. The numbness came back to my head, and I knew that I was being hurt without feeling it. Then the moon came out again, and I saw a shining, black-gray sea, like dull silver, and a black, rocky coast with little lights dotted about it, and a bright light, high on the cliffs, that flashed and seemed to pierce me. A row of breakers lay just underneath, and the waves sprang up in sheets of foam. The boat headed straight for them. I sprang up and gave a cry. There was a cruel flash from the beacon, and a cruel crash as the boat struck upon the rock; and I went whirling round in the foam, and the water roared in my ears.

I opened my eyes, and the anæsthetist stood beside my bed, smiling his pleasant smile.

"It has been very successful," he said. "You will be up again in a fortnight. And what did you dream about?"

"Adam and Eve," I said, with a little laugh—it sounded miles away. "It was a great nonsense; but it was pleasant nonsense."

A womans' voice gave a little cry—and I knew it for Eve's. I tried to turn on my bed to look; but the anæsthetist had put his hand on my shoulder.

"It is Miss Lester," he said; "the nurse, you know. She fainted just before you went off, and has only just come around. So we have had our hands full."

"Yes, you naughty girl," said the cheery voice of Dr. Ryan, the surgeon. "What do you mean by it, eh?"

"I don't know. I felt as if—I was hypnotized. I am so sorry. I heard a sound like soft crying. When they know they will think I am not fit for—"

"Tut, tut," said Dr. Ryan's voice. "We aren't going to tell anybody; and I dare say your patient will forgive you for deserting him. She doesn't do this sort of thing usually, Mr. Redman. She's my very best nurse. How are you feeling?" He came and looked at me. "A little muddled after the ether, eh?"

"I am all right," I said. "Please ask Miss Lester not to worry, and—I hope she will nurse me."

"Of course she will. Now, Miss Lester! You'd better go and lie down."

"Ye-es. I will say good-night to Mr. Redman first." A white face looked down upon me—the face of Eve! And now I remembered that I had watched it as I lay with the cone over my mouth, and the world faded, and had wished that it could come with me into the great unknown. "I am glad that it is over," she said, with a catch in her voice. "You will soon be well; and you will not remember my foolishness."

I held out my hand—it seemed to weigh a ton—and she took it.

"I shall remember—everything," I assured her. "Will you order me some flowers, Dr. Ryan? To come to-morrow morning, without fail? A great basket of kowers. I want to give them to Miss Lester."

"Yes," he said, with a laugh. "Yes!" He moved away, talking to the anæsthetist.

"You will accept them?" I whispered.

"Yes," she answered; and a pink color came to her white cheeks. "Yes."

"I will put them—in your hair," I whispered. "Eve? Do you remember?"

"I remember," she said, "and—you shall put them in my hair. Good-night."

"Good-night, dear."

"Dear—good-night."

She turned at the door, and smiled for a moment, and was gone; and I lay and smiled, and listened idly to the doctors talking.

"Strange that she should have fainted," said the surgeon's voice at the table by the window. "She has plenty of nerve, as a rule. Is he anything to her, do you think?"

"I don't think so," said the voice of the anæsthetist. "I fancy the apparatus leaked a little. Some people are very susceptible to ether."—Black and White.

DERNBERG'S EARLY LIFE.

German Colonial Secretary Was Once a Laborer in America.

The invitation received from London by Herr Dernberg, the German colonial secretary, to be the principal guest at the African society's first dinner, recalls that few public men can boast of such a romantic career as this son of a village shopkeeper a few miles outside Berlin, a Berlin dispatch to the Cincinnati Enquirer says. The early years of his life were spent at assistant to his father and subsequently behind the counter of a Berlin store. Finding, however, insufficient scope for his energies, he made up his mind to emigrate to the United States.

After days of tramping about in search of permanent employment keeping himself in the meantime on the proceeds of casual laboring jobs he was engaged as a clerk in a Wall street office in New York. He remained there for just over a year, and upon his employer's refusal to raise his salary 10 shillings a week, left the States and returned to Germany.

Herr Dernberg is a persona grata with the Kaiser. In connection with this, he tells a good story of an occasion when in the company of his Majesty and Prince von Buelow he attended some military maneuvers. In a group of people almost under the heads of the horses, one spectator nudged another, and remarked: "There's Buelow behind you."

The other merely grunted his recognition, whereupon the first speaker asked: "But who is the funny little fellow with him?" pointing to the Kaiser. At this question his companion turned and regarded the "funny little fellow" closely. "Oh, I don't know," he said. "A mere nobody, I suppose." And, concludes Herr Dernberg, none laughed more heartily than the Emperor when told of the incident.

In the Parlor.

"They praise the man in this house for being so handy," said the Door, "but he has me all unhinged."

"He gives me a pane," ejaculated the Window.

"He simply unstrung me," said the Blind.

"He got me all out of shape," complained the Curtain.

"He took altogether the wrong tack with me," sneered the Carpet.

"Why don't you do as I do, and just take a stand?" said the Table.

"It's well for you to talk, but my wrongs are deep-seated ones," sobbed the Chair.

"I have an idea," burst out the Clock. "Let's go on a strike!"

The Murderous Bluefish

A five-pound bluefish passes eastward from Vineyard sound in the spring and weighs ten or fifteen pounds in autumn. The bluefish is an unmitigated sea butcher and is able to whip any other species not larger than himself. He attacks menhaden with such ferocity as to pack them in windrows a foot deep on the coast.

Heartless Landlord.

"I used to walk the floor worrying about how I was going to pay my landlord," said Mr. Tufluck. "I hope you have quit all that," replied the optimist. "I had to. The landlord said that if I didn't stop wearing out the floor he'd raise the rent."

His Idea of It.

"It's a blooming shame," said the Westerner who was somewhat of a botanist.

"What is?" asked the inquisitive person.

"The cactus."—Cleveland Leader.

Say a home is beautiful, and the women present will intimate that it is due more to the wife's taste than to the husband's money.

SKIN WAS ROUGH AS BARK.

Baby Boy Had an Intense Itching Humor—Scratched Till Blood Ran—Found a Cure in Cuticura.

"Our son, two years old, was afflicted with a rash. After he suffered with the trouble several weeks I took him to the doctor, but it got worse. The rash ran together and made large blisters. The little fellow didn't want to do anything but scratch and we had to wrap his hands up to keep him from tearing the flesh open till the blood would run. The itching was intense. The skin on his back became hard and rough like the bark of a tree. He suffered intensely for about three months. But I found a remedy in Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. The result was almost magical. That was more than two years ago, and there has not been the slightest symptom of it since he was cured. J. W. Lauck, Yukon, Okla., Aug. 28 and Sept. 17, 1908."

Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props. of Cuticura Remedies, Boston.

Japan's Luxurious Prison.

The most luxurious prison in the world is in Japan, about fifteen miles from Tokio. In the midst of gardens where flourish medlars and cherry trees, where are seen ornamental ponds with water lilies, arises the palatial prison. The cells are spacious and airy. The lighting throughout is by electricity and the apartments are furnished luxuriously. Bathrooms with marble baths, hot and cold water being laid on, dressing rooms and reading rooms—nothing seems to be wanting to make the sojourn in this prison pleasant. In fact, it seems an ideal country residence, scarcely calculated to reduce crime.—Tit-Bits.

For Old People.

After reaching the age of forty the human system gradually declines. The accumulated poisons in the blood cause rheumatic pains in the joints, muscles and back. These warnings should be promptly relieved and serious illness avoided by using the following prescription which shows wonderful results even after the first few doses and it will eventually restore physical vigor.

"One ounce compound syrup of Sarsaparilla; one ounce Toris compound; half pint of high grade whiskey. This to be mixed and used in tablespoonful doses before each meal and at bedtime." The bottle to be well shaken each time." Any druggist has these ingredients or he will get them from his wholesale house.

A Mild Hint.

Two guests came to spend the evening and didn't know when to depart. The host and hostess were patient with them, very patient, but when 11, 12 and finally 1 o'clock struck, the husband realized that something must be done. He was an original chap, and in his droll way he looked over at his wife and said mildly:

"My dear, hadn't we better get up to bed? Our friends may want to be going."

Bud Doble,

The greatest of all horsemen, says: "In my 40 years' experience with horses I have found Spohn's Distemper Cure the most successful of all remedies for the horses. It is the greatest blood purifier." Bottle, 50c. and $1.00. Druggists can supply you, or manufacturers. Agents wanted. Send for Free Book. Spohn Medical Co., Spec. Contagious Diseases, Goshen, Ind.

Reminded Him.

"I wish I could remember," said Rivers, "what it was that my wife told me to do to-day."

"Perhaps," suggested Brooks, "she told you to bring my razor back. You borrowed it about a month ago."

"Razor back? Razor back? I know now—I was to be sure to take home some pork chops."—Chicago Tribune.

Rheumatism and Neuralgia never could get along with Hamlins Wizard Oil. Wizard Oil always drives them away from the premises in short order.

Looked Like a Dog.

"This," remarked Mr. Cane, "is my photograph with my two French poodles. You recognize me, eh?"

"I think so," said Miss Softie. "You are the one with the hat on, are you not?"

Constipation causes and aggravates many serious diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. The favorite family laxative.

Looking Forward.

"Why are you looking so happy?"

"My rich uncle has bought him an aeroplane."

"But Curtis says an aeroplane is as safe as an automobile."

"And I believe it; that's why I'm so happy."—Houston Post.

All Up-to-Date Housekeepers Use Red Cross Ball Blue. It makes the clothes clean and sweet as when new. All Grocers.

The Separation.

"I understand that she is separated from her husband."

"Yes."

"Oh, tell me all about it. What did she do?"

"Nothing. He died."

EXPOSURE TO COLD and wet is the first step to Pneumonia. Take Perry Davis' Painkiller and the danger is averted. Unequaled for colds, sore throat, quinsy. 25c, 50c and 50c.

Burma is making money out of peanut growing. The peanut acreage increased from 3,800 acres in 1903 to 80,000 acres in 1907.

Don't Suffer and Complain

Nothing is so wearing on the nerves of your family and friends. Ask us for a sample of PISO'S TABLETS a modern scientific home treatment for the diseases of women. They may be used in the privacy of one's own home, thus avoiding all embarassing situations. A Michigan woman who has given them a thorough test writes,

"I cannot reccommend these Tablets too highly for what they have done for me. I have had no return of the disease, and don't know what it is to have an ache or pain. I am perfectly well and I owe it all to your wonderful Tablets."

For sale by all druggists. Trial package and a treatise entitled "Causes of Diseases in Women" sent free on receipt of accompanying coupon. Write your name and address PLAINLY and address THE PISO COMPANY, DEPT. A., WARREN, PA.

Name .....
Post Office .....
State .....

Smokeless Oil Heater

The automatically-locking Smokeless Device is an exclusive feature of the Perfection Oil Heater. This doesn't allow the wick to rise to a point where it CAN smoke, yet permits a strong flame that sheds a steady, glowing heat without a whiff of smoke.

Automatic Smokeless Device

No other heater in the world compares with the

PERFECTION Oil Heater

(Equipped with Smokeless Device)

Turn the wick high or low—no smoke, no smell! Burns for 9 hours with one filling. Instantly removed for cleaning.

Solid brass font holds 4 quarts of oil—sufficient to give out a glowing heat for 9 hours—solid brass wick carriers—damper top—cool handle—oil indicator.

Heater beautifully finished in nickel or Japan in a variety of styles.

Every Dealer Everywhere. If Not At Yours, Write for Descriptive Circular to the Nearest Agency of the

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (Incorporated)

W. L. DOUGLAS $3.00 $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

THE LARGEST MANUFACTURER OF MEN'S FINE SHOES IN THE WORLD

Wear W. L. Douglas comfortable, easy-walking shoes. They are made upon honor, of the best leathers, by the most skilled workmen, in all the latest fashions. Shoes in every style and shape to suit men in all walks of life.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer and are of greater value than any other make.

CAUTION.—See that W. L. Douglas name and the retail price is stamped on the bottom. Take No Substitute.

BOY'S SHOES $2.00 & $2.50

Wherever you live, W. L. Douglas shoes are within your reach. If your dealer cannot fit you, write for Mail Order Catalog. W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass.

THE Famous Rayo Lamp

Once a Rayo user always one

THE STEADY WHITE LIGHT

The RAYO LAMP is a high-grade lamp, sold at a low price. There are lamps that cost more, but there is no better lamp at any price. The Burner, the Wick, the Chimney-Holder—all are vital things in a lamp; these parts of the RAYO LAMP are perfectly constructed and there is nothing known in the art of lamp-making that could add to the value of the RAYO as a light-giving device. Suitable for any room in any house. Every dealer everywhere. If not at yours, write for descriptive circular to the nearest Agency of the

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (Incorporated)

SAFETY ANTI-PAIN CAPSULES HEADACHE, LA GRIPPE, NEURALGIA

Contains no Acetanlid

FOR 40 YEARS

An absolutely safe and dependable remedy for all Headaches and Neuralgia Pains. Its basic principal endorsed by eminent physicians

At Druggists—Trial Package, 10c

THE SAFETY REMEDY CO., CANTON, O.

Mortuary.

The dead past was burying its dead

"It's a perfectly absurd performance," grumbled the d. p. "I'm only doing this because Mr. Longfellow tells me to do it."

Back of this seeming reluctance, however, there may have been a conviction that mankind would not begin to act in the living present until the funeral was over.

More than 300 women physicians attended the annual meeting of the American Medical Association, which was recently held in Chicago.

Pills are wrong —so is every harsh cathartic. They callous the bowels so you must increase the dose. Candy Cascarets bring natural action. They never gripe nor injure. One tablet, taken when you need it, always remains enough.

Vest-pocket box, 10 cents—at drug-stores. People now use a million boxes monthly. 863

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Prest., Buffalo, N. Y.

DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION Makes Weak Women Strong, Sick Women Well.

Let us do your Printing using Eagle Linen for your office stationery. You can get the paper and envelopes to match. It is the real thing. Take no substitute.

F. W. N. U. - - - - No. 50—1909

When writing to Advertisers please say you saw the Adv. in this paper.

If afflicted with Sore Eyes, use THOMPSON'S EYE WATER

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Illinois

DECEMBER

0428

L1134

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS

Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

Start The New Year Right By Subscribing For The DeKalb County Herald Only $1.50. A Year

NAPOLEON OF OUTLAWS.

How His Gang Terrorized Montana in Its Early Days.

The discovery of gold in Montana in the early '60's caused a stampede which for a time threatened to depopulate the country around Denver. A large number of the dangerous class naturally went in to cultivate the broad, rich field for lawless operations. These desperadoes quickly organized a secret compact body, with signs and grips, with captain, lieutenants, a secretary, road agents, and outriders, who became the terror of the whole region. Henry Plummer, the chief of this extraordinary band and unquestionably the Napoleon of western outlaws, had once been marshal of Nevada City, whence after having twice been imprisoned for murder, he fled to Oregon and thence to Montana. He soon ingratiated himself into the favor of the people by his singularly smooth manners and insinuating address, and ere long was elected sheriff of Beaver County.

Plummer was famed for desperation and skill in the use of a gun, and in a quarrel at Bannock he shot and killed his friend, Jack Cleveland, who was disposed to dispute his title as chief of the outlaws. Plummer was tried for murder, but was acquitted on the ground that the dead man's language had been irritating. At the same time Charles Reeves and a man named Williams, members of the Plummer band, who had fired into a camp of unoffending Indians to see how many of them they could kill at one shot, were tried for murder, and acquitted. Soon thereafter another of the outlaws, George Ives, was conversing in the street with his friend, George Carhart, and taking exception to his speech shot him dead. He also went unwhipped of justice. Another member of the band, Haze Lyon, who had attempted to kill his landlord because the latter had asked him to pay his board bill, was tried and acquitted.

These acquittals gave the outlaws a feeling of security and emboldened them to go forward with their murderous work. Plummer, as sheriff of the county, had it within his power to give the outlaws ample protection. He appointed two of his gang deputy sheriffs. An honest man had been elected sheriff at Virginia City through the influence of the late John A. Creighton and other citizens. Plummer sent word that he would live longer if he would resign in Plummer's favor, and, fearing assassination, he did so. With his robber deputies to execute his orders, Plummer had the people of Montana completely at his mercy, and nowhere was there security of life or property. It developed that one of the deputies was an honest man. Fearing that he might turn informer, Plummer had him sentenced to death by the outlaws and publicly shot by three of them.

The sentiment of the honest men of the community was aroused by these outrages, and the fate of Plummer and his band was soon sealed. A Dutchman, driving some mules to market, was held up in a lonely spot by George Ives, robbed and murdered. His body was taken into Nevada City, and the sight of it stirred the indignation of the law-abiding citizens to the highest pitch. A posse scoured the countryside, surprised accomplices of the murderer, and wrung from them a confession that Ives had committed the crime. Ives was captured and taken to Nevada City, where he was given a trial. The bench was a wagon, and the jury twenty-four honest men. While the trial proceeded citizens stood guard with guns in hand and their eyes fixed upon the outlaws, who had gathered in force to rescue their comrade in crime. Counsel was heard on each side, witnesses testified, and Ives was found guilty of murder and sentenced to death. The citizens repressed every attempt at rescue and saw the sentence executed. Plummer was finally caught and strangled on a gallows he himself had erected, two of his deputies being put to death at the same time.

THE COMMON LADY-BIRD.

Few Are Aware of Her Services to Florists and Gardeners.

Everybody knows the common lady-bird, but not every one is aware of the immense services rendered by this insect to florists and gardeners. Most insects are harmful to vegetation, their larvæ generally eating the leaves of whatever plant the eggs may be laid on, and it has been calculated that the larvæ or caterpillars of some varieties of beetles eat a hundred thousand times their own weight of vegetable food before they attain their full size and begin to spin their cocoons.

The lady-bird, however, is an exception, for both the larvæ and the beetle are carnivorous and feed on other insects, generally the aphis, which is so harmful to chrysanthemums and almost all other kinds of vegetation.

The lady-bug lays her eggs on the under side of the chrysanthemum leaf, and as soon as the larvæ are hatched they begin to prowl about the leaves and stems of the plant, looking for aphis or any other insect smaller than themselves. The larvæ simply hunt for veritable tiger among the plant pests, food, but the full-grown lady-bug is a and will tear and slay even after she has eaten all she can possibly swallow. One lady-bird will destroy all the aphis on a large chrysanthemum in two or three days. Not one will escape. The aphis seem to recognize her as their natural enemy, and, although they have never seen a lady-bug before, as soon as one lights on a branch they turn tail and run, with every appearance of the most abject terror. Sometimes, when closely pursued, they let go all hold and drop off the branch in the hope of getting away. But they never do, for, once on their trail, the lady-bug hunts them down and tears them to pieces, apparently out of sheer malignant sport.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is not a common, every-day cohgh mixture. It is a meritorious remedy for all the troublesome and dangerous complications resulting from cold in the head, throat, chest or lungs. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

HISTORIC MANSIONS.

Virginia Has Many Colonial Buildings to Preserve.

The State of Virginia, "Mother of Presidents," is rich in colonial mansions and buildings of historic interest. Just a few weeks ago, Montville, the colonial home of Patrick Henry, was on the point of being burned by its owners, descendants of the great Virginian, merely because it had become infested with bats. But the Society for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities has taken steps which will permit the maintenance of the venerable building and its eventual purchase and conversation into a museum.

Many priceless monuments of American history dot Virginia area, most famous of them all being Mount Vernon, the home of President Washington on the Potomac river. This is the greatest patriotic home shrine in the country, and is the best preserved and managed. Another mansion, "Mountpelier," in Orange County, was built by President Madison, who did such valiant service in maintaining the constitution in its early days.

Every Democrat worships the home of Thomas Jefferson, famed "Monticello," in Albemarle County. The home is in close primximity to the University of Virginia. Monticello was captured and sacked during the wars with Britain, but the property itself was uninjured.

"Mount Airy," on the Rappahannock river, in Richmond County, is not so well known as the famous structures already enumerated, yet it presents a beautiful picture of the colonial life of a century ago. Its broad acres have been in the hands of the Taylor family for 150 years. Only a few homes, such as the Chew mansion, in Germantown, Philadelphia, have remained in any one family for so long a period. Another most famous home is "Tuckahoe," on the James river, near Richmond. Here lived Thomas Mann Randolph, brother of John Randolph, the great orator, both of them direct descendants of Pocahontas.

"Chelsea," in Yorktown, Va., was the residence of Gov. Nelson. It is one of the oldest houses in the state, and it was from this building that the order to fire was given in the siege of Yorktown.

"Kenmore," in Fredericksburg, was built by Col. Fielding Lewis, who married Betty Washington. He strove to build for her the finest residence in the country, and came pretty near to succeeding, the interior decorations being especially notable. At "Kenmore," Mary Washington, mother of George, died.

The grand character of Robert E. Lee, name revered in north and south, is shown in his magnificent home, "Arlington," in Fairfax County. It is across the river from Washington.

One of the most famous of colonial homes is "Westover," which was built by William Byrd, president of the Colonial Council of Virginia, author of the Westover Manuscripts. About twenty-five miles below Richmond, in Charles City County, is "Berkeley," which evokes special interest in being the birthplace of William Henry Harrison, the most popular general of his day, and twelfth President of the United States. In the same county as the Harrison birthplace is "Sherwood Forest," once the home of another President, John Tyler.

"Oak Hill," home of President Monroe, completes the more important of a notable list of mansions, whose careful preservation is at once the privilege and duty of Virginia.

Trouble Makers Ousted

When a sufferer from stomach trouble takes Dr. King's New Life Pills he's mighty glad to see his Dyspepsia and Indigestion fly, but more he's tickled over his new, fine appetite, strong nerves, healthy vigor, all because stomach, liver, and kidneys now work right. 25c at Stone's drug store. 48-1m

Special Fare

CHRISTMAS

and

NEW YEAR

EXCURSIONS

For which tickets will be sold Dec. 24, 25 and 31, 1909, and Jan. 1, 1910, good returning until Jan. 3, inclusive. Sale covers all points on Lake Shore Ry. and many connecting lines. For particulars apply to agents.

Lake Shore Railway

WABASH

EAST BOUND

No. 2—Express	6:48 a. m
No. 28—Mail	8:48 a. m
No. 6—Toledo Mail & Exp	5:12 p. m
No. 78—Local Freight	9:50 a. m

WEST BOUND

No. 9—Fast Mail	4:29 a. m.
No. 11—Ft. Wayne Mail & Exp	10:16 a. m.
No. 3—Express	8:17 p. m.
No. 79—Local Freight	2:04 p. m.

All trains daily except Local Freights.

O. C. WATERMAN, Agent, Butler, Ind.

W. S. Troyer

Auctioneer and Salesman

Leave orders at this office or Central Grocery.

I speak three different languages.

Norris Chapel

Oliver Funk and wife are the proud parents of a baby girl born, Wednesday, Dec. 22.

Wallace Wilson is not improving from his illness as rapidly as it was hoped he would. He is still confined to his bed and we learn is in a serious condition.

Orrin Nimmons, wife and son, Ralph, spent Christmas with his parents, E. B. Nimmons and wife, of Wilmington township.

Thell Wilson and family ate their Christmas dinner with Mrs. Wilson's parents, Isaac Baughman and wife, at Auburn.

William Weicht and O. M. Nimmons are each getting the material on the ground to remodel their barns by putting on new hip roofs.

There will be Sunday school and preaching services at this place next Sunday afternoon.

The L. A. S., with their husbands, will meet one week from Thursday with John Mann and wife for a social day as Mrs. Mann is in poor health and seldom gets a way from her home.

Oscar, the little son of Munson Baughman and wife, is some better after a several weeks illness.

A large force of men were employed putting up ice for Tim Fee last week. The ice dealers are not losing any time harvesting their crop this year.

Women Who Are Envied

These attractive women who are lovely in face, form and temper are the envy of many, who might be like them. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation or Kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. For all such, Electric Bitters work wonders. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion. Many charming women owe their health and beauty to them. 50c at Stone's drug store 48-1m

Spencerville

John Means took some fine orders for trees last week. He has taken a large number of orders for spring delivery.

We understand that property sold cheap at Wm. Johnson's sale last Tuesday.

Daniel Sherer, of Guthrie, Iowa, is calling on old friends here. Dan has been in the west for quite a long time.

Protracted meeting is in progress at Rehobeth. We understand the attendance is small. We hope to hear of a larger attendance since Christmas is over.

One more week we write 1910. Time is winging us away. 1909 will soon be gone forever. How many of us have improved the year as we should.

Mr. Bruner, wife and children, of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday with Geary Wasson and wife.

One week ago Saturday night we had quite a stir in our little town over blankets, robes and whips that were stolen six weeks ago. The man that had them in his possession is now bound over to court under $300 bond. We hope others will take warning of this and stop the business at once.

Christmas was some what stormy. The beautiful fell all day. Those that went to eat turkey had to brave the storm.

John Means is expecting his daughter from Michigan this week for a few days visit under the parental roof.

Quite a number attended the Christmas doings at Spencerville Friday night. Most of them came home white.

Lester Houk is going to start to school at Angola this week.

Franklin

John Searfoss and children spent a few days last week at the home of Clem Mitchell.

C. G. Huntington and family and Zella Huntington were the Sunday guests of Mahala Huntington.

Mrs. Burr Imhoff invited a few of her neighbors to her home Thursday and the time was spent in tiring comforts and a good social time.

Bert Rose and wife and Mrs. Mabel Rose and Freeman Fifer and wife spent Christmas with Frank Fifer and wife at Hamilton.

Byron Platt is now the owner of a new surrey.

Roscoe Yarlott and wife spent Christmas with Frank Huntington and wife.

Sadia Whitman and friend spent Sunday with Clem Mitchell and wife.

Freeman Fifer and wife entertained Frank Teutsch and family at dinner Sunday.

Olive Fifer is working for Mrs. Henry Maxwell.

Frank Ocker is in very poor health at present.

Mr. Sawvel and family, of near Zion, spent Monday with friends in South Franklin.

The meeting at Jerusalem Sunday night was quite well attended considering the condition of the roads. A good sermon was delivered by Elder Simons.

Mr. Mitchell and wife entertained Elder Simons and Rev. and Mrs. Davis at dinner Monday.

Mr. Rosenberry expects to move in the Casey house soon.

Newville

Lon Gibson is home from a visit with his daughter, Phfeme Duman and her children, at Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitehurst entertained at dinner, Sunday, Clyde Deans', of Auburn, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Tustison, of Coburntown, and Clark Roberts', of Butler.

Willie Miller spent Christmas at Grover Hill, the guest of relatives.

Quite a number of guests, both from Butler and this place, attended the Masonic installation Monday evening. Oysters and a fine lunch was served.

Mrs. B. F. Blair and Miss Belle Blair were entertained at Christman dinner at Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Blair, of Butler.

Henry Shafer and wife are guests of friends at Holgate.

Mrs. Jennie Hall, of Butler, Mr. Sam Tomlinson and D. J. Blair's with their families ate Christmas dinner with Frank Akins and wife, of Scio.

The Misses Laura and Neva Wyatt are at Auburn, the guests of their cousin, Mrs. Jessie Scott.

Mrs. Gillingham is in Iowa visiting her daughter.

Mrs. Christopher Akins came from Ashley Monday to stay the winter with Mrs. H. B. Akins and Frank Akins.

Elmer Wyatt visited the dentist at St. Joe Monday. He got tired sitting up with his face every night.

Elsworth and Hugh Traxler went to Montpelier Monday.

Hugh Strong went to Angola the first of the week where he will enter college.

Ethel Miller is here from Waterloo the guest of Gladys Smith.

Esta Gengnagel is on the sick list. Dr. Harrison, of Butler, was called Monday.

Grace and Inez McGinnis, Mary Strong, Etha Enzor, Willis McGinnis and Howard Beuninghoff are home for a week's vacation.

Chas. Scoville, of Chicago, attended the Christian Christmas entertainment where he met many friends.

A Thrilling Rescue

How Bert R. Lean, of Cheny, Wash. was saved from a frightful death is a story to thrill the world. "A hard cold," he writes, "brought on a desperate lung trouble that baffled an expert doctor here. Then I paid $10 to $15 a visit to a lung specialist in Spokane, who did not help me. Then I went to California, but without benefit. At last I used Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me and now I am as well as ever." For Lung Trouble, Bronchitis, Coughs and Colds Asthma, Croup and Whooping Cough its supreme. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Stone's drug store. 48 1m

Waterloo

Mrs. Wm. Ogle fell on the ice one day last week and hurt herself quite badly.

Mrs. John Duncan is on the sick list.

Isaac Meese, of St. Joe, spent part of last week with H. M. Moore's.

Mrs. Bevier, of Auburn, has come to make her home with her son, Frank. She is quite aged and almost helpless.

Frank Goodwin and wife left Tuesday for Orlando, Fla., to epend the winter with the hope of benefitting her health and their many friends wish them a pleasant sojourn in the sunny south.

J. M. Hess, of Des Moines, Ia., is the guest of Mrs. Hiram Moore.

Mrs. Cora Cobert, of Sturgis, Mich., is spending the holidays with her sisters, Mesdames Frank Meyers and Orpha Ladd.

John Thomas and wife spent Saturday with her parents, Elmer Goodwin and wife and then spent Sunday with Mr. Thomas' mother at Hamilton.

Could Not Be Better

No one has ever made a salve, ointment, lotion or balm to compare with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Its the one perfect healer of Cuts, Corns, Burns, Bruises, Sores, Scalds, Boils, Ulcers, Eczema, Salt Rheum. For Sore Eyes, Cold Sores, Chapped Hands its supreme. Infallible for Piles. Only 25c at Stone's drug store. 48-1m

Unless you bear with the faults of a friend you betray your own.—Syrus.

Stones and idle words are things never to be thrown at random—Bocarri.

Speak as you think; be what you are; pay your debts of all kinds.—Montfort.

Let no man talk of freedom till he is sure that he can govern himself.—Garibaldi.

Keep ever in the path of duty, but fail not to climb the steep of knowledge.—Newton.

He is a man who thinks for himself, says what he thinks, and does what he says.—Hitchcock.

Example is more powerful than precept; whereof you reprove another be unblamable yourself.—George Washington.

I look upon the simple and childish virtues of veracity and honesty as the root of all that is sublime in character. Carlyle.

Do not consider any vice as trivial, and therefore practice it; do not consider any virtue as unimportant, and therefore neglect it.—Bonar.

Have you a weak throat? If so, you cannot be too careful. You cannot begin treatment too early. Each cold makes you more liable to another and the last is always harder to cure. If you will take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the outset you will be saved much trouble. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

Royal Baking Powder is the greatest of time and labor savers to the pastry cook. Economizes flour, butter and eggs and makes the food digestible and healthful

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Makes most healthful food

No alum—no lime phosphates

The only baking powder made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar

BUTLER MARKETS

PRODUCE

The following prices are paid for produce and other farm products by Butler merchants:

Eggs	$ 30
Butter	24
Lard	14
Potatoes	40
HAY, GRAIN AND WOOL
Wheat (per bu.)	$ 1.18
Oats	42
Rye	70
Corn (per cwt.)	70
Red Clover (per bu.)	7.75
Alsike (per bu.)	6 75
Hay	12.00
POULTRY
Chickens	11

Local and Personal

Tell it to the HERALD.

Try the new meat market in the old Boos stand.

Mrs S.B.Braden has been quite seriously ill the past week but is improved at this writing.

A large number of the faithful of this City will attend the mass caucus at Auburn to-day.

The thermometer registered 8 below zero, Thursday morning, the coldest weather for this winter.

W. H. Morley, editor of the Angola Herald, won in his suit against J. F. Coss and the former is now owner of the Ashley Times plant.

The peculiar properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy have been thoroughly tested during epidemics of influenza, and when it was taken in time we have not heard of a single case of pneumonia. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 48-1m

A sprained ankle will usually disable the injured person for three or four weeks. This is due to lack of proper treatment. When Chamberlain's Liniment is applied a cure may be effected in three or four days. This liniment is one of the best and most remarkable preparations in use. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 48-1m Hicksville, Ohio, has a curfew law and any boy or girl found on the street after 8 o'clock at night unaccompanied by parent or guardian is liable to arrest and the law is mandatory with the mayor to impose a fine of $50 when brought before him. That is pretty hard, but it would be better for the morals of young people in any town if the spirit of such a law were obeyed.

An electric railroad to about 10,000 feet is being built on the Zugspitze, Bavaria, the highest peak of the Alps. It will run to the summit, and at the 7,000-foot level a hotel will be built.

About 100,000,000 heads of lettuce are raised annually in the jardin s maraicheres of Paris, the greater part of which is shipped to London and Cologne during the winter and spring after being wrapped in paper and crated.

Many of the Japanese porcelain factories, it is said, are not paying expenses, and production has been reduced by 30 to 40 per cent. In Tsu-Maki-Mura twenty-eight of the eighty porcelain factories have suspended, owing to the decrease in American and Chinese imports.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

The HERALD office is equipped for any kind of printing, from a calling card to a 24x36 poster. We are supplied with the latest styles of type.

We don't like the hush that precedes the last announcement by the undertaker; neither do we like the manner in which a clock ticks so loudly in the presence of the dead.

The greatest danger from influenza is of its resulting in pneumonia. This can be obviated by using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, as it not only cures influenza, but counteracts any tendency of the disease towards pneumonia. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 48-1m

Al Briggs left Friday morning for Columbia City, where he will spend a few days visiting relatives, and from there he will go to Cuba for the remainder of the winter.

If you are suffering from biliousness, constipation, indigestion, chronic headache, invest one cent in a postal card sent to Chamberlain Medicine Co., Des Moines, Iowa, with your name and address plainly on the back, and they will forward you a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 48-1m

While Congressman Cy Cline is working hard down at Washington for the lake to lake waterway, the establishing of a fish hatchery in Steuben county, and the bill to pay railway mail clerks $1 per day for necessary traveling expenses in going to and from their home, Clarence Gilhams up in Lagrange county is building his fences to capture the republican nomination for congress. In fact he has all but made the official announcement and if the Allen county delegation can be reckoned with, it looks as if he would be in the race. But Cy Cline is making good, and it's hardly probable that the Twelfth district wants a change so soon.—Courier.

Many persons find themselves affected with a persistent cough after an attack of influenza. As this cough can be promptly cured by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, it should not be allowed to run on until it becomes troublesome. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 48-1m

Known By Other Names

There are no set of diseases so misnamed as those that pertain to the stomach, liver and bowels. Many think their nerves are deranged, their heart diseased, their kidneys weak, their blood impure, when in reality they have stomach or bowel trouble. Try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin, the wonderful regulator, and see how quickly you will find yourself cured. It is absolutely guaranteed to do what is claimed, and if you want to try it before buying, send your address for a free sample bottle to Pepsin Sprup Co., 119 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1 a bottle. 1-1m

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

—"How long will they look well?"

That's the real point when you're buying clothes.

Don't be satisfied just because the suit looks well when you first try it on.

If a suit isn't pure wool, its style and its shape simply cannot last.

Clothcraft All-Wool Clothes

are pure wool. Each suit or overcoat carries a Signed Guarantee that it is all pure wool and that it will hold its style and shape. Clothcraft All-Wool Clothes sell at the same prices as part-wool clothes—$10 to $25.

NO OTHER line in America at these prices Guarantees you and protects you against disappointment.

And these are the handsomest, most stunning clothes in town. Look at them today—they are going fast.

0429

L1134

JANUARY

JANUARY

L1134

0430

butler public library

THE DEKALB COUNTY HERALD

VOLUME XLI — BUTLER, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1910 — NUMBER 1

DANIEL W. WEITZ, President — HENRY M. SHOWALTER, Vice-President — WALTER SNIDER, Cashier
AMOS SNYDER, Vice-President — ALBERT L. SHULTZ, Vice-President

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK
BUTLER, INDIANA
Capital Paid Up $25,000.00. Your Business Respectfully Solicited.

Read Our Free Offer

A Natural Tone Talking ank Singing Machine
FREE
ne s andard Talking Machine with Handsome Elower Horn ee to every Customer whose Cash purchases amount to $30
Remember our special offer on made to-to-measure clothing has been extended 30 days. An extra pair of trousers free with a suit. 137 patterns to choose from.
J. C. BROWN & SON

The Season
For Coughs and Colds
Is At Hand

And we wish to call your attention to the fact that our stock contains all the cough and cold remedies that are good of their kind embracing such staple ones as

Foley's Cough Remedy	Drake's Cough Remedy
King's Cough Remedy	Shiloh's Cough Remedy
Kilmer's Cough Remedy	Marshalls' Cough Remedy
DeWitts' Cough Remedy	Allen's Cough Remedy
Kennedy's Cough Remedy	Laxative Bromo Quinine
Jayne's Cough Remedy	Hill's Cascaria Quinine

And also A. D. S. Cold and LaGrippe Remedy. Every bottle of which is guaranteed.

STONE'S DRUG STORE
Your Money Back If Not Satisfactory

The
Central Grocery

Sells The Best Teas and Coffees in The City

The Superlative Brands

Try them and if not satisfactory return them and get your money back.

Phone 91

PRESTON & COMPANY
BUTLER, INDIANA

CUPID'S PRANKS RECORDED HERE

A quiet wedding occurred on New Year's day at the home of S. B. Braden, minister of the Church of Christ. The contracting parties were Otis Ross and Mrs. Clara Mickey, both of this city. The happy couple have many friends in Butler who wish them a long and happy life.

A genuinely poetic marriage was the oen at Calvary Baptist Church this morning uniting Clarence B Crance a young business man of this city, and Miss Luella May Clark, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Issac M. Clark

The Rev. John A. Courtright, pastor of the church performed the ceremony which was nearly all in poetry, and the service was so impressive that it promisses to become a popular fad with those eligible for the ceremony.

—New York World.

We fance the poem went something like this:

Are you willing Clare to toe the mark
When her name is changed to Crance from Clark?
And are you ready to take a chance, Luella May, to become a Crance?
If so I pronounce you man and wife
To claim the pleasure and face the strife;
May your love each year have a wider growth,
And Heaven have mercy upon you both

BUTLER SENTIMENT UNDERGOES CHANGE

W. H. Ware is Not Considered Justifiable in Shooting Young Fred Showalter

BUTLER, Ind., Jan. 5.—Witnesses are still being called from here to appear before the grand jury and testify in the investigation of the shooting of Fred Showalter by William Ware, and more than sixty have already been subpoenaed.

The sentiment that had been worked up here in behalf of Ware has rapidly dissipated since the true facts of the matter have become generally known. Many of the men who signed the ex hotelkeeper's bond say they regret their action and that they will not act as his security again should they be called upon to do so.

According to the general impression that prevailed here, Ware was not persecuted by the boys of the town, although he made himself decidedly unpopular with the younger element, when, without authority, he took occasion to attempt to stop a group from a not uncommonly riotous celebration last Fourth of July. It is said that it will be proved in Ware's trial on a charge of attempted murder that the boys Hallowe'en night were not intending to place the building they were carrying onto Ware's porch, and that he was hasty and insanely unreasonable when he stepped out and fired into the group, seriously wounding young Showalter.

The grand jury is probing to the bottom of the case and it is confidently expected here that an indictment will be returned against Ware, making the same accusation as the charge that was lodged against the man after his capture Young Showalter was not permanently injured by the shot and is recovering rapidly and is able to walk with the aid of a cane.

—Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette.

Election of Officers

The Sunday school of the Church of God elected the following officers last Sunday to serve the coming year:

Superintendent—Frank Fink
Asst Superintendent—Will Capp
Chorister—Mrs O Treeman
Asst Chorister—Elva Capp
Organist—Bessie Jennings
Asst. Organist—Caroline Showalter
Secretary—Mabel Richard
Cor. Secretary—Dora Richard
Treasurer—Minnie Kehrer.

A Frightful Wreck

of train, automobile or buggy may cause cuts, bruises, abrasions, sprains or wounds that demand Bucklen's Arnica Salve—earth's greatest healer Quick relief and prompt cure results For burns, boils, sores of all kinds, eczema, chapped hands and lips, sore eyes or corns, it's supreme Surest pile cure. 25c at Stone's drug store. 1-1m

E. M. MCKENNAN MAKES REPLY

Refering to an article in the Auburn Courier of December 2, I find that some of the democrats of DeKalb county have taken exceptions to my stand in the late local option election, and to my article in the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette of November 25, 1909, wherein I warned the democrats to look out for a political scheme and to cast their votes so as to not hazard the success of the democrat party in 1910, they censure my stand and also accuse me wrongfully, attempting to instruct my constituents how to vote, and claim that it was my duty to ask my constituents how I should vote, my object in having that article published was to give to the voters of DeKalb county a hint of the political scheme that was being worked through the temperance move to defeat the democrat party in 1910, I considered a hint would be sufficient, but instead of receiving it in that way, some of them censures me as unloyal, unpopular and unfit for the position I hold as representative of the people.

The democrat party frames its platform in convention made up of delegates sent from all over the United States and a party does not act in convention except through the delegates who voice the wishes of the people, and when a candidate is selected he becomes a representative of the party, and as he is the one if elected to act for the party, the platform is his pledge as well as the parties pledge, the platform adopted in Denver represented the sentiment of the pople of Indiana, and certainly it was a pledge between the democrats elected and their constituents, for it was ratified at the poles by the election of a democratic legislature on joint ballot, and as the representative of the people of DeKalb county I am bound to stand squarely on that platform now as I was bound to stand on it through the campaign, and while I am the representative of the people I care not what question comes up that is not in harmony with the democrat platform I will be against it, and every loyal democrat should back me up in my stand. I cannot consider my own personal interests nor what people may think of this or of that, but must stand for the principles of the party that placed me in office, that platform will be the platform of democracy until the party meets in national convention and changes it, and if the people censure me for being loyal to the party platform I can't help it, when the Denver platform ceases to be binding upon the democrat party, then I have the right to change any views but not till then.

Must a democratic representative cease to represent his constituents merely because some people have changed their views, the endorsement of a democratic platform by the people is just as binding on the official as is the endorsement of the official himself, he cannot honorably accept the election and continue to hold the office and repudiate the platform which was endorsed by the same vote, I am still your representative, if I should at this time waver from the platform, and stand for and endorse special interests, what reason could I give the people for so doing

The labor vote of DeKalb county contributed largely toward my election for the reason that I stood for and endorsed the labor plank in the democrat platform, and while I never made any personal promises to the representatives of labor, I felt their votes were cast for for the reason that they believed I would stand for their interest, I stood for labor in the legislature, if I shou'd now come out and declare against labor and in favor of corporations what excuse could I make to the labor vote that elected me, an officer cannot consider his own interest when acting for the people who elected him, but it is his duty to lay aside all personal interest and not only act for the people while in the legislature hall but through his entire term of office and to boldly meet and oppose opposition when ever it confronts him

Let me change places with any democrat in DeKalb county, let him take my place as representative, on a platform providing for local option by township and ward as a unit, and the republican platform providing for local option by county as a unit, and on the eve of the regular session of the legislature, the republican governor calls a special session and with a republican house and senate he forestalls the regular session from taking action on the question by passing a law in accordance with the republican platform, thereafter calling an election would it be your duty as a democrat representative to cast your vote for the republican plank on that question, and thereby admitting to the public tha the democrat platform was wrong and the republican platform was right. Now democratic friends I have given you this to show you that what I done I considered was my bounded duty, and I think when you look at it from a political standpoint you will consider that I was right.

E. M. McKENNAN, Rep.

Dr. Shumaker Not a Candidate.

There has been some newspaper talk concerning the intentions of Dr. W. F. Shumaker to become a candidate for representative on the democratic ticket Upon an interview with Mr. Shumaker we learn that he has no intentions at this time of becoming a candidate.

The doctor said the representative bee bothered him considerably at one time, but that he stepped aside for a friend, and since then has not felt the craving for the office of representative. The doctor said he would not seek the honors, but he did not say he would decline were they to be thrust upon him.

Mr. Shumaker is heartily in favor of making Luther W. Knisely of Troy township, nominee for county treasurer. He thinks Mr. Knisely is entitled to the office owing to the vigerous compaign which he put up for representative, and the efficient way which he discharged his duties.

O. E. S. and R. A. M. Installation

At the public installation of the O. E. S. and R. A. M. ot Masonic hall, Tuesday evening, Jan. 4th, the following officers were installed. Royal Arch Chapter No. 106.

H. P.—Walter J. Mondhank
K—Oris C. Waterman
S—Clyde J. Shaffer
Treas.—Wm. Elden
Sec.—Chas. T. Apt
C. of H.—Marion N Knepper
R. A. C.—Thurlow A. Huffman
M. of 3d V.—A. U. Vernier.
M. of 2d V.—Wm. Wilson
M. of 1st V.—John A. Danniel
Guard—Peter Whitman.

J. B. Pessell installing the officers in a very creditable manner with E. P. Masters as marshal. After which the O. E. S. installed the following officers:

W. M.—Ellen Mondhank
W. P.—Oris C. Waterman
A. M.—Sallie Willock
Sec.—Lea Apt
Treas.—Angie Stump
Cond.—Belle Norford
A. Cond.—Zella Rickey
Chaplain—Carrie Fanning
Marshal—Martha Master
Adah—Effie Potter
Ruth—Elizabeth Huffman
Martha—Effie Harrison
Electa—Grace Endevean
Warden—Marie Dempsey
Sentinel—Peter Whitman
Planist—Lottie B. Masters

With Carrie Fanning acting as Grand Matron and Emma Waterman as Grand Master

The O. E. S. installation ceremonies were made especially interesting by Mrs. Fanning in giving all of the work without the use of ritual or manuscript and showed thorough preparation and ability. Both organizations are to be congratulated upon the proficient corps of officers. After the installation ceremonies a fine banquet was served by the Church of God ladies in the dining room consisting of chicken, mashed potatoes, gravy, cold slaw, cranberries, pickles, beets, bread and butter, oranges, bananas, grapes, coffee, cake and ice cream.

G. A. R. and W. R. C.

The annual installation of the Post and Corps is postponed until Jan. 15, on account of the lecture coming on the regular night, Jan. 14, and will be public to the members of Post and Corps and their families.

COMMITTEE.

Church of Christ Items

The official board met last Sunday to consider the question of a new minister and to devise plans for meeting the financial deficit for the year.

Every member of the church should be present at the services on Lord's day to hear the yearly report for all departments of our work. In many ways it will be the best one made for many years.

The officers who were elected for the Bible school work can be depended upon to make that department more efficient. We solicit for them a most hearty co-operation.

It is well for us to often call to mind the fact that the many blessings of life we are privileged to enjoy are made possible by only very little of labor on our part when compared to the labor God has wrought upon the same thing. The food we eat, the fuel we burn, the clothing we wear furnish striking illustrations of this truth. In view of all this a life which leaves God out of its program is little better than selfish.

S. B. BRADEN, Minister.

FIRST MEETING OF NEW COUNCIL

E. B. Dunten Made City Attorney, Wm. Holtzberg Marshal

The new council met in regular session Monday evening, Jan. 3, Mayor Mondhank presiding and all members present. The following committees appointed:

Ways and Means—Harding, Kester and Creager.

Finances and Accounts—Waterman, Harding and Oberlin.

Streets and Alleys—Oberlin, Creager and Kester.

Fire Department—Waterman, Craeger and Kester.

Ordinances—Kester, Oberlin and Harding.

Water Works and Electric Lights—Harding, Creager and Waterman.

Sewers—Kester, Waterman and Oberlin.

Rights and Franchises—Craeger, Harding and Kester.

Cemetery—Kester, Craeger and Oberlin.

Auditing—Oberlin, Waterman and Harding.

Wm. Holtzberg was appointed city marshal.

The council met in adjourned session Wednesday evening, all members being present.

The city clerk was ordered to collect all water and electric light rentals due Jan. 1, 1, 1910.

E. B. Dunten was elected city attorney.

The mayor appointed with the consent of the council Sohn John J. Eakright, city civil engineer.

TRANSFERS OF DEKALB COUNTY REAL ESTATE

For the week ending, Jan. 1, 1910, by Charles O. Borst, Abstracter, Auburn, Ind.:

Grant Township—Charles Bainbridge et al to J. F. and T. Burns, 2½ acres in n e ¼ and 3.80 acres in n e ¼ sec. 9, $1800.

Smithfield Township—J. E. Rager to H. M. and Mary Daniels, w ½ s w s w ¼ ex. 20 acres off w side, s w ¼ s w ¼, sec. 24, $2700.

Fairfield Township—Susannah Eckert et al to William Eckert, n ½ s w ¼ and s e ¼ s w ¼, sec. 8, $1.

Town of Waterloo—C. W. Bainbridge et al to J. F. Burns and O. Burns, lot 12 Mel, add., $1800.

E. B. Richel to A. Z. Flack, lot 8 McA. add., $75.

Town of Ashley—O. V. Miser to O. S. and M. N. Heck, lots 13 and 15, block 39, $400.

Cal Smith to S. Smith, his wife, 11, 12, 13, block 24, $1.

City of Auburn—M. Boland, trustee, to J. and E. Eldridge, 37, block 3, Fork Place, $75.

H. J. Ralston et al to C. L. and H. Bauer, pt. 97, O. P., $10.

L. H. Johnson to Anna Wolf, pt. 15 B. & W. add., $750.

W. H. Nusbaum et al to A. N. Wilson, lot 7, block 3, F. P. add., $50.

W. H. Nusbaum et al to H. M. Wilson, lot 6, block 3, F. P. add., $225.

City of Butler—E. L. Thompson to N. L. Mason, pt 5 and 6 Dan. add., $1.

W. H. Scranton to D and M. Moughler, lot 142 Eg add., $350.

O. Jenkins to W. H. Scranton, lot 142 Eg. 2nd add., $300.

Altona—H. E. Gettel to E. Kehlham, lot 10 Rogers add., $2000.

F. Barney to Trustee Evangelical Lutheran church, lot 2, block 4, O. P., $350.

Were Out "Coonin'"

The following item was received through the mail:

The cause of the disturbance Saturday was a coon. Seventeen men and six dogs treed a coon in Geo. Moore's woods near Moores. Dr. Kramer and Lawyer Dunten, of Butler, were the prominent figures in the hunt. Parties within the radius of two miles thought the Indians of old were on the warpath again, judging from the noise. They got the coon.

Dissolution Notice

Notice is hereby given that the firm of Rickey and Co., have dissolved Partnership and L. C. Buehrer has withdrawen and W. L. Rickey will continue the business in the same room. All knowing themselves to be indebted to the firm are requested to call and settle within sixty days.

RICKEY & Co.

WANTED—50 ladies and gentlemen at once at McGuire's Telegraph School, Edgerton, O. Good positions furnished when competent. tf

Pre-Inventory Sale

For the next two weeks we will give a big cash discount on all furniture.

A. F. BRINDLEY
Furniture and Undertaking

The Rexall Store — GEDDES' DRUG STORE — Always at Your Service

Protect Yourself Against The Cold By Wearing a Chamois Vest

We carry all the sizes for both men and women, ranging in price from $2.00 to $3.00.

Don't go about with cold chills running up and down your back. Buy a vest, it will do the rest, and the result will be comfort and satisfaction. Call in and ask to see them.

GEDDES' DRUG STORE
West Side Broadway — Phone 31

HORSE SALE!

Our opening sale of 1910 will take place at The Central Livery and Sale Stable, 111 North Lynn Street, Bryan, Ohio

Wednesday, January 12th
AUCTION PROMPTLY AT 1:00 O'CLOCK

50 TO 75 HEAD OF HORSES

Consisting of Matched Pairs, Heavy Drafters, Farm Chunks, Brood Mares, Good Drivers and High Actors. These are all native horses bought in Williams and adjoining counties.

We have had ample time in selecting this lot and we want to open our buyers eyes with some good ones.

The wide-as-a-wagon kind wish big bone and lot of quality. More "horse" at your price than you can find elsewhere. "Come where the good ones grow." We have the "goods as advertised." We stir up the buyers with big drafty horses and knock the sox out of prices on the top notchers.

Every animal is sold under a guaranteed representation and can be hitched and tried by the purchaser before being accepted.

Communications solicited and all correspondence promptly answered.

Our sale rooms are all under roof and sale will take place RAIN or SHINE.

BRYAN, OHIO
Reed & Elder
J. A. ELDER, Auctioneer.

JANUARY

0431

L1134

The Next Census

One hundred million of inhabitants! Such is the advance estimate made by the Census Bureau of the population of the United States in 1910, according to an article by Rene Bach in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

To count them and reckon up their manifold activities—giving, as a properly taken census must, a complete picture of the people and their doings—will be an enormous task. There will be 330 supervisors, appointed by the President to look after as many geographical districts and in Washington alone at least 3,000 additional clerks will be employed.

These clerks, three-fourths of them women, will be appointed through the Civil Service Commission, which will hold examinations for the purpose before long in every State and Territory. Any person, male or female, who is not afflicted with tuberculosis, will be considered eligible. As a matter of course, there will be a tremendous scramble for the jobs, which pay from $600 to $1,000 per annum.

When the first census of this country was taken, in 1790, the work was done by 650 employes. To gather and put together the data of the census of 1910 will require the services of an army of nearly 70,000 men and women—a number much greater than the entire population of New York and Boston combined at the time of the taking of the first census.

A baby is born every twelve seconds, and, thanks to this fact, about 2,500,000 fresh citizens will be added to our population in the census year 1910. The passing bell will toll every twenty-three seconds, ushering 1,350,000 Americans out of the world during the twelve months. Every twenty-four seconds a marriage will occur, giving expectation of filled cradles, and five of these latter will be supplied with occupants every minute during the year.

So huge has the population grown that the taking of the census of 1910 would be a job nothing short of appalling, were it not for the recent introduction of machinery into the business. It is reckoned that the mere tabulation of the sex, age, nativity and occupations of the people, if made by hand, would consume, for those four items alone, the entire time of 100 clerks for eight years. But most of the work is now done by machines which may almost be said to think, and which, when the facts are once gathered by the enumerators, attend to the task of putting them together.

The Census Bureau is buying a large number of machines of entirely new patterns, which are a great improvement on any apparatus of the kind hitherto known. They are run by electricity, and so perfect is their operation that if the clerk makes a mistake, the contrivance stops automatically. The tabulating machine will handle as many as 415 cards a minute; but the average speed in actual work is about 350. This is an average of 80,000 or 90,000 cards in a working day of seven hours, including stoppages for reading dials, etc.

As the census returns come in from the enumerators all over the country, in the shape of filled-in blanks, the facts they contain will be transferred to cards—each card representing one person. The facts in question are copied on the cards by punching holes, and the position of each hole indicates its significance, so that no writing is required. Thus for example, a few holes will tell that the individual represented by a card is white, of male sex, 45 years old, married, a teacher by profession, able to read, write and speak English—with the additional information that he was born in England, that he has been in the United States ten years, that he is a naturalized citizen, and where he resides. Some of the new tabulators have adding machines attached to them to prepare statistics of agriculture and certain other arrangements of figures informational. Another novel device is an automatic sorter, which separates the cards into classes, electro-magnets controlling their passage through a series of chutes. Indeed, all of the mechanism from beginning to end depends upon electricity, the current being made and broken by little metal rods which pass through the holes in the cards.

The enumerators employed to gather the facts for the census of 1910 from all parts of the country will number 65,000, and all of them will be men—save perhaps a few, who, for some special and particular reason, will be of the gentler sex. Some women did this kind of work for the last census very efficiently, but ordinarily it is too rough, not infrequently involving quite a little hardship of one kind or another. The business of putting the facts together, however, after they have been collected, will be intrusted mainly to women.

The Census Bureau is now a permanent establishment in Washington. It is kept running, with a comparatively small force of clerks, all the time—whereas it used to go out of existence after each enumeration of the population was accomplished, springing up anew and suddenly every ten years, like a gigantic mushroom. As things are at present arranged, however, the plant is always in existence on a small scale. There is a skeleton organization, so to speak, and this is readily expanded, when the occasion arrives, into a huge and effective machine for the gathering of facts. Such an expansion is now beginning to take place, and within a short time the machine will be in full operation for the taking of the thirteenth census of the United States.

BRITISH WOMAN SAYS "RATS" IN THE HAIR CAUSE INSANITY

The Duchess of Somerset is the latest member of the highest circles of British nobility to join in the crusade against "rats" and puffs in the hair, which was recently started by the Duchess of Granville.

While her grace of Somerset always has frowned on the style which makes a woman's head resemble a stack of hay, heretofore she has been only a passive opponent. Now she plans to aid other fair members of the aristocracy in fighting the style as insanitary and unhealthful.

She declares she believes the masses of "filling" and puffs used to build out the hair are responsible for the great increase in headaches among women in the last two years, which has been the subject of much study and discussion by many doctors.

Many women have been made insane by these headaches, and the Duchess of Somerset says she is certain that they are caused by the pressure and heat engendered by the extra head adornment.

WOMEN WANT BALLOT.

Sixty-five Thousand Illiterate Male Voters in the Way.

When the next census is taken in Kentucky the State will have come along about fifty years, says Mabel Potter Daggett in the Delineator. And coincidentally with the educational awakening, another cause bespeaks legislative notice. The women who gave Kentucky its new schools want the ballot. They say that it took a long time to accomplish what they did. Next time they would like to be in a position where they will not have to beg for what they want. They would like the ballot so they can demand it.

When the county school district bill was prepared it contained a clause providing for school suffrage for women. Heroically the women submitted to its elimination, lest their insistence on the ballot should jeopardize the whole school movement. Afterward they got a special bill prepared to grant school suffrage to women. The gallant legislators sidestepped it by getting it politely smothered in committee. This year the women will ask again for school suffrage. They have an idea that Kentucky needs them to help in the direction of its school affairs. Kentucky men, on the other hand, have old-fashioned notions that women aren't qualified to vote. Still, you see, there are those 65,000 male voters who can neither read nor write, and there are the 5,000 illiterate school trustees. It's very awkward. So Southern chivalry usually says "no" to the women asking for a vote by urging that they ought to stay at home and be sheltered.

Kentucky women are replying that they've been out a good deal in all kinds of weather the past few years on this school question. They say, in fact, that if they only had the ballot, it would save them a lot of this going out and about and up and down the land. The State doesn't yet seem to see the obligation. But one would think that Kentucky women had done enough for the public good, so that the men should hand them on a plate anything they ask—even to a half of the kingdom through the forbidden ballot.

There is an average of nearly two persons killed each day in New York City by falling from windows, down steps, into excavations or in some such manner.

Germany is freely imitating American patterns in the manufacture of farm implements and machinery, although American harvesters still predominate.

After working for Heathcoat & Co., lace manufacturers, of Tiverton, England, for seventy-one years, William Huxtable has just retired.

Under a new law in Alabama, that took effect July 1, no man may carry a gun, no man may sell a pistol less than two feet in length.

WITH A 20-ACRE FARM

Man in Nebraska Gives a Practical Illustration of Intensive Methods.

GETS $1,000 PROFIT A YEAR

Arnold Martin Had a Capital of $275 and Bought Rough Land Rejected by Everybody.

How a man may get rich on a farm of twenty acres was shown recently at the fair of the Missouri Valley Agricultural and Horticultural Society, the Kansas City Star says. Arnold Martin, owner of a twenty-acre farm in Pawnee county, Nebraska, had an exhibit at the fair and in his lectures tells how he makes upward of $1,000 a year profit off his land.

Among the things grown on the Martin farm are cornstalks seventeen and one-half feet high, with the ears eleven feet from the ground. There was one ear of corn raised on his place which took first prize at the State fair this year in Lincoln, Neb. After the fair the managers of it auctioned off all the prize winning exhibits and Martin bought back his own prize ear of corn for $30. It has twenty-four rows of corn and 1,100 grains on it.

Ten years ago Mr. Martin came from Switzerland and worked on a farm in Northwestern Kansas. At the end of three years he had saved $275. In Pawnee county he found a tract of twenty acres that no one would farm. It was rough land and covered with brush and small trees. Land all around it was selling for $50 and $70 an acre. He bought the twenty acres for $12.50 an acre and paid $100 down.

The Farmers' Bulletin says about Martin: "His neighbors used to laugh at the young farmer and nicknamed him 'Hazelbrush,' but now they say he 'is making more money on twenty acres than we do on 160.' He does not want any more land, but wants to farm what he has better."

Martin now has his farm all paid for and does not owe a dollar. He has a neat house, a barn with a stone basement for stock and the upper part for hay and grain. He has money in the bank and has been offered $2,500 cash for his farm. He has made three pleasure trips to Colorado and spent three months last winter in Switzerland.

A small field of nearly two acres is kept for annual crops. The slopes are rocky in places and the soil is a residual, clay loam having been formed mostly by weathering of the limestone which underlies it. About eight acres of this is set to orchards, one acre in alfalfa, one in timothy and clover, three in pasture and a little in annual crops. Says the government bulletin:

"The intensive methods are of particular interest. The land is kept busy from spring to fall. At the last cultivation of potatoes corn is planted between the rows. As many as 700 bushels of potatoes and 75 bushels of corn to the acre have been grown in this way. Squashes are sometimes planted the same way. Usually parts of the potato patches are sowed with millet or sorghum just before the last cultivation. This makes a good crop of feed and does not hurt the melons which are planted in the rows between the onions. Part of the orchard is set with small fruit and part is planted with potatoes and truck.

The orchards contain about 900 pear, 200 cherry, about 800 peaches and a few apple trees. The trees are planted in straight rows and between the trees are raspberry bushes, tomatoes, cabbages and sweet potatoes with beets close beside.

"If my farm was near a city I could make much more than I do," says Mr. Martin. "My only market is a town of 2,500 which is seven miles distant. Consequently the prices I get are low. I can't understand why a man will live in a city and work for wages that do not give him a fair living when he can walk out a hundred miles or so and get a farm like mine and be independent."

FIRECRACKER IN A CHURCH.

While revival services were in progress in the Free Methodist Church at Decker, Ind., a panic and fight for the door followed the setting off by a small boy of a giant firecracker in a drain pipe leading to the baptismal font. Several persons sustained severe injuries. It was thought at first that dynamite had been used. The minister, who was near the font, cleared the pulpit in a backward jump.

SPLINTERS.

Stage hands—Hack drivers.

The upper crust never live in the top flat.

What the little dog lacks in bite he makes up in bark.

Those who dodge work shouldn't expect a share of the reward.

Some men can bluff their way along easier than others can pay their fare.

If every man was taken at his own word there wouldn't be enough halos to go around.

SOMETHING FOR EVERYBODY

Ivory doubles in price every few years.

Brandy was first made in France in 1310.

The first pair of spectacles was made by an Italian in 1299.

Norway has a factory in which 24,000 pounds of haddock can be turned into fish balls in a day.

Though hydrophobia has been stamped out of Britain, it is still rampant in Germany, where every year over 2,500 dogs and cats afflicted with the disease are destroyed.

The present wave of agitation for the amendment of the British copyright law is gaining strength from the discovery that a great-grandson of Robert Burns is now making a precarious living as a mender of pots and pans.

Queensland and Victoria possess only small ostrich farms, which have not produced very encouraging results. In all there are now about two thousand ostriches in Australia. The inferior feathers are used at home and the more valuable ones are exported, chiefly in Germany.

The French government takes 15 per cent of all the money staked at the casinos of the seaside and other health resorts on the little horses and other gambling devices. For the season of 1908-09 this percentage amounted to $943,393, the summer season naturally contributing the greater part—over $600,000.

The duke of Atholl holds part of his lands conditionally on his presenting a white rose to his sovereign when honored with a visit. The late Queen Victoria and Prince Albert once were his guests at a time when these flowers were out of season and the duke had much difficulty in obtaining two roses for the occasion.

The court house at Washington, Mason County, Kentucky, in which Uncle Tom of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" fame was sold, was struck by lightning and destroyed on August 13. The building was erected in 1794. It was the sale of the aged negro at this place that gave Harriet Beecher Stowe the basis for her story.—Green Bag.

One of the main features of the agricultural exhibition at Allahabad, India, next month will be the tillage field, on which as large as possible a choice of plows and other implements of tillage will be regularly at work, so that visitors can see for themselves the depth and quality of the tilth, and the weight and draft of the various implements.

About one million persons in the working period of life in the United States are on the sick list each year. The cost of their illness is about $1,000,000,000 a year, of which at least one-half is preventable. Therefore, the estimate, considered low, of the preventable loss from disease and death in this country is $1,500,000,000.—Professor Irving Fisher.

Henrik Ibsen's posthumous works have just been published in Norway. They consist of a collection of verse, biographical material and sketches of the plots and morals of his plays, as well as the text of the plays as first completed, the last showing the great importance Ibsen attributed to careful planning of his plays in advance and to thorough revision.

Wilfred Stevens, of Shakopee, Minn., translator in the service of the United States government, has a working knowledge of twenty-odd languages and can converse is as many dialects of various other tongues as may be demanded of him. He knows more diplomatic secrets than any official of the government, with the possible exception of the President and the Secretary of State.

Hookworm can certainly be quickly conquered, malaria more slowly and consumption most slowly, but almost as completely. Consumption is virtually the same great, sweeping destroyer in modern cities of science that it was a century ago, say, in London. Indeed, since the great grip epidemic of 1831 consumption seems worse than it ever was before and the grip epidemic of twenty years ago did not make things any better.—New York Press.

In the British postoffice savings bank in 1907 there were 18,771,969 depositors, of the value of £44,217,288, and last year 18,379,991, representing £44,770,782. In 1907, 9,308,247 withdrawals were made, involving £46,463,632, and last year 9,922,169, representing £45,395,400. The interest credited to depositors in 1908 was £3,772,755, as compared with £3,719,975 in 1907, and the total standing to the credit of depositors on savings bank account on December 31, 1908, was £160,648,214, an increase of £3,148,137 in the year.

It was the custom one hundred years ago to purchase British army commissions for newly born babes, their rank progressing as opportunity occurred. One of these fortunate infants was the son of Sir William Honeyman. One day a caller heard Lady Honeyman shout from her bedroom door: "Jean, what's the matter? What's all that crying in the nursery?" And Jean answered: "Oh, my lady, there's naething the maitter. It's only the major (still an infant) greeting (crying) for his parritch."

Among the curiosities of tree life is the solar, or whistling tree, of Nubia. When the winds blow over this tree it gives out flutelike sounds, playing way to the wilderness for hours at a time strange, weird melodies. It is the spirit of the dead singing among the branches, the natives say, but the scientific white man says that the sounds are due to a myriad of small holes which an insect bores in the spines of the branches. The weeping tree of the Canary islands is another arboreal freak. This tree in the driest weather will rain down showers from its leaves, and the natives gather up the water from the pool formed at the foot of the trunk and find it pure and fresh. The tree exudes the water from innumerable pores at the base of the leaves.—London Globe.

VITALIZER

RESTORES LOST POWERS. A weak man is like a clock run down. MUNYON'S VITALIZER will wind him up and make him go. If you are nervous, if you are irritable, if you lack confidence in yourself, if you do not feel your full manly vigor, begin on this remedy at once. There are 75 VITALIZER tablets in one bottle; every tablet is full of vital power. Don't spend another dollar on quack doctors or spurious remedies, or fill your system with harmful drugs. Begin on MUNYONS VITALIZER at once, and you will begin to feel the vitalizing effect of this remedy after the first dose. Price, $1, post-paid. Munyon, 53rd and Jefferson, Phila, Pa.

Hypnotic Power in Animals.

An interesting instance of the hypnotic power possessed by a good many animals is given by a correspondent of the Glasgow Herald. One morning outside Elgin a blackbird was observed to be standing by the roadside, paying no heed to the footsteps of the passer-by. It was gazing fixedly at four young weasles under the hedge, which were approaching in a semi-circle, apparently to surround it. Just then a warning cry was heard from behind, uttered presumably by the parent weasel, and the young ones disappeared in the hedge. The bird still remained powerless and immovable, and only after repeated urging did it fly to a tree near by, when it gave forth a weak, frightened sound, as though still under the influence of the terror which had arrested its faculties.

STEADILY GREW WORSE.

A Typical Tale of Sufferings from Sick Kidneys.

Mrs. L. C. Fridley, 1034 N. Main St., Delphos, Ohio, says: "Five or six years ago I began to suffer with kidney trouble and grew steadily worse until my health was all broken down. For weeks I was in bed and could not turn over without being helped. My back was stiff and painful. I was tired and languid, and when I was able to get around I could not do my work. The first box of Doan's Kidney Pills helped me so much that I kept on using them until rid of every symptom of kidney trouble. During the past three years I have enjoyed excellent health."

Remember the name—Doan's. Sold by all dealers, 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Consular Tasks.

The American consul is a very popular and useful person, especially if there happens to be a celebration of any sort in his city. Mrs. Maud Howe Elliott, in her pleasant book, "Sun and Shadow in Spain," tells of the representative of the United States at Madrid during the strenuous days that preceeded the wedding of the king of Spain. A friend dropped into his office to see him one day.

"Listen to this letter," said the consul.

"Dear Sir. My daughter and I arrive in Madrid on Saturday morning. As I hear the city is full on account of the wedding fetes, I must trouble you to engage rooms for us. They must be in a stylish but not too expensive house. We wish to go to the wedding, the ball at the palace and all the other entertainments. If you should be unable to secure us invitations, kindly ask the ambassador to attend to the matter. Yours truly, Mrs. Emerald Green."

Just as he stopped reading, a telegram was brought in by Pepe, the cherubic office boy. The consul signed again as he read it out loud:

"Please wire answer to my letter immediately, stating address of rooms. Am sending large trunk to your care. "E. G."

"Friends of yours?" asked the visitor.

"Never heard of them," said the good-natured consul. "Anyway, it's all in the day's work."

Changing the Label.

"Marie, who is the young squirt that comes here about six nights in the week to see Bessie?"

"You'd better speak a little more respectfully, John, of the young man who is likely to be your son-in-law."

"All right, Maria; what's the adventurer's name?"

HABIT'S CHAIN.

Certain Habits Unconsciously Formed and Hard to Break.

An ingenious philosopher estimates that the amount of will power necessary to break a life-long habit would, if it could be transformed, lift a weight of many tons.

It sometimes requires a higher degree of heroism to break the chains of a pernicious habit than to lead a forlorn hope in a bloody battle. A lady writes from an Indiana town:

"From my earliest childhood I was a lover of coffee. Before I was out of my teens I was a miserable dyspeptic, suffering terribly at times with my stomach.

"I was convinced that it was coffee that was causing the trouble and yet I could not deny myself a cup for breakfast. At the age of 36 I was in very poor health, indeed. My sister told me I was in danger of becoming a coffee drunkard.

"But I never could give up drinking coffee for breakfast, although it kept me constantly ill, until I tried Postum. I learned to make it properly according to directions, and now we can hardly do without Postum for breakfast, and care nothing at all for coffee.

"I am no longer troubled with dyspepsia, do not have spells of suffering with my stomach that used to trouble me so when I drank coffee."

Look in pkgs. for the little book, "The Road to Wellville." "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true and full of human interest.

HOW THE ARMY LIVES

Rations Served Uncle Sam's Soldiers Better than Those of Any Other Troops.

THE ALLOWANCE FOR ONE DAY

Milk and Other Luxuries May Be Purchased with "Savings"—The Company Fund.

Every great general who has maneuvered a large fighting force has discovered the truth of Napoleon's declaration that "an army travels on its stomach;" and to more than one has come the bitter realization that the best army is the army which has the best stomach. There is nothing which so completely withers patriotism and smothers courage as the gnawing pain of indigestion; therefore the feeding of an army has received as much study as its equipment as a destroying force.

In the superiority of food based on the cost of the ration the American army stands far ahead of the other armies of the world, says B. R. Winslow in the Scientific American; in fact, there is no comparison whatever between the American ration and that of any other country on the globe. The cost of the American army ration is nearly 100 per cent greater than the British army ration and none of the other countries with big military establishments feeds its soldiers anywhere nearly as expensively as the English government does.

Three Kinds of Rations.

The American army ration is divided into three kinds—garrison ration, field ration and emergency ration. The garrison ration is that given to soldiers at regularly established military posts; field ration, that issued to troops in the field in active campaign. The emergency ration is a condensed ration, in which the best and most valuable nutritive elements are combined in the smallest bulk. In composition the garrison and field ration are almost identical.

Each ration, which is supposed to keep the soldier one day, furnishing breakfast, dinner and supper, consists of twenty ounces of fresh beef or mutton, twelve ounces of bacon, sixteen ounces of canned meat or canned fish, fourteen ounces of dried fish or eighteen ounces of pickled fish, eighteen ounces of flour or twenty ounces of cornmeal, either two and two-fifth ounces of beans or peas or one and three-fifth ounces of rice or hominy, and either sixteen ounces of potatoes or twelve and four-fifth ounces of potatoes, together with one and three-fifth ounces of either onions or tomatoes, one and three-fifth ounces of dried fruit, one and three-fifth ounces of coffee and three and one-fifth ounces of sugar. The ration also includes very small quantities of vinegar, salt, pepper, soap and candles.

Nowhere except in the army can the food supply of 30,000 men be managed by 120 men. This can be done with the army on the march, changing station every day. The unit of administration is the corps, supposed to consist of 30,000 men. The brigade commissary in turn issues to each regimental commissary, also in bulk, and the regimental commissary issues to the companies. The rations are usually computed by the hundred and are issued for ten days. A company of 100 men would, therefore, be issued 1,000 rations. In the field each soldier is supposed to carry one regular ration and one emergency ration all the time. The emergency ration is never eaten except in case of emergency and the regular ration is issued every day.

Can Exchange His "Savings."

The army ration, it will be seen, contains none of those things which are ordinarily considered luxuries. For instance, there is no milk included in the ration, and the soldier must take his coffee black unless he is able to purchase a can of condensed milk from the "sales store" with his "savings." Congress has authorized the commissary department to keep on hand other articles of food that are not included in the regular ration.

These are kept in the "sales stores" and are issued to the mess steward in return for "savings" from the regular rations. Out of a company of 100 men there are a number who do not eat all of the articles in the ration. These would be wasted if drawn by the mess steward; therefore, when the 1,000 rations are issued to him he returns to the commissary that part of the various components that he thinks will not be used. This, in the language of the army, is making a "saving" on the rations.

The value of the articles returned to the commissary is computed and the mess steward is allowed to draw from the "sales stores" a sufficient quantity of luxuries that are not in the regular issue equal to the value of his "saving." The government, however, will not allaw a "saving" to be made on certain articles in the ration. Fresh meat, dried or preserved fish, potatoes, onions, tomatoes, prunes, apples and peaches must be used; "saving" cannot be made on these articles. They contain just the proper nutritive elements and the quantities given are what the normal soldier should eat.

Company Fund at Regular Posts.

The company fund is another way in which the ration may be improved, especially at regular-army posts. There are many sources of revenue for the company where there is plenty of ground at the post. Many of the companies have vegetable gardens and keep pigs and cows. The pigs are fattened on the leavings from the kitchen, making their feed cost nothing. They are fattened and sold, the money going to the company fund, or they are killed and the meat turned over to the mess. Where cows are kept a good sum is derived from the sale of milk to the officers at the post. This money, which all goes into the company fund, is used to buy the luxuries not obtained in the regular issue—to "improve the issue," as it is termed.

DIAGRAM SAID TO SHOW WORKING CONDITIONS IN CHERRY MINE.

FROM THE CHICAGO DAILY SOCIALIST

WITH THE SAGES.

It is better to fight for the good than to rail at the ill.—Tennyson.

Be not exacting in your justice, lest you be unjust in your exacting.—Bailley.

A man who does not know how to learn from his mistakes turns the schoolmaster out of his life.—Henry Ward Beecher.

A man must stand erect himself, and not be kept erect by others.—Marcus Aurelius.

There is nothing noble in being superior to some other man. The true nobility is in being superior to your previous self.—Khryter.

Never esteem anything as of advantage to thee that shall make thee break thy word or lose thy self-respect.—Marcus Aurelius.

The labor of the body relieves us from the fatigues of the mind; and this it is which forms the happiness of the poor.—Rochefoucauld.

ATCHISON GLOBE LIGHTS.

Excuses are easier to find than four-leaved clovers.

Being willing is not enough. You must DO something.

Be as nice in every day life as you look in a photograph.

A woman is like an egg: when she is bad, she is very bad.

Did you ever repeat a compliment for yourself that you didn't exaggerate it?

In looking for a better job, a man oftener loses a good one.

A man who talks a great deal can't always have the truth handy.

A woman often says: "O, but I wish I were rich; because of the good I could do."

People are never old, according to their own talk; they are only "getting old."

You can, at least, do this much to help: don't encourage people in their fool notions.

Tunnels in course of construction are now provided with medical air locks, where workmen afflicted with "bends" can be treated under pressure.

A New York druggist, who has been in the business for forty years, says that there are 35,000 proprietary medicines for sale in the city.

India sends America many rugs. All the pay the good weavers get for making them is 16 cents a day. Head weavers get $15 a month.

JANUARY

0432

L1134

Do You Enjoy Poor Health?

If you do, we have nothing to say, but if you are afflicted with any of the diseases of women, and want relief, write us for a sample of PISO'S TABLETS. They are an ideal home treatment, clean and easy to use, and being applied directly to the diseased surface, the beneficial results are immediately felt. We will send you a week's treatment free, if you will write at once.

For sale by all druggists. Trial package and a treatise entitled "Causes of Diseases in Women" sent free on receipt of accompanying coupon. Write your name and address PLAINLY and address THE PISO COMPANY, DEPT. B., WARREN, PA.

Name .....

Post Office .....

State .....

WESTERN CANADA

What Governor Deneen, of Illinois, Says About It:

Governor Deneen, of Illinois, owns a section of land in Saskatchewan, Canada. He has said in an interview:

"As an American I am delighted to see the remarkable progress of Western Canada. Our people are flocking across the boundary in thousands, and I have not yet met one who admitted he had made a mistake. They are all doing well. There is scarcely a community in the Middle or Western States that has not a representative in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta."

125 Million Bushels of Wheat in 1909

Western Canada field crops for 1909 will easily yield to the farmer $170,000,000.00 in cash.

Free Homesteads of 160 acres, and pre-emptions of 160 acres at $3.00 an acre. Railway and Land Companies have land for sale at reasonable prices. Many farmers have paid for their land out of the proceeds of one crop. Splendid climate, good schools, excellent railway facilities, low freight rates, wood, water and lumber easily obtained.

For pamphlet "Last Best West," particulars as to suitable location and low settlers' rate, apply to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to the following Canadian Gov't Agents: W. H. Rogers, 2d Floor Traction-Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Ind., and H. M. Williams, Room 20, Law Building, Toledo, Ohio. (Use address nearest you.)

Please say where you saw this advertisement.

Tom Wayne 4182

As one grows old the bowels grow less active. Some then take harsh cathartics, and their bowels harden. Then they multiply the dose. Some take candy Cascarets. They act in natural ways, and one tablet a day is sufficient.

Vest-pocket box, 10 cents—at drug-stores. People now use a million boxes monthly. 861

Best for Baby and Best for Mother

PISO'S CURE

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS AND COLDS

Is fine for children and adults, very pleasant to take and free from opiates. It soothes and heals the aching throat and assures restful nights to both mother and child.

All Druggists, 25 cents.

FASHION HINTS

A very practical dress is the model shown here. It is built on such simple lines that the home dressmaker will find it well within her scope.

A new and attractive touch is the low-hung, softly knotted sash.

On the Mend.

Bessie—Do you find that golf is of real benefit to you?

Bob—Sure thing! I'm getting excellent control of my temper. Many of the strokes that I make with the utmost calmness now would have caused me to swear like a trooper six months ago.

SOUNDS LIKE A FAIRY TALE.

The Farmers of Central Canada Reap Wheat and Riches.

Up in the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the provinces that compose Central Canada have such a quantity of land suitable for the growth of small grains, which grow so abundantly, and yield so handsomely that no fear need be feared of a wheat famine on this Continent. The story reproduced below is only one of the hundreds of proofs that could be produced to show the results that may be obtained from cultivation of the lands in these provinces. Almost any section of the country will do as well.

With the country recently opened by the Grand Trunk Pacific, the latest of the great transcontinental lines to enter the field of the development of the Canadian West, there is afforded added ample opportunity to do as was done in the case cited below:

To buy a section of land, break it up and crop it, make $17,550 out of the yield and $10,880 out of the increase of value all within the short period of two years, was the record established by James Bailey, a well-known farmer within a few miles of Regina. Mr. Bailey bought the 640 acres of land near Grand Coulee two years ago. He immediately prepared the whole section for crop and this year had 600 acres of wheat and 40 acres of oats. The wheat yielded 19,875 bushels, and the oats yielded 4,750 bushels. The whole of the grain has been marketed and Mr. Bailey is now worth $17,550 from the grain alone. He bought the land at $18 an acre, and the other day refused an offer of $35 an acre, just a $17 advance from the time of his purchase. The land cost $11,320 in the first instance. Here are the figures of the case: Land first cost, 640 acres, at $18, $11,320. Wheat yielded 19,875 bushels, at 84 cents a bushel, $16,695. Oats yielded 4,750 bushels, at 28 cents a bushel, $855. Offered for land, 640 acres at $35 an acre, $22,400. Increase value of land, $10,880. Total earnings of crop, $17,550, together with increase in value of land, a total of $28,540.

It is interesting to note the figures of the yield per acre. The wheat yielded 33.12 bushels to the acre, and oats 118.7 bushels to the acre. The figures are a fair indication of the average throughout the district.

Agent of the Canadian Government in the different cities will be pleased to give you information as to rates, etc.

After Twenty Years.

Mr. Peck—This talking machine record is filled with a few remarks by Mrs. Peck.

Oldbatch—It's wonderful to think that you can hear the voice of one who is not present.

Mr. Peck—And more wonderful to think that I can stop it so easily.—Judge.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, price 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Sincere Tribute.

"Mr. Wingold," said Mrs. Lapsling, "pretty soon I want to introduce you to my friend, Mrs. Peacham. She's the most egregiously beautiful woman in the room."

If you use ball blue, get Red Cross Ball Blue, the best ball blue. Large 2oz. package, 5 cents.

One on Mamma.

"Gwendolen, I suppose some worthless young dude is going to take you to the theater this evening?"

"Yes, mamma, I'm going with brother George to-night."

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM is the old reliable cough remedy. Found in every drug store and in practically every home. For sale by all druggists, 25c, 50c and $1.00 bottles.

Welcoming Her.

"I'm glad you've dropped in, Mrs. Irons," said Mrs. Lapsling, cordially greeting the visitor. "This has been a dreary day for me, and a call from a friend is like an Osiris in the desert."

The Fountain Head of Life Is The Stomach

A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished.

Dr. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative nerve tonic. It makes men strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgement.

This "Discovery" is a pure, glyceric extract of American medical roots, absolutely free from alcohol and all injurious, habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed on its wrappers. It has no relationship with secret nostrums. Its every ingredient is endorsed by the leaders in all the schools of medicine. Don't accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this time-proven remedy of known composition. Ask your neighbors. They must know of many cures made by it during past 40 years, right in your own neighborhood. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

FARM NOTES

Short Cornstalks.

Every farmer who feeds corn fodder knows how difficult it is to pitch the manure from the stables in which the stalks have been used for bedding. When the fork is thrust into the compact manure the long stalks run so far in every direction and hold so tightly that the man at the fork begins to think that he will be compelled to lift the entire bottom out of the stall with the first forkful. The long stalks make both loading and unloading of the manure very difficult.

A Missouri farmer has just given his way, which we think is a good way, of feeding corn fodder to make better bedding of the refuse stalks and to make the handling of the manure easier. He ties his corn fodder, or corn stover, in bundles after husking, for storage. At feeding times he takes these bundles and cuts them with an ax across a large wooden block into three or four shorter lengths. These short lengths are then placed in the mangers for the cows and horses to pick over and are then thrown into the stables and stalls for bedding. He claims that stover cut into shorter lengths is easier for the stock to pick over, that it helps to keep the stalls neater, and that it is better in many ways. Where these short lengths of corn stalks are used in the bedding the handling of the manure is easy.

Corn stalks are a valuable by-product of the corn crop when used in the right way, and there are many good ways of using them. Dry corn stalks are porous, spongy, and are good absorbers of liquids. They are bulky and fill up fast, hence aid in keeping the stall floors fully covered and the animals dry. Wheat, oat or rye straw mixed with the dry corn stalk bedding makes an almost complete absorber of the liquids and saves all of the rich fertilizers.—Exchange.

Education and the Soil.

One of the popular fallacies that is rapidly losing ground is the idea that any one with no previous training or experience can be a successful farmer, and one of the chief agencies of enlightenment is the Government Bureau of Soils. This useful adjunct of the Department of Agriculture is rapidly completing its investigations of the actual values and needs of the earth in various parts of the West, and its reports will constitute a valuable compendium for those already engaged in agriculture to embark in it.

The government has risen to the need of demonstrating that the day of haphazard and scratching of the surface of the earth is passed, and that for most successful results practical training, if not thorough scientific education, is needed. It is the aim of the Bureau of Soils to establish accurately the nutrition values of the earth in varying sections for producing the greatest abundance of suitable crops, and with such a definite basis to help the husbandman proceed with greater certainty toward his goal of achievement. This sort of official knowledge is sure to enable man to make many blades of grass or grain grow where few or none grew before, for its natural development will be the intelligent cultivation of every arable acre of land that can be made to yield a profitable crop.—Twentieth Century Farmer.

Small Hog Cot.

The hog cot illustrated here is 6 ft. wide, 8 ft. long and 6 ft. 2 in. high in front and 3 ft. high in the rear. The floor is built with 2 in. x 4 in.

stringers, and the frame is held on the floor by blocks at each corner. Lumber required will be: 12 pieces, 2 in. x 4 in., 16 ft. long for frame; 4 pieces, 1 in. x 12 in., 16 ft. long for floor; 13 pieces, 1 in. x 2 in., 16 ft. long for roof and ends; 10 battens, 16 ft. long for sealing crack between boards. Total cost about $12.50.

The Hired Man.

There are great differences in the qualifications of the hired man. One is worth all and more than he receives, while another, who is apparently equally as intelligent, is not worth anything, and the employer is a loser in the long run by having him around. The best hired man is one who is intelligent and active. A good one should receive the best of treatment from his employer and should never tire of what is to be done on the ranch, regardless of the lateness of the hour or the inclemency of the weather, if loss is likely to accrue in case he should fail to work at that particular time. Of all farmhands the most despicable is the liar who tells you that he has done such and such work when he has not. Next to this one comes the lazy man.—Denver Field and Farm.

Early Maturing Pullets.

Early maturing pullets are likely to be excellent layers the first winter, whether or not they prove to be good layers in subsequent years. The slow-maturing bird is almost certain to lay late in the winter, and often will not commence until "thawed out" by pleasant weather in the spring; also, she is not likely to lay so regularly as the pullet that commences before the snow flies. The early maturing bird will therefore prove the more valuable property the first year because she is producing eggs at a time when eggs are bringing fancy prices. The season at which a pullet shall lay best in her first year is controlled more largely by maturity than by feeding, although of course the latter is always an important factor. The thing for the farmer to do, then, is to retain all the early hatched pullets he can possibly find room for and give proper care and attention. Those that are now beginning to "sing" and cackle, and whose heads are beginning to redden, are the ones that will shell out eggs this winter when they are selling at top-notch prices.—Agricultural Epitomist.

Three Ladders in One.

Not every family has a long and a short ladder about the house and it often happens that where one of these will not suit the other will. A Canadian has invented a ladder that answers both purposes and when folded (for it does fold) takes up less room than even the old style small ladder. This invention consists of a ladder made in three sections, one on the other and hinged together on one side and in the back. On the other side are pins to keep it in place when it is extended to its full length. Either in its extended or its short form this ladder is a safe one, but it has no back support and must be leaned against the wall. After the top section has been bent down on one side it folds back and when the second section is down the three fold together like a three-part screen. When the ladder is not in use it can be stowed away behind a door or in any corner as it does not take up as much room as a chair.

SECTIONAL LADDER.

Irrigation of Alfalfa.

The importance of alfalfa to western farmers cannot well be overestimated. A single ton of alfalfa may save the lives of many head of stock by providing feed during short periods of cold, stormy weather. Alfalfa cannot be excelled as a preparatory crop on soils that have long been unproductive. Likewise it maintains the fertility of soils naturaly rich in plant food, and if used as a base of rotation makes possible abundant crop yields of various kinds.

Notwithstanding its present importance and great value in irrigation farming, the profits on the area now in alfalfa can be greatly increased if more care and skill are exercised in growing it.

Perhaps the most essential conditions for the production of alfalfa are abundant sunshine, a high summer temperature, sufficient moisture, and a rich, deep, well drained soil. All of these essentials, save moisture, exist naturally in the arid region of the United States, and when water is supplied it makes the conditions ideal. Although alfalfa can be successfully grown under a wide range of soil conditions, yet all Western lands are not equally well adapted to its growth.

How to determine the suitability of land for growing alfalfa under irrigation, as well as how to prepare the land, is told in Farmers' Bulletin 373, "Irrigation of Alfalfa," recently issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The bulletin discusses the various methods of irrigating the crop and gives much useful information in connection therewith.

Hens That Will Lay in Winter.

The latest characteristic which the poultry raiser is endeavoring to establish in the several egg-laying strains of hens is the early maturity of pullets, with the consequent laying, during the season when eggs are scarcest and bring the highest prices.

A Maine breeder reports a lot of twenty-nine April-hatched pullets which were selected because they had begun to lay in the latter part of August.

From September 1 until the end of April these birds laid on an average of 115 eggs each, at a calculated profit of over $3 per bird. If such profits could be realized on the majority of the hens kept for laying, the elusive fancy profits of the poultry business would be realized.

The breeding of poultry to type is now so generally accomplished that the suggestion to breed a race of birds which will be winter egg-producers warrants the belief in its early achievement.

Resting Land.

Many farmers believe that cultivated land should be given a "rest" every few years in order to recuperate from its exhaustion in the production of crops. In some cases the land may be benefited somewhat, but, as a rule, where a tract is permitted to lie fallow for many months it becomes a veritable hotbed for weeds. These flourish and sap its best qualities, leaving it poor and impoverished for future crops. The soil is filled with weed seeds and the task of cultivating it is rendered all the harder. Reasoning from cause to effect, it would appear that the more ground is cultivated the shorter its life as good productive soil, but this doesn't work out in practice. Weeds do more harm to land than any other crop.—Agricultural Epitomist.

Hemp as a Weed Exterminator.

Experiments at the Wisconsin experiment station show that hemp is a great weed eradicator. Land that was badly infected with quack grass, Canada thistle and wild mustard and other types of weeds was cleaned up by a crop of hemp, which grew to a height of ten or twelve feet. Some Wisconsin farmers manage to get a profit of about $40 an acre from the hemp crop.

THE HOUSEHOLD

Vegetable Salad.

Wash three medium-sized potatoes and steam until tender. Peel and cut into one-fourth inch cubes. Add one cup of celery, chopped fine; one tablespoonful each of salt, celery salt and grated onion and the whites of three hard-boiled eggs chopped fine. Mash the three hard-boiled yolks, add three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and two of olive oil; beat until smooth. Pour this over the salad. Garnish with either lettuce or parsley.

Huckleberry Pie.

Wash the berries and sprinkle thickly with granulated sugar. Fill a deep pasty-lined pie plate with the sweetened fruit and fit on an upper crust. Before baking, cut a strip of clean muslin into a two-inch band, and pin it securely around the pie at the place where the upper and lower crusts join. This will prevent the escape of the juice. Bake the pie, and, when done, remove the strip of muslin.

Banana Fritters.

Take a pint of sifted flour, sift into it two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and rub through it a dessertspoonful of butter, add a saltspoonful of salt, two eggs chopped light, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and three-quarters of a cupful of rich milk; beat all to a light batter; strip bananas, cut four lengthwise, dip in the batter and fry. Half the recipe will be sufficient for a breakfast of five persons.

Beef Broth with Barley.

Procure a portion of the shin of beef and have the bone split by the butcher. Put it over, on a slow fire, well covered with cold water. After cooking gently for one hour add salt and pepper with a bouquet of herbs tied in a bit of cloth, by which it may be lifted before serving. Throw in a couple of tablespoonfuls of barley and boil for about one more hour, skim carefully and serve.

Pot Roast Made Appetising.

The cross ribs, by the addition of one-half a bay leaf, six cloves, a little parsley and celery added while cooking, will give a delicious flavor and convert a cheap pot roast into a luxurious tidbit. If onions are not objected to, add a few slices. When the meat is tender these flavoring ingredients should be strained out of the juices before the sauce is made.

Coffee Tarts.

Have ready two cupfuls of good strong coffee, sweeten to taste, then mix in a little flour and about half a cupful of cream, together with the yolks of three well-beaten eggs; boil this for thirty minutes and keep stirring continually, then pour into patty pans lined with good puff paste and bake.

Potato Cakes.

Season two cupfuls of hot mashed potatoes with butter, salt and pepper; when cold, whip two beaten eggs, a cupful of milk, and, last of all, a half cupful of flour that has been twice sifted through a teaspoonful of baking powder; mix well, and bake as you would griddle cakes.

Frozen Rice Pudding.

To one quart milk add two tablespoonfuls rice and three tablespoonfuls sugar, and boil until it is reduced to a thick cream; cool and freeze; when partly frozen add one pint cream and a wine glassful sherry or white wine; continue freezing until solid.

Jerusalem Artichokes.

Wash clean, peel and cut them into a round or oval form; put them into a large saucepan of cold salted water. Boil until they become tender. When done drain them and serve with a white sauce or melted butter.

Egg Sandwiches.

Take two slices of bread, toast nicely on both sides and spread with butter; then fry one or two eggs and put between the bread.

Household Suggestions.

Boil vinegar in the fish skillet or pan to destroy the fish odor.

Comforts and quilts should be dried in a good stiff breeze, so that they may be as light and fluffy as when new.

A spoonful of oxgall to a gallon of water will set the colors of almost any goods soaked in it previous to washing

To keepa pencil drawing from blurring dip it gently in quite fresh milk and dry on a smooth, hard surface, face up.

For a salad out of the ordinary, mix cream cheese with chopped olives and a boiled dressing. Serve it on hearts of lettuce.

If your rugs curl up at the edges, they can be made to lie flat by dampening the curled edge and pressing with a hot iron.

To avoid scraping new potatoes boil them in their skins until tender, then skin and put back in the steamer for a few minutes to dry out.

The first cost of superfluous furniture and decoration is often the least cost. It is the care of useless household articles which makes them an extravagance.

Rubbing flannels and knitted articles, such as sweaters, on a washboard, hardens and toughens them; the resin contained in some yellow soaps does the same thing.

The improved pie pan has a blade fastened to the center, which revolves around the bottom of the dish beneath the pie crust when the end protruding from the side of the dish is moved.

If leather in chair seats sticks to the clothing, sponge with a mixture of ether and alcohol, dampening the cloth lightly and following it by wiping off with a clean flannel dampened with pure chloroform. The varnish was badly done or it would not stick.

AGONIZING ITCHING

Eczema for a Year—Got No Relief Even at Skin Hospital—In Despair Until Cuticura Cured Him.

"I was troubled by a severe itching and dry, scurfy skin on my ankles, feet, arms and scalp. Scratching made it worse. Thousands of small red pimples formed and these caused intense itching. I was advised to go to the hospital for diseases of the skin. I did so, the chief surgeon saying: 'I never saw such a bad case of eczema.' But I got little or no relief. Then I tried many so-called remedies, but I became so bad that I almost gave up in despair. After suffering agonies for twelve months, I was relieved of the almost unbearable itching after two or three applications of Cuticura Ointment. I continued its use, combined with Cuticura Soap and Pills, and I was completely cured. Henry Searle, Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 8 and 10, '07."

Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props. of Cuticura Remedies, Boston.

Cost of Modern War.

The Anglo-German crisis is only one phase of the question in which every nation, America included, is vitally concerned. The impoverishment of the world by war—even by war which is never fought—is the most imminent evil now threatening the race.

It costs $10,000,000 to build a warship of the latest type. Each broadside fired by such a vessel in practice or at an enemy costs $10,000, and her guns are capable of discharging six rounds a minute.

The construction of these marine monsters is proceeding at the utmost capacity of the dockyards and gun foundries of the entire world. The peace taxes of the present are already heavier in the aggregate than the burden imposed to carry on any of the great wars in history.

Save This Recipe for Colds.

"Mix half pint of good whiskey with two ounces of glycerine and add one-half ounce Concentrated pine compound. The bottle is to be well shaken each time and used in doses of a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful every four hours." Any druggist has these ingredients or he will get them from his wholesale house. This is wonderfully effective.

The Concentrated pine is a special pine product and comes only in half ounce bottles each enclosed in an air-tight case, but be sure it is labeled "Concentrated."

False Teeth Trade.

Some idea of the general use of false teeth may be gathered from the statement that 20,000,000 of them are exported from America to England every year. When we consider that probably not more than half the inhabitants of Great Britain indulge in the luxury of false teeth, no matter how many grinders they may have lost, these figures would seem to indicate that nearly everyone in England suffers from defective or missing teeth. As far as observation goes, the United States is no better off than England in this respect.

Some people suffer continually with tired, aching and swollen feet. Little do they know how soothing is Hamlins Wizard Oil. Rub it in at night and have thankful, happy feet in the morning.

His Discovery.

Tommy was studying one of the advertising signs in the car.

"Mamma," he said, "isn't 'Reason' a funny name for a girl?"

"Hush, dear!"

"And her first name is 'Theresa.' Look at it, mamma. 'Theresa Reason.' Gee! I'd change that name if it was mine!"—Chicago Tribune.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets first put up 40 years ago. They regulate and invigorate, stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated tiny granules.

Fistic Astronomy.

"If you want to knock your adversary out," said the physical instructor, "land a blow on that spot. That's the location of the solar plexus."

"And if I only want to make him see stars," said Algy, "I suppose I must land on his lunar plexus. Where's that?"

Yellow Clothes Are Unsightly.

Keep them white with Red Cross Ball Blue. All grocers sell large 2oz. package, 5 cents.

Comparisons.

Young Husband—Darling, you are worth your weight in——

Young Wife—Gold, George?

Young Husband—Well, let it go at that, love. In the wild enthusiasm of the moment, though, I was going to say porterhouse steak.

IMPOSSIBLE TO FIND ANYTHING better for sideache, backaches or stitches than Perry Davis' Painkiller. Get the large size, it is the cheapest. At all druggists, 25c, 50c and 50c bottles.

Easily Answered.

The teacher had written a difficult problem on the blackboard.

"Now, children," she said, "what is the first thing to do with this?"

"Erase it!" shouted the bad little boy on the front seat.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

Researches as to Cancer.

A big British doctor finds that the parts of the body in which cancer starts, such as the lower lip, liver, etc., are highly electric and radioactive. A piece of the lower lip, if laid on a photo film, darkens it the same as does radium, but if a piece of the lung—cancer seldom comes in the lung—is put on the photo film nothing happens. So the doctor argues that highly electric flesh is the main secret of cancer. Woman's flesh is more electric than man's; cancer is commoner in women. — New York Press.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES

FOR RHEUMATISM, BRIGHT'S DISEASE, DIABETES, BACKACHE

75 "Guarantee"

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

When Cold Winds Blow

When cold winds blow, biting frost is in the air, and back-draughts down the chimney deaden the fires, then the

PERFECTION Oil Heater

(Equipped with Smokeless Device)

shows its sure heating power by steadily supplying just the heat that is needed for comfort.

The Perfection Oil Heater is unaffected by weather conditions. It never fails. No smoke—no smell—just a genial, satisfying heat. The new prevents the wick being turned too high. Removed in an instant.

Automatic Smokeless Device

Solid brass font holds 4 quarts of oil—sufficient to give out a glowing heat for 9 hours—solid brass wick carriers—damper top—cool handle—oil indicator. Heater beautifully finished in nickel or Japan in a variety of styles.

Every Dealer Everywhere. If Not At Yours, Write for Descriptive Circular to the Nearest Agency of the

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (Incorporated)

SWIFT'S PREMIUM CALENDAR FOR 1910

Four famous old-time songs: America; Home, Sweet Home; Old Folks at Home, and The Old Oaken Bucket.

Each of the four large sheets illustrates in color the home and childhood scenes, autographed portrait of the author, biography of the song, words of the song and on the reverse side a full piano music score.

One of these calendars should be in every home. It is an authentic picture history of songs dear to every American heart.

Sent postpaid for:
10 Wool Soap wrappers, or
10 Premium Butterine wrappers, or
1 cap from jar of Swift's Beef Extract, or 10 cents in coin or stamps.

Use in the home—
Swift's Pride Soap
Swift's Pride Washing Powder
Swift's Pride Cleanser.

"THE FOSTER HOMESTEAD"

SWIFT & COMPANY
4168 PACKERS AVENUE, CHICAGO, ILL.

W. L. DOUGLAS $3.00 $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

THE LARGEST MANUFACTURER OF MEN'S FINE SHOES IN THE WORLD

Wear W. L. Douglas comfortable, easy-walking shoes. They are made upon honor, of the best leathers, by the most skilled workmen, in all the latest fashions. Shoes in every style and shape to suit men in all walks of life.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer and are of greater value than any other make.

CAUTION.—See that W. L. Douglas name and the retail price is stamped on the bottom. Take No Substitute.

BOY'S SHOES $2.00 & $2.50

Wherever you live, W. L. Douglas shoes are within your reach. If your dealer cannot fit you, write for Mail Order Catalog. W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass.

CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR HOLIDAY RATES VIA NICKEL PLATE ROAD.

Tickets on sale Dec. 24, 25, 31 and Jan. 1. Good returning Jan. 3. Fare and a half for round trip. Ask Agent or write F. P. Parnin, T. P. A., Ft. Wayne, Ind. (09-48)

THE VENTURA MINING COMPANY controls ten rich claims containing gold, silver, copper and lead in California. One claim has, in less than one hundred feet, produced nearly one hundred thousand dollars. The Union Mine a few hundred yards northeast in nine hundred feet produced twenty-three million. A limited number of shares are offered at ten cents (par value one dollar) for installation machine equipment to open larger ore bodies. Overhead tram from property to smelter. Write for full information to Company before subscribing for shares. Room twelve thirty-six Broad Exchange Building, New York.

When writing to Advertisers please say you saw the Adv. in this paper.

FREE MAPS and FOLDERS Colorado Land Bargains W. E. PERSHING, LIMON, COLORADO

Let us do your Printing using Eagle Linen for your office stationery. You can get the paper and envelopes to match. It is the real thing. Take no other.

USE SAFETY ANTI-PAIN CAPSULES PRICE—10 CENTS.

JANUARY

0433

L1134

DeKalb County Herald

A. S. POWERS, Editor and Publisher

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

ONE YEAR, $1.50 SIX MONTHS, 75c THREE MONTHS, 40c

The Herald is entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, Butler, Indiana

Are Doctors Any Good?

Foolish question! Yet some people act as if a medicine could take the place of a doctor! The best medicine in the world cannot do this. Have a family doctor, consult him frequently, trust him fully. If we did not believe doctors endorsed Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for coughs and colds, we would not offer it to you. Ask your doctor. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

If we did not believe doctors endorsed Ayer's Pills for constipation, biliousness, sick-headache, we would not offer them to you. Ask your own doctor about this.

OFF THE SAME PATTERN.

I've seen some mighty funny kinds
O' people in my day;
I've seen some men with knowin' minds
And some that's not that way.
I've watched them while they play the game,
And this is what I see:
They all stack up about the same,
They're jest a heap like me!

It's not much matter who they are
Nor where they live nor why,
A-drivin' mule or autocar,
Afoot or on the fly:
The rich, the poor and all the rest,
No matter what they be,
You look inside a feller's vest—
He's jest a heap like me!

That's why I ain't no sort o' cause
For findin' fault with man,
Sence the whole passle of them draws
To jest the selfsame plan.
The men that works, that sighs, that jokes,
And them that does all three,
They're all a pile o' right good folks
And jest a heap like me!

—Chicago News.

A Close Call.

The Fox Hunter—Were you in at the death?

The Novice—No; cussed near it, though, when that brute pitched me into the creek.

How He Got Even.

A traveling man who stutters spent all afternoon in trying to sell a grouchy business man a bill of goods and was not very successful.

As the salesman was locking up his grip the grouch was impolite enough to observe in the presence of his clerks, "You must find that impediment in your speech very inconvenient."

"Oh, n-no," replied the salesman. "Every one has his p-peculiarity. S-stammering is m-mine. W-what's y-yours?"

"I'm not aware that I have any," replied the merchant.

"D-do you stir y-your coffee with your r-right hand?" asked the salesman.

"Why, yes, of course," replied the merchant.

"W-well," went on the salesman, "t-that's your p-peculiarity. Most people use a t-teaspoon."—Success Magazine.

Seeing Europe.

"And did you go through Berlin while touring abroad?" asked the caller.

"Did we, dear?" said the wife to her husband.

"Yes," replied the busy man from behind his paper. "Don't you remember we bought some gasoline there?"

"And Paris—did you stop in Paris?" continued the caller.

"Did we, dear?" asked the wife of her better half.

"Why, of course. Don't you know we busted a tire there and had to have a new one put on?"—Yonkers Statesman.

Log Cabin Philosophy.

De charity what's 'fraid er col' weather is de kind dat you'll never miss on a windy mawnin'.

All roads leads ter happy lan', an' on de way de heart beats sich a merry tune you des can't keep from dancin'.

Ef dis ole worl' was ter roll any closer ter heaven, how many people, does you reckon, would feel like hoppin' in without a interduction?—Atlanta Constitution.

Babson's Bravery.

"Naturally when Babson awakened and heard burglars downstairs he woke his wife and told her to go down and put the cat out?"

"On the contrary, he pursued very heroic methods. He bravely seized his pistol, raised the street window and discharged the weapon, then locked his bedroom door and waited for the police."—Boston Herald.

How He Did It.

"How," asked the young lady as she looked with admiration at the rugged nonagenarian, "have you managed to live so long and preserve your health so well?"

"By rigorously declining to practice what my friends have preached," he candidly replied.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Slight Difference.

Tommy—My ma wants ter know if after a few years I'll be taken into the firm.

Employer—Tell your ma that you will not be taken into the firm, but taken in by the firm.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

AT THE COUNTRY STORE.

Three Cornered Repartee Over an Order For Chicken Feed.

"Do you keep chicken feed?" inquired the customer. The grocer grinned brightly.

"No," he said; "we sell it." The customer received the shock well.

"Do you want some?" the grocer asked.

"No," said the customer; "I don't. But I guess I'll have to have it."

"What kind do you use?" asked the grocer. The customer scowled.

"I don't use it," he remarked. "I feed it to chickens."

"Oh, rats!" said the grocer. "Quit your kidding. Get down to facts. I'm busy today. You came here for chicken feed, didn't you?"

"Not much I didn't," said the customer. "I came here for a plug of tobacco. I want the chicken feed sent to the house."

"Where do your chickens live?" the grocer inquired. "I've forgotten the number." He grinned brightly again.

"They live in a chicken house," said the customer with great precision. "It's a whitewashed chicken house at the rear of 223 Johnson street. Don't trouble to knock. Just ask for Mr. Plymouth Rock." The grocer scowled in turn.

"Say," he said, "quit this foolishness, will you? There's people waiting on me."

"Wish there was somebody waiting on me," said the customer. "Hurry up! Put that order down. What time will you have it there?"

"I won't have it there," explained the grocer. "I'll have it here and you'll have it there." Then the customer took a handful of crackers from a barrel and departed.—Galveston News.

The Manchu's Dogs.

At a country club near Washington some members were swapping rather "tall" stories touching the intelligence of their respective dogs when a reserved chap in the corner spoke up. Said he:

"Those are good stories, but the best story I ever heard was of Chinese origin. I'll tell it as I got it at Shanghai, where I was stationed for some time.

"A Manchu had three dogs. Returning home on one occasion, he found them on his couch of teakwood and marble. He whipped the dogs and drove them forth.

"The next evening when the Manchu came home the dogs were lying on the floor. But he placed his hands on the couch and found that it was warm from their bodies. Therefore he whipped the dogs again.

"The third night, returning home a little earlier than usual, he found the dogs sitting before the couch blowing on it to cool it!"—Pittsburg Press.

A Suggestion.

The great suffragette leader towered above the platform.

"The time has come," she shouted, "when I want my name in every feminine mouth in the country!"

"Every feminine mouth!" echoed the small boy who had sneaked in unseen. "Hully gee! Why don't yer have a new chewing gum named after yer?"—Judge's Library.

The Private View.

Lady Goldberg—Well, general, what were you and your charming daughter saying about my portrait?

Gallant General (who prides himself on his tremendous tact)—My dear lady, I make it an invariable rule on these occasions never to remark on any portrait. There is too great a chance of the orginal being within earshot.—New York Mail.

In Outline.

"Have you prepared the speech you are going to deliver?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum; "I have taken several large sheets of paper and written 'laughter' and 'applause' at regular intervals. Now all I have to do is to fill in the stories or epigrams as needed."—Washington Star.

A Sad Story.

Parson—Have you no home?

The Hobo—Yep. I had a nice home, but de first t'ing I knew it had a wood pile and a garden and a pump. And den it got so much like a steady job dat I resigned.

Cause for Alarm

Loss of Appetite or Distress After Eating Symptoms That Should Not Be Disregarded

Appetite is just a natural desire of the system for food necessary to replace natural body waste. Loss of appetite or stomach distress after eating indicates indigestion or dyspepsia. Over-eating is a habit very dangerous to a person's good general health, and insatiable appetite is a common symptom of diabetes.

It is not what you eat but what you digest and assimilate that does you good. Some of the strongest, heaviest and healthiest persons are moderate eaters.

There is nothing that will create sickness or cause more trouble than a disordered stomach, and many people daily contract serious maladies simply through disregard or abuse of the stomach.

We urge every one suffering from any stomach derangement, indigestion or dyspepsia, whether acute or chronic, to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, with the distinct understanding that we will refund their money without question or formality, if after reasonable use of this medicine they are not satisfied with the results. We recommend them to our customers every day, and have yet to hear of any one who has not been benefited by them.

We honestly believe Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets to be without equal. They are made from the prescription of a physician who devoted his time to the study and treatment of stomach troubles. They give very prompt relief, stimulating the secretion of gastric juices, strengthen the digestive organs, aid to good digestion and assimilation, regulate the bowels, and promote nutrition.

We urge you to try a 25 cent box of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, which give 15 days' treatment. At the end of that time your money will be returned to you if you are not satisfied. Of course, in chronic cases length of treatment varies. For such cases we have two larger sizes, which sell for 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Butler only at our store—The Rexall Store. Geo. W. Geddes. 1t

RAILWAY MAIL CLERKS WANTED

The Government Pays Railway Mail Clerks $800 to $1,200, and Other Employees Up to $2,500 Annually

Uncle Sam will hold spring examinations throughout the country for Railway Mail Clerks, Custom House Clerks, Stenographers, Bookkeepers, Departmental Clerks and other Government Positions. Thousands of appointments will be made. Any man or woman over 18, in City or Country can get Instruction and free information by writing at once to the Bureau of Instruction, 115 E Hamlin Building, Rochester, N. Y. 52-3m

RESULTS THAT REMAIN

Are Appropriated By Butler People

Thousands who suffer from back ache and kidney complaint have tried one remedy after another, finding only temporary benefit. This is discouraging, but there is one special kidney medicine that cures permanently and there is plenty of proof right here in Butler.

Here is the testimony of one who used Doan's Kidney Pills years ago, and now states that the cure was lasting.

Mrs. Sadie Fee, North Pearl Street, Butler, Ind., says: "I am glad to say that the cure made by Doan's Kidney Pills in our little boy's case has been permanent. The child was afflicted with a weakness of the kidneys and bed wetting was frequent. Finally I gave Doan's Kidney Pills a trial and they brought such great relief that in 1902 I publicly endorsed them. Up to this time my son has had no return of his former trouble and for that reason, I am glad to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills again."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. 1-2

Can't Work

When you feel that you can hardly drag through your daily work, and are tired, discouraged and miserable, take Cardui, the woman's tonic.

Cardui is prepared for the purpose of helping women to regain their strength and health.

Not by doping with strong drugs, but by the gentle, tonic action, of pure vegetable herbs.

B 56

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Mrs. L. N. Nicholson, of Shook, Mo., writes: "Before I began to take Cardui, I was unable to do any work. I have taken 5 bottles and have improved very much. I can do the most of my housework now.

"I can't say too much for Cardui, it has done so much for me."

Your druggist sells Cardui. Get a bottle today.

Additional Locals

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery

Do not be so conspicuous that no one will look at you.

The poor creature who saw no end to trouble, could not have seen the begining of it.

One of the quickest ways to find lost articles, is to arrange systematically everything that is not lost.

Frank Briggs who is supertinding the Silas Briggs farm in Union township, drove forty head of steers to market at Churubusco Friday and sold them to Wal Madden at a good figure. They averaged 1,400 pounds each.—Columbia City Mail.

Mos tof the sobs in this world are silent ones.

A carload of onions, the property of John W. Newman of Indianapolis and a refrigerator car belonging to The Manstee & Northeastern Railroad were consumed by fire on the Vandalia siding at Collins, at 2 o'clock Friday morning, and had it not been for the family dog of Geo. Ray, and the valiant efforts of a dozen Collins residents a very much more disastrous conflagration would have resulted. The loss will approximate $2,000.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy never disappoints those who use it for obstinate coughs, colds and irritations of the throat and lungs. It stands unrivalled as a remedy for all throat and lung diseases. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

Harry K. Scott, cashier of the Steuben County Bank at Angola, has tendered his resignation and will leave about the 15th of January for Los Angeles, Cal. The change has been made necessary on account of his wife's health, the doctors advising her to go to a warmer climate. His successor has not been selected as cashier of the bank.

The individual who became so frightened that every hair stood on end was entirely bald.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They do the work whenever you require their aid. These tablets change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, gloominess into joyousness. Their action is so gentle one don't realize they have taken a purative. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

The gentleman who lost his head found it next morning when it began to ache.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a very valuable medicine for throat and lung troubles, quickly relieves and cures painful breathing and a dangerously sounding cough which indicates congested lungs. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m Counterfeit sympathy is one of the most easily detected imitations in the world.

Have you a weak throat? If so, you cannot be too careful. You cannot begin treatment too early. Each cold makes you more liable to another and the last is always harder to cure. If you will take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the outset you will be saved much trouble. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

Atty. W. W. Sharpless wants to emphatically state that he is not a candidate for either city attorney or county democratic chairman, despite reports to that effect. "I have not solicited either office, have not been a candidate at all and would not accept them if they were handed to me on a platter," he declared to the Clipper. His position on the city has no reference to his law partner Edgar W. Atkinson, who is a candidate for the office.

Do not run too fast through the world, unless you want to run quickly out of it.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is not a common, every-day cough mixture. It is a meritorious remedy for all the troublesome and dangerous complications resulting from cold in the head, throat, chest or lungs. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

The boy whose heart jumped into his mouth, swallowed his mortification at the incident.

This is the way a casual observer sizes up the average editor of a country weekly: The country weekly editor is usually the best known man in a small town. He seldom has any opposition and if he offends any one in one issue he has a whole week to make up his mind whether or not he will take it back. Monday is a quiet day for him. He gets out a little py in the morning to keep the compositors busy and then goes out about the street to see what he can find. If he meets a subscriber who is paid up there is a friendly greeting and a hand shake. If he sees one who is in arrears he casts a savage glance at him and the delinquent usually goes down the nearest alley. Tuesday he usually goes hunting or fishing and Wednesday goes up with some "boomers" to look up the prospects for some new industry for the town. Thursday is publication day so he stays in the office and gets out copy. He lights up his corn-cob pipe and gets busy. The flies sting him on his bald head and he "spats them writes, and swears at the office "devil" all by turns. Friday and Saturday he takes it easy or goes to the nearest city and "sees things and has a good time. Sunday he goes to church and sits in the front row. He drops his last dime in the collection box and sings "Lord I Care Not Fir Riches." But Lo —over on the other side of the church a delinquent subscriber starts the old hymn, "Jesus Paid It All." Verily, the life of the country editor is great.

Notice to Non-Residents

State of Indiana, } SS:
County of DeKalb, }

In the DeKalb County Circuit Court, March Term, 1910.

Milton E. Anthony
vs.
Sarah Ann Rohrbaugh, et al.

Notice is hereby given to the following named defendants in the above entitled cause, Reuben G. Dannells, Rachel Rohrbaugh, wife of James M Rohrbaugh, Charles N. Rohrbaugh Ann R Rohrbaugh, wife of Charles N Rohrbaugh, Christopher C. Rohrbaugh, Jennie Rohrbaugh, wife of Christopher C. Rohrbaugh, whose true christian name is unknown to plaintiff Benjamin F Rohrbaugh, Hanah Rohrbaugh, wife of Benjamin F. Rohrbaugh whose true christian name is unknown to plaintiff; Solomon C. Rohrbaugh, Sarah E. Rohrbaugh, Rosa B. Rohrbaugh, Mahalia A. Rohrbaugh, Alice V. Rohrbaugh, Lewis Wagoner, guardian of Solomon C. Rohrbaugh, Ann Rohrbaugh wife of Charles N. Rohrbaugh.

The children, descendants and heirs, the surviving spouse, the creditors of the estate, the devisees, legatees, trustees and executors of the last will and testament and the survivers in interest respectively of each of the following named and designated deceased persons, to-wit: James M. Rohrbaugh, Thomas C. Rohrbaugh, Rosa B. Rohrbaugh, Mahalia A. Rohrbaugh, Alice V. Rohrbaugh, the names of whom are all unknown to plaintiff.

The children, descendants and heirs, the surviving spouse, the creditors of the estate, the devisees, legatees, trustees and executors of the last will and testament and the survivers in interest of the deceased widow of each of the following named and designated deceased persons, to-wit: James N. Rohrbaugh, Thomas C. Rohrbaugh.

All of the women once known by any of the names and designations above named who may have changed their names and who are known by some other name, the names of whom are unknown to plaintiff.

The spouses of all the persons above named and designated, the names o whom are unknown to plaintiff are each non-residents of the state of Indiana and the residence of each is unknown to plaintiff and upon diligent inquiry cannot be ascertained and said defendants are therefore hereby notified of the filing and pendancy of said complaint against them for the purpose of quieting title to certain real estate described in plaintiff's complaint, situated in DeKalb county and state of Indiana and to discharge liens and cancel of record certain mortgages and liens thereon and to make partition of said lands and that unless they appear and answer or demur there to at the calling of said case on the 7th day of March, 1910, the same being the 1st juridical day of the March, 1910, term of the DeKalb county circuit court to be begun, held and continued at the court house at Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, commencing on the 7th day of March, 1910 next, said complaint and the matters and things therein contained and alleged will be taken as true and said cause will be heard and determined in their absence.

Witness the clerk and seal of said court this 4th day of January, 1910.

W. A. AUSTIN,
Clerk of DeKalb Circuit Court.
E. B. DUNTEN, Att'y. 1-4

Notice of Appointment of Executor

State of Indiana, DeKalb County, ss:

I, W. A. Austin, clerk of the DeKalb circuit court, for the county of DeKalb, in the state of Indiana, do hereby certify that Frank Creager has been appointed executor of the last will and testament of Sarah Casey late of DeKalb county, deceased, who died testate. And the said Frank Creager having qualified and given bond as such executor is duly authorized to take upon himself the execution of said will.

Witness my hand and the seal of said court, this 4th day of January, 1910.

W. A. AUSTIN,
Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court.
E. B. DUNTEN, Att'y. for Estate. 1-4

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in the estate of John Henry Secor deceased, to appear in the DeKalb circuit court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 24th day of January, 1910, and show cause, if any, why my final settlement accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness, my name, this 3rd day of January, 1910.

JOHN J. OBERLIN,
Administrator.
C. J. COATS, Att'y. for Estate. 1-3

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in the estate of Elizabeth Ann Secor deceased, to appear in the DeKalb circuit court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 24th day of January, 1910, and show cause, if any, why my final settlement accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness, my name, this 3rd day of January, 1910.

JOHN J. OBERLIN,
Administrator.
C. J. COATS, Att'y. for Estate. 1-3

C. J. Simon, Memphis

Very often young people, at an age when they should be in the prime of health, suffer from chronic constipation, and nothing seems to help them. It was so with Mr. C. J. Simon, of Memphis, Tenn., until he took Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and now he is permanently cured. It will also cure indigestion, heartburn, flatulency, sick headache, sour stomach, etc. It is absolutely guaranteed to do what is claimed, and if you want to try it before buying, send your address for a free sample bottle to Pepsin Syrup Co., 119 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1 a bottle. 1-1m

Tuberculosis

Plenty of fresh air, sleeping out-doors and a plain, nourishing diet are all good and helpful, but the most important of all is

Scott's Emulsion

It is the standard treatment prescribed by physicians all over the world for this dread disease. It is the ideal food-medicine to heal the lungs and build up the wasting body.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send 10c., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each bank contains a Good Luck Penny.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., N. Y.

A YEAR IN COLLEGE 250$ cash or a year in College can be easily earned by one young man or one young lady in each county in the United States. Plan easy and does not interfere with other employment. State name of institution you wish to attend. No money required. For particulars address M.H.Pembertion, Columbia, Mo.

A Guaranteed Cure for Piles

Itching, Blind, Bleeding, Protruding Piles. Druggists are authorized to refund money if Pazo Ointment fails to cure in 6 to 14 days. 50c. 52-12m

FASHION PLATES

NOW IN

And we are ready for the fal business.

We do all kinds of button covering fo the ladies'.

Cleaning and repairing on short notice.

Edward May

Reliable Tailor

OH! YES

We are now ready to sell you in bulk the best

Fresh Oysters

you ever ate—also a fresh line line of wafers and the regular oyster crackers.

George Stout

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS

WITH Dr. King's New Discovery

FOR COUGHS COLDS PRICE 50c & $1.00. Trial Bottle Free

AND ALL THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.

GUARANTEED SATISFACTORY OR MONEY REFUNDED.

O. W. HINER, V. M. D., M. F.

Veterinary Surgeon and Dentist - -

All calls promptly answered day or night

OFFICE AT RESIDENCE

HOME PHONE 21

NEW YORK CLIPPER

IS THE GREATEST THEATRICAL & SHOW PAPER IN THE WORLD.

$4.00 Per Year. Single Copy, 10 Cts.

ISSUED WEEKLY.

SAMPLE COPY FREE.

FRANK QUEEN PUB. CO. (Ltd), PUBLISHERS, 47 W. 28TH ST., NEW YORK.

ALBERT J. BORIE, MANAGER.

WE CARRY A COMPLETE LINE OF

Keen Kutter Goods

Keen Cutter Axes, Cross Cut Saws, Keen Kutter Buck Saws, Files, etc., and a full line of

KEEN KUTTER TOOLS

The recollection of quality remains long after the price is forgotten. True to all Keen Kutter Tools and Cutlery. All Keen Kutter Goods are guaranteed by us.

Gengnagel & Son

FREE TO YOU—MY SISTER Free to You and Every Sister Suffering From Woman's Ailments.

I am a woman.
I know woman's sufferings.
I have found the cure.

I will mail, free of any charge, my home treatment with full instructions to any sufferer from women's ailments. I want to tell all women about this cure—you, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourselves at home without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any doctor. I know that my home treatment is a safe and sure cure for Leucorrhoea or Whitish Discharges, Ulceration, Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Tumors or Growths; also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousness, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness, kidney and bladder troubles where caused by weaknesses peculiar to our sex.

I want to send you a complete ten days' treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember, that it will cost you nothing to give the treatment a complete trial; and if you should wish to continue, it will cost you only about 12 cents a week, or less than two cents a day. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. Just send me your name and address, tell me how you suffer if you wish, and I will send you the treatment for your case, entirely free in plain wrapper, by return mail. I will also send you free of cost, my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISER" with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Every woman should have it, and learn to think for herself. Then when the doctor says—"You must have an operation," you can decide for yourself. Thousands of women have cured themselves with my home remedy. It cures all, old or young. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain a simple home treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhoea, Green Sickness and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in Young Ladies. Plumpness and health always result from its use.

Wherever you live, I can refer you to ladies of your own locality who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all women's diseases, and makes women well, strong, plump and robust. Just send me your address, and the free ten days' treatment is yours, also the book. Write today, as you may not see this offer again. Address

MRS. M. SUMMERS, Box H - - - Notre Dame, Ind., U. S. A.

THE OLD GREAT EASTERN.

She Was a Rocking Horse When Her Engines Stopped at Sea.

"You can say what you please about the old Great Eastern," said an American who has crossed the ocean twice or more every year for almost half a century, "but she was a grand idea. The trouble was that the idea was almost fifty years ahead of its time. It has taken the world all that time to grow up to a Great Eastern as exemplified by the Lusitania and the Mauretania.

"I made my first voyage to Europe in the Great Eastern. That was in 1862. It was the first time the vessel sailed into Liverpool. She had accommodations for hundreds on hundreds of passengers, but there were only 100 in her on that trip.

"You know she had both a propeller and paddle wheels. As long as she kept going it was all right, for she moved along steadily and majestically. But one day we were hailed by a small French steamer that had mail to send to Europe, and we stopped short in midocean, while a boat put out from the other vessel.

"Well, how it happened I don't know, but the huge mountain of a vessel seemed to lose her balance. She wabbled about there in a dreadful fashion. Passengers and stewards were hurled about in every direction, and, as for crockery, I don't believe a whole plate or cup or saucer was saved from the wreckage.

"On the vessel was every sort of general cargo, including live stock, and, as for provisions, why, we had better food and fresher than you can get on a liner today. We had absolutely fresh meat, fresh milk and freshly killed chicken.

"Even in speed the Great Eastern was in advance of her time, for it took us only eight days to get to Liverpool."—New York Sun.

Passing of the Umbrella.

"The time's coming," remarked a floorwalker in one of the big stores, "when umbrellas will be relics of the past. Automobiles are knocking them out. I don't mean by that that people buy automobiles to ride in on rainy days instead of carrying umbrellas, but it is inconvenient to carry an umbrella in an auto, and autoists provide themselves with those light raincoats that can be used even in warm weather, and the practice of having a raincoat handy instead of an umbrella is spreading all the time. Then manufacturers are now able to waterproof almost any sort of overcoat goods, and there isn't much necessity for a man to own an umbrella in overcoat weather. They point out that in a real drenching storm an umbrella would not do much good anyhow and in a mild shower one wouldn't get very wet anyhow. There will still be use for umbrellas for women, but even they are doing without them more and more."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

To Cure a Cold in One Day.

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25c. 52-12m

"The mere fact that a man is sent by his doctor to some particular baths or springs where he sees other invalids confident of a cure makes him think that he, too, can get well," said Dr. R. Murray Leslie, speaking at the Incorporated Institute of Hygiene in London.

WABASH

EAST BOUND

No. 2—Express	6:48 a. m
No. 28—Mail	8:48 a. m
No. 6—Toledo Mail & Exp	5:12 p. m
No. 78—Local Freight	9:50 a. m

WEST BOUND

No. 9—Fast Mail	4:29 a. m.
No. 11—Ft. Wayne Mail & Exp	10:16 a. m.
No. 3—Express	8:17 p. m.
No. 79—Local Freight	2:04 p. m.

All trains daily except Local Freights.

O. C. WATERMAN, Agent, Butler, Ind.

If your grocers can not satisfy you with their bread? Try the

Home Bakery

The best tasting bread in the city. has no equal. Bread 4c a loaf.

Anton Panhuysen

REAL ESTATE

We have some splendid farms and other excellent properties or investment.

We have the Thompson Opera House for sale and many other properties in Butler.

Farms from 40 to 160 acres. It will pay you to see us before buying. We are in the business to stay and are able to place you right.

Wilcox & Creager

JANUARY

0434

L1134

For A Cold or Grip

TRY

Nyals Laxacold

Every Box Guaranteed

For Rheumatism

Nyals Rheumatic Cure

AT

PHILLIPS' DRUG STORE

Mrs. Ona Clay spent Sunday at Bryan.

Try the new meat market for that Sunday roast.

Mrs Sherman Robinett is on the sick list this week.

The First National bank solicits your fire insurance. tf

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Hoffman spent Saturday at Fort Wayne.

Mrs Wm. Mutzfeld and son, Ralph, spent Saturday at Auburn.

Attorney C. J. Coats was at Auburn Monday on legal business.

Luther Knisely was at Auburn Friday attending the caucus.

Merritt Sechler spent Sunday even ing with friends at Auburn.

Fred Briggs will sell you cement blocks cheaper than anyone else. tf

Florence Martin, of Angola, was the guest of Miss Gale Aldrich last week.

For up-to-date picture framing at reasonable prices call on Eugene Treesh. 52-2

Rev. Burk returned Saturday from a week's visit with relatives at Bryant, Ind.

Raymond Garber left Monday for Chicago where he is attending dental college.

Miss Esta Gengnagel, of Newville, was in the city Saturday the guest of relatives.

Mrs Lee Diehl returned home Monday evening from a visit with relatives in Warsaw.

Rev. J. A. Davis will preach at the Jerusalem church next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

Cecelia Keller, of Kendallville, was the guest of Henry DeBelius and wife a few days last week.

Henry Slentz, of Eaton Rapids, Mich., was the guest of his sister, Mrs. J. H. Smith, Saturday night.

M. F. Long was at Akron, Ohio, the latter part of last week visiting his daughter, Mrs. Whitehead.

Mrs. Jack Finkle and children, of Montpelier, Ohio, were guests of Ed Graf and wife Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. George Boots was buried at Waterloo Tuesday afternoon. She was formerly a resident of this city.

John Schneider and wife had as a guest Saturday and Sunday his brother, Julius Schneider, of Milwaukee, Wis.

Miss Ruth Beavers and Frank Seldenright spent Saturday evening at Bryan, Ohio, the guests of C. M. Young.

Millard Stone and Harold Tess returned to their school at Crawfordsville, Tuesday, after spending their vacation with their parents.

Our farmer friends could assist in making the HERALD more interesting if they would hand in bits of news from their neighborhood occasionally. It will cost you nothing and help us.

The south room in the Oberlin block has been rented by a party from Napoleon, Ohio, who will conduct a moving picture show here. He expects to be ready for business about Tuesday of next week.

The Royal Arch Masons and Order of Eastern Stars held a joint installation at the Masonic hall, Tuesday evening Jan. 4, with all Master Masons invited as guests, after which a banquet was served in the dining hall and about one hundred sat down to a fine supper served by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Church of God. The lodge desires to extend a vote of thanks to the ladies of the church, also to the Odd Fellows for favors rendered com mittee.

John W Vance, Judge of Probate Court, Blue Earth, Minn.—We have sustained a lecture course in this city for many years, besides many independent lectures, and of course in all that time we have had some of the most noted platform orators that have appeared during the last thirty years. We fully believe that Dr. Edwin W. Lanham is the peer of any of them. The "Post" truly says "he has a message." We feel when this message is delivered, that we have received an inspiration. This is the second time he has been with us, so we feel that we have a claim on him, therefore we say success to him, and in the language of the Post, "many of the topics that now agitate the public mind will be solved." At Thompson's opera house, Friday evening, Jan. 14.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery

See Fred Briggs for cement blocks. tf

A. F. Brindley was in Toledo, Monday on business.

Valma Brown spent New Year's with his parents.

Bert Shapland of Kendallville was in the city, Tuesday.

A. L. Lake spent Sunday in Saint Joe the guest of relatives.

Anton Panhuysen spent Monday at Bryan, Ohio, on business.

Mrs Brown Mumaw returned Monday from a visit with relatives in Kalamazoo

Sherman Robinett, of Goshen, spent Sunday in this city with his family.

John Groff, of Edgerton, Ohio, was in the city Saturday evening on business.

Mrs. Frank Needham and daughter, Marguerite, spent Saturday at Waterloo.

Geo. Crawford, who has been on the sick list, is reported better at this writing.

Frank Nimmons and family took New Year's dinner with A. J. Price and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Webster spent Sunday at Auburn the guests of relatives.

Mrs. Charles Persing of Fort Wayne was the guest of sister, Mrs. George Wagner Sunday.

Mrs. Marion Knepper and children spent Sunday with Alex Wilson and wife at Auburn.

Jud Gee and wife and Berlie Haverstock spent Sunday with relatives at Edgerton, Ohio.

If you want to send money away buy a New York draft of the First National bank. tf

Mrs. Myrtle Heilbron and daughter, of Chicago, are the guests of James Decker and wife.

Miss Claud Tomlinson, of Garrett, was the guest of her mother, Mrs. Ella Tomlinson, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bolinger and daughter, Jessie, were guests of relatives at Auburn Sunday.

Mrs. William Oberlin and children spent Sunday and Monday with Mrs. Jennie Smith at Edon, Ohio.

Geoge Bechtel, wife, and son Earl spent Sunday in the country the guests of his father, Peter Bechtel.

Martin McInturf and wife, of Kendallville, spent New Year's with their son, Lewis McInturf and wife.

Mrs. Geo. Vernier and niece, Miss Ina Druhot, spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives at Stryker, Ohio.

J. Geo. Wagner was at Cleveland several days last week looking after material for the new engine factory.

Willis Countryman, of Butler, Ohio, was the guest of his brothers, Fred and Austin Countryman, Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sechler and Theodore Losure spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Treeman, west of town.

Frances, Myra and Cassius Smith, of Kendallville, spent a week's vacation at the home of their aunt, Mrs. Jennie Beerer.

C. J. Coats has an 80 acre farm he will trade for a smaller piece. If he cannot do this, will take Butler city property in exchange. tf

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Noragon entertained Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Berkey, Geo. Crawford and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Noragon at dinner Sunday.

Romeno Buchan, wife and children have returned to their home at Big Rapids, Mich., after a week's visit with relatives in and around Butler.

Dan Beerer and wife entertained Mr. and Mrs. Glen Howard and B. W. Zeigler, of Auburn, and W. A. Smith and family, of Kendallville, during the holidays.

Mrs. C. J. Coats and son, John arrived in Butler Saturday evening from Lexington Ky. John Coats, who was hurt in a gasoline explosion at that place, is greatly improved.

One sly old Santa from the north pole left a large box of valuable presents in John Kiplinger's milk wagon during his absence getting his horses shod. Many thanks.

C. S. Arford, a prominent farmer and friend of the HERALD has paid his subscription two years in advance with wood He says he likes the tone of the HERALD better since the change in management.

Mr. Lanham is a man among men. His heart is in his work, and a sublime purpose is back of it all. viz.: to help and elevate humanity. He is never tedious, never dry. Sometimes he is an historian, sometimes a poet, sometimes a scientist, often a humorist, but always an orator. At Thomp son's opera house, Friday evening, Jan. 14.

The DeKalb County Association of Rural Mail Carriers met in Butler on Jan. 1, 1910. About fourteen members were present. They met in the Grand Army hall, and at noon repaired to the Waverly hotel where a fine din ner was served. In the afternoon they met for the transaction of business, electing the same officers for the ensuing year. The county was organized for the betterment of the service and to make a more mutual relationship between the carriers and patrons of the routes. The rural service is growing and becoming better each year and is a great factor in the education of the country.

Miss Cleo Boyle is on the sick list.

Mrs. S. B. Braden continues to improve.

J. M. Norford was at Auburn Friday attending the caucus.

Clyde Shaffer and Jay Pessell spent Saturday at Fort Wayne.

Pay your bills by check. Deposit with the First National bank. tf

Mrs. Jake Mumaw returned to her home in Edon after a week's visit.

Miss Vesta Kimbel of Three Rivers Mich. spent New Year's with Vesta Brown.

Miss Vesta Brown spent Friday at Wauseon Ohio the guest of her brother Valma.

Mrs. Wid Hoke, of Bryan, is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Abbie Rogers.

Springs and mattresses are a necessity. If in need of any call on Eugene Treesh. 52-2

Lynn Hazen and wife, of South Bend, are the guests of his parents in this city.

Mrs. Bowen and Bessie of Ligonier was the guests of Doc Krontz and wife last week.

Subscribe for Every Where, Will Carlton's magazine. $1 per year at this office. tf

Henry DeBelius, wife and children spent New Year's at Auburn the guests of relatives.

Mrs. J. A. Davis and daughter, Veda, spent last week with friends at Pleasant Lake.

Miss Ellen Rooke, who was sick at the home of Mrs. J. C. Eviston, is improving nicely.

Class number 7 of the U. B. church met at the home of Miss Flora Pearson Tuesday evening.

Gilbert Troyer and L. H. McInturf took third degree in the K. of P. order Tuesday evening.

Walter Mondhank, wife and children have returned from a visit with relatives at Lancaster, Ohio.

Mrs. Perry Provines, of near Auburn, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Walter Hallauer, Saturday.

The Pythian Sisters from this city were invited to Newville Tuesday afternoon where they initiated a class.

Miss Grace Needham, of Kendallville, was the guest of her brother, Frank Needham and wife over Sunday.

Mr. Miller, manager of the cement mixer factory, has moved his family into the Mack property on Railroad street.

LOST—A gold watch fob made of links, 3 in. long, with basket charm attached. Finder please leave at this office. 1t

Mrs. John Schneider, who has been confined to her home for the past four weeks by sickness, is able to be out again.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Marshal have sold their 100 acre farm to James Hodges. The deal was closed Saturday.

Mrs. Jennie Beerer was called to Kendallville, Saturday, on account of the sickness of her brother, W. A. Smith.

Mrs. Virgie Broderick and son, Carman, and Miss Ruth Williams, of Montpelier, Ohio, were guests of Frank Stump and wife Sunday.

J. William Barber our local poet is the latest addition to the Herald force. He has natural literary ability and will no doubt learn the trade quickly

I would like an offer for any one, or all, of several houses in Butler, owned by people not living here. If you want a home, this is your chance.
Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Brown entertoined at dinner, Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Winn Keep and son, of near Hamilton, and Mrs. Henry Showalter and son, Fred.

Mrs. Malinda Ridge and son, Jay, are making their home with Mr. and Mrs. George Matson for the present, and Merritt Matson and family moved on his Grandma Ridge's farm.

Christmas is past, and we are all happy at last. Did you all get a postal? John Kiplinger and wife reports of getting 98 souvenirs and have a choice collection. They are proud to own and extend their heartiest thanks to all.

Lewis Ridge and wife were at Waterloo, Saturday, for the purpose of being examined by the county physician in preparing to join the Gleaners of Franklin. They will each carry a $500 life insurance.

J. L. Berkhimer, Editor Worthington Globe—Dr. Edwin W. Lanham is one of the ablest speakers on the lyceum list. His personal appearance upon the platform at once assures his audience that they will receive full value for their investment. His ability as a public speaker attracts particular attention both for literary character and impressive delivery, and appeals with special power to thoughtful men and women. At Thompson's opera house, Friday evening, Jan. 14.

James Treeman has constructed upon his farm, south west of Butler, a cow stable with all the latest improve ments. It is 80x14 feet. At present it will stable twenty cows, and by a little change in the construction there can be twenty-six head of cattle stabled in this shed. Mr. Treeman has rented his farm to Pifer & Son where they will continue their dairy in first-class style. They think they are now in position to supply the demand which they have not been able to do heretofore.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

Fresh Country Sausage at the new meot market. 2t-1

Mr. Hazen fell Sunday on the ice and hurt himself quite badly.

Harley Sechler spent Saturday evening at St. Joe the guest of friends.

Call at the new meat market and get acquainted. C. C. Harper, Prop.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cannan spent Sunday with her brother, Henry Grube and wife.

Communion services will be held at the Lutheran church one week from next Sunday.

Furniture can be chosen from catalogue. Any one in doubt call on Eugene Treesh. 52-2

Albert Beckley has returned to his work at Hillsdale, Mich., after spending the holidays in this city.

We have some 5 per cent money to loan on mortgage security. First National Bank. tf

Mrs. Florence Dill has returned to her home at Toledo after a visit here with her daughter, Mrs. Wesley Mutzfeld.

Mr. and Mrs Ernest Olds entertained Mr. and Mrs Sherman Robinett and daughters, Delphia and Fern to dinner, Sunday.

The Culture club met with Mrs. F. L. Kiplinger Monday afternoon. A very pleasant meeting was enjoyed by all present.

The Misses Eva VanAuken and Lucile Madison, of Pleasant Lake, were the guests of Miss Veda Davis over Sunday.

Misses Helene Welch of Montpelier, Ohio and Mildred Hamm of Wauseon were the guests of Helen Acker over Sunday.

Ladies shampoo and massage. First class barber work and baths. West side Broadway, Tomlinson's old stand. Give us a call. M. J. Harrigan, Prop.

Miss Laura DeVinney has returned to her school at Howe, Ind., after a visit with her parents, C. A. DeVinney and wife.

Misses May, Sarah, and Gertrude Worthington and Mrs Nellie Stroh and daughter, Laura took dinner, Sunday with Dick Platt and wife.

The members of the newly elected council all qualified and were sworn in Monday. After the oath was taken they were all invited to the Waverly hotel for dinner, where they dined and smoked to the success of the new board.

Chas. Capp presented the editor and family on New Year's eve with a large fat hen, ready for the roaster. Hence we started the New Year with a full stomach. We hope our friend Capp's success and happiness in 1910 will eclipse all former years.

Ex-Mayor Webster has not cost the city of Butler very much for services during his term of office. His salary for the whole term of office amounted to just $500; the amount paid to the city treasurer for fines and docket fees was $365.50, leaving $134.50 actual cost for his services.

H. A. Noyes, Pastor First Presbyterian Church, Dows, Iowa—Edwin W. Lanham is a man of strong personality, as well as usual ability, on the platform. He quickly comes into touch with his audience and holds them to the end. He is master of the situation from first to last, uniformly pleases his auditors, and is destined to take high rank among those whom the American public delights to greet upon the lecture platform. At Thompson's opera house, Friday evening, Jan. 14.

Frank L. Adams, district deputy for the First Pythian district, was in the city to-day enroute to his home at Angola from Garrett, where he met with the lodge and was the means of preventing them from surrendering their charter. For some time there has been a lack of interest in the order at Garrett and at the meeting last night all was made well and an entirely new set of officers elected who have taken hold of the work with more than a passing interest Ed Van Fleit was elected chancellor commander and with a number of other hustlers with ability equal to his, the ball has again been started rolling. The district meeting will be held in that city on January 19 and a big time is expected. District Chairman Adams is arranging for the pro gram and will have same ready for distribution by next week.—Courier.

Dr. O. W. Hiner made a professional call at Edgerton, Tuesday.

A share of your patronage is solicited at the Harper meal market.

Edwin W. Lanham, lecturer, at the opera house, Friday evening, January 14.

D. Boyer and wife of Helmer were the guests of Jake Cook and wife, Friday.

John Treemen of Gertrude, Texas came Wednesday for a visit with relatives.

Husselman Brothers recently sold pianos to A. F. Brindley and Lewis Crouse,

Mrs. Martin Smith and son, Dell of Waterloo were the guests of Carl Smith and wife.

I have for sale, houses in all parts of the city. Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

Mr. and Mrs James Diehl kept house for Mrs L. J. Diehl while she visited in Warsaw.

Rolland Kenyon spent Wednesday evening and Thursday morning with at his home in West Unity.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Showalter took dinner, Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. William Whetzel west of town.

Harry Richard returned to Chicago, Sunday, after a visit with his parents, William Richard and wife.

Mrs Arthur Moore of Tacoma Wase., came Friday for a visit with her mother Mrs Maxwell, and other relatives.

Evangelistic services are now in progress at the Methodist church. Prof. Haley will sing, also a large choir.

Mrs. Ackerman and Mrs. Conroy have purchased the Murch restaurant and will take possession February 1st.

FOR TRADE:—An improvdd twenty acre tract of land in Michigan. Value about fifteen hundred dollars. Want Butler property. Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

The Pythian Sisters wish to extend an invitation to the Knights of Pythias to hold a joint installation with the Sisters on next Wednesday evening.

Dr. L. Light will preach at the M. E. church Sunday night and also address a men's meeting at 3 o'clock, Sunday afternoon. All are cordially invited.

Mrs L. J. Diehl visited her uncle W. H. Ripple at Warsaw last week and returning Monday spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Rayhouser at Fort Wayne.

Layton Tombow entertained twenty of his friends to a New Year's party. The rooms were prettily decorated in red and green. Various games were played, and a good time enjoyed by all.

The writer takes pleasure in recommending Edwin W. Lanham, lecturer. It was our privilege to hear Dr. Lanham deliver his famous lecture, "The World's Battleground" about a year ago and we are highly pleased at having the opportunity to hear him again. If you hear him once you would be willing to go a long ways to hear him again. We do not hesitate to say that this will be the strongest number of the lecture course, and we want all our readers to hear him. One good lecture such as he gives is worth a half dozen poor ones. See press clippings elsewhere.

Notice to Farmers

Farmers bringing in their own Cream to the Butler Creamery will receive this week 36 cents per pound for their butter. 1-1

Pure Buckwheat Flour

Self-Rising Buckwheat

Flour, Corn Meal

Flour and Feed

Poultry Supplies

CRAUN'S FEED STORE

Phone 54

January Clearance Sale of Ladies' Suits, Ladies', Misses' and Children's Coats, Skirts, Furs, Silk and Net Waists, Ladies' Sweaters, Etc.

January, February and March, 3 Months of Winter

You'll have plenty of time to make use of Winter Garments. We still have some to sell and are determined to make a clean sweep of all winter wear. Rather than carry them over into another season we have decided to take our loss now and give our customers the benefit.

25 Percent Discount

On all Ladies' Suits and Coats, Misses' and Children's Coats. Remember we will give one-fourth off on all garments from the regular marked prices.

Tailored Suits

Twenty to select from.

$10.00 Values reduced to.....$7.50
15.00 Values reduced to.....$11.25
18.50 Values reduced to.....$13.87
25.00 Values reduced to.....$18.75

Sizes 32 to 40

Furs! Furs! Furs!

Twenty-five percent discount on every piece of Fur in our line, while they last.

Sweater Coats

One-fourth off on all Ladies', Misses' and Children's Sweater Coats.

Women's Coats

One-fourlh less than our regnlar low prices. A large line to select from.

Misses' and Children's Coats

A discount of 25 percent on every garment.

Silk and Net Waists

One-fourth less than our regular low prices.

Ladies' Dress Skirts

Our entire stock of Ladies' Dress Skirts at 20 percent discount.

Twenty Misses' and Children's Coats, values from $3.50 to $10.00, carried over from last year, good warm cloth garments; all must go at.....$1.98

Only 69 Cents A Pair

Fifty pair of Ladies' Kid Gloves—some dressed, some undressed. Former prices $1.00 to $1.50. All go at 69 cents a pair while they last.

Remnant Counter

We have gathered together the accumulations of the past season's business and placed them on our Remnant Counter. They are all marked at ridicously low prices. It will pay you to look them over. We will offer special bargains in other departments of our big store during this sale.

The Knisely Dry Goods Co.

Work 24 Hours A Day

The busiest little things ever made are Dr. King's New Life Pills. Every pill is a sugar coated globule of health, that changes weakness into strength, languor into energy, brain-fag into mental power; curing Constipation, Headache, Chills, Dyspepsia, Malaria. 25c at Stone's drug store. 1-1m

REAL ESTATE

SHAW & CREAGER

Farm and city property for sale or exchanged.

We have city property ranging in price from $400 to $2500.

Farms from 13 acres up. See us if you wish to buy or sell.

Office Second Hand Store, South Side. Phone 203.

Better Not Get Dyspepsia

If you can help it. Kodol prevents Dyspepsia, by effectually helping Nature to Relieve Indigestion. But don't trifle with Indigestion.

A great many people who have trifled with indigestion, have been sorry for it—when nervous or chronic dyspepsia resulted, and they have not been able to cure it.

Use Kodol and prevent having Dyspepsia.

Everyone is subject to indigestion. Stomach derangement follows stomach abuse, just as naturally and just as surely as a sound and healthy stomach results upon the taking of Kodol.

When you experience sourness of stomach, belching of gas and nauseating fluid, bloated sensation, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, heart burn (so-called), diarrhoea, headaches, dullness or chronic tired feeling—you need Kodol. And then the quicker you take Kodol—the better. Eat what you want, let Kodol digest it.

Ordinary pepsin "dyspepsia tablets," physics, etc., are not likely to be of much benefit to you, in digestive ailments. Pepsin is only a partial digester—and physics are not digesters at all.

Kodol is a perfect digester. If you could see Kodol digesting every particle of food, of all kinds, in the glass test-tubes in our laboratories, you would know this just as well as we do.

Nature and Kodol will always cure a sick stomach—but in order to be cured, the stomach must rest. That is what Kodol does—rests the stomach, while the stomach gets well. Just as simple as A, B, C.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today and get a dollar bottle. Then after you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you can honestly say, that it has not done you any good, return the bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money without question or delay. We will then pay the druggist for the bottle. Don't hesitate, all druggists know that our guarantee is good. This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family. The large bottle contains 2½ times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

SOLD AT GEDDES' DRUGSTORE

You Will Like Black Cross

Because we like it. We like it because it is good, in fact, the best for the price. When you buy Black Cross Coffee, you will find something there you like. When you buy Black Cross Tea you will find the quality in the cup an an arom that can't fail to please. When you buy Black Cross Spices, you buy the best. These spices are put up in packages, it keeps them fresh. They don't cost you any more than others that are one-half the strength. Just try one 5c package and you will never use any other. At the price Indian Coffee 17c a pound has them all beat.

The Oberlin Grocery Company

JANUARY

0435

L1134

DeKalb County Herald

BUTLER, INDIANA.

A. S. POWERS, - - - Publisher.

When trouble goes to sleep don't set the alarm clock.

These days a small appetite is better than great riches.

If a man never has any use for a doctor he hasn't much of a kick coming.

Nat Goodwin is taking an interest in aeronautics. Mr. Goodwin always was a high flier.

The things that come to those who wait are generally the things that no one else wants.

Money makes the mare go. And Mr. Rockefeller hopes it will have the same effect on the lazy bug.

And now our busy press will have to pick new husbands and wives for all the recent divorcees in New York.

It is claimed there is a lobster shortage this year, but no one but a painstaking investigator would ever suspect it.

Some one suggests that a monument ought to be built to the man who invented ice cream. Let the women subscribe.

The automobile makers are to turn out 135,000 cars for 1910, all of them sold in advance and guaranteed to run like gas meters!

Another honest man. A Kansas City merchant whose store was burned refused to accept all the money offered by the insurance company.

Explorer Amundsen will drift toward the north pole, with seven years' food in his trunk and a firm purpose to get Cook's brass tubing.

A grandson of Ralph Waldo Emerson is now governor of the Philippines. Those Filipinos don't appreciate what we are doing for them.

Why not let it dissolve, Mr. Rockefeller? According to the popular understanding you have a tidy little sum saved up for a rainy day, anyhow.

A number of shaky thrones are in such a dilapidated condition that there are doubts as to whether or not they can be patched up for the present occupants.

Senator Aldrich says credit is as good as cash. There are some people who always prefer to pay their bills by checks because in doing that they do not feel that they are giving up money.

A California judge has placed a chauffeur under sentence for manslaughter on probation, conditioned on his paying $25 a month to the support of his victim's family. Lots of men would like to keep out of a ten-year sentence on such conditions.

This whole business of exploration has got to be regulated by law. There is still one pole to discover, and there are several highest mountains to be climbed. Perhaps an international bureau of exploration might be created which would preserve some portions of our too small planet for the enjoyment of future explorers, and which would enforce such regulations of exploration that the controversies now raging over one pole and two mountains shall not be repeated.

To the girl who has been rightly trained, whose essential charm is enhanced by innocent reserve, unaffected candor, ardent enthusiasm for things that are beautiful and good, a manner unfailingly courteous and an enunciation musically sweet—to any maiden who unites these not incompatible qualities, the doors of social and personal opportunity are thrown wide open, and she is received with pleasure anywhere, as likely to impart more "sweetness and light" than she receives.

This story was told the editor, recently, by a friend: "A brother of mine died a few years ago, leaving a young son. My brother was a good fellow, but was never able to accumulate any estate. He frequently borrowed money of me, which I was glad to lend him. He paid it as he could, but always was in debt to me. When he died he owed me between $300 and $400. Of course, I never expected to get back my money. But I reckoned without the boy, my nephew. He has grown to be a young man. The other day I had a letter from him asking me to name the precise amount his father owed me at the time of the latter's death. He said he intended to pay every cent of it. His salary was but $45 per month, but he would be able to save enough to pay me in the course of a few years." Said my friend: "The letter brought tears to my eyes. I did not care for the money. It was the boy's high sense of honor and duty that touched me. I wish I could make the sum smaller than that owed me, but the boy knows approximately the amount, and I dare not rob him of the satisfaction of paying the whole debt." That boy is made of the real stuff. He is of the stuff of which heroes are made. No law forces the brave young fellow to pay the obligations of the dead save the law of moral duty. He is not impelled by any hope of gain save that of conscience and by no fear of loss save the loss of honor. But he is a man—every inch of him, every pound of him. One would rather be the father of such a youth than to be father to a common millionaire. Because the boy has got soul fiber.

Money cannot easily be borrowed in small communities, and when it is found, the rate of interest is usually high. A law has lately been passed in Massachusetts intended to relieve this condition by permitting the establishment of small co-operative banks. They are to be based on substantially the same principle as that on which are founded the Raiffeisen banks in Germany and Italy. The Raiffeisen bank is really a group of neighbors, living in the came community and familiar with one another's affairs, formed for the purpose of uniting their credit in borrowing money for such of them as need it. Every member of the group must be industrious and of good moral character. When he wishes to borrow money he must explain what he plans to do with it. If the lending committee approves his purpose, the money will be advanced to him at a low rate of interest, usually 5 per cent. Then a general supervision is kept over him to see that he spends the money in accordance with his announced purpose, and so conducts himself as to be able to pay it back when it falls due. It is said that this system has not only relieved the German farmers from the oppressions of the usurers, but has also improved the moral tone of the country. As loans are made only to members, and as all the members are jointly liable for the payment of loans, they all watch one another to see that there is no waste of money in drunkenness or in other loose living. There is room in rural America for such institutions. The experience of Mentone, Italy, with a local bank of a slightly different plan, illustrates what might happen there. A little more than twenty-five years ago some small capitalists formed a bank in the town to take the place of another institution that had failed. The prevailing rate of interest for farmers was then 12 per cent. In eight years this little co-operative bank had succeeded in reducing the rate to 6 per cent, and the small farmers had no difficulty in borrowing. The district is now prosperous, and the farmers have been relieved from the pressing burden of debt.

SOME MARRIED MEDITATIONS.

By Clarence L. Cullen.

Doesn't that new "sweep" style of coiffure which women are adopting look like a mess of sea weed cast up on the beach?

Another way of being in bad is when your wife announces that she's sick and tired of housekeeping just about two days after you've made the final payment on the installment furniture.

Some women's idea of being "really loved" by a husband is to have him grab her photograph and plant an ecstatic kiss on it every time he passes by the mantelpiece on which the picture rests.

Some runaway wives are so used to having their spineless husbands come sailing after them that they don't even have to consult the time tables to figure out the trains on which they'll arrive.

By the time a "good fellow" girl begins to notice that her men friends lift their hats to her in a perfunctory sort of way, as if they'd just as lief forget to lift 'em as not, she's beginning to be passee.

Some women's idea of cheering their husbands up after they've endured a hard wallop is to squeak: "Well, I told you you'd regret it if you didn't take my advice! now, didn't I? Answer me, didn't I?"

Why is it that the woman who, after spats, always is packing up to "leave" her husband "forever," infallibly begins the packing by wrapping the 98-cent kitchen clock in a Turkish towel and tossing it into her trunk?

Did you ever sit behind a woman at the theater who waited until the curtain was actually rising before she removed her hat, and who, after removing it, shot you a would-be withering look, so much as to say: "Well, I've staked you to a measly twenty minutes of stewing, haven't I?"

BEGGAR'S BAIT PROBLEM.

Is Is Wise for Mendicant to Leave Few or Many Pennies in Hat?

"One thing that I've never been able to settle in my mind to my own satisfaction," said a street beggar whose specialty is sitting on a step and holding out his hat to passersby, according to the Charleston (S. C.) News and Observer, "is the question of how many pennies it is wise to have in the hat for people to see as they go by. Of course, you understand, there are two theories in this; working on one, you leave there only a few, just three or four pennies scattered around irregularly but pretty far apart, and on the other you leave in the hat a lot of pennies.

"Of course the idea of the first plan is to make people when they see how little you've got want to chip in and help, and the idea of the other plan is to stir people up to generosity by showing them how generous others have been, and there's a heap to be said for that. There's lots of people that give because other people have, because they like to go with the crowd.

"I've tried both plans and had good days with a lean bait and bad days with a full bait in the hat, and then I've had good days with a full bait and bad days with a lean bait. All you can do is if one plan doesn't work well, try the other; you never can tell."

Not Expecting Too Much.

"I suppose your remarks in Congress will be listened to with great interest?"

"My friend," said the statesman, "in Congress a man is lucky to get a chance to make a speech without expecting people to listen to it."—Washington Star.

Had a Chance to Save Money.

"That man made a million dollars while he was in jail!" said a New York financier.

"Yes, but his case was one of the kind that does not require the expense of alienist testimony."—Washington Star.

WILL the development of aeroplaning bring about a new species of man—a bird man? This is a question which students of human science are asking, as they note the physical and mental peculiarities of those who have been most in the public eye in connection with the advancement of aviation in the field of heavier-than-air machines.

Phrenologists were the first to see the curious resemblance between the heads of the chief aeroplane inventors, and from this beginning there has grown a more extended inquiry into the reasons therefor. Then, there has been the incidental feature of the possible devlopment, in greater degree, of the same characteristics in others as aviation brings more and more students into its field.

It is possible, therefore, that there is an aeroplane head. While it may be easy to look upon it as a coincidence, nevertheless there are several reasons for thinking differently. The photographs of Curtiss, Beachey, Knabenshue, the Wrights, Farman, Bleriot, Santos-Dumont, De la Grange and others phrenologists declare to show certain qualities upon all their skulls without which they never would have attempted the problems which they have so nearly solved.

The essential feature found in all the aviators whose photographs have been examined phrenologically is a certain width above the eyebrows, which is designated as demonstrating by the study which has been made of the shape of the human head that this peculiar width has always been accompanied in its possessor by a balancing capacity, a steadiness of hand and muscular control and application of the laws of gravity, of motion and of momentum, and is exampled in power to keep the equilibrium while walking on high elevations, in riding a horse, skating, climbing, sailing, etc. In addition, it has its bearing on the judgment of weight, of resistance, of density, etc., while giddiness, staggering, liability to fall, seasickness, etc., have been attributed to a lack of this power—at least in considerable degree, or to its temporary disturbance.

All the aviators show the inventor's capacity. The faculty of marvelousness, as the phrenologist calls it, is distinguished in the width above and in front of the ears. In the individuals given as examples there are variations in the height of the head, but it is easily to be seen that though, in some instances, the head rises higher, it still has width in this particular locality.

To this quality of marvelousness the phrenologists attribute the imaginative and even inspirational moments which have led these inventors to think of the new things that have been made necessary in their efforts to conquer the upper air.

A third quality which is discoverable upon investigation of the heads of these conquerors of the air, is that of constructtve ability, which is responsible for their ability to carry out a conception once it has appealed to them. This quality is, of course, peculiar to inventors, and its evidence is closely allied in the shaping of the head to the evidence of the faculty of marvelousness.

That the world gradually will develop aeroplane heads as the work of the aviators bring navigation of the air closer to us, is the belief of students of human science, as indicated by the outward characteristics of the skull. Our brains, they declare, have already been considerably modified by the development of the inventions which have been applied to or used in everyday life, and the intense interest in the aeroplane is regarded as likely to have an even stronger bearing on the human faculties than any discovery or invention of the recent centuries. In human science it is accepted that the brain will develop much as the muscle does when demands are made upon it. Muscular exercise brings about an increase in power and in size which we all accept without question. The exercise of the brain along certain lines is regarded as positively having the same effect, though much more slow in making its effects apparent in the outward evidences.

That we shall become a race of man-birds is among the possibilities, and that it will have its effect on the physiognomy is even more certain than the accomplishment of air navigation, for in this we have the precedents of the past to go upon, while in the matter of aviation we can only guess at the future, despite the advancement which has been made.

There has been the bicycle face and the automobile face, but we must wait to determine just what the aeroplane face will be.

LIFE AND SONG.

If life were caught by a clarinet
And a wild heart, throbbing in the reed,
Should thrill its joy and trill its fret,
And utter its heart in every deed,

Then would this breathing clarinet
Type what the poet fain would be;
For none of the singers ever yet
Has wholly lived his minstrelsy.

Or clearly sung his true, true thought,
Or utterly bodied forth his life,
Or out of life and song has wrought
That perfect one of man and wife;

Or lived and sung, that Life and Song
Might each express the other's all
Careless if life or art were long,
Since both were one, to stand or fall

So that the wonder struck the crowd,
Who shouted about the land:
His song was only living aloud,
His work, a singing with his hand!
—Sidney Lanier.

AT HOME FROM TWO TILL FIVE

Claude Morrissey tramped the floor from the door to the window and back again. He was just as sadly off as a scapegrace can be, disinherited and in love.

The latter was the most discouraging of all, considering pretty Grace Collum knew all the bad things about him; Claude had been a reckless gambler in college, and Grace, just in long dresses, sided with his father and promptly turned her back on the luckless young man.

Claude, poor wretch, at the wrong moment showed spunk, and his father sent him packing.

New York swallowed him, his misdemeanors and loose change. He hunted for work; Allan Perry, a college chum, got him a small job on a big paper.

Presently Claude threw himself on his bed and picked up the morning's paper. The first item his glance found was this announcement: "Mrs. Collum, Miss Grace Collum at home to-day from 2 till 5."

Morrissey stared at the words with breathless interest.

"It is Grace; her aunt lives in New York, and Grace is staying here for the season."

Suddenly he sprang up and began pacing the floor again.

"I must see her," he moaned. "Oh, girlie! If you only knew how sorry I have been—if father could know—" Then he struck his hand fiercely across wet eyes.

But a smile came immediately afterwards, and the lad looked so handsome with the mirth in his gray eyes, that his good angel, taking pity, popped the idea of an escapade into his head which he at once seized upon.

At 2:30, dressed in afternoon togs, he stood on the steps of the Collum house and rang with outward calm.

The butler who opened the door, stared stolidly over his head while Claude reached for his cardcase and broke into a cold perspiration on not finding it. Just when despair swooped down upon him, Perry came up the steps.

They greeted, and as the butler still stood and stared indifferently, Perry said:

"I was sent to write this up; coming in?"

With a gulp Claude assented. In a short time they were shaking hands with their hostess. Claude, following Allan, pressed Mrs. Collum's hand, then the vibrant fingers of Grace.

Her conventional greeting sank to a whisper, and he clung to her hand till her low, distressed voice reached him: "Claude—please let my hand go!"

He did so, but stood where he could watch her till suddenly she was gone. Then he began a search for her, finding her at last pouring tea, and looking white and distrait.

He made his way to her side and leaned over:

"Grace," he exclaimed imploringly.

"Pray go!"

"Never!" he cried with emphasis. "Please come away somewhere; I must speak to you."

She hesitated, then beckoned one of her cousins to take her place and conducted him to the deserted morning room.

She faced him there, and spoke abruptly:

"You are a cruel son — you are breaking your father's heart. You don't know how old he has grown this last year."

Her voice was indignant.

"He drove me away."

"Who was to blame?"

After a long pause, he answered in a hoarse voice: "Myself."

Her cold face altered till it was all loveliness. "You have learned much, Claude; go back and tell him that."

They looked at one another till

I MUST SPEAK TO YOU.

something in his eyes made her turn for flight.

"Do you think he will take me back into his heart, Grace?" Claude stod before her.

"Yes," she breathed, her delicate flesh on fire.

"And you, Grace—will you?"

"Let me pass—please, Claude."

"Oh, girlie! if you knew the dreadful, sick months——" The agony in his voice overwhelmed her womanly timidity:

"And I, too, Claude—I have suffered," she whispered against his neck. —Des Moines News.

When a business man is shiftless, and doesn't get along, we have noticed that he often tries to lay the blame for failure on railroad rates.

Any discussion in which you are interested seems very trivial to you.

Science AND Invention

The slipping of carbons in arc lamps which the subjected to the jarring of buildings may be prevented by suspending the lamps from coil springs.

An English woman has patented a jeweled sunburst in which one set of rays is made to revolve over another by clock-work inserted in the setting.

Every building in Kobe, Japan, is thoroughly cleaned, both inside and out, twice a year, under the supervision of the city's sanitary authorities.

A device that turns the lamps of automobiles with the wheels, so as to illuminate the path when rounding curves, has been patented by an Ohio man.

European engineers are said to be very appreciative of the value of cement grouting for repairing defective masonry, lining wells, and for making tunnel roofs water-tight. In Germany a well polluted by infiltrations was put into satisfactory condition by lowering into it a sheet-iron drum, filling the space between the drum and the walls of the well with Portland cement, and withdrawing the drum after the cement had set. The damaged masonry of a tunnel was repaired by injecting liquid cement under pressure. Air at a pressure of seventy-eight pounds per square inch sufficed to force the cement into place.

A substitute for the kitchen range as a source of supply for hot water has recently been introduced in England. An iron block, cast round a coil of pipe, is heated by a small electric heater placed in a chamber in its center. Outside the block is a circular tank containing the water, which in its course through the coil is heated. The electric current for the heater comes from the regular house supply for lighting. As the apparatus stores considerable heat, it may be cut off when the current is required for light without seriously affecting the supply of hot water. On the other hand, the heaters may be permanently connected with the electric main, independent of the light current.

A great deal of admiration has been expressed for the feat of the veteran Italian balloonist, Captain Spelterini, who has again crossed the range of the Alps with his balloon, Sirius. On this occasion, early in August, he started from Chamouni with four companions, hoping to pass directly over Mont Blanc. But the wind bore the balloon eastward, across the Mer de Glace, round the Aiguille du Dru, over the Tour Noir, past the Zinal Rothorn, and by a sudden leap over the Weisshorn and above the valley of Zermatt. Then it passed over the gigantic Dom, skirted the towering Matterhorn, and descending on the Italian side, approached the Pizzo di Ruscada. Night was at hand and a storm approaching, so Captain Spelterini landed on the edge of a precipice, and the party, after passing the night on the mountain, made the best of their way down to Locarno. The balloon was saved.

So He Does.

"Do you believe that tough beef is as good for a person as tender beef?"

"Better. The man who gets tough gets both nourishment and exercise."

ENGLISH ROYAL LAUNDRY.

Linens Marked in Red Cotton with Initial of Royal Residence.

There is a very general belief that royal people never wear the same undergarments twice, but this is a simple fiction, for on the borders of Richmond park is situated the building in which all the royal clothes are laundered, Vogue says. The entrance to this building is protected by a lodge, and there is a close guard kept on the door, and no visitors are allowed except by special permit, which is not often given. The building is very interesting inside. Along the sides of the passages are huge, well-aired cupboards, in which are tons of soap of different kinds, with chests of soda and carbonate of soda below.

The ordinary household linen, such as tablecloths, napkins, doilies, curtains, etc., as well as towels, sheets and pillow slips, arrive in huge baskets and are taken out, sorted and compared with the lists sent from the various royal households. The personal linen arrives in wooden boxes, and is sorted in a special room. Each box has a brass plate, bearing the owner's name, as well as a number. The machinery is of the most perfect kind, and any improvements are adopted at once. All the work is conducted with the regularity of clock work, and extreme cleanliness and order are apparent everywhere.

The clothes, when washed, are placed in heaps, each pile representing those belonging to the various royal residences. Most of the linen is marked in red cotton with the initials of the royal residence, "B. P.," "O. H." or "B. C.," meaning Buckingham palace, Osborne House and Balmoral castle. Above these letters are the initials "V. R. P."

The linen is of the finest and best make, and the table linen is of beautiful patterns, formed by the queen's monogram, intertwined with emblematical designs of the rose, shamrock and thistle. Royal underlinen is beautifully made, and of the finest materials, trimmed with real lace. Some of the lace on the younger princesses' petticoats is almost priceless. There are little ribbons run about necks and sleeves of the garments, and they are very French-like altogether. The royal laundry bill for a year is $275,000.

SHORT METER SERMONS.

The man who uses his Bible as he should, learns to use his ballot as he should.—Rev. C. C. Pierce, Baptist, Los Angeles.

Impossible ideals make for lawlessness rather than for righteousness and the betterment of life.—Rev. H. Martin, Disciple, Brooklyn.

In this day of crime God is looking for men and women who will stand out for Him.—Rev. J. O. Boswell, Evangelist, Pawtucket, R. I.

One of the most vital questions in present-day politics is that of obedience to laws of the commonwealth.—Rev. M. B. Williams, Methodist, Chicago.

All sins begin by doubting God and it always begins in a small way. Men go to the depths in a bound.—Rev. J. W. Chapman, Evangelist, Hartford.

What is it that really is heart's desire? It is friendship, approval, love; it is success, satisfaction, gladness of soul.—Rev. Dr. Leete, Episcopalian, Detroit.

Better than stone buildings to take care of prisoners are decent abodes for children, that they may be kept out of prison.—Rev. L. M. Zimmerman, Lutheran, Baltimore.

If we compare every Christian with the Mohammedans or other heathen religions it does not always result with credit to the Christian.—Rev. Earl Cranston, Methodist, Washington.

As a Christian nation, we pray for peace and we labor for peace, but it is no indication that a nation has lost its Christianity when it goes to war. —Rev. Charles E. Craik, Episcopalian, Louisville.

That religion which causes a person to lose all interest in the movements of this world and causes him to pine for heaven is too selfish and too narrow.—Rev. J. H. Vincent, Methodist, Indianapolis.

The gift of Christ is the only adequate measure of God's love. The world contains many things to bless man, but we cannot judge from what we see about us the measure of God's love.—Rev. D. R. Rankin, Presbyterian, Denver.

Bring your justice and your mercy and your love so close to sinning, ignorant, suffering humanity that they will come to believe in these first and then in the God whence they came.—Rev. A. G. Singsen, Methodist, Providence.

We must obey the powers that God has ordained. Each nation has its particular work to do—the same as an individual. Kingdoms have gone down, but each has taught the world some lesson.—Rev. R. C. Kauffman, Lutheran, Aurora.

A True Philosopher.

"I wish I were eligible to join one of these patriotic sons of something."

"Too bad you're not."

"Still, if my ancestors hadn't always taken to the woods in time of warfare. I might not be here."—Washington Herald.

Weeding Out the Dead Material.

"We talk about reviving the sport of the arena in our town."

"Indeed."

"Sure. Some day we are going to herd all of our mossbacked near citizens together and have a grand killing."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Sauce Without the Supper.

Ragsen Tatters—Dere ain't any doubt but hunger is de best cure.

Fringey Dudds—Dat's so, but we hain't got anything ter go with it.—Boston Transcript.

YOUNG GIRLS OF TO-DAY

Rules of Guidance Far Less Stringent than They Were a Generation Ago.

OUR ETIQUETTE IS CHANGING

Dining with Young Men, Shopping and Attending Bachelors' Entertainments Unchaperoned.

With possible dissent from a few conservatives it seems to be understood that young American women moving in good society have now more freedom in their association with the other sex than did their mothers, and one of these mothers in commenting on the set of rules drawn up by educators for the young women of Japan governing their relations with the male sex remarked that they were not unlike the rules governing the conduct under similar circumstances of any well brought up American girl, says a writer in the New York Sun.

"It may have been that way once," said her friend. "Present-day rules are far less prohibitory. Take for instance that cautioning against communicating directly with a man and advising 'Don't open yourselves letters which you have received from a stranger.' I remember quite well when in any well-regulated New York family a young daughter was expected to show a letter received from a young man to her mother or chaperon at once, and it was quite correct for mothers to open their young daughters' letters.

Wouldn't Open Daughter's Letters.

"Were I to open my daughter's letters she would be simply furious, I admit, and I should consider it a great bore to be obliged to read all the notes she gets from young men," said the woman who had first spoken. "At Newport last summer occasionally I would find my daughter absent on a motor or a yachting party with intimate friends or off to play tennis or look at a ball game without saying as much as 'by your leave,' and in every case it was all right. Naturally there were young men in the party or young men joined the party, but invariably married women chaperons were included, so I saw no particular reason why I should have been consulted.

"An introduction to a young man at an entertainment in a private house is considered a guaranty that he is a proper person to know. Calling therefore some morning thereafter on a young woman and asking her to go to the tennis courts or golf links for a game, the young woman, if she pleases, consents without consulting a chaperon.

"There has been a noticeable relaxing in recent years, it is said, of the once stringent rule against two young persons of opposite sex driving together without a chaperon—a rule which at one time applied even to engaged couples. The actions of a popular young daughter of a certain exceedingly gay and popular matron of Newport and other resorts had something to do with it. The girl, in her dubutante year and months before her engagement to one of the wealthiest young men in the country was announced really shocked some of her mother's friends by flying past in the young man's dogcart or runabout, the two laughing like children and evidently enjoying themselves hugely.

Bachelor's Entertainments.

"A generation ago there was no need for rules relating to visiting bachelor quarters, for the reason that few bachelors then entertained in quarters equipped with tea table and other studio appurtenances, whereas now bachelors' entertainments are considered among the pleasantest in the summer program. It goes without saying that these affairs are always chaperoned, even if the chaperons are more apt to be very young than very old matrons. In this respect some of us mothers see room for improvement."

Small Families in France.

The recent census of France discloses some curious information concerning the decrease of population in that country, and gives the number of children in the household as follows:

Total number of families	11,315,000
Without children	1,304,720
With one child	2,966,171
With two children	2,661,978
With three children	1,613,425
With four children	987,392
With five children	566,768
With six children	327,241
With seven children	182,998
With eight children	94,729
With nine children	44,723
With ten children	20,639
With eleven children	8,305
With twelve children	3,508
With thirteen children	1,437
With fourteen children	553
With fifteen children	249
With sixteen children	79
With seventeen children	34
With eighteen children	45

There are 19,533,899 women and girls and 18,816,389 men and boys in France, making an excess of 717,510 women and girls. There were about 45,000 less births than deaths in France during the last year.

Difference in Time.

When it is noon at any given place it is similarly noon at all other points having the same longitudinal meridian, and the sun is in its zenith where meridian and equator intersect.

For business convenience every fifteen degrees of longitude evenly divided from Greenwich has the same time, being the distance that the earth travels in one hour. In the United States we have eastern, central, mountain and Pacific time. Thus when it is noon at New York it is 11 a. m. at Chicago, central time; 10 a. m. at Denver, mountain time, and 9 a. m. at San Francisco, Pacific time.—New York American.

When a man expresses his real sentiments on any subject he does not wish to be quoted.

THE WAVERLY HOTEL

CLYDE OBERLIN, Prop.

Warm Meals and Lunch served at all hours, day or night.

Fine line of Candies, Cigars and Tobacco.

East Side Broadway

Dr. Harrison

PHYSICIAN and SURGEON.

BUTLER, - IND.

Dr. Bulson

OFFICE AND RESIDENCE 219 WEST WAYNE STREET

FORT WAYNE.

PRACTICE LIMITED TO DISEASES OF THE EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT

GLASSES ADJUSTED.

E. B. DUNTEN,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.

Prompt, Careful and Efficient Attention given to All Legal Business.

Office over Phillips drug store, Butler.

BEECHLER & SON,

DENTISTS.

CROWN AND BRIDGE WORK

Plates and all Dental Surgery given prompt attention. Office over Shapland's store. Sunday 9:30 to 12 o'clock

BUTLER, INDIANA.

FRANK A. BRINK

Attorney-at-Law

Notary Public.

Special Attention Given to Collections

Dr. W. F. Shumaker

Special Attention Given to Chronic Diseases

OFFICE HOURS

7 to 8 a. m. 1 to 3 p. m.

7 to 8 p. m.

5 DROPS

TRADE MARK

THE STANDARD REMEDY FOR ALL FORMS OF

RHEUMATISM

LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, NEURALGIA, KIDNEY TROUBLES, CATARRH, ASTHMA and KINDRED DISEASES

GIVES QUICK RELIEF

Applied externally it affords almost instant relief from pain, while permanent results are being effected by taking it internally, purifying the blood, dissolving the poisonous substance and removing it from the system.

DR. C. L. GATES

Hancock, Minn., writes:

"A little girl here had such a weak back caused by Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble that she could not stand on her feet. The moment they put her down on the floor she would scream with pains. I treated her with "5-DROPS" and today she runs around as well and happy as can be. I prescribe "5-DROPS" for my patients and use it in my practice."

TEST "5-DROPS" FREE

If you are suffering with Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble or any kindred disease, write to us for a trial bottle of "5-DROPS." "5-DROPS" is entirely free from opium, cocaine, morphine, alcohol, laudanum and other similar ingredients.

Large Size Bottle "5-DROPS" (300 Doses) $1.00. For Sale by Druggists.

SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE COMPANY

Dept. 80. 174 Lake Street, Chicago

He Hustled.
He Advertised.

He put himself and his business before the people, and is now reaping his reward. If you desire to reach the buying classes you must patronize the newspaper that is widely circulated. ... You take no chances when you advertise in

This Paper.

JANUARY

0436

L1134

The Redemption of David Corson

By CHARLES FREDERIC GOSS

Copyright, 1900, by The Bowen-Merrill Company. All Rights Reserved

CHAPTER XX.

The steamer on which Corson embarked after his overland journey from New York City to Pittsburg, had descended the Ohio almost as far as Cincinnati, before other thoughts than those which were concerned with Pepeeta and his spiritual regeneration could awaken any interest in his mind. But as the boat approached Cincinnati, the places, the persons and the incidents of his childhood world began to present themselves to his consciousness. An irrepressible longing to look once more upon the place of his birth and the friends of his youth took possession of his mind.

He found, on inquiry, that the boat was to remain in Cincinnati for several hours, and that there would be time enough for him to make the journey to his old home and back before she proceeded down the river. He decided to do so, and observed with satisfaction that those painful gropings for the next stepping stone across the streams of action which had been so persistent and painful a feature of his recent life had given place to the swift intuitions of his youth. He saw his way as he used to when a boy, and made his decisions rapidly and executed them fearlessly. The discovery of this fact gave a new zest and hope to life.

In a few moments after he had landed at the familiar wharf he was mounted upon a fleet horse, rushing away over those beautiful rolling hills which fill the mind of the traveler with unclouying delight in their variety, their fertility and their beauty. It was the first time since he had left the farm that his mind had been free enough from passion or pain to bestow its full attention upon the charms of Nature; they dawned on him now like a new discovery. The motion of the horse—so long unfamiliar, so easy, so graceful, so rhythmical—seemed of itself to key his spirits to his environment, for it is an elemental pleasure to be seated in the saddle and feel the thrill of power and rapid motion. The rider's eyes brightened, his cheeks glowed, his pulses bounded. He gathered up the beauties of the world around him in great sheaves of delicious and thrilling sensations. Long-forgotten odors came sweeping across the fields, rich with the verdure of the vernal season, and brought with them precious accompaniments of the almost-forgotten past. The rich and varied colors of field and sky and forest fed his starved soul with one kind of beauty; and the sweet sounds of the outdoor world intoxicated him with another. The low of cattle, the bleating of sheep, the crowing of chanticleers, the cackling of hens, the gobble of turkeys, the multiduninous songs of the birds enveloped him in a sort of musical atmosphere. For the first time since his restoration to hope, the past seemed like a dream, and these few blissful moments became a prophecy of a new and grander life. "For, if the burden can fall off for a single moment why not for many moments?" So he said to himself, as the consciousness of his past misery and his unknown future thrust their disturbing faces into the midst of these blissful emotions.

The route which he had chosen did not lead to the farm house, but to the cemetery where the body of his mother lay wrapped in her dreamless sleep; that neglected grave was drawing him to itself with a magnetic force. He who, for a year, had thought of her scarcely at all, now thought of nothing else. The last incident in her life, the face white with its intolerable pain of confession, the gasp for breath, the sudden fall, the quiet funeral, his own responsibility for this tragic death—he lived it all over and over again in an instant of time as grief, regret, remorse, successively swept his heart. Tying his horse outside the lonely burying ground, he threaded his way among the myrtle-covered graves to the low mound which marked her resting place, approached it, removed his hat and stood silently, reverently, by its side.

There come to us all hours or moments of sudden and unexpected disclosures of the hidden meaning of life. Such an one came to David, there by that lowly grave. He saw, as in the light of eternity, the grandeur and beauty of that character which the story of her sin and suffering had made him, in his immaturity, misinterpret and despise! He did not comprehend that tragic story when she told it; it was impossible that he should, for he had no knowledge or experience adequate to furnish him the clew.

As he stood there by her grave, measuring this deep and tragic experience with his new dividing rod of sympathy, there rushed upon him an overmastering desire to reveal his appreciation to that suffering heart beyond the skies. A feeling of bitterness at his inability to do this frenzied him; a new consciousness of the irony of life in permitting him to make these discoveries when they could do her no good plunged him suddenly into a struggle with the darker problems of being which for a little while had ceased to vex him.

"Do all the appreciations of heroism come too late?" he asked his sad heart. "Do we acquire wisdom only when we can no longer be guided by it? Do we achieve self-mastery and real virtue only to be despised by our children? Where is the clue to this tangle? Oh! mother, mother, if I could only have one single hour to ask thee what thou didst learn about this awful mystery in those lonely years of struggle! If I could only tell thee of my penitence, of my admiration, my love! But it is too late—too late."

With this despairing cry on his lips, he flung himself upon the grave, buried his face in the green turf and burst into a convulsive passion of tears, such tears as come once or twice, perhaps, in the lives of most men, when they are passing through the awful years of adjustment to the incomprehensible and apparently chaotic experiences of existence.

Like a thunderstorm, these convulsions clear the atmosphere and give relief to the strained tension of the soul. At length, when his emotion had spent itself in long-drawn sighs, David rose in a calm and tender frame of mind, plucked a bunch of violets from the grave and reluctantly turned away.

On foot, and leading his horse, he entered a quiet and secluded path which led past the rear of the farm. He had not consciously determined what he should do next; but his heart impelled him irresistibly toward that little bridge where he had encountered Pepeeta on his return from the lumber camp. It was at that place and that hour, perhaps, that he had passed through the deepest experience of his whole life, for it was there that the full power of the beauty of the woman in whom he had met his destiny had burst upon him, and it was there that for the first time he had consciously surrendered himself to those rich emotions which love enkindles in the soul.

He threw the horse's bridle over the limb of a tree, leaned over the handrail of the bridge and looked down into the water. The stillness of the world, the slumber-song of the stream, the haunting power of the past superinduced a mood of abstraction so common in other, happier days.

Oblivious to all the objects and events of that outside world, he stood there dreaming of the past. While he did so, Pepeeta, following her daily custom, left the farm-house to take an evening walk. She also sought the little bridge. Perhaps she was summoned to this spot by some telepathic message from her lover; perhaps it was habit that impelled her, perhaps it was some fascination in the place itself. She moved forward with the quiet step peculiar to natures which are sensitive to the charm of the great solitudes of the world, and came noiselessly out from the low buses behind the lonely watcher. As she stepped out into the road, she caught sight of the solitary figure and her heart, anticipating her eye in its swift recognition, throbbed so violently that she placed her hand on her bosom as if to still it.

"David!" she said, in a low whisper.

She paused to observe him for a moment and, as he did not stir, began to move quietly towards him as he stood there motionless—a silhouette against the background of the darkening sky. She drew near enough to touch him; but so profound was his reverie that he was oblivious of her presence. It could not have been long that Pepeeta waited, although it seemed ages before he moved, sighed and breathed her name.

She touched him on the arm. He turned, and so met her there, face to face.

It was an experience too deep for language, and their emotions found expression in a single simple act. They clasped each other's hands and stood silently looking into each other's eyes. After many moments of silence David asked: "Why do you not speak to me, Pepeeta?"

"My eyes have told you all," she said.

"But what they say is too good to be believed! You must confirm their mute utterance with a living word," he cried.

"I love you, love you, love you," she replied.

"You love me! I bless you for it, Pepeeta, but there is something else that I must know."

"What can it be? Is not everything comprehended in that single word? It is all-embracing as the air! It enfolds life as the sky enfolds the world!"

"Ah! Pepeeta, you loved me when we parted, but you did not forgive me!"

She dropped her eyes.

"Have you forgiven me now?"

"It is not true that I did not forgive you," she replied, looking up at his face again. "There has never been in my heart for a single moment any sense of a wrong which I could not pardon. It has been one of the awful mysteries of this experience that I could not feel that wrong! When I tried to feel it most, my heart would say to me, 'you are not sorry that he loved you, Pepeeta! You would rather that all this agony should have befallen you than that he should not have loved you at all!' It is this feeling that has bewildered me, David. Explain it to me. Let me know how I could have such feelings in my heart and yet be good. It seems as if I ought to hate you; but I cannot. I love you, love you, love you."

"But, Pepeeta, if you loved me, why did you leave me? I do not comprehend. How could you let me stand in the darkness under your window and then turn away from it into the awful blackness and solitude to which I fled?"

"Do not reproach me, I thought it was my duty, David."

"I do not reproach you. I only want to know your inmost heart."

"I do not know! There has been all the time something stronger than myself impelling me. I grew too weak to reason. I felt that the heart had reasons of its own, too deep for the mind to fathom, and I yielded to them. I was only a woman after all, David. Love is stronger than woman! Oh! it was I who wronged you. I ought not to have forsaken you. Ought I? I do not know, even now. Who can tell me what is right? Who can lead me out of this frightful labyrinth? If I did wrong in seeking you, I humbly ask the pardon of God, and if I did wrong in abandoning you, I ask forgiveness in all lowliness and meekness from the man I wronged."

"No, Pepeeta, you have never wronged me; I alone have been to blame. The result could not have been really different, no matter what course you took. The scourge would have fallen anyway! All that has happened has been inevitable. Justice had to be vindicated. If it had not come in one way, it would in another, for there are no short cuts and evasions in tragedies like this! Every result that is attached to these causes must be drawn up by them like the links in a chain, and one never knows when the end has come."

His solemn manner and earnest words alarmed Pepeeta.

"Oh, David," she cried, "it cannot, cannot be so awful. Such consequences cannot hang upon the deeds we commit in the limitations and ignorance of this earthly life."

"Forgive me, Pepeeta, I should not talk so. These are the fears of my darker moments. I have brighter hopes and thoughts. There is a quiet feeling in my heart about the future that grows with the passing days. God is good, and he will give us strength to meet whatever comes. We must live, and while we live we will hope for the best. Life is a gift, and it is our duty to enjoy it."

"Oh! it is good to hear you say that! It comforts me. I think it cannot be possible that we should not be able to escape from this darkness if we are willing to follow the divine light."

"I think so, too," he said.

His words were spoken with such assurance as to awaken a vague surprise that he had reasons which he had not told. She pressed his hands and besought him to explain.

"Oh! tell me," she said, eagerly; "is there anything new? Has anything happened?"

"Pepeeta," he answered, slowly, "we have been strangely and kindly dealt with. It is not quite so bad as it seemed, for I did not kill him."

"You did not kill him! What do you mean?"

"No, it is a strange story! I thought I had killed him. I knew murder was in my heart. It was no fault of mine that the blow was not fatal. I left him in the road for dead. But, thank God, he did not die; he did not die then!"

"He did not die then? Have you seen him? Is he dead now? Tell me! Tell me!"

(To be continued.)

IT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE.

Plenty of Plagiarisms Quite as Bad as That of Kitchener.

They are telling a tale on Lord Kitchener of how his speech, when he bade farewell to India, was practically a repetition of the address of Lord Curzon on a similar occasion, two or three years ago, and what would add to the embarrassment of the circumstances is the notorious fact of the bad understanding between the two when they divided authority as rulers of the most populous and possibly the most extensive of all the British possessions.

Something like it occurred in our country the first half of the last century, the Washington Post says. John White, a member from Kentucky, was the speaker of the Twenty-seventh Congress. He was from the mountain section of the state, proud and sensitive, and got to be speaker because he was the follower and protege of Henry Clay.

It was a very stormy congress, owing to the quarrels between the President and the two houses, and the speaker was a very busy man the closing hours of the last session. When he returned thanks for the accustomed resolutions commendatory of his official conduct, it was a beautiful speech he made, but it subsequently developed that it was verbatim the address Aaron Burr had delivered in the Senate in 1805 upon retiring from the vice-presidency and the most stately, as well as the most beautiful address an American presiding officer ever delivered himself of.

White explained that a friend "prepared" his address and that he was totally ignorant of its origin. Nevertheless he took his own life not long afterward. It is pretty safe to conclude that Kichener the grim soldier, is of more callous fiber.

When it was found out that John J. Ingalls' eulogy of Representative Burns of Missouri was taken from the funeral oration pronounced by Massillon on that son of France who was the Telemachus of Fenelon's immortal work, the brilliant senator from Kansas said not a word, but only shrugged his shoulders and twinkled his eyes.

It affords food for speculation if Fenelon's pupil had survived to succeed Louis XIV. on the throne of France and had reigned a score of years. It is safe to say the crown would have reformed the administration and its wearer been the king of his people as well as of his nobles. Had that occurred there would have been no revolution, no terror, no empire. Mirabeau, Danton and Robespierre would not have been prominent. Neither would Napoleon Bonaparte.

But God doesn't make such folks as they without providing them with a job. Hence He took the French Telemachus to Himself.

State of the Case.

"But," said the impecunious foreign fortune hunter, "my dear Miss Goldilocks, why should you prefer another to me? I am a man of titles."

"So is your preferred rival," smiled the lady.

"He is nothing but a plain American commoner!" sneered the nobleman.

"Indeed, he is a man of titles, too," returned the heiress. "And my father has had all his titles examined by a competent trust company. Your titles are but words; his are deeds, and to some of the best property in the state."—Baltimore American.

Unwholesome.

Medicine Man—What is the matter with your majesty?

Cannibal King—Oh, I've an awful indigestion!

Medicine Man—What have you been eating?

Cannibal King—I have just polished off an American millionaire.

Medicine Man—Good heavens! No wonder you are ill! I've told you repeatedly to beware of anything rich.—London Tit-Bits.

Saved His Life.

"I saved a beggar's life yesterday."

"How?"

"I asked him what he'd do if I gave him a sovereign. 'Good Lor'! he said, 'I should drop down dead.' So I put the sovereign back into my pocket."—London Mail.

They Were Shady.

Bung—So you have succeeded in tracing back my ancesors? What is your fee?

Genealogist — Twenty guineas for keeping quiet about them.—Cassell's Saturday Journal.

It is by patience and self-control that the truly heroic character is perfected.—S. Smiles.

WOMEN AND FASHION

Self-Reliant Women.

Being able to meet an emergency in life, no matter what it may be, is a form of self-reliance that every woman should train and develop herself for. It expresses itself in an ability to make quick decisions, and, having done that, acting without doubt and hesitation, straining at every point to justify the action by bringing it to a successful finish.

More than half the women in the world fail, not only in important but trivial things, because they are afraid. Necessity in some form obliges them to make a decision. Of their obligation to do this they have no doubt, but as there is always the possibility of another way being better then that decided upon, they waver, go ahead halfheartedly, and, in the second, either fail entirely or achieve only partial success, because they lack self-reliance. They are not sure of themselves, either of their ability or wisdom, and neither is strengthened.

Doubt, after a positive step in any direction has been taken, is weakening. Nothing is gained, in fact, either in work or in daily domestic routine, without effort. If a woman tries to make a cake, and, during the mixing, part of her mind is occupied with wondering if it would have been better to have used another recipe, the chances are against her turning out as good a cake as it would have been had all her mind been concentrated upon the work in hand, when materials would have been more accurately measured, and strength of conviction would have lent more power to her arm to beat the mixture well.

Knitted Coats.

Among the economical garments for school wear are the popular knitted Norfolk jacket and reefer. They are offered by all tailors, but mothers at a distance who have the time to knit may readily make them at home. Girls of all ages wear such coats in gray, white, scarlet, green or the brown shades. Some are handsomely bound with black satin and closed with crocheted buttons. The yarns that are necessary for knitting them come in all the standard and fashionable shades. Some, however, are double-breasted. They all have roomy sleeves and turnover collars, that may, upon occasion, be turned up around the neck. Knitted coats of this are worn over kilt skirts and plain blouse waists.—Harper's Bazar.

New Tailor-Made Design.

Tailor-made costume of brown cloth. The jacket is very long, and ends in points at the sides. There are large buttons in front and on the sides. The revers are braided, and the collar is of black velvet. The hat is of felt, and is raised on one side.

Work for Women of Leisure.

Miss Jean Hamilton, secretary of the League of Women Workers, an organization representing 11,000 members in five states, says that the situation of working girls is harder than ever, and that the working girls' clubs are simply starving for leaders. In the crowed factory districts of cities the dance hall offers a great attraction to the girl who has worked hard all day in a close room and has no place in which to entertain company at night. The desire for such amusement is perfectly legitimate, and it only remains for those who have the leisure and the money to see that these places are not objectionable or to offer something that is equivalent.

Buttoning Backwards.

A contemporary starts the question, "Why do women's buttons always fasten backwards?" and considers that there must be some good reason for violating "the rule of correct buttoning." It seems that the man's way is really the backward way, dragging the hole from left to right, instead of bringing it over easily in the right hand. There is, perhaps, some reason connected with access to the breast pocket which influences the man's method, and it is likely that the difference in size and strength between a man's and a woman's fingers has tended to decide the matter, the method which suits one being inconvenient to the other.

The cradle is an out-of-date piece of furniture which should be consigned to the attic. It is not good for a child to be rocked. From the very first a child should be left to go to sleep by itself and not carried in the arms. It becomes accustomed to whatever is done for it, and goes to sleep more easily and quickly if this method is adopted. If it cries it should not be taken up, for it will not be long before it will demand such an attention if it is once begun. If a child cries, one should ascertain if there is a cause. A child does not cry for nothing. A pin may be sticking into it; its clothing may not be right; it may need a drink of water. It should not be forgotten that young babies, notwithstanding their liquid diet, need to have water as well, but when you have found that all is right with the child it should then be left to go to sleep, as it will do. A baby should not have soothing syrups, and, indeed, very little if any medicine. Do not get in the habit of dosing the baby. An infant often cries from hunger or colic. Be sure that the baby's nourishment is right.

NEW FASHIONS IN HATS.

Here are three of the most graceful models of the day. The first one is a plain turban of silk beaver trimmed at the left with two small ostrich feathers and tiny silk cross. The large hat is of black velvet trimmed with colored plumes to match the gown, which is a late French innovation. Medium-sized feather trimmed hats with turned-up brims faced with shirred silk are very popular with young matrons.

Health and Beauty Hints.

If your heart is weak, do not indulge in showers, and be careful to temper the water, no matter how strong the heart.

Cold water dashed on the face and chest in the morning gives the same tonic effect as a cold plunge in the morning without the shock.

A simple remedy for burns is made by adding to a cupful of olive oil a teaspoonful of carbolic acid. Apply bandages soaked in the mixture.

Relaxation is the secret of taking the mental, moral and physical kinks out of one's system. It will take all the unsightly lines from your face and prevent new ones from forming.

Drinking with meals greatly dilutes the saliva, making mastication all the more difficult; besides, in this way the contents are easily softened and washed down before properly chewed.

To take disagreeeable medicine eat one or two cloves or hold ice in the mouth until the tongue is chilled and the medicine will be less disagreeable. Medicines that discolor the teeth may be taken through soda straws.

Stout people should limit the amount of potatoes and sugar they eat, as these articles of food favor the deposit of fat underneath the skin. Dry toast, lean meat, stewed fruit and fish are suitable foods in treating obesity, and rich, fat, sweet and greasy dishes ought to be avoided.

Mrs. C. C. Kennedy has been appointed probation officer of the New Orleans juvenile court.

The Wesleyan conference of England recently passed by a large majority a motion to admit women as lay delegates.

There are three women among the nominees for the next Norwegian parliament. One was chosen by the Liberals and two by the Socialists.

Miss Ivy E. Woodward has been admitted to full membership in the Royal College of Physicians of London. This is the first time that the coveted M. R. C. P. has been conferred upon a woman.

Mrs. Howard Van Wyck, after an absence of several years, has returned to Milwaukee as special assistant secretary of the Associated Charities.

Miss Alice Fischer traveled all the way from New York to Cheyenne, Wyo., to cast her vote in the recent elections. The trip cost in the neighborhood of $200.

Mrs. Martin J. Wessels of Spokane, Wash., is said to be one of the few artists, if not the only one, whose work is devoted exclusively to pictures of grain.

Miss Stella Josephine Feiler of Harris county, Texas, lately received a fee said to amount to $150,000 from ten land owners upon whose property she located two productive oil wells.

Toiling at the windlass in her brother's clothes is the experience of Miss Laura White of San Francisco, now a wealthy mine owner in Nevada. She discovered the vein and worked it herself.

Queer Feminine Ideas.

Many Japanese women gild their teeth. Women of Arabia stain their fingers and toes red. In Greenland women paint their faces blue and yellow. In India the women of high caste paint their teeth black. A Hindoo bride is anointed from head to foot with grease and saffron. Borneo women dye their hair in fantastic colors—pink, green, blue and scarlet. In New Holland scars, made carefully with shells, form elaborate patterns on the women's faces. In some South American tribes the women draw the front teeth, esteeming as an ornament the black gap thus made.

Jauntiness in Millinery.

The meek mushroom has been entirely superseded by turned up shapes, but these new hats come so far down over the head all around before the upward trend of the brim begins that they are usually very becoming. This Henry IV hat is of silk, faced with velvet and banded with dark fur edged by a quilling of the silk. The side trimming consists of aigrettes and a pair of new mercury wings. Silk, velvet and fur are in brown tones, the wings are coral colored and the aigrettes black.

To Wash Blankets.

Put to boil a large boiler of water, into which you have placed a cake of pure soap cut into small pieces. Pour the water into a tub and let it stand till lukewarm, then add a tablespoonful of ammonia. Put the blankets into the water, and with a stick turn them over and over. Do not rub them. If very much soiled, use a second tub of water prepared in the same way. Fold smooth by passing through a wringer and put into shape; then hang in the sun to dry.

Too Much.

Continuing to rummage, the burglar discovered the following bills: Groceries, $88; life insurance, $102.15; dry goods, $44.85; coal, $92; milk, $12.30; dressmaker, $78; tailor, $56; gas, $7.20; milliner, $25; miscellaneous, $72.60.

Sighing heavily, he disgorged the silver and jewelry.

"This house has trouble enough," he said, tip-toeing out.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Small Souled Person.

You can always take a person's measure by the way in which little annoyances and petty vexations affect them. If they exaggerate them, talk a great deal about them, spend valuable time fussing over them, you know they are not big-souled people.

Memories of the War

The Terrible Draft Riot of 1863.

It very nearly happened to me that I was opposed to the furious, desperate, drunken mob in the streets of New York in July, 1863, with a small body of crippled and sick, but very ready veterans from the front. No soldier would court any such situation; any good soldier of that time, I trust, would have done his whole duty had he been put forward in that crisis. I trust that I and my forty-seven soldiers from the Department of the Gulf would not have shamed our comrades, had we been put in to fight against that hell of furious resistance to law, of arson, murder and robbery that raged through the great city for almost a week after July 11, 1863. That is all I have a right to say.

I was taken from a New Orleans hospital with these forty-seven, all sick or wounded from Port Hudson, as the best squad General Emery could get in those perilous days when he had less than two thousand men under his command to defend the city, and sent up to Fortress Monroe on a steamer in charge of five hundred Confederate prisoners. Having delivered them there, we went on to New York for transportation back, and started on our return July 8th; I believe that was the exact date. The interval of three days was spent on Governor's Island. I had two opportunities to go over to the city, and improved them. I knew that the draft was about to be enforced, and I took some pains to talk with those I met about it. I heard very little said on the subject. I saw no indications of armed resistance, or any resistance. I had occasion to go to the headquarters of General Wool, who commanded there, and to get an order for our transportation back to New Orleans signed by the General personally. But I heard no whisper of fear of any rising of the mob, or resistance to the draft. Nobody seemed to realize that the fires of a lurid volcano were slumbering there, ready to burst out in blood and destruction at the signal.

Had our departure been delayed three days, I know we should have been ordered over to the city, to face that howling, devilish mob somewhere. There were no troops in the city then; there was only a scant guard in the forts. Everything was called in that could avail in that awful crisis, until a brigade of the Army of the Potomac could be hurried up to the rescue, and it was then known that New York was safe. During that memorable week there was a carnival of blood in the Empire City, beginning in organized resistance to the draft and destruction of its headquarters, extending to the murder of negroes and the burning of colored orphan asylums, and then, gathering in passion and ungovernable fury and drunkenness, swelling to the pillage and arson of buildings indiscriminately, and blind killing for the sake of blood.

It was a hideous time! People who then lived in New York and survived it, and yet survive it, look back at it as they would on a nightmare.

For days the heroic police performed miracles of valor. They charged the roaring mob everywhere, and without hesitation, never failing to drive it back when they came in direct contact with it, no matter how great the odds.

Marines from the government ships that happened to be in the harbor, and a few regulars from the forts, came over and rendered veteran service.

The employes of great establishments, public and private, including the large newspaper offices and the Sub-Treasury building in Wall street, were armed and held in readiness, day and night, to repel attacks. Many of these had boiling water constantly ready, and hose with which to throw it on the mob.

It was about the 18th of July that I rejoined my brigade west of the Mississippi. Accounts of the riot had already reached New Orleans through Confederate sources, and the New Orleans papers published them in detail. I read them in amazement. It seemed next to impossible that the great metropolis which I had left only ten days before so quiet and peaceful could thus suddenly have burst forth in riot and crime.

Men have attempted to write histories of those seven horrible days in New York. The field may be gleaned, some aproximation to the truth may be reached, but the whole truth never can be known. It was a saturnalia of horrors, the reign of the worst elements, in which the crimes can not even be numbered. Many of them were never known.

Rev. Morgan Dix, in his memoirs of his father, the distinguished General and Governor, says that the lowest estimates place the number of rioters killed by the police and soldiers at twelve hundred, and the wounded at five times that number. Think of it! A first class battle raging for a week in the streets of New York, with a perfect holocaust of fire and robbery!

No man may know the long list of innocent victims of this mad brutality. They numbered thousands. I have been told by those who know that hundreds of school children left home for school in those days and never returned.

When the riot was at last stamped out, another reckoning came. Dozens of the ringleaders were arrested, convicted and sentenced to state prison with merciless severity by Recorder (afterwards Governor) John T. Hoffman. And the city, being liable by a state law for the acts of rioters affecting private property, was compelled to pay millions of dollars for that week's work.

As a specimen of the treatment that the fiendish mob had at the hands of the soldiers, where they could reach them, I cite a brief story of a volunteer artillery officer to me in Louisiana the next winter.

"I was in New York, recruiting, and took two field pieces and men to work them into one of the lower streets. I loaded up with canister. The mob came howling down, thousands strong. 'Men,' I said, 'we must kill those fellows. Depress the pieces a little more—fire!' By George, that crowd was lifted into the air! We tore great gaps through it; we strewed the street with their carcasses. They didn't come again."

The great riot was one of the worst phases of the rebellion. When it was overcome men breathed freer. A dreadful crisis was past.

One a "Yank," One a "Reb."

Standing in the lobby of a hotel during the visit to Richmond of the Pennsylvanians who attended the unveiling of a monument at Cold Harbor, several days ago, was Capt. E. D. Christian, a well known veteran of the confederate service, of the 41st Virginia Regiment, who was entertaining a number of the visiting federal veterans with an account of a duel he had in 1862 with a Pennsylvanian near what was known as the "Cowpens," now the Mechanicsville pike, a Richmond (Va.) dispatch to the New York Herald says.

"In some way," said Capt. Christian, "we were coming through a field cut apart by a long line of rail fence. As we approached the fence we saw coming toward us a line of blue-coated soldiers. Before I knew it I was face to face with a Yankee who was sending balls at me, but luckily aiming wrong. I loaded my musket time and again and we had it there face to face. Presently the Yankee mounted the fence to get a better whack at me, for I was as bad a shot as he in the excitement of that duel. Well, gentlemen, down came the rail fence and down came the Yankee, sprawling on the ground. He managed to get up as my old musket banged away, but the ball never touched him.

"Wait a moment," interrupted one of the visitors, "and I'll tell you the rest of the story." All eyes turned toward the military form of Capt. W. H. Rauch, a Philadelphian, who was the center of the listeners to Capt. Christian's story.

"Well," continued Capt. Rauch, "the Yankee just took to his heels at that and you after him. You fired as long as he was in sight and he ran as long as his legs would hold him up. The only reason he did not fly was because he was a man and not a bird."

"That's about right," said the confederate, and then the two men faced each other with eyes glued on the faces that had seen the changes of nearly half a century.

"H——, man," Capt. Rauch cried, finally breaking the intense stillness, "are you the Johnny Reb that had that duel with me and came near making me a prisoner or putting me out for good?"

"If you are the man who jumped on that fence and fell and then got up and ran, while a confederate soldier sent bullets after you to help you move, I guess we have met before."

"If any other man had been in my place and had not put up a good run," replied Capt. Rauch, "he would have been a fool. Why, that old thing you were handling looked as big as a cannon and sounded like two or three of them."

Following this the veterans shook hands and Capt. Rauch took Capt. Christian in tow to introduce him to his wife. Then Capt. and Mrs. Rauch had to get into Capt. Christian's automobile and the end was that Mrs. Christian got a telephone call to have dinner ready for two extras. The party spent the evening in the handsome home of Capt. Christian, who had to promise a visit to the Rauch home in Philadelphia.

Before leaving Richmond Capt. Rauch declared that he would not have missed meeting Capt. Christian for all his worldly possessions. "I have never forgotten that rebel," said he, "and I see him now in my mind's eyes with his big old-time musket plugging away at me as though I were of no more good to the world than an ordinary animal."

The Dead at Vicksburg.

A newspaper correspondent of the time writes of the dead who had fallen in one of the most desperate of the Union assaults on Vicksburg:

"They lay in all positions, some with muskets grasped as though still contending; others with the cartridge in the fingers just ready to put the deadly charge where it might meet the foe. All ferocity had gone.

"A remarkably sweet and youthful face was that of a rebel boy. Scarce 18, and as fair as a maiden, with quite small hands, he had long hair of the pale golden hue that auburn changes to when much in the sun, and curling at the ends. He had on a shirt of coarse white cotton, and brown trousers, well worn; upon his feet were women's shoes of about the size known as 'fours.' Too delicate was his frame for war, perhaps, some mother's idol. His left side was torn by a shell, his left shoulder shattered.

"Two men who had caught at a fig tree to assist them up a steep embankment lay dead at its foot; the branch at which they caught was still in their grasp.

"In one trench lay two grasping the same weapon, friend and foe. On the faces of both was the calm that follows sleep. In some places the dead were piled literally like sacks of grain."

All Right but the Name.

It is an army tradition that the soldier shall grumble at the commissariat; but this particular complainant seems to have had a fair case.

"Any complaints, corporal?" said the colonel, making one morning a personal inspection.

"Yes, sir. Taste that, sir," said the corporal, promptly.

The colonel put the liquid to his lips.

"Why," he said, "that's the best soup I ever tasted."

"Yes, sir," said the corporal, "but the cook calls it coffee."

JANUARY

L1134

0437

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

A Child Can Cook Dinner

The Free Fireless Cooker given away with

Mother's Oats

is so simple that a child can operate it. It will cook not only MOTHER'S OATS, but the entire dinner: meat, soup, potatoes, without fuel and attention of any sort.

It will save you 30 per cent. of your gas or coal bill and 80 per cent. of your time. Just heat the MOTHER'S OATS (or any other food) on your stove, take off as soon as it boils, place in the Cooker, which will continue the cooking until done. The food cannot burn and cannot boil over.

MOTHER'S OATS is the ideal food. The Mother's Oats Cooker is given free with the Mother's Oats coupons found in every sanitary-sealed package of

Mother's Oats
Mother's Corn Meat (white or yellow)
Mother's Wheat Hearts (the cream of the wheat)
Mother's Hominy Grits
Mother's Corn Flakes (toasted)
Mother's Coarse Pearl Hominy
Mothers Old Fashioned Steel Cut Oatmeal
Mother's Old Fashioned Graham Flour

We will ship you this $3.75 Fireless Cooker Free for 125 coupons.

Buy today ten packages of MOTHER'S OATS at $1.20, or ten packages of assorted Mother's Cereals at EVEN LESS, send us the ten coupons taken from the packages with $1.45 in cash and receive at once a Fireless Cooker.

Ask your grocer. If he doesn't keep Mother's Cereals write us today, giving his name and yours, and we will send you free a useful souvenir.

THE GREAT WESTERN CEREAL COMPANY

OPERATORS OF LARGEST OATMEAL MILLS THAN ANY OTHER ONE CONCERN

AKRON BOSTON NEW HAVEN NEW YORK PHILADELPHIA CHICAGO PITTSBURGH ALBANY ST. LOUIS

Animals We Know

How recent a science is that which used to be called natural history, but which is now divided into so many branches, is shown by some figures recently presented to the British Association For the Advancement of Science. In 1830 the total number of species of animal life known was 73,588. This included 49,100 kinds of insects, 11,000 of mollusks, 3,600 of birds and 3,500 of fishes. In 1881 the total number had increased to 311,653; the birds and fishes had grown to 11,000 each, mollusks to 23,000 and insects to the surprising number of 220,150. Of spiders alone there were then known 8,070 sorts. In the years since 1881 the number of new species discovered each year has averaged 12,000, so that now there are catalogued and described in round numbers 600,000 kinds of animals.

FOR TRADE:— An improvdd twenty acre tract of land in Michigan. Value about fifteen hundred dollars. Want Butler property. Wallace C. Webster.

Alexander's Airship.

At the museum at Innsbruck, in Austria, there has been for a number of years a piece of pottery in the form of a basin which experts were unable to locate as to age. It has now been determined that it was made in the twelfth century, and the great bowl is remarkable more for the design which it bears on the inner side than for its age. It shows Alexander the Great riding in an airship which is propelled by griffins. Alexander stands holding with a great rod food over the heads of the griffins.

American News Via England.

We must go to Europe to get accurate news about sport in America. For example, read the following from the London Sphere:

"Football in Great Britain is a fairly popular game among spectators, but it is nothing to the American variety. At the match between Yale and Harvard there were 400,000 people, and $250 per seat was cheerfully given by the rich."

BY FATE OR CHANCE.

The Meeting of the Two Who Had Been Sweethearts.

By HELEN M. QUINN.

Saturday afternoon and the great publishing house was almost deserted. In one of the offices a man and a woman were at work, the former busily writing and the latter reading wearily through a slowly diminishing pile of manuscripts.

The woman sighed. The man looked up at her.

"Tired, Miss King?"

"Tired! That does not express it, and it does seem that I am accomplishing very little today."

"Can I be of assistance? I am almost through."

"Well, there is one thing I should like to have you do when you can spare time. I have two stories here on which I should like to have your opinion."

"You think they are good?"

"Yes, but I should like to know whether your judgment agrees with mine. This 'Reason and Romance,' I think, shows decided genius, and this 'For Auld Lang Syne' seems to me to be rather a clever little story, but as it is written by a very dear friend of mine perhaps I am partial. Will you give me your unbiased opinion?"

He crossed the room and took the manuscript from her hand. A few minutes later she closed her desk and put on her hat.

"I am going home," she said as she paused at the door. "If Mrs. White should come in, would you mind asking her to telephone me from home?"

"It will be a pleasure, Miss King."

When she had gone he laid down his pen, put away his papers in a methodical way, lighted a cigar and settled himself comfortably back in his chair. The first story he took up was "Reason and Romance." It was short, and he read it through quickly.

"Umph! Well, yes, I suppose there is genius in it," he mused, "but it certainly wants cultivating."

He picked up the other and at first glanced over it somewhat carelessly, then suddenly a few lines thrilled back his wandering thoughts. He turned the pages to look at the author's name.

"Lilian Watson," he said thoughtfully. "Well, this is a coincidence!"

He read a few pages further.

"It is surely more than a coincidence, because no one but Bessie could have written this, no matter what the signature. Why, I remember the scene as if it were yesterday. We were only children then, to be sure, but there are things one never forgets, and she has remembered my very words."

Once more he turned to the story in his hand, but soon they were lying on the desk, and he sat with his forehead resting on his palm, and his dreamy gray eyes looked wearily back through the years.

How vividly the little story brought it all back to him—the two children, playmates of long ago, the school they fell into and out of together, the boy and girl who were schoolmates and shared each other's sorrows and joys and were loyal comrades. Then the realization that this youthful companionship had developed into the passionate love of man and woman and the deep happiness of this awakening had brought to both of them! How well he remembered his ardent wooing and her sweet surrender!

Then the gray eyes grew troubled as he thought of the "little rift within the lute" and the final quarrel and parting brought about by a woman's pride and a man's stubbornness.

That was five years ago, but it seemed as if he had just awakened from a long dream. He had tried so hard to forget and until today almost had convinced himself that he was succeeding, but somehow all the old hopes crowded into his heart, and he realized that they were mastering him in spite of himself.

"I cannot forget," he said. "I must see her again and win her forgiveness. She cannot have forgotten the old days or she would not have written this."

There came to him a great longing to hear her voice, to feel her hand, soft and cool, on his forehead as she used to lay it long ago when he was tired or discouraged and came to her for sympathy.

He was roused from his reverie by the entrance of the office boy bearing a card.

"Lady for Miss King, sir."

"Bring her in here," he said without glancing at the card which the boy laid on his desk. He took it for granted that the lady was Mrs. White.

Was it fate? Was it chance? Who knows?

In a moment he heard the office boy return, and he could hear the faint rustle of a woman's skirt.

The shadows had gathered in the office, and the light was somewhat dim. He looked up and saw her standing there in the doorway in her simple white dress and blue ribbons, the sweet girlish face just a trifle more serious perhaps than of old, but otherwise unchanged.

He jumped to his feet and came forward, but his back was to the light, and she did not have a good view of his face.

"Has Miss King gone?" she asked in a low voice, and the old tones thrilled his very soul.

Without answering her question he held out both hands.

"Bess!"

For a moment the woman's self possession left her; her lips were colorless, and the roses in her cheeks turned from red to white. That deep, strong voice, then, had power to move her after five long years. It was only for a moment, however. She recovered and held out her hand.

"Why, Bert," she said, and her voice was almost natural, "this is a pleasant surprise."

Her tone of simple friendliness staggered him, for he had been quick to note the effect his greeting had on her, but she continued:

"When did you come east?"

"Six months ago. But tell me about yourself. Are you living in New York?"

"Oh, no! I am only visiting here. My home is in Chicago."

Norris Chapel

C S Beard is sick with an attack of the lagrippe.

Herman Ketel had the misfortune to lose a horse Monday.

O M Nimmons and son, Ralph, spent New Year's at Butler the guests of Mrs P. B. Nimmons.

Wm Stonebraker, wife and daughter Ruth, visited with Geo Loutzenhiser and wife last Sunday.

Harry Rennecker, of Jackson, Mich., came home Friday to spend New Year's with his parents, J. A. Rennecker and wife.

Clark Whetsel and family, Thell Wilson and family, M R Wilson and family and Howard Fales spent Sunday with Neely Husselman and wife near Waterloo.

It is reported that the dredge on the Moore ditch has changed hands and is being repaired. They have not been doing any work on the ditch for some time.

The schools of the township have reopened after the holiday vacation

The writer noticed an article in last week's Butler Record headed "Centralization Failed" We say that the majority of the Richland township citizens showed by their vote the best of judgment and good sound common sense This matter of doing away with the district school and having one central school is a serious one and a question about which every person living in the country who has children to send to school should be deeply interested This centralization has been talked about for many years and has been tried in various places over this state We have read a number of articles on this subject both pro and con and from what we can gather from all sources we are sure that centralization is not what we, in the country, want It states in the article that the people need education along this line. This is not a matter of education alone and it will take many, many years to lead people to believe they want a thing when they know it is not the best thing for their children, both morally and physically. When these two are not developing how can the children be growing mentally? Then the article goes on to state that the only difference between the township and graded school is in transportation of the pupils If this is the only difference that would be a sufficient reason why the district school should go It is not always wise to consider cost when the welfare of our children is at stake, and then when everything is fairly counted we are not sure that there is any difference in the expenses of running the centralized graded school and the district schools We want to ask every parent how they would like to have their small children leave home at six o'clock in the morning and not return until six in the evening This state of affairs is true with those children living at the end of the route. If the conveyance does not pass their door perhaps they go to some crossroads and stand and wait in the cold or the rain until the wagon arrives. If they are a few minutes too late to catch the wagon they miss a whole day of school "Fool notion" or not, "closed wagon" or not we all know that children must be protected from the weather Certainly dress them warm and give them plenty of fresh air, but you cannot handle them like a crate of chickens The idea of any one suggesting that children at least, three-fourths of them, that attend the district school would be out in a bobsled until the small hours of the morning attending a party! How do you know when you would have a suitable driver, one that would control the children properly? It is true some would be considerate for the general welfare of the children, but the drivers do not have to pass examination to see if they are qualified to be our children's example from one-half to six hours a day There is much more that ought to be said along this line, but before we close we want to implore the country people to hold fast to their district school and insist that the district school houses be repaired and made more comfortable and sanitary for our children.

Those Pies of Boyhood

How delicious were the pies of boyhood No pies now ever taste so good What's changed? The pies? No It's you You've lost the strong, healthy stomach, the vigorous liver, the active kidneys, the regular bowels of boyhood Your digestion is poor and you blame the food What's needed? A complete toning up by Electric Bitters of all organs of digestion—Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels—Try them They'll restore your boyhood appetite and appreciation of food and fairly saturate your body with new health, strength and vigor. 50c at Stone's drug store. 1-1m

Ladies shampoo and massage First class barber work and baths West side Broadway, Tomlinson's old stand. Give us a call M. J. Harrigan, Prop.

W. S. Troyer

Auctioneer and Salesman

Leave orders at this office or Central Grocery.

I speak three different languages.

Moores

School began Monday after a week's vacation.

George Harwood and wife, of Auburn, visited with Scott Rhoads and family Sunday.

Smith Butterfoore and wife visited with relatives in Ohio last week.

Virgil Hathaway, of Toledo, is having the measles while spending the holidays with Wm. Moudy and wife, his grandparents

Marvin Sirgh, wife and son took dinner with F. Albright and family Sunday.

John Mutzfeld is hauling logs to mill preparing to remodel his barn

Mrs Cecil Metcalf and daughter, Fern, visited with Mrs Krise Sunday.

P. T Rhoads returned home Thursday from Lutheran hospital at Fort Wayne, where he has been for some time

John Yarlott and wife spent the holidays with relatives at Elwood

W H Forrest Otis Lantzenhiser, Wm Albright and Albert Keller, with their families spent Sunday near Auburn with G O Lantzenhiser and wife

Conrad Myers is getting material on the ground for a new barn

Cecil Harwood and wife gave a New Year's dinner to a number of their relatives

Mrs J E Pumroy and Iris Ladd, of Auburn, spent a few days last week with F Stump and family

The store is doing a flourishing business under the management of Otis Lantzenhiser

Napoleon's Grit

was of the unconquerable never say die kind the kind that you need most when you have a bad cold, cough or lung disease Suppose coughs, cough syrups, cod liver oil or doctors have all failed, don't lose heart or hope Take Dr King's New Discovery Satisfaction is guaranteed when used for any throat or lung trouble It has saved thousands of hopeless sufferers It masters stubborn colds, obstinate coughs, hemorrhages, laryngitis, croup, asthma, hay fever and whooping cough and is the most safe and certain remedy for all bronchial affections 50c, $1.00 Trial bottle free at Stone's drug store 1-1m

Spencerville

Lester Young and wife visited under the parental roof Wednesday at John Morris'

Lester Houk has gone to Angola to school

John Means received a bad lick above the left eye with a limb John now wears a black eye and a patch over the same

Lloyd Stevens and Cal Means have taken a lot of wood to cut for S M. High

Last Friday evening at five o'clock, Jacob Baker, of Concord had a stroke of paralysis He never gained consciousness and passed away Sunday night at 10 o'clock Funeral was held Wednesday forenoon at St Joe, Rev. Heinger officiating He leaves a wife, one son, two daughters, one sister, five brothers and a host of friends Mr. Baker was a kind father and husband and a splendid neighbor

Sunday night you could see the effects of bad whiskey in our little town When a man wants to bite everything he sees it is a pretty bad case of snakes

Mrs Farger has gone to Butler for an indefinite stay with her daughter, Mrs John Boyd

Franklin

Mrs Curry and children from Illinois are visiting her sister, Mrs. Oliver Rosenberry

Miss Gertrude Everitts spent a few days last week with Miss Mamie Mitchell.

Mrs Bert Rose and son attended the funeral of Mrs Hevel at Waterloo last Saturday.

Mrs John Huntington, Mahala Huntington and Freeman Fifer and family spent Sunday at Edgerton

John King and wife, of Edon, Ohio, spent last Thursday with F A Huntington and family

There will be preaching next Sunday after Sunday school at Jerusalem,

Rev Davis is holding protracted meeting at Zion

Freeman Fifer was at Pleasant Lake last Friday

Cleve Rose and wife were the Sunday guests of Bert Rose and family

Our mail carrier is the owner of a new sleigh

Mr and Mrs Charles Souder entertained a number of their friends at dinner New Year's Roscoe Yarlott and wife, of Dillon, spent Sunday with F A Huntington and family.

Mrs. Gertrude Cornelius and children, of Syracuse, are visiting at the home of F M Haverstock

Jay Mark and family spent last Thursday with R Bell and wife

COINED A WORD

There was a little girl on board
Who could'nt stand the motion
"I wiss, Mamma", she said one day
There were pavements in the ocean
Before her stretched the white capped waves.
Behind a white-capped nurse-maid followed
"I'm better now," she naively said,
Because, you see I've just unswallowed

The only baking powder from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar —made from Grapes—

Makes Finest, Purest Food

Royal Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

BUTLER MARKETS

PRODUCE

The following prices are paid for produce and other farm products by Butler merchants:

Eggs	$ 30
Butter	24
Lard	14
Potatoes	40
HAY, GRAIN AND WOOL
Wheat (per bu)	$ 1 18
Oats	42
Rye	70
Corn (per cwt)	70
Red Clover (per bu)	7.75
Alsike (per bu)	6 75
Hay	12 00
POULTRY
Chickens	11

Local and Personal

Tell it to the HERALD

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

Fresh Country Sausage at the new meat market 2t-1

"I can't is an idiosyncrasy.

Try the new meat market in the old Boos stand

Mr and Mrs W C Webster entertained at New Years' dinner, Mrs Somers, of Huntington and Mr and Mrs F Grick

Mayor Webster entertained friends from Garrett and Auburn last Wednesday

Between 45 and 50 Knights of Pythias from this place went to Edgerton Wednesday evening and conferred the rank of Knight on two candidates. A banquet was served

The fourth quarterly meeting of the Butler Circuit will be held at the Methodist Chapel, Sunday morning, Jan. 9, at 10 30 District Superintendent Rev. S Light will preach and hold a sacramental service followed by quarterly conference

There will be preaching service at Pleasant Chapel next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock

The HERALD office is equipped for any kind of printing, from a calling card to a 24x36 poster We are supplied with the latest styles of type.

Mr and Mrs T J Knisely and Miss Ethel Fosler left, Thursday, for a three weeks visit in California.

Do not be to sure that the world is waiting to hear from you: it is listening to a lot of things you know nothing about.

Mrs Edwin Fosdick of Auburn and Mrs Homer Bright of Kewana were in the city, Wednesday, calling on friends.

Sensitiveness and strength should go together: the first to show us what and what not to do and the second to enable us to sturdily follow out that guidance.

Mr and Mrs Maxwell, west of town, and Mrs Weeks of Auburn were the guests of Marion Knepper and wife.

John Hamilton spent Tuesday in Fort Wayne.

Such a thing as an honest gambler cannot exist; it necessary, to win, he will deceive, cheat, steal, lie or all together

Much of the trouble and perplexity in this world is made by verbal directions that ought to have been put in black and white

Advertised Letters

Mrs Ruth Crous
Mr. Charley Chapland.
Rev Jonas Equestantian
Mr and Mrs Ernest Hancock.
Mr Robert Hancock.
Mr Edd Hall
Mrs M. H McClellan.
Jack Oberlin.
Mr Frank Ramsey

THOS RUDD, Postmaster.

Known By Other Names

There are no set of diseases so misnamed as those that pertain to the stomach, liver and bowels Many think their nerves are deranged, their heart diseased, their kidneys weak, their blood impure, when in reality they have stomach or bowel trouble Try Dr Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin, the wonderful regulator and see how quickly you will find yourself cured It is absolutely guaranteed to do what is claimed, and if you want to try it before buying, send your address for a free sample bottle to Pepsin Syrup Co., 119 Caldwell Bldg, Monticello, Ill It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1 a bottle. 1-1m

NAME OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS

Annual Meeting of Garrett Banking Company Held Monday Morning

The annual stockholders' and directors' meetings of the Garrett Banking company was held at the bank offices Monday morning, and another successful year's chapter was added to the history of the institution

For the ensuing year was named by the stockholders the old board of directors, composed of Charles W Camp, W. H Coffinberry, Rev August Young, H. W Mountz, W J Frederick W B Sattersfeild, Emil Hill, T J. Knisley and D. H Knisley

Immediately following the stockholders' session, the directors met and elected bank officials as follows; Charles W. Camp, president; W. A Coffinberry, cashier; and Harry E Wert, assistant cashier President Camp named H. W Mountz, W. A Coffinberry, Rev August Young, and himself as discount committee to serve during the year

The Garrett Banking company is one of the oldest and most prosperous depositories in DeKalb County Organized in 1891 with a capitol stock of $25,000 00, it has increased to $35,000 and has added a surplus of $150,000

Mr Camp, the president, also occupies the position of state bank examiner fo which place he was appointed in June 1907, by State Auditor Billheimer.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

Newville

If you want to tave 20c join the Christian S. S. next Sunday Listen the Bible class which was defeated in the contest will entertain the Sunday school on next Friday eveding Admission 5c to the entertainment and 15c for oysters to all those who are not members but who care to enjoy the fun.

Fifty-four young people surprised Burl Enzor last Thursday evening. All the new games were played until the wee hours of the morning Mr. and Mrs Enzor are moving two miles east of Spencerville on Mrs Shutts' farm.

John Whitehurst went to Fort Wayne, Saturday to see Clyde Dean, of Auburn, who underwent an operation for appendicitis and is in a critical condition. He is in a critical condition.

Mrs Curtis Craun and children spent Saturday with her sistor, Mrs Strong.

Grandma Dean is in Auburn caring for Clyde Dean's children.

Hugh Traxler passed the examination for brakeman on the Wabash and his first trip from Montpelier to Chicago, Thursday.

Frank Akins and D J. Blair and families and Mrs H B Akins and Mrs. S. Tomlison and son, Kenneth, were entertained at New Years' dinner at the home of Hall Blaker Herbert Webster is home from Chicago for a short vacation.

RAILWAY MAIL CLERKS WANTED

The Government Pays Railway Mail Clerks $800 to $1,200, and Other Employees Up to $2,500 Annually

Uncle Sam will hold spring examinations throughout the country for Railway Mail Clerks, Custom House Clerks, Stenographers, Bookkeepers, Departmental Clerks and other Government Positions Thousands of appointments will be made. Any man or woman over 18, in City or Country can get Instruction and free information by writing at once to the Bureau of Instruction, 115 E Hamlin Building, Rochester, N. Y. 52-3m

JANUARY

0438

L1134

public library

WANTED--A Reliable Printer at This Office

THE DEKALB COUNTY HERALD

VOLUME XLI — BUTLER, DEKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, FRIDAY, JANUARY 14, 1910 — NUMBER 2

DANIEL W. WEITZ, President — HENRY M. SHOWALTER, Vice-President — WALTER SNIDER, Cashier
AMOS SNYDER, Vice-President — ALBERT L. SHULTZ, Vice-President

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK

BUTLER, INDIANA

Capital Paid Up $25,000.00. Your Business Respectfully Solicited.

TRUSTEE'S REPORT

To Advisory Board, of Stafford Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, For Year 1909

Receipts Township Fund.

Jan. 5 1909	Amount on hand of last report	$418.12
June 25	Received from County Treasurer	416.20
Dec. 27	Received from County Treasurer	387.87
	Received from all other sources	105.17
	Total Township Fund	1,327.36
	Total Expend. since last report	1,144.14
	Balance	183.22

Disbursements Township Fund.

Jan. 9	Frank Creager, Praul drain remons	.28
Feb. 4	W O Kenan, Printing financial report	9.90
Feb. 4	Henry Shaffer, Allottment in Foster drain	20.00
Feb. 6	S S Casebere, Services after Jan. 1, '09	6.00
Feb. 9	W L Yates, Postage stamps	2.00
Feb. 10	S D Kiger & Co, Office supplies	14.00
Apr. 17	John A Hawkins, Cemetery fence at Big Run	11.60
Apr. 7	I M Diehl, Remons. Boyle drain	.25
Apr. 17	Chas Cather, Allot. Cather drain	4.00
June 1	C L Wagoner, Transcripts of ditches	6.60
June 7	E Buchanan, Office supplies	1.00
June 10	R J Lucy, Hauling culvert	3.00
June 12	Chas Hiner, Blacksmithing	.50
June 12	Fred D Webster, Typewriting notices	.25
June 19	Gladys Smith, Singing at Commencement	2.00
June 23	S D Kiger & Co., Office supplies	4.80
July 17	Al Jennings, Cleaning Webster Cemetery	5.00
Aug. 2	L H Higley, Printing annual report 1907 & 1908	18.02
Aug. 2	C L Wagoner, Transcripts of ditches	2.60
Aug. 10	C W Webster, Salary as Trustee to July 1	108.00
Aug. 14	F W Nimmons, Gravel pit expenses	245.45
Sept. 4	DeForest Marrow, Cleaning ditches	14.00
6	Frank Scanlin, Super. election sets	2.00
7	C A DeVinney, Mem. Advisory board	5.00
7	Ralph Lucy, Member Advisory board	5.00
11	Al Jennings, Cleaning Smith dtich	6.00
13	John L Lyon, Salary Super., Dist. 2	35.00
23	Al Jennings, Cleaning ditches	9.50
25	F L Hollinger, Tiling Dist. 1	2.40
25	Lee Moore, Tiling Dist. 1	2.40
25	Chas S Arford, Mem. Advis. board	5.00
25	Chas S Arford, Allot. Miller drain	20.00
25	A S Powers, Printing proposed tax levy	2.00
Oct. 2	J L Pepper, Cleaning ditch	5.00
6	Ross Hollinger, Cleaning Cemetery at Big Run	5.00
6	Al Jennings, Cleaning ditch	1.50
11	M E Dennins, Labor Christoffel ditch	2.00
23	P D Ginder, Remons. in Ginder drain	15.40
28	Al Jennings, Fill at Christoffel bridge	3.00
30	S H Adams, Freight on culverts	2.34
Nov. 1	Frank Shook, Making tax list	5.00
11	Al Jennings, Cleaning Webster Cem.	5.00
13	J McClintock, Insurance assessment	2.83
17	Kiger & Co., Office supplies	4.50
22	Al Jennings, Cleaning ditch	3.00
Dec. 13	D H Gobel Printing Co., Suppiles	5.40
21	John L Lyon Bal. Supervisor salary	67.00
23	S G Stone, Township supplies	7.72
23	Gengnagel & Son, Hardware	9.14
29	F W Nimmons, Stafford's share gravel pit exp. to Jan 1, 1910	177.66
30	S H Adams, Bal. salary as supervisor	108.00
31	C W Webster, Tele. toll, postage, etc	3.10
31	C W Webster, Salary to Jan. 1, 10	138.00

Receipts Tuition Fund.

Jan. 5 1909	Amount on hand	$751.18
Feb. 4	Common School fund rec'd	183.03
June 25	Local School fund rec'd	256.06
Aug. 9	Common School fund rec'd	222.21
Dec. 27	Local School fund rec'd	229.64
	Total Local Tuition fund	1,642.12
	Total Expenditures since last report	1,265.38
	Balance	376.74

Disbursements Tuition Fund.

Feb. 23	W C Miller, Teaching, Dist 1	$ 60.00
Mar. 6	Herbert Webster, Teaching Dist. 5	50.00
8	Lawrence Diehl " " 2	25.00
Apr. 2	Herbert L Webster " " 5	158.08
2	W C Miller, " " 1	178.00
7	Lawrence Diehl, " " 2	130.40
June 26	L H Higley, School Treas., Transfers	137.00
Oct. 9	Robert Ulm Teaching Dist 5	15.00
15	Lawrence Diehl " " 2	35.00
16	Robert Ulm " " 5	50.00
Nov. 20	W C Miller " " 1	50.00
20	Lawrence Diehl " " 2	40.00
24	Robert Ulm " " 5	75.00
Dec. 11	Robert Ulm " " 5	25.00
31	W C Miller " " 1	153.70
31	Lawrence Diehl " " 2	83.20

Receipts Special School Fund.

Jan. 5 1909	Amount on hand	$230.16
June 25	Amount from County Treasurer	199.06
Dec. 27	Amount from County Treasurer	191.58
	Total, Special School Fund	620.80
	Total Expenditures since last report	370.30
	Balance	250.50

Disbursements Special School Fund.

Jan. 22	S L Webster Hauling pupils to Dist 5	20.00
Feb. 15	S L Webster, Hauling pupils	20.00
27	John Diehl, Cleaning house, Dist. 1 '08	3.50
Mar. 3	F H Cotrill, Labor Dist. 2 & 5	1.50
16	S L Webster, Hauling pupils	22.00
27	W O Kenan, Printing grade cards	2.25
Apr. 2	Herbert Webster, Institute, Janitor	10.16
2	W C Miller, Institute and Janitor	10.30
3	S L Webster, Hauling pupils	26.40
7	Lawrence Diehl, Institute, Janitor	8.82
June 12	Chas S Arford, Wood Dist. 1	27.23
Aug. 14	F W Nimmons, Exp. of Commencement	8.07
Sept. 13	F H Cotrill, Labor Dist. 5	15.00
17	F H Cotrill, Labor and mat. Dist. 1	15.00
18	Al Jennings, Cleaning houses and yards at Dist. 2, 5	6.50
28	F H Cotrill, Labor at Houses	14.84
Oct. 2	H W Smith, Cleaning school house and make porch, Dist. 1	4.50
25	Peter Grube, Wood at Dist. 2	26.40
Nov. 17	Kiger & Co, School supplies	18.00
Dec. 11	S L Webster, Hauling pupils	91.00
13	D H Gobel Print Co., 20 copies Home and School Visitor	5.84
Dec. 23	The Butler Co., Rods for school house Dist 5	7.99
31	C W Webster, Handling school books	5.00

Receipts Road Fund.

Jan. 5 1909	Amount on hand	101.67
June 25	Received from County Treasurer	14.90
Dec. 27	Received from County Treasurer	33.22
	Received from all other sources	25.00
	Total Road Tax Fund	174.79
	Total Expenditures since last report	34.90
	Balance	139.89

Disbursements Road Fund.

Feb. 5	Elmer Beerer Labor on road Dist 1	3.75
July 21	Geo Hull, Road receipt of John W and G and J C Barber	4.27
31	Clyde Gaff, Central Union Tele Co	1.50
Aug. 2	C B Mason, Road receipt	1.75
Oct. 30	A B Countryman, Road receipt	4.92
Dec. 23	Fred Bloom Road receipt	.62
27	H H Slaybaugh, Road receipt	18.09

Receipts Additional Road Fund.

Jan. 5 1909	Amount on hand	712.39
Jun. 25	Received from County Treasurer	437.92
Dec. 27	Received from County Treasurer	10.63
30	Received from all other sources	127.11
	Total Additional Road Tax Fund	1288.05
	Total Expenditures since last report	782.14
	Balance	505.91

Disbursements Additional Road Fund.

Mar. 3	F H Cotrill, Labor and material	3.50
Apr. 17	Hixon Lumber Co., Sewer pipe Dist 1	10.64
17	The Butler Co., Catch basin tops	15.54
29	D M Ball Tile Dist 1	5.25
May 11	John L Lyon, Salary, Supervisor	15.00
11	S H Adams, Salary as supervisor	12.00
Jun. 4	Kiger & Co., Scoop and Grader blade	11.50
4	Homer Casebere, Land tax receipt	9.00
15	W Click, 2240 ft. road plank	49.28
Sept. 6	Frank Scanlin, Boiler shell culvert	67.00
7	Geo Lorah, Hauling gravel and cement	10.50
17	S L Webster, Grading at Webster bridge	50.00
Oct. 2	Clifford Shaffer, Con. work at bridge	3.00
22	F H Cotrill, Con. work on 3 bridges	14.00
25	G W Lorah, Labor on road Dist 2	21.00
26	J F Greenawald, Labor on road, Dist 2	15.00
26	W R Craun, Labor on road Dist 2	11.25
29	Juleus Boolick, Labor on road Dist 2	9.00
30	Sherman Adams, Labor on road Dist 1	1.50
30	A H Houk, Labor on road Dist 2	2.25
Nov. 3	Homer Casebere, Hauling gravel Dist 2	16.33
4	Al Jennings, Hauling gravel Dist 2	5.20
5	R J Lucy, Hauling gravel and cement work	24.28
8	J D Craun, 28 bble cement	36.40
12	G W Lorah, Labor at Gravel pit	6.00
13	Chas F Ross, Team work Dist 2	4.50
13	Bert Patee, Hauling gravel Dist 2	9.00
13	Thomas Dilgard, Making concrete winge on culvert	30.50
13	Ralph Miller, Gravel for Dist 2	33.15
23	Wesley Shaffer, Labor on road Dist 2	13.13
Dec. 2	Joseph Miller, Hauling and replacing boiler shell culverts	8.00
3	A L Link, Services as surveyor at Webster grade	8.00
11	L S Webster, Bal grading at Webster bridge	204.43
22	Charley Dickerhoff, Labor at pit and cement work	12.37
23	Adam Christoffel, 45 loads of gravel	4.50
23	Hixon Lumber Co., Tile and lumber	15.44
24	Geo Webster, gravel and dirt	2.00
24	J F Greenawald, Labor on road Dist 2	11.20
29	R J Lucy Labor on road Dist 2	1.50

Receipts Library Fund.

Jan. 5 1909	Amount on hand	47.02
	Balance	47.02

Receipts Poor Fund.

Jan. 5 1909	Amount on hand	24.68
Jun. 25	Received from County Treasurer	27.88
Dec. 27	Received from County Treasurer	27.37
	Total receipts Poor Fund	79.93
	Total Expenditures since last report	43.50
	Balance	36.43

Disbursements Poor Fund.

June 25	H H Slaybaugh, Stafford Twp. poor to July 1, 09	26.50
Dec. 27	H H Slaybaugh, Stafford twp poor to Jan. 1 1910	17.00

Receipts Dog Fund.

Jan. 5 1909	Amount on hand	153.00
May 8	Collections from Twp Assessor	50.00
	Amount received and all other sources,	14.00
	Total receipts Dog fund	217.00
	Expenditures for the year	107.00
	Balance	110.00

Disbursements Dog Fund.

Mar. 1	H H Slaybaugh, Mar. settlement	53.00
11	John J Hook Turkey killed by dogs	5.00
July 20	John Diehl Sheep killed	9.00
Sept. 4	Frank Wilson Sheep killed	12.00
Nov. 11	J T Nichols Sheep killed	28.00

SUMMARY.

	Receipts	Expend.	Bal. on hand
Township Fund	1,327.36	1,144.14	183.22
Local Tuition Fund	1,642.12	1,265.38	376.74
Special School Fund	620.80	370.30	250.50
Road Fund	174.79	34.90	139.89
Add. Road Fund	1,288.05	782.14	505.91
Library Fund	47.02		47.02
Poor Fund	79.93	43.50	36.43
Dog Fund	217.00	107.00	110.00
Total	5,397.70	3,747.36	1,649.71

State of Indiana, DeKalb County, ss:

I, C. W. Webster, Trustee of Stafford township, in said County and State, do solemnly swear that the various sums with which I am charged in the foregoing report are all of the sums received by me, and that the various items of expenditure credited have been fully paid in the sums stated, and without express or implied agreement that any portion thereof has been retained by or repaid to me or to any other person within my knowledge, and that I have received no money or article in consideration of any contract made by me as such Trustee, and that the above and foregoing report is true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief.

C. W. Webster, Township Trustee.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this fourth day of January, 1910. Chas. A. DeVinney, Pres. of the Advisory Board.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS INSTALL OFFICERS

New Officers Confer Degree Work In Able Manner.

Butler Lodge No. 158, Knights of Pythias, held their annual installation Tuesday evening at their Castle hall, and the ceremonies were witnessed by about sixty-five of the members.

Dr. H. T. Berkey acted as grand chancellor commander, E. W. Mutzfeld as grand master at arms, and R. C. Campbell as grand prelate, while Robin Davis presided at the piano. The work was impressive and well given. At the close of the exercises the newly elected officers assumed their various stations and first rank was conferred on Hoyt Cook, the new officers surprising the brothers by being able to give the work without the use of the ritual.

Chas. Campbell, keeper of records and seal, gave the annual report which was satisfactory and accepted. The report showed that the lodge had enrolled at present about 225 members, and several applications to act upon, which will aggregate in the neighborhood of 250 members. The following are the officers installed:

Luther Knisely—C. C.
Frank Long—V. C. C.
W. R. Lennon—M. at A.
C. W. Campbell—K. of R. and S.
T. A. Hoffman—Prel.
Lee Norigan—M. of W.
Geo. W. Geddes—M. of F.
T. J. Knisely—M. of E.
Carl Nimmons—I. G.
Elmer Myers—O. G.

AN OPEN LETTER

To All the People of Butler and Vicinity

As a Christian Minister I am exceedingly anxious concerning your religious experience. To all who are truly following in the footsteps of Jesus, I offer congratulations, and say: "Rejoice in your priceless inheritance. Bring others to the divine light. Be faithful. Go work in the vineyard for the harvest is great."

To you who are without the blessed assurance that Christ is living in your soul, I have a message from God. He loves you and yearns for your salvation. Repent and live. Confess Him. Now is the day of salvation Be wise. Seek first the kingdom of God. Life is too brief to be spent in sin. You are worthy of a better life. You belong to God. He calls you by warning; by judgements; by His boundless mercies; by the personal presence of the Holy Ghost. I beseech you to make peace with Him, and know Him as a friend. Read your Bible. Pray much. Attend church services. Be pure in word, thought, and deed. Keep the commandments.

For years I have preached to you I have endeavored to warn you to "Flee from the wrath to come." I verily believe I am free from responsibility for you. I can only leave you in the hands of God. Most earnestly will I pray for you, and help you in any way possible. Our churches are praying for you. With Christian love I am

Sincerely yours,
EDMUND F. ALBERTSON,
Minster.

Churubusco Truth Burned Out

Editor Downey, of the Churubusco Truth, had his plant damaged by water to the extent of $700 in a fire which started in that town Saturday.

The fire is the third for Churubusco within the past ten days. The first was a fire in the south end, not amounting to much. Wednesday night the Irene Van Dolah house burned and Saturday the Geiger building.

Card of Thanks

We desire to express our sincere thanks to class 14 of thd M. E. Sunday school, also to the high school for the nice Christmas presents sent to us.

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR EDGERLY.

Those Pies of Boyhood

How delicious were the pies of boyhood. No pies now ever taste so good. What's changed? The pies? No. It's you. You've lost the strong, healthy stomach, the vigorous liver, the active kidneys, the regular bowels of boyhood. Your digestion is poor and you blame the food. What's needed? A complete toning up by Electric Bitters of all organs of digestion—Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels—Try them. They'll restore your boyhood appetite and appreciation of food and fairly saturate your body with new health, strength and vigor. 50c at Stone's drug store. 1-1m

FANCIERS MEET WITH GEO. STOUT

Not A Hen Party But a Surprise Party on "Bro." George.

January 11, being the 56th anniversary of Mr. George Stout's birthday, a number of his friends had planned a surprise on him by calling at his home on East Oak Street where we were met at the door by the estimable hostess and ushered into the parlors. Shortly after being seated strolled into our presence the host surprised (?) that would be mild.

After the exchange of a short conversation all repaired to the dining room, where in readiness spread before us, we partook of one of the finest repasts that domestics skilled in this art only can perfect well did this fine dinner meet the requirements of this bunch of hungry Fanciers.

This association of which Mr. Stout is a member gave us a few pointers on birds such as growing, shipping, and the most profitable mode of dressing. John Brown was assigned the latter and gave some very good helps—one was to run them down with a hatchet. Mr. Diehl took exceptions and contended one had better sell at scrub prices than to spend time on them in that way. Melroy came near being held up some time ago by letting a cockeral go for $25. Barber talked along the line of improvement on eggs, that eggs layed by roosters were more nutritious and larger than winter laying. Rev. Crouse carried away the belt on cripples, and according to his theory stockings should be used on fall pullets. Stout in his talk rather dwelt on Canadian crosses from the fact that cockerels from that climate are good setters.

After the discussion of various subjects had been introduced finally came the introduction of a neat souvenir as a token of the esteem in which Mr. Stout was held by his friends. Wishing a kind good night and many more prosperous years each repaired for their several places of abode.

ONE WHO WAS THERE.

Methodist Church Notes

The evangelistic meetings are of unusual interest. You are cordially invited. A large chorus choir sings. Prof. Haley sings at each meeting. Each Friday evening is devoted to the interests of young people. Sunday at 3 p. m. there will be a meeting for all. Remember you are welcomed to these meetings by the congregation and the minister in a warm hearted, brotherly way. Come.

The Aid Society will meet with Mrs. Buehrer. They will serve a fine chicken supper at the church parlors, Saturday evening, from 5 to 7 for 20 cents.

E. F. ALBERTSON, Minister.

A Pleasant Evening

Mrs. Marion Haverstock entertained thirteen ladies Friday evening at her beautiful country home. The dining room was the place of attraction where she banqueted her guests. The banqueters were served to four courses which included the products of northern and tropical gardens. In years to come when we sit in retrospection that evening will be one of sunset memories!

FIRST NATIONAL BANK ELECTS OFFICERS

Tuesday, the board of directors of the First National bank held a called meeting and elected the following officers:

Daniel W. Weitz, president; Henry M. Showalter, vice president; Amos Snyder, vice president; Albert L. Shultz, vice president.

The new board of directors are: Daniel Weitz, Henry M. Showalter, A. J. Arick, F. W. Snider, of Toledo, and Walter Snider. Walter Snider was chosen cashier.

Notice

The firm name of the Central grocery made a change at the first of the year, T. W. Preston, father of R. E. Preston, having bought the company out. The firm name will be known as Preston & Preston. The new firm solicits your trade. 2-1

Church of Christ Items

O. L. Hull, of Garrett, was a caller at the parsonage last Friday.

Henry W. Schwan, formerly minister of the Creighton avenue church, of Fort Wayne, made the church a call on Wednesday evening.

Services on Lord's day at the usual hours. The theme of the morning sermon, "The Penalty of the Visionless." In the evening the services will be conducted in the interests of young people. Theme of sermon, "Cleansing Our Ways."

How christians may be divided into two classes. There are those who are such because of a vowed enmity against all things religious. Their numbers, however, are small when compared to those who are such simply because religious matters have not been given the honest serious thought which is given to things secular. To which class do you belong?

S. B. BRADEN, Minister.

I. O. O. F. Install Officers.

Butler Encampment No. 160, I. O. O. F. installed officers, Monday evening, Jan. 10, 1910, as follows:

W. A. Mason—C. P.
W. Richard—H. P.
P. M. Tomlinson—S. W.
W. H. Grube—J. W.
E. P. Masters—R. S.
Chas. Mumaw—F. S.
J. E. Firestone—Con.
Guy Firestone—I. S.
J. L. Peppers—O. S.
John Krontz—1st G. to T.
Chas. Miller—2nd G. to T.
M. Brunstetter—1st W.
H. M. Showalter—2nd W.
F. P. Stump—3rd W.
Chas. Wagoner—4th W.

Known By Other Names

There are no set of diseases so misnamed as those that pertain to the stomach, liver and bowels. Many think their nerves are deranged, their heart diseased, their kidneys weak, their blood impure, when in reality they have stomach or bowel trouble. Try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin, the wonderful regulator, and see how quickly you will find yourself cured. It is absolutely guaranteed to do what is claimed, and if you want to try it before buying, send your address for a free sample bottle to Pepsin Sprup Co., 119 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1 a bottle. 1-1m

Ladies shampoo and massage. First class barber work and baths. West side Broadway, Tomlinson's old stand. Give us a call. M. J. Harrigan, Prop.

EMBROIDERY

= SALE =

The finest line of Embroidery and Insertion ever offered in this town at the prices we are offering this line. 10c per yd and higher

Sale Begins Saturday, Jan. 15 and lasts during the Next Week

The Racket Store

Jas. R. Zimmerman, Pro.

SOME OF OUR CLAIMS

We don't believe that you can find a better all round place to fit out the home than right at this store.

We don't belie2e that you can find a place that will deal more fairly with you than we will.

We don't believe that dollar for dollar you can do quite as as well any where else.

Those are our claims--
To prove them is our aim.

Will you give us an opportunity to do so the first time you are needing something in our line.

A. F. BRINDLEY

Furniture and Undertaking

The Rexall Store — GEDDES' DRUG STORE — Always at Your Service

Dioxogen
THE PURE PEROXIDE OF HYDROGEN

Send for a FREE Trial Bottle

The Oakland Chemical Company of New York will send a free 2oz. bottle of DIOXOGEN upon receipt of postal request, mentioning this store.

DIOXOGEN is the best kind of Health Insurance for every member of the family. Send for the complimentary bottle and try DIOXOGEN

As a Mouth Wash — For Burns and Scalds
As a Gargle — For Boils, Abscesses, Etc.
As a Nasal Douche — For Ivy Poisoning
For Nose Bleed — For Eye Ache
For Wounds and Cuts — For "Pink Eye," Styes, Etc.
After Shaving
For the Complexion
For Pimples, Blackheads, Etc.
For Chapped Hands and Face
For Sunburn
For Body Odors
For Manicuring
For Mosquito and Insect Bites
For Bee Stings
To Remove Bandages that Stick

Full directions for each use will accompany the trial bottle. Be sure and mention this store and send the postal request today.

GEDDES' DRUG STORE
West Side Broadway — Phone 31

Call for Township and County Caucuses

The democrats of DeKalb county will meet in their respective townships at their usual places of holding caucuses (except Wilmington No. 6, which will meet at school house in Mooresville) on Saturday, January 22, 1910, at 1:30 p. m., for the purpose of electing a committeeman for each precinct in their township for the ensuing two years.

Said committeemen so selected to meet at Auburn, Ind., at Old Armory hall on Thursday, January 27, 1910, at 1:30 p. m., for the purpose of electing a chairman, vice chairman, secretary and treasurer of the Democratic County Central Committee for ensuing two years.

Dated at Auburn, Indiana, January 10, 1910.

MILES BAXTER, Chairman.
E. O. LITTLE, Secretary. 2-2

RAILWAY MAIL CLERKS WANTED

The Government Pays Railway Mail Clerks $800 to $1,200, and Other Employees Up to $2,500 Annually

Uncle Sam will hold spring examinations throughout the country for Railway Mail Clerks, Custom House Clerks, Stenographers, Bookkeepers, Departmental Clerks and other Government Positions. Thousands of appointments will be made. Any man or woman over 18, in City or Country can get Instruction and free information by writing at once to the Bureau of Instruction, 113 E Hamlin Building, Rochester, N. Y. 52-3m

A Frightful Wreck

of train, automobile or buggy may cause cuts, bruises, abrasions, sprains or wounds that demand Bucklen's Arnica Salve—earth's greatest healer. Quick relief and prompt cure results. For burns, boils, sores of all kinds, eczema chapped hands and lips, sore eyes or corns, it's supreme. Surest pile cure. 25c at Stone's drug store. 1-1m

JANUARY

0439

L1134

DeKalb County Herald

BUTLER, INDIANA.

A. S. POWERS, - - - Publisher.

Some men are born diplomats; others talk too much.

The D. F. S. (Daughters of Football Survivors) will be meeting in 1925.

It is also a wise hypnotist who knows whether his subject is dead or not.

Railroads seem to be learning how to divide and subtract, as well as add and multiply.

Kansas reports 2,000 babies short this year. All other crops were up to the average, however.

Next to fighting for his life a normal man will make his hardest struggle to keep out of jail.

Having unquestioned supremacy on land, sea and in the air, Uncle Sam is perplexed to know what next to tackle.

Scientists say the male hair turns gray eight years sooner than the feminine. Possibly forgotten birthdays vitiate the figures.

It would be unfair to blame the bookworm for all the laziness in the world. Much of it is shiftlessness for which there is no cure.

A Texas man has named his twins Cook and Peary. When they get older they can have interesting arguments as to which one discovered the world first.

The day will soon come when the aeroplane and the dirigible balloon will have a commercial value in time of peace as well as a strategic value in time of war.

Americans find themselves irresistibly drawn toward games of chance whether it be a land drawing, a turkey raffle or a bridge whist tournament where the prize is a nut cracker or a souvenir spoon.

Astronomers are quarreling about the craters on the moon, and two of the poets are threatening to fight a duel because one of them said a certain unnamed woman had a serpent's tongue. Isn't it awful, Mabel?

It is a popular impression—among men and boys—that a woman cannot throw a stone, but in a recent contest held under the patronage of a Western newspaper, the winner, a girl of 18, threw a base ball more than 209 feet.

A Texas town under the local option law voted for license, but the wide-awake prohibitionists applied for and obtained all the licenses allowed by law—and then refused to open any saloons. The Scripture which commends the wisdom of the serpent has evidently been read to some purpose in Texas.

A new exhaustant dressmaker advises that a woman have a dress for every mood. When she is feeling depressed, she should wear her gayest gown. The difficulty seems to be that when she got into her glad rag she would be so ungovernably exultant that it would be necessary immediately to change to something quiet, and thus the victim of moods would be forever changing. The male idea of trimming the coat-cuffs with the shears and letting it go at that, has its advantages.

Boston has just raised, by popular subscription, a half million dollars for a new Young Men's Christian Association building. Among all the contributions none is more interesting than that of a woman too poor to give anything in money. She supports herself by making little twine boxes, which she sells from door to door. To help the fund she sent seven of the boxes, with a letter apologizing for the smallness of the gift, but expressing the hope that it might bring in a dollar or two. The story of the humble gift was told at a public meeting, and the boxes were put up at auction. They sold for one hundred and thirty-two dollars—a sum greater than that contributed by many well-to-do givers.

For the fiscal year on which the adjutant general of the army has recently made report the number of desertions is placed at the astonishing figure of 4,992, or 4.97 per cent of the entire enlisted force. This is an increase of .38 per cent over the desertions of the year before. As to the causes of this remarkable defection from the ranks, Adjutant General Ainsworth assigns the abolition of the canteen, the monotony of garrison life, the increased amount of work and study demanded of the soldier, and the ease with which remunerative employment can be obtained in civil life at the present time. All of these causes have been attributed before to army desertions, and undoubtedly each contributes to the dissatisfaction of the enlisted private. The restoration of the canteen would meet with strong opposition, and it is doubtful if efforts in that direction would succeed at the present time. One would think that the additional work and study complained of would destroy the monotony of garrison life. With the rewards which certainly await efficiency and intelligence even in the ranks, garrison monotony should be appreciably diminished. Dull times in trade and business increase enlistments, and when prosperous seasons return to the country the enlisted men naturally long for the freedom and opportunities of civil life. Monotony, we should say, is the worst enemy of the soldier in times of peace, but it would seem as though the War Department might easily devise means to overcome this and make the enlisted man more contented with his condition.

It is now a banker who takes his fling at the colleges, charging them with inefficiency in preparing young men for business life. In an address before the Massachusetts Teachers' Association, J. G. Cannon deplored the "surprising lack" of business training available for college students to enable them to meet the conditions of "what is essentially a business nation," and declared that in this particular "American colleges are one hundred years behind the times." Is there any side on which the colleges have been left unassailed? Their morals, the encouragement they give to extravagance; football, fraternity life, the endeavor of institutions with old-fashioned ideals to cling to a classical curriculum, have been attacked. College presidents themselves have denounced the failure of colleges to conform to "modern demands." But the muck-raking of the higher education takes a curious form in the indictment of its shortcomings in preparing young men for banks and brokers' offices. Is this the function of colleges? If it is, the sooner campuses are established in Wall street and in the great industrial centers the better for the quality of instruction. The necessity will then be indicated of including corporation presidents and chairmen of boards in the faculty. But in a larger sense the opinion that American colleges do not prepare for business careers is controverted by the testimony of competent foreign observers who have noted that business life in America, on account of the large element of college men represented in it, is now on a higher plane than in any other country. The colleges may not equip students for positions in offices or mills, but they do provide that broader foundation for future prominence in commercial affairs the evidences of which are on every hand. It is not without significance that industry in America has attained its highest development at the very time when the participation of college-educated men in business is greatest.

EMBARRASSING POPULARITY

An amusing result of the popularity of Father Mathew, the great temperance advocate, is recorded in a recent book by Edward Gilliat, M. A., entitled "Heroes of Modern Crusades." Father Mathew had arrived in the dusk of the evening at the house of a parish priest in a remote part of Galway. His host conducted him to a room on the ground floor, in which was a large bay window without blind or curtain.

No sooner was Father Mathew in bed than he turned his face to the wall and fell into a deep slumber. Awaking, as usual, at an early hour in the morning, he opened his eyes, repeated a prayer, and turned toward the window. What was his dismay to see a crowd of people of both sexes and all ages standing tiptoe in front of the big bay window, some even flattening their noses against the glass, all eager to get a peep at his reverence.

A more modest man than he did not exist, and great was his embarrassment. He looked round furtively for a bell rope, but such a luxury was not to be thought of in a priest's house in Galway! He dare not even put a leg out to stamp on the floor; he was fairly in prison between the blankets.

The crowd was growing larger and the talk louder. He could hear bits, such as:

"Do ye see him, Mary, asthore?"

"Danny, agra, lave me take a look, an' God bless ye, child!"

"Oh, wisha, there's the blessed priest abed!"

"Mammy, there he lies, a-snoozin! I can see his poll!"

Three mortal hours did the prisoner wish for deliverance. Then his host came tapping, afraid to disturb his guest too early, saw the boys at gaze, and sent Pat to clear them off the house front.

MME. STEINHEIL'S ESCAPE.

Conservative Paris Believes That Justice Has Been Defeated.

Despite the popularity of the verdict which freed Mme. Katherine Steinheil of the charge of murdering her husband and mother, there are not a few among the conservative element of Paris society who believe that justice has been cheapted by the suppression of evidence for "reasons of state."

The court scrupulously excluded all evidence pertaining to the dashing career of the "Red Widow" from the time she made her debut in Paris bohemian society and became the acknowledged queen. It is known that among her worshipers were men famous in every walk of life. There is also no longer any question that President Faure died at her house, and to this day the circumstances of the demise are veiled in mystery.

The journalists who attended the famous trial noticed particularly that whenever the inquisition on the part of the prosecutor or judge became too dangerous for the safety of the defense, the woman accused uttered threats of making disclosures that would stir a hornet's nest in French politics, and despite the apparent defiance of the judge that she do so, the inquisition was gradually mollified.

It will be remembered, says Henri Chevalier in the Cincinnati Enquirer, that at one time during the hearing when the evidence seemed to become particularly convincing of her guilt, Mme. Steinheil excitedly said to the judge:

"You ought to have pity on me. So far I have shown perfect discretion. Do not exasperate me any longer. I am defending myself because unfortunately I am obliged to, but if you drive me to it I will cease to be discreet. Do you understand?"

All this was said with lightning rapidity. The president immediately dealt with another point.

There is no doubt that Mme. Steinheil could tell details of the Faure death or assassination and the preceding political plots that would create an awful scandal.

And there are many who think that the possession of these secrets saved her from punishment for at least complicity in the terrible double murder.

The President's Message.

The one sensation in President Taft's first annual message is its sharp contrast to the stormy epistles which his predecessor was wont, at short intervals, to send to the Congress and through it to the country. With its dull talk about fisheries treaties, unimportant boundary conventions, Liberia, the Congo Free State, patent conventions, Spitzbergen, the Chinese opium trade and reorganization of the State Department, the message begins as a soporific and develops into a cold and practical discussion of the country's affairs.

There is nothing new in what the President says about the necessity for economy in every branch of the government, but there is encouragement in the prospect he holds out that by the economies he recommends and payment for the Panama Canal by bonds the government may pull through without bond issues for current expenses, in spite of the revenue-killing Aldrich tariff.

Especially acceptable is the intimation that President Taft intends to construe liberally the maximum and minimum provisions of the new tariff law, so as to avoid, if possible, trade wars with countries that are injured by the prohibitive rates of the Aldrich law. In spite of the bad condition that the law has already produced in the trade relations between this country and Canada, the country will wait patiently to see what can be done toward averting similar trade troubles with Germany and France.

The President's objection to congressional investigation of the sugar trust, on the ground that it might give immunity to some of the men higher up in that offending monopoly, would be received with greater confidence if the Department of Justice had already manifested zeal in pursuit of the sugar officials responsible for the bribery and theft that have been made notorious.

A portion of the message that will attract wide attention is that in which the President reminds the Republican Congress of the Chicago platform's pledge for a law forbidding, except in emergencies, the issue by the federal courts of injunctions, temporary or permanent, without notice to the parties against whom the injunction is sought. Litigants, especially the leaders of labor organizations, will await with solicitude the action of Congress on this recommendation.

The smile comes involuntarily in reading of the safeguards which the President would throw around the drafting of the organic law for the coming states of Arizona and New Mexico. In his opinion the sum of all evil is contained in the Oklahoma constitution, which the people of that commonwealth, by overwhelming vote, refused to reject in accordance with his earnest advice, and hostility to any state constitution like that has become almost second nature with the author of the message.

What is said about postage, postal banks and ship subsidy may be commented upon separately. On the whole, the President does well to postpone for special messages, to be delivered later, the knotty problems of the Sherman anti-trust law, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the conservation of natural resources, including the interminable row between Ballinger and Pinchot.—St. Louis Republic.

Skirmishing for 1910.

Aside from the routine work of passing appropriation bills and otherwise providing for carrying out the details of administering the government, the present session of Congress is likely to resolve itself into a long skirmish for advantageous position on the congressional elections of next year. These elections will be the first battle in the campaign for the presidency in 1912, and neither party in Congress is oblivious to the importance of entering upon next year's conflict well armed and fortified.

The most vital question to be decided during the session is whether the breach between the Republican majority and the insurgents can be mended. In spite of the war declared against the latter by President Taft and Speaker Cannon, perpetuation of the feud would be so disastrous to the Republican party that Democrats need not count too confidently upon its continuance.

If the Republican majorities in the two houses are not demented, they will zealously co-operate with President Taft in the effort to keep the appropriations within the estimated revenues for the next fiscal year. Bond issues for current expenses of the government would not make good campaign literature for the Republicans in the coming congressional elections.

Whatever the Republicans may do, the Democrats in Congress will do their party and the country good service by waging, all through the session, an aggressive fight against the extravagance which has increased the number of employes of the Federal Government from 306,000 to 370,000 in two years and made treasury deficits in spite of heavy taxes and a liberal revenue.

We may be sure that Democrats in the House will let no opportunity pass to assail the usurpation by which that body has been converted into a machine for registering the mandates of the speaker and a half dozen other bosses who resent any attempt by members to carry out the instructions given by their constituents. They will surely give hearty aid to any and every effort that may be made by Republicans of independence and spirit to make the House representative of the people.

Searching investigation of the Sugar Trust and of the entire custom-house service should be urgently insisted upon by the Democrats in both houses. Recent revelations of corruption in the customs houses and of frauds by which the treasury has lost millions of dollars make this inquiry an imperative duty.—St. Louis Republic.

What the People Demand.

The question which this Congress must answer is whether there shall be progress in conservation or broader license given to exploitation. For the purpose of the followers of Aldrich and Cannon is plain, even while they tickle the ear of the President with promises of loyalty to his pure and public-spirited desires.

They will give lip service to his best recommendations. Some they will delude him into postponing. Some they will ignore. And some they will distort into legislation that will defeat the purposes they profess willingness to promote.

The revelations of sugar trust iniquity and the Standard Oil decision of the Federal Court may cause the leaders of reaction to do little more than permit the passage of the appropriations bills during this session—fooling the people meanwhile with some of the invariably futile Congressional investigations and postponing all else until after next fall's elections.

But, however long deferred, the purpose of the forces of reaction and exploitation will remain unaltered to proceed with schemes of legislation to increase the power of the great financial and industrial organizations and render them immune from interference by the general government, the crowning feature of the great reactionary program to be the Aldrich currency and banking scheme.

Against these forces the country looks to the President for leadership. And by that leadership the country will judge Taft and the Republican party. It will not avail him to submit good recommendations to a Congress run by Aldrich and Cannon and then stand aloof. The American people demand government, and not essays on government, from the occupant of the white house.—Philadelphia North American.

"Easy Money" Trusts.

It is significant that all the big frauds against the government are traceable to highly "protected" trusts.

In fact, the more highly protected is the trust and the more colossal its profits the more trouble it seems to give the government's investigators. Easy money seems to breed an insatiate greed for more money. When it is a corporate greed the laws of the country are mocked at, because corporations can not go to jail.

The sugar trust, seeped in "protection" to the limit, is caught short-weighting the government by methods that the average Dick Turpin or Jesse James would hold in contempt. The Standard Oil trust is convicted of secret rebates, in defiance of law and criminal restraint of trade.

Corporations have no consciences, we are told. Our jurisprudence has not yet progressed to the stage where directors of powerful corporations are made to expiate in prison the crimes of their respective corporations.

But the point to be chiefly remembered is that so-called "protection" is a breeder of crime. The history of American trusts proves it beyond cavil.

Protection itself, according to the economists, is morally unsound. How can we expect those who riot in the "easy money" of protective tariffs to obey the moral law?

Some day the American people will make no distinction between conspirators who steal millions from the government and the ordinary porch climber or pickpocket.

And to lessen the crop of trust criminals the people will wipe out the "protection" farce and adjust the tariff to the country's real needs.

Punish the Sugar Thieves.

Criminal conspiracy of the sugar trust, Republican politicians and Republican government officials to defraud the customs department is admitted. Speedy punishment of the trust and every individual implicated in its stealings is imperative.

Fine words butter no parsnips. Arrests, prosecutions and convictions are what the people demand. They are not content with Washington dispatches in which administration organs relate the eagerness of the Taft cabinet to punish the sugar thieves. They insist on action.

In the first place, the public is entitled to know whether the sugar smuggling conspiracy originated with trust officials or with government officials.

In the second place, the compromise verdict last spring should be thoroughly ventilated, so that the public may know by whose authority the sugar thieves were let off with a refund of $2,000,000 after United States Attorney Stimson had declared that a penalty of $65,000,000 should be collected from the trust.

Sugar trust lawyers make no secret of their boast that the trust was given a clean bill of health dating back to 1894 by the verdict of last April. Nor did they conceal at that time their rejoicing about a great victory over the government.

The Taft administration cannot afford to delay for one day prosecution of sugar trust thieves.—Chicago Journal.

Jack's Escape.

"So she married Jim, eh?"

"Yep."

"Why, when I left here she was literally throwing herself at the head of Jack."

"Well, you know what poor aim a woman has."—Houston Post.

A Double Hold.

Miss Moonlite—Er—let me hold the reins, please.

Mr. Bashphul—What will I do, then?

Miss Moonlite—You might hold the holder of the reins.—Boston Herald.

JUMP THROUGH.

KINGS OF SUGAR TRADE

Wonderful Tale of the Development of One of the World's Greatest Monopolies.

HAVEMEYERS' FIRST EFFORT.

Out of Bakery Came Great Enterprises and Absolute Control of Household Necessity.

The story of sugar in the United States is the history of the house of Havemeyer. It is one of the wonder tales of American industrial development. It is the story of a plodding beginning, a dogged determination coupled with an hereditary genius for the business, and finally of fruition in one of the greatest industrial monopolies the world has ever seen, says Judson C. Welliver in Hampton's Magazine.

The sugar trust is a monument to the genius of one man, Henry O. Havemeyer. It is the consummation of the efforts of four generations of ancestral intimacy with sugar in this country and Germany. From the day when the Havemeyer family started its first refinery in America over a century ago, sugar has meant Havemeyer, and Havemeyer has meant sugar. Generation after generation the house of Havemeyer has followed sugar in diplomacy, in politics, in industry, in commerce, in high finance.

Out of the same blood, and bone, and brain which created that first refinery—so little and so primitive that it was called a bakery, and its proprietors lodged in rooms above the place where they worked—came also the conception of the American Sugar Refining Company. That corporation mobilized the scattered fragments of a demoralized industry, brought profits where bankruptcy had been, and in twenty years was able to build up a concern listing $130,000,000 of assets in its balance sheet.

Beginning with possibly $9,000,000 of actual property and $10,000,000 of borrowed money, the present corporation and its predecessor, the Sugar Refineries Company, since 1887 have earned and paid in dividends just about $132,000,000.

The sugar trust, about ten years ago, went into glucose, starch and all the various products of corn. A tremendous consolidation, under the Corn Products Company, was finally effected, which almost monopolized these lines of business, naturally and closely related to the sugar business. But there was a hitch in getting control of one subsidiary company; the sugar trust discovered that that subsidiary was in control of a no less doughty antagonist than Standard Oil, and there was a sharp, sensational battle between the house of Havemeyer and the house of Rockefeller. In the settlement, when the war was over, Standard Oil treated sugar as an equal; the Havemeyers were not only left in undisputed control, but Henry O. Havemeyer became a director in the National City Bank, the foremost engine of Standard Oil finance.

Thus the sugar trust, with its $130,000,000 of assets; the subsidiary beet sugar concerns it controls, with about $85,000,000 of capitalization; the Corn Products Company, with about $80,000,000 capital, and all the Standard Oil family, ever thrifty, cheerful, and given much to works of education, charity and religion, have been brought together in a sweet accord.

TO FLOOD TOWN SITE.

Shoshone Valley of Wyoming to Be Irrigated by the Government.

The little town of Marquette up in the Shoshone valley of Wyoming, is preparing to get a move on, for one of these days the ground on which it stands will be 100 feet under water; so the Marquetteites are preparing for the day when the flood shall come and they will hoof it off to some more elevated plain.

The cause of all this trouble to Marquette and a few ranches in the neighborhood is Uncle Sam, who is preparing to put a plug in the canyon between Rattlesnake and Cedar mountains, where the Shoshone river roars through, and the result is going to be a great big pond four miles wide, the Pathfinder says.

The government wants to soak the soil of about 105,000 acres of land for the people of that region, so what is now practically worthless will blossom and bring forth fruit, each tree and bush of its own kind. For three years the engineers have been hustling around out there getting things to going and now they are going at a straight-ahead rate, and Wyoming is going to possess the highest dam in the world.

The place that the government picked out for building the great reservoir is an ideal one, right between the great precipitous sides of two mountains where they rise to a height of something over 2,000 feet. Here the water has been careering and tumbling through for ages while lands not far away were parched and useless.

It was impossible to do anything in the chasm while the great sweep of waters passed through it. So the question was how to divert the river temporarily from its course so the foundations of a great concrete dam could be laid. There was nothing to do but drill a tunnel of 600 feet through the side of the mountain and let the water run around the spot where the dam was to be built.

Special roads had to be constructed for eight miles along the mountain side where the slope was anywhere from 45 to 90 degrees. Every now and then a tunnel had to be dug so as to let the road proceed. Over this dangerous highway the machinery had to be hauled, but they succeeded in getting there with it, and they did drill the tunnel through the mountain and sent the water foaming through a great tube, leaving the canyon dry.

Then began the work of building in earnest. In order to get a rock bottom for the foundation of the dam, down, down, down went the engineers, until 87 feet below the river bed they found what they were seeking and began to pour in the concrete. They have recently filled in the excavation and are now working on the portion of the dam which is to stand above the bed of the river.

But it will be some time yet before this is done, for the great wall must rise more than 238 feet from the surface of that deep canyon, and with the 87 feet below that the total height will be a little over 325 fete. At the base the concrete plug in the canyon will be 198 feet thick, while at the top but ten feet, and when completed it will, with its 75,000 barrels of cement which will have been used, and its 90,000 tons of stone, present such strength that no pressure can bear it down.

AFTER ELLIS ISLAND.

Things That Happen to Some Pretty Immigrants in New York.

Maybe you don't believe these stories of the "white slave" traffic in New York. Think they are inspired by political bias, perhaps? Well, on the authority of a leader of a tough east side gang, the tenth has never been told. "Jimmy"—that isn't his name, but it will do—doesn't deal in the blood and flesh of women, nor do any of his men. Murder, perhaps—just plain, honest murder—they might not hesitate at; repeating is a worthy occupation to them; highway robbery and burglary leaves no stain upon a man, in their manner of thinking. But the men of that gang are Irish to a man, almost, and the Irish protect women always. Naturally enough, "Jimmy" is not attacking the political system that makes his existence possible. He is no reformer. But he isn't afraid to tell what he knows. "I'm not sayin' that politicians run this woman business," said Jimmy, according to the Cincinnati Times-Star New York correspondent. "But I'll tell you one thing I know and you can guess for yourself. Not three weeks ago there was a steamer load of dagos and hunkies come in. Some of thim young women was purty as flowers. They was a coupler men in the steerage that spots the girls that has no relatives here in Noo Yawk to raise a holler, and when the boat gets in they tips it off to the knuckle-nosed thief that they work for."

Jimmy didn't call this person a thief. He used a stronger word—by far. "Thim girls goes troo Ellis Island and they is brought to th' bathery on their way uptown. Some of 'em goes peaceable, depindin' on the stories they'se told of good places waitin' for 'em at fine wages. But the purtiest of the bunch don't fall for thim yarns. She's goin' to some frinds of her's, she says, and she has their address. Well, what happens? Nawthin' much, only between the landin' stage, and the subway entrance a taxicab whirls up and this purty girl is thrown in and two men—thim fellers call thimsilves men—they chokes her cries and you know what the rest of the story is. And there's nothin' done. No report ever made to the police. No newspaper ever heard of it. And that purty, innocent, sweet-faced little girl is lost—lost, I tell you. It'd be no good gettin' her back now. Do you think they could have pulled that off without some one standin' in? Because I don't."

Origin of "The Big Stick."

The first association of Theodore Roosevelt with the phrase, "the big stick," dates from a speech delivered by him at Chicago in 1902. On that occasion he said: "There is a homely old adage which runs, 'Speak softly and carry a big stick, and you will go far.'"

The New York World, in an editorial published Sept. 29, 1904, revived the speech, contrasting it, in parallel columns, with Roosevelt's pacific speech to the delegates of the Interparliamentary Peace Union, Sept. 24, 1904.

The first cartoon embodying the "big stick" idea was published in the World of Oct. 12, 1904. It represented Roosevelt mounted on a fiery steed, throwing a lasso around the flying Angel of Peace and carrying a cudgel bearing the words 'big stick" upon it.

It is interesting to notice the varying changes in cartoons in the character of this stick. At first it was simply a long, round stick of uniform thickness. It later changed to the knotted club or bludgeon type, and now it is often seen with a spear protruding from the large end. This latter form was derived from Roosevelt's expression, "My spear knows no brother." A marked contrast is shown in Roosevelt's emblem and the "mailed fist" of Emperor William. William's symbol typifies Power and Force—nothing else. Roosevelt's "big stick," although formidable, means peace—but peace backed up by the "big stick."—Success Magazine.

The Usefulness of "Central."

The telephone subscriber has come to regard "Central" as an ever available bureau of information. The score of the ball game, the latest election returns, the location of the big fire the light from which can be seen on the horizon, and even the exact time, are all points on which the long-suffering operator must be posted.

The other day, according to the Operating Bulletin of the Chicago Telephone Company, a man called up a suburban exchange, and said, despair in his voice:

"My wife has gone out, leaving word for me to cook the spinach for dinner, but I do not know how long to boil it."

The operator switched the subscriber to the supervisor, who had been to cooking school, and she promptly told the man all he needed to know about the treatment of spinach.

A New York woman has patented a counterfeit note detector on the principle of the old-style stereoscope, a frame to hold the note passing in front of a strong magnifying lens.

THE WAVERLY
HOTEL
CLYDE OBERLIN, Prop.

Warm Meals and Lunch served at all hours, day or night.

Fine line of Candies, Cigars and Tobacco.

East Side Broadway

Dr. Harrison
PHYSICIAN and SURGEON.
BUTLER, - IND.

Dr. Bulson
OFFICE AND RESIDENCE 219 WEST WAYNE STREET
FORT WAYNE.
PRACTICE LIMITED TO DISEASES OF THE EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT.
GLASSES ADJUSTED.

E. B. DUNTEN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.
Prompt, Careful and Efficient; Attention given to All Legal Business.
Office over Phillips drug store, Butler.

BEECHLER & SON,
DENTISTS.
CROWN AND BRIDGE WORK
Plates and all Dental Surgery given prompt attention. Office over Shapland's store. Sunday 9:30 to 12 o'clock
BUTLER, INDIANA.

FRANK A. BRINK
Attorney-at-Law
Notary Public.
Special Attention Given to Collections

Dr. W. F. Shumaker
Special Attention Given to Chronic Diseases
OFFICE HOURS
7 to 8 a. m. 1 to 3 p. m.
7 to 8 p. m.

5 DROPS
TRADE MARK
THE STANDARD REMEDY FOR ALL FORMS OF
RHEUMATISM
LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, NEURALGIA, KIDNEY TROUBLES, CATARRH, ASTHMA and KINDRED DISEASES
GIVES QUICK RELIEF
Applied externally it affords almost instant relief from pain, while permanent results are being effected by taking it internally, purifying the blood, dissolving the poisonous substance and removing it from the system.
DR. C. L. GATES
Hancock, Minn., writes:
"A little girl here had such a weak back caused by Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble that she could not stand on her feet. The moment they got her down on the floor she would scream with pains. I treated her with '5-DROPS' and today she runs around as well and happy as can be. I prescribe '5-DROPS' for my patients and use it in my practice."
TEST "5-DROPS" FREE
If you are suffering with Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble or any kindred disease, write to us for a trial bottle of '5-DROPS.'
"5-DROPS" is entirely free from opium, cocaine, morphine, alcohol, laudanum and other similar ingredients.
Large Size Bottle "5-DROPS" (300 Doses) $1.00. For Sale by Druggists.
SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE COMPANY
Dept. 80. 174 Lake Street, Chicago

He Hustled.
He Advertised.
He put himself and his business before the people, and is now reaping his reward. If you desire to reach the buying classes you must patronize the newspaper that is widely circulated. ... You take no chances when you advertise in This Paper.

JANUARY

0440

L1134

The Redemption of David Corson

By CHARLES FREDERIC GOSS

Copyright, 1900, by The Bowen-Merrill Company. All Rights Reserved

CHAPTER XXI.

Quietly, gently, briefly as he could, David narrated the events of the past few months, and as he did so she drew in short breaths or long inspirations as the story shifted from phase to phase, and when at last he had finished, she clasped her hands and gazed up into the depths of the sky with eyes that were swimming in tears.

"Poor doctor, poor old man," Pepeeta sighed at last. "Oh! How we have wronged him, how we have made him suffer. He was always kind! He was rough, but he was kind. Oh! why could I not have loved him? But I did not, I could not. My heart was asleep. It had never once waked from its slumber until it heard your voice, David. And, afterwards—well I could not love him! But why should we have wronged him so? How base it was! How terrible! I pity him. I blame myself—and yet I cannot wish him back. What does all this mean for us, David? Perhaps you can see the light now, as you used to! I think from your face and your voice that you are your old self again. Oh! if you can see that inner light once more, consult it. Ask it if there is any reason why we cannot be happy now? Tell it that your Pepeeta is too weak to endure this separation any longer. I am only a woman, David! I cannot any longer bear life alone. I love you too deeply. I cannot live without you."

Waiting long before he answered, as if to reflect and be sure, David said quietly but confidently, "Pepeeta, I cannot see any reason why we should not begin our lives over again, starting at this very place from which we made that false beginning three long years ago. We cannot go back, but, in a sense, we can begin again."

"But can we really begin again?" she asked. "How is it possible? I do not see! We are not what we were. There is so much of evil in our hearts. We were pure and innocent three years ago. Is it not necessary to be pure and innocent? And how can we be with all this fearful past behind us? We cannot become children again!"

"I have thought much and deeply about it," David responded. "I know not what subtle change has taken place within me, but I know that it has been great and real. My heart was hard, but not it is tender. It was full of despair, and now it is full of hope. I am not as innocent as I was that night when you heard me speak in the old Quaker meeting-house, or rather I am not innocent in the same way. My heart was then like a spring among the mountains! it had a sort of virgin innocence. I had sinned only in thought, and in the dreamy imaginations of unfolding youth. It is different now; a whole world of realized, actualized evil lies buried in the depths of my soul; it is there, but it is there only as a memory and not as a living force. There must in some way, I cannot tell how, be a purity of guilt as well as of innocence, and perhaps it is a purity of a still higher and finer kind. There was a peace of mind which I had as an innocent boy, which I do not possess now; but I have another and deeper peace. There was a childish courage; but it was the courage of one who had never been exposed to danger. There is another courage in my heart now, and it is the courage of the veteran who has bared his bosom to the foe! I know not by what strange alchemy these diverse elements of evil can have become absorbed and incorporated into this newer and better life, but this I do know, and nothing can make me doubt it—that while I am not so good, yet I am better; while I am not so pure, yet I am purer. Yes, Pepeeta, I think we can go back on our track. We can be born again! We can once more be little children. I feel myself a little child to-night—I who, a few days ago, was like an old man, bowed and crushed under a load of wretchedness and misery! God seems near to me; life seems sweet to me. Let us begin again, Pepeeta. We have traveled round a circle, and have come back to the old starting point. Let us begin again."

"Oh! David," she said, kissing the hands she held; "how like your old self you are to-night. Your words of hope have filled my soul with joy. Is it your presence alone that has done it, or is it God's, or is it both? A change has come over the very world around us. All is the same, and yet all is different. The stars are brighter. The brook has a sweeter music. There is something of heaven in this intoxicating cup you have put to my lips! I seem to be enveloped by a spiritual presence! Hush! Do you hear voices?"

The excitement had been too intense for this sensitive woman to endure with tranquillity. Her heart, her conscience, her imagination had suffered an almost unendurable strain. She flung herself into the arms of her lover and trembled upon his breast, and he held her there until she had regained her composure.

"Do you really love me yet?" she asked, at length, raising her face and gazing up into his with an expression in which the simple affection of a little child was strangely blended with the passionate love of an ardent and adoring woman.

"Love you!" he cried; "your face has been the last vision upon which I gazed when I fell into a restless slumber, and the first which greeted returning consciousness, when I waked from my troubled dream. My life has been but a fragment since we parted; a part of my individuality seemed to have been torn away. I have always felt that neither time nor space could separate us for——"

At that instant the horse which had stood patiently beside them on the bridge, shook his head, rattled his bridle and whinnied.

"Poor fellow! I had forgotten all about him in my joy!" said David, starting at the sound, and patting his shoulder. "You have had a hard run, and are tired and hungry. I must get you to the barn and feed you. They will miss you at the stable to-night, but I will send you back to-morrow, or ride you myself, that is, if Pepeeta wishes to be rid of me."

He said this teasingly, but smiled at her—a tender and confident smile.

"Oh! you shall never leave me again—not for a moment," she cried, pressing his arm against her heart.

He paused a moment and looked down as if a new thought had struck him.

"What is the matter?" she asked.

"Do you think they will welcome me home?" he said, with a penitence and humility that touched her deeply.

"Welcome you home?" she exclaimed; "you do not know them, David. They talk of nothing else. They have sent messages to you in every direction. The door is never locked, and there has never been a night since you disappeared that a candle has not burned to its socket on the sill of your window; what do you think of that? You do not know them, David. They are angels of mercy and goodness. I have been selfish in keeping you so long to myself. Come, let us hasten."

Just at that instant a loud halloo was heard—"Pepeeta, Pepeeta, Pepeeta!"

"It is Steven—the dear boy! He has missed me. You have a dangerous rival, David."

She said this with a merry laugh and cried out, "Steven, Steven, Steven!"

"Where are you?" he called.

"I am here by the bridge!" she cried, in her silver treble.

"She is here by the bridge!" The deep bass voice of her lover went rolling through the woods.

There was silence for a moment, and then they heard a joyous shout, "Uncle David! Uncle David! Oh! mother, father, it is Uncle David."

There was a crashing in the bushes, and the great half-grown boy bounded through them and flung himself into the arms extended to him, with all the trust, all the love, all the devotion of the happy days of old.

CHAPTER XXII.

David's welcome home was quiet, cordial and heartfelt. The Quaker life is calm; storms seldom appear on its surface, even though they must sometimes agitate its depths; mind and heart are brought under remarkable control; sympathy and charity are extended to the erring; hospitality is a duty and an instinct; domestic love is deep and powerful.

When David had frankly told his story, he was permitted to resume his place in the life of the old homestead as if nothing had happened. He expressed to his brother and sister his love for Pepeeta, and his determination to make her his wife in lawful marriage.

They assented to his plans, and at the earliest possible moment the ministers and elders of the little congregation of Friends were asked to meet, in accordance with their custom, to "confer with him about a concern which was on his mind."

They came, and heard his story and his intention, told with straightforward simplicity. They, too, touched with sympathy and moved to confidence, agreed that there was no obstacle to the union. The date of the wedding was placed at the end of the month, which, by their ecclesiastical law, must elapse after this avowal, and an evening meeting was appointed for the ceremony.

In the meantime David remained quietly at home, and took up his old labors as nearly as possible where he had laid them down. Such a life as he had been leading induces a distaste for manual labor, and sometimes he chafed against it. Again and again he felt his spirit faint within him when he recalled the scenes of excitement through which he had passed, and looked forward to years of this unvaried drudgery; but he never permitted his soul to question his duty! He had decided in the most solemn reflections of his life that he would conquer himself in the place where he had been defeated, perform the tasks which he had so ignominiously abandoned, and then, when he had demonstrated his power to live a true life himself, devote his strength to helping others.

The charms of this pastoral existence gradually came to his support in his heroic resolution. The unbroken quiet of the happy life which had irritated him at first, grew to be more and more a balm to his wounded spirit. The society of the animal world lent its gracious consolation; the great horses, the ponderous oxen, the doves fluttering and cooing about the barnyard, the suckling calves, the playful colts, all came to him as to a friend, and in giving him their confidence and affection awakened his own.

Above all Pepeeta was ever near him. It was no wonder that her beauty threw its spell over David's spirit. It had been enhanced by sorrow, for the human countenance, like the landscape, requires shadow as well as sunshine to perfect its charms. But the burst of sunshine which had come with David's return had brought it a final consummation which transfigured even the Quaker dress she had adopted. Her bonnet would never stay over her face but fell back on her shoulders, her animated countenance emerging from this envelope like the bud of a rose from its sheath. She was as a butterfly at that critical instant when it is ready to leave its chrysalis and take wing. She was a soul enmeshed in an ethereal body, rather than a body which ensheathed a soul. Quietly and sedately the lovers met each other at the table, or at the spring, or at the milking.

And when the labors of the day had ended, they sat beneath the spreading hackberry trees, or wandered through the garden, or down the winding lane to the meadow, and reviewed the past with sadness or looked forward to the future with a chastened joy. Their spirits were subdued and softened, their love took on a holy rather than a passionate cast, they felt themselves beneath the shadow of an awful crime, and again and again when they grew joyous and almost gay they were checked by the irrepressible apprehension that out from under the silently revolving wheels of judgment some other punishment would roll.

Tenderly as they loved each other, and sweet as was that love, they could not always be happy with such a past behind them! In proportion to the soul's real grandeur it must suffer over its own imperfections. This suffering is remorse. In proud and gloomy hearts which tell their secrets only to their own pillows, its tears are poison and its rebukes the thrust of daggers. But in those which, like theirs, are gentle and tender by nature, remorseful tears are drops of penitential dew. David and Pepeeta suffered, but their suffering was curative, for pure love is like a fountain; by its incessant gushing from the heart it clarifies the most turbid streams of thought or emotion. Each week witnessed a perceptible advance in peace, in rest, in quiet happiness, and at last the night of their marriage arrived, and they went together to the meeting house.

(To be continued.)

WORKING WOMEN AND BALLOT.

Argument to Show That They Would Be Worse Off with It.

The lack of the ballot has nothing whatever to do with the fact that women workers are paid less than men in the same occupations; the grant of the ballot would not raise the rate of women's wages to an equality of that of men's, says the Boston Transcript. The comparatively low pay of women is due to economic and social causes which the voting power could not affect in the slightest degree. Briefly put the chief of these causes are: (1) The lower efficiency of the average woman worker, resulting mainly from physical limitations; (2) the temporary nature of the employment, which in most cases is terminated by marriage; (3) the rapid increase of the supply of woman labor, which in recent decades has been crowding into occupations already filled by men; (4) the lack of organization, which has left women at the mercy of sweat masters; (5) the parasitic relation of many women toward their industrial occupations, which are not their sole means of support. These causes would persist even if women had the ballot. Whatever the suffrage would or would not do for woman, it would assuredly not bring her equality of pay with man.

Nor would the ballot assist working women to obtain better legislative protection against injurious conditions of employment. On the contrary, much of the present legislation limiting the hours and regulating the terms of employment for women would be rendered unconstitutional by the proposed extension of the suffrage. This legislation, so far as it applies to adult women, now stands the test of constitutionality only because women are in the same class with minors as regards their constitutional status. If women were given the ballot and thus were placed in the same class with adult men, they would be deprived of the special protection now afforded them by the labor code. In this respect the working woman would be worse off with the ballot than she is without the boomerang "weapon."

Hope for the Victims of Narcotics.

In an article in Success Magazine Alexander Lambert, M. D., says: From time immemorial mankind has sought substances to help celebrate his joys, or soothe his sorrows, or blunt the drudgery of his existence. Opium and alcohol have most frequently been used for these purposes. Of late years cocaine has been added to this list. Whenever these narcotics have been employed for these purposes they have often been used to excess.

When the habit of the excessive use of narcotics has once been formed, so rare indeed have been the instances of individuals successfully freeing themselves from their enslaving habit that they have been regarded as medical curiosities. In the whole broad range of the practice of medicine there is no situation more trying to patient and physician than the struggle to obliterate the craving for narcotics and to re-establish the patient in a normal state in which he may again face successfully the problems of existence.

Until recently this seemed all but impossible, but lately a treatment was discovered which successfully obliterates the craving for narcotics, and persons who were formerly enslaved may now have the opportunity to begin life anew without their resistless desire for narcotic indulgence.

The Oyster Crop.

There was a man in Tennessee who was locally famous for his eating capacity. His name was Tom Raines, and he was under discussion at the village store one night.

"How many raw oysters do you reckon Tom Raines kin eat?" asked one of the sitters.

"I dunno," replied another, "how many is they?"—Saturday Evening Post.

An Example.

"Some adjectives," said the teacher, "are made from nouns, such as dangerous, meaning full of danger; and hazardous, full of hazard. Can any boy give me another example?"

"Yes, sir," replied the fat boy at the end of the form, "pious, full of pie."—Sporting Times.

The Ruling Passion.

The editor was dying, says an exchange, but when the doctor bent over, placed his ear on his breast and said: "Poor man! Circulation almost gone!" the dying editor sat up and shouted: "You're a liar; we have the largest circulation in the country."—Atlanta Constitution.

Got There First.

Mrs. Hicks (relating burglar scare)—Yes, I heard a noise and got up, and there under the bed I saw a man's legs.

Mrs. Wicks—Mercy! The burglar's?

Mrs. Hicks—No, my husband's—he had heard the noise, too.—Boston Transcript.

No Extra Strain.

Highblower (to prospective butler)—Seventy-five dollars a month! Why, that's all I pay my bookkeeper!

Butler—But he doesn't have to associate every day with your family, sir!—Puck.

One of the Great Unwashed.

"Your pictures are inconsistent."

"Why?"

"You illustrate this hobo joke with a wash drawing."—Kansas City Times.

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN

The Term "Old Maid."

I wish the coming generation of women would try amid their more spectacular reform to abolish the term "old maid." Impossible, you say. Not at all. How do it? Simply by ceasing to say old maid when you mean "unmarried woman," and by teaching children to do the same.

I don't believe there is a phrase in the language that has caused as much heartache and shame as those two words, says a writer in the Albany Times-Union. Show me an unmarried woman between 30 and 40 who wouldn't rather be called a scold, or an egotist, or almost anything rather than an old maid. You can't. One hears a good deal about women marrying for a home. I don't believe half so many women marry for a home as marry to keep from being called old maids. And I don't wonder, for the idea "old maid" no longer simply means an unmarried woman. In its travels down the centuries it has picked up such unpleasant suggestions of angularity and unloveliness that the most independent woman might shrink from such a designation.

There are plenty of women who by their disagreeble characteristics do deserve such a term of reproach as old maid has grown to be, but they are not all on one side of the altar by any means. I know several married old maids, and I know several unmarried women who radiate that love and womanliness which are apt to associate with the married state. It is the insinuation that one has never been loved that makes the term old maid most cruel.

The Best Life.

The surprise of life always comes in finding how we have missed the things which have lain nearest us—how we have gone far away to seek that which was close by our side all the time. Men who live best and longest are apt to come, as the result of their living, to the conviction that life is not only richer, but simpler, than it seemed to them at first. Men go to vast labor, seeking after peace and happiness. It seems to them as though it were far away from them — as though they must go through vast and strange regions to get it. They must pile up wealth, they must see every possible danger or mishap guarded against before they can have peace. Upon how many old men has it come with a strange surprise that peace could come to rich or poor only with contentment, and that they might as well have been content at the very beginning as at the very end of life. They have made a long journey for their treasure; and when at last they stop to pick it up, lo! it is shining close beside the footprint which they left when they set out to travel in a circle!—Phillips Brooks.

Eat Your Cake, Don't Save It.

"People are always quoting the saying about eating your cake to the unfortunates whom they wish to force to save money," says a philosophical woman writer. "I know a lot of people who have never had pretty homes, pretty clothes nor what I may call a good time, because they are saving their money for an old age which they may never reach. I had rather live in a poorhouse in my old age than in one all my life, as some folks do. I believe in the apostle's injunction to take no thought for the morrow, but to enjoy the things of to-day. So you cannot scare me with any tale that if I eat my cake I cannot have it. My motto is, 'If you save the cake you cannot have it,' and it is much more logical than the other."

New Sleeves.

While sleeves continue to be close fitting at the armhole they are steadily increasing in width toward the lower edge. The long sleeve is also yielding to the three-quarter or "bridge" sleeve for dressy wear. Three of these new sleeves show the oversleeve of cloth above an undersleeve of lighter fabric—a smart notion just now. The sleeve in the center shows an attractive arrangement of wrist trimming in the plaits, small buttons and moire silk cuff. The two remaining models show a Marie Antoinette sleeve with elbow frills for a house gown, and a chiffon sleeve banded by cloth strappings, for a chiffon bodice built to match a cloth skirt.

"Dear Hubbie" Will Good.

"To my dear hubble I give all my estate, real and personal, for he is entitled to it," was the will that figured in a $3,500 real estate lawsuit tried in court at Lancaster, Pa., recently.

William V. Eisenberger sold a property for $3,500 to Mrs. Sallie E. Eckman, but the latter refused to accept the deed tendered because Eisenberger's title came to him through the will of Mrs. Eisenberger, above quoted.

The court ruled that the testatrix, the wife of Eisenberger, intended that he should inherit her estate, even if she did not mention him by name, the inference being that she meant her husband when she called him "Dear Hubbie."

Mrs. Lucy O. Perkins, now an expert guide at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, has been on the regular staff of the museum for several years.

There is one woman student at the Missouri School of Mines, Miss Eva Hirdler, of St. Louis. Miss Hirdler, who is in the junior class, is working for the degree of mining engineer.

England has a mounted ambulance corps of women. The first six months of the course are devoted to first aid and nursing. After that attention is paid to shooting and riding. The corps is increasing in numbers.

Mrs. Philip N. Moore, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, says that during her recent visit to the Isthmus she found eighteen clubs in the canal zone doing work which compares most favorably with that of clubs in the States.

The Bureal of Education in Manila has established a training school for nurses. Miss Malvina M. McKeever, of Roxbury, Mass., who served as a nurse in the Spanish war and later a matron in the civil hospital at Manila, is to have charge of the new undertaking. The students will be Filipino girls.

Miss Lizzie L. Johnson, of Casey, Ill., during the twenty-seven years that she was confined to her room by illness, is said to have raised $17,000 by making and selling bookmarks. Besides giving a large amount to foreign missions, Miss Johnson assists several native Christian workers in the Orient. She is said to have carried on the large correspondence connected with her work without assistance.

Hanging Pictures.

Our sitting room wall was covered with small framed pictures, and when new paper had to be hung we were in despair at the thought of removing them. The difficulty of striking lath with the picture hook was well known, from experience. To our clumsy expedient of measuring distances the paper hanger offered a clever suggestion. When the picture hook had been removed he inserted in the hole a small piece of wooden toothpick, which pierced the damp paper as it was hung. To remove the splinter and screw the hook again into place was a simple operation.

Making Pies for Sale.

At one of the largest pie-baking establishments in this country it is said that on an average thirty-one pies per minute are turned out, and the nightly capacity of the plant is 30,000 pies. Under the methods in vogue a short time ago this would require the services of from 80 to 100 bakers; but the work is now done by a much smaller number, owing to the introduction of machinery. The trimming of the pies was formerly an operation which required the services of many persons, but a machine has been recently devised by which the task is done almost automatically. Indeed it is only necessary to have attendance to feed the pies to the machine and to take them away again. The actual baking is done in rotary ovens, which are operated by a single man, and a few of these machines will look after the product of a large place. In the particular plant under discussion two men are kept busy in the delivery room, where the pies are sorted and gotten ready for the delivery men.

How's Your Cold!

An old way to keep a cold from getting worse is to go to bed and get into a gentle sweat, and take only as little as is consistent with comfort of drink and of watery foods, such as gruels and soups. If any aching or grip symptms come up it is well to take a hot bath at bedtime, getting covered up at once, and then take a big, stiff drink of hot water and ginger. Do not get up or get uncovered in the night. In the morning take a half-minute shower and a hard rub down in a warm room, and the chances are that little signs of cold remain. Do not take every cold cure that Tom, Dick and Harry recommend, and understand once for all that most colds in the last twenty years have mixed up more or less with grip germs, and grip is not cured in a day.—New York Press.

Cleaning Waxed Floors.

Those who have waxed floors in their dwellings know, according to Indoors and Out, how invaluable turpentine is in cleaning them. With sandpaper, or steel wool, dipped in turpentine, the blackest coating, which is apt to accumulate in winter on waxed floors not frequently polished, can be easily and quickly removed; and a washing with turpentine does much to brighten up any waxed floor; preparatory to the application of a light, fresh coat of wax and polishing with the weighted brush. As with all other painters' materials, however, turpentine is shamefully adulterated, and care must be taken to get only the best and purest from some thoroughly reliable dealer. The usual adulterant is cheap benzine, and as benzine turns good floor wax a dirty white, turpentine so adulterated has an injurious effect on the floor. The floor "waxes" made with tallow show less effect from adulterated turpentine, but the wise householder will use only those floor waxes which are made with beeswax and turpentine, with a little parafin, but no tallow.

FIXINGS FOR THE HAIR.

BANDEAU ORNAMENT. THE CORONET BRAID.

The clever girl can make pretty coiffure ornaments like this. The bandeau itself is of gold gauze sewn with small pink beads and edged with narrow gold braid. A slender wire is run along both edges to keep the bandeau in shape. At the ends are attached big pink roses and a bit of maidenhair, the roses being pinned fast to the hair just back of the ears and the bandeau crossing the head just back of the brow.

Invisible combs and hairpins have been the rule in Paris for several seasons, but now the tide has turned and hairpins are monstrous affairs, which are the most conspicuous part of the hairdressing. The coronet braid, attached with half a dozen huge shell pins and caught underneath at the back with a shell barette to match, is the modish coiffure arrangement now.

Gage Tricorne.

The continental blue and buff, dear to the hearts of every true American, are, oddly enough, particularly fashionable, just as Paris makes the three-cornered hat the mode. The new buff shade, however, is called mandarin by the Paris milliners, and is a tawny shade which harmonizes well with the rich, dark blue. The brim of this tricorne is faced wth blue velvet and the cluster of clipped ostrich feathers matches the buff colored felt. The brim is laced with the fashionable tarnished gilt cord.

Saw Through Him.

Said a sorrowful spook to his wid:
"You don't love me as much as you did!"
"You forget," said his frau,
"I can see through you now,
From the tips of your shoes to your lid."
—Life.

Civil War Stories

At Tunica Bend.

It was customary for the Federal posts after the occupation of the Lower Mississippi, to send out foraging expeditions in all directions. As they extended their lines up the river to Baton Rouge, and afterward, in 1863, to Port Hudson, the foraging would sometimes reach long distances on either side of the river, as well as by steamboat upward.

Our company of "rifles," belonging to the Department of Mississippi, were kept continually in motion on the east bank, looking out for such expeditions and when we saw them coming to notify the people as fast as possible and do what we could to annoy and prevent their accomplishing anything. I think it was in the winter of 1863-4 that our company of "rifles" was detailed to patrol the east bank of the Mississippi, including in our district Tunica Bend, old Fort Adams, as well as a large scope of country above and below.

We had been having some very hard and cold rains, and the roads, except on the bluff lands, were very muddy, some of the time almost impassable. The roads were just drying up a little, when one day we discovered a steamboat coming up the river, on which we plainly saw a number of Federal soldiers. We knew at once that a foraging expedition was on hand, and we quickly made our preparations to watch them closely and prevent as much as we could their success. Couriers were sent off to headquarters for assistance, while the rest of us followed up the enemy at a distance, so as to cause no alarm. The boat continued on up to Tunica Bend, where it landed, and, after considerable delay, sent out a number of wagons, with escorts of soldiers. Still other squads of soldiers started out independently, so that within a short time the Federal soldiers were pretty well scattered. We resisted several good chances to capture small parties, expecting every minute to see our reserve coming in.

The day was fast passing away, and we were getting to be very impatient and not a little discouraged. Just as we were on the point of cutting off a half dozen adventurous Yankees we heard several shots fired in the direction taken by the wagons. Our men were concentrated immediately and held ready to charge as soon as there was an opportunity. We had not long to wait. The heavy rattling of a wagon jolting along as though there was not room enough in the road, but it must strike first one side and then the other, struck our ears and soon came in sight.

The negro driver was lashing away for life, while on either side rode Federal soldiers, pricking up the mules with their sabers. Close after them we saw our reserve, and we dashed in without waiting for a command, and surrounded the wagon. It was quick work. One or two of the Federals fired at us, and then, as they saw they were surrounded, gave up. They were sent to the rear under guard, while the rest of us, with well spread skirmish line, advanced. We could hear the wagons rattling loudly ahead of us, and we quickly closed in to stop all that were not already in ahead of us. The shots already fired had of course warned all within hearing that an attack had been made, and safety could only be assured by immediately returning to the boat.

As soon as our line closed the lower end of the semicircle on the river, pickets were left on the roads to ambush any foragers still out in that direction. The remainder of our force pushed on up the river some distance toward a large plantation, from which the army wagons had come loaded, and struck a company of the enemy, who were apparently not expecting us so soon. They made no stand, the officers running first, and after firing a few shots scattered like sheep. Toward the river, the direction they took, after passing the plantation fence, all was wild and broken into ravines, thickly covered with bushes and trees, and afforded an excellent cover for the running Federals. One or two only were killed, several wounded, and we took a half dozen prisoners. We also had two wounded. Had the ground been clear we could have bagged the lot. As it was, we came into possession of several strong new army wagons, well fitted out with mules and drivers.

We divided up, advancing a skirmish line well into the dense growth, posting large picket posts on all the roadways and then a portion of us scoured the country to pick up the Federal foragers. It was now nearly dark, and the Federal steamboat was whistling with ear-piercing shrieks to direct the returning stragglers. A few minutes later another factor appeared on the scene, in the shape of a Federal gunboat, whose presence was made known by the huge shells rushing through the air with thunderous explosions. The dangerous hurling of such quantities of iron made it necessary to withdraw the mass of our pickets for safety. It had also grown too dark to safely hunt the straggling Federals, who we were satisfied were still hidden in the thick undergrowth. It was a serious as well as laughable thing to suddenly start up a few Federals and see them run for life.

After an hour or two of firing the gunboat ceased, and all became quiet. The steamboat, soon after our attack, moved out into the middle of the river and anchored, the gunboat taking a position between the steamboat and our force. Our pickets captured several stragglers during the night, and they heard others getting away to the river, whom it seemed impossible to cut off. A number of our company stayed at the plantation over night, where the ladies treated them unusually well. The planter himself, on account of the close proximity of danger, was profuse in his liberality and hospitality.

As soon as it was day we were all mounted and ready to complete picking up the stragglers, but under cover of the gunboat the steamer came up to shore with ear-piercing screeches from the whistle, apparently for the purpose of picking up the remainder of their soldiers. As the boat landed, several horsemen rode boldly up toward us on the gallop, but we emptied the saddles so quickly that the horses were frightened, and returned on the run. We were under cover, and consequently did better execution. The bravest act of the whole affair now occurred, by a few daring Federal soldiers rushing right up into our very faces and taking off the body of one of the wounded horsemen.

After taking on a lot of corn that was probably hauled down the day before and dumped on the bank, the boat swung off and proceeded down the river. We took several prisoners after the departure of the boat.

President Lincoln's Dream.

Inquiry had been made as to army news on the first meeting of the cabinet and especially if any information had been received from Sherman, says Gideon Welles in his dairy, according to the Atlantic. None of the members had heard anything and Stanton, who makes it a point to be late and who has the telegraph in his department, had not arrived. Gen. Grant, who was present, said he was hourly expecting word. The president remarked it would be had, no doubt, come soon, and come favorable, for he had last night the usual dream which he had preceding nearly every great and important event of the war. Generally the news had been favorable which succeeded this dream and the dream itself was always the same. I inquired what this remarkable dream could be. He said it related to your (my) element—the water—that he seemed to be in some singular indescribable vessel and that he was moving with great rapidity toward an indefinite shore. That he had this dream preceding Sumter, Bull Run, Antietam, Gettysburg, Stone River, Vicksburg, Wilmington, etc. Gen. Grant said Stone River was certainly no victory, and he knew of no great results which followed from it. The president said (that) however that might be, his dream preceded that fight.

"I had," the president remarked, "this strange dream again last night, and we shall, judging from the past, have great news very soon. I think it must be from Sherman. My thoughts are in that direction, as are most of yours."

I write this conversation three days after it occurred in consequence of what took place Friday night and but for which the mention of this dream would probably have never been noted. Great events did, indeed, follow, for within a few hours the good and gentle, as well as truly great man who narrated his dream closed forever his earthly career.

Lincoln Would Not Fire.

A story of Lincoln's refusal to fire at a target representing Jefferson Davis is told by an eyewitness, a survivor of a volunteer company known as the Berdan sharpshooters. In 1861, just before going to the front, the President was in the habit of coming over with Secretary Stanton to watch target practice. He often fired a few rounds himself and proved to be an excellent shot. On one occasion, says the narrator in the Atlanta Georgian, the following incident occurred:

Our range instructor had prepared what he considered a clever little surprise for the President when he should next try his skill on the targets. It was in the shape of a special target, painted to represent a man in civilian's attire, and labeled in big, plain letters, "Jeff Davis." This target was to be run up when the President's turn came to fire.

I shall never forget what followed. I was on the firing line that afternoon when Mr. Lincoln stepped up, selected his rifle, and, smiling a little as he examined it, indicated his readiness to fire.

Then, with the rifle half raised, he looked full at the target for the first time.

"We want to see you take a crack at that, Mr. President," said the instructor.

Mr. Lincoln lowered his rifle and turned to the instructor. I was only 17 years old then—a mere boy—but the look on his face made an impression on me that the passing of half a century has left untouched.

He didn't say a word. He simply looked at the instructor with an expression full of surprise, of disappointment, and, more than all else, of sorrow. Then he laid the rifle down slowly and gently, and went a little way off from the group, walking up and down by himself, with folded arms and bowed head, for maybe twenty minutes.

After a time he came back and fired several shots at the regular target—that unlucky new one had vanished in double-quick time, I can tell you—but he was unusually silent and soon went away. I couldn't get the incident off my mind for several days, and I have never forgotten it.

Capt. McGinness of Co. Q.

"Who leads the charge?" the General cries.
Captain McGinness, of Co. Q.;
Flash of battle in his eyes,
Bravest, bum you ever knew.

No turkey gobbled at Capt. McGinness,
No daring rooster's clarion blew;
Well they knew their name was Dennis
When they crossed the march of Co. Q.

Afar where the porker loved to wallow,
There the tattered banners flew;
There, you bet your bottom dollar,
Charged the braves of Co. Q.

They were the boys that pulled the trigger,
They were the men of the Union blue,
Thrashed the Johnnies and freed the nigger,
Sherman's bummers, Co. Q.

The smelter production of lead in the United States in 1905 was 408,523 tons of 2,000 pounds, against 442,015 tons in 1904 and 418,699 tons in 1906.

JANUARY

0441

L1134

DeKalb County Herald

A. S. POWERS, Editor and Publisher

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

ONE YEAR, $1.50 SIX MONTHS, 75c THREE MONTHS, 40c

The Herald is entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, Butler, Indiana

70 Years with Coughs

We have had nearly seventy years of experience with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. That makes us have great confidence in it for coughs, colds, bronchitis, weak throats, and weak lungs. Ask your own doctor what experience he has had with it. He knows. He can advise you wisely. Keep in close touch with your family physician. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Be well; be strong. You cannot if your bowels are constipated. The best laxative is Ayer's Pills, all vegetable. Ask your doctor if he agrees with us. Do as he says.

"Private Car" Lurton.

Evidently Horance H. Lurton of Nashville, who has been appointed a judge of the United States supreme court by President Taft, is not the right man in the right place. He has been for many years a United States circuit judge. It is said that Lurton was once a Democrat—about such a Democrat as MacVeagh and Dickinson, who are now members of Taft's cabinet both of whom have voted the Repub lican ticket for many years. The Atlanta Journel, a Democratic paper, sent a correspondent to Nashville to find out about Lurton, and this is a part of what the correspondent sent back:

"I asked what evidence there was of friendliness between Judge Lurton and the railroads. 'The familiar designation, "Private-Car Lurton," ' the lawyer answered. 'I suppose you've heard what everybody knows throughout this section of the south about Judge Lurton's habitual use of private cars furnished by the railroad. Up to the passage of the Hepburn law Judge Lurton scarcely moved without the private car.'

"True enough, everywhere I went I fouad tales of Lurton's private cars. Not for business merely did he use them but he gave private-car parties. Once he took a party of young friends, men and women, through the west, including a visit to the Yellowstone. On such occasions the railroads furnished not only the cars, but the chef, the provisions and all the little extras that go to make a junket of this sort complete."

And yet it is said that President Taft appointed Lurton because he had served with himself on the circuit bench and knew his "merit."

30 Years of Success

The Geo. W. Geddes Drug Store Offer a Remedy for Catarrh ---The Medicine Costs Nothing if It Fails

When a medicine effects a successful treatment in a very large majority of cases, and when we offer that medicine on our own personal guarantee that it will cost the user nothing if it does not completely relieve catarrh, it is only reasonable that people should believe us, or at least put our claim to a practical test when we take all the risk. These are facts which we want the people to substantiate. We want them to try Rexall Mucu-Tone, a medicine prepared from a prescription of a physician with whom catarrh was a specialty, and who has a record of thirty years of enviable success to his record.

We receive more good reports about Rexall Mucu-Tone than we do of all other catarrh remedies sold in our store and if more people only knew what a thoroughly dependable remedy Rexall Mucu-Tone is it would be the only catarrh remedy we would have any demand for.

Rexall Mucu-Tone is quickly absorbed and by its therapeutic effect tends to disinfect and cleanse the entire mucous membraneous tract, to destroy and remove the parasites which injure the membraneous tissues, to soothe the irritation and heal the soreness, stop the mucous discharge, build up strong, healthy tissue and relieve the blood and system of diseased matter. Its influence is toward stimulating the muco-cells, aiding digestion and improving nutritioh until the whole body vibrates with healthy activity. In a comparatively short time it brings about a noticeable gain in weight, strength, good color and feeling of buoyancy.

We urge you to try Rexall Mucu-Tone, beginning a treatment today. At any time you are not satisfied, simply come and tell us, and we will quickly return your money without question or quibble. We have Rexall Mucu-Tone in two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Butler only at our store—The Rexall Store. Geo. W. Geddes. 1t

Home Cure For Eczema

Does it not seem strange that so many people suffer year in and year out with eczema?

A 25 cent bottle of a simple wash stops the itch and will sure convince any patient.

This wash is composed of mild and soothing oil of wintergreen mixed with thymol and glycerine, etc., and known as D. D. D. Prescription. We do not know how long the D. D. D. Laboratories will continue the 25c offer, as the remedy is regularly sold only in $1.00 bottles and has never before been put on the market on any special offers.

If you want relief tonight try a bottle at 25c on our personal recommendation. Stone's Drug Store, Butler, Ind.

WANTED—50 ladies and gentlemen at once at McGuire's Telegraph School, Edgerton, O. Good positions furnished when competent. tf

A Democratic Congress Necessary

The United States government has lost millions of dollars through customs frauds perpetrated in the interest of sugar trust and other big concerns that were already receiving immense benefits from the "protective" tariff. Five men have been prosecuted and convicted for these frauds. One of these men was an insignificant dock superintendent. The other four were measly little "checkers". All of the five were receiving wages barely large enough to keep them alive in these days of extortion. Not one of them got the millions that were stolen. Somebody "higher up" got these millions. But these "higher up" fellows have not been prosecuted. They have not even exposed, and there is scarcely a chance that they will be. President Taft advised congress not to undertake an investigation, and as the Republicans are in control of congress there will be no investigation. The election of a Democratic house next fall will mean that many things will be turned up to the light of the sun.

Will They Ignore It?

It is said that if some of the Republican politicians have their way in the next state convention of their party, the platform will wholly ignore the temperance question. Just how they will manage to do this in the face of the fight that J. Frank Hanly, the Rev. E. Shumaker and others will make for a further "advance" is not disclosed. The talk about barring Hanly out of the convention shows the desperation of the other fellows, but it is absurd. Hanly will not allow himself to be barred out. He feels that with the Anti-Saloon League behind him—and he is the real leader of the league—he not only has a right to be heard in the convention, but to have his plans adopted.

But why should the Republicans want to ignore the temperance question? Are they unwilling to stand by their county option law? Do they beleive that it is a failure or that it is becoming unpopular? Would it be fair to their allies of the last campaign, the Anti-Saloon Leaguers, not to listen to theirs for an endorsement, even if not for a further "advance"? What are they afraid of?

RESULTS THAT REMAIN

Are Appropriated By Butler People

Thousands who suffer from back ache and kidney complaint have tried one remedy after another, finding only temporary benefit. This is discouraging, but there is one special kidney medicine that cures permanently and there is plenty of proof right here in Butler.

Here is the testimony of one who used Doan's Kidney Pills years ago, and now states that the cure was lasting.

Mrs. Sadie Fee, North Pearl Street, Butler, Ind., says: "I am glad to say that the cure made by Doan's Kidney Pills in our little boy's case has been permanent. The child was afflicted with a weakness of the kidneys and bed wetting was frequent. Finally I gave Doan's Kidney Pills a trial and they brought such great relief that in 1902 I publicly endorsed them. Up to this time my son has had no return of his former trouble and for that reason, I am glad to endorse Doan's Kidney Pills again."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. 1-2

Better Than Spanking

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

The HERALD office is equipped for any kind of printing, from a calling card to a 24x36 poster. We are supplied with the latest styles of type.

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS

WITH Dr. King's New Discovery

FOR COUGHS COLDS PRICE 50c & $1.00 Trial Bottle Free

AND ALL THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.

GUARANTEED SATISFACTORY OR MONEY REFUNDED.

TRUSTEE'S REPORT

Of Wilmington Township, DeKalb County, to the Advisory Board for the Year 1909

RECEIPTS

TOWNSHIP FUND

Balance on hand Jan. 5, 1909	$ 2205 62
DeKalb Co., money adv on poor	6 89
Knisely Bros. Bank, interest on deposit	5 60
Ralph Wells, on book case at No. 6	2 00
Butler City, 1908 gravel	6 60
F D Webster, Justice, docket fees	41 50
Knisely Bank, March interest	6 62
Knisely Bank, April interest	4 56
H H Slaybaugh, May apportionment	1659 26
Ben Mierly, 1450 pounds old iron	3 60
Knisely Bank, June interest	3 10
DeKalb Co., money adv on poor acct	7 19
C W Webster, one-third gravel pit exp	245 46
Henry Krabill, for cleaning ditch	2 50
Wm Lutz, for cleaning ditch	14 00
Knisely Bank, Sept. interest	10 50
Wm Lutz, ditching	1 40
Butler City, filling cemetery	10 50
Mrs John Lackey, on ditching	8 20
Wm Ball, 188¾ yards gravel	6 55
DeKalb Co., pulling of election booths	3 50
H H Slaybaugh, Dec apportionment	1492 45
C W Webster, trustee, ⅓ gravel pit exp	177 66
Total receipts	$ 5925 25

TUITION FUND

Balance on hand	$ 922 44
DeKalb Co., congressional school fund	41 92
DeKalb Co., common school fund	879 67
Knisely Bank, Feb interest	7 05
Knisely Bank, May interest	6 87
John Fetters, trustee, transfer tuition	42 00
Knisely Bank, May interest	3 71
H H Slaybaugh, May apportionment	1048 00
H H Slaybaugh, July apportionment cong school fund	16 07
H H Slaybaugh, common school fund	646 88
H H Slaybaugh, county dog	7 99
Knisely Bank, July interest	9 85
Knisely Bank, Aug interest	11 55
Knisely Bank, Oct interest	8 28
Knisely Bank, Nov interest	6 40
H H Slaybaugh, Dec apportionment	951 01
Total receipts tuition fund	$ 4309 39

SPECIAL SCHOOL FUND

Balance on hand	$ 151 38
H H Slaybaugh, May apportionment	612 11
Daniel Burkhart, trustee, ⅓ commencement expense	10 07
C W Webster, trustee, ⅓ commencement expense	8 07
H H Slaybaugh, May apportionment	544 02
Total receipts special school fund	$ 1325 65

ROAD FUND

Balance on hand	$ 666 24
H H Slaybaugh, May apportionment	210 76
H H Slaybaugh, Dec apportionment	76 70
Total receipts road fund	$ 944 70

SPECIAL ROAD FUND

Balance on hand	$ 647 66
H H Slaybaugh, May apportionment	1384 40
H H Slaybaugh, Dec apportionment	25 57
Total receipts special road fund	$ 2057 63

LIBRARY FUND

Balance on hand	$ 1 41
H H Slaybaugh, May draw	72 17
H H Slaybaugh, Dec draw	25 57
Total receipts library fund	$ 149 98

DOG FUND

Balance on hand	$ 189 59
A D Bronson, twp assessor	170 00
F W Nimmons, twp trustee	41 00
Total receipts dog fund	$ 400 00

POOR FUND

Balance on hand	$
H H Slaybaugh, May apportionment	455 89
H H Slaybaugh, Dec apportionment	410 27
H M Maxwell, borrowed to bal poor fund	200 00
Total receipts poor fund	$1065 66

DISBURSEMENTS

TOWNSHIP FUND

Jacob Gunsenhouser, mem adv board	$ 5 00
Ira Wingard, mem adv board	5 00
F W Nimmons, mem adv board	5 00
F W Nimmons, trustee 1908	66 00
Shapland & Co, poor acct	6 72
Butler Telephone Co, tele at gravel pit	3 00
J O Gee, taking Mrs Chas Lint to county infirmary	3 00
Ralph Miller, 20 loads gravel	8 00
Henry Shaffer, Wilmington twp assessment on Fosier ditch	5 00
D D Melroy, sign for office	1 50
J O Gee, rig to cemetery to bury Chas Lint's child	1 00
Clyde Snyder, repair work on No 3 school	4 25
W O Kenan, pub annual report	26 65
L H Higley, pub annual report	24 90
L H Higley, stationery for township	7 00
A Zimmerman, 2 cords wood	8 00
J A Dannels, 2 tickets to Wauseon	1 70
J R Moore, wood at No 4	15 00
J M Tomlinson, well platmore at No 6 sch	1 25
W S Maxwell, to bal annual set	10 34
A Zimmerman, 2 cords wood Mrs Jake McDonald	3 50
Sam Brown, taking Mrs Chas Lint's child to orphans' home	3 46
A S Kester, book case No 6	7 00
Willis Tarbox, 2 cds wood for Mrs Jake McDonald	3 50
W B Cosper, cleaning 200 ft ditch
Thos Rudd, 100 2-cent stamps	2 00
A Zimmerman, 2 cds wood Jake McDonald	3 50
J A Dannels, tickets and telegrams	1 32
C T Apt, express	70
Clyde Oberlin, babbitting eng at gravel pit	1 50
Ira Wingard, repairing tile drain	7 00
U S Zerkle, meat for poor	1 94
E A McCollough, repairing No 8 sch	50
Knisely's Bank, on poor acct	19 12
A J Baker, repairs on road machine	3 75
G F Gengnagel, cable and repairs gravel pit	62 39
The Butler Co, repairs at pit	13 84
Lee Moore, d days labor and taking cable to pit	5 75
H B Maxwell, expense on Casebeer ditch	88
E Oberlin, freight	1 10
J G Diehl, repairing ballot boxes	40
S D Kiger, 3 grader blades	24 00
Jason Olds, hauling coal and surfacing at gravel pit	11 60
C P Losier, ditbhing on Proctor road	5 25
A Zimmerman 2¼ cords wood for poor	4 37
Will Capp, 3 cds wood gravel pit	5 25
C P Loseir, ditching	4 65
H B Maxwell, assessment on Casebeer ditch	70
F L Hollinger, excavatiug gravel	24 80
Lee Moore, excavating gravel	18 40
Mhe Butler Milling Co, coal for office	1 75
The Butler Milling Co, coal for gravel pit	18 45
J R Boyle, taking enumeration	4 00
G F Gengnagel, 650 ft cable	71 50
C P Losier, ditching for township	3 75
F W Nimmons, freight	1 58
Chas Wagoner, ditch transcripts, etc	17 40
A L Link, leveling A D Moore ditch	2 00
A J Wagoner, ditbhing for highway	3 00
Butler Basket Co, plank for bridges	24 58
C Haggerty, teaming at pit	2 50
A Zimmerman, wood for Mrs. Jacob McDonald	5 25
C P Losier, ditching for highway	5 62
J P Wagoner, ditching for highway	4 87
F L Hollinger, excavating gravel	23 00
Lee Moore, excavating gravel	20 00
John Doner, hauling pole gravel excavator	3 00
John Mack, ditching for township	2 25
The Butler Co, repairs at pit	12 50
F W Nimmons, services trustee	112 09
Wm Sewell, moving engine at pit	20 00
Thos Rudd, 100 2 cent stamps	2 00
Noragon & Son's, coal at pit	70 25
S D Kiger, ditch notices	7 85
Pricella Tappen, road receipt	1 85
F L Hollinger, moving engine at pit	14 00
F L Hollinger, paint and brush	1 25
Lee Moore, moving engine	16 00
Chas Wagoner, 35 pages ditch transcripts	7 00
D M Ball, tile for township	13 17
Chas Souders, 7½ da surfacing at gravel pit	24 60
The Savings Loan & Trust Co, assessment on J R Metcalf ditch	45 00
City National Bank, Auburn, Ind, assessment on A D Moore ditch	165 00
Mrs Sophia Kines, land to make ditch along road	35 00
Geo Hull, 2 days surfacing	7 00
F L Hollinger, excavating gravel	21 45
Lee Moore, excavating gravel	22 00
I B Madden, surfacing at pit	16 75
I B Madden, 8 days work at pit	12 00
S G Haverstock, recording deeds and plat of township cemetery	5 50
Thos Rudd, 100 1-cent stamps	1 00
Jason Olds, hauling 4 boiler shells	6 50
J U Miller, ditching in pit	3 00
Ft Wayne Oil & Sup Co, 30 2½ inch boiler flues	39 80
W A Mason, office rent	12 00
W O Kenan, printing tax levy	1 25
L H Higley, printing for commencement	1 50
Lee Moore, excavating pit	24 80
Floyd Hollinger, excavating pit	24 50
H N Elmer & Co, 2 pulleys	6 94
D H Goble & Co, township supplies	8 70
Joe Dannels, 2½ tickets to Bryan	1 00
The Butler Co, repairs at pit	3 35
G F Gengnagel, township supplies	7 10
G F Gedgnagel, supplies for pit	5 04
Lee Moore, putting in boiler flues	12 20
Ft Wayne Oil & Sup Co, 20 2½ inch boiler flues	24 97
J H Baxter, making rollers for cable at pit	3 50
Clyde Oberlin, putting flues in boiler at pit	14 80
J B Madden, labor at pit	15 00
Samuel Adams, labor at pit	24 75
Geo Franks, drayage	1 47
H N Elmer, supplies for excavator	3 28
Samuel Adams, labor at pit	9 00
Floyd Hollinger, excavating gravel	14 00
Lee Moore, excavating gravel	14 00
G W Geddes, supplies for township	8 93
L H Higley, transfer tuition	309 50
J B Madden, 6 days labor at pit	9 00
Chas Wagoner, ditch transcripts	4 80
B F Nodine, mowing township allotment on W A Dannells ditch	5 55
S H Adams, labor at pit	9 00
L H McInturf, groceries for poor	1 82
Ralph Miller, leveling surface at gravel pit	15 00
I B Madden, labor at pit	9 00
W H Forest, ½ of fence at No 4 sch	2 40
Geo W McSweney, cleaning twp allotment on W A Dannells ditch	8 00
Joe Rhoads, 3 da work put'g in boiler shells	6 40
Joe Rhoades, cleaning the H Krabill allotment on the J Smith ditch	2 50
Joe Rhoads, cleaning the Wm Lutz allotment on J Smith ditch	13 00
John Goodchild, cleaning township allotment on J Hollinger ditch	10 00
Lee Moore, 52 hours work ditching	10 40
F L Hollinger, 52 hours cleaning ditchieg	10 40
I B Madden, 6 days work in pit	9 00
Lewis Brown, services supervisor	60 00
John Nodine, cleaning 400 ft on Miles Hallet ditch	12 00
A S Powers, printing annual tax levy	2 00
H D Hollinger, hauling surface dirt at pit	3 50
John Alwood, cleaning 200 ft twp allotment on J W Tomlinson ditch	2 40
John Alwood, cleaning 300 ft M V Smith allotment on W D Boyle ditch	4 40
Hoyt Cook, hauling surface dirt	3 50
Floyd Hollinger, 98 hours work at pit	19 60
E F Showalter, oiling 8 sch floors	10 75
Lee Moore, 95 hours work at pit	19 00
Ross Boyle, 1 day shoveling dirt	2 00
Eugene Carper, 2 cement porches for sch houses	37 00
I B Madden, 1 days work surfacing	3 50
I B Madden, 6 days work at pit	9 00
Kussely Dry G Co, surpervisor order	4 50
D H Goble, home and school visitor	15 50
Chas Hiner, road order	3 50
S H Adams, 18 days work at pit	27 00
The Butler Milling Co, coal for township	7 23
D M Riser, pole for pit	5 00
Geo Swinehart, hauling surface dirt	7 00
Clyde Snyder, repairs on out house No 3	4 00
Joe Rhoades, cleaning Wm Lutz allotment on J Smith ditch	1 40
G F Geognagel, 500 ft ¾ cable	70 00
Noragon & Son's, coal for township	7 80
Noragon & Son's, tile for township	11 60
Thos Rudd, 100 2 cent stamps	2 00
Frank Marks, cleaning 600 ft on W A Dannels ditch	5 00
I B Madden, labor at pit	9 00
F L Hollinger, labor at pit	17 00
Lee Moore, labor at pit	17 00
W A Mason, township warrant	630 00
A D Bronson, cleaning twp allotment on A J Collins ditch	10 00
Frank Marks, cleaning township ditch	12 00
The Butler Co gravel pit repairs	2 42
S H Adams, labor at pit	9 00
Walter Nodine, cleaning ditch	4 00
Vance Albright, township ditching	5 00
Eugene Bryant, 2 cords wood at pit	3 00
James Cherry, cleaning township ditch	2 00
H N Elmer & Co, repairs at pit	37 70
James Provines, assessment on Cedar creek	6 39
Lewis Brown, services supervisor	25 00
Lee Moore, 90 hours work at pit	18 00
Lee Moore, township ditching	3 00
Cleve Grube, ½ day surfacing at pit	1 75
Henry Schroyer, cleaning township ditch	12 00
F L Hollinger, 95 hours work	19 50
H D Hollinger, surfacing 3 days	10 50
I B Madden labor at pit	10 50
Fred Madden, surfacing 3 days	10 50
Noragon & Son's coal at pit	37 85
I B Madden, labor at pit	9 00
Chas Hiner, repairs at pit	2 00
S H Adams, labor at pit	9 00
Geo Swihart, surfacing 3 days	10 50
Frank Marks, cleaning township ditch	11 00
John Baxter, legal advice	1 00
John Campbell, hauling gravel No 3 sch	2 50
Lee Moore, labor at pit	20 00
F L Hollsnger, 112½ hours work at pit	22 50
F L Hollinger, one-half tele toll 7 mo	3 50
Riley Zimmerman, cleaning 500 ft Palmerton est O Treman ditch	5 00
I B Madden, labor at pit	9 00
Lewis Brown, services supervisor	10 00
J W Shaffer, cleaning township ditch	12 00
S H Adams, labor at yit	9 00
Carl Hanes, cleaning township ditch	2 70
S M Brandon, Wil tp share on Hallett ditch	7 00
Riley Zimmerman, cleaning twp allotment on John A Lackey ditch	8 20
F W Nimmons, services trustee	71 55
I B Madden, labor at pit	9 00
The Butler Co, repairs at pit	50
J M Rhoades, township ditching	3 00
I B Madden, labor at pit	9 00
Preston & Co, lamps and oil for election	1 70
A H Fulmer, putting up and taking down election booths	3 50
Sam G Stone, supplies for township	26 65
Riley Zimmerman, cleaning 700 ft twp ditch	10 50
Frank Harpster, hauling tile for township	75
Frank Marks, cleaning township ditch	1 50
I B Madden, labor at pit	9 00
S H Adams, labor at pit	13 50
Kiger & Co, window shades	16 00
Daniel Oberlin, cutting wood for poor	2 50
John H Krontz, W A Mason ditch	30 00
Lewis Brown, services supervisor	25 00
Ira B Madden, services supervisor	120 00
E R May, services supervisor	100 50
A W Boyd, services supervisor	120 00
Samuel Adams, 1 day at pit	1 50
Peter Fales, 2 cds wood for Mrs J McDonald	4 00
W A Mason, office rent	12 00
Oberlin Gro Co, gravel pit order	1 12
Chas Webster, ⅓ gravel sold 1908	2 18

(Continued on back page)

Notice to Non-Residents

State of Indiana, } SS:
County of DeKalb, }

In the DeKalb County Circuit Court, March Term, 1910.

Milton E. Anthony
vs.
Sarah Ann Rohrbaugh, et al.

Notice is hereby given to the following named defendants in the above entitled cause, Reuben G. Dannells Rachel Rohrbaugh, wife of James M Rohrbaugh, Charles N. Rohrbaugh, Ann R Rohrbaugh, wife of Charles N Rohrbaugh, Christopher C. Rohrbaugh, Jennie Rohrbaugh, wife of Christopher C. Rohrbaugh, whose true christian name is unknown to plaintiff; Benjamin F. Rohrbaugh, Hanah Rohrbaugh, wife of Benjamin F. Rohrbaugh whose true christian name is unknown to plaintiff; Solomon C. Rohrbaugh, Sarah E. Rohrbaugh, Rosa B. Rohrbaugh, Mahalia A. Rohrbaugh, Alice V. Rohrbaugh, Lewis Wagoner, guardian of Solomon C. Rohrbaugh, Ann Rohrbaugh wife of Charles N. Rohrbaugh.

The children, descendants and heirs, the surviving spouse, the creditors of the estate, the devisees, legatees, trustees and executors of the last will and testament and the survivers in interest respectively of each of the following named and designated deceased persons, to-wit: James M. Rohrbaugh, Thomas C. Rohrbaugh, Rosa B. Rohrbaugh, Mahalia A. Rohrbaugh, Alice V. Rohrbaugh, the names of whom are all unknown to plaintiff.

The children, descendants and heirs, the surviving spouse, the creditors of the estate, the devisees, legatees, trustees and executors of the last will and testament and the survivers in interest of the deceased widow of each of the following named and designated deceased persons, to-wit: James N. Rohrbaugh, Thomas C. Rohrbaugh.

All of the women once known by any of the names and designations above named who may have changed their names and who are known by some other name, the names of whom are unknown to plaintiff.

The spouses of all the persons above named and designated, the names o whom are unknown to plaintiff are each non-residents of the state of Indiana and the residence of each is unknown to plaintiff and upon diligent inquiry cannot be ascertained and said defendants are therefore hereby notified of the filing and pendancy of said complaint against them for the purpose of quieting title to certain real estate described in plaintiff's complaint, situated in DeKalb county and state of Indiana and to discharge liens and cancel of record certain mortgages and liens thereon and to make partition of said lands and that unless they appear and answer or demur there to at the calling of said case on the 7th day of March, 1910, the same being the 1st juridical day of the March, 1910, term of the DeKalb county circuit court to be begun, held and continued at the court house at Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, commencing on the 7th day of March, 1910 next, said complaint and the matters and things therein contained and alleged will be taken as true and said cause will be heard and determined in their absence.

Witness the clerk and seal of said court this 4th day of January, 1910.

W. A. AUSTIN,
Clerk of DeKalb Circuit Court.
E. B. DUNTEN, Att'y. 1-4

Notice of Appointment of Excutor

State of Indiana, DeKalb County, ss:

I, W. A Austin, clerk of the DeKalb circuit court, for the county o DeKalb, in the state of Indiana, do hereby certify that Frank Creager has been appointed executor of the last will and testament of Sarah Casey late of DeKalb county, deceased who died testate. And the said Frank Creager having qualified and given bond as such executor is duly authorized to take upon himself the execution of said will.

Witness my hand and the seal of said court, this 4th day of January, 1910.

W. A. AUSTIN,
Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court.
E. B. DUNTEN, Att'y. for Estate. 1-4

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in the estate of John Henry Secor deceased, to appear in the DeKalb circuit court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 24th day of January, 1910, and show cause, if any, why my final settlement accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness, my name, this 3rd day of January, 1910.

JOHN J. OBERLIN,
Administrator.
C. J. COATS, Att'y. for Estate. 1-3

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in the estate of Elizabeth Ann Secor deceased, to appear in the DeKalb circuit court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 24th day of January, 1910, and show cause, if any, why my final settlement accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness, my name, this 3rd day of January, 1910.

JOHN J. OBERLIN,
Administrator.
C. J. COATS, Att'y. for Estate. 1-3

C. J. Simon, Memphis

Very often young people, at an age when they should be in the prime of health, suffer from chronic constipation, and nothing seems to help them. It was so with Mr. C. J. Simon, of Memphis, Tenn., until he took Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and now he is permanently cured. It will also cure indigestion, heartburn, flatulency, sick headache, sour stomach, etc. It is absolutely guaranteed to do what is claimed, and if you want to try it before buying, send your address for a free sample bottle to Pepsin Syrup Co., 119 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1 a bottle. 1-1m

WE CARRY A COMPLETE LINE OF

Keen Kutter Goods

Keen Cutter Axes, Cross Cut Saws, Keen Kutter Buck Saws, Files, etc., and a full line of

KEEN KUTTER TOOLS

The recollection of quality remains long after the price is forgotten. True to all Keen Kutter Tools and Cutlery. All Keen Kutter Goods are guaranteed by us.

Gengnagel & Son

FASHION PLATES

NOW IN

And we are ready for the fal business.

We do all kinds of button covering for the ladies'.

Cleaning and repairing on short notice.

Edward May

Reliable Tailor

OH! YES

We are now ready to sell you in bulk the best

Fresh Oysters

you ever ate—also a fresh line line of wafers and the regular oyster crackers.

George Stout

O. W. HINER, V. M. D., M. F.

Veterinary Surgeon and Dentist - -

All calls promptly answered day or night

OFFICE AT RESIDENCE

HOME PHONE 21

'Every Month'

writes Lola P. Roberts, of Vienna, Mo., "I used to be sick most of the time and suffered with backache and headache. My Mother, who had been greatly helped by the use of Cardui, got me two bottles, and I have been well ever since."

E 49

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Cardui is a gentle tonic for young and old women. It relieves and prevents pain. It builds strength. It feeds the nerves. It helps the whole system.

Made from harmless roots and herbs, it has no bad after-effects, does not interfere with the use of any other medicine and can do you nothing but good.

Try Cardui. It will help you. Your dealer sells it.

Scott's Emulsion

is the original—has been the standard for thirty-five years.

There are thousands of so-called "just as good" Emulsions, but they are not—they are simply imitations which are never as good as the original. They are like thin milk—SCOTT'S is thick like a heavy cream.

If you want it thin, do it yourself—with water—but dont buy it thin.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send 10c., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each bank contains a Good Luck Penny.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., New York

WABASH

EAST BOUND

No 2—Express	6:48 a. m
No 28—Mail	9:03 a. m
No. 6—Toledo Mail & Exp	5:12 p. m
No. 78—Local Freight	9:50 a. m

WEST BOUND

No. 9—Fast Mail	4:29 a. m.
No. 11—Ft. W yne Mail & Exp	10:16 a. m.
No. 3—Express	8:17 p. m.
No. 79—Local Freight	2:04 p. m.

All trains daily except Local Freights.

O. C. WATERMAN, Agent, Butler, Ind.

If your grocers can not satisfy you with their bread? Try the

Home Bakery

The best tasting bread in the city. has no equal. Bread 4c a loaf.

Anton Panhuysen

REAL ESTATE

We have some splendid farms and other excellent properties or investment.

We have the Thompson Opera House for sale and many other properties in Butler.

Farms from 40 to 160 acres. It will pay you to see us before buying. We are in the business to stay and are able to place you right.

Wilcox & Creager

JANUARY

0442

L1134

For A Cold or Grip

TRY

Nyals Laxacold

Every Box Guaranteed

For Rheumatism

Nyals Rheumatic Cure

AT

PHILLIPS' DRUG STORE

Lee Diehl spent Friday at Maysville.

Mrs. Walter Snider spent Monday at Toledo.

Lanore Dunten spent last week at Auburn.

John Mangleson of Elkhart was in the city, Tuesday.

The First National bank solicits your fire insurance. tf

John Goodchild spent Saturday and Sunday at St. Joe.

Mrs. Elizabeth Fosdick is visiting at LaGrange this week.

Goldie Miser, of Auburn, spent Sunday with Mabel Richard.

Miss Grayce Winn of Edon is visiting her sister, Mrs Leslie Tappen.

Lydia Bogart spent Sunday at Spencerville with relatives.

Martin Heffelfinger has not been feeling so well the past week.

John Kline, of Edon, Ohio, was in the city on business Tuesday.

The Culture club met with Mrs. M. Brunstetter Tuesday afternoon.

Master Burdette Powers was sick several days the first of the week.

Miss Ethel Boyle spent a few days last week with friends at Garrett.

Jim Newman, of Bryan, has accepted a position at the Butler Co.

Fred Briggs will sell you cement blocks cheaper than anyone else. tf

Mrs. Curtis Craun was the guest of Mrs. W. C. DeLong at Chicago over Sunday.

For up-to-date picture framing at reasonable prices call on Eugene Treesh. 2-2

Mrs. Cyrus Evertts is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Blauvelt, at Moores, this week.

Henry Witt and wife spent Saturday and Sunday at Kendallville the guests of relatives.

Mrs. Lester Spurgeon and Mrs Devore spent Monday at Waterloo the guests of friends.

Mrs. Don Cosper and baby, of Montpelier, are the guests of relatives and friends in this city.

William Squires, of Franklin township, spent last Saturday at the home of Dan Beerer and wife.

Dr. J. E. Graham and family, of Auburn, were the guests of Dr. Frank Fanning and wife Sunday.

Ruth and Hazel Chambers returned home Sunday from Waterloo where they spent their vacation.

Mrs. Jay Pessell and children returned home Monday after an extended visit with relatives at Quincy, Mich.

J. D. Craun, wife and little daughter were the guests of Dan Beerer and wife in the country one day last week.

Miss Jennie Steward, of Spencerville, has been quite sick with tonsilitis at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Karle.

The little daughter of Albert Campbell and wife, who has been quite ill for the past two weeks, is slowly improving.

WANTED—Small family washings. Inquire of Mrs. Albert Campbell living in the Nelson property in the northeast part of town.

Mrs. Frank Needham and daughter, Marguerite, went to Waterloo, Monday, to care for her sister, Mrs. Robt. Hays who fell and sprained her ankle.

The HERALD would like to secure a correspondent at or near Troy. Stamps and stationery furnished, also a copy of the paper sent to correspondent free.

If the local newspaper of any town or city was to print one-twentieth part of the gossip which is constantly going the rounds, the editor would be treated to a coat of tar and feathers.

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Zimmerman were guests of the latter's parents at Berne, Ind., Sunday. Mrs. Zimmerman will also visit his people at Decatur before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Webster, of Stafford township, entertained their neighbors, Saturday evening, Jan 8, at an oyster supper. Music and games were among the amusements. All present report a fine time.

A crowd of young folks went to Edgerton, Tuesday evening, and spent the evening with Miss Carrie Schott. Those who were in the crowd were the Misses Delphia and Fern Robinett, Beulah Howard, Edna McDonald, and Messrs. Oliver Bungard, Earl Eakright and Chauncey McDonald.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

Mrs. Jim Ramey is on the sick list.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

See Fred Briggs for cement blocks. tf

Fresh Country Sausage at the new meat market. 2t-1

Mrs. Charles Madden spent Saturday and Sunday in Auburn.

Glen Seibert has returned home from Paw Paw, Mich.

The Priscilla club met with Mrs. M. M. Acker last Thursday.

Mrs. Frank Stoy, north of the city, fell and broke her left arm.

Merritt and Flossie Sechler were the guests of Helen Acker Sunday.

Sherman Robinett of Goshen was the guest of his family here Sunday.

Sunday dinners at the Cottage hotel only 25 cents. Give us a call. 2-tf

Miss Maud Armstrong has returned from spending her vacation at New York.

Mrs. T. A. Hoffman and Miss Corinne Mack spent Thursday at Fort Wayne.

Mrs. Warren Mason will entertain twelve of her lady friends at dinner Friday.

A crowd of ladies took a sleigh ride out to Marion Haverstock's last Friday evening.

Springs and mattresses are a necessity. If in need of any call on Eugene Treesh. 2-2

George Brooks of Hamilton was the guest of J. S. Robinett and family Sunday.

Mrs. Coulon and son, Frank, of Chicago, are the guests of Geo. Coulon this week.

F. W. Swantusch and wife entertained Ike Hanna and wife at dinner Tuesday.

Mrs. Eugene Oberlin is spending the week at Toledo the guest of relatives and friends.

J. L. Austin and wife returned Sunday from Plymouth where they spent their vacation.

A sleigh ride party went to Waterloo Friday evening and took supper at the Central House.

Mary and Rapheal McCarthy have returned from a visit with relatives at Fort Wayne.

If you want to send money away buy a New York draft of the First National bank. tf

Oliver Riser left Monday for Holland, Ohio, to work with the Union Switch and Signal Co.

Miss Daisy Moughler spent her vacation in the country with her aunt, Mrs. Peter Grube.

Mrs. Arthur Wannamaker of Edgerton spent Wednesday and Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Ora Hiner.

Mrs. H. E. Huntington visited friends and relatives at Pettisville and Wauseon, Ohso, last week.

About the only person now who believes Dr. Cook's story of discovering the pole is his faithful wife.

Guy Cochran, meat cutter at the Harper meat market, has moved his family here from Kendallville.

Eli Stark has resigned his position at the lumber yard and accepted a position with the Lake Shore Ry. Co.

E. C. Miller and wife were the guests of their daughter, Mrs. George Sturgis, at Kendallville Saturday and Sunday.

The Ladies Aid society of the M. E. church will give a chicken supper in the church basement next Saturday evening.

And now it is up to Walter Wellman to bring back that American flag which Dr. Cook wrapped around the north pole.

C. J. Coats has an 80 acre farm he will trade for a smaller piece. If he cannot do this, will take Butler city property in exchange. tf

Miss Ellen Rooke, who has been sick at the home of Mrs. J. C. Eviston, was taken to the hospital at Fort Wayne, Tuesday.

Miss Ethel Slocum, of Los Angeles, Cal., Millie Thompson and Charley Wimbaugh, of Fort Wayne, were the guests of Martin Heffelfinger and wife Sunday.

In the same casket with her infant babe for which she gave up her life, Mrs. Hiram Hutchesson was laid to rest in Spencerville cemetery last Monday morning.

Fred Countryman informs us that they have received a six horse power gas engine at the new cement mixer plant and that work is progressing satisfactory to all. They expect to build about one hundred machines the first year.

Twelve young people who were guests during the holidays of Millard Stone at his home in Butler were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Patterson Friday and attended the engineers' ball.—Garrett Clipper.

Miss Goldia Swantusch returned home Saturday after spending two weeks with friends and relatives at Garrett. While there she attended the wedding of her cousin, Miss Mabel Kandle and Rollie Long, a former resident of this city.

The following members of the Mason lodge at this place were in attendance at the Yackey funeral at Edgerton Sunday: E. P. Mesters, Wm. Richard, Geo. Rowe, W. J. Mondhank, F. P. Stump, T. A. Huffman, Clyde Shaffer, Wm. Holtzberg, W. H. Grube, Jas. Likens, E. A. Karle, Milt Hiner, H. M. Showalter, J. W. Showalter and Wm. Wilson.

Henry Krontz was at Auburn Tuesday on business.

Miss Besse Davis is visiting relatives at Wyandott, Mich., this week.

The Penelope club met with Mrs. Cora Hiner, Wednesday afternoon.

Pay your bills by check. Deposit with the First National bank. tf

Miss Lola Nimmons spent last week at St. Joe the guest of her sister, Mrs. Krise.

Mrs. E. B. Nimmons and Miss Amelia Kester spent Tuesday at Fort Wayne.

Miss Ada Mountz returned Saturday from a visit with her sister at Milwaukee, Wis.

Rev. Davis will preach at Big Run on Sunday morning and at Zion in the evening.

Furniture can be chosen from catalogue. Any one in doubt call on Eugene Treesh. 2-2

N. E. worthington spent Saturday and Sunday in Edgerton the guest of relatives.

Subscribe for Every Where, Will Carlton's magazine. $1 per year at this office. tf

Mrs. Anna Stoner is spending a few days in this city on her way to Montpelier.

Mrs. Jerry McClintock, who has been on the sick list, is improving at this writing.

Robert Elden, of Angola, was the guest of his parents, Wm. Elden and wife, Sunday.

L. D. Steward and family, of Swan, spent Sunday with his parents, D. W. Steward and wife.

T. J. Ingram, of Montpelier, was the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Sherm Hoffer, Sunday.

John Young and wife spent Sunday in the country the guests of Mr. Hutchison and wife.

George Benfield, of Clayton, Mich., has been the guest of his aunt, Mrs. Chas. Capp, this week.

Chas. Hanes, wife and son, Fred, of Auburn, were the guests of Wm. Elden and wife Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Treesh entertained Chas. McKee and wife, of Corunna, Saturday and Sunday.

Henry Dills, of Auburn, spent Monday and Tuesday of last week with Dr. Frank Fanning and wife.

The Misses Elsie Bash and Marie Oxenrider will leave Saturday for a visit with relatives at Edgerton.

Mrs. G. W. Hanes has returned from Ithaca, Mich., where she attended the funeral of her sister, Mrs. Oscar Bates.

Miss Arminta Steward, of Spencerville, is here to help care for her sister, Miss Jennie Steward, who is sick at the home of Ed Karle.

I would like an offer for any one, or all, of several houses in Butler, owned by people not living here. If you want a home, this is your chance. Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

The greatest question before the American people is greater respect for the law, says Gov. Demen. Perhaps if there were fewer laws there would be more respect for the rest of them.

Miss Anne Albertson returned to her school at Walton, Ind., last week. She was accompanied by her sister, Miss Honore, who will visit friends at that place and South Whitley.

Rev. Edmund Albertson entertained his Sunday school class last Thursday evening. About twenty-five were present and the evening was spent in a very sociable way. New officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Elva Gengnagel; secretary, J. B. Pessell.

In reply to our valued exchanges who have not been receiving the HERALD the past few weeks, will say that we have been constantly adding new subscribers to our list until the regular number of papers which the HERALD has been receiving since its piano contest has become inadequate to supply the demand, consequently it becomes necessary to miss some of the papers with whom we exchange. The shipment has been increased and the HERALD will be forthcoming to our editor friends. Thanking them for calling our attention to the matter we beg to remain fraternally yours.

It is gratifyiny to learn that the Lake Shore has placed orders for 100 new locomotive engines, 57,090 freight cars and 40 passinger coaches. Forty passenger coaches will give an extra coach to almost every division on the system, an additional equipment which will be greatly appreciated by week-end excursionists to the Steuben county lakes next summer. Under pass arrangements the Lake Shore has been able to pack six loads of people into three cars, but with an additional coach on the division every once in a while things will be much improved and the six car loads will sometimes have four cars to romp around in. The Lake Shore is certainly great on passinger accommodations.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They do the work whenever you require their aid. These tablets change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, gloominess into joyousness. Their action is so gentle one don't realize they have taken a purative. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

Closing Notice

Notice is hereby given that the Knisely Bros. & Co. bank and First National bank of Butler will not open for business hereafter on Saturday night.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

Ward Smith, of Kendallville, was in the city Tuesday.

Remember Dr. Lanham at the opera house this (Friday) evening.

Miss Mabel Oberlin and Frank Abram were at Auburn Sunday.

Sunday dinners at the Cottage hotel only 25 cents. Give us a call. 2-tf

Miss Tillie Hoffer returned home Sunday from a week's visit at Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Cloid Snyder are the proud parents of a baby girl since Jan. 2.

Sherman Kenestrick, of Kendallville, was in the city Tuesday calling on old friends.

We have some 5 per cent money to loan. on mortgage security. First National Bank. tf

Arthur Ingram and wife, Carl Hall and wife and Leon Oberlin, of Hamilton, spent Sunday with Sherm Hoffer and family.

The little child of Mr. and Mrs. Downs drank gasoline last week and has been quite sick. Dr. Fanning is the attending physician.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a very valuable medicine for throat and lung troubles, quickly relieves and cures painful breathing and a dangerously sounding cough which indicates congested lungs. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

J. George Wagner returned Sunday evening from Cleveland where he had been in the interest of the new gas engine works. He arrived home feeling somewhat indisposed and has been confined to his bed at the home of J. D. Wilcox.

Have you a weak throae? If so, you cannot be too careful. You cannot begin treatment too early. Each cold makes you more liable to another and the last is always harder to cure. If you will take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the outset yov will be saved much trouble. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

County Clerk Austin has compiled a record of the licenses to wed and also those to hunt, that were issued during the year 1908, and the increases over the year before in both instances is large. During the twelve months past, two hundred and thirty-two marriage licenses were issued, and four hundred and seventy-nine hunters' licenses taken out.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is not a common, every-day cohgh mixture. It is a meritorious remedy for all the troublesome and dangerous complications resulting from cold in the head, throat, chest or lungs. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

The merchants of Garrett ought to take Timothy out behind the roundhouse and tell him to speak easy and tred lightly. Any town that has a large money order record indicates easy picking for mail order concerns like "Shears Doebuck & Co." Its an indication of higher prices, and poor advertisers in the field supplied by the office in question.—Churubusco Truth.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy never disappoints those who use it for obstinate coughs, colds and irritations of the throat and lungs. It stands unrivalled as a remedy for all throat and lung diseases. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

The local horsemen have been taking advantage of the fine smooth streets in speeding their horses. Queen Bess, the five year old mare owned by Dr. Frank Fanning, seems to be the favorite. On Wednesday she beat the fast driving horse of J. E. Decker, and on Friday she won against Ed McGregor, a horse with a record of 2:16 3-4, owned by Dr. Acker. The races were purely for sport and no money was bet.

Ladies shampoo and massage. First class barber work and baths. West side Broadway, Tomlinson's old stand. Give us a call. M. J. Harrigan, Prop.

This is what a well posted married man said recently for the benefit of his daughter: "Never forget for a single instant as long as you live that the 'men folks' are continually on the firing line in this battle of life. You never dream what blows they get and what wounds they carry. Of course, he doesn't wipe his feet, nor hang up his clothes, nor put away things, nor shut doors and drawers. Dear me, you didn't think you were marrying an old man, did you? Nag & Whine is the firm that runs the divorce mills. So girls, be good to us when we come in doors. There is only a fight with hard knocks for us out in the world."

Mrs. Bert Rogers is the guest of Mrs. Wid Hoke at Bryan.

A share of your patronage is solicited at the Harper meal market.

Sunday dinners at the Cottage hotel only 25 cents. Give us a call. 2-tf

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, of Goshen, are the guests of Jerry Bolinger and family.

I have for sale, houses in all parts of the city. Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

Helen Baker and Winona Mickey have returned from a visit at Three Rivers, Mich., with Manton Bryant and wife.

William Grindle, the gentlemen who is starting the new cigar factory in the Boyle building is at work arranging the rooms and will be manufactoring cigars within a few days. He comes highly recommended by the people of Auburn and as he has bought property here it looks as if he expected to remain with us. We him the best of success in his business.

The Pythian Sisters installed the following officers Wednesday evening January 12:

Florence Mutzfelt—P.C.
Claude Hafner—M. E. C.
Elizabeth Hoffman—E. S.
Fay Tyson—E. J.
Ina Mutzfelt—M.
Mary Campbell—M. of R. & C.
Rose Hamilton—M. of F.
Mabel Murch—P.
Murial Baker—O. G.

MAY REMONSTRATE AGAINST PAVING

The Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette had the following to say Wednesday: A petition is being prepared and will be presented to the city council asking that the proposed paving of West Main street, from Main street to the corporation line, be deferred indefinitely owing to the fact that the portion of the street over the new sewer has not yet firmly settled and sinking of the pavement would result. The petition will be signed by about four-fifths of the property owners on the street.

Obituary

Edith V. Cherry Smurr was born May 3, 1858, near Butler, Ind., died Jan. 8, 1910, aged 51 years, 8 months and 5 days.

She was united in marriage to Perry Smurr, May 7, 1876. To this union was born one son, who with the husband, one sister and one brother survive her.

She was a member of the Church of God at Butler, Ind., and died in the triumphs of the christian faith.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Overmire, Monday, Jan. 10. Interment in Waterloo cemetery.

Advertised Letters

Mrs. Jane Bertch.
Mr. Clyde Coble.
Elik Darra.
Tracy Fisher.
Jas. Greensides.
Mr. Chaflie Harriman.
Mrs. Errie Hettinger.
Mrs. Jacob Johnson.
Mr. A. L. Linke.
Gorge May.
Miss Gertrude Moore.
Dr. W. T. Moore.
J. J. Myers.
Eniopales Otnapa.
Henry Rawson.
Geneva Reed.
Stanistawa Silkowira.
Mr. Jonas Smith.
Mr. Clark Sutphen.
Mrs. Clark Suptmun.

THOS. RUDD, Postmaster.

Notice

By order of the city council all persons holding order number 42, 44, 45, 321, 364, 835, 922, 947 and 999 against the city are hereby notified that these orders are all in and no interest will be paid on same after this date, Jan. 14, 1910.

2-1 L. C. BUEHRER, Clerk.

EUGENE TREESH

Embalmer and Funeral Director
Lady Assistant

Prompt Response to Calls Day or Night

January Clearance Sale of Ladies' Suits, Ladies', Misses' and Children's Coats, Skirts, Furs, Silk and Net Waists, Ladies' Sweaters, Etc.

January, February and March, 3 Months of Winter

You'll have plenty of time to make use of Winter Garments. We still have some to sell and are determined to make a clean sweep of all winter wear. Rather than carry them over into another season we have decided to take our loss now and give our customers the benefit.

25 Percent Discount

On all Ladies' Suits and Coats, Misses' and Children's Coats. Remember we will give one-fourth off on all garments from the regular marked prices.

Tailored Suits

Twenty to select from.

$10.00 Values reduced to.....$7.50
15.00 Values reduced to.....$11.25
18.50 Values reduced to.....$13.87
25.00 Values reduced to.....$18.75

Sizes 32 to 40

Furs! Furs! Furs!

Twenty-five percent discount on every piece of Fur in our line, while they last.

Sweater Coats

One-fourth off on all Ladies', Misses' and Children's Sweater Coats.

Women's Coats

One-fourth less than our regular low prices. A large line to select from.

Misses' and Children's Coats

A discount of 25 percent on every garment.

Silk and Net Waists

One-fourth less than our regular low prices.

Ladies' Dress Skirts

Our entire stock of Ladies' Dress Skirts at 20 percent discount.

Twenty Misses' and Children's Coats, values from $3.50 to $10.00, carried over from last year, good warm cloth garments; all must go at.....$1.98

Only 69 Cents A Pair

Fifty pair of Ladies' Kid Gloves—some dressed, some undressed. Former prices $1.00 to $1.50. All go at 69 cents a pair while they last.

Remnant Counter

We have gathered together the accumulations of the past season's business and placed them on our Remnant Counter. They are all marked at ridicuously low prices. It will pay you to look them over. We will offer special bargains in other departments of our big store during this sale.

The Knisely Dry Goods Co.

Work 24 Hours A Day

The busiest little things ever made are Dr. King's New Life Pills. Every pill is a sugar coated globule of health, that changes weakness into strength, languor into energy, brain-fag into mental power; curing Constipation, Headache, Chills, Dyspepsia, Malaria. 25c at Stone's drug store. 1-1m

Pure Buckwheat Flour

Self-Rising Buckwheat

Flour, Corn Meal

Flour and Feed

Poultry Supplies

CRAUN'S FEED STORE

Phone 54

Eat What

You want of the food you need Kodol will digest it.

You need a sufficient amount of good wholesome food and more than this you need to fully digest it.

Else you can't gain strength, nor can you strengthen your stomach if it is weak.

You must eat in order to live and maintain strength.

You must not diet, because the body requires that you eat a sufficient amount of food regularly.

But this food must be digested, and it must be digested thoroughly.

When the stomach can't do it, you must take something that will help the stomach.

The proper way to do is to eat what you want, and let Kodol digest the food.

Nothing else can do this. When the stomach is weak it needs help; you must help it by giving it rest, and Kodol will do that.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today, and purchase a dollar bottle, and if you can honestly say, that you did not receive any benefits from it, after using the entire bottle, the druggist will refund your money to you without question or delay.

We will pay the druggist the price of the bottle purchased by you.

This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family.

We could not afford to make such an offer, unless we positively knew what Kodol will do for you.

It would bankrupt us.

The dollar bottle contains 2½ times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is made at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

SOLD AT GEDDES' DRUGSTORE

You Will Like Black Cross

Because we like it. We like it because it is good, in fact, the best for the price. When you buy Black Cross Coffee, you will find something there you like. When you buy Blac Cross Tea youwill find the quality in the cup and an aroma that can't fail to please. When you buy Black Cross Spices, you buy the best. These spices are put up in packages, it keeps them fresh. They don't cost you any more than others that are one-half the strength. Just try one 5c package and you will never use any other. At the price Indian Coffee 17c a pound has them all beat.

The Oberlin Grocery Company

JANUARY

0443

L1134

CONSTRUCTION OF THE WRIGHT AEROPLANE

DETAILS OF THE WRIGHT MACHINE

WILBUR WRIGHT

To the public at large the Wright flying machine and its simple mechanism has been a hidden mystery. Its very simplicity has been charged with the mysterious, to the layman mind.

While the whole world was crowding to witness the announced flights for the first time in New York city, this wizard of the sky, Wilbur Wright, was quietly devoting his time and his skill in his shed perfecting every detail of his aeroplane.

To a writer for the Philadelphia Ledger, who was among the few privileged persons who watched him day after day, Wright has given a view of his own opinion of the Wright machine. "Do you think any of the machines that have been built in Europe are equal to your own aeroplane?"

"No," Mr. Wright remarked. "They have all copied us as much as they could, but as yet they still use twice the power, and even then are not able to produce results equal to ours."

Much surprise was expressed in this country because the Wright machine did not win in the races at Rheims. Mr. Wright's attention was called to this fact, and he was asked why he had not been successful against the other aviators.

"If I wanted to build a machine for racing I would build one different from the one which I have here, and—I think I shall probably do so in a few years," he remarked. Mr. Wright did not venture to explain the sort of a machine he had in mind, but he added: "The type we have now is not designed for racing purposes. Our machine is designed for general, practical use. It is not a freak machine."

Mr. Wright specially pointed out that in experiments in aerodynamics, both in machine and aerial propellers, it has been generally concluded that a propeller of large diameter and slow revolution is more efficient and less wasteful of power than a small one turning very fast. He laid stress on the fact that the size of the Wright propeller is not far different from that of propellers on other aeroplanes. But the use of two instead of one affords a means of reducing the rotative speed without lessening the total thrust. In this way, he said, the power of the motor is applied with much greater economy. The use of twin propellers, however, involves added weight of gearing and chains, but the resultant decrease of weight in size of motor fully overbalances this.

His attention was called to the fact that a further objection has been made to the use of two propellers, viz.: that if one of them should suddenly break the effect on the other, if still rotating, would be to turn the machine around in such a manner as to seriously endanger its equilibrium.

To this he replied: "Obviously the best reply for this is to immediately stop the motor; but, if this were to be impossible, the propellers could be connected by a scheme in such fashion that when one stops the other will also stop."

The movement of a Wright machine in the air shows the promptness of the correction of lateral balance. When the machine "heels over" to one side it is brought back in a short, quick motion to an even keel, and responds instantaneously to the operation of the lever by the aviator. The horizontal rudder of the Wright machine has two surfaces, and is placed well out in front. It is mounted on a frame in such a manner that it is "thrown off centre" when moved.

The Wright machine is mounted on skids, no wheels being provided. It is, therefore, unable to run along the ground, and requires a rail for starting. This feature has been greatly decried and held as a serious fault. "But," Mr. Wright said, "if I needed it I could add wheels and start by running along the ground."

"Does the use of skids render the machine unable to rise again if landing away from the rail?" he was asked.

"Yes, except in an exceptional case of smooth ground, but where the starting device is cheap, and the landing far away from the rail unlikely, these objections loss their force. The rail of the Wright machine can be laid on the smoothest lawn or the roughest moor, and starts made with equal ease; while the use of the 'derrick' and falling weight, in addition to the rail, makes it possible to start in a very limited space. The ground at Pau," said Mr. Wright, "was very rough and full of hummocks, but the rail was laid down very easily and could be changed in direction to suit the wind. M. Bleriot at one time was going to use Pau for a flying ground also, but as his machine ran on wheels he was forced to give up the idea, as the ground was too rough. The constructions of the Wright machine has been called crude, but its crudeness lies only in its simplicity, and is, therefore, a great advantage. It can be packed and shipped more easily than any other machine, and its construction is such as to enable it to suffer hard knocks with little damage. The construction of the frame itself is light, but fully strong enough.

"The motor is placed on one side of the seats, which are two in number. The aviator sits on the outer one, while the passenger sits between the pilot and the motor, directly over the center of gravity. This disposition of seats and motor was very practical, as it enabled the passenger to reach his side and, if necessary, adjust the motor in flight, without in the least disturbing the equilibrium of the machine, a feature of construction which is absent in other machines.

"When aviation has progressed far enough there is no reason why an aviator should not mount to the clouds in his aeroplane, cut off the motor, and then soar in circles and spirals over ascending current of air like the great birds, sail on for a period of time, with no exertion of energy, then at his will restart the motor and return safely to earth. I expect in a few years to be able to do this myself, and my brother Orville, with his flights, is already preparing to do this."

"FRAT" MEMBERS BRAND BOY.

"My boy, branded as they would a steer on the Western range, in the initiation ceremony by a fraternity at the School of Mines, impels me to cry to mothers and to demand that such barbarous practices in a civilized country come to an abrupt end." This statement was made by Mrs. J. A. Snedaker when she brought her son, Eugene Snedaker, 19 years old, to Denver in her automobile, suffering from the treatment he and six other freshmen are said to have received when they were initiated into the Kappa Sigma Fraternity. Mrs. Snedaker is the wife of a millionaire mining man.

ATCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS.

Most drunken men act drunker than they really are.

The other fellow's mistakes always seem absurd to you.

Any man who will tell his wrongs, will exaggerate them.

A drunken man always wants to talk about his respectability.

After you have attained a triumph, it doesn't seem so great, does it?

No girl, except the Gould and Vanderbilt girls, has enough to live on.

When flattery is readily recognized, it is a sign it is aimed at someone else.

If a man's family appreciates him, he doesn't miss it so much if the world doesn't.

A real smart man is one smart enough to know when he is being made fun of.

A farmer always knows a farm in his neighborhood that has starved one or two owners

When you are guilty of a mean trick, ever remark how sneaking it makes you feel?

How important a politician looks when he says to a reporter: "I have nothing to say."

A FRENCH TOWN WHERE WOMEN RULE

In those days of discussions of suffragist movements, women's rights and feminine business acumen, anyone in search of an example of an unusual sort might drop in upon the French channel port of Cancale, a town of some 15,000 souls when they are all at home, and see a truly woman run town.

The conditions that make this a woman run town come about in the most natural way in the world. All the men are fishers and they spend the greater part of the year at sea. They are good sailors and they man the craft that venture across the Atlantic to the French fishing grounds along the Newfoundland coast. It was their rights that used to come up frequently for adjustment by fishery commissions and it is the loss of their vessels that almost every year brings sorrow to Cancale and the neighboring coast.

When the men do return they find that the town has been managed so well in their absence and the thrift of the women has been so well exercised that they are content not to meddle and to let things go on as they have been going. There are proportionately more widows, and young widows, too, in Cancale than in any other town in France. A fisherman's bride waits for four years after she has heard that the boat her husband sailed away on has not been reported and then she puts on her mourning. It is this uncertainty as to the fate of the men, the fear that at any time they may be thrown helpless and homeless upon their own resources, that makes the women of Cancale self-reliant and that leads them early to seek some means of their own for an honest livelihood.

The thrift that the conditions mentioned inspire is something of a passion among the women. It seems that there is a constant struggle with each one of them to make more money than the man who goes to sea. They frequently accomplish this, too, for the returning fisherman finds frequently that his yearly gain of $150 or $200 got after a hard battle from the sea is more than equaled by the patient and careful housewife that he left at home.

Good looks are one of the commodities of the town and they have always paid well. The great French painter, Feyen-Perrin, went to Cancale years ago and found models for his famous "Le Retour de la Peche Aux Huitres" that hangs in the Luxembourg at Paris, and since the nartists and photographers have been visiting the town to paint or snapshot new generations of oyster women and marine scenes.

The girls that posed for Feyen-Perrin are mothers now, but their daughters or granddaughters, as pretty of figure and face, are still much sought after. They all know the artist's weakness and work upon his sympathies with admirable adroitness and shrewdness.

It seems strange to Americans, whose ideas of oyster gatherers is bewhiskered fishermen with sloops and dredges and machinery, to hear of women as laborers in the slimy, muddy oyster beds. But women do the work, and they do it so well that the French government is not unwilling to give the sex credit for the success of the cultivation at this point.

The R rule prevails in France as elsewhere, but there is always so much to be done in summer in the beds, or the parks, as they are called, that there is work for many women during the whole year.

The parks lie around the sea front, and with their rough fences and piles of granite resemble nothing so much as water-soaked fields at low tide. It is a wonderful sight to see the hundreds of women hurrying in from the beds, keeping just in advance of the rapidly-inflowing tide.

It is weird, too, to see them, 300 or 400 of them, loading the big oyster-carrying vessels. They crawl over the sides like ants. It is a hustling business working against the tide and carrying through slime and mud great baskets that men would not handle with most ease or swiftness.

WITH THE SAGES.

Evil is wrought by want of thought, as well as want of heart.—Hood.

You cannot hurt anybody without receiving a greater hurt yourself.—Cobden.

Absence of occupation is not rest; a mind quite vacant is a mind distressed.—Cowper.

From the horny hand of toil comes the richest harvest of content.—W. Stewart Royston.

No man has a prosperity so high or firm but two or three words can dishearten it.—Emerson.

He that does good works for praise to a selfish end sells an inestimable jewel for a trifle.—St. Gregory.

Happiness is the natural flower of duty. The good man ought to be thoroughly happy.—Phillips Brooks.

Break one thread in the border of virtue, and you don't know how much you may unravel.—Cunningham Geikie.

VAGARIES OF GENIUS.

Longfellow never wrote while eating.

Charles Dickens always walked upstairs.

Mrs. Hemans did not wear peekaboo waists.

Dr. Johnson was never known to eat ice cream.

Dante never called his "Inferno" profane history.

Shakespeare could not use a typewriter in composing his plays.

FIGHT IN PERE LA CHAISE

Stone Wall of Frightful Memories in Famous Cemetery of French Capital.

WON'T LET FRANCE FORGET.

Communards Celebrate Anarchists' Deaths and Vainly Seek to Erect Monument to Fallen.

Funeral wreaths of pottery and glass beads are shocking enough to American eyes in continental cemeteries, but in a far corner of Pere Lachaise, that last resting place of famous Parisians, there is a bit of the outer wall hung with red wreaths, draperies and flags, which in that quiet place seem particularly sinister and revolting, says a Paris correspondent of the Detroit Free Press. It is "Le Mur des Federes," with their backs to which the "communards" made their last stand against government troops and were shot down like rabbits in the last days of May, 1871.

The communards, who had retreated to the cemetery for their last refuge, set up a battery of ten guns near the tomb of the duc de Morny, which they used as an ammunition store. From this battery they kept up an incessant fire on the quarters of Paris occupied by the regular troops.

At nightfall of Saturday, May 27, a detachment of the 47th line regiment entered the cemetery, where a fierce engagement took place. Many tombs bear the marks of bullets. Early on the following morning 148 prisoners were placed against the wall and shot. Next day, says an eyewitness of the scene, the ground was covered with heads, hands, feet and fragments of bloody clothing. The bodies were not entombed, but hastily gathered together in the trench they had defended, saturated with oil and lime, and burned where they fell.

Recently there was exhibited in the Paris salon a grewsome piece of plastic art which one would have found puzzling unless one had the good fortune to be well versed in the history of Paris. It was entitled "Le Mur: Aux Victims du Revolution," by the sculptor, Moreau-Vauthier. The wall itself was about twenty feet long; in front in full relief against it with arms extended and back toward it was a figure representing France with upturned face; while behind, faintly suggested in the wall itself in low relief, were hideous fragments of human beings; grinning faces, clenched hands, staring eyes, ears, feet and any number of gaping terrified mouths. The idea was typical of the modern French school. Realistic horrors perpetuated in works of art.

Weather reports by wireless telegraph are furnished the British Bureau by ships in the Atlantic. The ocean has been divided into numbered areas, so as to locate all reports.

The corozo tree abounds throughout the Mexican State of Tobasco, being most abundant in the virgin forests, as it requires shade and humidity to develop favorably.

INDIAN FUGITIVE TAKES REFUGE IN SCHOOLHOUSE.

Barricaded in a country schoolhouse filled with children, near Sleeper, Okla., Jack Willis, a Cherokee Indian, fought with officers until he was shot dead and Constable Tuck Ketcher was mortally wounded. Willis resisted arrest for a trivial offense. Finding himself pursued by officers he sought refuge in the schoolhouse. Willis opened fire, wounding Ketcher. The wounded constable, lying on the ground, kept firing at Willis. The pupils escaped through windows. Constable Wilson finally crawled close to the building and shot Willis.

KILLS UNRULY SCHOOLBOY.

Near Gravette, Ark., John Butram, a schoolboy, was killed by his teacher, A. T. Kelley. It is said that Butram had caused the teachers of the Bear Hollow School considerable trouble and had succeeded in thrashing two teachers lately. When Kelley took the school it is said that he went "prepared to teach." Young Butram announced, it is said, that there would be no school that day, and Kelley insisted that the session would continue as usual. In the midst of a heated discussion, it is said Butram drew a knife and made a dash at Kelley, who in turn drew his pistol, shooting Butram three times. He died instantly. Kelley surrendered to the authorities.

KING TOILS AS A LABORER.

GUSTAV V. AND QUEEN LOUISE. RULERS OF SWEDEN.—COPYRIGHT 1907 BY THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

King Gustav of Sweden has become a laborer despite the pleas of Queen Louise. Disguised as a stevedore, he spends a day carrying sacks of coal from a lighter. In an interview after it was all over the king said that this was only the beginning. He intended to mix with all classes of laborers, so that he might ascertain their opinions and wishes.

The determination of King Gustav to learn of the conditions of the workingmen by mingling with them and taking part in their labors has resulted from the recent great tie-up of the business life of the country by a general strike. King Gustav intervened last August in an endeavor to secure a compromise, but without avail.

Eventually arbitration was undertaken by the Swedish government to settle the dispute and in the interim many of the workmen returned to their tasks, although the number of unemployed remained very great. The king found difficulty in ascertaining the real facts, and he then made arrangements to join various craftsmen and laborers at their work and in such a guise that they would not recognize him.

IN FRANCE.

French barbers oddly advertise their art by wearing beards.

The two great race courses of Paris are within the great public park, the Bois.

Twenty-two Parisian suburbs are connected with the city by pneumatic letter tubes.

"Swiss cheese" in Paris means a white cream cheese. It is eaten with powdered sugar.

MONEY FROM WEEDS.

Common Wild Plants That Grow All Over the Country Are Imported from Abroad.

WIDELY USED AS MEDICINE.

Value in Such Roots as Burdock, Dandelion and Pokeweed and in Dog Grass and Catnip.

This country is actually importing for medicinal purposes plants that are growing wild all around us, but which no one seems to think it worth while to gather. This fact is pointed out by the department of agriculture in a bulletin called "Weeds Used as Medicine," which it would be worth while for the boy who reads this to write for if he wants to make a little money out of the vacant ground all around him, a New York Herald Washington letter says. The bulletin will explain how to prepare the weeds for the market and will give some idea of the price that the industrious boy can expect to obtain for the weeds that are marketable.

Belgium and other European countries ship to this part of the world every year about 50,000 pounds of burdock root. The root sells for from 3 to 8 cents a pound and the seeds for from 5 to 10 cents. This will probably be news to most of those diligent workers who have been weeding out the burdock from thousands of farms, and carefully consigning it to the flames, while the more thrifty Europeans have been selling it to us in consignments that come more than 3,000 miles to a country that abounds in it.

Who has not wondered at the sight of Italians digging for dandelions. The country boy knows that dandelion greens are not bad for the table, but what few but the astute alien are wise to it that druggists derive part of their income from the sale of dandelion as a tonic and that from 4 to 6 cents a pound can be obtained from the root that flourishes everywhere ready for the picking?

Instead of gathering the dock root that goes to waste all around us, the American nation pays for the importation of 125,000 pounds of this plant every year. The dried root sells at from 2 to 8 cents a pound, and is considered an excellent blood medicine. The waste lands are alive with it and any boy could make money by gathering and preparing it for the market.

A quarter of a million pounds of dog grass, a remedy for kidney troubles, comes to this country annually from abroad. Is it because we cannot grow dog grass in America? No, but because for some reason this unthrifty nation imports it instead of pulling it up and preparing it from the places where it grows all around us. It brings from 3 to 7 cents a pound. Here's a chance for the boy who finds the long vacation begin to pall upon him to show he is as industrious as his competitor in the old world.

Then there is pokeweed, a skin and blood remedy, the dried roots of which sell for from 2 to 5 cents a pound; mullein, which is a nerve tonic and a cough medicine, and which sells for good prices, but is not thought to be salable by the boys of this country (German boys know better—they sell it for importation to America); lobelia seeds, which sell for 15 cents a pound, and catnip, which can be exchanged for pocket money at the rate of from 2 to 8 cents a pound.

These are only a few of the many weeds that are salable, but which we allow to go to waste in this country, while we buy the identical thing from abroad. It will open the eyes as well as line the pockets of our boys to get the bulletin referred to and make money out of that obnoxious job of weeding.

Strictly Neutral.

Among the humorous and human stories in Dr. T. L. Pennell's recent book, "Among the Wild Tribes of the Afghan Frontier," is one of a British officer in the Kurram valley who interrogated an Afridi with regard to what was then considered a probable conflict.

"Now tell me," said the officer, "if there were to be war—which God forbid—between Russia and England, what part would you and your people take? Whom would you side with?"

"Do you wish me to tell you what would please you or to tell you the real truth?" was the naive reply.

"I adjure you to tell me what is the 'white word.'"

"Then," said the old graybeard, "we would just sit up here on our mountain tops watching you both fight, until we saw one or the other defeated. Then we would come down and loot the vanquished till the last mule! God is great! What a time that would be for us!"

Cure for Disconsolate Lovers.

Tye one end of a rope righte over a beame
And make a slippe noose at the other extreame,
Just under the beame lett a bucket be sett;
On it lett the lovier most manfullie gett.
Right over his heade be left the snicket be gott
And under his care well fastened the knott.
The buckett kicked cleare, lett him take a full swinge
And leave alle the reste of the worke to the stringe!

The Egotistical Actor.

Theatrical Manager—I'm sorry, but there's no place for you in this drama; every part has been taken.

Egotistical Actor—Never mind that. I'll create my part.—Puck.

As a man grows older, snow loses most of the beauty it formerly possessed, and is merely cold, and slippery, and good for the wheat.

VITALIZER

RESTORES LOST POWERS. A weak man is like a clock run down. MUNYON'S VITALIZER will wind him up and make him go. If you are nervous, if you are irritable, if you lack confidence in yourself, if you do not feel your full manly vigor, begin on this remedy at once. There are 75 VITALIZER tablets in one bottle; every tablet is full of vital power. Don't spend another dollar on quack doctors or spurious remedies, or fill your system with harmful drugs. Begin on MUNYONS VITALIZER at once, and you will begin to feel the vitalizing effect of this remedy after the first dose. Price, $1, post-paid. Munyon, 53rd and Jefferson, Phila, Pa.

SORE EYES CURED.

Eye-balls and Lids Became Terribly Inflamed—Was Unable to Go About—All Treatments Failed—Cuticura Proved Successful.

"About two years ago my eyes got in such a condition that I was unable to go about. They were terribly inflamed, both the balls and lids. I tried home remedies without relief. Then I decided to go to our family physician, but he didn't help them. Then I tried two more of our most prominent physicians, but my eyes grew continually worse. At this time a friend of mine advised me to try Cuticura Ointment, and after using it about one week my eyes were considerably improved and in two weeks they were almost well. They have never given me any trouble since and I am now sixty-five years old. I shall never fail to praise Cuticura. G. B. Halsey, Mouth of Wilson, Va., April 4, 1908."

Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props. of Cuticura Remedies, Boston.

A Tragedy of Twins.

H. C. Chatfield-Taylor, Chicago's well known clubman and author, was ringmaster at a recent children's circus at Lake Forest. One of his jokes as ringmaster was as follows:

"Hark," he said to the clown, "there has been a sad accident in the side show."

"How so, governor?" the clown asked as he jumped through a paper hoop.

"A poor man," said the distinguished ringmaster, "visited the side show with his twin boys, plump little fellows, and the cannibals got loose and ate philopena with them."

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions, and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price, 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

A Miracle of Science.

Aeroplaning is another miracle of practical science—another impossibility shown to be possible—another dream of centuries realized, but realized in a manner which none but this generation could have understood. Will the history of the steam locomotive repeat itself? The actual maximum speed on railways is no higher to-day than it was sixty years ago, though, of course, the train loads are very different. Will it be so with the aeroplane?

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules. Easy to take as candy.

An Annual Luxury.

An English boy went to visit his two Scotch cousins during his summer vacation. His breakfast every morning consisted of plain oatmeal, and he got very tired of it. "Say, Jack," he said, "don't you ever have milk with your porridge?"

Jack turned to his brother. "Eh, Tom," he said, "the lad thinks it's Christmas."—Success Magazine.

DO NOT ACCEPT A SUBSTITUTE when you want Perry Davis' Painkiller, as nothing is as good for rheumatism, neuralgia and similar troubles. 70 years in constant use. 25c, 35c and 50c.

The Safe Course.

Mrs. Wilson's husband was often obliged to travel on business, and frequently did not reach home till after midnight. His wife had been in the habit of sleeping peacefully at these times, says a writer in the Spokesman-Review, but a number of burglaries in the neighborhood during one of Mr. Wilson's trips had disturbed her calm.

On one night of his return Mr. Wilson was stealing carefully up the front stairs, so that his wife would not be awakened, when he heard her voice, high and strained.

"I don't know whether you are my husband or a burglar," came the excited tones, "but I am going to be on the safe side and shoot, so if you are Henry you'd better get out of the way!"

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES

An absolutely harmless remedy for Sore Throat, Hoarseness and Coughs. Give immediate relief in Bronchial and Lung Affections. Fifty years' reputation. Price, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00 per box. Sample sent on request.

JOHN I. BROWN & SON, Boston, Mass.

JANUARY

0444

L1134

Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna

Cleanses the System Effectually; Dispels colds and Headaches due to Constipation; Acts naturally, acts truly as a Laxative. Best for Men, Women and Children—Young and Old. To get its beneficial effects, always buy the Genuine, manufactured by the

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.

SOLD BY ALL LEADING DRUGGISTS

one size only, regular price 50¢ per bottle.

WESTERN CANADA

What Prof. Shaw, the Well-Known Agriculturist, Says About It:

"I would sooner raise cattle in Western Canada than in the corn belt of the United States. Feed is cheaper and climate better for the purpose. Your market will improve faster than your farmers will produce the supplies. Wheat can be grown up to the 60th parallel 900 miles north of the International boundary. Your vacant land will be taken at a rate beyond present conception. We have enough people in the United States alone who want homes to take up this land." Nearly

70,000 Americans

will enter and make their homes in Western Canada this year.

1909 produced another large crop of wheat, oats and barley, in addition to which the cattle exports was an immense item.

Cattle raising, dairying, mixed farming and grain growing in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Free homestead and pre-emption areas, as well as lands held by railway and land companies, will provide homes for millions.

Adaptable soil, healthful climate, splendid schools and churches, and good railways.

For settlers' rates, descriptive literature "Last Best West," how to reach the country and other particulars, write to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the following Canadian Gov't Agents: W. H. Rogers, 2nd Floor Traction-Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Ind., and H. M. Williams, Room 29, Law Building, Toledo, Ohio. (Use address nearest you).

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Please say where you saw this advertisement.

Ef Fort Wayne List

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

A DOSE OF PISO'S CURE THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS AND COLDS

is as safe as it is effective. Guaranteed to contain no opiates. It is very palatable too—children like it.

All Druggists, 25 Cents

Constipation—

Nearly Every One Gets It

The bowels show first sign of things going wrong. A Cascaret taken every night as needed keeps the bowels working naturally, without grip, gripe and that upset sick feeling.

50c

Ten cent box, week's treatment. All drug stores. Biggest seller in the world—million boxes a month.

Let us do your Printing using

Eagle Linen

for your office stationery. You can get the paper and envelopes to match.

It is the real thing. Take no substitute.

USE

SAFETY ANTI-PAIN CAPSULES

HEADACHE, LA GRIPPE, NEURALGIA

PRICE—10 CENTS.

A Poor Weak Woman

As she is termed, will endure bravely and patiently agonies which a strong man would give way under. The fact is women are more patient than they ought to be under such troubles.

Every woman ought to know that she may obtain the most experienced medical advice free of charge and in absolute confidence and privacy by writing to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., for many years and has had a wider practical experience in the treatment of women's diseases than any other physician in this country. His medicines are world-famous for their astonishing efficacy.

The most perfect remedy ever devised for weak and delicate women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

The many and varied symptoms of woman's peculiar ailments are fully set forth in Plain English in the People's Medical Adviser (1008 pages), a newly revised and up-to-date Edition of which, cloth-bound, will be mailed free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only. Address as above.

SILHOUETTES OF WESTERN CANADA.

The man from Iowa began to talk land before the train was well out of the C. N. R. depot in Winnipeg. The talk began in rather wide circles. The rush to the land, the bumper crop, the system of summer fallowing pursued in the semi-arid districts, were all discussed, and then, with a sort of apologetic smile, the Iowa man said: "I'm a bit interested in this country myself. Some of the men down home got a few sections up here along this line, and I'm going to have a look at them. Never been up in Canada before" (it is curious how these mid-Western Americans pronounce the name of the Dominion as if it was "Can'dy"), "but if it looks good we will be up to stay next fall."

"You see, it's like this," said the man from Iowa, quite manifestly continuing an argument that had been going on in his mind for some time. "Back in our State land has become dear. Anybody wanting to sell can get $70 or $80 an acre for it, and every farm that's offered is snapped up. In Saskatchewan we have just as good land that cost us $11 and $12, so that a man can take up five or six times as much there as in Iowa on the same investment of money.

"It isn't the money, though, that brings most of us up from Iowa. I'm not sure that money would be enough. The 'invasion' is a family affair. We have no chance of keeping our sons around us back home. They have to leave the farm and go into the big cities of the neighboring States to get work. To keep them on the farm and in touch with us, we come up here and make little colonies with the children around us, on homesteads or bought land. This makes it easier for the farmers back there in Iowa to get land for the stay-at-homes. The families that come to Canada are kept together and the families that buy the farms they leave are kept together, too. There won't be any slackening of the rush, either, for they still raise big families back in Iowa."

One could almost see the mental process of this typical American farmer, in defending a step that meant a new flag, a new allegiance, a new land, and new associates. To abandon "Old Glory" and the Declaration of Independence for a good thing in cheap land would hardly be playing the game, but to go out into Saskatchewan to "keep the family together" was another and a quite higher motive.

Why seek too closely to analyze the reasons for the greatest land trek in the history of America? It is enough to know what the sons of the frontiersmen of Iowa, and Kansas, and Minnesota—the best blood of the mid-West—are pouring into the Canadian West in an ever-increasing stream, and are learning that "God Save the King" and "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," are sung to the same tune.—Toronto (Ontario) Globe.

A Sybarite.

In the gray light of early morning the traveler in Scotland faced the night clerk resolutely. "You gave me the worst bed in the inn!" he began, indignation in his voice and eyes. "If you don't change me before to-night, I shall look up other lodgings."

"There is no difference in the beds, sir," the clerk replied, respectfully.

The traveler smiled ironically.

"If that is so," he said, "perhaps you wouldn't mind giving me the room on the left of mine."

"It is occupied, sir."

"I know it is. By a man who snored all night, and was still at it ten minutes ago. His bed must be better than mine, or he couldn't sleep at a maximum capacity of sound eight hours on a stretch."

"The beds are all alike sir. That man has been here before, and he always sleeps on the floor, sir."

Don't Spoil Your Clothes.

Use Red Cross Ball Blue and keep them white as snow. All grocers, 5 cents a package.

A Joke of Mark Twain's.

Probably few people are aware that the theatrical godfather of that famous actor, William Gillette, was Mark Twain, who was a fellow townsman and a friend of his father. Mark Twain, in referring to the matter, said that when he used his influence to get young Gillette on the stage he thought he was playing a great joke on the management, for he did not think Gillette had the slightest aptitude for acting. But it turned out to be no joke after all. "I don't know," said Mark Twain, "which I like better—having Gillette make a tremendous success or seeing one of my jokes go wrong."

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM

has been used successfully for years for deep-seated coughs, colds and bronchitis. Everybody should know about it. It is simple, safe and sure.

What's in a Name?

An amusing story has been told concerning Mr. Phillips' classic drama, "Ulysses." When it was being played in America, two young girls were sitting together in the stalls at a matinee performance, and before the curtain rose the following conversation was heard: "Say, Maude, I know this play is going to be funny." "What makes you think so?" asked Maude. "Why, anybody could tell that from the name!" was the reply.—M. A. P.

FARM AND GARDEN

Advantages of a Silo.

Silos have become one of the fixed appointments of successful dairy and stock farms where economy in feed is necessary to achieve profitable results. The expense of a silo often prevents its use by farmers who feel that they cannot spare the money for such an equipment. The intelligent feeder who has carefully investigated the advantages of a silo is the man loudest in its praise. It has become recognized that high class results in feeding live stock cannot be consummated without feeding silage.

Deleterious results seldom follow feeding ensilage. If such results do follow it comes from either overfeeding or from spoiled silage. Silage is recognized as of great economic value in feeding dairy cows. Where dairy farming is made a specialty but few dairies are operated without the use of silage. It is equally valuable as a ration for young cattle and has decided merits when fed to steers being fattened for market. Sheep and swine thrive on silage. As a part of the ration of roughage it could be generally utilized for all classes of live stock. The dairy cow could be fed forty pounds of silage daily, while thirty pounds would be a ration for a beef animal.

A silo enables the farmer to economize in space in the storage of feed. It requires double the space to store the same feed nutriments in dry roughage as in silage. The silo can be constructed of re-enforced cement and become a permanent improvement that will cost nothing for maintenance.

A silo enables the farmer to save his feed with the minimum loss of nutrients. Feed cured in the open air suffers a loss of about 25 per cent of nutriments, while ensilage loses about 10 per cent of nutriment.

Silage has been comprehensively tested at nearly all the agricultural experiment stations with uniform favorable results. It insures to the dairyman succulent feed at all times—an important condition in milk production, as succulent feed is best for dairy cows.—Goodall's Farmer.

Farming as a Business.

Science has shown that where there is a farm that does not pay, the fault lies not in the land, but in the man who is in charge. Good or bad farming results from definite reasons. Success results from painstaking, seasonable operations; the application of practical knowledge which has been gained by studying the requirements which are known will bring success.

Lack of ambition results in indifferent work on the farm. Taking full advantage of the resources of any farm, and following intelligent, up-to-date methods of farming will in due time mean steady and often very rapid improvement in yield of crops. In a sense, the resources of a farm vary with locality; but in the main there are many identical conditions on very many farms. The farmer who works to establish a well-set meadow, aims to get the hilly, washable, waste lands set in grass; utilizes the rocky rough lands by setting out fruit trees; ditches the low lands and reclaims the swamps; improves the stony fields by picking off the surface stones so that crops will take the places the stones occupied, uses some of the ways of taking advantage of the resources of a farm.

The farmer who owns a big farm in very many instances does not secure crops that average as well as the farmer whose farm rarely exceeds sixty or seventy acres. The reason is the large farmer cannot, with the force he usually keeps, properly look after everything, seeing that seasonable work is done and that each farming operation is well attended to. Each of these is a great success factor in farming. Hasty work means, invariably, some neglect or work indifferently done.

Waste of Feed.

Wherever cattle or hogs are fed there is a great waste in valuable feed resulting from the feeding of too much corn, or feeding corn out of balance and proportion to protein or nitrogenous food. The time has come in the high price of corn to call a halt to this wasteful method of feeding. To fully utilize feed proper digestion must go on, and when corn is fed out of balance with nitrogenous foods it is not all digested and assimilated. These are very important facts, now that corn is high in price and is likely to stay so. What, then, is the food that must take the place of part of the corn fed in making pork? That is the question that should be carefully studied and heeded by farmers. Cheaper production through more economical use of our feeds is an important matter and must be so recognized sooner or later by our farmers.—Kansas Farmer.

Saving Half the Concrete.

A farmer of Morgan County, Ill., found that he could save more than half the usual amount of concrete in paving the lot around his horse barn, by using defective vitrified brick which he bought at the factory at 35 cents per load. Laying the brick on edge, as for a pavement, and leaving large cracks between, the concrete was used simply to fill these cracks and all uneven places and make a level surface. The surface was left rough and this pavement has proven satisfactory after much wear.

Breed and Feed.

To cheapen the cost of production is to increase the price of dairy products, and the only way to lower the cost is to feed and breed intelligently. The scrub bull is the bane and curse of the dairy industry in Missouri and the Southwest, as it is everywhere else. And it should also be remembered that the best cow in the world may be ruined as a milk producer by improper feeding. If you do not own a thoroughbred bull with good milk stock in his pedigree, buy one at once. Get out of the old rut, and start right. Go to work now and build up your herd. The chances are that 50 per cent of those who read this paragraph have a lot of cows that are hardly paying for their keep. But, by breeding to the right sort of a sire, and keeping the heifer calves from only the best milkers, and feeding intelligently, any man who reads this can have a herd of 300-pound producing cows in five years.—Missouri Dairyman.

The Profitable Dairy Cow.

Some people seem to keep and milk cows simply because others keep them, without any regard to whether the cows are paying a profit. For a cow to be worth keeping she must pay a profit on the feed and care given her. For her to be really worth while, she should produce 100 per cent more milk than her feed costs, including pasture, of course.

It does not matter so much what breed a cow belong to. Simply because she is of Jersey or Holstein blood, is not positive proof that she is more than paying her way. A common cow may be doing better than she. The only way to find out what she is doing is to weigh and test her milk at regular and frequent intervals. Let her stand on her merits and not on her ancestry.

One reason why some cows do not pay greater profit is that they are not fed all the nutritious feed they will eat. This is especially the case with many farmers in winter, when pastures are dead. Many of them keep their producing cows on half feed when they are not on pasture, and still expect the cows to make up the loss. If a cow is worth keeping at all she is worth feeding all she can be induced to eat. If it is not found profitable to purchase extra feeds so that the cows may have all that they will consume, then it is best to keep only as many cows as feed can be provided for on the farm.

Make the cow produce all the milk she can by good care and feed, and do not let her go dry until the time she is ready to turn dry. Keep the best heifers from the best cows.—Journal of Agriculture.

Corn Breeding.

The Illinois experiment station has just published the results of its efforts to breed corn for high and low protein content and for high and low oil content. Ten generations of corn have been bred for these different purposes by selection of seed having the desired qualities. In the effort to increase the protein content the average has been changed from 10.92 per cent to 14.26 per cent in the effort to decrease it from 10.92 per cent to 8.64 per cent. Individual ears have been found which contain as high as 17.79 per cent of protein and as low as 6.13 per cent, as high as 8.59 per cent of oil and as low as 1.60 per cent. But the high protein corn has been in every case less productive than any of the other three and in some cases decidedly so. It has also been less productive as a rule than corn grown for no particular purpose—just corn. The conclusion is reached from some plots that, while this continued selection for a single purpose to the neglect of all other considerations has resulted in lower yields, yet this is not a necessary result. In some cases high protein corn has yielded well as compared with standard varieties bred for no particular purpose.

Orchard Cultivation.

Hoe the weeds and grass away from the trees in the orchard, and while you are hoeing the grass and weeds away, dig down into it and stir the soil for 2 or 3 feet around the base of each tree. Keeping the grass and weeds away will destroy nesting places for mice and prevent them from girdling the trees. Digging into and turning up some of the surface soil will bring some insect pests to light to be destroyed, and the stirring of the soil around the base of the tree will do some good in the way of cultivation. A few minutes thus spent to each tree may be the means of its bearing an extra bushel of fruit this coming year. The more the orchard is cultivated and worked with the more it will bear. Intensive orchard cultivation is imperative for the best results.—Journal of Agriculture.

Poultry Notes.

Fowls love to thrash out a bundle of wheat or oats, and it does one good to step around to the door of the poultry house and listen to the merry chatter while the fowls are digging in the straw.

Some farmers neglect the 25 to 50 cents that the battening of cracks in the coop would cost, and each month feed a dollar's worth of extra corn in order to supply the animal heat needed.

The answer to the question, Does winter poultry pay? depends in a large measure upon where your hens are roosting. If on the bare branches of a tree, on the northeast corner of the barn, there can be no doubt about it.

There is a disposition to sit around and sleep in winter. Hens will drop into that habit if you do not help them to stir around and work for their living. That is why a scratching shed is good, and why plenty of litter keeps the fowls healthy.

Scatter a little grain among litter at noon, and give a full feed at night. What is meant by a full feed of grain is about a good handful for each fowl in the pen. A mixture of corn, wheat, oats and barley, equal parts by measurement, makes an excellent mixture for winter.

Raise your chickens outdoors at all seasons of the year, give them every opportunity to get fresh air and sunshine. Keep them in small flocks until they roost regularly. Keep the roofs of all brooders and coops water tight; dampness is fatal to chickens old or young. If coops leak, cover with tar roofing or canvas painted with several coats of white lead.—Farm Journal.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

Raisin Roll Cake.

Beat one cupful of sugar with the yolks of three eggs. Sift one cupful of flour with three level teaspoonfuls of baking powder and add to the sugar and egg, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the three eggs. Add a teaspoonful of lemon flavoring, and, last, three tablespoonfuls of boiling water. Beat well and pour into a long shallow pan. Bake in a moderate oven. Turn on to a cake rack and spread at once with a mixture made from the whites of two eggs beaten with one cupful of powdered sugar and one cupful of chopped raisins.

Mince Pie.

Take five pounds of beef, boil, chop fine with three pounds of suet; seed four pounds of raisins, wash four pounds of currants, slice a pound of citron, chop four quarts of apples. Put in a saucepan with cinnamon, cloves, ginger, nutmeg, the juice of two lemons, one teaspoon of pepper and two pounds of sugar. Pour over all a quart of cider, one pint of molasses and a teacup of melted butter. Bake in a rich crust without tops, then bake a crust of puff paste and lay on.

Beef Olives.

Cut a very thin flank or round steak into strips two inches wide and four inches long. Add to one cupful of bread crumbs a teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, a tablespoonful of chopped onions, a saltspoonful of pepper and a tablespoonful of melted butter. Spread this over the strips of beef, roll and tie them tightly. Brown them in suet and make a sauce precisely the same as for a brown stew. Cook them slowly for one hour and a half.

Cranelon of Beef.

Two pounds of round or flank steak put through a meat mincer; then add to it one-third cup soft bread crumbs, one tablespoonful minced parsley, one level teaspoonful salt, one teaspoonful pepper, one beaten egg; mix well; then shape into a roll; lay in pan and bake forty minutes; baste frequently with hot water and salt pork drippings. Serve on hot dish with tomato or mushroom sauce. Garnish with latticed cucumbers, lemons and parsley.

Sweetbread Croquettes.

Parboil the sweetbreads and mince them very fine, season with pepper and salt, adding some powdered mace or cayenne, a grating of nutmeg and a little lemon juice. Mix with finely grated bread crumbs, moisten with cream, and shape them into small cones. Dip into beaten egg, toss in bread crumbs and fry until of a golden brown in deep boiling fat. Garnish with parsley and slices of lemon.

Pumpkin Pie.

Pare and stew pumpkin until dry. Sift through a colander, and to one cup of pumpkin add one egg, three tablespoons of molasses, a pinch of salt, one rounding tablespoon of sugar, one level teaspoon of ginger or cinnamon and two cups of milk. Line a pie plate with crust and make a rim. Fill with the pumpkin and bake slowly.

Chicken Soup with Rice.

The chicken should be boiled until tender and then taken out, boned and cooled, after which the meat may be cut into dice and cooked in the stock again, with the addition of rice. The rice should be carefully prepared in order that the grains appear whole and separate.

Household Hints.

If the lid is left off cabbage when cooking it will keep its color better.

When boiling fresh potatoes or peas try a sprig of mint in the water. It gives a delicious flavor.

Boiled suet puddings will have an added nutriment if they are mixed with milk, or milk and water.

Try adding a leaf of spinach to the water in which peas are boiled if you wish them to keep a good color.

If a turkey or chicken is rubbed inside and out with lemon it will make the meat white, juicy and tender.

A pinch of soda in the water in which green vegetables, peas, string beans and cabbage are boiled will keep the color.

Do not put salt in the water in which peas are cooked, as it causes the outer skin to crack. Leave lid off saucepan.

A pinch of soda added to the boiling water in which cabbage or cauliflower is cooked improves the flavor of the vegetable.

Never soak rice or macaroni before cooking. Well wash the former, but not the latter, and place both in boiling water to cook.

To keep silver from tarnishing when packed away make small cotton bags and fill with camphor gum. Place them among the silver.

Soak all cooking utensils in warm water before you sit down to dinner and you will be surprised how much easier they will wash.

In preparing cabbage wash it well in salted water, cold, then cook in boiling water to which a tablespoonful of salt to the half gallon has been added.

It is a good plan to always save tumblers which have contained sliced bacon or dried beef. They take up little space in the refrigerator and are nice to keep left-overs in.

Wash your cut glass, dry with a towel, place the piece on a cloth and cover with whiting and ammonia, made into a liquid polish. Allow it to dry, then rub the cut work vigorously with a soft bristle brush. This clears every crevice and imparts a beautiful luster to dull-looking cut glass.

PROF. MUNYON'S PHILANTHROPY

Giving to the Nation a Prize That Money Cannot Buy.

"I would rather preserve the health of a nation than to be its ruler."—Munyon.

This motto, written by Prof. Munyon about sixteen years ago, was the real cornerstone of his medicine business. He felt that the people of the nation were neglecting their health owing to lack of money. With the one thought in view of helping humanity, he started in the medicine business, paying large sums of money to eminent specialists for known and tried formulas that were known to have been successful in curing diseases. After carefully compounding these formulas and putting them up in a marketable condition, he offered them to the public for a few pennies, easily within the reach of the poorest family. He hired eminent specialists at large salaries and offered their services absolutely free to the public to diagnose their cases and advise them what remedies to take. After giving the public all these benefits he was still unsatisfied and offered further to those who were not in reach of the offices which he established throughout the country; he advertised, asking them to write to his specialists for free medical examination, and to-day Prof. Munyon is still following out this policy, and whenever he hears of a new drug or a new formula that is more effective than those that he is at the time compounding, he purchases them regardless of cost.

Prof. Munyon puts up a separate cure for almost every ill, and these remedies can be had at all druggists, mostly 25 cents a bottle. In taking these remedies, you are taking what might be called a sure thing, for he guarantees them to produce satisfactory results or he will refund your money. This is a remarkable man and a remarkable institution, manifestly fair to all, and a firm that we do not hesitate to recommend to our readers.

Prof. Munyon's address is 53d and Jefferson streets, Philadelphia, Pa.

Sense and Sensibility.

For some days the dining room had been disturbed by the invasion of the new boarder. She was fat, fifty, and very sentimental, and her tender nature led her to whisper so many rapturous confidences in her neighbor's ear that all the rest at the table felt uncomfortable, so uncomfortable, that one day after a harassed breakfast, the neighbor determined to make a struggle for liberty and general conversation. Her opportunity came that night at dinner.

"Sweet flowers of spring!" murmured the sentimentalist, apostrophizing the nodding daffodil centerpiece. "Aren't they dear? So full of poesy! And don't you think that we ought always to call them daffadowndillies instead of daffodils?" she whispered.

"No, I don't," answered the neighbor, uncompromisingly, and quite out loud. "Just think how awkward it would have been for Wordsworth if he'd had to write:

And then my heart with pleasure fills,
And dances with the daffadowndillies."

For once the sentimentalist was silenced.

Clip This Out.

At the first sign of rheumatic pains or backache, or a feeling of being generally run down and weakened, the following simple prescription should be used:

"One ounce compound syrup Sarsaparilla; one ounce Toris' compound; half pint high grade whiskey. Mix them and take a tablespoonful before each meal and at bed time. The bottle must be well shaken each time.

Any druggist has these ingredients or he will get them from his wholesale house.

A Houseful of Reasons.

Bishop Mallalieu, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, always stood as a strong opponent to the inconsiderable, and often inconsistent salaries that are paid the pastor by some congregations amply able to pay more liberally. He told the following personal reminiscence at a recent conference:

"I once knew an excellent young man who married shortly after he entered the ministry. He was on a small salary, but he seemed contented and happy.

"Some twelve or fifteen years went by after I last met him, and I had rather lost sight of him—forgotten him, as we will do sometimes—when, unexpectedly, I met him in Boston, well dressed, but not at all clerically.

"We shook hands. He said he was doing excellently.

"'What church?' I asked.

"'Oh,' said he, 'no church—the wholesale hat business.'

"'But why did you leave the church?' I inquired, solicitously.

"'For seven reasons,' he replied.

"'And what were they?' said I.

"'A wife,' he answered, 'and six children.'"—Success Magazine.

One Successful Case.

"Doctor, you're not so foolish as to think you can make people good by performong operations on them, are you?"

"That depends upon what you call making people good. You can check their disposition to commit crime."

"As, for example"——

"Well, I once knew a man who was cured, by a simple operation, of a tendency to rob banks and hold up railway trains."

"Did you perform it, doctor?"

"No; I was merely called on to verify the result after the operation was over."

"Well, who did perform it?"

"A frontier sheriff."—Chicago Tribune.

Good Housekeepers Use the Best.

That's why they use Red Cross Ball Blue. At leading grocers, 5 cents.

Camomile.

It is said not only that decoctions or the leaves dried and powdered of the common camomile will destroy insects, but that nothing contributes so much to the health of a garden as a number of camomile plants dispersed through it. No greenhouse or hothouse should be without camomile in a green or in a dried state; either the stalks or the flowers will answer.

Why Do You Suffer?

from woman's peculiar ills, when we are ready and willing to send you a week's treatment of PISO'S TABLETS entirely free? Their use is the most modern and scientific way of treating the diseases of women, because they are applied directly to the diseased surface, and at once begin their work of healing. They are small, effective, clean and easy to use, and cannot fail to benefit those who use them. They are an ideal home treatment. A woman writes, "It is a wonder working Tablet."

For sale by all druggists. For samples and a treatise entitled "Causes of Diseases in Women" address us on the accompanying coupon. Write your name and address PLAINLY and address THE PISO COMPANY, DEPT. C., WARREN, PA.

Name .....

Post Office .....

State .....

Have Heat Brought To You

When your bed-room, bath-room or dining room is chilly, you may have heat brought to you in just the degree you desire. It is easy when you have a

PERFECTION Oil Heater

(Equipped with Smokeless Device)

available. Place the heater where the cold is most annoying, strike a match.

No fuss—no flurry—no smell—and, above all, no smoke. The

Automatic Smokeless Device

which automatically locks absolutely prevents smoke. Removed in an instant.

Solid brass font holds 4 quarts of oil—sufficient to give out a glowing heat for 9 hours—solid brass wick carriers—damper top—cool handle—oil indicator. Heater beautifully finished in nickel or Japan in a variety of styles.

Every Dealer Everywhere. If Not At Yours, Write for Descriptive Circular to the Nearest Agency of the

STANDARD OIL COMPANY

(Incorporated)

W. L. DOUGLAS $3.00 $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

THE LARGEST MANUFACTURER OF MEN'S FINE SHOES IN THE WORLD

Wear W. L. Douglas comfortable, easy-walking shoes. They are made upon honor, of the best leathers, by the most skilled workmen, in all the latest fashions. Shoes in every style and shape to suit men in all walks of life.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer and are of greater value than any other make.

CAUTION.—See that W. L. Douglas name and the retail price is stamped on the bottom. Take No Substitute.

BOYS' SHOES $2.00 & $2.50

Wherever you live, W. L. Douglas shoes are within your reach. If your dealer cannot fit you, write for Mail Order Catalog. W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass.

HAMLINS WIZARD OIL GREAT FOR PAIN

THE OIL THAT PENETRATES

An Experiment.

The Rev. Clarence Godfrey, on retiring one night, determined that he would try to "telepath" a phantasm of himself to a lady living in another part of the city, tells H. Addington Bruce in Success Magazine. For about ten minutes he endeavored, in thought, to appear to her. At the end of that time he fell asleep.

About four hours later the lady on whom he had been "exerting his will" awokewith an impression that she had heard a curious sound. She felt nervous and uneasy, and thought that if she went downstairs and took a drink of soda-water it might have a quieting effect.

Coming back, she was astounded to see the form of Mr. Godfrey standing on the staircase. He remained standing there for three or four seconds, while she stared at him in horrified amazement. Then, as she approached the staircase, he disappeared.

If You Are a Trifle Sensitive,

about the size of your shoes, many people wear smaller shoes by using Allen's Foot-Ease, the Antiseptic Powder to shake into the shoes. It cures Tired, Swollen, Aching Feet and gives rest and comfort. Just the thing for patent leather shoes. Sold everywhere, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

En Famille.

Willie, a little country boy, 6 years of age, was taken one Sunday night to a large city church, where he saw for the first time a vested choir. To his mother's surprise and gratification, he not only kept wide awake, but seemed greatly interested in every part of the service. At its close he turned to her and said, "I like this church, it is so nice to watch the preacher when he comes out with all his wives in their nightgowns."—Harper's Magazine.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

Sun Cooking.

A German, Baron Tschernhausen, was the first sun cook. He began in 1687 to boil water, and in 1688 he had very good success in boiling eggs. Sir John Herschel and Buffon are other famous names associated with sun cooking. Sun cooking—roasting and boiling by sunlight instead of coal or gas—has been going on for three hundred years. There are sun stoves that roast a sirloin or boil a soup to perfection. They are only used, however, by scientists.

The cinematograph can be used for recording every step in surgical operations, and for showing the whole process to a large class of students.

FASHION HINTS

Smart little frocks for semi-dressy occasions are numerous and the very popular top coat makes it possible to wear them right along through the winter.

Homespun is a good material for the more tailored dresses, but silky crepes and satins are adorable for the much kilted ones, and Irish or cluny lace makes a charming neck finish.

Store Built Around Graveyard.

One of the big New York department stores is built on three sides of an ancient cemetery. The windows that give view over the spot are more than breast high for a tall man, so that the average patrons of the place, unless they make an effort, could not see the graveyard, and would pass and repass it for years without suspecting its existence.

PILES PAY IF CURED We pay postage and send FREE RED CROSS Pile and Fistula Cure.

REA CO., DEPT. B5, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

When writing to Advertisers please say you saw the Adv. in this paper.

If afflicted with Sore Eyes, use THOMPSON'S EYE WATER

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dyes. One 10c package colors all fibers, any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. They dye in cold water better than any other dyes. You can dye anything. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Illinois

JANUARY

0445

L1134

Swift's Pride Soap
for easy house cleaning

For this Sale— per cake 4c; 7 for 25c 15 for 50c

This Price is for Sat. Jan. 15, 1910 Only

BARGAINS AT The Central Grocery

Sat. Jan. 15

Bread and Cake Plates that sold for 30 and 35c, Sale Price 18c

Deep Dishes that sold 35c, Sale Price 15c

Dishes that sold for 25c, Sale Price 12c

Cups and Saucers, Sale Price 3c

We have the exclusive sale of GILIETTS High Grade Extracts, as good as there is. Every bottle guaranteed.

We sell Oysters at 35c per quart.

Our Fruits and Vegetables are always fresh.

PRESTON & PRESTON

Phone 91

The Season For Coughs and Colds Is At Hand

And we wish to call your attention to the fact that our stock contains all the cough and cold remedies that are good of their kind embracing such staple ones as

Foley's Cough Remedy	Drake's Cough Remedy
King's Cough Remedy	Shiloh's Cough Remedy
Kilmer's Cough Remedy	Marshalls' Cough Remedy
DeWitts' Cough Remedy	Allen's Cough Remedy
Kennedy's Cough Remedy	Laxative Bromo Quinine
Jayne's Cough Remedy	Hill's Cascaria Quinine

And also A. D. S. Cold and LaGrippe Remedy. Every box of which is guaranteed.

STONE'S DRUG STORE

Your Money Back If Not Satisfactory

Franklin

John Mark and wife, of Clare, Mich., visited from Friday until Monday with John Huntington and other relatives.

William Brown and wife entertained Rev. Davis, Orin Smith and family, Clem Mitchell and wife and Mamie Mitchell and wife at dinner Sunday.

Charles Ratts and wife spent Sunday at the parental home.

Milton Anthony and family spent Monday evening with his brother and wife near Hamilton.

Mrs. Botsford is numbered among the sick.

Quite a number from this place attended revival meetings at Zion Sunday night.

Jacob Rosky and wife and Ove Lash and family, of Coney, Ohio, were the guests of relatives at this place from Friday until Sunday.

Albert Kauffman and family were the Sunday guests of Mrs. Pheobe Lowe.

The personal property of Mrs. Sarah Casey deceased, was sold at public sale Thursday.

Bert Rose is cutting wood for his mother.

Jay Mark and wife entertained John Mark and wife, Will Creager and family, Charles Haverstock and family and Earl Mark at their home Sunday.

Frank and B. L. Huntington purchased two three-year-old colts of Clem Mitchell last week.

Miss Mahala Huntington, of Butler, visited Sunday with friends in this neighborhood.

Napoleon's Grit

was of the uncouquerable, never say die kind, the kind that you need most when you have a bad cold, cough or lung disease. Suppose troches, cough syrups, cod liver oil or doctors have all failed, don't lose heart or hope. Take Dr. King's New Discovery. Satisfaction is guaranteed when used for any throat or lung trouble. It has saved thousands of hopeless sufferers. It masters stubborn colds, obstinate coughs, hemorrhages, lagrippe, croup, asthma, hay fever and whooping cough and is the most safe and certain remedy for all bronchial affections. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free at Stone's drug store. 1-1m

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy never disappoints those who use it for obstinate coughs, colds and irritations of the throat and lungs. It stands unrivalled as a remedy for all throat and lung diseases. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

CUPID'S PRANKS RECORDED HERE

Miss Mabel Kandel and Rollin Long were quietly married at the home of Father Young, Friday evening at 5:30 The marriage was witnessed by the bride's sister Miss Eva Kandel, brides-Maid, and Joe Kennedy, best man. Immediately after the ceremony they went to the Long home where the wedding dinner was served to only the immediate friends and relatives. The wedding party left on the 7:30 car for Fort Wayne where they attended the play at the Majestic. From Fort Wayne Mr. and Mrs. Long departed for Indianapolis and Arcada where they will spend the next two weeks with relatives and friends.—Press.

Miss Maybell Noonan, daughter of Conductor and Mrs. Martin Noonan and Harry Lowe, a machinist in the automobile works at Auburn, were married Monday morning by Father Young at 7;30 o'clock at the S. S. Peter and Paul Catholic church. Charles Noonan, a brother of the bride, acted as best man anp Miss Gertrude Crow as bridesmaid. A wedding breakfast was served to only the immediate friends and relatives at the home of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Lowe are two of Garrett's most popular young people, and have the best wishes of their many friends. They left on the 12 o'clock car for a visit with relatives in Van Wert, Ohio. They will make their home for the present on South Cowan street but will move to Auburn in the spring.—Garret Press.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is not a common, every-day cohgh mixture. It is a meritorious remedy for all the troublesome and dangerous complications resulting from cold in the head, throat, chest or lungs. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

W. S. Troyer

Auctioneer and Salesman

Leave orders at this office or Central Grocery.

I speak three different languages.

Trustee's Report of Wilmingto Township.

(CONTINUED FROM 4TH PAGE)

A J Fisher, 2 cds wood for poor	3 50
F W Nimmons, miscellaneous exp	7 70
Total expenditures township fund	$4084 52

TUITION FUND

Chas O Krise, services teaching	$ 68 00
Chas C Cook, services teaching	60 00
Ralph Wells, services teaching	75 00
Scott Rhoades, teaching	30 00
Chas O Cook, services teaching	95 00
J R Boyle, services teaching	15 00
Velva Suman, services teaching	40 00
J R Boyle, services teaching	100 00
Lovina Pfaff, services teaching	100 00
W B Carper, services teaching	66 52
Chas C Cook, services teaching	141 40
Ralph Wells, services teaching	84 23
J R Boyle, services teaching	88 10
Scott Rhoades, services teaching	157 20
Velva R Suman, services teaching	111 14
Chas O Krise, services teaching	68 16
Lovina Pfaff, services teaching	48 50
Ralph Wells, services teaching	20 00
Nelle Albertson, services teaching	40 00
Chas C Cook, services teaching	75 00
Chas O Krise, services teaching	60 00
Ralph Wells, services teaching	50 00
Geo Beams, services teaching	65 00
Maude Kennedy, services teaching	60 00
Scott Rhoades, services teaching	100 00
Nelle Albertson, services teaching	35 00
Chas O Krise, services teaching	50 00
W B Carper, services teaching	100 00
Ralph Wells, services teaching	40 00
Geo Beams, services teaching	35 00
Scott Rhoades, services teaching	10 00
Chas C Cook, services teaching	75 00
Chas C Krise, services teaching	50 00
Maude Kennedy, services teaching	40 00
Nelle Albertson, services teaching	25 00
Ralph Wells, services teaching	50 40
Chas C Cook, services teaching	51 60
W B Carper, services teaching	79 40
Geo Beams, services teaching	106 68
Nelle Albertson, services teaching	38 18
Scott R Rhoades, services teaching	88 13
Total expenditures tuition fund	$2801 84

SPECIAL SCHOOL FUND

Sam G Stone, supplies for schools	$ 23 20
A L Huntsman, 20 cds wood No 8	37 50
A Zimmerman, fixing seats No 7	75
A L Huntsman, 18¾ cds wood No 9	35 15
John Mutzfeld, 5½ cds wood No 4	12 37
W B Carper, institute and janitor fees	9 36
Mrs E M Carper, washing towels	1 00
C C Cook, institute and janitor fees	12 95
Ralph Wells, institute and janitor fees	10 06
Godfrey Hemple, janitor fees	4 95
J R Boyle, institute and janitor fees	12 15
Scott Rhoads, institute and janitor fees	13 39
Velva Suman, institute and janitor fees	9 46
Chas O Krise institute and janitor fees	14 70
Lovina Pfaff, institute and janitor fees	2 25
J R Boyle, holding commencement	2 00
Fred Keller, 30 cds wood	69 00
Mrs Scott Cook, washing towels No 6	2 00
John Fetters, trustee, transfer tuition	10 50
L H Higley, programs and printing for commencement	13 45
H B Maxwell, hauling chairs to church	75
Mrs Stage, music for commencement	12 00
Clyde Snyder, washing towels	75
Chas Arford, use of church commencement	2 00
John Whitehurst, transfer tuition	5 00
Chas L Thompson, 1 historical chart	12 50
Alby Seltenright, haul'g chairs from church	75
Nichols & Showalter, papering No. 6, 8 and 9 school houses	24 40
Harry Ginder, cleaning N0 8 sch yard	2 00
S D Kiger, supplies for schools	55 58
Clyde Snyder, cleaning house, yard and out house No 3	7 00
John Gunsenhouser, cleaning house No 8	2 50
Mrs Thos Vanzile, cleaning No 6 school	2 50
Eugene Carper, cleaning No 9 sch and yard	3 00
Dan Keller, mowing No 6 sch yard	1 50
Mrs Chas Kaelner, cleaning No 7 house and yard	4 00
Chas Imhoff, cleaning No 4 house and yard	4 75
J R Moore, cleaning No 3 yard and repairing out house	6 25
S D Kiger & Co, 2 recitation seats	19 30
J D Craun, 2 step ladders	2 30
H McCollough, repairs on No 6 and 8	1 40
John Mutzfeld, 6 cds wtod No 2	12 00
S D Kiger, 4 No 2 and 2 No 3 sch desks	15 00
Rickey & Co, supplies for schools	8 70
Chas Kaeiner, repairs No 7	5 00
Myrtle Ginder, cleaning No 4 sch	4 00
The Butler Milling Co, coal No 2 sch	22 61
John H Baxter, putting up seats No 7	3 75
Amos Boren, helping to move seats	50
Parley Palmerton, cleaning house, yard and hauling coal No 2 sch	9 00
Dan Keller, cleaning out house No 5	2 00
J H Stansbury, repairs on wells and 1 new well No 8	33 86
A R Zimmerman, well platform No 7	2 50
Ralph Wells, institute and janitor fees	16 67
Nelle Albertson, institute and janitor fees	15 88
F W Nimmons, handling sch books	5 00
Scott R Rhoads, institute and janitor fees	18 48
Total expenditures spec school fund	$ 728 25

ROAD FUND

Smith Buttermore, road work	$ 4 20
Leslie Tappen, road receipt	66
A Zimmerman, road work	75
Geo Rosenberry, road receipt	2 78
I B Madden, tile and freight	1 45
Dan Keller, one day hauling gravel	3 00
John B Hawkins, road receipt	4 35
D M Ball, tile for township	9 06
Day Wyatt, road receipt	2 10
Eugene Osborn, road work	7 00
Marion Keller, road receipt	96
Oscar Osborn, plowtng road	5 00
Harlan Hollinger, road work	3 50
Fred Madden, 2 days grading	7 00
C H Meese, 1 day grading	3 50
F W Nimmons, 3 days grading	9 00
Edward Howey, 100 8-inch tile	3 50
Ray Treman, road receipt	3 90
T C Kiser, work on concrete	8 00
Isaac Gunsenhouser, 100 pounds old iron	2 00
H D Hollinger, grading Proctor road	10 50
Hoyt Cook, grading Proctor road	3 50
Fred Bunge, hauling gravel	5 00
Dan Keller, 1 1-2 days work Proctor road	5 25
Claude Drake, hauling 41 loads gravel dist No 3	51 25
Carl Oberlin, road order	10 50
Frank Seltenright, grading on Proctor road	10 50
Frank Shook, making out road tax list	8 00
J W Campbell, hauling twp gravel	37 50
Lemuel Campbell, hauling twp gravel	23 75
Cecil Meese, hauling twp gravel	21 25
Oscar Osborn, hauling twp gravel	5 00
H D Hollinger, hauling twp gravel	12 00
John Campbell, hauling twp gravel	21 40
Earl Thorp, hauling twp gravel	6 25
Frank Shoup, grading road with engine	29 25
Wm Moudy, hauling township gravel	10 00
Joseph Pifer, hauling twp gravel	8 75
Harvy Scott, hauling twp gravel	21 00
Wm Budd, hauling twp gravel	43 75
Ben Keller, hauling twp gravel	9 49
Dan Keller, hauling twp gravel	7 00
Knisely Dry G Co, road order	1 50
Dale McNabb, hauling twp gravel	1 35
Clarence Buttermore, hauling twp gravel	5 00
John Platter, hauling twp gravel	1 25
D A Shaw, road receipt	1 50
H Slaybaugh, Co Treas, delinquent tax rects	36 63
Frank Seltenright, hauling twp gravel	13 50
Total expenditures road fund	$ 508 68

SPECIAL ROAD FUND

Ralph Miller, 600 yards gravel	$ 60 00
The Hixon Lumber Co, 26 ft 4-inch tile	1 30
Indiana Road Machine Co, grader blades and castings	9 75
Leroy Leonard, 1 road drag, 2 slip scrapers	40 00
D M Ball, tile for township	12 29
V Blauvelt, road work	3 00
A W Boyd, work on bridge	5 00
Ind Road Machine Co, castings for grader	6 00
Wm Latier, road for township	10 00
A F Blum, timber for bridge4	9 00
The Hixon Lumber Co, sewer pipe	17 19
Tile Drain Inlet Co, 7 catch basins	15 50
Hixon Lumber Co, sewer pipe	9 04
Ira Wingard, 4 days work on bridges	8 00
I B Madden, putting in boiler shells and team work	9 50
F L Hollinger, putting in boiler shells	6 00
A F Blum, 530 4-inch tile	7 95
Ross Tomlinson, putting in boiler shells	6 00
Joe Rhoads, putting in boiler shells	6 00
Frank Scanlin, boiler shells for bridges	339 60
Roy Maxwell, hauling boiler shell	2 50
Roy Maxwell, hauling boiler shell	2 75
Myers & Blum, tile for township	54 00
Day Wyatt, hauling township gravel	14 00
Lewis Brown, labor on concrete arch	31 40
Ira Wingard, 322 feet road plank	8 05
Ray Treman, hauling township gravel	10 00
Peter Fales, hauling township gravel	18 00
S S Wyatt, hauling township gravel	12 00
Oscar Osborn, hauling township gravel	11 00
H M Madden, hauling township gravel	45 00
Peter Fales, hauling township gravel	14 00
F A Thomas, hauling township gravel	15 00
Fred Madden, hauling township gravel	24 00
The Hixon Lumber Co, material for twp	18 36
P D Ginder, hauling township gravel	14 00
A P Handy, hauling township gravel	7 50
Day Wyatt, hauling township gravel	12 50
Eugene Praul, hauling township gravel	21 25
Charley Brown, concrete work	39 10
Floyd Mower, hauling township gravel	20 00
Fred Madden, hauling township gravel	21 00
A J Fisher, hauling township gravel	88 00
J S Ginder, hauling township gravel	15 00
Butler Basket Co, plank for township	36 53
G C Squires, hauling township gravel	2 50
Ira Reinhart, hauling township gravel	23 50
Samuel Lysher, hauling township gravel	7 03
Lewis Brown, labor on bridge	10 00
H M Madden, hauling township gravel	31 00
F C Goodwin, 322 loads gravel	32 20
Hoyt Cook, hauling gravel	27 00
Frank Scanlin, 5 boiler shells for culverts	220 25
O B Richmond, 248 yards gravel	54 80
John W Frick, 22 loads gravel	2 20
Total expenditures special road fund,	$ 1496 54

LIBRARY FUND

L H Higley, Butler City library	$ 73 58

DOG FUND

Henry Smurr, sheep killed by dogs	$ 12 00
Emery Shook, surplus dog tax	77 50
Hiram Luce, sheep killed	10 00
Henry Krabill, sheep killed	82 00
Wm Capp, sheep killed	6 00
Total expenditures dog fund	$ 187 50

POOR FUND

Overdrawn on 1908 poor	$ 512 39
H H Slaybaugh, money adv on poor acct	354 15
H H Slaybaugh, money adv on poor acct	177 78
Total expenditures poor fund	$ 1054 32

RECAPITULATION

Report of number yards of gravel hauled in Wilmington township.

District No 1	2,127 yards
District No 2	1,200 yards
District No 3	906 yards
District No 4	955 yards
Total number yards hauled	4,188 yards

SUMMARY

	Township Fund	Tuition Fund	Sp Sch Fund	Road Fund	Add Road Fund	Library Fund	Dog Fund	Overdrawn	Total of all Funds
Bal on hand last settlm't	$ 2205 62	$ 922 44	$ 151 38	$ 666 24	$ 647 66	$ 1 41	$189 50	$ 512 39	$ 4271 86
Receipts	3719 63	3286 95	1274 37	278 77	1409 97	39 57	211 00	1065 66	11885 90
Total of bal and receipts	5925 25	4309 39	1425 65	944 70	2057 63	140 98	400 50	1065 66	16069 76
Disbursements	4084 53	2801 84	728 25	508 68	1496 54	73 58	186 50	1054 32	10935 24
Balance	1840 72	1507 55	597 40	436 12	561 09	67 40	213 00	11 34	5234 52

F. W. NIMMONS, Trustee.

JOHN H. BAXTER, H. M. MAXWELL, IRA WINGARD, } President. Members of the Advisory Board. Secretary.

BUTLER MARKETS

PRODUCE

The following prices are paid for produce and other farm products by Butler merchants:

Eggs	$ 30
Butter	24
Lard	14
Potatoes	40
HAY, GRAIN AND WOOL
Wheat (per bu.)	$ 1.20
Oats	44
Rye	70
Corn (per cwt.)	70
Red Clover (per bu.)	7.75
Alsike (per bu.)	6 75
Hay	13.00
POULTRY
Chickens	11

Additional Locals

FOR TRADE:—An improvdd twenty acre tract of land in Michigan. Value about fifteen hundred dollars. Want Butler property. Wallace C. Webster.

Mrs. Harve Snyder of Bryan is spending the week with her aunt, Mrs. W. H. Grube.

Dr. M. M. Acker is quite seriously ill with rheumatism. His condition is looked upon with considerable apprehension by his friends.

Sam Noragon is laid up with a sprained ankle, which he received Monday by slipping on the ice.

Mrs. William Capp and little daughter are both reported on the sick list.

Laurance, the little son of J. C. Blacker, is on the sick list.

The little son of George A. Powers has been quite sick the past week.

Charles Powers has returned from Hope hospital, Fort Wayne, where he underwent an operation. The operation was a success and his health is much improved.

Herman Groscop of Garret was here Wednesday and brought with him some samples of bricks made out of the clay he took from here a few weeks ago. They are of the finest quality and Mr. Grossop seems to be well pleased with the outlook for a new brick yard.

H. M. Widney, of St. Joe, was in the city Thursday in the interest of the farmers' institute. Butler will have no institute this year owing to an oversight, but institutes will be held at the following places: St. Joe, February 7 and 8; Corunna, February 9; Butler Center, February 10.

Mrs. A. D. Wade of Montpelier, and Zella Rush, of Detroit, visited Monday with A. Haley's.

A. L. Haley and wife entertained Waldo Sattison, wife, and daughter at dinner, Sunday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Haley, Arthur Haley wife and son spent Tuesday in Auburn the guests of Mrs Gruud.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

A Natural Tone Talking and Singing Machine

FREE!

As a home entertainer it has no equal. The best talent in the country is brought right to your fireside to while away the long evenings with comical recitations and songs. You may wish to learn a song and what better instructor can you have than one of these Peerless singers.

The possibilities for one of these little machines for instruction and amusement are endless. This graphophone represents one of the latest achievements of the largest and best equipped Talking Machine Industry in the world. Therefore its reproduction will surprise and delight the most exacting listener.

One standard Talking Machine with Handsome Elower Horn Free to every Customer whose Cash purchases amount to $30

J. C. BROWN & SON

Shoes, Made-to-Measure Clothing, Carpets, Bicycles.

Spencerville

Geary Wasson and wife have been attending Luther Shoemaker's chores the past week.

John Means returned from Butler last Friday evening. He took several orders while he was gone.

Friday night occurred the death of Henry Jenkins. He was an old and respected citizen of this community.

The compositor made a mistake in last week's correspondence by saying that Mrs. Farner went to Butler to stay with her daughter, Mrs. John Boyd. It should of read Mrs. John Dove.

Charley Hailley, of St. Joe, spent Sunday evening with Carl Means and wife.

John Means sold Dan Morr a Bible last Friday. Dan is going to read the Holy Writ. Better late than never.

We understand a man over the county line got too much booze the other day, came home and whipped his wife and one of the sons whipped the father. The mother has applied for a divorce at Fort Wayne. Such is the effects of bad whiskey. Another home is broken up after the family is most all grown up.

TRANSFERS OF DEKALB COUNTY REAL ESTATE

For week ending, Jan. 10, 1910. Charles O. Borst, Abstracter:

Keyser Township—E. E. Clark to G. J. Clark, und ½ pt. s w¼ s w ¼ & pt. s e ¼, sec. 32 & 31, $1437.

City of Auburn—H. Shull, ex. to C. A. and J. Picker, lots 201 & 202 O. P., $200.

E. C. Tucker to Savlug, Loan & Trust Co., lot 22 S. R. B. add., $25.

W. R. Moore to W. Moore, lot 37 Mc & B. add., $155.

E. Hardendorf to J. W. and I. C. Jones, lot 103 & 106 H. add., $400.

Peter Shull to J. and F. Elson, lot 37 & 48 K. 1st, $400.

R. King to A. Leasure, pt. lot 12 Grogg's add., $225.

Edgerton

Where is the prophet that said we were not going to have any winter?

George Baller got one of his hands badly hurt in the gasoline engine at Mina last Monday. It will lay him up for some time.

The L. S. & M. S. railroad is still working men day and night at the sink hole at Mina.

The Edgerton poultry and corn show is on in full blast with a large exhibit of poultry, pet rabbits and white rats.

There were a goodly number of Free Masons of Butler lodge in attendance at the funeral of William Yackee last Sunday afternoon.

The agenr of the Mutual Life Insurance Co., of New York, was in town last Monday settling with Mrs. Wm. Yackee on his policy in that company.

The Edon Fanciers are well represented at the show here this week.

Esther Hopkins has ten white rats on exhibition at the poultry show.

The Knights of Pythias of Butler lodge were here fifty strong on Wednesday night of last week and did work on two candidates in the third degree. After the work they went to the dining room and ate oysters.

Dr. Bigger, of Tiffin, Ohio, is assisting in a revival meeting at the Presbyterian church.

Moores

There will be an oyster supper at the school house Friday evening, Jan. 21, for the benefit of the school.

Henry Smurr and wife visited near St. Joe Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. Forest Dermott.

Misses Nellie Bunge and Eva Albright called on A. L. Moudy and wife at Waterloo Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. John Ketel, Sr., had the misfortune of breaking her arm by falling last week.

James Wallace and wife spent Sunday with Geo. Moore and family.

Several from this place attended the funeral of Mrs. Perry Smurr at Waterloo Monday afternoon.

About thirty-five neighbors and friends of Mrs. Wm. Moudy met at her home Saturday to help celebrate her birthday.

A sled load from here spent Saturday evening at Auburn with Levi Wolff and family.

Dorsie Eakright spent Sunday with Walter Mutzfeld.

TRUSTEE'S REPORT

To Advisory Board, of Troy Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, For Year 1909.

Receipts Township Fund.

June 28 County Treas., May App	264.36
Dec. 31 County Treas, Dec App	239.08
Bank, Interest	33.54
Total	536.98

Disbursements Township Fund.

Jan. 15 Geo Wagner, Cost of drain	1.00
Earl Sanxter Stamps	2.65
Feb. 8 S D Kiger & Co, Mds	16.50
12 L H Higley Pub, Annual report	10.30
W O Kenan, Pub annual report	10.30
Mar. 22 F A Brink, Cost on Cather drain	4.00
29 Clark Alwood, repair work	2.50
July 5 C L Wagoner, Ditch transcripts	4.20
19 S D Kiger, Mds	11.35
Aug. 2 C L Wagoner, Transcripts	2.40
Sept. 2 A S Powers Pub notice	2.00
11 L H Higley Pub notice and supplies	3.25
23 Frank Shook Road list	5.00
Oct. 2 Earl Sanxter Stamps	2.00
Nov. 17 S D Kiger Mds	3.25
Dec. 6 Sherman Gippel Supervisor services	84.00
18 E B Rose, Supervisor services	82.00
27 J H Rose, Attorney	5.00
29 C L Leonard, Supplies	7.20
Kiger & Co., Office supplies	20.70
Jan. 2 Daniel Burkhart, Miscellaneous	10.44
Advisory Board	15.00
Daniel Burkhart, Trustee service	204.00

Receipts Tuition Fund.

Jan. 27 County Treas, Cong school fund	$17.11
County Treas Com school fund	224.70
June 28 J M Varner, Docket fees	.50
County Treas, May App	440.81
July 31 County Treas, Cong school fund	7.39
County Treas, Com school fund	297.44
County Treas, Dog school fund	3.68
Twp, Trustee, Transfers	56.00
Dec. App	398.69
Total	1,446.32

Disbursements Tuition Fund.

Apr. 2 Manton B Bryant, Teaching	238.00
3 J Rollo Wiley "	158.90
7 Lou A Wise "	238.00
10 Besse Wiley, "	175.50
Dec. 23 Clara Apt "	153.18
24 Mildred Kenestrick "	161.00
29 Lou A Wise "	236.60
29 Rosalie Wiley "	155.72

Receipts Special School Fund.

June 28 County Treas, May App	178.13
July 28 J C Jennings, Borrowed money	500.00
Dec. 31 County Treas, Dec App	159.39
G E Mills, Paint	1.60
Total	839.12

Disbursements Special School Fund.

Feb 18 The Oberlin Gro Co, 6 brooms	1.80
Mar 4 Ira Little, Hauling Coal, Dis 2	2.00
8 M A Howard & Son, Coal Dis 2	6.96
11 Geo Burkhart, 21¼ cd wood, Dis 1 & 2	34.40
20 Lou A Wise, Library	3.00
25 Besse Wiley, Library	3.00
Apr. 2 Manton B Bryant, Jan. Ins	10.30
3 J Rollo Wiley, Jan Ins and supplies	10.04
7 Lou A Wise, Jan Ins and holding exams	12.30
10 Besse Wiley, Jan Ins	8.18
21 John Mills, Jan work	7.00
28 J Rollo Wiley, Library	3.00
July 13 F W Nimmons, Commencements Ex	10.07
16 George M Brown, Transfers	15.00
28 L H Higley, Transfers	96.00
Aug. 27 W A Freed, Painting house Dis 2	18.00
Sept. 7 S D Kiger & Co; School supplies	25 90
10 W C Brown, Repairing house Dis 3	16.25
15 W A Freed, Papering houses 1, 3, 5 Cleaning houses 3, 5	31.00
17 O F Wagner, Repairing Dis 2 & 3	6.00
20 The Knisely Dry Goods Co. Mds	1.20
21 The Edon Hdw Co, Shingles and pulp	47.00
23 R W Williams, Coal Dis 2, 5	35.00
Oct. 8 C D Enterline, Cleaning house Dis 1	4.00
20 John E Kline Repairing well Dis 3	5.00
Nov. 6 John E Kline, Repairing well Dis 5	4.50
8 Wm Whitman, 10 cds wood Dis 2 & 5	17.10
13 J McClintock, Insurance	5.51
Dec. 23 Clara Apt, Jan Ins and supplies	18.28
24 Mildred Kenestrick, Jan ins and supplies	18.45
29 D H Goble, Home and School visitor	5.84
29 Lou A Wise Jan Ins and supplies	18.94
29 Rosalie Wiley Jan Ins and supplies	18.66
29 S G Stone Paint, wall paper and supplies	43.87
29 G F Gengnagel Hardware	20.40
31 G E Mills, Cleaning house and repair work	11.25
31 J C Jennings, Warrant and Interest	238.50
Daniel Burkhart, Handling text books	5.00

Receipts Road Fund.

June 28 County Treas., May App	55.98
Dec. 31 County Treas., Dec App	3.87
Total	59.85

Disbursements Road Fund.

June 8 Grant Heller, Road receipts	4.52
Nov. 17 Solomon Alwood, Road work	17.00
26 Claude Alwood, Road work	3.00
Dec. 6 Bert Marks, Road work	3.00
8 B W Chandler, Road work	18.50
8 Sherdan Gipple, Road work	12.00
13 George Burkhart, Road work	3.00
13 Wm Whitman, Road work	9.00
18 Oren Aldrich, Road work	2.25
31 B F Wright, Road and repair work	10.70

Receipts Additional Road Fund.

June 28 County Treas, May App	335.50
Dec. 31 County Treas, Dec App	1.54
Total	337.04

Disbursements Additional Road Fund.

May 11 Knisely Bro & Co, Part assessment Skelton drain	5.00
June 17 D M Ball, Tile	7.90
30 J R Wiley, Tile and labor	25.00
July 23 S Alwood, Bridge timber, tile and labor	10.75
Aug. 10 E M Coll, Tile and labor	10.00
24 E R Sheline, Road plank	14.00
Sept. 1 John E Kline, Boiler shell	25.00
2 V L Kepler, Hauling boiler shell	6.00
20 First Nat Bank, Assessment Gunsenhouser drain	10.00
25 James Rickard, Cleaning dithecs	10.00
Oct. 18 Frank Scanlin, Boiler shell	51.30
Dec. 29 G F Gengnagel, Hardware	2.77
29 D M Ball, Tile	5.66
29 J D Craun, 5 bbl cement	6.50

Receipts Dog Fund.

May 5 Assesors, Dog tax	63.00
Dec. 31 Delinquent dog tax	6.00
Total	69.00
Mar. 1 County Treas Excess dog fund	45.00

Receipts Poor Fund.

June 28 County Treas, May App	21.88
Dec. 31 County Treas, Dec App	19.92
Total	41.80

SUMMARY

	Township Fund	Tuition Fund	Special Sch. Fund	Road Fund	Add. Road Fund	Dog Fund	Total of all Funds
Balance on hand last settlement	116.13	946.33	76.70	48.12	32.25	145.00	1464.04
Receipts	536.98	1446.32	839.21	59.85	337.04	69.00	3330.11
Total of bal and receipts	653.11	2392.65	915.82	107.97	369.29	214.00	4794.15
Disbursements	509.04	1516.90	838.70	82.97	189.88	45.00	3182.49
Balance	144.07	875.75	77.12	25.00	179.41	169.00	1611.66

Daniel Burkhart, Trustee.

JANUARY

0446

L1134

butler public library

THE DEKALB COUNTY HERALD

VOLUME XLI — BUTLER, DEKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, FRIDAY, JANUARY 21, 1910 — NUMBER 3

DANIEL W. WEITZ, President — HENRY M. SHOWALTER, Vice-President — WALTER SNIDER, Cashier
AMOS SNYDER, Vice-President — ALBERT L. SHULTZ, Vice-President

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK
BUTLER, INDIANA
Capital Paid Up $25,000.00. Your Business Respectfully Solicited.

A Natural Tone Talking and Singing Machine

FREE!

As a home entertainer it has no equal. The best talent in the country is brought right to your fireside to while away the long evenings with comical recitations and songs. You may wish to learn a song and what better instructor can you have than one of these Peerless singers.

The possibilities for one of these little machines for instruction and amusement are endless. This graphophone represents one of the latest achievements of the largest and best equipped Talking Machine Industry in the world. Therefore its reproduction will surprise and delight the most exacting listener.

One standard Talking Machine with Handsome Elower Horn Free to every Customer whose Cash purchases amount to $30

J. C. BROWN & SON
Shoes, Made-to-Measure Clothing, Carpets, Bicycles.

Swift's Pride Soap
for easy house cleaning

For this Sale— per cake 4c; 7 for 25c 15 for 50c

This Price is for Sat. Jan. 15, 1910 Only

BARGAINS AT The Central Grocery

Sat. Jan. 22

Bread and Cake Plates that sold for 30 and 35c, Sale Price 18c

Deep Dishes that sold 35c, Sale Price 15c

Dishes that sold for 25c, Sale Price 12c

Cups and Saucers, Sale Price 3c

We have the exclusive sale of GILIETTS High Grade Extracts, as good as there is. Every bottle guaranteed.

We sell Oysters at 35c per quart.

Our Fruits and Vegetables are always fresh.

PRESTON & PRESTON
Phone 91

The Season For Coughs and Colds Is At Hand

And we wish to call your attention to the fact that our stock contains all the cough and cold remedies that are good of their kind embracing such staple ones as

Foley's Cough Remedy	Drake's Cough Remedy
King's Cough Remedy	Shiloh's Cough Remedy
Kilmer's Cough Remedy	Marshalls' Cough Remedy
DeWitts' Cough Remedy	Allen's Cough Remedy
Kennedy's Cough Remedy	Laxative Bromo Quinine
Jayne's Cough Remedy	Hill's Cascaria Quinine

And also A. D. S. Cold and LaGrippe Remedy. Every box of which is guaranteed.

STONE'S DRUG STORE
Your Money Back If Not Satisfactory

EXTENSION TO FORT WAYNE

Assured By the Sale of the T. & I. Electric Railway

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 18.—S. C. Schenck and his associates are once more in control of the Toledo & Indiana railway. At the second sale of the property in the court house at 10:30 this morning, Mr. Schenck outbid J. M. Longnecker, of Delta, and D. J. Cable representing the Ohio Electric (Schoef) syndicate, and the property was knocked off to J. M. Longnecker.

C. F. M. Niles, receiver of the road and acting as special master, conducted the sale this morning. Cable started the bidding at $1,050,000. Schenck raised the bid $1,000. Cable clapped on another thousand. Then the Longnecker people held a conference.

"Time's up, go ahead," said Longnecker.

Scoenck immediately raised the bid $500 Longnecker and Cable remained silent, the latter evidently having gone the limit allowed by his principals.

The success of Mr. Schenck in bidding in the property for the cammittee of the majority of bondholders seems ao insure the extension of the Toledo & Indiana from Bryan to Fort Wayne. This was one of Mr. Schenck's plans while he was president of the road from 1905 until it went into the hands of a receiver. The extension was surveyed and considerable of the right of way secured. The line, as surqoyed, strikes direct west from Bryan, passing through Butler and Waterloo Indiana bearing off to Fort Wayne from the latter town.

Mr. Schenck would not discuss the question of extension after the sale this morning, but doubtless it will be considered as soon as the new company is organized.—Journal-Gazette.

WILL MAKE THE RACE FOR COUNTY CHAIRMAN

Following is a copy of a letter being sent to the voters of the county. We are not personally acquainted with the writer, but the letter sounds good and no doubt Mr. Kircher would fill the position with high honors and handle democracy successfully. Let us hear from others.

Garrett, Ind., January 14, 1910.

EDITOR HERALD, Butler, Ind.

Dear Sir—Owing to the urgent request of many of my friends in DeKalb county, I have consented to make the race for county chairmanship, subject to the will and pleasure of DeKalb county democrats.

I have lived for thirty-two years in this county, have voted for the success of the party, and I believe no man can sincerely question my democracy. I will spend my energy in the future as in the past for the interests of the candidates or those that may come before the people.

I earnestly ask and beg your support. Without your able assistance I certainly could not make a success of administering the duties of the office if elected. I hope and trust I may always be able to receive your wise counsel, as it is almost impossible to see each and every democrat, I take this method of advising with you. I beg to have the honor to remain,

Yours Respectfully,
FRANK M. KIRCHER.

Methodist Church Notes

The Revival will continue all next week. At three o'clock Sunday afternoon there will be a meeting for women. Mrs. S. G. Stone and Mrs. J. C. Brown will have charge of this meeting.

The Aid society will meet at the parsonage Friday at 2:30 o'clock.

E. F. ALBERTSON, Minister.

The recorder's office during the past year has been a paying proposition for the county. The excess over and above the salary of the recorder, Sam Haverstock, was great enough to count as an appreciable asset to the county. The earnings of the office were $2,482.50. The officers salary is $1,500 and 30 per cent of the earnings ovdr the salary which during the past year, amounted to $294.75, leaving $687.75 that was turned into the county. The business of the office amounted to a little better than $00 per month.

LETTER FROM DECATUR, ALABAMA

Farmers Now Plowing For Corn and Cotton in Alabama

Decatur, Ala., Jan. 10, 1901.

EDITOR BUTLER HERALD,

DEAR SIR:—This has been a very nice, mild winter to my family and myself, but the people that have always lived here think it is a record breaker for cold weather. Last Friday morning it was 11 degrees above zero. I was to Decatur that day and they told me it was the coldest it had been here for forty-two years. We have had two snows, one was about one inch of snow and it was gone at the end of three days. The other snow (you could hardly call it a snow) was on the ground about twenty-four hours and it left us, and the good old summer time came again. If you could hear the birds of all kinds singing as they do here in the months of December and January, you would think it was summer all the time.

The farmers are beginning to p y their land for corn and cotton. We have quite a lot of ground plowed for corn and strawberries. I don't think I will try to grow any cotton, but I am sure going to plant two acres to melons.

The weather is much different here than in Indiana. After it rains or snows it clears up and the sun shines in two or three hours and is nice weather. We do not get many cloudy days. We are looking forward to next month with much interest. We expect to put out our garden, plant potatoes and enjoy spring weather.

We are all well and like our home, the weather and the people. When I came here I weighed 149 pounds and now I weigh 161 pounds and am working every day. I am feeling better than I have for two years.

Hay is selling for $14 per ton, hogs are $8 30 per 100 pounds, butter 25 cents per pound, eggs 30 cents per dozen and corn is 85 cents per 100 pounds.

I will get the other items I mentioned in my last letter to you in a few days. I have been so busy that I had almost forgetten them.

Yours very truly,
JOSEPH W. EVERTTS,
Box 84. Decatur, Ala.

City Council Proceedings

Council met in regular session Monday evening, Jan. 17, 1910, Mayor Mondhank presiding and all councilmen present. The following bills were allowed:

The Geo. M. Jones Co., coal	$ 52 70
" " " " "	20 56
F. Brown, sharpening scraper blade	25
M. A. Harma & Co., coal	26 70
L. S. & M. S Ry. Co., freight on coal	$5 37
Standard Oil Co., oil	10 29
C. E. Dempsey, labor on water main	1 50
Butler Tele. Co., toll service	1 10
Milo D. Husselman, labor on sewer assessments	28 50
L. H. Higley, treasurer public library, Dec. apportionment of taxes	35 16
Wabash Ry. Co., freight on coal	97 47
Fort Wayne Oil & Supply Co., supplies	16 36
Daniel Moughler, hauling coal	34 78
The Aphis Coal Mining Co., coal	29 30
E. C. Murphy, labor and material	10 22
Fort Wayne Elec. Wks., freight on meters	25
John H. W. Krontz, labor on lateral sewer bonds	24 00
L. S. & M. S. Ry. Co., freight on coal	54 00
D. J. Plowe, salary	22 50
J. L. Norford, salary	32 50
S. S. Hall, salary	25 00
Jackson Sewell, salary	22 50

Remonstsance petitions signed by a number of property owners on West Main street, west of Broadway street, petitioning council not to pave this street presented and refered to committee on streets and alleys.

Request to hold democratic caucus in town hall, Saturday, Jan. 22, granted.

Supt. Norford made requisition for supplies and clerk was instructed to order same.

Petition for increase of salary for J. T. Revett was laid on table until next regular meeting.

J. L. Norford was hired for one year as superintendent of electric light and water works plant at $70.00 per month.

Depository reported interest for December, $3.00.

Adjourned to meet Jan. 24, at 7:30 p. m.

Ladies shampoo and massage. First class barber work and baths. West side Broadway, Tomlinson's old stand. Give us a call. M. J. Harrigan, Prop.

BUTLER PEOPLE IN CIRCUIT COURT

Ware Released---Moughler Guilty and Not Guilty---Moore Released

And yet the famous Ware-Showalter case is not at an end. W. H. Ware, who shot Fred Showalter the night preceding Hallowe'en and who has been out on a bond of $500, was arrested Friday evening following a grand jury investigation and for a time was unable to furnish bond, but later was released on bond signed by J. E. Decker, Wallace C. Webster, James Lowe, L. H. Higley, O. T. Knisely, L. C. Buhrer, C. E. Reed, and C. W. Culbertson. It is said that Mr. Ware has a job at Auburn where he will remain until after his trial which at present has not been set.

Amos Moughler, of Butler, pleaded guilty to a charge of permitting gambling in his room and not guilty to four other similar charges in the circuit court and was released on $400 bond. The defendant, who suffered the fracture of both ankles in an accident, could not ascend to the court room and was arraigned in the office of the county clerk. No sentence has yet been passed in the case in which Moughler admits his guilt.

Charles Moore, arrested at Butler several weeks ago on a charge of petty larceny, sobbingly pleaded guilty before Judge Bratton, but was so penitent that the judge turned him loose. The man was accused of having stolen a turkey from William Blaker.

Kelly to Start New Daily

The Twelfth District Press says that Ab Kelly, editor of the Waterloo Dawn, is contemplating launching a democratic daily at the county seat, and adds that Auburn needs a good democratic daily. That is a hard swing at the Courier. Up until recently the Courier has been a good little daily, but of late there has been considerable complaint regarding the stand it has taken in local matters. A bit too "yellow" as it were. However, the Courier has the field and will be quite likely to hold it. Mr. Kelly perhaps does not realize what he is tackling when he launches the third daily in a city the size of Auburn. Ab will find out the difference between filling a daily newspaper with news and a hungry man on soup. Besides starting another democratic paper at Auburn would quite likely make a split in the party which is another feature, perhaps he has not given careful consideration.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is not a common, every-day cough mixture. It is a meritorious remedy for all the troublesome and dangerous complications resulting from cold in the head, throat, chest or lungs. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

TEACHERS OF STATE PLAN PENSION

As Outlined By Committee at the State Institute Recently at Indianapolis

At the meeting of the teachers of the state in Indianapolis recently a committee made a report on the subject of teachers' pensions, outlining a plan in which every teacher of the state will take great interest.

Under the scheme offered by the committee, the pension plans undertake to provide for disabled and retired teachers, and two funds are suggested. The principal fund is to be knowen as a current fund. It is to include interest on any permanent funds and will also be made up of an assessment of 1 per cent on the salaries of the teachers and 1 per cent on annuities which they may receive. The other fund is to be made up of the bequeths which may be left for the purpose of supporting teachers and appropriations which may come from the state.

The funds are to be managed by a board of trustees, composed of the state superintendent of public instruction, the auditor of state and the attorney-general and two beenfactors, who are to be named by the governor. The trustees are to serve without pay and are to meet three times a year. They are to hold the money in the funds under the state depository laws, which requires the placing of the money at interest. Under the suggested plans all teachers must help support the movement and all persons who derive support from the schools of the state may have the benefits. Only state colleges and city schools which have pension system of their own are exempt.

Payments of benefits are privided depending upon the term of school service and the amount of salary for the last five years before retirement, However, the minimum pension will be $250 a year. In case teachers should withdraw frow the profession they are entitled to a return of one-half of the money which they have paid into the fund. In order to be eligible to draw a pension for disability, a teacher must have taught fifteen years. To obtain a straight pension a teacher must be over 60 years of age and have a record of service of thirty-five years or more. Teachers may count five years of their service outside of the state when seeking benefits and those who have taught in private or parochial schools may count their services, provided they are in the employ of the public schools at the time of retirement.

Farewell Sermon

Rev. Braden will preach his farewell sermon at the Christian church on next Sunday evening. All the members are requested to be present.

SOME OF OUR CLAIMS

We don't believe that you can find a better all round place to fit out the home than right at this store.

We don't believe that you can find a place that will deal more fairly with you than we will.

We don't believe that dollar for dollar you can do quite as as well any where else.

Those are our claims--
To prove them is our aim.

Will you give us an opportunity to do so the first time you are needing something in our line.

A. F. BRINDLEY
Furniture and Undertaking

The Rexall Store — GEDDES' DRUG STORE — Always at Your Service

Dioxogen
THE PURE PEROXIDE OF HYDROGEN

Send for a FREE Trial Bottle

The Oakland Chemical Company of New York will send a free 2oz. bottle of DIOXOGEN upon receipt of postal request, mentioning this store.

DIOXOGEN is the best kind of Health Insurance for every member of the family. Send for the complimentary bottle and try DIOXOGEN

As a Mouth Wash — For Burns and Scalds
As a Gargle — For Boils, Abscesses, Etc.
As a Nasal Douche — For Ivy Poisoning
For Nose Bleed — For Ear Ache
For Wounds and Cuts — For "Pink Eye," Styes Etc.
After Shaving
For the Complexion
For Pimples, Blackheads, Etc.
For Chapped Hands and Face
For Sunburn
For Body Odors
For Manicuring
For Mosquito and Insect Bites
For Bee Stings
To Remove Bandages that Stick

Full directions for each use will accompany the trial bottle. Be sure and mention this store and send the postal request today.

GEDDES' DRUG STORE
West Side Broadway — Phone 31

COMING! COMING!

Thompson Opera House

Thursday, Friday, Saturday Evening

January 20, 21, 22

Bushe's Indian Show--Real Indians

In Songs, Dances, Musical Selections, Lecturers, War Dances, War Tongs. A thrilling exhibition of ancient and modern Indian life.

Also 2,000 feet of moving pictures and illustrated songs. Entire Change Nightly.

One hour and 30 minutes show for 5 and 10c

NOTE: The Star Theater will be closed on the above dates.

JANUARY

0447

L1134

WAITING for the return of Halley's comet after a lapse of over seventy-five years is very much like waiting for a train. We know the track on which the train will speed toward us; but whether the train will be on time or not, we cannot know. We know the orbit of the comet, but not the exact minute when it will swing around the sun. A photographic plate at the end of a telescope will perform the functions of a celestial telegram for us, inasmuch as it will tell us how late the comet may be and when it will glide into full view. Every night during the present year telescopic cameras have searched the heavens for a hazy disk of light, so dim that the naked eye cannot see it. To Prof. Max Wolff of Heidelberg belongs the honor of having first detected the comet on Sept. 11, 1909. As a tribute to modern mathematical astronomy it may be stated that he found it very nearly in the exact position indicated by the calculations.

The return of Halley's comet will be an astronomical event of much pith and moment, because it was the very first body of its kind for which a time table was computed, because an opportunity will be presented of revising that time table, and because it will enable the astronomer for the first time to obtain photographs of its striking features for comparison with photographs to be taken by unborn astronomers in 1986 or 1987.

Of such mathematical importance is the return of Halley's comet that at various times scientists have spent months in calculating the exact period of its revolution. Even now, when comets are discovered at the rate of two or three a year, we know only that it may be expected to become a striking object some time in the middle of April, 1910. Such are the accelerations and retardations suffered by every comet as it sweeps past the planets of our solar system that absoluteness of prediction is well-nigh impossible. Often a comet is twisted out of its normal orbit by planetary attraction, with the result that we may lose sight of it forever. Jupiter is responsible for many such deflections. Thus, in 1886 he wrenched a comet out of its course, derailed it, as it were, and reduced its period of revolution from twenty-seven to seven years. In 1779 a comet known as Lexell's glided so near him that it was never seen again. All told, Jupiter has captured a family of thirty comets, and holds them by virtue of his enormous attraction. Saturn has similarly acquired two comets, Uranus three and Neptune six. Obviously a comet's course may be both devious and uncertain.

Great Age of Halley's Comet.

Of all comets that have ever been discovered, Halley's is the most important, because it is the most historical. It flashed upon the world when Egypt was young and when Greece was a wilderness inhabited by savages. Perhaps it will continue to return when mankind is old and decrepit, and the earth is entering that last tragic stage of its existence when it will be reduced to a cold, dead, desolate world. Yet, ancient as the comet is, its scientific history begins with the man whose name it bears and with Sir Isaac Newton.

It was Edmund Halley who urged upon Newton the necessity of publishing that famous manuscript in which the laws of gravitation are laid down; it was Halley who paid for the printing out of his own pocket, although he was sorely reduced in circumstances; and it was Halley who so dramatically drove home the truth of Newton's immutable laws and became the prophet of gravitation, by plotting the orbit of a comet that had alarmed the world in 1531, 1607 and 1682, and foretelling its return in 1758. He was indeed the "Ulysses who had produced Achilles," to use the words that he himself employed in describing his relation to Newton. A man of 49 when he boldly proclaimed the comet's reappearance, he knew that he would die before his prediction could be verified; and so he left behind him a touching plea that reads:

"Wherefore, if, according to what we have already said, it should return again about the year 1758, candid posterity will not refuse to acknowledge that this was first discovered by an Englishman."

No Longer an Omen of Evil.

When the comet blazed forth on Christmas day, 1758, it was forever shorn of the dreadful divinity with which for ages it had been hedged, and became an object of dispassionate scientific study. Newton's conclusion that, in accordance with the laws of gravitation, comets must describe ellipses, parabolas or hyperbolas, was brilliantly verified.

A comet is more than a neat mathematical problem. Although no longer an omen of evil, it is still wrapped in a veil of mystery which has not been wholly torn away by the physicist and the chemist. Indeed, it is only within the last few years that really plausible theories to account for cometary phenomena have been advanced. To understand just what these theories are we must first pick a comet apart, as it were, and regard it as we would a dismembered watch.

In a general way, it may be said that every comet comprises a nucleus, an envelope (called the "coma") surrounding the nucleus and measuring from 20,000 to 1,000,000 miles in diameter, and a long tail which streams behind the nucleus for sixty to a hundred million miles or more. From all that has been gathered, astronomers have decided that the nucleus is probably a heap of meteorites varying in size from a grain to masses weighing several tons each; a heap, moreover, so easily sundered that its elements are distributed gradually along the orbit. It follows that every comet must eventually perish unless it restores its nucleus by collecting stray meteors. That disintegration does occur has been observed time and time again. For example, Biela's comet, which was discovered in 1826, burst into two fragments, which drifted apart a distance of one million miles. Thus it became a twin comet. Eventually it disappeared as a comet, and in its stead we see a shoal of meteors whenever we cross its track every six and a half years. It is possible that the comets of 1668, 1843, 1880, 1882 and 1887, all traveling in approximately the same path, are fragments of a single large body which was broken up by the gravitational action of other bodies in the system, or through violent encounter with the sun's surroundings.

The Comet's Tail.

The luminous tail which streams behind the nucleus, and which Milton regarded as "horrid hair" that "shakes pestilence and war," is startling, to say the least. Despite a length which, as has been stated, may exceed a hundred million miles, it is so diaphanously light and subtle that it is difficult to compare it with any earthly fabric. The air that we breathe is a dense blanket in comparison. Several hundred cubic miles of the matter composing that wonderful luminous plume would not outweigh a jarful of air. By reason of its fairy lightness, it is possible for a tail occupying a volume thousands of times greater than the sun to sweep through our solar system without causing any perturbations in planetary movements. The earth itself has on more than one occasion plowed through a comet's tail, and no one was the wiser until the astronomers announced the fact, months later, when they had finished their computations.

Because comets have whisked us with their tails it must not be inferred that collisions with fiery wanderers are likely to occur. Such cataclysms happen only in Jules Verne's novels and in the Sunday newspaper. The alarming possibilities of a collision were appreciated long before the days of sensational journalism. When Olbers calculated that Biela's comet would pass through the earth's orbit in 1832, a panic ensued. No one thought of inquiring where the earth would be. It was not until Arago reassuringly figured out that the earth would be 50,000,000 miles away when the passage did take place that the run on human emotion was stopped and confidence restored. The chances in favor of a collision are, roughly, one to 281,000,000, and then only once in fifteen million years. A blind sportsman, bent on duck-shooting, stands a better chance of hitting his target than the earth of ramming a comet.

No celestial phenomenon has caused more perplexity than the ghostly sheaf of light we call a comet's tail. In a day, in a few hours even, the form of that wonderful gossamer may change. Hence it is that periodic comets are identified when they return, not by the length and arch of their tails, but by their orbits. These alone are permanent. When a comet is first seen in the telescope, it appears as a diminutive filmy patch, often unadorned by any tail. As it travels on toward the sun, at a speed compared with which a modern rifle bullet would seem to crawl, violent eruptions occur in the nucleus. The ejected matter is bent back to form the cloak called the "coma." With a nearer approach to the sun, the tail begins to sprout, increasing in size and brightness as it proceeds. Evidently there is some connection between the sun and the tail, something akin to cause and effect. When the comet rushes on toward the sun, invariably the tail drifts behind the nucleus like the smoke from a locomotive. But when the comet swings around the sun and travels away from it, a startling change takes place. The tail no longer trails behind, but projects in front, as if some mighty solar wind were blowing it in advance of the head. The phenomenon has long been an astronomical riddle. Here was a kind of matter that refused to obey the laws of gravitation and yield to the enormous pull of the sun. It was thought for a time that the tail was flung away from the sun by stupendous repelling electrical forces. That electricity plays its part in the formation of the fairy plume is conceivable, and even probable; but recently the physicist has discovered a new source of repellent energy which very plausibly explains the mystery of a comet's tail. This new source of energy is nothing less than the pressure or push of the sun's light. Solar gravitation is a force more powerful than many of us perhaps realize. If it were possible for you to live on the sun, you would find yourself pulled down so violently that your body would weigh two tons. Your clothing alone would weigh more than one hundred pounds. Running would be a very difficult athletic feat. Light pressure must indeed be powerful if it can conquer so relentless a force.

A Tail of Dust and Soot.

So much has been discovered about the particles that compose a comet's tail that the more progressive scientists of our day have accepted this ingenious theory. It has been discovered, for example, that the delicate tresses of a comet are to a large extent composed of fine particles of dust and soot.

Before we can completely accept the view that light pressure forms this train of soot we must ascertain whether the pressure of light is capable of accounting for the flashlike rapidity with which a comet's tail changes. A comet may throw out a tail sixty million miles long in two days. Is it actually possible for light pressure to accomplish that astonishing feat. Arrhenius has computed that 865,000 miles an hour is the speed of a light-flung particle of one-half the critical diameter. Because they are only one-eighteenth as large as this particle of critical diameter, cometary dust grains would be propelled over the same 865,000 miles in less than four minutes. It follows that the solar radiation would experience no difficulty in tossing out a tail of sixty million miles in two days.

THE FIVE AGES OF BASE BALL.

At first the barefoot youngster
Learns the game upon the city's lots.
Then the prayerful, doubting player
Facing the ogre manager and his contract.
Then the minor star to whom's accorded
The cheers that always will attend success.
Then the baseball wonder who commands
Respect and salary in five figures.
And so he plays his part. The fifth age shifts
Into the has been and a seat upon the bench.

ATCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS.

There is never plenty of time.

The more a man amounts to, the busier he is.

Somehow, we always hate to see a woman handle a gun.

How we all admire discipline when it is applied to someone else!

You can't work and worry at the same time to good advantage.

A man who worries throws rocks at his troubles, and hits himself.

It is as important to keep out of court as it is to keep out of debt.

Lots of men have discovered that it is not dangerous to swear to a lie.

An unhappy woman always looks unhappier than an unhappy man.

Every man represents some other man's idea of an undesirable citizen.

A true test of the friendship of a hunter is when he gives you a quail.

We never care much for the woman known as "a popular society woman."

Even if a farmer intends to loaf, he gets up in time to get an early start.

It is always safe to bet that the man who isn't prejudiced isn't interested.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

If it be necessary to stir rice, use a fork.

Always add a pinch of salt to your cake; it will improve it.

Use vinegar and a copper cent to remove paint from windows.

Always cook oats in boiling water and sprinkle them in a few at a time.

Mop off linoleum once a month with boiled linseed oil and it will look like new.

Dip a new broom in a good soap suds once a week and see how much longer it will last.

Keep an oyster shell in the tea kettle and the lime will collect on it and not on the sides of the kettle.

If you will add salt to your starch the clothes will not stick to the irons; also add a little lard to make clothes shine.

When laundering starched articles in winter always add borax to the starch and the cuffs and collars will not lose shape.

By adding one tablespoonful of butter or a half cup of cream to the batter, pancakes can be baked without greasing the griddle.

FACTS ABOUT NEW YORK CITY.

Over 250,000 people work at night.

There are 132 department stores, employing over 50,000 people.

Over 476,000,000 gallons of water are used every day in the greater city.

The transient hotel population is figured at 250,000 people a day. The hotel properties are valued at over $80,000,000.

A child is born every four minutes, and a death occurs every seven minutes.

The city contains 8,000 lawyers, 5,000 actors, 3,000 actresses, 6,000 artists, 10,000 musicians, 15,000 stenographers, 69,000 salesmen and saleswomen, 1,900 farmers, 1,600 undertakers and 852 female barbers.

The population is now 4,800,000. London's population is 500,000 more, but New York is growing seven times as fast as the British metropolis, and should become the largest city in the world inside of 10 years. The population increases at the ratio of five to one, compared with the increase of the rest of the country.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Buckles were first made in 1680.

The Belgian navy is the smallest in the world.

Barometers were first made by Torricelli in 1643.

The London police arrest over 108,000 people a year.

Moscow has the lowest priced daily publication. It costs a farthing.

Young Lone Wolf, a Kiowa Indian chief, is a Baptist minister. He is a Carlisle graduate, and reads in his Greek testament every morning.

There are more than 100 firms manufacturing chocolate in the United States.

Japan's postal and telegraph receipts for 1908 were $18,730,000, a gain of $225,000 over 1907.

Londoners live, on an average, to an age of 57 years. In most parts of England the standard is below this.

Elizabeth Akers Allen, who wrote the famous poem, "Rock Me to Sleep, Mother," fifty years ago, is 77 years old. Born in Maine, she began to write when she was a girl of 15.

DYNAMITE ON A FARM

Experiments of "Shooting" the Soil Successfully Tried in Pittsburg, Kan.

DR. WILLIAM HAMM'S PLAN.

Nearly 3,000 Farmers Saw New Means of Loosening Earth and Many Are Converts.

Farmers in this section are greatly interested in the scheme of using dynamite to loosen up the subsoil of fields being prepared for cultivation, a Pittsburg (Kan.) dispatch to the Kansas City Times says. Three thousand persons watched a demonstration of the system given on the grounds of the Manual Training School.

Dr. William Hamm of Vienna was the first to recommend the use of explosives in agriculture. His idea was that the lowest strata of the soil could not be reached by any of the agricultural implements now in use. To demonstrate the feasibility of the idea a number of interesting experiments have been conducted by agricultural departments over the country, among them that conducted by the Kansas department a few days ago.

The demonstration was so satisfactory that many farmers are planning to follow up the scheme on their farms as soon as possible. If all the farmers who are talking of trying the explosives in farm work really make the attempt it will soon be a common occurrence in this part of the state to drive out in the country and see farmers "shooting" their ground as steadily as if they were following the plow.

One-half of the shots were fired by battery and the other half was by fuse. The dynamite was in stick form and a quarter of an inch in diameter. It contained 25 per cent of nitrate ammonia powder. The sticks were placed twenty-five feet apart and holes were drilled to a depth of three feet. The shots fired by the battery seemed to give the best results, seemed to shake the ground better and leave it in a better condition, as the whole surface of the ground was shaken at once.

The soil was thoroughly pulverized for a distance of six feet from each shot. Cracks ran in each direction from the shots, showing that the explosions had left fissures in every direction under the ground as well as on top.

It is estimated by those who have experimented in this class of ground culture that each shot leaves a reservoir where several hundred gallons of water can collect and furnish moisture from the bottom, instead of receiving all of the moisture from the top, the water thus carried into the ground feeding the roots of whatever is planted much more readily than if all the water came from the surface.

PEANUT SHELLS CAUSED DEATH.

Peanut shells poured into the cook stove at her home caused a column of flame to shoot upward, which ignited the kimona worn by Mrs. Kate Hoover, of York, Pa., and before the flames were extinguished she was fatally burned. Mrs. Hoover is 24 years old. She had enjoyed a lunch of peanuts, after finishing which she went to the stove and poured the shells into the fire. With her dress ablaze she hurried into a neighbor's house, and then ran again into the open. She was followed by the neighbor, who threw water over her, extinguishing the blaze. Her burns extended from her feet to her head.

The Unattainable.

Bill Biffins yearned to satisfy
The men who criticise.
When he resolved that he would try
To make a name and rise
They said he was too young as yet.
A few years onward rolled
And then with courteous regret
They said he was too old.

He once was slender as the limb
That grows upon a tree;
Then broader outlines came to him,
Quite comforting to see.
Approval still he fails to win;
His friends assure him that While once he may have been too thin
At present he's too fat.

He eats too much or not enough;
He's oversad or gay,
His language is a bit too rough
Or, too ornate, they say.
No wonder that his frame of mind
Grows steadily more glum.
How can he ever hope to find
The happy medium?
—Washington Star.

That the aurora borealis, or northern lights, is an electrical display is evidenced by the fact that during a recent wonderful exhibition of this natural phenomena it was impossible to use the Atlantic cables or the wireless stations.

The government of Brazil has determined to develop iron smelting and the iron and steel industry generally, and thus make use of the vast deposits of iron ore which exist in several portions of the country.

COLD BATHS AID TO BEAUTY.

DIVINE MYRMA

Cold water will enable corpulent women to acquire sylphlike forms. Divine Myrma, stage diver and swimmer, is the discoverer of the secret. Since childhood, the diver, whose real name is Ethel May Donough, has been a devotee of all aquatic sports, and through these, she says, she learned how the form can be molded into lines most desired. "Bathe every morning in the outer air until it reaches a temperature of 45 degrees," she says. "When outdoor bathing is impossible, the bathtub is a fair substitute. With one-half pound of salt added to a tub of water the effect is better. The bath should be taken one-half hour after rising and the same length of time before breakfast."

PERUVIAN MUSIC.

The native music of Peru, according to Geraldine Guiness, the author of a recent book on that country, is exceedingly interesting and strange. It seems fitting that the people of such an unusual country—the children of a unique social system—should have a characteristic style of national music. Certainly the yaravis of Peru are unlike any other music.

When first I heard their plantive notes come wailing through the night air, I listened spell-bound to this new thing. As I came to know and love the ancient melodies they took hold of me in a strange way.

There is surely a similarity in spirit and construction between these Indian yaravis and the sobbing lyrics sung by the exiles of Babylon. They are intensely patriotic and deeply mournful. "The memory of former wrongs has tinged their most popular songs with sadness. The young mother lulls her infant to sleep with verses, the burden of which is sorrow and despair, and the love songs usually express the most hopeless grief."

Indians are always singing. Far out on the pampas away from all human habitations, I have heard strange Kechua words crooned by little shepherd boys; harvesters, as they toil uphill with their immense loads of barley, invariably sing some plaintive old song, and families traveling along the dusty roads unite their voices in strange part-harmonies to wailing melodies in a minor key.

GUILLOTINED BY PAPER CUTTER.

The first man ever guillotined in America was John Drey, who fell to his death under the keen blade of a huge paper cutter in a paper mill at Whippany, N. J. Drey was employed by a paper company, his duty being to see that sheets of paper were properly placed under the knife, which regularly fell and rose, cutting thousands of sheets at each fall. A piece of paper fell awry athwart the knife plate and Drey, in stretching over it to straighten the sheet, slipped and fell just as the knife came down.

DEVELOPMENT.

Fast interurban trolley cars.

Telegraphy and telephony without wires.

The electric propulsion of vehicles and boats.

The luminous arc lamps which turn night into day.

The telharmonium, which produces electrical music.

The powerful electric searchlights which are visible for a hundred miles.

Smiles of The Day

Good at Addition.

Sammy's mother talked to him long and earnestly about the poor marks he had been getting in his work at school. She painted in alluring colors the career of the little boy who studies his lessons and gains the love and respect of his teachers. She went even farther; she promised him that if he got good marks she would give him a whole dime, all for his own. Sammy seemed impressed.

That afternoon he returned from school fairly dancing with joy.

"Oh, mother," he shouted, "I got a hundred!"

"Sammy!" cried his delighted mother. She hugged him and kissed him and petted him and—gave him the dime.

"And what did you get a hundred in?" she finally asked him.

"In two things," replied Sammy, without hesitation. "I got forty in readin' and sixty in spellin'."—Everybody's.

In Fowlville.

Mr. Dorking—Of all the fool fashions you women take up! Now what will be the good of that immense beaver hat when it goes out of style?

Mrs. Dorkin—Chump! Look what a warm nest it will make.

The Depotism of the Press.

We clip the following for the benefit of those who doubt the power of the press:

"Owing to the overcrowded condition of our columns, a number of births and deaths are unavoidably postponed this week."—Everybody's Magazine.

Squelched.

The dapper little traveling man glanced at the menu and then looked up at the pretty waitress. "Nice day, little one," he began.

"Yes, it is," she answered, "and so was yesterday, and my name is Ella, and I know I'm a little peach, and have pretty blue eyes, and I've been here quite a while and like the place, and I don't think I'm too nice a girl to be working in a hotel; if I did I'd quit my job; and my wages are satisfactory; and I don't know if there is a show or dance in town to-night, and if there is I shall not go with you, and I'm from the country, and I'm a respectable girl, and my brother is cook in this hotel, and he weighs 200 pounds and last week he wiped up this dining room floor with a fresh $50-a-month traveling man who tried to make a date with me. Now, what'll you have?"

The dapper little traveling man said he was not very hungry, and a cup of coffee and some hot cakes would do.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

There's a Reason.

Mr. Dubbs (with newspaper)—It tells here, my dear, how a progressive New York woman makes her social calls by telephone.

Mrs. Dubbs—Progressive. Huh! She's probably like me—not a decent thing to wear.—Boston Transcript.

A Strange Coin.

Nephew (just returned from abroad)—This franc piece, aunt, I got in Paris.

Aunt Hepsy—I wish, nephew, you'd fetched home one of them Latin quarters they talk so much about.—Boston Transcript.

A Gentle Hint.

Mrs. Henry Peck—I don't know what to buy mother for a birthday present, do you?

Mr. Henry Peck—Yes; buy her a traveling bag.

Sure of His Answer.

An individual, well known on the Berlin Bourse for his wit, one morning wagered that he would ask the same question of fifty different persons and receive the same answer from each. The wit went to first one and then another, until he had reached the number of fifty. And this is how he won the bet: "I say, have you heard that Meyer has failed?" "What Meyer?" queried the whole fifty one after another, and it was decided that the bet had been fairly won.—The Argonaut.

Its Language.

"Pop, did you say a bird told you about how I was naughty yesterday?"

"Yes, my son."

"Pop, did it tell you in pigeon English?"—Baltimore American.

The Aftermath.

"Christmas is a hard day for the women," said Mr. Nippy as he watched his wife basting the turkey.

"Yes," said she, "but think of the days and days afterward when we don't have to cook at all."—Newark News.

Good Place for Camels.

Governor Glasscock, of West Virginia, while traveling through Arizona, noticed the dry, dusty appearance of the country.

"Doesn't it ever rain around here?"

"Rain?" The native spat. "Rain? Why, say, pardner, there's bullfrogs in this yere town over five years old that hain't learned to swim yet."—Everybody's Magazine.

Editorial Omniscience.

"Father," said the small boy of an editor, "is Jupiter inhabited?" "I don't know, my son," was the truthful answer. Presently he was interrupted again. "Father, are there any sea serpents?" "I don't know, my son." The little fellow was manifestly cast down, but presently rallied and again approached the great source of information. "Father, what does the north pole look like?" But alas! again the answer, "I don't know, my son." At last, in desperation he inquired, with withering emphasis, "Father, how did you get to be an editor?"—Concordia Kansan.

Another Tong War.

Silas (reading morning paper)—I see, Mandy, they're having another war of the Tongs daown thar in Chinatown.

Mandy—Land sakes! You'd think with all them Chinese laundries around thet flatirons would be handier things tew fight with."—Judge.

A Surmise.

"What is Mrs. Gabson's favorite book?"

"I don't know," answered Miss Cayenne; "from the interest she takes in knowing the names, occupations and home surroundings of everybody she sees I should think it ought to be the city directory."—Washington Star.

Cause of Delay.

He was the bridegroom, and he was waiting at the church.

"I can't imagine why my bride is late," he said.

"Well, you will," replied the best man, "after you're married. They are hooking her dress up the back!"—Yonker's Statesman.

An Obliging Doctor.

Sick Wife—Doctor, I will double your fee if you will prescribe a trip to the seashore.

Doctor—Very well, madam, I shall do so.

Sick Wife—What were you intending to prescribe?

Doctor—A trip to the seashore.—Meggendorfer Blaetter.

A Last Resort.

"You remind me so much of my brother," she said coyly as they sat in the parlor.

"I'm awfully glad of that," he answered gallantly. "I have always admired your brother. In what way am I most like him?"

"Well, Harry seems awfully fond of me, yet he never offers to kiss me."

After that it was unnecessary for her to ring in any of her relatives.—St. Louis Star.

Too Easy.

"Now, Willie, what's the difference between one yard and two yards?"

"A fence! Gimme a harder one!"

Cold Comfort.

In a country store a young boy was under discussion by the cracker-barrel committee. Jones had just remarked, "That boy's a regular fool. He doesn't know nothing; he don't know enough to come in when it rains." Then he discovered the boy's father, who had overheard the remark, and, wishing to appease him, he said, "Well, Sam, 'taint your fault. You learned him all you knew."—Lippincott's.

Reasons Enough.

Father—You seem to look at things in a very different light since your marriage.

His Newly Married Daughter—Well, I ought to, after receiving fourteen lamps and nine candelabra for wedding presents.—Tit-Bits.

Out of Hearing.

Rodrick—In the stock market news I see there is money on call.

Van Albert (sadly)—On call, eh? Well, if I should call with a megaphone none of it would reach me.—Mobile Item.

Another Knock.

First Actor—I approached the clerk of the Red Dog Inn and told him actors deserved special terms.

Second Actor—Ah, indeed! And what did he say?

First Actor—He said they deserved six-month terms in the county workhouse.—Chicago Journal.

Plenty of Poor Stuff.

"But do you think," asked the visitor in the local option town, "that prohibition really prevents?"

"Well," replied the native, "it prevents a fellow from getting the best of whisky, but it doesn't prevent whisky from getting the best of him."—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Return.

When Johnnie went away to school
He rigidly conformed to rule.

At first he joined a college frat,
And lost an arm and leg in that.

And then he made the Delta Phis,
Who gouged out one of Johnnie's eyes.

A "rush" that launched the college year
Deprived him of a useful ear.

He was so good, and glad to please,
That Johnnie made the team with ease.

He left a hand at Cleveland, O.—
A kneecap at St. Louis, Mo.;

His sternum cracked at Baltimore—
Interred his nose at Portland, Ore.;

At every contest, win or yield,
He left a portion on the field,

Thus gradually he was bereft
Till little of the boy was left.

We got his baggage home by rail—
The rest of Johnnie came by mail.
—Buffalo News.

And the face of the homely girl is her chaperon.

JANUARY

0448

L1134

VITALIZER

There is Hope

RESTORES LOST POWERS. A weak man is like a clock run down. MUNYON'S VITALIZER will wind him up and make him go. If you are nervous, if you are irritable, if you lack confidence in yourself, if you do not feel your full manly vigor, begin on this remedy at once. There are 75 VITALIZER tablets in one bottle; every tablet is full of vital power. Don't spend another dollar on quack doctors or spurious remedies, or fill your system with harmful drugs. Begin on MUNYONS VITALIZER at once, and you will begin to feel the vitalizing effect of this remedy after the first dose. Price, $1, post-paid. Munyon, 53rd and Jefferson, Phila, Pa.

WESTERN CANADA

Senator Dolliver, of Iowa, says:

"The stream of emigrants from the United States to Canada will continue."

Senator Dolliver recently paid a visit to Western Canada, and says: "There is a land hunger in the hearts of English speaking people; this will account for the removal of so many Iowa farmers to Canada. Our people are pleased with the Government and the excellent administration of law, and they are coming to you in tens of thousands, and they are still coming."

Iowa contributed largely to the 20,000 American farmers who made Canada their home during 1909. Field crop returns alone during year added to the wealth of the country upwards of

$170,000,000.00

Grain growing, mixed farming, cattle raising and dairying are all profitable. Free Homesteads of 160 acres are to be had in the very best districts. 160 acre pre-emptions at $3.00 per acre within certain areas. Schools and churches in every settlement, climate unexcelled, soil the richest, wood, water and building material plentiful.

For particulars as to location, low settlers' railway rates and descriptive illustrated pamphlet, "Last Best West," and other information, write to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the following Canadian Gov't Agents: W. H. Rogers, 2d Floor Traction-Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Ind., and H. M. Williams, Room 20, Law Building, Toledo, Ohio. (Use address nearest you).

Please say where you saw this advertisement.

Fort Wayne List

Just as some foods will make the bowels active, so do Cascarets. Their results don't come through irritation, as with harsh cathartics, but in Nature's way. So you can take them any hour. No need to wait till bedtime. 864

CUT THIS OUT, mail it with your address to Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Ill., and receive a handsome souvenir gold Bon Bon Box FREE.

QUICKEST WITH SAFETY

PISO'S CURE

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS AND COLDS

For the baby often means rest for both mother and child. Little ones like it too—it's so palatable to take. Free from opiates.

All Druggists, 25 cents.

Let us do your Printing using

Eagle Linen

for your office stationery. You can get the paper and envelopes to match.

It is the real thing. Take no other.

USE

SAFETY ANTI-PAIN CAPSULES

HEADACHE. LA GRIPPE. NEURALGIA

PRICE—10 CENTS.

FASHION HINTS

A striking gown of grey panne velvet has sleeves and yoke of silver lace, which is used on the skirt too.

The model shown here was also trimmed in bands, very narrow ones of gray fur.

Gathered chiffon may be used instead of the fur if a lighter effect is desired.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

'QUANTITY, QUALITY AND PRICE'

The Three Essentials That Are Giving Western Canada Greater Impulse than Ever This Year.

The reports from the grain fields of Central Canada (which comprises the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta) are to hand. The year 1909 has not only kept pace with previous years in proving that this portion of the continent is capable of producing a splendid yield of all the smaller grains, but it has thoroughly outstripped previous seasons. There is quantity, quality and price, and from all parts of an area of about 320,000 square miles there comes the strong refrain of contentment and satisfaction. In the distribution of the conditions causing it no district has been overlooked.

Various estimates of the total yield of wheat for the country have been made, but it is not the vast total that influences the general reader so much as what has been done individually. The grand total—say 130,000,000 bushels—may have its effect on the grain prices of the world; it may be interesting to know that in the world's markets the wheat crop of Canada has suddenly broken upon the trading boards, and with the Argentine, and with Russia and India is now a factor in the making of prices. If so to-day, what will be its effect five or ten years from now, when, instead of there being seven million acres under crop, with a total yield of 125,000,000 or 130,000,000 bushels, there will be from 17,000,000 to 30,000,000 acres in wheat with a yield of from 325,000,000 to 600,000,000 bushels. When it is considered that the largest yield in the United States but slightly exceeded 700,000,000 bushels, the greatness of these figures may be understood. Well, such is a safe forecast, for Canada has the land and it has the soil. Even today the Province of Saskatchewan, one of the three great wheat growing provinces of Canada, with 400,000 acres under wheat, produces nearly 90,000,000 bushels, or upwards of one-tenth of the greatest yield of the United States. And Saskatchewan is yet only in the beginning of its development. As Lord Grey recently pointed out in speaking on this very subject, this year's crop does not represent one-tenth of the soil equally fertile that is yet to be brought under the plough.

Individually, reports are to hand of yields of twenty-five, thirty and thirty-five bushels to the acre. Scores of yields are reported of forty and some as high as sixty bushels. The farmer, who takes care of his soil, who gets his seed-bed ready early, is certain of a splendid crop.

The news of the magnificent crop yield throughout the Canadian West will be pleasing to the friends of the thousands of Americans who are residents in that country and who are vastly instrumental in the assistance they are rendering to let the world know its capabilities.

Relative Merits.

"Were you successful the first time you ran for office?"

"No," answered Senator Sorgaum. "My experience was not an unusual one. I had to keep on trying until the opposition put up a candidate who was even more unpopular than I was."—Washington Star.

Face Covered with Pimples.

"I congratulate Cuticura upon my speedy recovery from pimples which covered my face. I used Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent for ten days and my face cleared and I am perfectly well. I had tried doctors for several months but got no results. Wm. J. Sadlier, 1614 Susquehanna Ave., Philadelphia, May 1, 1909."

So!

(By a prejudiced contributor.)

I do not like thee, Dr. ——!
I thought I did, but I mis——.
Thou'rt sure, methinks, to get the——
I do not like thee, Dr. ——!
—Chicago Tribune.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS. PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

Bad Things Coming.

"The world owes every man a living."

"If that's true the world's been letting my account run a disgracefully long time."—Cleveland Leader.

PERRY DAVIS' PAINKILLER has an enviable reputation of over seventy years as a reliable remedy for lumbago, sciatica, pleurisy stitches, etc., 25c, 25c and 50c. At all druggists.

Back to First Principles.

It is said that the means of beautifying the human form have been handed down for many centuries. Clothing it in charity, we presume.—Charleston News and Courier.

Are Your Clothes Faded? Use Red Cross Ball Blue and make them white again. Large 2oz. package, 5 cents.

Slot Machine for Suicide.

Washington.—"Drop a penny in the slot and get a ticket to the other world" might be the inscription on a machine that is suggested by Rev. Dr. Donald Guthrie, of Baltimore. Dr. Guthrie was talking on "Calvinism" at the closing session of the synod of Baltimore at the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church here. At the close of a plea for a wholesome, enthusiastic interest in life, he said: "Life has become so meaningless and so useless to some that I advocate the setting up of a suicide machine where one can deposit a cent and be killed easily and respectably."

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES

FOR RHEUMATISM, BRIGHT'S DISEASE, BACKACHE, DIABETES

375 "Guaranteed"

Keeping the Soil Fertile.

According to Prof. Whitney of the Bureau of Soil, United States Department of Agriculture, a soil to be fertile must contain a sufficient quantity of the ash ingredients of the plants to be cultivated, and these must be in such soluble condition as to be taken up by the growing plants. Soils once fertile are said to be exhausted when deprived of such food as is required for plant nutrition, but rest and meliorating treatment will, in time, restore such soils to a fertile condition.

Until past the year 1750 no just ideas upon the rotation of crops seemed to have been formed in any part of England.

The rotation of crops affords time for the disintegrating action of the atmosphere, rain and frost to prepare new material from the rock particles in the soil and get it in a form to be used by the plant. One crop may use up the available food of a particular kind faster than it can be prepared by these natural agencies. When properly managed it enables one plant to prepare food for another.

All plants exhaust the soil, though in an unequal degree; plants of different kinds do not exhaust the soil in the same manner; all plants do not restore to the soil a like quantity or quality of manure, and all plants are not equally favorable to the growth of weeds. Upon the above principles is based a regular succession of crops.

Though the system of rotation is adapted to every soil, no particular rotation can be assigned to any one description of soil which will answer at all times, and on the demand for different kinds of produce. On clayey soils, beans and clover, with rye grass are generally alternated with grain crops, and on dry loams or sandy ground turnips, beets, potatoes and clover. On rich soils this system of alternate husbandry is most conducive to the plentiful production of food, both for men and animals. One portion of a farm would thus be always under grain crops, while the other portion was growing roots or cultivated grasses; but, as the major part of arable lands can not be preserved in a state of fertility with even this kind of management, it is requisite that the portion of the farm which is under cultivated grasses should be pastured for two or three years, in order to give it time to recruit. The following is a good rotation of crops: First year, clover; second, clover; third, corn; fourth, oats; fifth, wheat. The clover does well with oats, and after an early mowing can be very well prepared for wheat.

Orchard Pests.

Whether there is a good or poor fruit crop it will pay to keep the fruit trees as free from disease and injurious insects as possible. The healthy and uninjured tree is more liable to bear and prove profitable than the one full of disease and injury. The orchard will last longer if it is kept clean and healthy.

Borers are among the most insidious pests of the apple orchard in some localities. On account of their habits they cannot be reached by poisonous sprays, and nostrums placed about the roots, as sometimes recommended, are utterly useless. The most efficient means of preventing damage from these pests is by anual inspection of the trees and removal of the grubs with a sharp pointed knife. Various protective measures are also used. One of the most effective is to paint the lower part of the stem in late winter or early spring with a fairly thick paint made from pure ready mixed paints for this purpose, since others may contain injurious substances. Wood veneer strips and wire gauze are sometimes used to prevent the eggs from being laid on the trunks of the trees, but white lead paint is simple and cheaper.

Black rot is a fungous disease which attacks the fruit, foliage, old bark and branches of apple and pear trees. The leaf spot form probably causes more damage than the other forms. Sometimes black rot cankers on the trunk, and the limbs develop so rapidly as to endanger the life of trees, but this is seldom the case except where spraying is wholly neglected. The fruit is rarely seriously injured, though outbreaks in this form may sometimes be quite severe.

The Sand Pear.

The sand pear is the only pear that is practically free from blight. It is a very rapid and continuous grower. It is a prolific bearer and requires less attention and will stand more abuse than any other fruit tree known. The sand pear comes into bearing at an early age, and at 10 years old ordinary trees will yield from 10 to 20 bushels of pears. The trees usually begin to bear at five years of age. The sixth year each tree will net 25 cents, the seventh year 50 cents, and the eighth year $1, the ninth year $2 and tenth year $4 per tree. By planting 24 feet apart 75 trees can be set to the acre. This would give a net return of $300 an acre the tenth year, which would be equal to a $5,000 investment at 6 per cent. This is a very conservative estimate. We have seen ten-year-old trees at different places which yielded from 10 to 20 bushels, and large trees which yielded from 30 to 50 bushels.

Ten acres of the sand pears at the above conservative estimate would bring $3,000 income, or equal to a $50,000 investment, at 6 per cent.

Care of Cows.

During the summer and other seasons when the weather is mild it is the custom on many farms to allow the cows to remain in the barn lot over night. Also, often this lot lies between the dwelling and the barn, in which case the area becomes very objectionable. The manure which accumulates in a lot where the cows spend the night soon becomes a nuisance, besides being wasted.

It is best either to stall the cows during mild weather or to turn them out to pasture at night after the milking is done. In the stalls the manure will not be scattered over large areas about the place, and will be in a position to be saved. If the cows are turned into the pasture for the night, the manure will be so far removed from the home that it will not be a nuisance, and it will be on the ground, where none of it will be wasted and where it will do the most good with the least amount of work.

If the cows are to be stalled during the entire year, the stable must be well ventilated, so the animals will not suffer with heat at night. This can be easily done by providing plenty of doors and windows. Keeping them stalled at times when they could be let out will make extra work in handling the manure, but the compensation comes in being able to keep the surroundings neat and sanitary and also in having the cows where you want them in the morning for milking.

Modern Farming.

The use of the most modern methods in farming is by no means restricted to the huge ranches of this country. In nearly every locality in the state farmers are using traction engines with steam or gasoline for power to plow and harrow their land. We know one ranch of 680 acres—not large for this state—on which the plowing and harrowing is done with a 20 horse-power gasoline engine. This hauls four 14-inch gang plows and a 2-horse harrow—the equivalent of the work of twenty horses. The distance traversed over tough soil is from two to two and a half miles an hour. One harrow is placed off to the side so that the result is a double harrowing of the tract. It was considered too small an area to warrant the initial expense for the machine, but the owners of the ranch are satisfied that it will save its cost in a few years. The time is coming when the tedium of farm work will be laid upon machinery.

An Adjustable Saw Buck.

An adjustable sawbuck which is shown herewith will commend itself, for holding logs or poles, to every reader who as to saw large or long logs. It is made by boring a 2-inch hole in two crotched logs and inserting a stout cross stick.—Farm and Home.

FOR HOLDING LOGS OR POLES.

Potatoes and Corn.

While there is much difference of opinion as to the rotation of crops on a medium heavy loam, we have had the best results from following corn with potatoes, always being careful to heavily manure the ground for the corn and not use any stable manure at all for the potato crop. By heavily manuring we mean giving the soil more than will be required by the corn and more than will be necessary to make good to the soil any reserve fertility the corn takes from it; in other words, so that there will be some of the virtue of the manure left for the benefit of the potatoes. For the latter crop we confine ourselves to an aplication of mixed fertilizer, consisting of sulphate ammonia, bone meal and sulphate of potash, applied at the rate of 800 pounds to the acre. There may be no objection to the use of stable manure for the potato crop, provided one can obtain it well rotted, but the fresh manure is a scab breeder and we never use it for potatoes.

A SMALL GREENHOUSE.

While most greenhouses are expensive to build and maintain, it is possible for an amateur to have one at small expense, as an addition to the dwelling. Hotbed sashes cost from $3.25 to $3.50 each, and measure 3x6 feet. If steam or hot water heating cannot be provided from the house, an oil stove will maintain a high enough temperature.

Maraschino Cherries.

Weigh the stemmed cherries, after removing the stones. To every two pounds of fruit make a sirup of a pound of sugar and a half-gill of water. Heat to boiling, stirring to prevent burning, and pour over the cherries while warm, but not hot. Stand for an hour, then put over the fire and heat very slowly. Boil for just five minutes, take out the cherries with a skimmer, and lay on platters, allowing the sirup to boil for twenty minutes more. To every five pounds of fruit allow a pint of maraschino, and add this to the sirup just before taking from the fire. Put the cherries in jars, fill to overflowing with the maraschino sirup and seal.

Fruit Cookies.

Cream one-half a cup of butter with one cup of sugar, beat two eggs very light and add them, then stir in four tablespoonfuls of sour milk into which has been beaten one-half a teaspoonful of baking soda. Mix together a cup of chopped raisins and one of chopped nuts, flour them and stir them into the batter with one-half teaspoonful of ground cloves and one teaspoonful of ground cinnamon. Fold in quickly two cups of flour and drop the mixture by spoonfuls on greased paper. Bake in a good oven.

A Novel Cranberry Pie.

Take a good-sized cupful of cranberries, cut them in two and put them in cold water to draw out the seeds. Mix a tablespoonful of flour with a cupful of sugar, and then add slowly a scant cupful of boiling water and half a cupful of raisins stoned and cut in two. Lift the cranberries out of the cold water, which should be thrown away, and mix them with the other ingredients. Bake between two crusts. Sometimes a teaspoonful of vanilla is added.

Renewing an Old Ice Box.

Scrub the zinc in your ice box and enamel it white, giving it a priming of ordinary white paint first. Then give the outside a coat of stain and varnish in any color you like. The material may be bought all prepared for about 20 cents at any paint store. I have a friend whose husband is in the ice-box business, and he says a housekeeper would do well to buy an ice box without any enamel and enamel it herself. It comes a few dollars cheaper.

Plum Pudding.

A plum pudding that is not overrich wants a cupful of chopped suet, a cupful of sour milk, a cupful of molasses, a cupful each of raisins and figs, minced fine, three cupfuls and a half of flour, two eggs, a teaspoonful of cloves, two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon, a grated nutmeg, a little salt and a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a little warm water. Fill a mold two thirds full with the mixture and steam three hours.

Shrimp and Tomato Salad.

Put boiled shrimps on ice until very cold. Strip the skin from large ripe tomatoes and scoop out the insides. Set these also in the ice to get chilled. Fill the hollowed tomatoes with the shrimps, set each tomato on a leaf of lettuce and pour mayonnaise dressing over all.

Macaroni and Mushrooms.

Break the contents of a small box of macaroni into pieces and boil until soft. Have ready a cup of stewed mushrooms and a cup of grated cheese. Put macaroni, cheese and mushrooms in layers in a buttered baking dish and bake until brown.

Breaded Sardines.

Drain the oil from large sardines and dip in cracker dust. Bake in good oven to a delicate brown, and transfer to strips of crustless toast. Squeeze a few drops of lemon juice on each sardine and serve, garnished with sprigs of parsley.

Peanut Sandwiches.

Cut white bread into very thin slices and remove all the crusts. Spread with peanut butter, and put the slices together in sandwich style. Cut the sandwiches into triangles or into rounds with a biscuit cutter.

Household Hints.

To revive a dying fire scatter on the embers a spoonful or two of granulated sugar.

Radiators will not be so conspicuous if enameled in a color to match the wall paper.

When rubbers look old, apply a coating of patent-leather shoe polish and they will be like new.

Finger-marks on doors can be removed with a rag dipped in paraffin. Afterward wash the door with a little hot water, and the smell will soon go off.

To cut hard jelly squares, use a perfectly clean pair of scissors dipped in cold water. Thus one can cut small pieces more easily than with a knife. Carefully clean and dry the scissors before putting them away.

Hominy given long cooking and served as a vegetable with butter is one of the standbys of North Carolina tables, being used in place of potato. The cereal is cooked in a double boiler for an hour or two.

Coffee stains, even when the coffee has been mixed with cream or milk, may be removed by rubbing the spots with pure glycerin. Rinse afterward in lukewarm water, and press on the wrong side of the fabric (either silk or wool may be so treated) with a warm iron.

To whiten handkerchiefs which have become discolored through careless washing, dissolve some pipe clay in warm water and leave them to soak in the solution all night. Next day wash and boil the handkerchiefs in the usual manner, and they will be wonderfully improved in appearance.

CAPTAIN THAT LOSES HIS SHIP.

Commander of Republic's Reason for Studies at Michigan 'Varsity.

The captain who loses his ship is likely to wait a long time before he gets another, even if investigation shows that he was not to blame, the Hartford Courant says. If he is censured he may as well hunt another job. Captain Inman Sealby, who was in command of the White Star line steamer Republic, that went down last January, following a collision with the Florida, may or may not lose his papers. That will depend upon the finding of the admiralty court. In the meantime he will be busy. He has just entered the University of Michigan as a freshman in the law school, and will make a specialty of admiralty law. It is possible that the question of responsibility for the loss of the Republic may require a long time for settlement. Already there has been much litigation, and it was this that first made Captain Sealby think about preparing to earn a living in admiralty practice. There is much law business of this sort in Detroit, and Ann Arbor, where he is attending lectures, is near Detroit. On the practical side he will have some advantage over most admiralty lawyers at the start. He knows the ocean and the ships as few land-lubbers, no matter how learned they may be in the law of the sea know them. He is 50 years old, and got his first command in 1893. He is a commander in the royal navy reserve, and still draws half pay as an employe of the White Star line. Captain Sealby will have as a fellow student at Ann Arbor Captain Irving Evans, who resigned the command of a steamship to enter the law school. Captain Evans will be an admiralty lawyer, too, and will graduate next June.

SHORT METER SERMONS.

Time is short; whatever your hand finds to do, do it with your might.—Rev. J. M. Weaver, Baptist, Louisville.

No matter how low a man may fall, if the rebound is toward God the man is blessed.—Rev. B. F. Riley, Baptist, Houston, Texas.

All authority is from God, and human rulers are only stewards of the Great Master.—Rev. J. L. Belford, Roman Catholic, Brooklyn.

A good deed for the sake of getting your name in the paper is not Christian charity.—Rev. W. H. Day, Congregationalist, Los Angeles.

A large part of enlightened Christendom has outgrown its formal orthodoxy and is consumed with spiritual hunger.—Rev. C. Fleisher, Hebrew, Boston.

The almost universal acceptance of the double standard of morals is perpetuating a great crime against posterity.—Rev. Z. H. Copp, Methodist, Washington.

The church is moving on to the possession of her inheritance, which will be as large as she is fitted for by the presence of the Spirit of God.—Rev. E. S. Lines, Episcopalian, Newark, N. J.

No worldly pleasure can or does satisfy, and no man can honestly say that he is entirely satisfied until he has found the satisfaction afforded in Christ.—Rev. Dr. Toy, Evangelist, Pawtucket, R. I.

The church is the conservatory of high qualities in character. It is not a ticket office for heaven, but a maker of character. The church prepares us for harmony with God.—Bishop J. H. Vincent, Methodist, Indianapolis.

The gentle traits, the modest qualities, the quiet tastes, the unobtrusive deeds, the unselfish attitude, the little attentions—it is just these little things which render our life fragrant.—Rev. A. S. Isaacs, Hebrew, Paterson, N. J.

The greatest need of the church today is workers for the Lord. We need Christians who will come in and go to work, and not sit down and complain about some one not making them welcome.—Rev. S. W. Smith, Baptist, Providence.

The way to God is through the mind of man. Each generation sets a higher standard of living, and therefore the mind of man should conceive and appreciate the high standard given us by God.—Rev. C. K. Carpenter, Methodist, Aurora, Ill.

Men do go to church, and in large numbers, and with sympathetic soul, when you give them something to go for, something that satisfies their highest intellects, their spiritual aspirations and needs.—Rev. K. B. Tupper, Baptist, Philadelphia.

The brazen frauds committed at the elections should be regarded with apprehension, for they are committed with not only the knowledge but at the instigation of some of our citizens, who are prominent in political and business circles.—Rev. R. E. Sykes, Universalist, Denver.

Little Economies.

Economies are current which
Are even practiced by the rich.
When they'd recoup
From losses into which they're drawn,
They very often feast upon
Terrapin soup.

The rich man only deems it sport
To take in sail when he is short
Of ready cash.
He often lives on frugal fare
And bids the thrifty chef prepare Venison hash.
—Washington Herald.

A Quick Return.

Mrs. A. (maliciously)—You were such a charming debutante, my dear, fifteen years ago.

Mrs. B.—Was I? I only remember you made such a lovely chaperon for me when I came out.—Boston Transcript.

It Was Not Sent.

Little Girl—I want a cake of soap.

Chemist—Have it scented?

Little Girl—No, I won't have it scented. I'll take it with me; we only live around the corner.—Scraps.

When some men eat pork they must feel like cannibals.

If You Cut Your Finger

would you take cod liver oil, or would you cleanse and bandage the wound? The most rational way to treat the diseases of women is to apply a local remedy. PISO'S TABLETS destroy disease germs, control inflammation and eradicate the disease itself. They are so clean and easy to use that they appeal to every woman who suffers from female trouble. They are an ideal home treatment. Let us prove it by sending you a week's trial free.

For sale by all druggists. Trial package and a treatise entitled "Causes of Diseases in Women" sent free on receipt of accompanying coupon. Write your name and address PLAINLY and address THE PISO COMPANY, DEPT. D., WARREN, PA.

Name .....
Post Office .....
State .....

An Exciting Ride.

In going over one of the mountain roads, on the way to the crest of the Andes, the traveler has need of steady nerves. A passage in "The Andean Land," by C. S. Osborn, describes the journey.

The road is narrow and rocky and rutty and steep, with no walls to speak of, except tumbledown ones that increase the danger by their false suggestion of safety, and in one place the wagon would fall two thousand feet if it should roll off the edge of the mountain.

The road has no graceful sweeps or round, easy curves as it takes its way up the Titanic heights, but rather it zigzags like the teeth of a saw, ascending in short stretches and doubling back at sharply acute angles, leaving very little room for a team and wagon to turn in when driven slowly and carefully and two abreast.

Now imagine, if you can, the horses driven madly in a gallop, no trot; that would be slow; but in quick, short, jerky jumps, such as the mustang-like animals would make under the saddle when pressed.

The short, high coach follows the caverting horses, jerking, careening and springing like a small boat sailing into a wildly chopped sea.

You perceive that the wheels are strong, and the springs, too, and the whole rig evidently intended for chariot racing.

The driver groans, yells, whistles shrilly, cracks his thick rawhide whip, lashes his horses, and does everything he knows that will inspire fear and induce speed.

All this you become accustomed to in a measure, on your dash up the narrow road, dug into and blown out of the giant ribs of the towering mountains.

This Will Interest Mothers.

Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for Children, cure Feverishness, Headache, Bad Stomach, Teething Disorders, Regulate the Bowels and Destroy Worms. They break up colds in 24 hours. Pleasant to take, and harmless as milk. They never fail. At all Druggists, 25c. Sample mailed FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Restrained by Politeness.

"Prisoner, have you any reasons to present why the sentence of the court should not be pronounced upon you?"

"No, your honor. I feel as if I should like to say a few words about the defense my lawyer put up for me but there are ladies present; you can go ahead with the sentence, your honor."

Due Regard for Appearance.

"Maria, this telephone call is for you. Mrs. Highmore wants to talk to you."

"Mrs. Highmore? Gracious! And I look like a fright! John, hold the wire a minute till I do up my hair!"

Hamlins Wizard Oil will knock the spots off a sore throat. It's use makes tonsilitis, quinsy and diphtheria impossible. It is simply great for the relief of all pain, soreness and inflammation.

Prefers to Wait.

"You should buy all your Christmas gifts now."

"That's what they say, but I'm not so sure of it. You see, I've made up my mind to give several of my friends a dozen eggs apiece—no matter what they cost—and I hate to think of buying 'em now."—Cleveland Plain Dealer

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take LAXATIVE BROMO Quinine Tablets. Druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. GROVE'S signature is on each box. 25c.

Sectional Prejudice.

"Have you any good apples to-day, Mr. Barlow?"

"Yes, we have some unusually fine Northern Spies."

"O, hang your northern spies!"

BREAK UP THAT COUGH

with Allen's Lung Balsam, the popular family remedy. It cures when other remedies fail. All dealers. 25c, 50c, $1.00 bottles.

A Real Danger.

"Gentlemen," said the president of the public service corporation, in his address to the stockholders, "it is my duty and pleasure to inform you that our balance sheet for the year now closing will show a highly satisfactory condition of affairs. We have added materially to our assets, and our profits have been such that we shall be able to declare a very handsome dividend. In fact, gentlemen," he added, lowering his voice, "our prosperity gives me some uneasiness. I cannot disguise or conceal from you an apprehension that J. Pierpont Morgan may have found it out and may be even now preparing to open his jaws and engulf this corporation in his capacious and insatiable maw!"

A dense silence ensued, and a thrill of horror ran through the assembly.

Well may we ask, "Who is safe these days?"—Chicago Tribune.

Skin Humor 25 Years.

"Cuticura did wonders for me. For twenty-five years I suffered agony from a terrible humor, completely covering my head, neck and shoulders, so even to my wife, I became an object of dread. At large expense I consulted the most able doctors far and near. Their treatment was of no avail, nor was that of the —— Hospital, during six months' efforts. I suffered on and concluded there was no help for me this side of the grave. Then I heard of some one who had been cured by Cuticura Remedies and thought that a trial could do no harm. In a surprisingly short time I was completely cured. S. P. Keyes, 147 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Oct. 12, '09."

Instructive Little Story.

Truth was lying at the bottom of a well.

"I like it down here," said Truth; "the water's fine."

But nobody paid any attention.

Whereupon Truth, disgusted, applied a short and ugly word to itself and kicked the bucket.—Chicago Tribune.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Maori Suffragettes.

Women of the Maori tribe of New Zealand are now appearing as features of the show at the Hippodrome in New York City, and as they are educated and cultivated persons, and have the right to full suffrage in their native land, they chose three delegates to represent them at Mrs. Pankhurst's lecture in Carnegie hall recently. They were Kiri Matao, widow of an old Maori chief; Waapi, a young political leader and a prohibitionist, and Drana, who is 21, and cast her vote for the Conservatives at the last election. Englishmen in New Zealand have extended to women all the rights they themselves have, and that Mrs. Pankhurst and the English suffragettes of all sorts ask for.—Springfield Republican.

Constipation causes and seriously aggravates many diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pellets. Tiny sugar-coated granules.

In Other Words——

"Yes, yes; I know McJeiff quite well. He maintains a public nuisance."

"Why, the worst thing I ever heard charged against him is that he's a glutton; he does nothing but eat and drink."

"Well, blame you, that's what I mean!"

If you wish beautiful, clear, white clothes, use Red Cross Ball Blue. Large 2oz package, 5 cents.

To Legalize Tipping.

While praiseworthy attempts are being made in London to minimize the tipping system, the Throne says, a movement has been started in Berlin to make the custom compulsory. The cafe waiters in the kaiser's capital have formed themselves into a union with the object of legalizing tipping. They have drawn up a scale of tips and passed resolutions to enforce it. If the order a customer gives in a restaurant amounts to 3 shillings he will be expected to tip the waiter to the tune of 12 per cent. If the order is more than 3 shillings the "kellner" will be content with a tip of 10 per cent. In the larger restaurants the waiter will be satisfied with a modest 8 per cent tip if the bill amounts to £5. The restaurant keepers protest against this tariff of tips, which they consider will interfere with their business, but the waiters refuse to give way.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

F. W. N. U. - - - - No. 1—1910

When writing to Advertisers please say you saw the Adv. in this paper.

We Give Away Absolutely Free of Cost

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in Plain English, or Medicine Simplified, by R. V. Pierce, M. D., Chief Consulting Physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute at Buffalo, a book of 1008 large pages and over 700 illustrations, in strong paper covers, to any one sending 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only, or, in French Cloth binding for 31 stamps. Over 680,000 copies of this complete Family Doctor Book were sold in cloth binding at regular price of $1.50. Afterwards, one and a half million copies were given away as above. A new, up-to-date revised edition is now ready for mailing. Better send NOW, before all are gone. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION

THE ONE REMEDY for woman's peculiar ailments good enough that its makers are not afraid to print on its outside wrapper its every ingredient. No Secrets—No Deception.

THE ONE REMEDY for women which contains no alcohol and no habit-forming drugs. Made from native medicinal forest roots of well established curative value.

JANUARY

0449

L1134

DeKalb County Herald

A. S. POWERS, Editor and Publisher

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

ONE YEAR, $1.50 SIX MONTHS, 75c THREE MONTHS, 40c

The Herald is entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, Butler, Indiana

Some Alcohol Questions

Is alcohol a tonic? No! Does it make the blood pure? No! Does it strengthen the nerves? No! Is Ayer's Sarsaparilla a tonic? Yes! Does it make the blood pure? Yes! Does it strengthen the nerves? Yes! Is it the only Sarsaparilla entirely free from alcohol? Yes! Ask your doctor about this non-alcoholic medicine. If he approves, your confidence will be complete. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Dull boys! Dull girls! Dull men! Dull women! Heavy-headed! Downhearted! All very often due to constipation! Yet the cure is so easy.—Ayer's Pills. Ask your doctor.

Editorial Notes

Average Wages in United States

The reports of the United States Labor commissioner for the year 1909 give the number of persons in gainful occupation as 29,000,000. Henry Laren Call, an economist, gives the number of wage earners as 18,000,000 and wages paid to them $5,600,000,000, an average wage of a trifle over $3.00 per year. Mr. Call also says that the indetedness per capita for both national and private amounts to $3.75; this is scarcely amazing that the outstanding indebtedness amount to more than the yearly wage of the 18,000,000 wage earners.

The wage earners who receive the largest wagest are the diamond cutters with $21.68 a week.

The lowest wage paid is that received by the children, the enormous sum of $1.84 per week.

The lowest wages paid to men is $5.23 per week in the turpentine business industry of the South. The net lowestwage is that recieved by women in the grading, roasting and cleaning peanuts $2.26

What is a Leg Worth?

The cold-bloodedness, the heart-hardening, marbleizing influence of our modern, strenuous, selfish civilization which worships the dollar is even influencing our courts of justice. Recently a verdict against the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, awarding a poor girl $8,500 for the loss of a leg in a railroad accident, was set aside by a supreme court justice on the ground that the verdict failed to give due weight to the skill with which mechanical surgery now adapts artificial limbs.

This justice thinks that juries in rendering their verdict for damages in cases of mutilation, due to the criminal negligence of public service or other corporations, should take into consideration the great convenience and comfort of cork legs! In this instance, he took the money away from this poor mutilated girl and returned it to the corporation.

I wonder what this honorable gentleman would be willing to take for one of his legs, in case it was cut off in a railroad accident? If he got a verdict for $8,500 and a supreme judge set it aside because the amount was too much, what would he think about it?

Now as everyone knows, it is much worse for a girl to lose a leg than for a man, for a mutilated man is much better able to earn a livelihood than a mutilated woman, and stands a much better chance in life in every way.

Is $8,500 too much to compensate a girl for going through life thus mutilated? Is this compensation too high for a girl who is obliged to hobble around on one leg all her life?

We are certainly in need of lessons in kindness when a supreme court justice dares to give expression to such sentiments.

The high price of nearly everything that one eats is producing an agitation throughout the land. There is no state, town or community in which the subject is not felt and discussed. It may well be a matter of popular concern, for within the memory of an overwhelming majority of people now living, the cost of food stuffs to the consumer have well nigh doubled. It is said and believed that the original producer is getting but little more for the products of the farm, the truck garden, the orchard, and the dairy than he did years ago. Various causes are given or guessed for the increased cost to the consumer. Great quantities of food are held in cold storage elevators and otherwise for increased prices. The commission merchants and green grocers are coming in for a deal of criticism. The Secretary of Agriculture says that there are too many grocers. Senator Dolliver says that too many men and women are living in the cities, and all say that this country through extravagance and prosperity has encouraged high prices and wastefulness until the means of life are more difficult here than in those countries that we once referred to with pity and contempt as the "effete monarchies."

A Frightful Wreck

of train, automobile or buggy may cause cuts, bruises, abrasions, sprains or wounds that demand Bucklen's Arnica Salve—earth's greatest healer. Quick relief and prompt cure results. For burns, boils, sores of all kinds, eczema chapped hands and lips, sore eyes or corns, it's supreme. Surest pile cure. 25c at Stone's drug store. 1-1m

Encourage the Teachers

All good parents desire to see their children grow to man and womanhood with a good character, definiteness of purpose, and a capability of entering into the battle of life with a dertermination to win. They send their children to school, to educate with this purpose in veiw, shifting all of the responsibility upon the teache,s.

Do you, as a parent, ever think what you are asking of this teacher? Do you take an interest in their effort with your offspring? Do you extend words of encouragement or compliment upon their success? Do you ever visit the school room and enthuse yourself with the welfare of your children? Do you aid the teachers by trying to instil in the young minds a few fundamental considerations, often more easily secured at home than in the school room and more to the purpose to train the mind to a logical power, and apprehension?

Do not criticise the teachers without weighing each problem that confronts you thoroughly; mingle with and sympathize with them, let their work meet with words ofencouragement and if satisfied with their effort don't be reluctant in saying so.—Exchange.

On the 8th of January—Jackson Day—U. S. Jackson was for the second time elected chairman of the democratic state committee He was chosen by acclamation, without a dissenting vote, and the action thus taken gave emphasis to the harmony that prevails among the democrats of the state. Mr. Jackson has given faithful service to his party and the people in many public capacities. Before he was made chairman two years ago he had been an active and valued member of the state committee. There is no part of the organization work with which he is not perfectly familiar. As chairman during the strenuous campaign of 1908, in which such a large measure of success was won for the party, Mr. Jackson was sleepless and indefatigable. He pursued the unusual course of personally visiting every section of the state, carrying with him both instruction and cheer. The result was a compact, aggressive and enthusiastic organization, a never-say-die fighting force that planted the democractic banner where it had not waved for many years. Mr. Jackson ability and experience will make him an invincible leader of the 1910 campaign. He has at his back one of the best—if, indeed, it is not really the best—committee ever chosen by the democracy of the state. Between the chairman and the members of the committee there will be at all times perfect understanding and united action. The party is to be congratulated that its affairs are in such loyal and capable hands. The success won in 1908 should not only be repeated, but should be enlarged to the end that the democrats may have full power to correct abuses wherever they have crept into the government.

DOWNWARD COURSE

Fast Being Realized By Butler People

A little backache at first.
Daily increasing till the back is lame and weak.
Urinary disorders quickly follow;
Diabetes and finally Bright's disease.
This is the downward course of kidney ills.

Don't take this course. Butler residents should profit by the following experience.

Grant Crary, 2027 LaFayette, St., Fort Wayne, Ind., says: "I have been relieved of a great deal of suffering by Doan's Kidney Pills. Some months ago I was suddenly taken with severe pains across the small of my back and soon my hands and feet began to swell, in fact, my whole body bloated. For some time I could not stoop to fasten my shoes and when my feet became swollen and inflamed, I grew alarmed. Fortunately I read about Doan's Kidney Pills when in this condition and I procured a box. After using this remedy a short time my trouble disappeared and I am now in good health."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. 3-2

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

SELF-ENCOURAGEMENT BY SUGGESTION

When we have the "blues" or are suffering from disappointment of any kind, we are apt to think that there is not much we can do but grin and bear it until the discouragement has run its course and the suffering ceases.

It is not necessary, however, for anyone to suffer tortures from disappointment or discouragement, for there is a remedy right inside of us for the worst fit of the "blues," the keenest disappointment. Any person who wishes can, by a little scientific training of his thought, completely change his whole mental attitude in a short time by substituting for the suggestion which pains him, troubles him, which brought on the "blues," its opposite.

We can antidote our own troubles in the same way that we antidote those of others, in the same way in which we encourage others.

The next time you feel the "blues" coming on, or a fit of depression or despondency, just get by yourself becomingly, and give yourself a good talking to. Talk to yourself in the same dead-in-earnest way that you would to your own child or a dear friend who was deep in the mire of despondency, suffering tortures from melancholy. Drive out the black, hideous pictures which haunt your mind. Sweep away all depressing thoughts, suggestions, all the rubbish that is troubling you. Let go everything that is unpleasant, all the mistakes, all the disagreeable past; just rise up in arms against the enemies of your peace and happiness, summon all the force you can muster and drive them out. Resolve that you are going to be happy, that you are going to enjoy the day no matter what happens. Just say to yourself, "This is an abnormal condition. Harmony is the everlasting fact. Discord must be an unreality, an absence of harmony, the reality." After a little practice of this sort you will be able to clear your mental sky of all clouds and keep it clear; keep your mind free from your enemies.

Call for Township and County Caucuses

The democrats of DeKalb county will meet in their respective townships at their usual places of holding caucuses (except Wilmington No. 6, which will meet at school house in Mooresville) on Saturday, January 22, 1910, at 1:30 p. m., for the purpose of electing a committeeman for each precinct in their township for the ensuing two years.

Said committeemen so selected to meet at Auburn, Ind., at Old Armory hall on Thursday, January 27, 1910, at 1:30 p. m., for the purpose of electing a chairman, vice chairman, secretary and treasurer of the Democratic County Central Committee for ensuing two years.

Dated at Auburn, Indiana, January 10, 1910.

MILES BAXTER, Chairman.
E. O. LITTLE, Secretary. 2-2

Avoid Harsh Drugs

Many Cathartics Tend to Cause Injury to the Bowels

If you are subject to constipation, you should avoid strong drugs and cathartics. They only give temporary relief and their reaction is harmful and sometimes more annoying than constipation. They in no way effect a cure and their tendency is to weaken the already weak organs with which they come in contact.

We honestly believe that we have the best constipation treatment ever devised. Our faith in it is so strong that we sell it on the positive guarantee that it shall not cost the user a cent if it does not give entire satisfaction and completely remedy constipation. This preparation is called Rexall Oderlies. These are prompt, soothing and most effective in action. They are made of a recent chemical discovery. Their principal ingredient is odorless, tasteless and colorless. Combined with other well known ingredients, long established for their usefulness in the treatment of constipation, it forms a tablet which is eaten just like candy. They may be taken at any time, either day or night, without fear of their causing any inconvenience whatever. They do not gripe, purge nor cause nausea. They act without causing any pain or excessive looseness of the bowels. They are ideal for children, weak, delicate persons and aged people as well as for the most hearty person.

They come in two size packages, 12 tablets 10 cents, 36 tablets 25 cents. Remember you can obtain them only at our store—The Rexall Store. Geo. W. Geddes. 1t

RAILWAY MAIL CLERKS WANTED

The Government Pays Railway Mail Clerks $800 to $1,200, and Other Employees Up to $2,500 Annually

Uncle Sam will hold spring examinations throughout the country for Railway Mail Clerks, Custom House Clerks, Stenographers, Bookkeepers, Departmental Clerks and other Government Positions. Thousands of appointments will be made. Any man or woman over 18, in City or Country can get Instruction and free information by writing at once to the Bureau of Instruction, 115 E Hamlin Building, Rochester, N. Y. 52-8m

HANS WAGNER.

The Way the Great Star Got His First Baseball Job.

"The career of Wagner in baseball has been interesting," says Hugh S. Fullerton in the American Magazine. "He was reared in Carnegie, Pa., before it was Carnegie, and he and his brothers played the game there. John—I wonder how many admirers of Honus, or Hans, know his name is John P.—was not a good player as a boy. The brothers thought he was a bit too awkward and barred him except when he wanted to pitch. His arms were tremendously long, and they assert around his home that when he was a 'kid' and his legs were even more bowed than they are now he could walk along and pick up apples without stooping. That immense length of arm has been one of the physical advantages that have gone to make him the greatest of all players. Besides, he has shoulders almost as wide as his arms are long, and he could throw a ball with terrific speed. Because he could throw so hard all the other boys boasted no catcher could hold John and thereupon made him pitcher.

"Presently Al, who was John's older brother, became a professional player and got a job playing third base for a team at Steubenville, O. George Moreland, who now is the chief baseball statistician of the country, was seized with a mania for owning and managing teams, and he had bought the Steubenville club and hired Al Wagner. Moreland needed a pitcher in the summer of 1895 and could not find one to complete his pitching staff until Al Wagner came to him and said, 'Why don't you give my brother John a chance?' 'Can he pitch?' asked Moreland. 'I don't know,' replied Al. 'But it won't cost much for you to find out.'

"Honus was playing on the lots around Carnegie, and Moreland wrote, asking him if he would sign a contract to pitch for Steubenville, and the second day thereafter there came a postal card on which was written: 'Yes. When do you want me?'

"Wagner ignored the salary question entirely, and Moreland called Al into consultation. 'What will your brother want?' he asked. 'Oh, anything will suit him,' replied Al.

"The salary limit of the Steubenville team was $800 a month, and Moreland was within $35 of the limit set by the league, so he wrote offering John Wagner $35 a month to pitch for him. The following day came another laconic card: 'All right. Will accept.'

"Moreland telegraphed Wagner to report immediately and wired a railroad order for transportation. The telegram was sent at 8 o'clock in the morning, and the first train leaving Pittsburg for Steubenville started at noon, reaching Steubenville at about 1:30. Shortly before 1 o'clock Claude Ritchey, who was playing his first professional engagement, said, 'Here comes the big Dutchman,' and Hans Wagner, covered with cinders, sauntered up to begin his baseball career."

Goethe and the Canals.

"Among all the anecdotes and stories which the fortieth anniversary of the completion of the Suez canal has called forth no mention seems to have been made of Goethe's prophetic words on the subject," says a writer in a Vienna paper. "On July 21, 1827, Goethe said to Eckermann: 'So much is certain: If a channel could be cut through the isthmus of Panama broad enough and deep enough to allow the passage of ships from the Mexican waters to the Pacific the whole world would be greatly benefited. I should like to see this, but fear I shall not live long enough. I should like also to see the English build a canal at Suez, but would probably have to live another fifty years.'" The canal became a fact forty-two years after Goethe prophesied it.—Exchange.

Animal Immigrant Disliked.

If the English sparrow could read what is now said against him the retort that the American gray squirrel is the object of quite as much protest in England would be in order. A few years ago a titled Englishman imported several pairs of gray squirrels from this country to give more animation to his woodlands. The American squirrel became fashionable, and the first colony was succeeded by many others. Now the complaint is heard that the gray coats are driving out the good old fashioned British brown squirrel and altogether deporting themselves with a strenuousness shocking to the best traditions. They are declared to be more belligerent than their British kin, fiercer and more un-

Chased By the Indians

An amusing anecdote is related by the advance agent of "The Moonshiner's Daughter" Company which plays at the opera house on Thursday evening, Jan. 27, concerning Miss Mary Carew, the leading woman of the above company.

The company recently played Tama, Iowa, near which is situated a large Indian reservation. Miss Carew who is an enthusiastic amateur photographer and who is never without her camera, induced several members of the company, including Mr. Bailey, who plays her father in the play, to accompany her on the two mile jaunt to the reservation.

Upon arriving there Miss Carew immediately commenced operations by posing two little redskins upon a barrel in front of a tepee. While thus engaged with the rest of the party, she did not notice that Mr. Bailey had moved across the field to where an old Indian sat upon a rickety fence smoking a pipe and watching the proceedings with an interested eye; nor did she see him enter into conversation with the same old Indian and slip him a bright dollar into the Indian's outstretched hand, after which he left the Indian and rejoined the party.

By this time the two little papooses had been "snapped" and Miss Carew, in search of fresh subjects, happened to spy the Indian on the fence.

"That Indian there," said Mr. Bailey pointing to the old fellow, "is Chief Big Mouth," and he is over one hundred years old.

"Oh, I must snap him! Come on everybody!" cried Miss Carew. They had hardly started, when the old Indian with a blood curdling whoop, jumped down from the fence, grabbed up an old axe, which he brandished around his head, and took after them.

It is needless to say that they ran; ran as they never ran before, across the fields, over fences, and down the railroad tracks towards Tama, Miss Carew in the lead, with Mr. Bailey, who is somewhat stout, puffing and panting in the rear.

By the time they reached the hotel they were tired and angry, so angry in fact that Mr. Bailey decided that "Silence" upon his part would be "Golden".

During the play that night, Miss Carew noticed an old Indian sitting in the front row, but did not suspect that he was the one who was responsible for the stampede that afternoon. During the last act, when all the characters in the play were on the stage, the old Indian created consternation by stepping up to the footlights and handing Miss Carew a beautiful silver bracelet of curious Indian design saying, "Injun give little Fast Wind present." Then pointing to the astonished Mr. Bailey said: "White man give Injun money to scare little Fast Wind. Good joke for white man. Old man heap fat, run too, shake fat off. Good joke for Injun." The old fellow returned to his seat while the hearty laugh, in which the audience joined, was on Mr. Bailey. Mr. Carew wears the bracelet to this day declaring that it has brought good luck ever since that memorable two mile run.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a very valuable medicine for throat and lung troubles, quickly relieves and cures painful breathing and a dangerously sounding cough which indicates congested lungs. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

NEW YORK CLIPPER

IS THE GREATEST THEATRICAL & SHOW PAPER IN THE WORLD.

$4.00 Per Year. Single Copy, 10 Cts.

ISSUED WEEKLY.

SAMPLE COPY FREE.

FRANK QUEEN PUB. CO. (Ltd), PUBLISHERS, 47 W. 28TH ST., NEW YORK.

ALBERT J. BORIE, MANAGER.

HORSE SALE

OUR NEXT BIG HORSE SALE OF THE SEASON WILL BE HELD AT THE CENTRAL LIVERY AND SALE STABLE 111 NORTH LYNN STREET BRYAN OHIO

Wednesday, January 26th

Auction Promptly At 1:00 Oclock

75 to 100 Head of Horses

DESCRIPTION: Draft Horses, Farm Chunks, Brood Mares Drivers And Actors, Weighing from 1000 to 1800 Pounds

At our last sale we sold our buyers good horses at prices that were right

This offering is equal if not a better lot of Horses than the last one

Our business has greatly increased in the last year, which shows that the peoplr are beginning to appreciate good horses when a good guarantee goes with them.

Don't be afraid of not sesing some good ones if you attend our sales for we have the goods as represented and we are not afraid to sell them.

Come where you can buy the right kind of horses. All good snappy ones fresh from the country.

J. A. Elder

Notice to Non-Residents

State of Indiana, } SS:
County of DeKalb, }

In the DeKalb County Circuit Court, March Term, 1910.

Milton E. Anthony
vs.
Sarah Ann Rohrbaugh, et al.

Notice is hereby given to the following named defendants in the above entitled cause, Reuben G. Dannells Rachel Rohrbaugh, wife of James M' Rohrbaugh, Charles N. Rohrbaugh, Ann R. Rohrbaugh, wife of Charles N Rohrbaugh, Christopher C. Rohrbaugh, Jennie Rohrbaugh, wife of Christopher C. Rohrbaugh, whose true christian name is unknown to plaintiff Benjamin F. Rohrbaugh, Hanah Rohrbaugh, wife of Benjamin F. Rohrbaugh whose true christian name is unknown to plaintiff; Solomon C. Rohrbaugh, Sarah E. Rohrbaugh, Rosa B. Rohrbaugh, Mahalia A. Rohrbaugh, Alice V. Rohrbaugh, Lewis Wagoner, guardian of Solomon C. Rohrbaugh, Ann Rohrbaugh wife of Charles N. Rohrbaugh.

The children, descendants and heirs, the surviving spouse, the creditors of the estate, the devisees, legatees, trustees and executors of the last will and testament and the survivers in interest respectively of each of the following named and designated deceased persons, to wit: James M. Rohrbaugh, Thomas C. Rohrbaugh, Rosa B. Rohrbaugh, Mahalia A. Rohrbaugh, Alice V. Rohrbaugh, the names of whom are all unknown to plaintiff.

The children, descendants and heirs, the surviving spouse, the creditors of the estate, the devisees, legatees, trustees and executors of the last will and testament and the survivers in interest of the deceased widow of each of the following named and designated deceased persons, to-wit: James N. Rohrbaugh, Thomas C. Rohrbaugh.

All of the women once known by any of the names and designations above named who may have changed their names and who are known by some other name, the names of whom are unknown to plaintiff.

The spouses of all the persons above named and designated, the names o whom are unknown to plaintiff are each non-residents of the state of Indiana and the residence of each is unknown to plaintiff and upon diligent inquiry cannot be ascertained and said defendants are therefore hereby notified of the filing and pendancy of said complaint against them for the purpose of quieting title to certain real estate described in plaintiff's complaint, situated in DeKalb county and state of Indiana and to discharge liens and cancel of record certain mortgages and liens thereon and to make partition of said lands and that unless they appear and answer or demur there to at the calling of said case on the 7th day of March, 1910, the same being the 1st juridical day of the March, 1910, term of the DeKalb county circuit court to be begun, held and continued at the court house at Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, commencing on the 7th day of March, 1910 next, said complaint and the matters and things therein contained and alleged will be taken as true and said cause will be heard and determined in their absence.

Witness the clerk and seal of said court this 4th day of January, 1910.

W. A. AUSTIN,
Clerk of DeKalb Circuit Court.
E. B. DUNTEN, Att'y. 1-4

Notice of Appointment of Executor

State of Indiana, DeKalb County, ss: I, W. A. Austin, clerk of the DeKalb circuit court, for the county o DeKalb, in the state of Indiana, do hereby certify that Frank Creager has been appointed executor of the last will and testament of Sarah Casey late of DeKalb county, deceased who died testate. And the said Frank Creager having qualified and given bond as such executor is duly authorized to take upon himself the execution of said will.

Witness my hand and the seal of said court, this 4th day of January, 1910.

W. A. AUSTIN,
Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court.
E. B. DUNTEN, Att'y. for Estate. 1-4

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in the estate of John Henry Secor deceased, to appear in the De Kalb circuit court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 24th day of January, 1910, and show cause, if any, why my final settlement accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness, my name, this 3rd day of January, 1910.

JOHN J. OBERLIN,
Administrator.
C. J. COATS, Att'y. for Estate. 1-3

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in the estate of Elizabeth Ann Secor deceased, to appear in the DeKalb circuit court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 24th day of January, 1910, and show cause, if any, why my final settlement accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness, my name, this 3rd day of January, 1910.

JOHN J. OBERLIN,
Administrator.
C. J. COATS, Att'y. for Estate. 1-3

C. J. Simon, Memphis

Very often young people, at an age when they should be in the prime of health, suffer from chronic constipation, and nothing seems to help them. It was so with Mr. C. J. Simon, of Memphis, Tenn., until he took Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and now he is permanently cured. It will also cure indigestion, heartburn, flatulency, sick headache, sour stomach, etc. It is absolutely guaranteed to do what is claimed, and if you want to try it before buying, send your address for a free sample bottle to Pepsin Syrup Co., 119 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1 a bottle. 1-1m

WE CARRY A COMPLETE LINE OF

Keen Kutter Goods

Keen Cutter Axes, Cross Cut Saws, Keen Kutter Buck Saws, Files, etc., and a full line of

KEEN KUTTER TOOLS

The recollection of quality remains long after the price is forgotten. True to all Keen Kutter Tools and Cutlery. All Keen Kutter Goods are guaranteed by us.

Gengnagel & Son

FASHION PLATES NOW IN

And we are ready for the fal business.

We do all kinds of button covering for the ladies'.

Cleaning and repairing on short notice.

Edward May

Reliable Tailor

Exclusive Right FOR Lowney's Candies

For the city of Butler direct from the factory

Quality and freshness GUARANTEED

Fresh Oysters

George Stout

O. W. HINER, V. M. D., M. F.

Veterinary Surgeon and Dentist

All calls promptly answered day or night

OFFICE AT RESIDENCE

HOME PHONE 21

For His Sake

"My husband begged me to take Cardui," writes Mattie L. Bishop, of Waverly, Va., "and for his sake I agreed to try it. Before I had taken 1 bottle, I felt better. "Before taking Cardui I suffered miserably every month and had to go to bed until it wore off, but now I am all right."

E 50

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

You know Cardui will help you, because it has helped others who were in the same fix as you. It is not only a medicine for sick women, but a tonic for weak women. Being made from mild, gentle, vegetable ingredients, it is perfectly harmless and has no bad after-effects. Cardui can be relied upon to help you. Try it today. At all druggists.

This is the trade-mark which is found on every bottle of the genuine

Scott's Emulsion

the standard Cod Liver Oil preparation of the world. Nothing equals it to build up the weak and wasted bodies of young and old.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send 10c., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each bank contains a Good Luck Penny.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., N. Y.

WABASH

No 2—Express	6:48 a. m
No 28—Mail	9:03 a. m
No. 6—Toledo Mail & Exp	5:12 p. m
No. 78—Local Freight	9:50 a. m
WEST BOUND
No. 9—Fast Mail	4:29 a. m.
No. 11—Ft. Wayne Mail & Exp	10:16 a. m.
No. 3—Express	8:17 p. m.
No. 79—Local Freight	2:04 p. m.

All trains daily except Local Freights.

O. C. WATERMAN, Agent, Butler, Ind.

If your grocers can not satisfy you with their bread? Try the

Home Bakery

The best tasting bread in the city. has no equal. Bread 4c a loaf.

Anton Panhuysen

REAL ESTATE

We have some splendid farms and other excellent properties or investment.

We have the Thompson Opera House for sale and many other properties in Butler.

Farms from 40 to 160 acres. It will pay you to see us before buying. We are in the business to stay and are able to place you right.

Wilcox & Creager

JANUARY

0450

L1134

For A Cold or Grip

TRY

Nyals Laxacold

Every Box Guaranteed

For Rheumatism

Nyals Rheumatic Cure

AT

PHILLIPS' DRUG STORE

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

Mrs. Marion Knepper is on the sick list.

Leslie Tappen and wife and Miss Grayce Winn spent Sunday at Hamilton.

Roy Apt is on the sick list with tonsilitis.

Mrs. Jerry McClintock is slowly improving.

Robert Albertson has been on the sick list this week.

John W. Brown spent Monday in Auburn on business.

Rev. Braden and wife are moving to Edon, Ohio, this week.

The First National bank solicits your fire insurance. tf

Miss Ethel Scott spent Sunday with her sister near Hicksville.

Mrs. Frank Reynolds, Sr., has been seriously ill for several days.

Attorney C. J. Coats transacted legal business at Auburn Monday.

Miss Lizzie Day, of Hamilton, was the guest of friends here Sunday.

Dudley Weber, of Montpelier, spent Sunday with relatives in this city.

Fred Briggs will sell you cement blocks cheaper than anyone else. tf

Mrs. Della Barnes is spending a few days with Cloid Snyder and wife, north of town.

Miss Grace Blaker visited over Sunday with Miss Hazel Seltenrigh, west of town.

For up-to date picture framing at reasonable prices call on Eugene Treesh. 2-2

Guy Firestone has been chosen assistant secretary of the Butler Basket Co.

Mrs. Elizabeth Delvin has been quite ill for the past week. Herson, George, is caring for her.

George Mochamer and wife were the guests of John Boyd and wife at Mooresville Sunday.

Little Margaret Wagoner, of Auburn, is visiting her grandparents, Chas. Wagoner and wife.

Simon Johnson will have a public sale on February 1. He expects to move on a farm near Chicago.

Mrs. R. N. Steury and son, Maori, of Fort Wayne, were the guests of relatives here over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fanning, of Auburn, spent the latter part of last week with Charley Madden and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sturgis and children spent Sunday at Kendallville the guests of his brother, George Sturgis and wife.

Luther Bryan has purchased a home on West Main street, near the basket factory, and will occupy the same in the spring.

Mrs. A. S. Kester went to Bryan Wednesday to visit her daughter, Mrs. Dallas Hollinger, who has been under the care of a doctor for sometime.

Mrs. McCaffery and granddaughter, Jennie Wimbaugh, of Fort Wayne, were the guests of Martin Heffelfinger and wife Sunday.

George Wagner was called to Fremont, Ind., on Monday by an accident to Mrs. Chambers, his wife's mother, who fell and broke a limb.

Deputy Sheriff John Hoff, of Auburn, was in the city Monday. We understand he had a number of warrants for our Butler boys.

The HERALD would like to secure a correspondent at or near Troy. Stamps and stationery furnished, also a copy of the paper sent to correspondent free.

During the cold weather Jeff N. Boyle set a bottle of frozen ink on the stove at his office to thaw out, and forgetting the same, it came to a boiling point, the steam forced the cork out and forced most of the ink upon the ceiling of the room.

A sled load of Royal Neighbors, with Dan Keller as driver, drove to the beautiful country home of Chas. Thorpe's, near Newville, last Sunday afternoon. A six-o'clock dinner was served to which all did ample justice and the evening hours soon sped merrily by. The company included Dan Keller and family, Mrs. M. Diehl, Mrs. S. Robinett, Caroline Devore, Dora Richard, Clara Alwood, Mrs. E. Bryan, Mrs. G. Benner, Fay Moughler, Bessie Gearhart, Emma Countryman, Lizzie Furney, Stella Swift and May Latson.

Dr. Acker is slowly improving.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

See Fred Briggs for cement blocks. tf

M. F. Long spent the forepart of the week in Fort Wayne.

Charley Campbell spent Wednesday at Garrett on business.

Frank Lyons and family spent Sunday in the country with his parents.

Sunday dinners at the Cottage hotel only 25 cents. Give us a call. 2-tf

Mrs. C. E. Dempsey spent last Tuesday in Auburn the guest of friends.

Mrs. Jerome Brown was hostess to the Priscilla club Thursday afternoon.

Miss Flossie Lint, of LaGrange, was the Sunday guest of Miss Ethel Preston.

Little Miss McDonald Kinsey, of St. Joe, is here the guest of Jud Gee and family.

Will Craun and family will occupy the Frank Lyons house on East Oak street.

Springs and mattresses are a necessity. If in need of any call on Eugene Treesh. 2-2

W. D. Boyle is improving, and it is hoped that he will be on the streets in a few days.

Mrs. Hazel Peckhart, of Auburn, spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Jake Showalter.

If you want to send money away buy a New York draft of the First National bank. tf

Mrs. E. Haley and Miss Zella Rush spent Monday in the country with Mrs. Maxwell.

Mrs. Chas. Adams, north of town, spent the latter part of last week with Mrs. Boon Madden.

Mrs. Geo. Geddes and daughter, Leta, are spending the week at Toledo the guests of friends.

Charley Wagoner, wife and sons were the guests of C. L. Wagoner and family at Auburn Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Dempsey entained Henry DeBelius and family to six o'clock dinner, Sunday.

A crowd from the Church of God spent Sunday afternoon with Ozro Treman and wife, west of the city.

Mrs. Frank Needham and daughter Marguerite returned home, Sunday, after spendetg the week intWaterloo.

J. D. Craun and family and George Bechtel and family spent Sunday with Peter Bechtel and wife in the country.

John Searfoss spent a few days the latter part of the week with his brother, Wm. Searfoss, in the country.

Miss Thelma Gee returned to her home at Kendallville, Sunday, after a week's visit with relatives here and at St. Joe.

C. J. Coats has an 80 acre farm he will trade for a smaller piece. If he cannot do this, will take Butler city property in exchange. tf

WANTED—50 ladies and gentlemen at once at McGuire's Telegraph School, Edgerton, O. Good positions furnished when competent. tf

Ladies shampoo and massage. First class barber work and baths. West side Broadway, Tomlinson's old stand. Give us a call. M. J. Harrigan, Prop.

Prof. Sturgis came home Friday for a few days visit with his family. He will soon leave for a five months tour of the Pacific coast in company with a noted evangelist.

The little city of New Haven, in Allen county, is $14,000 in debt, and the local papers say it is because as a town they fail to live within their means.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Coll entertained Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Norford, Mr. and Mrs. Ora Hiner and daughter, Esther, and Miss Veta Oberlin at dinner Sunday.

W. C. Tomlison, who has been spending the winter in Northern Michigan, is home for a few days. He expects to return to that place and make it his future home.

"The Moonshiner's Daughter," something away from the ordinary, will be seen at the opera house, Thursday evening, Jan. 27. It is a play dealing with life in the mountains of Kentucky.

Attorney W. W. Sharpless, of Garrett, who two weeks ago was a candidate for district chairman, has announced that he will be a candidate for the county chairmanship and his name will go before the convention at Auburn.

John Seagley, of Stroh, was in the city last Friday and Saturday inspecting the famous Butler buggies. He purchased a car load for the trade in his territory the coming summer. Mrs. Seagley accompanied him and visited over Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Lower.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Hind, who have resided in Butler since August and have been engaged in the renovating business, will move to Auburn where they will continue to carry on the business. They have proven themselves estimable people, worthy of the confidence of the public. The Herald wishes Mr. Hind and family success.

A merry party of young people, chaperoned by Mrs. H. Aldrich, drove to the beautiful country home Mr. and Mrs. J. Christoffel, southwest of Butler, last Saturday evening, encountering many mishaps on the way, but arriving all safe at last. The evening was spent in games and social chat, after which an oyster supper was served. At a late hour all departed for their homes wishing Mr. and Mrs. Christoffel royal entertainers.

The Crystal Palase opened Thursday evening.

R. Borden, who is working at Elkhart, was home Sunday.

C. W. Webster of route 2 was reported on the sick list Tvesday.

Pay your bills by check. Deposit with the First National bank. tf

Mrs. Jim Grindle spent Sunday at Auburn the guest of relatives.

Miss Ester Read returned home Tuesday from several weeks visit in Marion.

John Rohrbaugh, of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday visiting in this vicinity.

George Shepard of Auburn was the guest of J. C. Coats and family, Tuesday.

Miss Tinnie Fetterhoff of Elkhart is the guests of Mrs Lee Diehl a few days.

Margaret Vernier was ill last week with jaundice and unable to attend school.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Dunten were at Toledo last Thursday and Friday on business.

Will sell one lot only, now cheap. you will pay more later. W. C. Tomlinson. 3-tf

Mrs. Elizabeth Cannon spent Tuesday in the country with Jim Firestone and wife.

Furniture can be chosen from catalogue. Any one in doubt call on Eugene Treesh. 2-2

Rev. Davis will preach at Jerusalem next Sunday morning and at Zion in the evening.

Subscribe for Every Where, Will Carlton's magazine. $1 per year at this office. tf

Quite a number of the K of P's attended the district meeting at Garrett, Wednesday.

Harold Tess, who is attendin g school at Crawfordsville, has been sick but is slightly improved.

Clayton Weaver and Charles McIntyre, of Auburn, were the guests of Bob White Sunday.

George Oberlin and family, of Newville, were the guests of L. J. Diehl and wife Sunday.

Mrs. C. W. Ernest and son, Edward, of Peru, spent Sunday with her parents, D. B. Croninger and wife.

Levi Showalter and wife, from north of Waterloo, have moved on the farm with Wesley Showalter and family.

FOR TRADE:—An improvdd twenty acre tract of land in Michigan. Value about fifteen hundred dollars. Want Butler property. Wallace C. Webster.

Miss Viola Richards and Frank Lehner of Kendallville were guests of Mr. and Mrs R. E. Preston Tuesday.

Burl Haverstock and wife and McDonald Kinsey spent Monday in the country with J. Haverstock and wife.

W. R. Craun, who expects to move to Butler from the country, is helping his brother, J. D Craun, in the feed store.

Miss Iva Haverstock has returned home from several weeks visit in Indianapolis, Franklin, Rushville, and Marion.

I would like an offer for any one, or all, of several houses in Butler, owned by people not living here. If you want a home, this is your chance. Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

Miss Graham Torrence, who has been the guest of her parents, W. C. Webster and wife for the past three weeks, has returned to her home at Bemidji, Minn.

Miss Cecil Hamilton entertained eleven of her young friends at her home on last Saturday afternoon it being her eleventh birthday anniversary. After light refreshments were served, they all enjoyed a sleigh ride and had a fine time.

About one-half load of snow which had been hanging over the front of the building on the corner of Broadway and Oak street, occupied by the Panhuysen bakery, became loose by the recent thaw and dropped upon the sidewalk where it was the custom of the people to stand when on the street. Fortunately no person was there at the time. Should there have been they would have been completely covered and possibly injured.

The case of the state vs J. J. Stoehor is on trial in the circuit court and is hard fought on both sides. The defendant is a druggist at Garrett and is charged with selling liquor without prescriptions. The jury was empaneled Tuesday afternoon and the evidence was started. It was thought that the case would go to the jury late Wednesday afternoon. This is the first trial in the circuit court of Hubert Hartman, the new prosecuting attorney.

Mrs. Wm. Rickey was hostess to the Penelope club Tuesday evening. One of the chief features of the even was a "bare hunt" which resulted in each lady finding a barrett secreted in some mysterious place. The guests then indulged in various other games in which Mrs. Buehrer and Mrs. Harrison won the first prizes and Mrs Wesley Mutzfeld and Mrs. Frank Creager the consolation prizes. They were then invited to the dining room where an elegant two course dinner was served. At a late hour the ladies departed voting Mrs. Rickey a royal entertainer.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They do the work whenever you require their aid. These tablets change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, gloominess into joyousness. Their action is so gentle one don't realize they have taken a purative. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

Read your own HERALD.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

Mrs. Joe Burkhart, of Troy, was the guest of Mrs. John Thiel Saturday.

Miss Helen Harding entertained Miss Doris Hamilton to dinner Saturday.

Herbert Tyson was at Cleveland Friday and Saturday on business.

Sunday dinners at the Cottage hotel only 25 cents. Give us a call. 2-tf

Ora Hiner has a new piano, which he purchased of the Husselman Bros.

Mrs. Ben McDonald went to Swanton, Monday, to attend the funeral of an aunt.

Mrs. Harriet Hatch of Corunna was in the city the guest of her brother H. D. Chilcote

We have some 5 per cent money to loan on mortgage security. First National Bank. tf

Misses Hilda Madden and Thelma Dunten spent Sunday with Miss Inez Madden at Auburn.

A story is being told about a foreigner who, when told that John Mitchell had to go to jail because of the alleged contempt at court in the Buck's Stove Co. case, went home and secured an ax with which he smashed his Buck's stove to pieces. This is the method he took to show his indignation and I guess there are lots more that felt the same way.

A call for more applicants for places as census enumerators has been issued by supervisor of census, Jno. W. Sale, of Fort Wayne. He urges all persons in his district desiring to serve to obtain their application forms at once and to file them with him before January 25, when he must stop considering new applications in order to prepare for the "test" of the previous applicants on February 5.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy never disappoints those who use it for obstinate coughs, colds and irritations of the throat and lungs. It stands unrivalled as a remedy for all throat and lung diseases. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

Mayor Mondhank sentenced Clinton North to ninety days in jail for drunkenness, last Wednesday. This is the first case brought before the new mayor, and plainly demostrates that drunks will not be tolerated in Butler under the new administration. "Jiffy" is a good fellow when sober, but very annoying when he has had too much joy water, which is most of the time. "Jiffy" will turn up about the time the first robbin calls.

Mrs. Annis Leas, of Auburn, received a communication from her brother-in-law, Fred A. Leas, residing in California, apprising her of the death of Aurelia T. Leas, widow of the late ex-Sheriff Augustus S. Leas, of this county, at Manila, Philippine Islands, on January 11. Mrs. Leas had been in the Philippines but one month when she suffered a second stroke of paralysis and died. She visited in this city with Mrs. Annis Leas last summer. Before going to Manila she lived in California.

Saturday evening, Jan. 22, at 7:30, there will be an old time spelling bee, followed by a box social and fish pond, at the Oak Hill school, two miles south of town. A bobsled will leave the Murch corner at 7 sharp, to furnish free conveyance to any who have no other way to go. Come to see how much spelling you have forgotten. Come to have a jolly, laughing good time. Come to help a good cause. Come prepared to have a good basket supper. Note—No social unless there is sleighing.

S. RALPH WELLS, Teacher.

Have you a weak throat? If so, you cannot be too careful. You cannot begin treatment too early. Each cold makes you more liable to another and the last is always harder to cure. If you will take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the outset you will be saved much trouble. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

Closing Notice

Notice is hereby given that the Knisely Bros. & Co. bank and First National bank of Butler will not open for business hereafter on Saturday night.

Notice

By order of the city council all persons holding order number 42, 44, 45, 321, 364, 835, 922, 947 and 999 against the city are hereby notified that these orders are all in and no interest will be paid on same after this date, Jan. 14, 1910.

2-1 L. C. BUEHRER, Clerk.

A share of your patronage is solicited at the Harper meat market.

Sunday dinners at the Cottage hotel only 25 cents. Give us a call. 2-tf

I have for sale, houses in all parts of the city. Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

The Skunk Hill school had a box social last Tuesday evening. About $13 was cleared and a good time enjoyed by all.

President Taft is heartily in favor of the plan to raise the battleship Maine from the bottom of Havana harbor and inter the remains of the sailors drowned when the ship was sunk. The president informed Representative Loud of Michigan he desired to see the latter's bill, appropriating money for the purpose, enacted into law and will offer any support suggested. Mr. Loud will push the measure in the house.

Advertised Letters

Miss Ena Boyer.
Mr. Ray Brayan.
Mr. Wm. Flager.
Mrs. Wm. Flager.
Dr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Howe.
Mrs. H. McKee.
Mrs. C. V. Miller.
Henry Scott.
Mr. Milo Smith.

THOS. RUDD, Postmaster.

Napoleon's Grit

was of the unconquerable, never say die kind, the kind that you need most when you have a bad cold, cough or lung disease. Suppose troches, cough syrups, cod liver oil or doctors have all failed, don't lose heart or hope. Take Dr. King's New Discovery. Satisfaction is guaranteed when used for any throat or lung trouble. It has saved thousands of hopeless sufferers. It masters stubborn colds, obstinate coughs, hemorrhages, lagrippe, croup, asthma, hay fever and whooping cough and is the most safe and certain remedy for all bronchial affections. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free at Stone's drug store. 1-1m

A Notre Dame Lady's Appeal

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbagos, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate being necessary. This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. If the above interests you, for proof address

Mrs. M. Summers, Box R, Notre Dame, Ind.

Thompson Opera House

W. R. LENNON, MGR.

Thursday Eve. Jan. 27

R. G. KINGSTON

PRESENTS

Miss Mary Carew

IN THE GREATEST SOUTHERN PLAY EVER WRITTEN

The "MOONSHINER'S" DAUGHTER

ENTIRE PRODUCTION CARRIED

INCLUDING

"TEDDY"

THE REAL LIVE ACTING

BEAR

SEE THE GIDDY GHOST THE FUNNY CLOWN SAGACIOUS SOAK

PRICES, 25 35 AND 50 CENTS

SEATS AT STONE'S

EUGENE TREESH

Embalmer and Funeral Director

Lady Assistant

Prompt Response to Calls Day or Night

January Clearance Sale of Ladies' Suits, Ladies', Misses' and Children's Coats, Skirts, Furs, Silk and Net Waists, Ladies' Sweaters, Etc.

January, February and March, 3 Months of Winter

You'll have plenty of time to make use of Winter Garments. We still have some to sell and are determined to make a clean sweep of all winter wear. Rather than carry them over into another season we have decided to take our loss now and give our customers the benefit.

25 Percent Discount

On all Ladies' Suits and Coats, Misses' and Children's Coats. Remember we will give one-fourth off on all garments from the regular marked prices.

Tailored Suits

Twenty to select from.

$10.00 Values reduced to.....$7.50
15.00 Values reduced to.....$11.25
18.50 Values reduced to.....$13.87
25.00 Values reduced to.....$18.75

Sizes 32 to 40

Furs! Furs! Furs!

Twenty-five percent discount on every piece of Fur in our line, while they last.

Sweater Coats

One-fourth off on all Ladies', Misses' and Children's Sweater Coats.

Women's Coats

One-fourth less than our regular low prices. A large line to select from.

Misses' and Children's Coats

A discount of 25 percent on every garment.

Silk and Net Waists

One-fourth less than our regular low prices.

Ladies' Dress Skirts

Our entire stock of Ladies' Dress Skirts at 20 percent discount.

Twenty Misses' and Children's Coats, values from $3.50 to $10.00, carried over from last year, good warm cloth garments; all must go at.....$1.98

Only 69 Cents A Pair

Fifty pair of Ladies' Kid Gloves—some dressed, some undressed. Former prices $1.00 to $1.50. All go at 69 cents a pair while they last.

Remnant Counter

We have gathered together the accumulations of the past season's business and placed them on our Remnant Counter. They are all marked at ridicuously low prices. It will pay you to look them over. We will offer special bargains in other departments of our big store during this sale.

The Knisely Dry Goods Co.

Work 24 Hours A Day

The busiest little things ever made are Dr. King's New Life Pills. Every pill is a sugar coated globule of health, that changes weakness into strength, languor into energy, brain-fag into mental power; curing Constipation, Headache, Chills, Dyspepsia, Malaria. 25c at Stone's drug store. 1-1m

A NEW STOCK OF Whips Gloves Axle Grease, etc. Just Received At CRAUN'S FEED STORE

A full line of

Poultry Supplies

Flour and feed. Always on hand

Phone 54

Eat What

You want of the food you need Kodol will digest it.

You need a sufficient amount of good wholesome food and more than this you need to fully digest it.

Else you can't gain strength, nor can you strengthen your stomach if it is weak.

You must eat in order to live and maintain strength.

You must not diet, because the body requires that you eat a sufficient amount of food regularly.

But this food must be digested, and it must be digested thoroughly.

When the stomach can't do it, you must take something that will help the stomach.

The proper way to do is to eat what you want, and let Kodol digest the food.

Nothing else can do this. When the stomach is weak it needs help; you must help it by giving it rest, and Kodol will do that.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today, and purchase a dollar bottle, and if you can honestly say, that you did not receive any benefits from it, after using the entire bottle, the druggist will refund your money to you without question or delay.

We will pay the druggist the price of the bottle purchased by you.

This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family.

We could not afford to make such an offer, unless we positively knew what Kodol will do for you.

It would bankrupt us.

The dollar bottle contains 2½ times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is made at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

SOLD AT GEDDES' DRUGSTORE

The Old Adage "A New Broom Sweeps Clean" will soon be a saying of the past

If Brooms continue to soar. Take our advice, buy what brooms you will need until another crop is cut.

We have plenty of them at 35, 40 and 50 cents

Blue Ribbon raisins at 10c pound, fancy currants 12c, juicy prunes 10c, dried apricots 15c, apple jell home made 75c gallon, quart olives 25c, large size oranges 35c dozen, medium size oranges 25c dozen.

DO YOU KNOW? We do, that Indian brand corn, peas, succotash and string beans at 15c per can are the best money will buy. They are grown and packed by the None-Such Mince Meat people, who make only the best. Indian Coffee is drank by more people in Butler than any other brand. There's a reason; try a pound, 17c.

The Oberlin Grocery Company

January Cook Books are here--get one.

JANUARY

0451

L1134

DeKalb County Herald

BUTLER, INDIANA.

A. S. POWERS, - - - Publisher.

After finishing Mr. Zelaya, fate probably will begin at the other end of the alphabet again.

It will be a feather in the cap of Secretary Knox if he can bring about a safe and sane Nicaragua.

The fellow who was weighed in the balance and found wanting must have neglected to drop a cent in the slot.

What's in a name? The Indian desperado chased to his death by three armed posses was called "Willie Boy."

Wouldn't it be horrible if Germany should, while England is without a budget, decide to lay down a few more Dreadnoughts?

Doubtless it is the influence of international marriages manifesting itself in the unexpected spunk of the British House of Lords.

G. Bernard Shaw says if he came to America people would drop everything else and rush to look at him. What is that old story about the fly on the wheel?

The Kaiser read his own message to the Reichstag. Perhaps this habit is the reason why European documents of this character are so much shorter than they are here.

The new Chinese minister to this country brings sixty-seven servants with him. Astute man. Had he made it fifty-seven he would have been in a pickle with the paragraphers.

You can't work and worry at the same time, concludes the Atchison Globe philosopher. Men can't, but women can pile disaster on disaster, while slumber up after the children or doing their hair.

Those so-called craters on the moon may be merely the marks of bumps received in collisions with other orbs, but that theory does not seem to explain the presence of a tall cone in the center of so many of them.

Because he married a show girl a New York man has been disinherited by his father, who intended to leave to him about $3,000,000. The disinherited young husband thinks he will be able to live on love, but the show girl saith not.

Football is a game for men, no doubt, but let us suppose the girls were all to decide it to be too brutal to watch and were to refuse every invitation to attend the matches. How long would the game last do you think? Through one season?

Dolls have a human element in them which makes it most unlikely that they will ever be supplanted permanently in the affections of children by the "Teddy Bear" or "Billy Possum" or "Kermit Lion." Such toys have their day, as novelties do with older people, but the Eskimo dolls, which have been highly popular since the discovery of the north pole, indicate a return to the simple, old-fashioned doll which little mothers have played with for countless generations.

There is no doubt that modern industrial development tends irresistibly to large corporate organizations and to affiliations which will reduce the friction of competition where powerful interests are liable to come into conflict with destructive effect. But the working of such a system cannot be safely left to the will of those who devise and direct its operation. It must be subject to regulation, to requirements and prohibitions of law, at once effective and enforcible. The adjustment of regulation has not kept pace with the development, and they must somehow be brought into harmony by adaptation to secure the benefit of development without an abuse of the power that accompanies it or the sacrifice of rights and interests that fall in its way.

John Stewart Kennedy's magnificent bequests to religion, education and philanthropy place him at once in the front rank of princely benefactors. His thirty millions compare favorably with the outpourings even of a Rockefeller or a Carnegie, especially when we take into account the charities of his lifetime. Mr. Kennedy gave quietly while he was alive, and probably kept back his final vast gifts because it is impossible to give away such a fortune and do it quietly. Thereby, it is true, he lost the chance of seeing his name in the newspapers every day and playing the much-quoted oracle on every conceivable topic of the times. We do not say that a taste for such things is reprehensible. Possibly a man does well to bestow his benefaction while he is still on the spot to see that the right use is made of them. But it is impossible not to admire the older traditions which looked upon charity as a business involving only the giver and the taker and not the reporter and the camera man as well. There are still many more examples of the old type among us than the world suspects. The death of a Kennedy or a Jeanes reminds us of the fact.

Green hay, not an obstreperous cow, started the great Chicago fire. Mrs. O'Leary's momentous milking is a myth, as much so as William Tell and the apple, as Cleopatra and her fascination. And another great disillusionizer has appeared, one who dissolves the fables in corrosive sublimate quite as conclusively as does Guglielmo Ferrero or any German higher critic. The new historian is "Big Jim" O'Leary, stock yards politician and gambling king, son of the Mrs. O'Leary of famous memory, and by virtue of his sonship heir to her knowledge of exactly how the Chicago fire did start. He has felt moved in the interest of truth and of vindicating his parent in human history to attest the facts in the case and to exonerate the blameless bovine. Mrs. O'Leary, her son avers, believed in the big stick in the upbringing of her progeny, and tolerated no antics in her cattle. If little Jim, who is now "Big Jim," wasn't tucked in bed by 8 o'clock, he caught it sound and hard. Nor did the disciplined bovines in the O'Leary barn dare flick a tail in the milker's eyes or kick over a lamp lighting the lacteal operation. Neither Mrs. O'Leary's children nor her cows ventured to misbehave. It was green hay in the loft, over whose antics the lady could exercise no control, that by spontaneous combustion kindled the historic conflagration. All the little O'Learys were in their trundle beds, the cows were locked in the barn, Mrs. O'Leary herself was sleeping like the just, when the green hay developed fire that, before it was quenched, had burned three-fourths of Chicago over. The cow is cleared and the widow justified. Thus evaporates another fake in the interests of prosaic truth and the higher verities. Barbara Fritchie never wagged her "old gray head" above the "rebel horde" in Fredericktown. Sherman never rode the twenty miles a-down the Shenandoah to save the day. But we had hopes that Mrs. O'Leary and her cow were real figures upon the historic stage. These hopes are now shattered irremediably.

FIRST SCHOOL-DAY IN ALSACE

A glimpse of the strenuous and sustained battle against ignorance fought by the pioneer teachers of the Old World in the days preceding the French Revolution is given by Rev. E. Gilliat, in a recent book, "Heroes of Modern Crusades." It seems almost incredible that conditions so hopeless should need to have been righted in times so near to ours.

When Monsieur Stouber undertook the pastorate of Ban de la Roche, a territory in the Vosges which belonged to Protestant noblemen, as feudal lords of the soil, he found the people very wild and ignorant. When he first went there he visited the only school. A number of children were gathered together in a miserable cottage. As he entered he heard an appalling noise of scuffling, quarreling and shouting.

"Silence, children, silence!" he cried. "Where is your master?"

One of the children pointed to a little old man who was lying on a bed in the corner of the room.

"Are you the master of the school?" asked the pastor, in some dismay.

"Yes, I be the master, sir—I be."

"Humph! But don't you teach the children anything?"

"No! I don't teach the children nothing—for a good reason."

"It must be a very good reason indeed. What is it, my friend?"

"Well, I don't know nothing myself, sir, so how am I to teach?"

"But, my good friend, why did they send you here, then?"

"Because, sir, I be too old to take care of the pigs."

COST OF A SILK KIMONO.

Took Three Women and Five Men to Fix Value on One in Louisville.

It took five men and three women at the custom house and the silk buyer of a Louisville department store to fix the value of a kimono which arrived at the office of the surveyor of customs for appraisement, the Times of that city says.

It was a dainty silken thing, lavender in color, which lay on the table of Cashier Thomas for two hours. The garment was sent to the custom house by the postmaster at Somerset, Ky., who received it a few days ago through the mail from Japan. He did not send in the address of the owner.

This was aggravating to the young woman experts called in. "I know every woman in Somerset," one said, "and I'd just like to know who is going to wear that."

For half an hour it puzzled Surveyor Taylor and two or three of his men assistants to discover just what the garment was.

"It looks to me like the court gown of the queen of Zanzibar," said Clay Miller, who measures steamboats and superintends the loading of merchandise at the custom house depot.

"Don't you know anything at all?" exclaimed one of the women clerks, pushing her way through the puzzled group. "Why, that's a kimono."

"What in the thunder is a kimono?" inquired Deputy Sam Barber. "They don't have that kind of thing down in Bath County, where I came from."

Finally when the officials decided that there was nothing dangerous about the garment they started in fixing the value. It was estimated to be worth all the way from $1.50 to $150. The kimono was finally carried to a department store, where the silk buyer said it was worth $14.

Later the kimono was bundled into a box and started back to the Somerset postmaster with instructions to charge the owner $8.20 duty.

A Future Argument.

If the adoption of aeroplanes means an end to war, it cannot, according to the Cleveland Plain Dealer, mean an end to some of those disputes which make life for some people a perpetual debating school.

"Good gracious," said Mrs. Ebbs, "isn't that your husband across the street there quarreling with the man on the opposite porch?"

"Oh, they're not really quarreling," said the wife of the man in question. "They dispute that way every night. George is a monoplanist, and Mr. Stiggins is a biplanist."

Terror of the Birds.

First Yokel—Wot about these yere hairyplanes?

Second Yokel—I'd like to see 'em all gormed! Last week we 'ad three chicken run over by them motors, and now the pigeons won't dare fly about in case some hairyplane sh'ld cut 'em down. Life ain't wot it used ter be.—M. A. P.

WASHINGTON INAUGURATES GREAT NATIONAL MOVEMENT TO TRAIN UNCLE SAM'S FUTURE DEFENDERS

SCHOOL BOYS SHOOTING ON OUT-DOOR RANGE

America is not afflicted with an attack of "German invasion" hysteria, or even with Japanese jingoism, but there was inaugurated in Washington recently a movement which, it is believed, will have almost as widespread an effect upon the youth of the land as did the recent sensational organization by Lord Roberts and Lord Ashburton of 100,000 junior "scouts" in England, when the whole British world went militia mad.

The outdoor tournament or field day was held on the Congress Heights range, the first of its kind ever held in this country. And this is only the beginning of a great movement which, it is expected, will sweep throughout the country, the Washington meet serving as the model for those to be organized first in every city of 100,000 inhabitants or more, and later in smaller communities. The outdoor shoot is to serve as a sort of college course for the boys who have learned the A, B, C's of the indoor shoots, which have been held here and elsewhere for several years.

Lieut. Albert S. Jones, secretary of the National Rifle Association of America, in discussing the aims and ideals of the junior marksmanship work, says:

"In these days of crowded cities and strenuous work all forms of exercise are valuable to the growing boys. Shooting is an interesting open-air sport, in which the skill attained constitutes a valuable possession through life. It also involves more physical exercise than is generally appreciated. In particular, it develops coolness of nerve under excitement, power of observation and rapid judgment, which are important mental qualities.

Rifle shooting for boys teaches also a moral lesson. No boy can smoke cigarettes and hold a rifle steady, so that in order to be a good shot tobacco and alcohol must be avoided. For this reason rifle shooting, either as a pastime or as military training, is essential in the upbuilding of a strong, sturdy American manhood.

"It is always expected that opposition will be met with from those citizens who are opposed to military training of any sort—people who still have Tory or Quaker blood running in their veins—and who do not appreciate that the highest duty which every citizen owes, after his duty to God, is that owed to the nation of which he is a part. If we become oblivious to the obligations which devolve upon us as citizens to look to and safeguard the future, then we are lacking in patriotism, and the future is in jeopardy.

"Under the plans of the government no boy in any public school is compelled to learn to use the rifle. If he or his parents object, the matter ends there. But every boy should know how to shoot, or he is something less than deserving of the heritage handed down to him by his sharpshooting forefathers.

"One must not fall into the error of believing that knowledge of military training makes a boy anxious for military service or war. The reverse is the case. The more a boy knows of what war means the less eager he will be to urge his country into a conflict with another nation. While military training, and especially instruction in rifle practice, would make a boy a more self-respecting, able and self-controlled man, it will also teach him that war is something to be avoided. It is generally the man who knows least of war from personal experience who is prone to look upon that last resort most favorably.

"Rifle training makes for many other things in a boy than an added value as a probable soldier in war time. It teaches him how to avoid those shocking accidents which one reads about so often in the daily papers, through knowledge of the proper handling of arms. The first rudiments drilled into the boys are: Never to point a gun, either empty or loaded, at another person; always to open the arm when taking it in hand, to see if it is loaded, and, when firing at a target, always to keep the muzzle toward the target. If these rules are observed no accident will ever happen, and they never do with boys who have had these lessons drilled into them.

"While the United States government is spending nothing in promoting rifle shooting in the schools, other nations are making strenuous efforts along these lines. In England Lord Roberts, commander-in-chief of the British army, within the last few years has succeeded in organizing over 100,000 schoolboys. The writer will never forget the inspiring sight of 400 schoolboys, representing forty preparatory schools, competing for the Lord Ashburton shield, every one using the service arm, on the great Bisley rifle range in England.

"Something has been done in this country in a small way. Col. John Jacob Astor this year presented a cup for the interschool indoor rifle shooting championship of the United States, which trophy was won by the Morris High School of New York, with a very high score. One team entered the contest from Washington, representing the Central High School, and was seventh.

"At the coming session of Congress the bill sent to that body by President Roosevelt with a special message urging its passage, and which provided for carrying on rifle shooting instruction in the schools and among the citizens, will be reintroduced and pushed. All well-wishers for the future should unite in doing everything in their power to help the passage of such legislation."—Washington Post.

RHYMES OF ANCIENT MARINER.

Heard in Hobb's Back Room by Greenpoint's Murky Waters.

Some wild, weird tales from off the sea broke loose in town last night when kindred souls of Jonas Horne, o' the barkentine Belle White, foregathered in old Hobb's back room, by Greenpoint's murky tide, and cheered themselves with glowing pipes and something else beside, according to the New York Herald. As usual, Jonas held the stage. With chairs close drawn about, he told how ringnosed cannibals had failed to count him out.

"I was wrecked in '59," said Horne, "aboard the Silly Sue, and found myself alone alive of all our husky crew. I washed ashore on lucky waves, and woke up on the sands to find myself a prisoner in rather hostile hands. A bunch of six black cannibals, with rings stuck in their noses, danced 'round in glee, and I could see my future held no roses.

"They hitched me to a near-by tree and held a long pow-wow. I figured they were settlin' when to serve me up, and how. At last one fellow goes away, and that was some relief, but it seems that he had been dispatched to fetch the native chief. He stayed away so bloomin' long the other dubs got sore, so they sent another fellow off, and that left only four.

"Now, pretty soon the four of 'em began to get so weary they laid up by a tree to doze, and that made me some cheery. And when the four began to snore this chicken got right busy—I wiggled and I wrestled with my ropes till I was dizzy. I yanked this way, I pulled that way, I struggled like a steer, and squirmed and turned until, b'gosh! I pulled out free and clear.

"And did I go away from there? Not yet! I wasn't through. Says I, 'Now, boys, you've played with me. I'll have some fun with you.' You see, those boys were sound asleep, their backs against that tree, so I took the rope they'd tied me with and went to work with glee. I strung it through the bloomin' rings that dangled from their beaks clean 'round the tree and tied the ends, and left the dusky freaks.

"I beat it quickly to the shore, where lay a bark canoe, and on my way I heard a fuss that tickled me clean through. Those cannibals had started up, but found their noses tied. They fought and mauled each other while I laughed until I cried.

"Well, off I rowed in their canoe to another island near, where I found a ship—and that is why I'm able to be here."

FIND FOOT OF MAMMOTH.

Monster Leg with Flesh and Hair After Lapse of Centuries.

Northern Siberia, in particular, was a happy hunting ground of the mammoth and other prehistoric beasts, as, to-day, it is the happy hunting ground of those who seek relics of the animals of many centuries ago. The remains illustrated on this page were found two years ago on the banks of a small stream by natives who were hunting foxes. These men notified the nearest town of their find, with the result that recently the St. Petersburg Academy of Science sent a special expedition to recover the relics, which had been buried in the river bed. The scientists dug up first of all the skull of a mammoth, with part of the skin and flesh and one eye cavity in a good state of preservation. The right hind foot was found next and was also well preserved. The hair covering it was from five to six inches in length. This excellent state of preservation is not as uncommon as might be imagined. In 1846 the remains of a mammoth seen by Adams had suffered so little through the lapse of time that its flesh was eaten by natives, dogs and wild animals. It was on this same occasion that it was proved that the mammoth used to feed on the shoots of coniferous trees. The mammoth varied from nine to eleven feet in height.—Illustrated London News.

FOOT OF MAMMOTH.

COW IN A PARLOR.

It Took Possession of the House When the Family Was Away.

The placidity of the cow has been a proverb for all time. That she is endowed with a good bump of the "curiosity that killed a cat" a suburbanite learned to his sorrow one day this summer.

Mr. Blank lives in the east end with his family of wife and five children, the Louisville Times says. They have a cow that is a pet, having been raised from babyhood and now furnishing all the lacteal fluid and by-products used by the family.

Not so long since, after Blank had come in town for the day, Mrs. Blank took the children and went for a day's outing to a neighboring suburb, leaving the house (supposedly) carefully closed and the cow in her stable. But missing familiar forms and the sounds of domestic activity, she grew lonesome and managed to escape the inclosure and came into the yard and proceeded to investigate. She climbed the steps to the back porch, consumed three loaves of bread left by the baker's boy. She succeeded in getting the kitchen door open, where she devoured all but the graniteware part of a three-pound crock of butter.

Her appetite still unappeased, she also ate the fancy paper off the shelves, and in so doing pulled down all the tinware and scattered it about the floor. She could not work the combination on the ice-box, so moved on through the dining room into the sitting room. Mr. Blank had the day before purchased four new shirts at $1.50 each, and these had been sent home and were left in a bundle on the couch. She "considered" these, ate all but a few fragments, and went on her way. She wrecked chairs, and even a bed, and upset the contents of tables by pulling at and eating the covers.

When the family came back late that evening an affectionate "moo" of welcome greeted them from the cow, her head thrust through the parlor window. Mr. Blank said it took ten men and a derrick to get the cow out of the house, and the cost of repairing damages would purchase enough milk and butter for the family for a year, "sans care." There's a cow for sale; she's no longer a big hit in the family.

CHILDREN OF THE CIRCUS.

Travel with Parents During Season—How They Are Educated.

"It is nothing unusual for the larger circuses to carry thirty and forty children, ranging all the way from mere babies to boys and girls 15 and 16 years of age," said Jerome S. Rogers, of Chicago, a former circus man, according to the Washington Herald. "The majority are traveling with their parents, both the father and mother doing daily duties in the ring, and while often they are trained to follow in the steps of their elders they are seldom allowed to perform in public.

"It is a common belief among circus men that the performer whose training is not started until after the age of 16 will seldom make a distinctive record. I often saw groups of boys, some of whom could not have been over 4 or 5 years old, practicing rudimentary somersaults and handsprings, while their parents looked on with gratified smiles. These were the families of the circus aristocracy, who treasure the records of their ancestors with the pride of a son in his father's sword and who see no more inspiring calling for their own children than that of the great white canvas.

"Not that their education is neglected in other respects; several of the families often hire an instructor—perhaps one of the performers who has the time and ability for such work—to coach their children in the standard studies. One circus, indeed, has now established a traveling school for the youngsters. If they are to be acrobats they are to be educated acrobats."

Cause for Suspicion.

"When a man dat's tryin' to trade horses wif me stahts braggin' 'bout how hones' he is in his dealin's," said Uncle Eben, "I can't help suspectin' dat he's gettin' ready to make an exception in my case.'—Washington Star.

How "Protection" Protects.

When Senator Aldrich and Congressman Boutell made their gallant defense of the high tariff on imports of textiles they urged the necessity of "protecting" the mill workers of New England against competition from what they termed the "pauper" labor of Europe.

Incidentally—just as a matter of coincidence—they declared their belief that only by an import duty on textiles could New England mill magnates be guaranteed the "reasonable profit" which the Republican tariff plank of 1908 promised to all American industries.

To show how far from tottering on the verge of ruin are the textile monopolists of New England, we publish a few figures on the earnings of a few leading textile companies for nine years and their financial standing:

Name—	Total capital.	Present shareholders since 1899.	Present surplus.
Amoskeag Mfg. Co.	$5,760,000	$6,588,750	$4,139,992
Androscoggin mills	1,000,000	920,000	1,040,269
Bates Mfg. Co.	1,200,000	1,644,000	1,548,329
Arlington Holden Co.	1,000,000	1,022,000	506,156
Border City Mfg. Co.	1,200,000	1,255,000	1,053,263
Dartmouth Manf. Co.	1,200,000	2,880,000	1,051,243
Great Falls Mfg. Co.	1,500,000	1,500,000	897,410
King Philip Mills ..	1,500,000	2,570,000	871,084
Laurel Lake Mills ..	600,000	732,000	235,000
Lawrence Mfg. Co.	1,250,000	1,442,000	889,710
Mass. Cotton Mills	1,800,000	1,044,000	1,774,320
Pacific Mills	3,000,000	4,280,000	5,883,823
Pepperell Mfg. Co.	2,556,000	5,853,240	1,834,312
Sagamore Mfg. Co.	900,000	1,093,500	308,764
Troy Cotton and Woolen Mfg. Co.	300,000	958,500	369,152
Union Cotton Mfg. Co.	1,200,000	2,361,000	572,545

The table shows that on $25,000,000 of capitalization the cotton magnates have reaped profits of more than $48,000,000 in nine years. This is the "reasonable profit" promised American industries.

Massachusetts bureau of labor states that the average weekly wage in these cotton mills is $7.92. This is the marvelous result of shutting out European "pauper" competition.

Anti-Monopoly Protection.

The issue between the Republican tariff insurgents and the reactionaries has not been more clearly stated than by Senator Clapp, of Minnesota, in his speech at Milwaukee. "The recent tariff struggle," said he, "was in no sense a struggle between protection and free trade, but degenerated into a struggle between monopoly on the one hand and the true friends of protection on the other."

It is well to bear this definition in mind. It will be remembered that Senator Cummins and the rest of the Northwestern Republicans have, all along, declared their allegiance to the Republican principle of protection. Their objection has been only to the excessive protection which gives the protected interests a close monopoly of American industry and clothes them with undue power to exact burdensome tribute from American consumers.

Thus was, substantially, President Taft's position all through the presidential campaign of last year. It was the tariff policy ambiguously promised in the Chicago platform. On no other platform could the Republican party have won the great victory it did. With full experience of the extortions of monopoly tariff, as illustrated by the Dingley act, the people of the country, in both political parties, have made up their minds that they will not submit to private taxation levied in the name of protection to American industries.

The agricultural constituencies of the West were long deluded with the cry that high protection was necessary to make a home market for their products. Finding that they have been paying for this market vastly more than it was worth to them, or than was necessary in order to keep it, they have gone into revolt against the system.

The revolt will not become less determined than it has been in states like Iowa and Minnesota for years, or than it is now in practically every state west of the Alleghenies. From the Republican viewpoint, Senator Clapp could not have stated the real issue more exactly than in saying that, so far as the tariff is concerned, it is to protect American industry, where it needs it, from foreign competition and at the same time to protect the American consumer from the unjust exactions of American monopoly.

Democracy and the Trusts.

The boast of the Chicago platform of 1908 that the Republican party passed the Sherman anti-trust law against Democratic opposition is modified in the same paragraph by the admission that the law does not give the Federal Government effective supervision over interstate corporations having power and opportunity to form monopolies.

Though the law has produced good fruit in the decision of the United States Circuit Court at St. Louis dissolving the Standard Oil Trust, it has, in fact, during the nineteen years of its existence, proved a very weak restraint upon the formation of monopolies and combinations in restraint of trade.

Moreover, in his speech of acceptance last year, President Taft pointed out two important points in which the act mischievously goes beyond the lines of the common law, one of them being that it may be interpreted to include labor unions in the forbidden combinations.

Naturally, Democrats have no faith in the sincerity of a party which, while thundering against the trusts in its platforms and in an occasional law of doubtful effectiveness, pushes to the last extreme of radicalism tariff legislation which fosters, more than any other one policy, the formation of monopolies and combinations against the people.

The effort to make it appear that Democrats in 1890, or in any other year have opposed effective anti-trust legislation is rendered absurd by that party's repeated declarations and by the consistent policy it has adhered to. The position it took with respect to trusts and monopolies in the year when the Congress which passed the Sherman act was elected it set out in the Democratic national platform of 1888, in the following words: "Judged by Democratic principles, the interests of the people are betrayed when, by unnecessary taxation, trusts and combinations are permitted and fostered, which, while unduly enriching the few that combine, rob the body of our citizens by depriving them as purchasers of the benefits of natural competition."

The Sherman anti-trust law does too much and it does too little. Democratic suspicion of its honesty was quickly vindicated by the passage by the same Congress, a few months later, of the McKinley tariff, which surpassed all previous legislation in fostering monopoly and encouraging combinations in restraint of trade. What the people thought of it all was expressed in the overwhelming defeat of the Republican party in the elections which immediately followed the enactment of the two laws.—St. Louis Republic.

For Government by the People.

Representative Gardner, of Massachusetts, is doubtless right in his conclusion that the insurgent Republicans of the House will not be able during this session of Congress to accomplish decisive results in their fight for amendment of the rules or the overthrow of the Speaker's dictatorship over the proceedings of the House.

By a combination which Republican Leader Parsons, of New York, denounces as due to a corrupt political bargain, Mr. Cannon has already been elected Speaker of the House for the Sixty-first Congress. His rule is certainly not so obnoxious to a majority of the Republican membership that they may be expected to resort to so radical a step as to displace him, or even to ask for his resignation.

Mr. Cannon is in the chair for the lifetime of this Congress, and he may be expected to go on doing the bidding of the interests and the bosses through whose influence he has been placed there. Protests against his usurpation of the powers of the House will serve the useful purpose of keeping before the people the revolution that "Cannonism" has wrought in the Congress of these United States, though they do not budge Uncle Joe a hair's breadth.

During the session Democratic members of the House and those Republican members who insist that they were sent to Washington to represent their constituents in ungagged debate and open balloting would do well to bring Mr. Speaker's dictatorship to a test at every convenient opportunity. Let the overthrow of the representative government at Washington be made notorious. Let the people understand fully how it is that their will is habitually defeated in the national capital.

"Cannonism" and the House rules are among the burning issues of American politics to-day. They are strong enough to decide the fate of parties. Until they are decided right it is idle for the people to vote on other great issues with the foreknowledge that their verdict will be reversed in Washington if it be not acceptable to a small group of usurping party bosses. If the insurgents can't do anything to Uncle Joe in the Congress, they can do to him, and the system he stands for, a plenty in the next congressional elections.—St. Louis Republic.

Keep After the Sugar Thieves.

All sorts of encouraging rumors that sugar millionaires have been indicted emanate from Washington and New York. The American people would mightily like to see some of these reports develop into actual facts. Imprisonment of a few $15 a week weighers and clerks is not the American idea of adequate results from the sugar prosecutions.

Refined sugar that costs $4.96 in Boston can be purchased for $2.70 in Liverpool or Hamburg. The $2.26 difference does not go into the pockets of the sugar trust's employes. It does not cover up any excess in cost of manufacture in this country over the cost of manufacture abroad. It is a bonus paid by the people of the United States into the coffers of the sugar magnates by virtue of the tariff.

Last year more than 2,000,000 tons of sugar were imported into this country. Exactly 430 tons of it were refined before importing. The tariff is so trickily worded that it is to all intents and purposes prohibitive.

The sugar barons reap an unearned profit of $90,000,000 a year from American sugar consumers through this tariff. Yet they are not satisfied. By bribery and conspiracy they cheated the government out of about $2,000,000 a year for fifteen years.

Public sentiment demands criminal prosecution of the sugar kings who defrauded the customs and the big politicians whose connivance made such colossal frauds possible.

Ready to Exchange.

"I was reading to-day about the cat exchange they have in Paris."

"I wish we had one here. I've got a cat at home that I'd exchange for a bogus check on a busted bank and throw in the car fare to boot."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Three Generations.

"The grandfather acquired wealth as a dealer in seal oil and whale blubber. The son's greatest ambition was to learn the business."

"And the grandson?"

"He wants to forget the business."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE WAVERLY
HOTEL
CLYDE OBERLIN, Prop.

Warm Meals and Lunch served at all hours, day or night.

Fine line of Candies, Cigars and Tobacco.

East Side Broadway

Dr. Harrison
PHYSICIAN and SURGEON.
BUTLER, - IND.

Dr. Bulson
OFFICE AND RESIDENCE 219 WEST WAYNE STREET
FORT WAYNE.
PRACTICE LIMITED TO DISEASES OF THE EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT.
GLASSES ADJUSTED.

E. B. DUNTEN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.
Prompt, Careful and Efficient Attention given to All Legal Business.
Office over Phillips drug store, Butler.

BEECHLER & SON,
DENTISTS.
CROWN AND BRIDGE WORK
Plates and all Dental Surgery given prompt attention. Office over Shepland's store. Sunday, 9:30 to 12 o'clock
BUTLER, INDIANA.

FRANK A. BRINK
Attorney-at-Law
Notary Public.
Special Attention Given to Collections

Dr. W. F. Shumaker
Special Attention Given to Chronic Diseases
OFFICE HOURS
7 to 8 a. m. 1 to 3 p. m.
7 to 8 p. m.

5 DROPS
TRADE MARK
THE STANDARD REMEDY FOR ALL FORMS OF
RHEUMATISM
LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, NEURALGIA, KIDNEY TROUBLES, CATARRH, ASTHMA and KINDRED DISEASES
GIVES QUICK RELIEF
Applied externally it affords almost instant relief from pain, while permanent results are being effected by taking it internally, purifying the blood, dissolving the poisonous substance and removing it from the system.
DR. C. L. GATES
Hancock, Minn., writes:
"A little girl here had such a weak back caused by Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble that she could not stand on her feet. The moment they put her down on the floor she would scream with pains. I treated her with "5-DROPS" and today she runs around as well and happy as can be. I prescribe "5-DROPS" for my patients and use it in my practice."
TEST "5-DROPS" FREE
If you are suffering with Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble or any kindred disease, write to us for a trial bottle of "5-DROPS."
"5-DROPS" is entirely free from opium, cocaine, morphine, alcohol, laudanum and other similar ingredients.
Large Size Bottle "5-DROPS" (300 Doses) $1.00. For Sale by Druggists.
SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE COMPANY
Dept. 60. 174 Lake Street, Chicago

He Hustled.
He Advertised.

He put himself and his business before the people, and is now reaping his reward. If you desire to reach the buying classes you must patronize the newspaper that is widely circulated. ... You take no chances when you advertise in

This Paper.

0452

L1134

JANUARY

The Redemption of David Corson

By CHARLES FREDERIC GOSS

Copyright, 1900, by The Bowen-Merrill Company. All Rights Reserved

CHAPTER XXII.—(Continued.)

The people gathered as they did at that other service when David made the address to which Pepeeta had listened with such astonishment and rapture. The entire community of Friends was there, for even Quakers cannot entirely repress their curiosity. There was evidence of deep feeling and even of suppressed excitement. The men in their broad-brimmed hats, the women in the poke bonnets, moved with an almost unseemly rapidity through the evening shadows. The pairs and groups conversed in rapid, eager whispers. They did not linger outside the door, but entered hastily and took their places as if some great event were about to happen.

There was a preliminary service of worship, and according to custom, opportunity was given for prayer or exhortation. But all minds were too intent upon what was to follow to enable them to take part with spirit. The silences were frequent and tedious. The young people moved restlessly on their seats, and their elders rebuked them with silent glances of disapproval. All were in haste, but nothing can really upset the gravity of these calm and tranquil people, and it was not until after a suitable time had elapsed that the leader of the meeting arose and said: "The time has arrived when David and Pepeeta are at liberty to proceed with their marriage, unless there be some one who can show just cause why this rite should not be solemnized."

A flutter ran through the assembly, and a moment of waiting ensued; then David rose, while every eye was fixed on him.

"My friends," he said, in a voice whose gentleness and sweetness stirred their hearts; "you have refrained from inquiring into the story of my life during the three years of my absence. I would be glad if I could withhold it from your knowledge; but I feel that I must make a confession of my sins."

In the death-like stillness he began. The narrative was in itself dramatic, but the deep feeling of him who told it, his natural oratory and the hearers' intent interest, lent to it a fascination that at times became almost unendurable. Sighs were often heard, tears were furtively wiped away, criticism was disarmed, and the tenderness of this illicit but passionate and determined love, blinded even those calm and righteous listeners to its darker and more desperate phases. By an almost infallible instinct we discover true love amid fictitious, unworthy and evil elements; and when seen there is something so sublimely beautiful that we prostrate ourselves before it and believe against evidence, even, that sooner or later it will ennoble and consecrate those who feel it.

When David had completed the narrative he continued as follows: "It is now necessary that I should convince you, if I can, that with my whole soul I have repented of this evil that I have done, and that I have sought, and I hope obtained, pardon for what is irreparable, and am determined to undo what I can. It is with awe and gratitude, my friends, that I acknowledge the aid of heaven. From the logical and well-deserved consequences of this sin I did not escape alone. I was snatched from it like a brand from the burning! No mortal mind could have planned or executed my salvation. It is marked by evidences of Divine power and wisdom. Through a series of experiences almost too strange to be credible, I have been drawn back here to the scenes of my childhood, to encounter the one I have wronged and to find myself, so far as I know, able not only to make reparation, but to enjoy the bliss of a love of which I am unworthy. If I were wise enough, I would set before you the spiritual meaning of this terrible experience, but I am not. Three years ago I stood here in boyish confidence and boldly expounded the mysteries of our human life. It is only when we know nothing of life that we feel able to interpret it. Now that I have seen it, tasted it, drank the cup almost to the dregs—I am speechless. Three facts, however, stand out before my vision—sin, punishment, pardon! I have sinned; I have suffered; I have been forgiven. I have been fully pardoned, but I feel that I have not been fully punished! There are issues of such an experience as this that cannot be brought to light in a day, a year, perhaps not in a lifetime. Whatever they are, I must await them and meet them; but as it is permitted a man to know his own mind, when he is determined so to do, I know that I have turned upon this sin with loathing. If God permits me to live quietly and patiently among you until I have so recruited my spiritual strength that I can go forth into the great world of sorrow and of sin which I have seen, and extend to others a hand of helpfulness such as was stretched out to me at the moment of my need; but if there is any one here to whom God has given a message for me, whether it be to approve or condemn my course, I trust that I shall have grace to receive it meekly."

He took his seat, and it seemed for a few moments that every person in the room had yielded heart and judgment to this noble and modest appeal. But there was among them one whose stern and unyielding sense of justice had not been appeased. He was a man who had often suffered for righteousness' sake and who attached more value to the testimony of a clear conscience than to any earthly dignity. He slowly and solemnly rose. His form was like that of a prophet of ancient days. His deep-set eyes glowed like two bright stars under the cloudy edge of his broad-brimmed hat. His face was emaciated with a self-denial that bordered upon asceticism, and wan with ceaseless contemplations of the problems of life, death and immortality. Not a trace of tender emotion was evident on features, which might have been carved in marble. It was impossible to conceive that he had ever been young, and there seemed a bitter irony in the effort of such a man to judge the cause of a love like that which pleaded for satisfaction in the hearts of David and Pepeeta, and to pronounce upon the destinies of those whose souls were still throbbing with passion.

But such was the purpose of the man. His first words sounded on the stillness like an alarm bell and shook the souls of listeners with a sort of terror.

"We did not seek to try this cause," he said. "It was brought before us by the wish of this sinful man himself. But if we must judge, let us judge like God! We read of Him—that he 'lays righteousness to the line and judgment to the plummet.' Let us do the same. That a great wrong hath been done is evident to every mind. It is not meet that such wrongs should go unpunished! These two transgressors have suffered; but who believes that such wrongs may justly be so soon followed by felicity? It would be an encouragement to evil-doers and a premium upon vice! Who would refrain from violently rending the marriage bonds or sundering any sacred tie, if in a few short months the fruit of the guilty deed might be eaten in peace by the culprit? What assurance may we have that the lesson which has been but superficially graven on this guilty heart may not be obliterated in the enjoyment of triumph? Why should these youths make such unseemly haste? If they are indeed in earnest to seek the truth and lay to heart the meaning of this experience into which their sinful hearts have led them, let them of their own accord and out of their humble and contrite hearts devote a year to meditation and prayer. Let them show to others they have learned that to live righteously and soberly, and not to grasp ill-gotten gains or enjoy unhallowed pleasures, is the chief end of human life! The hour is ripe for such a demonstration. We have seen other evidences among us of an unholy hungering after the unlawful pleasures of life. It is time that a halt were called. If this community is dedicated to righteousness then let us exalt the standard. It is at critical moments like this that history is made and character formed. If we weaken now, if we permit our hearts to overpower our consciences, God will smite us with His wrath, vice will rush upon us like a flood, and we shall be given over to the lust of the flesh and the pride of life! 'To the law and to the testimony, my brethren.' This is my message! This is the advice ye have invited! Wait a year! Watch and pray! Fit yourselves for the enjoyment of your love by repentance."

The impression made by these solemn words was tremendous. It was as if eternity had suddenly dawned in that dim-lit room, and the leaves of the book of doom had been opened.

Upon Pepeeta this message had fallen like a thunderbolt. Her Oriental imagination, her awakened conscience, her throbbing heart had all been thrilled. She did not move; her eyes were still fixed on the prophet; her face was white; her hands were clasped tightly in her lap.

The demure Quaker maiden who had looked love out of her dove-like eyes three years ago when Pepeeta appeared for the first time among these quiet folk, was in her old familiar seat. Her life had never been the same since that hour, for the man whom she loved with all the deep intensity of which a heart so young, so pure, so true was capable, had been suddenly stolen from her by a stranger. Her thwarted love had never found expression, and she had borne her pain and loss as became the child of a religion of silence, patience and fortitude. But the wound had never healed, and now she was compelled to be a sad and hopeless spectator of another scene which sealed her fate and made her future hopeless. Her bonnet hid the sad face from view, as her heart hid its secret.

The soul of David Corson had passed through one of those genuine and permanent revolutions which sometimes take place in the nature of man. He had completed the cycle of revolt and anarchy to which he had been condemned by his inheritance from a wild and profligate father. Whether that fever had run its natural course or whether as David himself believed, he had been rescued by an act of divine intervention, it is certain that the change was as actual as that which takes place when a grub becomes a butterfly. It was equally certain that from this time onward it was the mental and spiritual characteristics of his mother which manifested themselves in his spiritual evolution. He became his true self,—a saint, an ascetic, a mystic, a potential martyr.

When he rose to his feet, his face shining with an inward light and glowing with a sublime purpose, all believed that he was about to summon Pepeeta to their marriage. What was the astonishment, then, when in rapt words he began:

"God has spoken to us, my friends. We have heard his voice. It is too soon for me to enjoy this bliss! Yes, I will wait! I will dedicate this year to meditation and prayer. Pepeeta, wilt thou join me in this resolution? If thou wilt, let the betrothal of this night be one of soul to soul and both our souls to God! Give me thine hand."

Still under the spell of strange spiritual emotions to which her sensitive spirit vibrated like the strings of an Aeolian harp, Pepeeta rose, and, placing her hands in those of her lover, looked up into his face with a touching confidence, an almost adoring love. It was more like the bridal of two pure spirits than the betrothal of a man and woman!

Not one of those who saw it has ever forgotten that strange scene; it is a tradition in that community until this day. They felt, and well they might, those strange people who had dedicated themselves and their children to the divine life, that in this scene their little community had attained the zenith of its spiritual history.

No wonder that from an English statesman this eulogy was once wrung: "We cannot afford to persecute the Quakers! Their religion may be wrong, but the people who cling to an idea are the very people we want. If we must persecute—let us persecute the complacent!"

(To be continued.)

After the Storm.

Wife—In a battle of tongues a woman can hold her own.

Husband—M'yes, p'raps she can; but she never does.—Tit-Bits.

SELF-DEPRECIATORY MAN.

Few Chances Come to Him, Uncle Hiram Tells His Nephew.

"Henry," said Uncle Hiram to his hopeful young nephew, according to the New York Sun, "I would not advise anybody to go around continually blowing his own horn. We tire of men who do that, and we are apt to think of them that that's all they can do, blow.

"On the other hand, Henry, never belittle yourself; never be self-depreciatory. Don't have a poor opinion of yourself, but if you do have such an opinion don't express it. The man who blows his own horn may seldom be taken at his own valuation, but the self-depreciatory man almost invariably is.

"So never run yourself down or speak doubtfuly of your own ability. If the boss is thinking of advancing you and he should say to you some day, 'Henry, we are thinking of trying you on this thing. Do you think you could handle the job?' you don't want to say, 'Well, I haven't had much experience yet in that way, and I really don't know whether I could do that or not.'

"You don't want to say anything like that, for if you do they'll be likely to think it over some more and end up by trying somebody else, taking a blower, maybe, who can't really do the work half as well as you could, but who's got self-confidence enough to say he can.

"You don't know what you can do till you try. Some men try and fail, but an astonishing number rise to occasions, developing strength or ability that others might never have thought them to possess."

Shock is the term employed in surgery to designate the state of physical and mental depression which follows a severe injury or some disturbing emotion of the mind.

The condition consists essentially in a want of equilibrium in the circulation, the arteries losing their tone, as a consequence of which the great mass of the blood accumulates in the veins, especially the large blood-vessels of the abdomen. The brain and other vital organs are deprived of the necessary blood supply, and are thereby rendered incapable of performing their important functions properly.

Shock may exist in any degree, and the symptoms will vary accordingly, from the pallor and slight faintness which one may feel momentarily in making a misstep, or when startled, as by a loud clap of thunder, or the receipt of bad news, all the way up to sudden stoppage of the heart, and death.

In shock of average intensity, such as follows a severe injury, the face is pallid, the pulse is weak and rapid, the skin is cool and often covered with a clammy perspiration, the muscular system is relaxed, the sufferer is nauseated and sometimes vomits, and the mental faculties and sensibilities are benumbed so that no pain is felt, even though bones may be broken and flesh torn. Not only is the surface cool or cold, but the actual temperature of the body, as measured by the thermometer, is lowered, sometimes to the extent of two or three degrees.

When shock depends upon a violent mental emotion, such as fear or the receipt of sudden bad news, or upon a severe injury, as that received in a railroad accident or when shot, the symptoms appear suddenly; but when it follows a surgical operation, its appearance may be delayed several hours. Its degree depends not only upon the severity of the injury, but likewise upon the seat of it. A blow on the abdomen will cause more severe shock than a much worse injury to an extremity, or even to the head.

Treatment of shock calls for the services of a physician, for it consists in the administration of powerful remedies to restore the tone in the relaxed blood-vessels, and often the injection of salt solution; but something can be done while awaiting the physician.

The sufferer should not be moved; he should lie flat; he should have air, and the usual crowd of the curious should be dispersed. The eyes should be shielded from the light. Hot cloths should be applied to the extremities and over the heart, and if he can swallow, he should be allowed to sip a little hot water. Stimulants should be given, if at all, in very moderate quantities.

To Whom Honor Is Due.

As a pendant to the story of the professor who, upon being questioned on the witness-stand, declared that he was "the greatest living scientist," saying apologetically afterward that he "was on oath," comes the following anecdote from one of the New England colleges:

Dr. H. had been unfolding to his class in physics a new and startling idea, and at the end of the explanation one of his students said, deferentially, "Is that your own theory, professor?"

"No," the professor replied. "But," he added, reassuringly, "it's a good one."

Easy.

"You know Jones, who was reputed so rich? Well, he died the other day, and the only thing he left was an old Dutch clock."

"Well, there's one good thing about it. It won't be much trouble to wind up his estate."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

When a girl's pocketbook looks fat and bulky, you can bet she has her handkerchief in it.

And lots of people are too slow to make fast friends.

Ways of Women

Individuality Woman's Charm.

The charm of woman lies not in beauty but individuality—if she could but be brought to understand that fact. It isn't the details that count. It is, as Trilby says, "the altogether"—her carriage, her manner, her voice, her expression; in short, herself—that makes or unmakes her charm.

It is the woman, then, who has the courage to be herself who attracts.

Originals are much more desirable than copies, no matter how accurate the copy may be. If it be natural to wear one's hair in carelese fashion, by all means do so; nature is never mistaken.

But let the admiring sister whom that same autocrat intended to be a tailor-made girl beware of disorder; in her it would cease to be artistic; it would simply be untidy.

Let every woman dare to be herself, develop her own individuality, not blindly copy some other woman, whom, it may be, her husband happens to admire.

Let her think for herself, act for herself, and express her own honest opinion. Individuality when combined with that nameless something called manner is the most potent weapon in the possession of the sex. It is this which has given many a homely woman a reputation for beauty which a bona fide beauty with faultless face and figure has sighed in vain to attain.

Typhoid Fever Carriers.

Typhoid fever carriers is the term applied to persons who may be infected by the typhoid fever germ and yet themselves free from the disease. According to statistics, based on fifty-seven cases reported by various physicians, about three-fourths of all carriers thus far recorded are women, and with very few exceptions the carriers have been engaged in some occupation, such as cook, baker, or dairyman, which has enabled them to transmit the typhoid bacteria to food products, or they were inmates of insane asylums and careless in their personal habits. Carriers have in some instances had typhoid fever but a short time previous to their examination, and in others several years before. Dr. Albert believes that many people carry typhoid germs for a time without sickness.

A Governor's Busy Wife.

Mrs. E. F. Noel, wife of the Governor of Mississippi, is one of the busiest women in the United States. Conservation is her hobby. She has formed several women's organizations and almost the entire State has been divided into sections in each one of which is a body of women pledged to some particular effort aiming at the conservation of the national resources. Above all else, however, Mrs. Noel is interested in the conservation of the human race and she has devoted untold labor to the establishment of classes for the teaching of the elementary principles involved in caring for children and ill persons. Her organization of trained nurses is growing fast and already has achieved notable results.

Caracul and wolf are two of the best furs for motor garments.

Soft, fluffy pompons are an attractive trimming on some of the tailored hats.

Eight-gored skirts are worn in some of the cloth gowns, and flare gracefully in a becoming sweep.

A shirred satin ribbon makes a pretty finish around the crown of a hat, with a large rosette and jetted quill at one side.

A chic little tailored frock was of black and white checked wool with belt and high standing collar of black satin and a few large black satin buttons on the sleeves and waist.

The home dressmaker would far better choose plain material or invisible checks and stripes if she is about to experiment on the making of a suit or coat, for the decided stripes and plaids are extremely difficult to manage in cutting, and if cut and matched in the wrong way the effect is bad.

Wedding Presents.

Wedding presents that show a desire to please the receiver plus a personality of the giver are always appreciated. Let not your berry spoon lose its identity in the seven other odd pieces. It smacks too much of the idea that anything will do.

In this practical age a tendency is growing with commendable force, to ask the bride just what will be best. It is much better than bestowing something which will be placed in a cupboard and taken out only at house-cleaning time.

In the Second Century.

Professor Frank J. Abbott says in his "Society and Politics in Ancient Rome" that suffragettes made their first appearance in politics in 195 B. C. The object of the uprising was the law that forbade a woman to have more than half an ounce of gold, to wear a parti-colored gown or to ride in a chariot within the city limits or within a mile of it, except for religious purposes. The ladies rose up in wrath and denounced such a law, storming the Forum just as the new suffragettes have stormed the House of Commons. They blocked all the streets of the city leading to the Forum and asked each man as he approached to vote to restore their rights to them.

CLOTHES FOR COLD WEATHER.

The fur coat on the right shows the approved length and cut. It is of ponyskin, with shawl collar and turnover cuffs. The buttons are of jet, rimmed with silver. The turban is of mustard broadcloth, with a wide brim of sealskin and black aigrette in front. The figure in the middle shows a shoulder scarf and barrel muff of lynx, which is worn with a coat frock of black cheviot heavily soutached. The mushroom hat is of white felt, with crown of Burgundy velvet, trimmed with a scarf and head of brown fox. The figure on the left shows a shoulder scarf and muff of Australian opossum lined with silver and gray brocade. The stiff turban is of gray felt and black velvet trimmed at the side with a gold rosette.

Fads and Fancies in Dress

"Mediterranee" is one of the new blues.

Rat-tail braid seems to be supplanting soutache.

Paris is offering all sorts of hats except small ones.

Quills braided in gold and silver are a millinery novelty.

The Dutch and Eton collars are promised a renewed popularity.

Tassels are as popular as ever for trimming dressy coats and capes.

A novelty in a checked suit is to have the silk lining exactly match.

Long lace sleeves are a feature of the deliciously pretty tea gowns for the winter.

The general tendency is away from vivid colorings and few lustrous surfaces are seen.

One of the leading dressmakers of Paris is showing more black gowns than anything else.

Among the colors that will be much worn are the blues, pink, brown and a great deal of green.

Newest skirts show a combination of the popular princess panel and the new fashionable plaits.

Plaited bows of bengaline silk, the loops resembling tiny fans, are replacing rosettes on tailored hats.

Some of the most striking of the popular Russian blouse suits are made of a combination of velvet and cloth.

Crepe de chine scarfs are warm as well as chic. One very lovely affair had a Dresden center and old gold border.

The roll that has been removed from the pompadour allows hats to sit more firmly, and they will be worn low on the head.

Some of the newest scarfs are six yards long. They are as filmy as a veil and of course they must be arranged to give the best results.

Short Cuts in the Home.

Did you ever use a shower bath hose on ironing day to sprinkle the clothes? A watering pot with a fine stream should do just as well. The clothes are sprinkled more evenly and in a shorter time.

A perfectly clean paint brush is a good thing to keep on hand to clean dusty fruit. Grapes, sandy dried peaches, strawberries and other fruits in their season are quickly cleaned in this way.

If dark wool material, men's suits, women's skirts and the like, become shiny, sponge with a solution of common washing blue and water. Press while still damp under a thin cloth.

When Windows Are Open.

Curtains may be kept from blowing out of the windows, says the Ladies' Home Journal, if you place lead or iron weights in the corners. Thin iron washers are good, as they are not heavy enough to make the curtains sag. They may be covered with the same material and placed in either the hem or corners.

The American Girl.

Many others besides Henry James have remarked upon the absurd position held in American society by young women. The ruinous indulgence of children ought at least to be confined to the home circle and not be carried into a world where age, intelligence and experience should have precedence and should form the standards. The reversal of values, so as to make the debutante the point of interest in a social season instead of the accomplished matron is as though society should have foresworn its functions. This would be true even were the manners of the debutante all that they should be in deference, suavity and tact. The experience of Washington, where society is fairly representative goes to show that much is still to be desired in these respects in the general education of American girls.—Century Magazine.

Turban of Hatter's Plush.

This smart hat is patterned after some of the high-brimmed French turbans for fall, and the model, which is of lustrous silky hatter's plush, now so fashionable, shows no trimming save the stiff blackbrush and a metal ornament holding it at one side. The higher the brim of the new French turbans, the smarter the style, and in some cases the brim rises several inches above the crown.

Hand-Made Frames.

There is at present a fad for using hand-made frames of wood, both in square and oval pieces, which are finished with sandpaper and wood filler to make them natural in wood effect. They bring out the delicate tints of some pictures to much better advantage than gold or highly ornamental frames.

Sticky Leather Chairs.

If leather in chair seats sticks to the clothing, sponge with a mixture of ether and alcohol, dampening the cloth lightly and following it by wiping off with a clean flannel dampened with pure chloroform. The Varnish was badly done or it would not stick.

The Short Coat.

The re-entry of the short coat is making one of the most entertaining features of early winter styles. Paris has out and out taken a stand for it, but here it is still tentative. The vogue of the short wrap is, however, well assured for the coming season.

Her Observation.

"Love," remarked the romantic young man, "is said to brighten the eye."

"I don't know about that," rejoined the practical maid, "but it has a tendency to disarrange one's hair."—Chicago News.

Memories of the War

A Confederate's Description of Pickett's Charge at Gettysburg.

John J. Garnett, a colonel of artillery in the Confederate army, and a participant in the great battle of Gettysburg, thus graphically describes General Pickett's desperate charge on the Union lines:

Pickett was sitting on his horse, when General Wilcox rode up to him and, taking a flask of whisky from his pocket, said:

"Pickett, take a drink with me. In an hour you will be in hell or glory."

"Be it so, General Wilcox," returned Pickett, taking the proffered drink; "whatever my fate, I shall do my duty like a brave man."

The line being formed, the gallant men on whom were centered a people's hope of a nation moved out of the woods.

Firm-faced and slow, a horrid front they form,
Still as the breeze, but dreadful as the storm.

Nothing interrupted the view of this superb movement. From the cannon-covered top of Cemetery hill, along the Federal lines, the soldiers of the Federal army watched with wonderment, not unmixed with admiration, the oncoming of those heroic columns, while the Confederates looked on admiringly, hoping against hope that success would reward the splendid courage evinced by Pickett's men. When a short distance from their starting point they obliqued to the right and then to the left in order to secure cover in the undulations of the plain across which they were moving. By some strange fatality the artillery smoke, which had settled over the field after cannonading, and hung there close to the ground, lifted after the Confederate division had got some distance in its journey to death and glory, and revealed distinctly to both armies the movement then being made. Marching in the direction of the objective position with measured step and unfaltering courage, Pickett's division drew nearer and nearer to their goal without hindrance from the foe.

What did it mean? Was their attack to be a bloodless victory? These were questions that sprung instinctively to the minds of the gallant men. Oh, no; for suddenly a cloud-burst of flame, shot and shell came thundering from the ridge into the devoted ranks. There was no wavering, no halting—on went Pickett's men, presenting as solid and undaunted front as the rock of Gibraltar. Many dead and wounded were left by their brave comrades on the spot where they fell. There was no time for anything but duty, and that stern duty was ahead of them. Again and again the Federal batteries poured forth a rain of shot, shell, shrapnel and canister upon them in unstinted measure. Horrid rents, which are quickly closed up, are made in their lines as the men press steadily forward, a thunder cloud of war that would not be stayed. The Federals, seeing that they were dealing with a desperate foe, increase their fire, if possible, with no apparent effect, except to mark the tract over which the force is moving with the dead and wounded heroes.

Never was there a sublimer exhibition of bravery on the field of battle. Courage was personified in every man. On they went in the face of the relentless hail of death that was beating against them. General Armistead was seen with his hat aloft on his sword, marching resolutely at the head of his gallant men. Shot and shell whistled about him, and yet he was undaunted. His journey was a desperate one, but he continued bravely on, not with the courage of desperation, but with the courage of a perfect man and a gallant soldier.

"Don't flinch an inch, boys," he had said to his men before starting away, and they were heroically responding.

The carnage in their ranks was fearful to contemplate. It seemed more like cold-blooded butchery than systematic war. That part of our army not engaged watched the gallant band in painful suspense. It did not seem within the limit of human endeavor that they could ever reach the objective point, so terrible was the slaughter to which they were being subjected. On they went, with every step becoming more determined. Surely there never was seen such matchless heroism. Nothing could stay or check them. When within a short distance of the Federal line their wild yells of defiance were heard above the thundering of their guns. The greatest moment of their lives had come. They dashed forward in a wild and disordered rush. Garnett, whose brigade was in front, fell dead within a hundred yards of the Union front, sword in hand. His men rushed madly upon the Sixty-ninth and Seventy-first Pennsylvania regiments, who had been awaiting the coming attack. At this moment they were brought under the fire of Stannard's brigade, which was occupying a small wood in advance and to the left of the point of Pickett's attack. Hancock realizing the purpose of the attack, and always on the alert to seize a favorable opportunity, threw a force on Pickett's flank. Two of Armistead's regiments were frightfully decimated and thrown into a disorganized state by this movement. The remainder of his brigade dropped into the rear of the center of Pickett's lines. Armistead, swinging his sword wildly, and rushing from point to point, urged his men forward and reached the front rank between Kemper and Garnett.

In the impetuous rush which ensued these brigades became a compact struggling mass of human beings, all bent on bloody work. Pushing forward, as if moved by some irresistible force superior to the individual will, they threw themselves upon the Union line like so many thunderbolts. The shock was terrific; it seemed impossible for human power to withstand it, and for a moment it seemed that it must sweep everything before it. With what breathless interest we watched the struggle! General Lee, looking from a convenient point, stood calmly looking at the struggle. Not an expression of the face or an action indicated that he had other than hopes of success. He was as imperturbable as a rock. What emotions swayed his soul at that supreme moment he and God alone only knew.

The first line of the Federals was pierced and they were driven back upon the earthworks near the artillery. There the work of death was renewed with frightful slaughter. Charges of grapeshot were fired into Pickett's men with terrible effect. Hancock and Gibbon rushed up their reserves to help stay the furious onslaught of the Virginians. Hall rectified his line which had been outflanked on the right. Harrow advanced with his left, and almost took Pickett in reverse. All these movements, made under the greatest excitement, threw the Federal troops into the same disordered state as their opponents, and both became mixed in a confused mass, the only way to distinguish one from the other being the blue and gray uniforms.

The fighting became like that of an infuriated mob. Confederates and Federals faced each other with clubbed muskets, their faces distorted with the fury of madmen. Commands were useless; they could not be heard above the din. A clump of trees just within the angle wall became the objective point of the Confederates. Armistead resolved to take it. Placing his hat on his sword he rallied about him 150 men who were ready to follow wherever he would lead. Rushing forward with his gallant band he reached a Federal gun, and just as he adjured his followers to "give them the cold steel, boys," fell dead in his tracks pierced with bullets. The death of this gallant officer marked the complete failure of the Confederate assault, and beaten, but undismayed, Pickett's men retraced their way across the field, now strewn with their dead. Riding up to General Lee, Pickett dismounted and, saluting, said in a voice tremulous with sorrow:

"General, my noble division has been swept away."

"I alone am responsible, General Pickett," Lee replied, with that quiet dignity which always characterized him.

Why Lee Failed.

A military critic, reviewing the personal narrative of the battle of Gettysburg written by Col. Frederick A. Haskell of Wisconsin, within a month after the fight, but only recently published, finds in it new reason to ask the question, "Why did Gen. Lee fail?"

As a soldier, he avers, Lee is indubitably a far greater figure than Meade. How could such a leader fail, in the prime of his power, and with an army almost matchless, practically equal in numbers to the adversaries whom he had repeatedly beaten? What brought that proud spirit so low that he fell into depression and begged that he might be allowed to resign?

Gen. Morris Schaff, a graduate of West Point, and a soldier of long experience, in some of his discursive remarks in his story of the Battle of the Wilderness, gives a plausible answer to this question, probably without having seen it, as his story was written before the review above referred to appeared.

Lee's orders in every case to those in front that day were qualified by the caution not to bring on a general engagement. Orders of this kind, Schaff says, are embarrassing; for a corps or division commander never knows how far to push his successes. Then he adds:

"Their evils had a good illustration at Gettysburg. There Lee used identically the same language on the first day; and when Trimble urged Ewell to take advantage of the complete overthrow of our First corps and follow up our disordered troops and seize the Cemetery Ridge, he replied that he had orders from Lee not to bring on a general engagement. Lee's orders were indeterminate and therefore hampering; and for that reason and on that account, I believe, he lost the battle of Gettysburg."

Speaking from a military standpoint, it is quite likely that Gen. Lee erred from excessive caution, realizing that he was in the enemy's country, and that if defeated an energetic commander opposed to him might push him to destruction.

A Mortar Boat.

On the gulf and inland waters during the Civil War much use was made of mortar boats, so called. These were simply gunboats carrying a mortar. This is a heavy cannon, so named on account of its resembling in shape an apothecary's mortar.

The first boats that passed Vicksburg in the spring of 1862 were a flotilla of mortar boats. The advantage of the short, heavy, bell-shaped gun is that it can be turned and fired at any angle of elevation, almost perpendicularly, indeed.

Mortars are used both on land and sea. As far back as the history of modern military weapons, the mortar has been employed. It is recorded that Joan of Arc herself aimed the mortar guns in her war against the English. The first thoroughly effective use of this weapon in recent times was during the Crimean War. On the water, to guard against the heavy recoil of the mortar, the boat containing it is built usually with broad bottom.

Michael Idvorsky Pupin, known as the inventor of wireless telephony, and who, according to report, received $800,000 for an invention which is used in long-distance telephoning, worked his way up through Columbia College.

The value of brick and tile products for 1908 in this country, according to the United States geological survey, was $108,062,207, a decrease of 16 per cent from the value of 1907.

0453

L1134

JANUARY

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS

Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

Our Correspondence

We will be pleased to have a letter each week from each one of our correspondents.

Edgerton

The poultry and corn show last week was a grand success. There was a large exhibit of poultry as well as other pet animals.

E. A. Farnham spent from Saturday until Monday with Dr. Wood at Angola.

Frank Hilbert severely strained one of his legs by slipping off a log at the Oak Mfg. Co. last Friday.

The meetings closed at the Presbyterian church last Suaday evening and Dr. Brigger who has been helping started for his home at Tiffin, Ohio, Monday morning.

Jacob Zeeb and wife started for the south last Monday morning. They expect to go to Georgia, Florida and Havana, Cuba, before they return, and Jake said that he might take a notion to see the big ditch down at Panama before he came home.

J. A. Wines was at Bryan on business last Monday.

Postmaster Killinger was at Bryan Tuesday on business.

Hiram Long was at Bryan Tuesday on business.

M. D. Harrison, of Toledo, land agent of the Lake Shore railroad, was in Edgerton last Monday and bought land of David Green on the south side of the right-of-way and of Mr. Fadley on the north side. He said they were going to work as soon as the weather would permit to widen the bridge across the river and finish the grade at the river and move the depot and freight house.

Phillip Upp died last Monday night at his home two miles west of town. Funeral was held at the Methodist church Thursday. Interment in Maple Grove cemetery.

Our mail carriers have been having a hard time making their trips the last few days. On last Thursday Mr. Nihart's horse gave out and he left it and went on afoot, and he gave out and the liveryman went out after him.

Although we have three coal dealers in town we have a coal famine on now. One dealer has had a car of coal in Toledo since last Wednesday, Jan. 12, and the railroad does not deliver it.

BUTLER MARKETS

PRODUCE

The following prices are paid for produce and other farm products by Butler merchants:

Eggs	$ 30
Butter	24
Lard	14
Potatoes	40
HAY, GRAIN AND WOOL
Wheat (per bu.)	$ 1.20
Oats	44
Rye	70
Corn (per cwt.)	70
Red Clover (per bu.)	7.75
Alsike (per bu.)	6.75
Hay	13.00
POULTRY
Chickens	11

G. W. HIKER, V. M. D., M. F.

Veterinary Surgeon and Dentist

Promptly answered day or night

OFFICE AT RESIDENCE

Phone answers 24

Newville

George Rex and Mrs. Wm. Meek are on the sick list.

Hugh Strong, of Angola, and Mary Strong, of Butler, were home over Sunday.

Sam Wyatt and wife visited at St. Joe Sunday.

Rev. Brock will preach at the U. B. church next Lord's day.

Dr. Brunson made a professional call at Auburn last Wednesday.

The friends of Mrs. W. K. Miller will be glad to know she is improving and can leave the hospital.

Henry Strong, of Aberdeen, Wash., is here visiting his brother, Leslie Strong.

Everybody enjoyed the sleighing. Great sled loads were entertained at different homes nearly every evening.

Laura and Van Hadsell were visitors from Hicksville at this place Sunday.

"Ye Old People's" entertainment was a grand success. The young people admit they were well entertained and ask us to repeat the program. We may in a short time, and if we do, look out! The proceeds amounted to $9.45.

Norris Chapel

Henry Emme has been confined to his home since last Monday, having been injured by a horse.

Wm. Manion, wife and son, of Garrett, have been visiting at the home of George Stonebraker.

Tuesday evening Wm. Blodgett took a sled load of his friends to Waterloo to attend the revival services at the M. E. church. They report a fine time and a good meeting and excellent music.

Mrs. Wm. Stonebraker returned Saturday from Fort Wayne where she has been at the bedside of her mother who has been very ill.

John Mann returned from Lafayette last Thursday where he has been visiting relatives for the past two weeks.

Monday night of this week John Baker met with what may be a very serious accident. He led his horses to water when one of them broke away from him, turned around and kicked him in the abdomen. He has been suffering greatly, but it is not known yet what the nature of his injury is.

A merry load of sleigh riders from Auburn were entertained at the home of Clark Whetsel Saturday evening. Oysters and ice cream were features of the entertainment.

Wm. Barnhart, Levi Barnhart, Loyle Barnhart, Fred Keller and Albert Keller have made several trips to Hamilton lake on fishing expeditions. They report a good catch of fish. They expect to go to Rome City some time this week to try their luck.

The L. A. S of this place will meet next Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Wm. Stonebraker for regular business meeting. A large attendance is desired.

The many friends of Wallace Wilson are glad to learn that he is some better at this writing and able to sit up in the chair. His neighbors gathered Monday afternoon and had a wood chopping for him.

Ward Baughman and wife entertained a number of their relatives from Auburn Saturday and Sunday.

CUPID'S PRANKS RECORDED HERE

Praul--Ginder--By Rev. I. N. Shilling--Several Other Couple Willing to "Try."

Married at the home of Rev. I. N. Shilling, Thursday evening, January 13, 1910, Lloyd Eugene Praul and Miss Zora May Ginder. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Praul and the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Ginder. The happy couple will reside upon the farm of the groom's parents and follow their chief profession, that of farming. Their associates are highly pleased to retain their associations, as they are among the most industrious and honorable in the community. Many are the congratulations. May peace, prosperity and happiness accompany them all along the journey.

The Rev. W. B. Freeland of the M. E. church, united the lives of Miss Bessie Baker and Harry Fuller at the parsonage Tuesday morning by the employment of a clever ceremony. The contracting parties are well known Butler people and start on their matrimonial career with the well wishes of teeir many friends.—Courier.

A granite shower was given Miss Bertha Dreher, a bride-to-be, by the Misses Mabel Cashbaugh and Ethel Suddick, at the latter's home, Thursday evening. The rooms were beautifully decorated in red and white. The evening was spent in games and contests, the first prize being awarded to Hazel Swinehart and the consolation to Bertha Dreher. An interesting feature was a number of strings which were wound through the room, each guest carefully followed their string to the end where there was a prize. A dainty two-course luncheon was served after which a flashlight was taken. The guests departed at a late hour, declaring their hostesses royal entertainers.—Twelfth District Press.

Wednesday County Clerk Austin issued marriage licenses to four young people from Auburn, all of whom were under twenty-one years of age, but were armed with written letters of consent from the parents, and the documents were procured. They are: Henry Stark aged 20 years, to Gertrude Wixson aged 16 years, and Floyd Eugene Praul, agee 20 years, to Zora Mea Ginder, aged 20 years. The youthful arpirants to matrimonial bliss are prominent in the social circles in the city where they will make their future home, and the bert wishes of all attend them.

John U. Maynard, former merchant at Columbia City, returned to that city last week and on Wednesday evening was united in marriage to Miss Myrtle Burkholder, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Burkholder, of Columbia City, and at one time a saleslady in his store. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs Charles Bordner. It was a very quiet little wedding, followed by a supper after which Mr. and Mrs. Maynard left for Gaston, where Mr. Maynard is now engaged in the undertaking business.—Whitley Co. News.

The marriage of Mrs. Eva Menaugh to John Raber took place at the Menaugh home last week on Thursday evening. Rev. A. A. Sutherland read the service which was witnessed by the bride's daughter and the groom's son, Miss Stella Menaugh and Gail Raber.—Whitley Co. News.

Spencerville

Mrs. Raymond Bowser is dangerously ill at present. Council was held Saturday night. Her case is doubtful so we understand.

Cal Means and Lloyd Stearns are cutting wood for S. M. High until the ice and snow gets off the down timber at L. W. Steward's then they will go back to Stewards and finish.

M. A. High sold two horses Friday to Peter Bros.

John Means is having quite a run in the justice of peace office at present. It is all right, the snow is so deep John can't get out to sell apple trees very well at present.

Homer Bowers will work for Mr. Squires next summer.

The new married folks near Rehobeth have not kissed and made up. Stop fooling, five days of honeymoon would be too short for me, thank you.

Charley Jackson and family Sundayed with C. B. Jackson and family.

Thomas Ricketts and wife spent Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. C. B. Jackson.

L. R. Wasson and wife and Geary Wasson, wife and children spent Saturday night with friends at St. John.

John Means, wife and daughter, Ida, spent Sunday with John Farner and family.

The Gratz lawsuit and divorce case will take place at Fort Wayne this week. It is a bad mixed up family affair.

Mrs. Calvin Means visited with her parents, Frank Stevens and family, Sunday.

Ad Kline don't have to wade the snow. He prefers to stay in his shop and take in the nickles. Ad is as happy as a chipmunk in a rye patch.

Charley Bishop is moving on the Huffman farm this week. There will be quite a lot of moving around this spring.

UNION TOWNSHIP WILL BE SUED

Auburn School Corporation Will Bring Action for Collection of Transfer Fees

The Auburn school corporation has instructed Attorney J. E. Rose to commence a suit in the DeKalb circuit court against Trustee Brandon and Union township for the collection of several hundred dollars alleged to be due to school corporation of Auburn for the transfer of scholars from the country to the city schools. The amount in controversy will aggregate between six hundred and nine hundred dollars, the exact amount not being known at this time. Trustee Brandon and the Auburn school board have been unable to reach an amicable agreement on the matter and therefor it has been decided to place the matter before the court for final settlement.

It is contended by the school board that the township is to be assessed according to benefits received, while by the township it is considered that compensation be made according to the length of time the pupils are in school. Without doubt a bitter legal battle will be waged before the matter is finally settled. The case will be fildd in the very near future.

Had Three Ribs Broken

John Willoughby, of Edon, Ohio, who came to Butler, Thursday, to get a load of buggies got his load on, and in crossing a railroad track near the factory the load upset catching Mr. Willoughby and pinning him to the ground. Four of the employes dragged the buggies off the injured man and it was found that three ribs were broken. Dr. Kramer was called and reduced the fracture. Later he was taken to his home.

Democratic Caucus

The democrats of precincts No. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 of Wilmington township are requested to meet at the city hall Butler, Indiana, Saturday, January 22 1910, at 1:30, to select township committeemen in accordance to official call of county chairman.

JOHN H. W. KRONTZ,
Township Chairman.

I would like an offer for any one, or all, of several houses in Butler, owned by people not living here. If you want a home, this is your chance.
Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

Notice to Non-Residents

State of Indiana, DeKalb County, ss:
In the DeKalb circuit court, March term, 1910, Anna Inhoof and Bertha Creager, Benjamin McDonald is Butler, Indiana; Hannah Skerwood, Ivan Mathews and Silas Mathews, Angola, Indiana; Alice Mathews, Terre Haute, Indiana; that the residence upon diligent inquiry is unknown of the defendants Charles Mathews, Sarrah Updike, Sarah Manahan, Mary Mathews, Albina Mathews, Henry Mathews, Amelia Mathews, Benjamin Mathews, Anna Carey, Elnora Toner, Martha J. Miller, S. Bruce Miller, whose true christian name to plaintiff is unknown; Oliver Hershiser, Sarah L. Hershiser, Oliver F. Hershiser, Jacob Landis, Leonard Shull, Jacob Shull.

The children, descendants and heirs, the surviving spouse, the creditors and administrators of the estate, the devisees, legatees, and trustees of the last will and testament and the successors in interest respectively of each of the following named and designated deceased persons, to-wit:

Martha J. Miller, S. Bruce Miller, whose true christian name to plaintiff is unknown, Oliver Hershiser, Sarah L. Hershiser, Oliver F. Hershiser, Jacob Landis, Leonard Shull, Jacob Shull.

The children, descendants and heirs, the surviving spouse, the creditors and administrators of the estate, the devisees, legatees, trustees and executors of the last will and testament and the successors in interest respectively of the deceased widow of each of the following named and designated deceased persons, to-wit: S. Bruce Miller, whose true christian name to plaintiff is unknown, Oliver Hershiser, Oliver F. Hershiser, Jacob Landis, Leonard Shull, Jacob Shull.

All of the women once known by any of the names and designations above stated who may have changed their names and who are not known by some other name, the names of whom are unknown to plaintiff.

The spouses of all the persons above named and designated as defendants to this action who are married, the names of whom are unknown to plaintiff are hereby notified that an action has been commenced against them in said court, to quiet title, release mortgage and sell real estate by Frank Creager executor of the last will and testament of Sarah Casey deceased, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 21st day of March, 1910, being the 13th juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences the 7th day of March, 1910.

Witness, the clerk of said court, this 19th day of January, 1910.

W. A. AUSTIN, Clerk.
E. B. DUNTEN, Plaintiff's Atty. 3-4

Itching Eczema Washed Away

Is it worth 25 cents to you to stop that awful, agonizing itch? Surely you will spend 25 cents on your druggist's recommendation, to cool and heal and soothe that terrible itching eruption?

By arrangement with the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago, we are able to make a special offer of a 25 cent bottle of their oil of wintergreen compound, known as D. D. D. Prescription. Call, or write, or telephone to Stone's drug store, Butler, Ind.

We absolutely know that the itch is stopped AT ONCE by D. D. D. Prescription, and the cures all seem to be permanent.

MURDER IN FIRST DEGREE

Life Imprisonment the Fate of Young Durgham Rizk

It required just thirty minutes for the circuit court jury to find Durgham Farris Rizk guilty of murder in the first degree and to fix his punishment at life imprisonment for the slaying of Salomon Sanwer, a fellow Syrian. Judge O'Rourke finished his charge to the jury at fifteen minutes of four o'clock, and it was just 4:15 when the jurors announced that they had reached a verdict. Rizk sat imperturbable as he listened to the verdict and betrayed no emotion. He quietly accompanied Deputy Sheriff Immel from the court room to the jail, where he will remain until Judge O'Rourke pronounces sentence, which will be some time this week. It is not likely that the case will be appealed. In fact his attorneys did not look for an acquittal, and their fight was made for a verdict of manslaughter, or at most, second degree murder.

The court room was crowded with Syrians when the verdict was announced, and after the jury had been dismissed and the court had adjourned a number of them came inside the railing and thanked Prosecuting Attorney Thomas for his work in the case.

P. B. Colerick and Edward G. Hoffman closed the arguments for the defense, both elaborating on the plea of self-defense and asking for clemency for their client. Mr. Thomas closed for the state and made a masterly plea. He did not ask for the infliction of the death penalty, but demanded a verdict of first degree murder and life imprisonment.—Journal-Gazette.

Those Pies of Boyhood

How delicious were the pies of boyhood. No pies now ever taste so good. What's changed? The pies? No, It's you. You've lost the strong, healthy stomach, the vigorous liver, the active kidneys, the regular bowels of boyhood. Your digestion is poor and you blame the food. What's needed? A complete toning up by Electric Bitters of all organs of digestion—Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels—Try them. They'll restore your boyhood appetite and appreciation of food and fairly saturate your body with new health, strength and vigor. 50c at Stone's drug store. 1-1m

TRANSFERS OF DEKALB COUNTY REAL ESTATE

For week ending January 15, 1910, by Charles O. Borst, Abstracter, Auburn, Indiana:

Butler Township—G. B. Skelkett, trustee, to R. & M. Weidler, pt. s w ¼ sec. 15, $400.

C. E. Surface to G. B. Skelkett, trustee, pt. s w ¼, sec. 15, $400.

Keyser Township—D. Yarde to F. Yarde, e ½ n w ¼, sec. 7, $2100.

R. Thomas, sheriff, to G. Shondel, n e ¼ s e ¼, sec. 9, $3000.

Smithfield Township—L. Fike to A. & W. Keeler, pt. s w ¼ n w ¼, sec. 6, $1.

J. Schlosser to M. Hohl, 30 acres off n side s ½ s e ¼ ex. 10 acres off front side 30 acres, sec. 9, $1050.

Wilmington Township—L. C. Fales et al to W. H. Jarred, e ½ n w ¼ n e ¼ and e ½ s w ¼ n e ¼, sec. 26, $3000.

Grant Township—J. R. Whirley to J. Schuster, w ½ n e ¼ and 7 acres off e side n w ¼, sec. 6. $5605.

City of Auburn—C. M. Brown to E. M. Wineland, pt. 143, w add., $550.

A. Kaplan to L. & I. Lane, 82 Wes. add., $1250.

City of Garrett—T. B. McGuire to A. and L. Geiger, 16 blo. 65 K. add., $1500.

A. W. Geiger to T. B. McGuire, 16 blo. 65 K. add., $1500.

Town of Ashley—F. S. Loenthall to J. and J. Hemick, lot 11 & 12 blo. 37, $750.

J. W. Camp ex. to I. Cox, 34 blo. 22, $20.

Town of Waterloo—J. H. Thomas to C. D. and J. B. Knisely, lot 4, Bassett's add., $1.

W. Meek to A. & M. Whirley, 141 H. add., $800.

W. Meek to G. Whirley, 30 feet off north side 140 H. add., $100.

City of Butler—C. P. Grisier to F. L. and F. A. Farnsworth, lot 272, O. P., $1.

City of Butler to A. G. Jones, pt. 192 Eg. add., $75.

G. Krontz to H. Krontz, 266, O. P., 7120.

Town of Altona—F. S. Hixon to M. L. Olinger, lot 6, Thomas E. add., $1500.

M. A. Solvine to W. Solvine et al, 9 Lisle add., $1.

Town of Sedan—A. C. Osbun to N. C. Benson, pt. lot 69, $100.

Town of Cedar—Ida Smith to G. & M. Lang, lot 4, O. P., $300.

Known By Other Names

There are no set of diseases so misnamed as those that pertain to the stomach, liver and bowels. Many think their nerves are deranged, their heart diseased, their kidneys weak, their blood impure, when in reality they have stomach or bowel trouble. Try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin, the wonderful regulator, and see how quickly you will find yourself cured. It is absolutely guaranteed to do what is claimed, and if you want to try it before buying, send your address for a free sample bottle to Pepsin Sprup Co., 119 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1 a bottle. 1-1m

"ANOTHER'S SHOES."

A Phrase That Had Its Origin In an Ancient Custom.

The expression "stepping into another's shoes," like many another common phrase, had its origin in an ancient custom.

The old Norse law required that a person to be adopted must step into a previously prepared shoe. This shoe was made from the skin taken from the right hind leg of a "three-winters-old bull."

The skin was flayed from above the hock, and out of this the shoe was made. The person to be adopted stepped into this shoe, taking into his arms one at a time, it is presumed, the younger sons of the man making the adoption. If there were also sons who were of age they stepped into the shoe afterward, by this sign showing their consent to the adoption.

A man in this way could adopt an illegitimate son, making him his lawful heir, but in that case the father was obliged to step into the shoe first. If there were any full grown sons, they stepped into the shoe afterward; if there were no full grown sons, then the next of kin did the stepping, and without his consent, by the way, this special adoption could not be made.

Witnesses to the ceremony in the use of the shoe were required to establish its legality.

It will be seen that this was considered an important ceremony, and since so much "shoe stepping" was done it is not strange that the expression as now used passed into common speech.—Chicago Record-Herald.

OSTRICH BATTLES.

The Great Birds, as Strong as Horses, Box With Their Feet.

Ostriches battle for supremacy with as much ferocity as stags, bulls, buffaloes and other animals. An ostrich fight is amusing, inasmuch as it amounts practically to a boxing match with the feet, wherein the combatants lightly dance around each other.

There is, however, this difference—if any human boxer could hit as hard with his hands as can an ostrich with its feet the championship would be decided by a single blow. In sparring the ostrich stands on one foot, with the other foot and the wings raised, the bill wide open and the neck distended. He strikes with the force of a trip hammer.

Sometimes on an ostrich farm a keeper will become involved in such a mixup, in which event it is not infrequently the case that the human emerges from the scrap with a broken leg, arm or head.

Under modern training an ostrich equals a horse in power and indeed can perform many of the "stunts" whereof his equine colleague is capable. In one respect, however, he excels the horse, for by the aid of its wings the ostrich can leave behind the swiftest running thoroughbred. In harness an ostrich has at Hot Springs, Ark., paced in about a horse's time.—Harper's Weekly.

His Unlucky Day.

Even the least superstitious are often struck by the misfortunes which attend some persons on certain dates. A large firm in the city has in its employ a living instance of the fact. On June 12 an employee lost his left arm by coming in contact with machinery. The accident disabled him for his then employment, and he was given that of a messenger. On another June 12 he was run over in the Strand while on an errand. Result, a broken leg. The next accident was a fall on the stairs in the firm's buildings—again June 12—the right arm broken this time. The fourth mishap on another anniversary broke three ribs. The firm took the case into consideration and issued an order that in future the employee was to take a holiday on that date, an order with which he has now complied for several years.—London Chronicle.

His Second Thought.

A politician named Blank got a place for a clerk during one of the sessions of the legislature of his state. The clerk was very grateful, says the Saturday Evening Post. At the end of the session he came around to Blank and said: "Mr. Blank, I want to tell you how much I am indebted to you for your kindness in getting me the place I have had. It meant more to me, Mr. Blank, than you may think. I thank you from the bottom of my heart. Also I want to say, Mr. Blank, that if there ever comes a time when I can do anything for you—anything at all—you are to command me. I will do anything you may ask me to do. I am at your service."

Blank thanked the man, and he started to go. As he reached the door he turned and said, "Of course, Mr. Blank, I would prefer that it should be something honorable."

Could Fill the Bill.

Superintendent—What we want is a night watchman that'll watch, alert and on the qui vive for the slightest noise or indications of burglars, somebody who can sleep with one eye and both ears open and is not afraid to tackle anything. See? Applicant—I see, boss. I'll send my wife around.—Lippincott's.

Took It Back.

"I give you my word, the next person who interrupts the proceedings," said the judge sternly, "will be expelled from the courtroom and ordered home."

"Hooray!" cried the prisoner.

Then the judge pondered.—Judge.

More than we use is more than we need and only a burden to the bearer.—Seneca.

NEW YORK CLIPPER

IS THE GREATEST THEATRICAL & SHOW PAPER IN THE WORLD.

$4.00 Per Year. Single Copy, 10 Cts.

ISSUED WEEKLY.

SAMPLE COPY FREE.

FRANK QUEEN PUB. CO. (Ltd), PUBLISHERS,

ALBERT J. BORIE, MANAGER, 47 W. 28TH ST., NEW YORK.

A PADEREWSKI STORY.

The Great Musician's First Important Engagement In Paris.

Paderewski's first really important engagement as a pianist was in Paris. He was engaged to play in the drawing room of a lady famous for her musicales, and his fee, which seemed to him enormous, was $20. He managed to persuade the humane agent to pay him in advance, and when Paderewski had redeemed his dress suit from pawn and paid for shoes, gloves, tie and other essentials he had no money left for cab hire, so he was forced to walk to the scene of his engagement.

The music loving audience inspired him. He played with feeling, passion and mastery of his instrument as never before. His success was instant and unmistakable. The poor player had suddenly become the lion of the hour, his dream had become a reality, and fame and fortune were assured him.

At last after disengaging himself from his admirers he turned to leave, when his hostess, remembering with regret the smallness of the fee for so marvelous a performance, offered him her carriage for his return home. But Paderewski's pride came to the rescue. In his courteous yet reserved way he made a formal bow, and, saying, "No, thank you, madame; my own is waiting," he stepped out for his long walk homeward.—Pearson's Weekly.

SCARED THE OLD SAVAGE.

Ruse That Saved Dr. Felkin From King Mtesa of Uganda.

When the well known African traveler Dr. Robert Felkin was staying with the bloodthirsty King Mtesa of Uganda many years ago the king, out of gratitude for his visitor's medical treatment, wished to cut off his head. On Dr. Felkin representing that the treatment was not finished and that if interrupted it would cause Mtesa's death the latter granted him a reprieve until he was quite recovered. Then, however, nothing availed, and the execution was determined upon.

Emin Pasha, who was a friend of Dr. Felkin, had instructed him most accurately about the state of affairs in Uganda and the court of King Mtesa and had revealed to him an important state secret—namely, where Mtesa's powder store was hidden. Dr. Felkin remembered this at the right moment and as a last resort threatened that if Mtesa killed him he would bring down a flash of lightning upon his powder store. Mtesa replied incredulously, "Tell me where it is," whereupon Dr. Felkin whispered in his ear, "It is concealed under your harem."

Mtesa turned pale and allowed Felkin and his companions to live. The "lightning maker's" authority increased when next day a flash of lightning happened to strike near the harem.

Fooled the Town.

University students have long enjoyed a reputation as practical jokers, but there has been nothing quite so successful as the famous sultan of Zanzibar hoax of some years ago at Cambridge. One day the mayor of the town received the following wire from one Henry Lucas, Hotel Cecil, London: "The sultan of Zanzibar will arrive at Cambridge at 4:27 for a short visit. Could you arrange to show him buildings of interest and send carriage?" The mayor rose to the occasion, and in due course four dark complexioned gentlemen with turbans and voluminous trousers arrived at Cambridge. The mayor and corporation entertained them right royally, but to their chagrin they discovered a few hours later that the interesting orientals were simply a quartet of undergraduates who had played an immense practical joke upon the town.—London Spectator.

The Seat of Punctuation.

At the time Colonel Roosevelt was carrying on his simplified spelling movement in Washington there was a meeting of educators at Battle Creek, Mich., and they visited the great sanitariums there. They were shown through, and particular stress was laid by the guide on the success that attended operations there on enlarged and diseased colons, it being claimed that here was the seat of most disease. There was a banquet that night, and one of the visitors opened his speech like this:

"Washington, as we all know, is the seat of spelling reform; but, I take it, Battle Creek is bound to be the seat of punctuation reform, for, as we were told today, you come here with a colon and you depart with a semicolon."—Saturday Evening Post.

A Duke at Church.

There was a certain old duke who used to sit up in the left hand gallery with his duchess, believing himself to be incog. One Sunday a too officious steward, on seeing the old nobleman take a back seat, hurried up to him and said, "Will not your grace have a better seat?"

"Come along, Maria!" said the old duke. "We're discovered!" And he immediately walked out with the duchess and never showed his face inside the church again.—London Tatler.

Gave It Back.

Mrs. A. (maliciously)—You were such a charming debutante, my dear, fifteen years ago. Mrs. B.—Was I? I only remember you made such a lovely chaperon for me when I came out.—Boston Transcript.

He Wondered.

Indignant Customer—I want to return this jewel box. It's not ivory, as represented. Dealer (musingly)—Now, I wonder if it can be possible that elephant had false teeth.—Cleveland Leader.

W. S. Troyer

Auctioneer and Salesman

Leave orders at this office or Central Grocery.

I speak three different languages.

A RUSSIAN PRISONER.

Experience of a Man Who Was Chained to a Wheelbarrow.

In writting of the Schluesselburg prison in McClure's Magazine David Soskice tells of a prisoner who was chained to a wheelbarrow:

"Schedrin had been condemned to hard labor in the convict mines of Siberia and for an attempt to escape from there had been sentenced to be chained to a heavy wheelbarrow. When the order came for his transfer from Siberia to St. Petersburg no conveyance could be found large enough to contain him, the wheelbarrow and the convoy of gendarmes. Yet, as the wheelbarrow had become a part of the prisoner, the gendarmes were afraid to leave it behind. It was therefore decided to place Schedrin with his convoy in one cart and the wheelbarrow behind in another. For several months, day and night, Schedrin and the gendarmes galloped through Siberia upon a troika (a three horsed cart or sledge), while another sped behind them upon which the wheelbarrow reposed, causing the deepest amazement among the peasants in the villages through which they passed. Upon the arrival of the prisoner in SS. Peter and Paul he was once again chained to the barrow, and only after he had been six weeks in the Schluesselburg was he finally detached from it and given freedom of movement within the narrow confines of his cell.

"'When they unchained me,' said Schedrin subsequently, 'I could not get enough movement. I wanted to run and run, and it seemed to me that I could never stop. How strange it is that men who can enjoy perfect freedom of movement never realize the wonderful happiness that is theirs.'"

HENRY CAVENDISH.

A Recluse, He Lived Far From the Madding Crowd.

Henry Cavendish, the famous natural philosopher and chemist, was a recluse who astonished England.

A son of Lord Charles Cavendish and a nephew of the third Duke of Devonshire, possessed of enormous wealth, the subject of universal admiration because of his scientific attainments, he preferred the solitude of his study and the company of his books to the pleasures society could offer him.

For many years he lived at Hampstead in a large, roomy house, attended by a number of female servants, who, however, were strictly enjoined to keep out of his sight. If a domestic by the merest chance came into the presence of Cavendish she was instantly dismissed.

Every morning the philosopher would leave a note on the hall table naming what he wanted for dinner. No one saw him place the note there; but, accustomed to the strange customs of the establishment, the meal would be prepared, and only the remains of the repast signified the presence of the master of the house.

When Cavendish died in 1810 he left behind him nearly a million pounds sterling, besides a lasting reputation as a scientist and writer on natural philosophy.—London Telegraph.

Chrysanthemums.

Chrysanthemums stand fourth in commercial importance among flowers. Only the rose, the violet and the carnation surpass them, and that chiefly because the chrysanthemum season is so short, while the others can be had from the florist nearly the whole year round. Greece gave us the name. Chrysanthemum means "golden flower." But the name was invented long before the big butter yellow globes were known in the occident. It referred to the prevailing gold in the small varieties that were known. Strangely enough, the first chrysanthemum brought into Europe was not gold, but purple. It was a small flower about two inches across, shaped like an aster. Somebody took it to Europe from China in 1790—and, presto, the modern history of chrysanthemums was begun.—Argonaut.

Why He Could Beat McGregor.

Alexander Ure, the lord advocate of Scotland, is a keen golfer, and he has a good store of golfing tales. These he is always ready to relate, even if they tell against himself.

Playing on a certain course in Scotland, he remarked incidentally to his caddie: "By the way, I played a round with Todd McGregor the last time I was here. Grand player, McGregor!"

"Aye," said the caddie, "but ye could bate McGregor the noo."

"Do you think so?" exclaimed the gratified lord advocate, being well aware of McGregor's prowess.

"Aye," drawled the caddie. "McGregor's deid."—Golfing.

How Customs Vary.

She—In some parts of Australia when a man marries each of the bride's relatives strikes him with a stick by way of welcome into the family. He—Yes, and in many parts of America when a man marries each of the bride's relatives strikes him with a loan by way of welcoming him into the family.—New York Times.

The Glad Hand.

"What do you mean by the glad hand?"

"Anything," answered Mr. Bloochips, "that will beat three of a kind."—Washington Star.

A Dull Point.

Blobbs—Sapheddie is always talking about his point of view. Slobbs—Yes, but unfortunately it isn't sharp enough to penetrate anything.—Philadelphia Record.

Let us watch all our beginnings, and results will manage themselves.—Clark.

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS

WITH Dr. King's New Discovery

FOR COUGHS & COLDS

PRICE 50c & $1.00 Trial Bottle Free

AND ALL THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.

GUARANTEED SATISFACTORY OR MONEY REFUNDED.

JANUARY

L1134

0454

butler public library

THE DEKALB COUNTY HERALD

VOLUME XLI — BUTLER, DEKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, FRIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1910 — NUMBER 4

DANIEL W. WEITZ, President — HENRY M. SHOWALTER, Vice-President — WALTER SNIDER, Cashier
AMOS SNYDER, Vice-President — ALBERT L. SHULTZ, Vice-President

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK
BUTLER, INDIANA
Capital Paid Up $25,000.00. Your Business Respectfully Solicited.

SHOE SUPREMACY

Supremacy in any line of business is not attained through any act of providence—it's the inevitable result of right kind of management, fair dealing with the pur[illegible]g public, and having the right goods at right prices. We call your attention to a selection of some of the highest class of shoes that are manufactured—lines that assure you the perfect fit and the best of weariag qualities. The prices you will find no higher than you will be asked for the other kinds.

BURT AND PACKARD

Men's Burt and Packard guaranteed "BURRO JAPS" Shoes in both patent and dull leather. There is no leather made that will outwear "BURRO JAP." It has the finest finish of any leather produced.

LA FRANCE

The Ladies' Goodyear Flexible Welts in LaFrance Shoes have to be worn in order to find out the ease and comfort they give. Just as flexible as a turn single sole shoe, and more comfortable and restful to the foot.

RED SCHOOL HOUSE

The Children's "RED SCHOOL HOUSE" Shos have been some of the best wearing shoes that we have ever nandled. We have them in patents as well as dull leather. In style and finish they are equal to any.

J.C.BROWN&SON

The Central Grocery

Is Always in Line with Fresh
Staple and Fancy Groceries

Trade With Us and You will be Satisfied

Always Fresh

Perfection Wafers — Perfection Chocolates
Ginger Cookies — Graham Wafers
Raisin Cookies — Vanilla Wafers
Snow Gems — Ginger Snaps

Potato Crisps that are always fresh
Bulk Olives, the best in the market

Don't forget about those SUPERIOR HERRING that we sell for
6c per Pound
We are headquarters for the DENISON SUPERLATIVE COFFEES
Prices 20, 25, 30 and 35c

PRESTON & PRESTON
PHONE 91

The Season
For Coughs and Colds
Is At Hand

And we wish to call your attention to the fact that our stock contains all the cough and cold remedies that are good of their kind embracing such staple ones as

Foley's Cough Remedy — Drake's Cough Remedy
King's Cough Remedy — Shiloh's Cough Remedy
Kilmer's Cough Remedy — Marshalls' Cough Remedy
DeWitts' Cough Remedy — Allen's Cough Remedy
Kennedy's Cough Remedy — Laxative Bromo Quinine
Jayne's Cough Remedy — Hill's Cascaria Quinine

And also A. D. S. Cold and LaGrippe Remedy. Every box of which is guaranteed.

STONE'S DRUG STORE
Your Money Back If Not Satisfactory

CUPID'S PRANKS RECORDED HERE

The members of the Baptist church of Kendallville were very much surprised when their pastor, Rev. E. P. Boydton, at the Wednesday evening prayer meeting introduced a young lady as "Mrs. Boynton." It was known that he was to be married soon but it turned out a surprise to the congregation. The wedding took place at Kalamazoo, Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, the bride being Miss Iva Barber, of that city. She is the daughter of a prominent merchant of that city and is a charming young woman. Rev. and Mrs. Boynton went to Chicago to-day and on their return Saturday will commence housekeeping in a home on Clark street.

Edward J. Hatch, of Garrett, and Miss Jessie Crow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Crow, were married Tuesday morning, January 18, at seven o'clock at St. Patrick's church, Rev. Father Abel officiating. Guy McLaughlin, of this place and Miss Bessie Hardedbrook, of Gary, Ind., were the attending couple. Mr. and Mrs. Hatch are both well known and highly esteemed in Walkerton, Mr. Hatch being an engineer on the B. & O., while the bride, a young lady of charm and amiability, has lived here nearly all her life and is prominent in social and musical circles. They left on the 8:10 train for Chicago for a short trip after which they will go to Garrett where they will make their home.—Walkerton Exchange.

From a pauper one day to a man worth $10,000 in his own right the next is the change in circumstances Fritz Hardekopf of Webster City Iowa has experienced. His marriage to Mrs. Wilhelmina Lena Metter has raised him from a county charge to a man of comfortable wealth. Some thirty-five years ago relatives in Germany left several thousand dollars to be paid to Hardekopf the day he was married, however, the man never had the nerve to ask any woman to be his wife, and for years he he had been so poor that he was supported by the board of supervisors of Grundy county But finnally an old playmate, who knew Hardekopf fifty years ago in the fatherland, asked him to marry her. He consented, and now he is entitled to the wedding gift left him, which has grown to $10,000.

Married, at six o'clock Tuesday evening, January 25, 1910, at the U. B. parsonage, Rev. F. P. Overland officiating, Mr. Earl Hevel and Miss Nellie Metzler. After the ceremony the bride and groom called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roman Henkey, on Lockhart avenue, where Mrs. H., aunt of Mr. Hevel, had assembled twenty relatives and friends to give the newly married couple a reception. A two course supper was served, and the joy and felicity was that appropriate to the ringing of the marriage bells. Everybody was happy and the supper was well prepared and a feature of the occasion. The congratulations extended to Mr. and Mrs. Hevel were heartily given, all whishing them a happy voyage through life.—Waterloo Press.

The Death of Warren Austin

Warren L. Austin, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Austin, of Auburn died at an early hour Sunday morning after a tortuous illness extending over the past four weeks. At the age of 19 years this young man ceases to live and complete the career that looked so promising, and in death he will be regarded as he lived—honored and respected by all.

Deceased is the only son of DeKalb county's clerk, to whom a wide circle of friends extend warmest of sympathy in his loss of an only son. Funeral services will be conducted this afternoon at one o'clock from the late home.—Press.

Those Pies of Boyhood

How delicious were the pies of boyhood. No pies now ever taste so good. What's changed? The pies? No. It's you. You've lost the strong, healthy stomach, the vigorous liver, the active kidneys, the regular bowels of boyhood. Your digestion is poor and you blame the food. What's needed? A complete toning up by Electric Bitters of all organs of digestion—Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels—Try them. They'll restore your boyhood appetite and appreciation of food and fairly saturate your body with new health, strength and vigor. 50c at Stone's drug store. 1-1m

BUTLER OUTLOOK THE BEST EVER

Will Butler Boom the Coming Summer---Well Yes We Rather Think So

The outlook for a substantial growth, or boom in Butler the coming summer is very flattering, and why not? Is there any good reason why our city should not grow and increase in population the next four months? No, there is none whatever, the fact is she is bound to boom—the new industries located here this winter and the continuous growth of the old ones justifies such belief.

The Butler Company, who now are occupying every available foot of space in both departments, are forced to build an addition to each of their big factories and this will be commenced just as soon as spring opens. Just how large the new buildings will be we are unable to say, but they will be of concrete and modern in every way.

Also both the gas engine and concrete mixer companies expect to enlarge their plants. The latter concern has already organized and begun operation. They have one of their late improved machines ready for a trial test and the same will be on exhibition at the big cement show which will be held at the coliseum in Chicago, February 18. This concern has already brought two families to this city from Jackson, Mich., and more will follow.

J. George Wagner, manager of the gas engine company, will move his family here just as soon as his wife who has been quite seriously ill is able to move. They are receiving material and intend to begin turning out their engines just as quickly as possible.

And this is not all, the Butler Basket Co. and the Butler Ice Cream Co. are all prosperous concerns which will come in for their share of the boom.

And now another industry is proposed for our city. Herman Groscup, of Garrett, a man who has spent several years in the tile and brick industry, has shipped three barrels of clay from here to Bucyrus, Ohio, to be analyzed. A couple of weeks ago small quantities of the clay were sent away for a test, but the quantities were too small to give it a fair test. If the clay proves to be satisfactory, and it is thought that it will, Mr. Groscup will put in a tile and brick yard that will employ eighteen or twenty men. One nice thing about the tile and brick industry the material will be home product, and about the only money that will be sent away from Butler to keep it running will be for coal and oil to run the machinery. Watch for the big smoke next summer.

Install Officers

Last Saturday evening the Modern Woodman and Royal Neighbors installed their officers for the year. Marion Knepper was installing officer and James Firestone marshal for the Woodman, and Ella Hall and Maud Krontz for the Royal Neighbors which they did in a most impressive manner.

After the installation toasts were given by Mr. Firestone, Rev. Albertson and Mr. Beard after which Mr. Firestone, in a very appropriate speech, presented Sherman Robinett a beautiful watch fob in their appreciation of him as venerable council for the past year.

There were about 125 present to which a banquet by the gentlemen was nicely served, also found a very agreeable place in the evening's festivities to which all did ample justice.

The Royal Neighbors wish to thank the Modern Woodman for their invitation to install with them.

ONE WHO WAS THERE.

Notice to Rural Route Patrons

The following notice has been received from the postoffice department:

"In view of the extent to which the practice of placing loose coins in boxes by rural patrons has grown and the delay in the delivery and collection of mail and the hardship imposed on rural carriers incident thereto, you are informed that commencing February 15, proximo, rural letter carriers will not be required to collect loose coins from rural mail boxes."

Mrs. Haverstock Injured

Thursday morning Mrs. Anderson Haverstock slipped and fell on the sidewalk, striking the back of her head and cutting a gash about two inches long and quite deep. Dr. Kramer was called and it took several stitches to close up the wound. She is suffering considerable pain at this writing.

UNNATURAL FATHER SUED BY DAUGHTER

An Atrocious Crime is Charged in Civil Suit for Damages

Abram Moser, guardian for Myrtle Platter aged 18, has brought an action in the circuit court against Alexander Platter, father of the girl, for damages in the sum of $2,000 for a criminal assault commited by the father on his daughter. The complant alleges incest and sets out that the father forced the girl to submit to his unnatural desires on various occasions, the first part of which took place when the girl was but 14 years old.

Platteris a man of about 50 years of age and resides on a farm in Concord township in this county. He has an unsavory reputation, having been in trouble obout a year ago for an alleged assault on a neighbor, and at that time he resisted the efforts of the sheeiff to arrest him. His former wife, the mother of myrtle, secured a divorce from him and he married again.

The guardian commenced the civil suit. Mr. moser is an uncle of the girl. It is probable a criminal action will be begun against Platter.

SCHOOL NOTES

Pithy Paragraphs From Our Public Schools

FRESHMEN NOTES

We poor Freshies are all wondering why that poor old Greek, Linnaeus, whom Mr. Austin calls "The Father of Botany" didn't die when he was a baby. It would have saved so much trouble.

(Mr. Bean)—"I was down in one of the lower grades this morning watching some little fellows trying to multiply by six. One little fellow didn't have a single figure right, and I was reminded of my Commercial arithmetic class."

Never! Oh never before did we so dread the sight of Miss A.'s little book.

Audra Greenwalt was absent Monday.

(Mr. A. in Botany Class)—"I will not explain this further, as it is rather complex." Evidently he considers our minds too infantile to grasp anything complex, and though we don't agree with him we are glad he thinks so.

News From Butler Fanciers Club

Our next meeting will be Feb. 1, at 7:30 p. m. All members are requested to be present as things important will come up. The first thing will be the egg laying contest for January.

George Stout has rather the best of the boys up to date, but Dan Diehl says he will make him go up in the air before they come under the wire if his hobbels don't break.

John Brown is out of the race. His Philo systems were snowed under. Melroy did not get a heat and was ruled off. The rest of the boys said they did not have time to count their eggs only at meal time and Barber said he was away so much he had lost out on that.

John Mitchell, who lives over in the flood district, talks of joining the club and raising ducks. He says if he keeps chickens he will have to build a boat or get an airship.

But now the worst member we have for truth and varasity is a barber on the corner of Broadway and Main street. He was displaying an egg around the burg the other day about the size of a pumpkin, and he said it was enough egg to last his family a week, but now some of the members say it was a fake so he will be pulled upon the carpet at our first meeting.

We understand that Henry Witt showed chickens at Detroit and got his birds back. Lucky boy.

Some of the boys will show their birds at Toledo this week, and they say they will show Toledo that they have the goods and if they win will report at first meeting, if they don't you will know why.

One of our reporters will give a write-up of our next meeting if we don't end up in a row.

ONE THAT EXPECTS TO BE THERE

Notice

All persons receiving notice to take the examination for census enumerator are requested to be at the Butler high school building by 1 p. m., Saturday, February 5, 1910.

W. A. Craun has made application for notary public papers. A number of the G. A. R. boys requested that he become a notary so as to make out their pension papers.

DOINGS OF THE COURT

(From Auburn Courier of Friday.)

In the matter of the unsoundness of mind of Levi Husselman, the defendant appeared in open court this morning and was adjudged to be of unsound mind, as contended, and incapable of managing his own estate.

The court therefore appointed John B. Hawkins as his guardian an committed to his charge the management of the estate. Mr. Hawkins filed bond in the sum of one hundred dollars and qualified. Cassius Coats was the petitioner in the matter.

Judge Bratton granted a divorce decree to Sarah E. Sewell from her husband, John B. Sewell, in court this morning, and restored her maiden name, Sarah E. Steele. The defendant will be remembered as the man who some time ago gave out the erroneous statement that he was contemplating suicide and subsequently left for the north. It was thought that he was mentally unbalanced. He did not appear in the case and the decree was granted by default.

Dr. Stoehr, the Garrett druggist who was tried in the circuit court last week upon the charge of selling liquor illegally, has filed a bond in the sum of one hundred dollars for his appearance in court during the March term, the jury having disagreed in the first trial.

A marriage license was issued to Ora Grogg and Mary Weihmuller by Clerk Austin this morning.

The jury in the Woodring case was instructed this morning and retired to their roam at 10:30 o'clock.

Deputy Sheriff John Hoff has returned from Jeffersonville, Indiana, where he placed Clarence O. Reeder in the hands of the officials of the reformatory. The young man will at least remain as a prisoner there for two years, this being the minimum period under the statute.

Not until he was placed in the cage at the reformatory and searched did the Reeder youth realize the awful predicament he had gotten himself into, and there in the presence of the prison officials he wept bitterly. He was assigned to a cell and a Bible given to him by his mother when he left was returned to the mother, the officials assuring the lad that he would be furnished with Biblical literature.

While at the reformatory Mr. Hoff examined the record of Marion Howey who is confined there, and ascertained that he has been a model prisoner. The record is a very good one and if maintained he will no doubt be liberated at the very earliest opportunity.

Notice

Chicago, Ill., January 24, 1910.

Effective February 1, 1910, Mr J. W. Daly is appointed assistant passenger traffic manager, with headquarters at LaSalle Street Station, Chicago.

W. J. LYNCH,
Passenger Traffic Manager.

Approved:
C. F. DALY, Vice-President.

A Busy Man

has no time to spend in a tailor shop having his clothes "fitted" and "altered"—the ancient methods employed by the small local tailor.

All this can be avoided by having your clothes made to order by

Strauss Brothers
MASTER TAILORS
CHICAGO

All you need to do is to step into our store and select a pattern from their beautiful new Spring line of fine woolens, let us take your measure, and in a very short time you will receive a suit perfect in every way.

Absolute satisfaction guaranteed or no pay.

Let us demonstrate!

The Racket Store

We would Rather Show You Than Tell You

So our invitation to inspect our stock is always in force, and it includes everybody. These's no special day, no best time to look at our

... Furniture ...

Come any time that you please, and stay as long as you are interested. We claim that this stock of ours will do its own arguins, and we would far rather show you than tell you.

A. F. BRINDLEY
Furniture and Undertaking

The Rexall Store — GEDDES' DRUG STORE — Always at Your Service

It's Easy to write a good letter when your paper, pens and ink are all friendly.

Eaton-Hurlbut
Writing Papers

the "PAPERS THAT APPEAL," make polite correspondence a pleasure. Most people just now are asking us for Twotone and Highland Linen. There are other styles you may like even better. Come in and see them.

GEDDES' DRUG STORE
West Side Broadway — Phone 31

Butler's New Cigar
Red Star
A PLEASANT SMOKE
For Sale by Dealers and at the Factory
TRY ONE
And Help a Home Industry
W. H. GRINDLE, Manufact'r

Advertised Letters

Mr. Jos. E. Leib.
Mrs. Jennie Leib.
Geo. W. Miller.

THOS. RUDD, Postmaster.

Why Salves Fail to Cure Eczema

Scientists are now agreed that the eczema germs are lodged not in the outer skin or epidermis, but in the inner skin. Hence, a penetrating liquid is required, not an outward salve that clogs the pores.

We recommend to all eczema patients the standard prescription Oil of Wintergreen as compounded in liquid form known as D. D. D. Prescription. A trial bottle of this D. D. D. Prescription, at only 25 cents, will instantly relieve the itch. We have sold and recommended this remedy for years, and know of wonderful cures from its use. We recommend it to our patrons. Stone's Drug Store, Butler, Ind.

Ladies shampoo and massage. First class barber work and baths. West side Broadway, Tomlinson's old stand. Give us a call. M. J. Harrigan, Prop.

JANUARY

0455

L1134

FEMININE FANCIES
THINGS OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Women Who Are Disgruntled.

A writer in the Baltimore Star has an excellent article on the discontent of the average woman. She says:

"Women are discontented because they are bad losers. There is not one woman in a million that's got a drop of sporting blood in her veins. When she doesn't win out—I say it in shame for my sex—she welches. This is particularly true in matrimony.

"Most of the fretful, discontented women are married women, and their complaint is about the monotony of domestic life. They wail out that they are always doing tasks that have to be done right over again. That they are cooking meals that are no sooner cooked than eaten; sweeping floors that have to be swept up again; darning socks that have got holes in them the next day, and washing baby faces that have got bread and jam on them in ten minutes.

"True, domestic life is monotonous. So is every other kind of work in the world that one follows for a living. The bookkeeper adds up one column of figures after another the year around. The shoemaker makes thousands of pairs of shoes one after another. The merchant wrestles with the same cranky customers day in and day out. The grinding monotony of a woman's work in the house is not a bit more wearying than a man's is at his table or desk, yet men get pleasure out of their work, and women get nothing but discontent out of theirs.

"It is because they are lying down on their jobs. They are not being dead game sports. They dope it out on some fool system that, although matrimony may mean work, for them it is going to be some sort of a gilded romance, and when it isn't, when they find out that they've got to do without some of the things they wanted, and do a lot of things they don't want to do, they put up a howl about what poor, persecuted creatures they are.

"Women are discontented because they are too self-conscious. They spend their time vivisecting their emotions. They coddle their misfortunes and make pets and playthings of their sorrows, and they are never so happy as when they are miserable.

"The minute any of us stop to ask ourselves if we are happy and satisfied, the answer is bound to be "No." Because there is no human being so blessed as not to have some sore spot in his or her heart, some void in life, some crumpled rose leaf under the forty mattresses of ease. Yet women who know this fact perfectly well aggravate whatever ingrowing trouble they have in their lives by continually harping upon it.

"What women need more than anything else in the world is to be taught the gospel of happiness. They need to have it impressed upon them that discontent is cowardice, and that if they don't like the conditions by which they are surrounded it is up to them to change things. Otherwise to shut up. To whine about a thing and still bear it is to act the part of a cur dog.

"Women also need to have it borne in upon them that the woman who goes off in the summer with the children, who visits mother occasionally, who can get off two or three afternoons a week to shop, or go to the matinee, or play bridge, and who still complains of the monotony of her lot to a man who shows up at his office as regular as a clock for 313 days a year certainly has her nerve with her.

"The remedy for the discontented women is to put some heart in their work, and to keep house with intelligence instead of making it a dreary round of drudgery. And, above all, to quit thinking about themselves so much. Work and unselfishness—they pace the road to happiness."

A Venomed Tongue.

In truthful numbers be she sung,
The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue;
Concerning whom Fame hints at things
Told but in shrugs and whisperings;
Ambitious from her natal hour,
And scheming all her life for power;
With little left of seemly pride;
With venomed fangs she can not hide:
Who half makes love to you to-day,
To-morrow gives her guest away,
Burnt up within by that strange soul
She can not slake, or yet control;
Malignant-lipp'd, unkind, unsweet;
Past all example indiscreet;
Hectic, and always overstrung—
The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue.
—William Watson.

This Is the Reason.

Women often wonder why lace curtains or those of net in an open pattern give better service than such materials as fine scrim, cotton voile or dotted muslin, and the reason is that closely woven fabrics, being opaque, catch the sun's rays directly and in full force. This heat in time weakens or burns the threads, while the open weaves, allowing as they do the entrance of the sun's rays, filtering through, escape much of the scorching, as they do not receive the full force of the heat.

Wife Is More Popular.

In Columbus, Ohio, a funny thing happened election day. Mrs. Joseph Bachman was a candidate for the Board of Education, and her husband was candidate for City Solicitor. The wife had five opponents, yet she beat them all with a total vote of 7,675 votes. Her husband had only three opponents, but scored only 574 votes, being beaten in his home ward by 34 votes, while his wife won in her own ward with 865 votes. Her vote, with one exception, was the highest on the ticket. She is a lawyer herself.

Woman's Inspiration.

In all ages woman has been the source of all that is pure, unselfish and heroic in the life and spirit of man. It was for her love Mark Antony lost the world; it was for her love that Jacob of old toiled seven years; Helen conquered Troy, and plunged all the nations of antiquity into war, and gave the earliest, as it is still the grandest, epic which has come down to us through all ages. Poetry, music and fiction are based upon woman's love, and all the movements of history are mainly due to the sentiments or ambitions she has inspired. From the hearthstone, around which lingers the recollections of our mother, from the fireside, where our wife awaits us, comes all the home, all the purity, all the courage with which we fight the battles of life.

Stylish Foulard Gown.

Dotted wistaria satin foulard was used to make the gown from which this model was sketched. Plain satin-covered buttons are elaborately used for decoration, and the Empire waist line is defined by a band of velvet (several shades darker than ground of material) attached in front at bust line by two huge amethyst buttons. Chemisette and stock are white Irish crochet lace.

Working Girls as Wives.

"The working girl makes the best wife in the world." This is the firm assertion of Miss Mary MacArthur, president of the Women's Trade Union League of Great Britain.

Miss MacArthur is a remarkable woman. Not yet 30, she has been interested in trade unionism among women for more than ten years and has practically built up the English organization, of which she is president, and now numbers fully 210,00 women. It is a very big and definite force in English labor movements.

And in defiance of all the doleful masculine prognostications that girls and women who work outside the home are thereby unfitted for the natural feminine functions of wifehood and motherhood, Miss MacArthur reiterates: "It is the workingwomen who make the best wives—and the best mothers, too," she adds composedly.

"It is the working woman every time who first of all, starts out with a wise marriage. She marries for love and for friendship and for respect—not just for the sake of a man—any man who will bestow the light of his countenance upon her."—Kansas City Journal.

Women as Inventors.

A writer in Cassier's Magazine celebrates the inventive skill of women. He notes in the long list of mechanical devices "springing from the fertile brain of American womanhood" a machine for driving barrel hoops, a steam generator, a baling press, a steam and fume box, an automatic floor for elevator shafts, a rail for street railways, an electric apparatus, packing for piston rods, locomotive wheels, a railway tie, a stock car, a boring machine for drilling gun stocks, etc. That is all very well, but no woman has ever invented a machine that will button her up the back. She has to marry a man to get that done with neatness and dispatch.

Relieving the Mind.

There is nothing so terrible as the concentration of thought and energy in one channel. Sometimes a particular subject fastens on the mind with a terrible intensity. It lays an iron grasp upon the spirit. Night and day the victim is never free. He dreams of one thing by night, he awakens to it in the morning, all the day it grips him and refuses to let go. If that continues long enough the end is madness. Live too much in the circle of fellow workers and you never escape the pressure of thought and work.—The Day Book of Claudius Clear.

Origin of Blankets.

Bristol, during the reign of Edward III., had three merchants living in the town whose name was Blanket. They were woolen weavers, and the first people to make the material which ever since has been called by their name. It was first used for making peasants' clothing.

For Grass Stains.

During the summer the children will sit and roll on the grass, and frequently the grass stains are most obstinate. It is said that if the spotted portion of the garment is soaked in alcohol there is nothing more effective in removing such stains.

Women in Professions.

Women in large industrial enterprises, in real estate, in mines, in agriculture, in banks, in all occupations where men make millions, are to-day also making millions. Now the professional women begins to bid fair to rival the professional man in her returns from the profession.

It has not been many years since lawyers as professional men began to make huge fees. It has been fewer years since the first woman lawyer, Belva Lockwood, achieved fame. But already women lawyers are achieving not only fame, but fees. Last June Miss Mary E. Miller, a Chicago lawyer and suffragette, won a $30,000 fee on a $3,000,000 lawsuit over the estate of the late William Bross. She has been admitted to the bar only thirteen years.

In Boston the women have a board of trade of their own. In New York last September the International Federation of Business Women was organized. There is also the Professional Woman's League and scores of other such organizations. Women are banding themselves in unions. They have invaded all but seven of the many occupations enumerated in the census reports.

And now they are capturing one of man's choicest strongholds—the position of being a self-made American millionaire.—Bookkeeper.

Needlework Notes.

Birdseye stitch is an effective outline stitch.

A dainty jabot is of green tulle with a batted lace bow.

Raffia embroidery is one of the popular novelties of the season.

Spanish embroidery is wonderfully effective on a white linen shirt waist.

A color and color-number card is a useful accessory of the sewing basket.

Ivory rings are better for fancy work than the brass ones, as they do not tarnish.

Honiton applique, in a dainty bow-knot and flower design made a pretty baby's cap.

A combination of French and eyelet embroidery is extremely pretty on dainty lingerie.

A dainty necktie end of sheerest mull had a hemstitched hem and a little flower form in shadow embroidery.

Crossbar muslin with hand-embroidered scalloped edges makes a dainty and serviceable school apron for a small girl.

A fancy letter for marking towels is made of slanting satin stitch. French knots and feather and outline stitches.

An unusual and pretty handkerchief is of sheer white linen with a wide border of hemstitching forming checks of an even size.

For the marking of household linen the regular marking cotton which comes for the purpose should be used. It is much more satisfactory than linen thread.

"The Dollar Princess" Hat.

"Merry Widow" hats lived a long time in the hearts of those who are addicted to large hats, but they had their day and are now almost forgotten. "The Dollar Princess" turban comes to take the place of the "Merry Widow" hat, and it is most artistic. It is created of draped velvet covered with chiffon, and the three large ostrich tips fall forward from the center back over the crown.

For Chilblains.

A cure that is recommended for chilblains is to rub the wrists and ankles well to encourage a good circulation, and the chilblains twice or thrice a day with methylated spirits, or if preferred, with mustard liniment or camphorated oil, the last two being quite as good as and less dangerous than the first, which should never be applied near a light.

Straining Her Eyes.

The maiden dropped her lovely eyes. Later she cast her eyes down the rocky slope of the mountainside. After she had rested them upon the topmost branches of a near-by tree she let them fall upon the waters of a placid lake. Then a visit to an oculist was imperative.—Judge.

When Window Sash Stick.

If windows move hard melt a tablespoonful of lard and pour a little between window frame and casing, and also a little on the roller and rope. It works like magic. This is a good thing to know when the frames are swollen from being closed during rainy weather.

The "Dubbed" Needle.

It is unnecessary to throw away machine needles which have become dull or even broken near the point. They may be sharpened on the whetstone and made as good as new. Keep a small whetstone in the machine drawer for this purpose.

The Pulse Rate.

The rate of the pulse of a healthy person is four times that of the respiration.

WAR ON THE LOCO WEED

Government Investigating Plant That Makes Animals Indulge in Antics.

EATING PLANT IS A HABIT.

Operation of the Poison Causes Four-Footed Victims to Become Dangerous for Man's Use.

No longer are the mustang and the cayuse of the plains to become "plumb locoed" if the bureau of plant industry of the department of agriculture has its way. The term "plumb locoed" has been a sort of stock phrase in the range literature ever since the cowboy first noted the peculiar actions of a horse, cow or sheep resulting from an overindulgence in the loco weed, which abounds in the range country from Texas to Montana. The word "loco" is of Spanish origin, meaning crazy, and has been popularly applied to the disease which robs an animal of its muscular co-ordination, causing it to do all sorts of fancy antics, and finally results in the animal starving itself to death.

The bureau of plant industry has been investigating the purple and white loco weed, says a correspondent of the Chicago Daily News. One of the peculiar characteristics of it is that the pods, when dry and full of seeds, rattle as a person passes through a patch, making a sound that resembles the warning of a rattlesnake. Ordinarily neither horse, cow nor sheep will eat the weed if it can find any other food.

Loco-weed eating becomes a sort of habit with an animal once it has tasted of it. The operation of the weed on the system of an animal scientifically bears out the fiction which ascribes to a "plumb locoed" animal all kinds of fool antics.

The first symptom of loco poisoning in horses is often a change in the general condition of the animal. If high-lived the animal becomes somewhat dull. Following this, irregularities in its gait and in its mode of eating appear. The irregularities in the gait may be due partly to weakness and simulate a paralytic affection. The horse drags its feet more or less, this being particularly noticeable in the hind legs. Associated with this paralytic condition is an apparent loss of muscular co-ordination.

If a locoed horse is used either in riding or driving, this lack of muscular co-ordination may make it extremely dangerous, as such a horse shies violently at imaginary objects, cannot readily be led or backed, and if started in motion is inclined to go in an automatic fashion at the same gait until stopped by some obstruction. In the later stages of the disease the animal loses flesh, its coat becomes rough, and eventually it ceases to eat, and dies.

FOR A "GREEN" BELLBOY.

Nervous Hotel Guest, in Her Will, Rewards Satisfactory Service.

That Dame Fortune has not ceased to bestow her gifts on those who deserve them is shown by the experience of Michael Dunphy, who until a few weeks ago was a bellboy at the Argonaut in this city, a San Francisco dispatch to the New York World says. Last February Mrs. M. M. Potter, of Salem, Mass., arrived at the Argonuat, and being ill and nervous, was the bane of the "bellhops" of the hotel. Soon after her arrivel "Mike" Dunphy, a green lad, was given a job on the bench, and his apparent greenness invited all of the difficult tasks of the bell boys' routine. Among other tasks that of waiting upon the querulous guest was shifted to "Mike."

He accepted the work gracefully and performed his duties in an exceptional manner, and when the guest left in the early part of June he was the recipient of many covert jibes from the rest of the boys on account of his willingness to oblige a non-tipping guest. He had his chance to laugh, however, when early in July he received a check for $100 from Mrs. Potter.

About two weeks ago Assistant Manager George Dixon of the Argonaut received a letter from Brown & Carlysle, a firm of lawyers in Boston, saying that Mrs. Potter had died, leaving a bequest of $2,500 for the faithful bellboy. A check for that amount was inclosed, cashed by Dixon and the money given to the lad, who immediately made arrangements for the purchase of a lot in the Richmond district and contracted for the construction of a home on it. With what he had left over he took his aged parents on a pleasure trip to Denver, where he now is.

His good luck did not end there. Yesterday Dixon received another letter from the law firm, stating that, on receiving his report of the lad's disposition of the $2,500 they were ready to carry out a further provision of Mrs. Potter's will, to the effect that if the boy disposed of his check wisely he was to have a balance of $47,500, making the total amount $50,000. The letter further declares that the lad may draw on the law firm for money up to that sum, and asks that an inclosed letter to that effect be forwarded to him.

A Bachelor's Fear.

"I wouldn't trust myself in India," said the unmarried man.

"Afraid of the wild beasts?" asked the married man.

"Not a bit; but I see there are 26,000,000 widows in India."—Yonkers Statesman.

We always admire people who are good to the old. Wretchedness among the old is as common as happiness among the young.

All the world's a stage—but few of the actors get in the limelight.

Physicians in Japan.

Medical students in Japan must have had eleven or twelve years of preliminary training in the lower schools. No one may practice medicine who has been convicted of a crime. All physicians for the first ten years during which they follow their calling must keep full written records of all their cases, and they must not issue boastful advertisements or claim the exclusive right to any healing invention with a secret formula.

Germany's four super-Dreadnoughts will each have a crew of 1,000 men.

The Mess in the Oven.

"How came such a greasy mess in the oven?" said a fidgety old spinster to her maid of all work.

"Why," replied the girl, "the candles fell into the water and I put them into the oven to dry."—London Tatler.

Facial.

Unsophisticated Inquirer—What are the distinctive features of the game of bridge?

Expert Observer—Too often pinched and haggard, especially toward morning.

Vox Populi.

"Where do you get your papers, little boy?"

"I buy 'em from Jimmy Wilson."

"And who is Jimmy Wilson?"

"He's a newsboy—he buys 'em at the newspaper office."

"How much do you pay him for them?"

"Two cents."

"How much do you sell them for?"

"Two cents."

"But you don't make anything at that."

"Nope.

"Then why do you sell them?"

"Oh, just to get to holler."—Catholic Citizen.

No Accounting for Tastes.

Fair Maiden—Can't I sell you a couple of tickets to our charity concert? Only $2 for the two.

Irritable Capitalist—I don't care for charity concerts, young lady, but if you'll bring me a couple of boxes of fine charity strawberries I'll give you $5 apiece for them.

A Sporting Chance.

"I'll teach you to play at pitch and toss!" shouted the enraged father. "I'll flog you for an hour, I will!"

"Father," instantly said the incorrigible, as he balanced a penny on his thumb and finger, "I'll toss you to make it two hours or nothing."—Cassell's Journal.

Tariffic!

Rivers (who is writing an article on imports)—Say, Brooks, what's the rate on automobiles?

Brooks—In the suburb where I live it's not less than forty miles an hour.

Not Handing Out Statistics.

The Missus—Norah, how many families have you ever worked for?

The Maid—Wurruked, is it, ma'am? I'll have you know, Mrs. Pa-arker, I've wurruked f'r ivery fam'ly I iver lived with!"—Chicago Tribune.

Where Pepys Won Fame.

"Who was the fellow Pepys, and what is his claim to fame?"

"His claim to fame is well founded, my friend. He's the man who kept a diary for more than a year."—Kansas City Journal.

Apples as Omens.

In parts of England many quaint superstitions still center round the apple. Apples hung on strings and twirled before the fire are said to fall off in the order that the marriages of the various owners will proceed. An apple eaten before a looking glass is supposed to give a view of the inquirer's future husband, who will be seen peeping over milady's shoulder. Peel safely taken from an apple, tossed three times round the head and thrown to the ground unbroken forms the first letter of a future lover's name. A more recent, though hardly more aerious custom necessitates a bowl of water in which are floating a number of apples. Mothers must drop forks into the bowl from a distance of about four feet. If the fork pierces an apple the feat is believed to protect the performer's children from catching cold.—London Scraps.

The use of barges in the coastwise trade is increasing enormously.

Overconfidence.

"What is the title of this picture?" inquired the connoisseur.

"'The Night Express Leaving on Time,'" said the proud owner of the painting.

"May I ask what it cost you?"

"I paid $150 for it."

"Well, you got left."

Looked Like a Dog.

"This," remarked Mr. Cane, "is my photograph with my two French poodles. You recognize me, eh?"

"I think so," said Miss Softie. "You are the one with the hat on, are you not?"

When Protection Is Needed.

"Do you regard protection as a business necessity?" demanded the inquisitive person.

"A necessity?" responded the other. "Say, you try running a 'speak easy' in this town without it and see where you land."—Philadedphia Ledger.

Where Is Worked.

"While we were on my honeymoon I always spoke French to my husband so that no one should understand us."

"So you went to France, did you?"—Fliegende Blaetter.

English Coffee.

An extract from the London Chronicle proves that the English can take a joke in a sportsmanlike way.

The American opinion of coffee as understood in the English home is not high, and how the coffee of the English lodgings is esteemed may be understood from the following traveler's tale:

It was his first morning in London "apartments," and his landlady came up with the breakfast, and as she set down his coffee cup she opened a slight conversation.

"It looks like rain," she said.

"It does," agreed the American, "and it doesn't even smell unlike it."

Natural Mistake.

Caller—What I like about your flat is its fine large closets.

Mrs. Wrenter—I beg your pardon but—er—you've been looking at the bedrooms.—Chicago Tribune.

The twelve principal crops of the United States alone show a value of over $5,000,000,000 at last reports.

Philosophic.

The Grumbler—Seems to me it's about time something was coming my way.

The Philosopher—Be thankful, my friend, lest the something which doesn't come your way is something you deserve.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Rough on Pop.

"Mamma, I don't understand some of these words. What's the difference between a dialogue and a monologue?"

"No difference at all, Johnny, if your father is taking any part in the conversation."

Not Properly Coached.

Mr. Tucker (having served the others)—Well, Tommy, what part of the chicken will you have?

Tommy—Why, paw, you know I always take the back when there's company.

Not an Asset.

Crusty Artist—That picture gives you a better impression, madam, if you look at it from a proper distance.

Mrs. Chillicon-Kearney—I hardly think so. Distance can only—er—lend enchantment, you know.

A Lesson for the Old.

"I hear, my boy, that you have lately told your mother several falsehoods. This grieves me to the heart. Always tell the truth, even though it may bring suffering upon you. Will you promise me?"

"Yes, father."

"Very well. Now go and see who is knocking at the door. If it's the collector, say I'm not at home."—Detroit News-Tribune.

Thought He Had.

Watt Smatter—Bought your Christmas presents yet?

O. Heezall Wright—Mine? I think I have, at last—by proxy. My wife told me this morning she wanted just one more dollar to buy one or two little articles she had overlooked.

His Excuse.

Sunday School Teacher—Tommy, I saw you running the lawnmower this morning. Do you think it was right for you to do that?

Tommy Tucker—Yes'm. It kept the grass from growin' on Sunday.

Don't Weep At The Ice House.

Some people swell up on "emotion" brewed from absolute untruth.

It's an old trick of the leaders of the Labor Trust to twist facts and make the "sympathetic ones" "weep at the ice house." (That's part of the tale further on.)

Gompers et al. sneer at, spit upon and defy our courts, seeking sympathy by falsely telling the people the courts were trying to deprive them of free speech and free press.

Men can speak freely and print opinions freely in this country and no court will object, but they cannot be allowed to print matter as part of a criminal conspiracy to injure and ruin other citizens.

Gompers and his trust associates started out to ruin the Bucks Stove Co., drive its hundreds of workmen out of work and destroy the value of the plant without regard to the fact that hard earned money of men who worked, had been invested there.

The conspirators were told by the courts to stop these vicious "trust" methods, (efforts to break the firm that won't come under trust rule), but instead of stopping they "dare" the courts to punish them and demand new laws to protect them in such destructive and tyrannous acts as they may desire to do. * * * The reason Gompers and his band persisted in trying to ruin the Bucks Stove Works was because the stove company insisted on the right to keep some old employees at work when "de union" ordered them discharged and some of "de gang" put in.

Now let us reverse the conditions and have a look.

Suppose the company had ordered the union to dismiss certain men from their union, and, the demand being refused, should institute a boycott against that union, publish its name in an "unfair list," instruct other manufacturers all over the United States not to buy the labor of that union, have committees call at stores and threaten to boycott if the merchants sold anything made by that union. Picket the factories where members work and slug them on the way home, blow up their houses and wreck the works, and even murder a few members of the boycotted union to teach them they must obey the orders of "organized Capital?"

It would certainly be fair for the company to do these things if lawful for the Labor Trust to do them.

In such a case, under our laws, the boycotted union could apply to our courts and the courts would order the company to cease boycotting and trying to ruin these union men. Suppose thereupon the company should sneer at the court and in open defiance continue the unlawful acts in a persistent, carefully laid out plan, purposely intended to ruin the union and force its members into poverty. What a howl would go up from the union demanding that the courts protect them and punish their law-breaking oppressors. Then they would praise the courts and go on earning a living protected from ruin and happy in the knowledge that the people's courts could defend them.

How could any of us receive protection from law-breakers unless the courts have power to, and do punish such men.

The court is placed in position where it must do one thing or the other—punish men who persist in defying its peace orders or go out of service, let anarchy reign and the more powerful destroy the weaker.

Peaceable citizens sustain the courts as their defenders, whereas thieves, forgers, burglars, crooks of all kinds and violent members of labor unions, hate them and threaten violence if their members are punished for breaking the law. They want the courts to let them go free and at the same time demand punishment for other men "outside de union" when they break the law. * * * Notice the above reference is to "violent" members of labor unions. The great majority of the "unheard" union men are peaceable, upright citizens. The noisy, violent ones get into office and the leaders of the great Labor Trust know how to mass this kind of men in labor conventions and thus carry out the leaders' schemes, frequently abhorrent to the rank and file: so it was at the late Toronto convention.

The paid delegates would applaud and "resolute" as Gompers wanted, but now and then some of the real workingmen insist on being heard, sometimes at the risk of their lives.

Delegate Egan is reported to have said at the Toronto convention:

"If the officers of the federation would only adhere to the law we would think a lot more of them."

The Grand Council of the Provincial Workingmen's Ass'n of Canada has declared in favor of severing all connection with unions in the U. S., saying "any union having its seat of Gov't in America, and pretending to be international in its scope, must fight industrial battles according to American methods. Said methods have consequences which are abhorrent to the law-abiding people of Canada involving hunger, misery, riot, bloodshed and murder, all of which might be termed a result of the practical war now in progress in our fair province and directed by foreign emissaries of the United Miners of America."

That is an honest Canadian view of our infamous "Labor Trust."

A few days ago the daily papers printed the following:

(By the Associated Press.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—Characterizing the attitude of Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor in the contempt proceedings in the courts of the District of Columbia, in connection with the Bucks' Stove and Range Company, as "a willful, premeditated violation of the law," Simon Burns, general master workman of the general assembly, Knights of Labor, has voiced a severe condemnation of these three leaders. Mr. Burns expressed his confidence in courts in general and in those of the District of Columbia in particular.

APPROVED BY DELEGATES.

This rebuke by Burns was in his annual report to the general assembly of his organization. He received the hearty approval of the delegates who heard it read at their annual meeting in this city.

"There is no trust or combination of capital in the world," said Mr. Burns, "that violates laws oftener than do the trust labor organizations, which resort to more dishonest, unfair and dishonorable methods toward their competitors than any trust or combinations in the country."

Mr. Burns said the action of "these so-called leaders" would be harmful for years to come whenever attempts were made to obtain labor legislation.

"The Labor Digest," a reputable workingman's paper, says, as part of an article entitled "The Beginning of the End of Gompersism, many organizations becoming tired of the rule-or-ruin policies which have been enforced by the president of the A. F. of L."

"That he has maintained his leadership for so long a time in the face of his stubborn clinging to policies which the more thoughtful of the workingmen have seen for years must be abandoned, has been on account partly of the sentimental feeling on the part of the organizations that he ought not to be deposed, and the unwillingness of the men who were mentioned for the place to accept a nomination in opposition to him. In addition to this, there is no denying the shrewdness of the leader of the A. F. of L., and his political sagacity, which has enabled him to keep a firm grip on the machinery of the organization, and to have his faithful henchmen in the positions where they could do him the most good whenever their services might be needed.

"Further than this, he has never failed, at the last conventions, to have some sensation to spring on the convention at the psychological moment, which would place him in the light of a martyr to the cause of unionism, and excite a wave of sympathetic enthusiasm for him, which would carry the delegates off their feet, and result in his re-election.

"That his long leadership, and this apparent impossibility to fill his place has gone to his head, and made him imagine that he is much greater a man than he really is, is undoubtedly the case, and accounts for the tactics he has adopted in dealing with questions before congress, where he has unnecessarily antagonized men to whom organized labor must look for recognition of their demands, and where labor measures are often opposed on account of this very antagonism, which would otherwise receive support.

"There is no doubt but what organized labor in this country would be much stronger with a leader who was more in touch with conditions as they actually exist, and who would bring to the front the new policies which organized labor must adopt if it expects to even maintain its present standing, to say nothing of making future progress."

We quote portions of another article, a reprint, from the same labor paper:

"Organized labor, through its leaders, must recognize the mistakes of the past if they expect to perpetuate their organizations or to develop the movement which they head. No movement, no organization, no nation can develop beyond the intellects which guide these organizations, and if the leaders are dominated by a selfish motive the organization will become tinged with a spirit of selfishness, which has never appealed to mankind in any walk of life at any time since history began.

"It can be said in extenuation of certain leaders of organized labor that the precarious position which they occupy as leaders has had a tendency to cause them to lose sight of the object behind the organization. The natural instinct in man for power and position is in no small measure responsible for the mistakes of the leaders, not necessarily in labor unions alone, but in every branch of society. This desire for power and leadership and personal aggrandizement causes men who have been earnest and sincere in their efforts in the start to deteriorate into mere politicians whose every act and utterance is tinged with the desire to cater to the baser passions of the working majority in the societies or organizations and this is undoubtedly true when applied to the present leaders of the Federation. We mention the Federation of Labor particularly in this article because that organization is the only organization of labor which has yet found itself in direct opposition to the laws of the land. There are other organizations of labor whose leaders have made mistakes, but they have always kept themselves and their organizations within the bounds of the law and respected the rights of every other man in considering the rights of themselves and their constituency; whereas, the motto of the Federation is just the reverse, and unless the leaders conform themselves and their organization in accordance with the laws of the land, the leaders and the organization itself must be disintegrated and pass into history, for in America the common sense in mankind is developed to a greater extent than in any other nation on the earth, and the people, who are the court of last resort in this country, will never allow any system to develop in this country which does not meet with the approval of the majority of the citizens of the country.

"This must have forced itself upon the leaders of the Federation by this time. If it has not, the leaders must be eliminated. The organization which they head has done many meritorious things in times past and the people are always ready and willing to acknowledge the benefits which their efforts have brought to their constituency as a whole, but at the present time labor organizations in general, and the Federation of Labor in particular, stand before the bar of public opinion, having been convicted of selfishness and a disposition to rule all the people of the country in the interest of the few. The people are patient and awaiting to see if the object lesson which they have been forced to give to these leaders is going to be recognized and if they are going to conform themselves and their future work and actions in accordance thereto."

Let the people remember that comment, "The Federation of Labor in particular stands before the bar of public opinion having been convicted of selfishness and a disposition to rule all the people of the country in the interest of the few."

The great 90 per cent of Americans do not take kindly to the acts of tyranny by these trust leaders openly demanding that all people bow down to the rules of the Labor Trust and we are treated to the humiliating spectacle of our Congress and even the Chief Executive entertaining these convicted law-breakers and listening with consideration to their insolent demands that the very laws be changed to allow them to safely carry on their plan of gaining control over the affairs of the people.

The sturdy workers of America have come to know the truth about these "martyrs sacrificing themselves in the noble cause of labor" but it's only the hysterical ones who swell up and cry over the aforesaid "heroes," reminding one of the two romantic elderly maids who, weeping copiously, were discovered by the old janitor at Mt. Vernon.

"What is it ails you ladies?"

Taking the handkerchief from one swollen red eye, between sobs she said:

"Why, we have so long revered the memory of George Washington that we feel it a privilege to come here and weep at his tomb."

"Yas'm, yas'm, yo' shore has a desire to express yo' sympathy, but yo' are overflowin' at de wrong spot, yo' is weepin' at de ice house."

Don't get maudlin about law-breakers who must be punished if the very existence of our people is to be maintained.

If you have any surplus sympathy it can be extended to the honest workers who continue to earn food when threatened and are frequently hurt and sometimes killed before the courts can intervene to protect them.

Now the Labor Trust leaders demand of Congress that the courts be stripped of power to issue injunctions to prevent them from assaulting or perhaps murdering men who dare earn a living when ordered by the Labor Trust to quit work.

Don't "weep at the Ice House" and don't permit any set of law-breakers to bully our courts, if your voice and vote can prevent. Be sure and write your Representatives and Senators in Congress asking them not to vote for any measure to prevent the courts from protecting homes, property and persons from attack by paid agents of this great Labor Trust.

Let every reader write, and write now.

Don't sit silent and allow the organized and paid men of this great trust to force Congress to believe they represent the great masses of the American people. Say your say and let your representatives in Congress know that you do not want to be governed under new laws which would empower the Labor Trust leaders with legal right to tell you when to work, Where! For whom! At what price! What to buy! What not to buy! Whom to vote for! How much you shall pay per month in fees to the Labor Trust! etc., etc., etc.

This power is now being demanded by the passage of laws in Congress. Tell your Senators and Representatives plainly that you don't want them to vote for any measure that will allow any set of men either representing Capital or Labor to govern and dictate to the common people, who prefer to be free to go and come, work or not, and vote for whom they please.

Every man's liberty will disappear when the leaders of the great Labor Trust or any other trust can ride rough shod over people and mass their forces to prevent our courts from affording protection.

"There's a Reason."

C. W. POST, Battle Creek, Mich.

JANUARY

0456

L1134

Munyon's Paw Paw Pills coax the liver into activity by gentle methods. They do not scour, gripe or weaken. They are a tonic to the stomach, liver and nerves: invigorate instead of weaken. They enrich the blood and enable the stomach to get all the nourishment from food that is put into it. These pills contain no calomel; they are soothing, healing and stimulating. For sale by all druggists in 10c and 25c sizes. If you need medical advice, write Munyon's Doctors. They will advise to the best of their ability absolutely free of Charge. MUNYON'S, 53d and Jefferson Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.

Munyon's Cold Remedy cures a cold in one day. Price 25c. Munyon's Rheumatism Remedy relieves in a few hours and cures in a few days. Price 25c.

Pleasure and Sacrifice.

An alert little 5-year-old was visiting a city park with her mother for the first time. She had noticed the beautiful red and white swan boats as they passed through in the morning, and her mother had promised they should come back after the shopping was done and have a ride.

Shortly after dinner they stood on the bridge over the lagoon watching the boats below and listening to the cry of the barker as he tried to induce the passing crowds to patronize his swan boats.

But when her mother started toward the boat landing little Elsie declared very vigorously that she did not want to go at all and, as her mother urged her, broke forth in tears.

This sudden fear was so different from her former eagerness that her mother could not understand it until she noticed the boatman's call.

He was crying: "Come along! Come along! Ride clear round the pond. Only 5 cents for ladies and gents! Children thrown in!"

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss
LUCAS COUNTY.

Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of Hall's Catarrh Cure. FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.

(SEAL) A. W. GLEASON,
NOTARY PUBLIC.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by all Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Costs Accordingly.

"It's just despondency that ails your husband, isn't it, Mrs. Highmore?"

"I suppose so, but a specialist is treating him for melancholia, and you know that's quite expensive."

No Trouble After That.

"Pnoodles, how long have you been keeping chickens?"

"Ever since I put a good lock on the chicken house."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

Repartee.

"If I were as ugly as you are," said he clam, "I never would thrust myself into good society."

"And if I were as tough as you are," retorted the oyster, "I'd reform."

All Depends.

Stranger—What's property worth on this street?

Fitzjurld—Do you want to sell, mister, or do you want to buy?

HEAD, BACK AND LEGS ACHE? Ache all over? Throat sore with chills? That is La Grippe. Perry Davis' Painkiller will break it up if taken promptly. All dealers, 25c, 50c and 50c bottles.

Not Enough Money in It.

Miss Cheatham—I believe I shall have to give up bridge.

Miss Frank—Really? Wasn't the game worth the scandal?—London News.

Do Your Clothes Look Yellow?

If so, use Red Cross Ball Blue. It will make them white as snow. Large 2oz. package 5 cents.

Rare Girl.

"Well, how do you like your kitchen girl?"

The caller queried. "Faugh!"
Said Mrs. Jones. "She's not to my taste—Entirely too raw."

Experiments are under way in Boston with nickel-in-the-slot turnstiles in elevated railroad and subway stations. The idea is to save the pay of ticket sellers.

Habitual Constipation

May be permanently overcome by proper personal efforts with the assistance of the one truly beneficial laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs & Elixir of Senna, which enables one to form regular habits daily so that assistance to nature may be gradually dispensed with when no longer needed, as the best of remedies when required are to assist nature, and not to supplant the natural functions, which must depend ultimately upon proper nourishment, proper efforts, and right living generally.

To get its beneficial effects, always buy the genuine,

MANUFACTURED BY THE
CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
SOLD BY ALL LEADING DRUGGISTS
ONE DOLLAR—REGULAR PRICE 50¢ PER BOTTLE

Diversified Farming.

It is always refreshing and inspiring to see others doing good things and producing superior results, says the Chicago Weekly Inter Ocean. The man who is doing things a little better than the average man is a benefactor to the race. If he demonstrates through his work and results that a better living can be made from certain conditions he is doing a work in the world of the highest economic order.

In recounting the work and deeds of man we are prone to select almost impossible ideal types, often so high that they are little understood, almost impossible to copy by the masses. We often pass by the good man who is doing valuable things in a small way and which in the end are worth more to the masses than many of the so-called great things that have popular airing. Many small good things are worth more to humanity than a few large things. The small every-day deeds are what feed, clothe, shelter and educate the world. Every deed counts for something.

Farming is more becoming a business and science of the highest order. Land is becoming scarce or rather the population is increasing to such an extent that there are more people to occupy the land, resulting in each land holder having less average. This being the case, and since present-day living demands more than in days gone by, it remains for those who hold and cultivate land to make more out of it than did the farmers of a generation ago. Each farm unit must become the scene of greater activity and greater production. Not only must two bushels of corn grow where only one bushel grew before, but the farmer must keep enough live stock of the highest order to profitably consume not only the two bushels of corn, but the entire corn, plants, ears, blades, stalks, and all, returning a profit in animal growth and production and an equivalent profit in manure as a by-product for increasing and maintaining the fertility of the land he cultivates. Unless some unknown future means of fertilizer supply is discovered or developed it will become an absolute necessity for every farmer to practice diversified farming in order to secure needed supplies for fertilizers.

On the average farm we hold that diversified farming is by far the best method of securing the greatest permanent returns from the land. The growing of the plant crops and the breeding and keeping of live stock of some kind, or several kinds, are means of producing highly marketable goods and at the same time of manufacturing high grade fertilizers at home, saving the cost of double transportation and making more efficient use of commercial fertilizers that may be purchased. Live stock and their products now command very high prices, and all indications point to the fact that they will be at very good prices from now on indefinitely. The diversified farmer is able to make a living with the failure of a crop, or even with the failure of several crops, if he does not raise enough grain to feed his animals he can buy grain to feed them and at least not lose money on them; if the animal crop fails he can sell his grain. There is seldom an all-around failure of both plant and animal crops. Also, making the breeding and growing of high bred live stock on the farm a strong side line allows the farmer to turn to good account much roughage and waste feeds that could not be sold on the market or utilized to advantage in any other way.

Protecting Crops From Crows.

A number of experiments have been tried recently abroad, with the object of discovering some means of protecting sown crops from the ravages of crows and other graminivorous birds. The best results were obtained by the use of a solution of pulverized aloes, which had not only the effect of giving the seeds an objectionable flavor, but also imparted a color which serves in a measure to keep the birds off. Seeds, colored with blue seemed to be particularly repugnant to the birds, although not treated in any other way.

A New Watermelon.

A recent exchange of farm specialties was the introduction of American sweet corn in Roumania. Field corn is a successful crop there, but sweet corn has been unknown. On the other hand, the introducer of sweet corn discovered a new watermelon in Roumania which is about twice the size of an ordinary orange, or about the size of an average grape fruit, and is very sweet and delicious. It is thought the novelty will prove acceptable to American gardeners, and tests are being made at the Department of Agriculture, in Washington.

Raising Cattle.

The surest money that one can make in handling cattle is to sart with a drove of steer calves and grow them to feed lot age and size, and if market conditions are then right to finish before selling. Whether or not the finishing is done, the gain made in growing is a sure gain, and the maker of it can not lose. He who stands to lose or make is he who buys nearly matured steers and feeds them—he either makes, comes out even or loses. The grower of steer calves to a feed lot age uses little grain, hence has nothing but his time invested in the growth made—his time in putting up roughness and feeding it. His pasture bill is apt to be the greatest.—Farmers' Mall and Breeze.

Chronic Heaves.

There is no sure cure for a chronic case of heaves. The best plan is to sell the horse for what he is worth; or, if that does not agree with your conscience, give him the following treatment: Five grains of arsenic once every 24 hours for two weeks, then omit a week and go on as before. For a small horse give four grains instead of five; for a very large horse, six. Heaves are caused by a weak condition of a nerve, and anything you can do to relieve this will help the horse. Feed well and get him in good condition, but give very little rough feed, and even that is best cut fine and made moist.—B., Apple Creek, Ohio.

TRAP NESTS.

Three forms of trap nests used by English poultrymen are shown in the illustration. In No. 1 a bolting wire arrangement is used; X is a pivot-hung board, with stout wire (Y) supporting Z, the trap-wire, which falls across the hen's entry, and is usually held there by an iron rod, which drops after it into a slot. The hen's weight on the nest side of the board (X) tilts the wire (Y) and releases the trap-wire (Z), which falls into the dotted position. Illustration 2 shows another method, whilst 3 shows a shallow tray hung on pivots or hooks at the side for the nest. At one front corner an upright wire (E) rises through a hole in one of the curved bearers which carry the curved shutter, consisting of two wood rails, carrying fine wire netting (D). The hen, entering, steps on front of the nest, which, dropping, carries the wire down and releases the trap; the latter, sliding down the curved bearers, imprisons the hen, who can, however, see out.

How to Pump Water.

A correspondent asks how he can pump water from a well 20 feet deep which is 12 feet away from the windmill. The cut shows just how to do it. Set the pump directly beneath the mill, and if possible in a pit in the ground, and protect it with a small house. Run the pipe below frost line to the well, as illustrated. An ordinary pump will do the work. The lower the pump is set, that is, the closer to the level of the water, the better it will do the work. A good suction pump will have no difficulty in drawing water to a height of 20 feet, but if you can gain four feet by setting the pump in a pit, so much the better.—Farm and Home.

Dairy Notes.

The best flavored butter in the world is made in private dairies—and the worst, too.

A little extra care and food pays big returns when used to hasten the maturity of the dairy heifers.

When cows are allowed a reasonable amount of exercise healthier and stronger calves are usually obtained.

Success in dairying demands that a man breed and develop his own cows as far as possible, and buy, if he must, wisely.

No man can develop a cow into a high producer unless that cow had an inherited quality of development to start with.

There is a certain class of dairy farmers who refuse to sit down and figure, through fear that it will upset a few of their pet theories.

Common sense is better than the best dairy instruction of the day, but it clearly shows a lack of common sense when a dairyman discards all recent investigations.

It takes a cow weeks, sometimes months, to get accustomed to a new home. So strong is this native attachment that a change seriously affects her temper and conduct.

Boy Tortured by Eczema.

"When my boy was six years old, he suffered terribly with eczema. He could neither sit still nor lie quietly in bed, for the itching was dreadful. He would irritate spots by scratching with his nails and that only made them worse. A doctor treated him and we tried almost everything, but the eczema seemed to spread. It started in a small place on the lower extremities and spread for two years until it very nearly covered the back part of his leg to the knee.

"Finally I got Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Pills and gave them according to directions. I used them in the morning and that evening, before I put my boy to bed. I used them again and the improvement even in those few hours was surprising, the inflammation seemed to be so much less. I used two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, the same of the Pills and the Soap and my boy was cured. My son is now in his seventeenth year and he has never had a return of the eczema.

"I took care of a friend's child that had eczema on its face and limbs and I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. They acted on the child just as they did on my son and it has never returned. I would recommend the Cuticura Remedies to anyone. Mrs. A. J. Cochran, 1823 Columbia Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 20, 1909."

March of Science.

"Just what I've been expecting!"

Wailed mamma. "It's the croup!"

"No, ma'am; he's been neglecting
To Fletcherize his soup."
—Chicago Tribune.

If You Are a Trifle Sensitive

About the size of your shoes, many people wear smaller shoes by using Allen's Foot-Ease, the Antiseptic Powder to shake into the shoes. It cures Tired, Swollen, Aching Feet and gives rest and comfort. Just the thing for breaking in new shoes. Sold everywhere, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Scored a Failure.

Goodman Gonrong—Didn't ye git a handout fr'm dat woman?

Saymold Storey—No; she looked sour at me, an' I couldn't stand de acid test.—Chicago Tribune.

Tightness across the chest means a cold on the lungs. It means misery and discomfort every minute, if nothing worse. What's the answer? Rub the chest with Hamlins Wizard Oil quick.

One of the Assimilatory.

Stranger—What do you do with the vast swarms of immigrants that land on your shores every year?

Prominent Gothamite—We don't have anny throuble, sor, in assimylatin' thim.

Clear, white clothes are a sign that the housekeeper uses Red Cross Ball Blue. Large 2oz. package, 5 cents.

In His Mind.

"Old chap, where are you going for your vacation?"

"All over the country. In fact, I'm taking it now—reading summer resort literature."

Only One "BROMO QUININE"

That is LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE. Look for the signature of E. W. GROVE. Used the world over to Cure a Cold in One Day. 25c.

Prehistoric Remains Found.

In a deep cutting on the Grand Eastern line, near Ipswich, Miss Nina Layard, F. L. S., a well known lady scientist, has unearthed, at a depth of thirty feet, a strange assortment of bones of the mammoth, horse, gigantic ox, bear, wolf, red deer and a bird, with a few flint implements of paleolithic type, the London Standard says. In her opinion, these are from the pleistocence deposits in the gravels of the original course of the River Gipping, when the present site of Ipswich was beneath its waters.

The remains of the horse prove to be of peculiar interest, as up to this discovery it was generally assumed that the early horse was of small size. According to Prof. Ridgeway's estimate, however, the horse here found must have been the size of a modern car horse. The gigantic ox became extinct in England during the stone age, but remained on the continent until the time of Julius Cæsar.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES
FOR RHEUMATISM, BRIGHT'S DISEASE, BACKACHE, DIABETES.
PER BOX 75 "Guaranteed"

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. Positively cured by these Little Pills. They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.
SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature Brent Good
REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

PILES PAY IF CURED
We pay postage and send FREE RED CROSS Pile and Fistula Cure.
REA CO., DEPT. 86, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

BUGS BUY A TRAP AND CLEAN
BEDS OF BUGS. Price 25 cents each; 5 for $1.00, by mail, securely packed. Room 224, L. NOLIN TRUST
Ajax Mfg. Co., BLDG., ST. LOUIS, Mo

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES
A preparation of superior merit for relieving Coughs, Hoarseness and Irritation of throats of great benefit in Lung Troubles, Bronchitis and Asthma. Free from opiates or any harmful ingredient.
Price, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00 per box. Sample mailed on request.
JOHN I. BROWN & SON, Boston, Mass.

Goulash.

Three pounds of round beefsteak cut into small pieces, one pound onions, chopped fine, one large piece of butter. Cover with water, put on the back of the range and simmer until the meat is tender—or for eight or ten hours. Add one teacupful of good stock or hot water, one teaspoonful of salt, half teaspoonful of marjoram, half teaspoonful of curry powder, a pinch of black pepper and a pinch of red. Just before serving add a tablespoonful of vinegar. This makes a savory, appetizing dish.

Apple Cream Pie.

Stew one quart of apples till transparent, rub through a colander, sweeten to taste, add one cup cream, flavored with one teaspoon extract of lemon. Line a pie plate with a good pie crust, fill with the apples and bake till the crust is done. Have ready a meringue of whites of two eggs, beaten stiff with three tablespoons of sugar, and flavor with a few drops of lemon; spread over pie and brown.

Apple Puffs.

Make the regulation apple sauce of tart apples, and be a little sparing of the sugar. To one quart of the sauce, take three tablespoons of strawberry jam, and with a strong egg beater, whip all together. Set on the ice and when ready to serve, fill cream puff shells with the mixture, place each on a separate plate and pour round a soft custard sauce, slightly flavored with almond extract.

Nut Crisp.

Sift slowly one-half cup of hominy grits into one pint of boiling water; remove to the back of the range and simmer for an hour; then add one cup of finely chopped English walnuts; turn into pound baking powder cans and set away to cool. When firm turn out, cut into half-inch slices; dredge slightly with flour and fry until crisp and brown. Place overlapping on hot platter.

Buns.

Break one egg into a cup and fill with sweet milk; mix with it half cup yeast, half cup butter or lard, one cup sugar, enough flour to make a soft dough; flavor with nutmeg. Let it rise till very light, then mold into small biscuits with a few currants. Let rise second time until double the bulk, then bake, and when nearly done glaze with a little molasses and milk. Better than doughnuts.

Scotch Scones.

Sift together two cups of flour, two teaspoons baking powder and half teaspoon of salt; next chop in one tablespoon of butter; lastly, add one beaten egg and three-fourths cupful of milk. Have dough stiff enough to roll about half an inch thick. Cut with a large-sized cooky cutter and bake on a griddle-iron twenty minutes. Split in halves and serve well buttered.

Beef Broth with Barley.

This soup may be recommended where soup is intended as the principal course and may be rendered very nourishing and satisfying when small cubes of beef, carrots, turnips, leeks, celery and barley are added and cooked in the beef broth until tender. The round, slim pieces are the best to use for a rich beef broth.

Cooking Over Fish.

To use cold halibut or other fish, remove the bones and flake it and arrange it in layers, with bread crumbs and seasoning in a buttered baking dish. Cover the top with buttered crumbs, turn in hot milk to moisten sufficiently, sprinkle grated cheese over and bake.

Brule.

Three-quarters of a cup of sugar, beaten with three eggs, one-half teaspoon cornstarch, one quart of milk. Boil to a custard. Brown one-half cup granulated sugar and then stir briskly into the custard. Cool and freeze.

Hints About the House.

Boil vinegar in the fish skillet or pan to destroy the fish odor.

Comforts and quilts should be dried in a good, stiff breeze, so that they may be as light and fluffy as when new.

A spoonful of oxgall to a gallon of water will set the colors of almost any goods soaked in it previous to washing.

If your rugs curl up at the edges they can be made to lie flat by dampening the curled edge and pressing with a hot iron.

The improved pie pan has a blade fastened to the center, which revolves around the bottom of the dish beneath the pie crust when the end protruding from the side of the dish is moved.

Have a can or dish setting handy and save all bread crumbs from your cutting board; use them in making meat loaf or pudding or anything that requires bread crumbs.

Orange salad is quickly made and will help out many a hurry-up meal. Simply peel large seedless oranges and slice thick. Lay the pieces on lettuce and pour rich dressing over them. Chill and serve.

Caramel sweet potatoes are delicious. To prepare them simply boil and slice the potatoes and dip them first in melted butter and then in granulated sugar. Put into hot oven till a coating of brown caramel is formed.

Cake tins, patty pans, etc., are easily cleaned by boiling. Put them in a pot with some soap extract and water and boil them for about an hour, when they will be found clean and new-looking. Soap and soda or borax may be used instead of soap extract if preferred.

DEVELOPMENT OF CENTRAL CANADA.

The Story of Big Yields of Grain Comes from Every Section.

When the man in the States was told that he could get 160 acres of land in Central Canada—comprising the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—that under cultivation would produce from 20 to 30 bushels of wheat to the acre, or if seeded to oats the yield would be 40 to 60 bushels, he was skeptical. The same story was told the man who wished to get nearer to existing lines of railway, and was only asked to pay $10 to $12 an acre. But many tried it, some one plan and some another. The man who accepted the 160 acres as a free gift, as a homestead, and was willing to put in the required residence duties of three years, has now a farm worth from fifteen to twenty dollars an acre. The man who chose to purchase, and did so, took up his residence just the same. He has land, that, in many cases, is worth twice the money he paid for it. Both have found that the story of splendid fields was verified. They have had crops exceeding that promised; they have seen oats that yielded 100 bushels to the acre, and have grown wheat that averaged 40 and as high as 50 bushels to the acre. Their wheat was not a 58 pounds to the bushel article, but 62 and 63 pounds. They have seen within the past year or two trunk lines of railway constructed through their district, and throwing out branch lines to the gates of their farm. They have seen schools established in their neighborhood and the government contributing largely to their expense. Churches have been erected, villages have been established, towns have sprung into existence, and cities are rapidly springing up, as if the magic hand of some unseen conjurer was at work. But it was not; it was the legitimate offering of the wealth of the field which made all these things come about, naturally, and easy. The prairie that three years ago was merely prairie, a patch of brown, just waiting for the ploughman, is to-day dotted with tilled farms and splendid homes. The line of elevators with their glistening metaled fireproof sides and roofs, indicate the location of the town and the railroad. There is the glow of newness about it all, but the elevator, the splendid store buildings and the comfortable hostelries denote wealth—not imported wealth—beyond that of the strength of the man who fashioned and built them, but the wealth of the soil, which means that the newness will be followed by a steady growth. The writer recently was a passenger over the Grand Trunk Pacific, the latest factor in this great, marvelous field of development. The rapidity with which towns were being built up, the farmsteads occupied, was something even his experienced eye had not looked for. Everywhere along the line of this new transcontinental was the distinguishing mark of progress. There was not a mile of the length of the road from Winnipeg to Edmonton and west that did not bear token of its ability to pay tribute to the revenue of the road. Mention is made of this line, not because it is the last in the field, but because it is one of the best built roads on the continent and traverses one of the best districts of an excellent country. It is well operated, and already has gone into active service as another means of making it possible to secure more speedily transit from the grain fields to the shipping centers. It had been the intention in this article to have spoken of some of the yields of grain that have made the farmers of Central Canada contented this year, but space will not permit, so that delightful task will be taken up in another issue. In the meantime it would be well for the reader, if he is interested, to put himself in touch with some official of the Canadian government and get information that might be useful in making a selection for a home in Central Canada, and become one of those who will be instrumental in building up a great county to the north. In doing so, you will be assisting the United States. In a few years' time the United States will be a wheat importer. Canada will supply the wheat and you will be one of the producers.

Gen. Keifer's Dress Suit.

If General J. Warren Keifer wants to wear a dress suit all the time—morning as well as evening—there is nothing to prevent him.

Really, the Milwaukee Sentinel says, it takes considerable force of character to go continually counter to popular opinion. The amount of waggish things that have greeted the general when he goes to a strange city would be enough to dismay any one of impressionable nature.

However, the general doesn't mind. He didn't mind when he was Speaker of the House of Representatives, nor does he mind now at his home at Springfield, Ohio. There he is so well known that his appearance never excites remark or comment.

Since the general doffed his uniform at the close of the Civil War no one remembers to have seen him in anything except the conventional clawhammer.

With his strong features, ruddy complexion and white beard, he is an impressive figure. On more than one occasion he has proved himself a forceful man, and no one but a witless wag would make other than good natured remarks about his habits of dress.

Misguided.

"O, I'm Vox Populi!" he said.
With loud and far resounding cry;
And back across the valley sped
The answering echo: "Pop, you lie!"

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS. PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

Overblessed.

"Ruggles, I hear you are a happy father, I congrat——"

"Stop right there, Ramage! It's triplets!"

Don't Suffer and Complain

Nothing is so wearing on the nerves of your family and friends. Ask us for a sample of PISO'S TABLETS a modern scientific home treatment for the diseases of women. They may be used in the privacy of one's own home, thus avoiding all embarassing situations. A Michigan woman who has given them a thorough test writes,

"I cannot reccommend these Tablets too highly for what they have done for me. I have had no return of the disease, and don't know what it is to have an ache or pain. I am perfectly well and I owe it all to your wonderful Tablets."

For sale by all druggists. Trial package and a treatise entitled "Causes of Diseases in Women" sent free on receipt of accompanying coupon. Write your name and address PLAINLY and address THE PISO COMPANY, DEPT. A., WARREN, PA.

Name .....
Post Office .....
State .....

FASHION HINTS

A cape is a happy solution of the evening wrap problem.

The one illustrated is most attractive and very easily made.

Black broadcloth was used, and a four-inch band of gold mesh lace, dotted with jet beads, formed the collar.

Fancy buttons of braid and black silk tassels completed the trimming.

The headdress shows the use of fancy ribbon banding, combined with the new "turban" style of hair dressing.

The Last Touch.

"That indefinable something" is a useful phrase, and has helped many a would-be critic out of a scrape. It often happens that the "something" is nothing at all. As in the present instance, quoted from the Chicago Post, imagination played a large and important part in the matter. Mr. Harvey, the famous chef, was once visiting New York, where some men arranged a contest between him and several other chefs, with a view to determining who could make the best salad dressing.

The jolly, fat judges watched the preparation carefully, and observed that Mr. Harvey, as a finishing touch, took from his pocket a tiny vial, carefully uncorked it, poured a few drops into the finishing, and set it before the arbiters.

They tasted the dressing in turn, smacked their lips and puckered their brows. Then they declared that all the dressings were fine, the most delectable that they had ever put to palate, but that about Mr. Harvey's dressing there was "an—ah—indefinable something" which caused them to award it the prize.

"George, what was it you put into that dressing?" asked one of his friends later.

"Only water," he replied.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

Just Before He Swears Off.

Man wants a great deal here below.
(The poet hath it wrong.)
He wants a lot—the man you know—
And wants it good and strong.

BARKING, HACKING, RASPING COUGH can be broken up quickly by Allen's Lung Balsam. This old, reliable remedy has been sold for over 80 years. Ask your druggist about it.

Watch glass crystals are made by hand, and in consequence of the lower prices paid for labor in Germany, the American manufacturers can not compete.

In the last four years $166,000,000 Irish land stock has been issued.

WESTERN CANADA

What J. J. Hill, the Great Railroad Magnate, Says About its Wheat-Producing Powers

"The greatest need of this country [United States] in another generation or two will be the providing of homes for its people and producing enhanced values for them. The days of our prominence as a wheat exporting country are gone. Canada is to be the great wheat country."

The great railroad magnate is taking advantage of the situation by extensive railway building to the wheat fields of Western Canada.

Upwards of 125 Million Bushels of Wheat

were harvested in 1909. Average of the three provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba will be upwards of 23 bushels per acre.

Free homesteads of 160 acres, and adjoining pre-emptions of 160 acres at $3 per acre, are to be had in the choicest districts.

Schools convenient, climate excellent, soil the very best, railways close at hand, building timber cheap, fuel easy to get and reasonable in price, water easily procured; mixed farming a success. Write as to best place for settlement, settlers' low railway rates, descriptive illustrated "Last Best West" (sent free on application), and other information, to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the following Canadian Gov't Agents: W. H. Rogers, 3d Floor Traction-Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Ind., and H. M. Williams, Room 19, Law Building, Toledo, Ohio. (Use address nearest you).

Please say where you saw this advertisement.

Fort Wayne Lists

Your Liver's Your Life

A dead liver means awful sickness—don't let it come—when it can be prevented. Cascarets keep the liver lively and bowels regular and ward off serious, fatal illness. 901

CUT THIS OUT, mail it with your address to Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Ill., and receive a handsome souvenir gold Bon Bon Box FREE.

Children Like PISO'S CURE
THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS AND COLDS
It is so pleasant to take—stops the cough so quickly. Absolutely safe too and contains no opiates.
All Druggists, 25 cents.

Let us do your Printing using
Eagle Linen
for your office stationery. You can get the paper and envelopes to match.
It is the real thing. Take no other.

AGENTS WANTED. To introduce our beautiful Spring Suitings, Silks and fine Cotton Fabrics. Large sample outfit free, by express prepaid. No money required. Liberal credit to responsible agents. Write and secure territory now. National Dress Goods Co. (Dept. B) 260 W. Broadway, New York City.

CALIFORNIA. Beautiful building lots in the fast-growing town of Del Monte Heights, on the Bay of Monterey, the land of sunshine, fruit and flowers; now $25 each. Title guaranteed, abstract with deed. Easy terms. Write quick. Geo. W. Phelps Co., Seaside, California.

PRINCE RUPERT British Columbia Pacific terminus, Canada's new transcontinental railroad. No terminal city on Pacific less than one hundred thousand. Great opportunities. Real Estate Lands, Timber, Fisheries. Write Law Butler s.o., Prince Rupert, B. C.

WANTED—Active and ambitious young baseball players for 1910 minor league teams, to take the place of players drafted by major league clubs. Address Box 309, Rochester, N. Y.

F. W. N. U. - - - - No. 2—1910

When writing to Advertisers please say you saw the Adv. in this paper.

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take the advice received and be well.

SAFETY ANTI-PAIN CAPSULES HEADACHE LAGRIPPE NEURALGIA
Contains no Acetanilid

FOR 40 YEARS
An absolutely safe and dependable remedy for all Headaches and Neuralgia Pains
Its basic principal endorsed by eminent physicians
At Druggists—Trial Package, 10c
THE SAFETY REMEDY CO., CANTON, O.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES
Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in a water hotter than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors.
MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Illinois.

JANUARY

0457

L1134

DeKalb County Herald

A. S. POWERS, Editor and Publisher

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

ONE YEAR, $1.50 SIX MONTHS, 75c THREE MONTHS, 40c

The Herald is entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, Butler, Indiana

Impossible to be Well

It is impossible to be well, simply impossible, if the bowels are constipated. You must pay attention to the laws of nature, or suffer the consequences. Undigested material, waste products, poisonous substances, must be removed from the body at least once each day, or there will be trouble. A sluggish liver is responsible for an immense amount of suffering and serious disease. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Pills. He knows why they act directly on the liver. Trust him. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Editorial Notes

The Head or Heart

In speaking of the influence of a college education for girls in the February Woman's Home Companion, a college woman says, "The girls that I met then and that I still meet seem to me emotionally little hard buds long beyond the time when their minds and bodies are both matured, and I cannot but think that it is as disastrous to have this emotional immaturity prolonged beyond measure as it is to have it awakened too soon. Quick sympathies and a warm, loving heart make for happiness anywhere and all the critical knowlebge of Shakespeare in the world never yet helped a woman to rest a tired man or to hold a child more lovingly in her arms.

"My summers were periods of waiting to get back to my college life. I lived ttterly apart from my family and made no effort to understand the lives of my brothers and sisters. The little help I gave at home was done willingly enough, but without interest—a duty to be accomplished, that was all. I dwell upon this, for I think that this was the effort that college had upon the greator part of my friends. All of us would come back from our various towns with reports of the meagerness of life; all of us were discontented with the condition we found there; all of us had windy ideas about independence and career. I was among the most favored of them, I think, in that I had after all an end in veiw and that my work was destined to make me self supporting. It gave me at least a profession which is a very great thing, but many girls have left college at twenty-two no more able to earn a penny than the day on which they entered it—alienated from their home people on the one hand, worshiping things of the intellecf and with an inclination to look kown upon the men 'engrossed,' as they call it, 'in money-making.'

"I do not say that this happens to all girls. There are women so womanly and so sane that nothing can unbalance them, but this was the tendency of college for many of us and this is my quarrel with education as it exists. Education ought to educate for something; it should help a woman to lead her life of a woman or else it should fit her to earn her living."

News From The White House

President Taft has made it known that he intends to work with Aldrich and Cannon in "carrying out the party pledges." It has also been made known from the White House that Mr. Taft will make no appointments on the recommendation of "insurgents" where such appointments will help the insurgents to keep up their fight on the administration. A Washington dispatch says that the Taft blood "fairly boils" when he hears that the congressmen who are off the reservation are getting promises from the men whom they recommend that they will help on the fight. The president does not propose to make any appointment unless he is assured that the appointee will be faithful to him instead of to the insurgent who sends in his name. This makes it fine for the federal jobseeker in Indiana. He must be true to Beveridge or else he will not be recommended, and he will not pe appointed unless he is true to Taft and his policies.

Napoleon's Grit

was of the unconquerable, never say die kind, the kind that you need most when you have a bad cold, cough or lung disease. Suppose troches, cough syrups, cod liver oil or doctors have all failed, don't lose heart or hope. Take Dr. King's New Discovery. Satisfaction is guaranteed when used for any throat or lung trouble. It has saved thousands of hopeless sufferers. It masters stubborn colds, obstinate coughs, hemorrhages, lagrippe, croup, asthma, hay fever and whooping cough and is the most safe and certain remedy for all bronchial affections. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free at Stone's drug store. 1-1m

RAILWAY MAIL CLERKS WANTED

The Government Pays Railway Mail Clerks $800 to $1,200, and Other Employees Up to $2,500 Annually

Uncle Sam will hold spring examinations throughout the country for Railway Mail Clerks, Custom House Clerks, Stenographers, Bookkeepers, Departmental Clerks and other Government Positions. Thousands of appointments will be made. Any man or woman over 18, in City or Country can get Instruction and free information by writing at once to the Bureau of Instruction, 115 E Hamlin Building, Rochester, N. Y. 52-1m

Between Two Fires.

Says the South Bend Tribune, a Republican paper with Beveridge leaning:

"Mr. Beveridge had back of him the sentiment of the Republicans of Indiana. When the fight was at its height the Indiana Republican Editorial association, then in session, passed resolutions indorsing the action of the senator and assuring him that he had its unequalified support."

A short time ago a canvass of Republican voters in Indiana showed that they were about equally devided between support of Taft, who approved the standpat tariff bill, and Beveridge, who voted against it. When the Republican Editorial association indorsed Beveridge, Taft had not made his Winona speech, in which he lambasted the "insurgents" and declared the Aldrich-Cannon tariff bill the best ever enacted. And the question now is whether the Republican editors still indorse Beveridge and whether he still has their "unqualified support." Most of the Republicans papers are suspiciously silent just now, and this fact indicates that they are not going to defend Beveridge unless they know they can do it without offending the head of the national administration.

Thinks His Party Is Gone

Our old friend, Charles S. Hernly, is quoted by the Cincinnati Enquirer as predicting that the Republicans will this year lose Indiana by 40,000 votes. "The trouble of the whole situation," he says, "is that we haven't a Republican party any more." Every day we read of the struggle between the insurgents and the conservatives, and Mr. Hernly's conclusion is that "there is no such thing as a united party."—Indianapolis News.

Mr. Hernly was formerly chairman of the Republican state committee and has been conspicious in the politics of his party for a quarter of a century. His beleif that "we haven't a Republican party any more" is correct. What was once the Republican party is now a series of flighting factions intent only on destroying each other. Mr. Hernly's further opinion that the Republicans will lose Indiana this year by 40,000 votes does not overstate the situation. Of course the Republicans will go through the form of making an organization and nomihating a state ticket and other candidates, but it will be a perfunctory performance. The handwriting is on the wall and it is in capital letters of circus poster size.

At Mercy of Trusts

It has been figured out by credible authority that $3 ten years ago would buy as much of the necessaries of life as $9 will buy today. And the cost of living is still increasing, while the income of the ordinary man makes no headway. This condition is directly traceable to the policies, that have been pursued by the republican party. The people are at the mercy of the trusts. Perhaps when these same people get tired of being starved and skinned by these same trusts they will put different persons in charge at Washington.—Exchange,

DANGER IN DELAY

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Butler People to Neglect

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Butler.

W. S. Chapman, Cherry Street, Butler, Ind., says: "I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Phillips' drug store and they have always brought the best of results. I was subject to attacks of backache for several years and often when I stooped sharp pains suddenly darted through my kidneys, making it almost impossible for me to straighten. This trouble was generally worse after I caught cold and at such times I was in great distress. When Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me, I at once began their use and in return for the benefit they brought, I am pleased to endorse them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. 4-2

DIDN'T KNOW HIM.

He Was Not In the Colored Porter's Hall of Fame.

A southerner noted for the liberality of his tips stopped at a Baltimore hotel where negro porters predominated. His name was speedily known to every member of the serving fraternity and his every wish anticipated. Soon after his arrival he sent his card to a friend who made his home in the hotel, but whose temperament happened to be quite the opposite of that of his open handed caller—retiring, not given to "tipping" or any other form of sociability and who therefore lived almost unknown to those about him.

The old darky who received the card studied it for a full minute.

"'Scuse me, colonel," he said, "but I don't b'leebe nobody by dat name come here dis mawning."

"This morning!" returned the other. "Of course not! Mr. Blank has lived here for months. You know my name well enough, and I haven't been here a day. Do you mean to say you can't remember a man who has made his home here since some time last winter?"

"Scuse me, colonel, sah," began the old man deferentially, "but you must know, sah"—as if uttering the subtiest compliment—"dat dere's gemmans what can make demsels more notorious in one day, sah, dan odder gemmans does in a year, sah!"—Youth's Companion.

THE SETTING SUN.

When Vulcan Sailed It Round the Ocean So It Could Rise Again.

The ancients had some queer theories whereby they sought to explain the rising and setting of the sun. They thought the earth to be flat and were greatly puzzled to know how the same sun which plunged into the ocean at a fabulous distance in the west could reappear the next morning at an equally great distance in the east. A number of remarkable theories were advanced, and every one of them was wrong.

Mythologists of old asserted that after the sun had dipped in the western ocean at sunset (the Iberians and other ancient nations actually imagined that they could hear the hissing of the waters when the glowing globe was plunged therein) he was seized by Vulcan and placed in a golden goblet. This strange craft, with its astonishing cargo, navigated the ocean by a northerly course so as to reach the east again in time for sunrise the following morning.

Among the more sober physicists of old, as related by Aristotle, it was believed that in some manner the sun was conveyed by night across the northern regions and that darkness was due to mountains which screened off the sunbeams during the voyage.

Anticipation.

Lieutenant Shackleton tells how when in the antarctic wastes he and his companions sustained their spirits and their bodies as well when supplies had to be cut down to a minimum by dwelling upon the glorious eating they would have on returning to headquarters. The value of such mental sustenance has long been recognized by up to date commanders. There was the German officer in the war of 1870 who sustained the flagging spirits and weary legs of his men by shouting: "There is a brewery inside that town! Let us get there before anybody else!" History relates that the men did get there with remarkable speed. Equally shrewd was that Japanese commander in the Manchurian war who, seeing his men exhausted with thirst and knowing full well the wonderful properties of pickled plums, cried out, "Two miles from here there is a forest of plums." The anticipated plums went far to relieve their parched mouths.

What West Point Does For Its Cadets.

What West Point does for its cadets is precisely this: It takes its youth at the critical period of growth; it isolates them completely for nearly four years from the vicious influences that corrupt young manhood and from the atmosphere of commercialism; it provides absorbing employment for both mental and physical activities; it surrounds them with exacting responsibilities, high standards and exalted traditions of honor and integrity, and it demands a rigid accountability for every moment of their time and for every voluntary action. It offers them the inducements of an honorable career and a sufficient competence as a reward of success, and it has imperative authority for the enforcement of its conditions and restraints.—Colonel Charles W. Larned in National Magazine.

Silver Service.

"Can I get the silver service for the fire department?" inquired a young man at the free library.

"The what?" asked the girl at the desk.

"The silver service for the fire department—the questions they ask yot when you take the silver service examinations, you know."—Newark News.

Know What She Was Doing.

Pastor—I was sorry for your wife during the sermon this morning, doctor. She had such a dreadful fit of coughing that the eyes of the whole congregation were fixed upon her.

Doctor—Don't you be unduly alarmed. She was wearing her new hat for the first time.

His Stroke of State.

She—I'll wager you have told lots of other girls that you loved them. He—Well, if such has been my misguided career it is now in your hands to put a stop to it.

Without foresight judgment fails by its own weight.—Horace.

His Rent Flag.

On Jan. 18 every year, the anniversary of the battle of Waterloo, the Duke of Wellington is bound to present to the sovereign a small flag, which is the annual rent in "petit sargenty" by which the estate of Strathfieldsaye is held of the crown. The flag must be a miniature tricolor or eagle of the Napoleonic army, fringed with gold, with a gilded eagle on the head of the staff and the number of the year embroidered at the top corner of the flag near the eagle.

W. R. HOLDEN CO.

Clearance Sale!

Throughout this month we will make most remarkable price concessions throughout our store.

This spot cash store is constantly growing in favor.

20 pounds Granulated Sugar	$1.
1 pound Arm and Hammer Soda	.5c
Coats Spool Cotton Thread, spool	.4c
Choice of all $1. Dress Goods	.79c
All 50c Underwear, all sizes	.42c
$15. Suits and Overcoats	$10
$1.75 Ladies' Vici Kid Shoes	1.23
Men's and Boys' Canvas Gloves	.5c
$1.50 Boys' Box Calf Shoes, pair	.98c
25c Golf Gloves and Mittens	.17c
6 pounds Hand-picked Beans	.25c
A fine rich Bulk Coffee, pound	.15c
$2. Comforters, large size	$1.45
3 pair Children's Stockings, 12 1-2c value	.25c

They Grow Hair

Certain Ingredients if Properly Combined Stimulate Human Hair Growth

Resorcin is one of the most effective germ destroyers ever discovered. Beta-naphthol is a most powerful, yet absolutely safe germicide and antiseptic, which prevents development of germ matter, and creates a clean, healthy condition.

Pilocarpine, although not a coloring matter or dye, is an ingredient well established for its power to restore natural color to human hair.

Borax, because of its well defined softening and cleansing properties, is most useful in the treatment of scalp and hair diseases. Glycerine acts as a stimulant to the hair bulbs, and has a soothing, healing and nourishing influence. Alcohol is indispensable in medicine because of its antiseptic, stimulating and preservative qualities.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is chiefly composed of these ingredients, which are compounded in a peculiar form, and we believe it is the most effective remedy known to medical science for scalp and hair troubles generally. We personally guarantee it to eradicate dandruff and scalp irritations and to grow hair, even though the scalp in spots is bare of hair, providing of course there is life and vitality remaining in the hair roots.

We want every one troubled with scalp disease, dandruff or loss of hair to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic If it does not remove dandruff and promote a growth of hair to the satisfaction of the user, we will without question or quibble return every cent paid us for it. This guarantee is printed on every package. It has effected most satisfactory results in 93 out of 100 cases where put to a practical test.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is entirely unlike and in every particular different from anything else we know of for the purpose for which it is recommended. We urge you to try it at our entire risk. Certainly we could offer no better guarantees. Two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Sold in Butler only at our store—The Rexall Store. Geo. W. Geddes. 1t

Known By Other Names

There are no set of diseases so misnamed as those that pertain to the stomach, liver and bowels. Many think their nerves are deranged, their heart diseased, their kidneys weak, their blood impure, when in reality they have stomach or bowel trouble. Try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin, the wonderful regulator, and see how quickly you will find yourself cured. It is absolutely guaranteed to do what is claimed, and if you want to try it before buying, send your address for a free sample bottle to Pepsin Syrup Co., 119 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1 a bottle. 1-1m

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

Nervous Prostration

"I suffered so with Nervous Prostration that I thought there was no use trying to get well. A friend recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine, and although skeptical at first, I soon found myself recovering, and am to-day well."

MRS. D. I. JONES,
5800 Broadway, Cleveland, O.

Much sickness is of nervous origin. It's the nerves that make the heart force the blood through the veins, the lungs take in oxygen, the stomach digest food, the liver secrete bile and the kidneys filter the blood. If any of these organs are weak, it is the fault of the nerves through which they get their strength. Dr. Miles' Nervine is a specific for the nerves. It soothes the irritation and assists in the generation of nerve force. Therefore you can hardly miss it if you take Dr. Miles' Nervine when sick. Get a bottle from your druggist. Take it all according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.

Notice of Appointment of Executor

State of Indiana, DeKalb County, ss:

I, W. A. Austin, clerk of the DeKalb circuit court, for the county of DeKalb, in the state of Indiana, do hereby certify that Frank Creager has been appointed executor of the last will and testament of Sarah Casey late of DeKalb county, deceased who died testate. And the said Frank Creager having qualified and given bond as such executor is duly authorized to take upon himself the execution of said will.

Witness my hand and the seal of said court, this 4th day of January, 1910.

W. A. Austin,
Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court.
E. B. Dunten, Att'y. for Estate. 1-4

C. J. Simon, Memphis

Very often young people, at an age when they should be in the prime of health, suffer from chronic constipation, and nothing seems to help them. It was so with Mr. C. J. Simon, of Memphis, Tenn., until he took Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and now he is permanently cured. It will also cure indigestion, heartburn, flatulency, sick headache, sour stomach, etc. It is absolutely guaranteed to do what is claimed, and if you want to try it before buying, send your address for a free sample bottle to Pepsin Syrup Co., 119 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1 a bottle. 1-1m

Notice to Non-Residents

State of Indiana, } SS:
County of DeKalb, }

In the DeKalb County Circuit Court, March Term, 1910.

Milton E. Anthony
vs.
Sarah Ann Rohrbaugh, et al.

Notice is hereby given to the following named defendants in the above entitled cause, Reuben G. Dannells Rachel Rohrbaugh, wife of James M. Rohrbaugh, Charles N. Rohrbaugh, Ann R Rohrbaugh, wife of Charles N Rohrbaugh, Christopher C. Rohrbaugh Jennie Rohrbaugh, wife of Christopher C. Rohrbaugh, whose true christian name is unknown to plaintiff Benjamin F Rohrbaugh, Hanah Rohrbaugh wife of Benjamin F. Rohrbaugh whose true christian name is unknown to plaintiff; Solomon C. Rohrbaugh Sarah E. Rohrbaugh, Rosa B. Rohrbaugh, Mahalia A. Rohrbaugh, Alice V. Rohrbaugh, Lewis Wagoner, guardian of Solomon C. Rohrbaugh, Ann Rohrbaugh wife of Charles N. Rohrbaugh.

The children, descendants and heirs, the surviving spouse, the creditors of the estate, the devisees, legatees, trustees and executors of the last will and testament and the survivers in interest respectively of each of the following named and designated deceased persons, to-wit: James M. Rohrbaugh, Thomas C. Rohrbaugh, Rosa B. Rohrbaugh, Mahalia A. Rohrbaugh, Alice V. Rohrbaugh, the names of whom are all unknown to plaintiff.

The children, descendants and heirs, the surviving spouse, the creditors of the estate, the devisees, legatees, trustees and executors of the last will and testament and the survivers in interest of the deceased widow of each of the following named and designated deceased persons, to-wit: James N. Rohrbaugh, Thomas C. Rohrbaugh.

All of the women once known by any of the names and designations above named who may have changed their names and who are known by some other name, the names of whom are unknown to plaintiff.

The spouses of all the persons above named and designated, the names o whom are unknown to plaintiff are each non-residents of the state of Indiana and the residence of each is unknown to plaintiff and upon diligent inquiry cannot be ascertained and said defendants are therefore hereby notified of the filing and pendancy of said complaint against them for the purpose of quieting title to certain real estate described in plaintiff's complaint, situated in DeKalb county and state of Indiana and to discharge liens and cancel of record certain mortgages and liens thereon and to make partition of said lands and that unless they appear and answer or demur there to at the calling of said case on the 7th day of March, 1910, the same being the 1st juridical day of the March, 1910, term of the DeKalb county circuit court to be begun, held and continued at the court house at Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, commencing on the 7th day of March, 1910 next, said complaint and the matters and things therein contained and alleged will be taken as true and said cause will be heard and determined in their absence.

Witness the clerk and seal of said court this 4th day of January, 1910.

W. A. Austin,
Clerk of DeKalb Circuit Court.
E. B. Dunten, Att'y. 1-4

Notice to Non-Residents

State of Indiana, DeKalb County, ss:

In the DeKalb circuit court, March term, 1910, Anna Inhoof and Bertha Creager. Benjamin McDonald is Butler, Indiana; Hannah Sherwood, Ivan Mathews and Silas Mathews, Angola, Indiana; Alice Mathews, Terre Haute, Indiana; that the residence upon diligent inquiry is unknown of the defendants Charles Mathews, Sarrah Updike, Sarah Manahan, Mary Mathews, Albina Mathews, Henry Mathews, Amelia Mathews, Benjamin Mathews, Anna Carey, Elnora Toner, Martha J. Miller, S Bruce Miller, whose true christian name to plaintiff is unknown; Oliver Hershiser, Sarah L. Hershiser, Oliver F. Hershiser, Jacob Landis, Leonard Shull, Jacob Shull.

The children, descendants and heirs, the surviving spouse, the creditors and administrators of the estate, the devisees, legatees, and trustees of the last will and testament and the successors in interest respectively of each of the following named and designated deceased persons, to-wit:

Martha J Miller, S. Bruce Miller, whose true christian name to plaintiff is unknown, Oliver Hershiser, Sarah L. Hershiser, Oliver F. Hershiser, Jacob Landis, Leonard Shull, Jacob Shull.

The children, descendants and heirs, the surviving spouse, the creditors and administrators of the estate, the devisees, legatees, trustees and executors of the last will and testament and the successors in interest respectively of each of the following named and designated deceased persons, to-wit: S Bruce Miller, whose true christian name to plaintiff is unknown, Oliver Hershiser, Oliver F. Hershiser, Jacob Landis, Leonard Shull, Jacob Shull.

All of the women once known by any of the names and designations above stated who may have changed their names and who are not known by some other name, the names of whom are unknown to plaintiff.

The spouses of all the persons above named and designated as defendants to this action who are married, the names of whom are unknown to plaintiff are hereby notified that an action has been commenced against them in said court, to quiet title, release mortgage and sell real estate by Frank Creager executor of the last will and testament of Sarah Casey deceased, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 21st day of March, 1910, being the 13th juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences the 7th day of March, 1910

Witness, the clerk of said court, this 19th day of January, 1910.

W. A. Austin, Clerk
E. B. Dunten, Plaintiff's Atty 3-4

A Frightful Wreck

of train, automobile or buggy may cause cuts, bruises, abrasions, sprains or wounds that demand Bucklen's Arnica Salve—earth's greatest healer Quick relief and prompt cure results For burns, boils, sores of all kinds, eczema chapped hands and lips, sore eyes or corns, it's supreme Surest pile cure. 25c at Stone's drug store. 1-1m

WE CARRY A COMPLETE LINE OF

Keen Kutter Goods

Keen Cutter Axes, Cross Cut Saws, Keen Kutter Buck Saws, Files, etc., and a full line of

KEEN KUTTER TOOLS

The recollection of quality remains long after the price is forgotten. True to all Keen Kutter Tools and Cutlery. All Keen Kutter Goods are guaranteed by us.

Gengnagel & Son

FASHION PLATES

NOW IN

And we are ready for the fal business.

We do all kinds of button covering for the ladies'.

Cleaning and repairing on short notice.

Edward May

Reliable Tailor

Exclusive Right

FOR

Lowney's Candies

For the city of Butler direct from the factory

Quality and freshness GUARANTEED

Fresh Oysters

George Stout

O. W. HINER, V. M. D., M. F.

Veterinary Surgeon and Dentist - -

All calls promptly answered day or night

OFFICE AT RESIDENCE

HOME PHONE 21

Nurse Says:

"I know what is good for young and old people," writes Mrs. Clara Dykstra, a trained nurse of South Bellingham, Wash., "and will say that I consider Cardui the best medicine for girls and women. It makes them feel like new persons, relieves their pain and regulates womanly troubles. "Both my daughter and I received great benefit."

E 51

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

As a medicine for female trouble, no medicine you can get has the old established reputation, that Cardui has.

Fifty (50) years of success prove that it has stood the greatest of all tests—the test of TIME.

As a tonic for weak women, Cardui is the best, because it is a woman's tonic.

Pure, gentle, safe, reliable. Try Cardui.

A 50-cent bottle of

Scott's Emulsion

given in half-teaspoon doses four times a day, mixed in its bottle, will last a year-old baby nearly a month, and four bottles over three months, and will make the baby strong and well and will lay the foundation for a healthy, robust boy or girl.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send 10c., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each bank contains a Good Luck Penny.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl Street, N. Y.

WABASH

No 2—Express	6:48 a. m
No 28—Mail	9:03 a. m
No. 6—Toledo Mail & Exp	5:12 p. m
No. 78—Local Freight	9:50 a. m
WEST BOUND
No. 9—Fast Mail	4:29 a. m.
No. 11—Ft. Wayne Mail & Exp	10:16 a. m.
No. 3—Express	8:17 p. m.
No. 79—Local Freight	2:04 p. m.

All trains daily except Local Freights.

O. C. WATERMAN, Agent, Butler, Ind.

If your grocers can not satisfy you with their bread? Try the

Home Bakery

The best tasting bread in the city. has no equal. Bread 4c a loaf.

Anton Panhuysen

REAL ESTATE

We have some splendid farms and other excellent properties or investment.

We have the Thompson Opera House for sale and many other properties in Butler.

Farms from 40 to 160 acres. It will pay you to see us before buying. We are in the business to stay and are able to place you right.

Wilcox & Creager

JANUARY

0458

L1134

VALENTINES

A Nice Line of Valentines.

All Kinds and Varieties. Valentine Post Cards from 1 cent up.

AT

PHILLIPS' DRUG STORE

JEWELRY AND DRUGS

Local and Personal

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery

Frank Needham is on the sick list.

Mrs George Wagoner is reported on the sick list.

Clyde Shaffer spent Sunday with his parents at Bryan.

The First National bank solicits your fire insurance. tf

Oliver Riser, who is working at Toledo, was home Sunday.

Loren Ellis spent Sunday in Auburn the guest of friends.

George Stout took in the poultry show at Toledo Wednesday.

Mrs. Marion Knepper is able to be about after her recent illness.

The Culture club met with Mrs. Wm. Mutzfeld, Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Martin Steele spent a few days this week with her son at Elkhart.

Fred Briggs will sell you cement blocks cheaper than anyone else. tf

The Bay View club met with Mrs. Hattie Campbell Wednesday evening.

Sweet juicy steaks and roasts to please at the new meat market. 4-1

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Bryan spent Sunday with Henry Snider near Waterloo.

Eugene Treesh and family spent several days this week with Corunna friends.

Robert Troyer, wife and son spent Sunday at Fort Wayne the guests of relatives.

Miss Mary Latson is at Toledo caring for her sister, Mrs. Guy Griffith, who is quite ill.

The Butler Fanciers' club will hold a meeting the first Tuesday evening in February.

Ernest McDonald of Elkhart spent Sunday with his parents, Ben McDonald and wife

Dr Shumaker has sold his farm of 160 acres in Franklin township to Walter R Cherry.

Miss Addie Elliott will go to Detroit, Mich., this week where she has accepted a position.

Mrs Sam Hallauer, of Auburn, spent Sunday with her son, Walter Hallauer and wife.

John Sturgis and family spent Sunday at Concord the guests of Frank Rhodes and family.

Wm Scoville and wife, south of town, spent Monday with their daughter, Mrs Curtis Craun.

Mrs. F. W. Swantusch went to Chicago Junction Tuesday for a visit with her brother, Wm. Myers.

Mr. and Mrs. Holcomb of College Corners spent Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. Henry Scranton.

Mrs Lee Moltz and children have returned to their home at North Liberty after several days visit here.

Mrs Alec Wilson and sons, Walter and John, of Auburn spent Friday and Saturday with her sister, Mrs. Marion knepper.

Mr. and Mrs. George Swinehart and Jesse Wagoner and wife spent Sunday with Jacob Swinehart near Eddy's Corners.

Arth Edgerly fell and bruised his hip quite badly. He has been confined to his bed for two weeks with but slight improvement.

About twenty of Esther Hiner's schoolmates gave her a postal shower on Monday evening, it being her fourteenth birthday.

The ladies of the Christian church will give a chicken pie supper in the basement of their church, Saturday evening, January 29, from 5 to 7.

The HERALD would like to secure a correspondent at or near Troy. Stamps and stationery furnished, also a copy of the paper sent to correspondent free.

The general health of the school scholars is reported to be the best that it ever has been in Butler. They wear cleaner clothing and keep their skins cleaner.

While nobody in Butler has been seriously injured or permanently crippled it doesn't argue that there hasn't been a great deal of ice on the sidewalks.

Mrs Ward Smith of Kendallville, formerly of Butler' is in the Lutheran hospital at Fort Wayne where she will undergo an operation for gallstones. Her many friends here will hope for her recovery.

The members of the alumni association are requested to be present Friday evening at the K. of P. hall at 7 o'clock for the purpose of making arrangements for the spring meeting.

CHAIRMAN.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

Rovel Pessell is on the sick list.

See Fred Briggs for cement blocks. tf

Miss Lois Powers is reported on the sick list.

Charles Madden was in Albion on business, Wednesday.

John Seeman spent Wednesday with Christ Riser and wife.

Leon Sechler, of St. Joe, spent Sunday with relatives here.

Miles Baxter of Auburn was in the city Monday on business.

Ed Elden, of Buffalo, spent Sunday with Wm. Elden and wife.

Attorney Sharpless of Garrett was in the city Monday on business.

Sunday dinners at the Cottage hotel only 25 cents. Give us a call. 2-tf

Mr. Hunt, of Montpelier, was the guest of Mrs. Grace Edyvean Saturday.

Tyan Bailey, of Blakesley, spent Tuesday with Claud Tyson and family.

Mrs. J. D. Craun and Miss Phosa Scoville were in Waterloo, Wednesday

Chauncey McDonald is in Edon this week the guest of Rev. Braden and wife.

Fred Briggs, the cement king, has been spending several days at Colunbia City.

Mrs. Mary Rosenberry left Tuesday for a visit with her sister in South Whitley.

Mrs. Sharp went to New Nexico last Thursday for an extended visit with her son.

Prof. J. E. Sturgis went to Concord, Monday, to assist in the revival meetings.

Lanore Dunten and cousin, Oma Shoup, of Wolcottville, spent Sunday at Auburn.

If you want to send money away buy a New York draft of the First National bank. tf

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Tyson spent a few days last week in Garrett the guests of relatives.

Mrs. Ed Graf and daughter, Marjorie, are visiting relatives at Garrett a few days this week.

Mrs. G. A. Mauser of Auburn was the guest of Marion Knepper and family, Wednesday.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the U. B. church meets Friday afternoon with Mrs. Cora Husselman.

Class No. 8 of the U. B. church entertained class No. 7, at the home of Mrs. Chas. Husselman last Friday.

C. J. Coats has an 80 acre farm he will trade for a smaller piece. If he cannot do this, will take Butler city property in exchange. tf

WANTED—50 ladies and gentlemen at once at McGuire's Telegraph School, Edgerton, O. Good positions furnished when competent. tf

Mrs Chas Wagoner and daughter, Marguerite, returned to their home at Auburn, Tuesday, after a short visit in this city.

Albert Siebenaler, a promising young farmer and auctioneer, died at his home which is just over the state line in Williams county, Ohio, Monday evening, by the collection of gases around the heart.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a very valuable medicine for throat and lung troubles, quickly relieves and cures painful breathing and a dangerously ounding cough which indicates congested lungs. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

A big record breaker poultry show will be held in Butler next fall. The business has taken on renewed activity and enthusiasm and many new members are joining the Fanciers club. The dates for the next show are November 22 to 26, inclusive. Eugene Sites, the noted judge, will judge the show. Everybody is at liberty to talk up and advertise the big show and also to have something to exhibit.

Class No. 7 of the U. B. church met at the home of Eva Young on Wednesday evening and the following officers were elected: President, Mabel Mutzfeld; vice-president, Vesta Brown; secretary, Veva Farner; assistant secretary, Cleo Hoffman; treasurer, Alta Farner; chairman of devotional committee, Flora Pearson; chairman of social, Mae Worthington; chairman of membership, Tillie Hoffer. Teacher, Eva Young.

January 25, 1910, being Comrade J. M. Young's 62nd birthday, the comrades of the G. A. R. by invitation met at his home in the evening and were served with oysters, etc., after which the comrades presented Comrade Young with a fine pair of slippers. The presentation speech was made by Chaplain Crouse. The evening was passed by comrades telling war and other stories. The ladies of the W. R. C. surprised Comrade Young after supper by each giving him a birthday card Comrade Young is the youngest member of Meade Post G. A. R.

One of the most pleasant social events of the season was a 6 o'clock dinner given at the home of Mrs. Warren Mason, Friday, Jan. 14, where she most cordially received a number of her lady friends. Covers were laid in the dining room in a most tasteful manner where the guests were invited to partake of a delicious repast, most daintly served. At the conclusion of this very enjoyable feature of the occasion the guests were assembled in the parlors where a delightful social time was spent. Out of town guests were Mrs. Frank Eckhart, Mrs. Edwin Fosdick and Mrs. John Baxter, of Auburn.

Mrs. F. D. Fanning is in Chicago the guest of friends.

Wm. Chambers is not improving as well as wished for.

Mrs. Jacob Cook spent Sunday with friends in the country.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Preston spent Sunday at Kendallville.

Pay your bills by check. Deposit with the First National bank. tf

Willis McClellan, of Auburn, was in the city Monday on business.

Home rendered leaf lard, strictly pure at the new meat market. 4-1

The Penelope club spent Wednesday at Auburn the guest of Mrs. Daniels.

Fresh oysters each Wednesday at the new meat market. 4-1

Will sell one lot only, now cheap you will pay more later. W. C. Tomlinson. 3-tf

Dr. M. M. Acker is much improved as his many friends will be pleased to learn.

Mrs. Perry Applegate came Thursday for a few days visit with Geoge A. and A. S. Powers.

Si Simons has purchased a gasoline engine which he expects to use to run his ice cream plant.

Martin Heffelfinger is able to be taken about in his wheel chair for the first time this winter.

Mrs. Wm. Yergin and son, Charles, of Goshen, were the guests of R. E. Preston and wife Tuesday.

Luther Knisely and wife spent Friday at Auburn the guests of Recorder Sam Haverstock and wife.

FOR SALE—Good general purpose mare and spring colt. Address Rev. E. E. Bergman, Waterloo, Ind. 4-2

Rev. Coleman of Kentucky will preach at the Christian church Thursday and Friday evenings of this week.

FOR SALE—About 800 white oak fence posts, 7½ feet long. Will be sold reasonable. A. R. Zimmerman. Home phone 1813¼. 4-2

FOR TRADE:—An improvdd twenty acre tract of land in Michigan. Value about fifteen hundred dollars. Want Butler property. Wallace C. Webster.

J. George Wagner, manager of the gasoline engine plant, was called to Rochester, N. Y., last Friday by the serious illness of his wife.

Mrs. Wilda Shoup and daughter, Oma, of Wolcottville, were the guests of the former's sister, Mrs. E. B. Dunten, the latter part of last week.

Do you want a small farm of less than fifteen acres in DeKalb county? Sandy soil, the very best for gardening and poultry. Small house and barn. Requires a down payment of $200. Wallace C. Webster. 4tf

The revival meeting is in progress at the U. B. church. A good interest is manifested. A general invitation is extended to everybody to attend these meetings at 7 o'clock each evening except Saturday evening. Sunday services at 10:30 and 7.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Craun took the editor and family and Miss Phosa Scoville a sled ride last Sunday afternoon. In circulating around over the country they stopped at the pleasant country home of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Beerer who served the crowd with delicious popcorn.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They do the work whenever you require their aid. These tablets change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, gloominess into joyousness. Their action is so gentle one don't realize they have taken a purative. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

At a public sale of real estate in Butler, Saturday, fifty people were present. Bidding was spirited. Farm consisted of 70 acres. First bid was $50 per acre. Nineteenth bid was made by John W. Olds and was struck off to him at $4,672.50. This land has been in the name of the Olds family for the last forty-five years. The buyer is one of the telegraph operators at Lake Shore station at this place.

Chas. W. Webster, breeder of the famous Duroc Jersey swine, and owner and proprietor of the Gravel Ridge farm, three miles east and three miles south of this city, has just had printed a fine lot of stationary which he will use the coming season in answering the many inquiries which come to him concerning his blooded stock. He puffed us all up by telling us that it was the best job of work he had ever had done. It is so seldom a printer gets any praise that when he does it throws him into a fit of hysteria.

The city council met in adjourned session Monday evening. A number of citizens were present and gave short talks concerning the paving proposition. A petition was also presented requesting the council to pave Broadway and Main streets. The paving proposition is being discussed pro and con by our citizens, some being in favor of paving one street this year, others are in favor of paving Broadway, Main and Depot streets while there are some who are opposed to paving at all. The HERALD is in favor of paving all three of the streets named, leaving Oak for another year as it is a short street and not traveled as much as the other streets. As to where the paving shall end we are willing the council shall decide that. They are all business men of good judgement and their course in the matter will be approved by a majority of the people.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy never disappoints those who use it for obstinate coughs, colds and irritations of the throat and lungs. It stands unrivalled as a remedy for all throat and lung diseases. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

Read your own HERALD

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

Chas. Croninger spent Sunday at Kendallville.

Miss Alwilda Crouse is off duty, on the sick list this week.

Frank Boltz, of Spencerville, spent Sunday with Henry Sechler.

A share of your patronage is solicited at the Harper meat market.

Phone orders promptly delivered at the new meat market. 4 1

Sunday dinners at the Cottage hotel only 25 cents. Give us a call. 2-tf

William Lake of Spencersville, was in the city Wednesday on business.

Sunday dinners at the Cottage hotel only 25 cents. Give us a call. 2-tf

We have some 5 per cent money to loan on mortgage security. First National Bank. tf

O. M. Warner and wife of Goshen were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Scranton, Sunday.

I have for sale, houses in all parts of the city. Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

D. D. Melroy attended the pet stock show at Toledo a couple of days this week.

Miss Carrie Schott of Edgerton was the guest of J. S. Robinett and family Sunday.

Attorney E. B. Dunten was at Chicago a couple of days this week on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nimmons spent several days at their old home near Plymouth, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sturgis, of Kendallville, spent Sunday with E. C. Miller and family.

Wm. McCaffery and wife, of Auburn, spent Sunday with his sister, Mrs. Martin Heffelfinger.

Miss Ada Mountz went to Pleasant Lake Saturday to visit her sister, Miss Beatrice Mountz, who is ill.

Miss Donna Daniels has been confined to the house for several weeks with an attack of lagrippe.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Nimmons returned from a two weeks visit in Plymouth, Shelby, and Toledo.

Have you a weak throne? If so, you cannot be too careful. You cannot begin treatment too early. Each cold makes you more liable to another and the last is always harder to cure. If you will take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the outset yov will be saved much trouble. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

The Ladies' Home Aid Society of Stafford Center met at the home of Mrs. Clara Hollinger last Thursday and elected the following officers for the year: President, Mrs. Jennie Beerer; vice-president, Mrs. Ellen Hollinger; secretary, Mrs. Clara Greenwald; assistant secretary, Mrs. Jennie Keller; treasurer, Mrs. Lottie Casebeer. The society has been organized nine years and Mrs. Beerer has been elected president each year with the exception of last year, Mrs. Isaac Diehl acting as president.

Classes 7 and 8, the young people's classes of the U. B. Sunday school were pleasantly entertained by Mrs. Chas. Husselman, teacher of No, 8, at her home on the south side last Friday evening. After enjoying an evening filled with jolly games and contests and lively conversation, with a dainty lunch as a climax, the delighted visitors left at a late hour proclaiming Mrs. Husselman to be a royal entertainer in addition to her well known qualities as guide and instructor of her class in moral and spiritual things.

Frank M. Kircher, a B. & O. engineer, of Garrett, who is making the race for county chairman for the democrats of DeKalb county, was a caller at this office Monday. He has been a lifelong Jeffersonian and has done considerable for his party. Mr. Kircher informs us that he has never before asked for any honors from the party, although he has been a voter for thirty-two years. Two years ago Mr. Kircher organized a glee club of three young ladies and paid their expenses out of his own pocket for going over the county singing campaign songs. Mrs. Kircher, his good wife, who is also interested with her husband in politics, has the honor of composing the songs used by the young ladies. In case Mr. Kircher is successful in securing the chairmanship he promises an honest and faithful record. We go to press too early Thursday to give results of the convention.

The Knisely Dry Goods Co.

January Clearance Sale

The Last Week of Our Big Clearance Sale of Ladies' Coats, Suits and Skirts, Misses' and Children's Coats
Ladies' Silk and Net Waists

For the Last Week we will offer the following Inducements to Close Stock

A Discount of 33⅓ Per Cent — On all Ladies' Suits and Coats, Misses' and Children's Coats

A Discount of 25 Per Cent — On all Silk Waists and Net Waists

A Discount of 20 Per Cent — On our Entire Stock of Ladies' Dress Skirts

New, up-to-date goods. Not a back number in the whole lot

You cannot afford to miss this opportunity to get New Tailored Garments at a great sacrifice

ZION LACE INDUSTRIES, ZION CITY, ILLINOIS

ZION LACES and many interesting features in their manufacture are on exhibition in one of our show windows. This display is educational and every person should see it.

From 3,400 to 4,500 bobbins are required to thread one lace machine, besides the beam and warp, making a total—when the machine is threaded—of 13,000 threads in actual work. When a machine is fully threaded there are 6,700 miles of cotton on it, enough to reach from here to England and nearly back again.

See the illustrations of the various machines in operation—where they take in the thread and turn out the dainty, attractive laces—also skeins of yarns, yarn spools—pieces of lace just as they come from the machines. Especially interesting is the process of clipping, scalloping and separating. The exhibit is so unique and the values so unusual that a visit will be of material interest to you.

SPECIAL SHOWING OF

NEW EMBROIDERIES AND LACES

5000 Yards New Embroideries, Special Values

5,10,15,25c

Plain, clean, honest methods you will find in force here at all times

Knisely's

FREE!

How many people in Indiana at the coming census?

Can you guess?

One barrel Grabill flour free to the person making nearest correct guess.

One guess given with each 25 pounds of Grabill flour.

CRAUN'S FEED STORE

PHONE 54

EUGENE TREESH

Embalmer and Funeral Director

Lady Assistant

Prompt Response to Calls Day or Night

Piles Cured at Home By New Absorption Method

If you suffer from bleeding, itching, blind or protruding Piles, send me your address, and I will tell you how to cure yourself at home by the new absorption treatment; and will also send some of this home treatment free for trial, with references from your own locality if requested. Immediate relief and permanent cure assured. Send no money, but tell others of this offer. Write today to Mrs. M. Summers, Box P, Notre Dame, Ind

DON'T BUY YOUR FENCE

Until you get our prices on Peerless wire fence.

Let us order it for you direct from the factory.

Big reduction in prices for 30 days.

CRAUN'S FEED STORE

Phone 54

Eat What

You want of the food you need Kodol will digest it.

You need a sufficient amount of good wholesome food and more than this you need to fully digest it.

Else you can't gain strength, nor can you strengthen your stomach if it is weak.

You must eat in order to live and maintain strength.

You must not diet, because the body requires that you eat a sufficient amount of food regularly.

But this food must be digested, and it must be digested thoroughly.

When the stomach can't do it, you must take something that will help the stomach.

The proper way to do is to eat what you want, and let Kodol digest the food.

Nothing else can do this. When the stomach is weak it needs help; you must help it by giving it rest, and Kodol will do that.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today, and purchase a dollar bottle, and if you can honestly say, that you did not receive any benefits from it, after using the entire bottle, the druggist will refund your money to you without question or delay.

We will pay the druggist the price of the bottle purchased by you.

This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family.

We could not afford to make such an offer, unless we positively knew what Kodol will do for you.

It would bankrupt us.

The dollar bottle contains 2½ times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is made at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

SOLD AT GEDDES' DRUGSTORE

The Old Adage "A New Broom Sweeps Clean" will soon be a saying of the past

if Brooms continue to soar. Take our advice, buy what brooms you will need until another crop is cut.

We have plenty of them at 35, 40 and 50 cents

Blue Ribbon raisins at 10c pound, fancy currants 12c, juicy prunes 10c, dried apricots 15c, apple jell home made 75c gallon, quart olives 25c, large size oranges 35c dozen, medium size oranges 25c dozen.

DO YOU KNOW? We do, that Indian brand corn, peas, succotash and string beans at 15c per can are the best money will buy. They are grown and packed by the None-Such Mince Meat people, who make only the best. Indian Coffee is drank by more people in Butler than any other brand. There's a reason; try a pound, 17c.

The Oberlin Grocery Company

January Cook Books are here--get one.

JANUARY

0459

L1134

DeKalb County Herald

BUTLER, INDIANA.

A. S. POWERS, - - - Publisher.

The more talk it takes to run things the slower they move.

The man who marries for money only would take candy from a baby.

France is trying to find a substitute for horse meat. The automobile, of course, won't do.

A New York woman has become the mother of her nineteenth child. African papers please copy.

Another plausible reason for the high price of meat is the fact that people will persist in eating it.

A few weeks after she has been happily wed a woman's greatest desire is to make a match involving her dearest friend in matrimony.

For fourteen years a western woman saved her pennies in order to secure a divorce. As a rainy day economist she is entitled to the record.

A Philadelphia man dislocated his jaw five times in two weeks. Some day he may learn that the safest way is to let his wife do the talking.

Now that the football and hunting seasons are over, there won't be so much work for the undertaker, but a better outlook for the census taker.

King Edward, it is said, can pick out an American women by looking at her back. Probably none but an American woman would dare turn her back to the king.

The value of concentration is nowhere more fully demonstrated than in the difference that exists between the man who has nerve and his neighbor who has nerves.

When Hariman died some of the wise ones guessed that he left $150,000,000. It turns out that he left $149,000,000, which shows that some people are good guessers.

When John D. Rockefeller was informed that a plot had been laid to kidnap him, he said: "Oh, pshaw!" This completely demolishes the claim that Mr. Rockefeller's strongest expletive is "Oh, tush!"

At St. Louis man recently got a jury to award him $50,000 damages for the alienation of his wife's affections. The jury must have been convinced that he would never be able to win the affections of any other woman.

When the north pole is exploited as a summer resort it should be popular in open seasons for the reason that by rowing around it over a course not more than half a mile in length anyone who cares for the distinction may claim a certificate as a circumnavigator.

Presidents of farmers' unions in Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas have lately been taken on an automobile tour over the good roads of New York, New Jersey and New England by the chairman of the executive committee of a Western railroad company. He wished to show them the relation of good roads to contented and prosperous rural communities, and to the marketing of farm products.

Librarians are beginning to discuss the problem of "dead books," the many unused and uncalled-for volumes which rapidly cumber up the shelves and clog the working collection. There is only a partial solution in the storage plan and in the arrangement of books under various systems. Many large libraries aim to possess at least one copy of almost all new books, but the rate of production is now so great that there is a physical limit to such a system, and a periodic thinning out of trash and dead matter seems inevitable before long.

Adria, Italy, was recently under an interdict of the Pope for two weeks, and its people were deprived of all religious services and rites for that period. That is one of the gravest punishments in the power of the Roman Catholic church, and is rarely used in modern times. In this instance it was visited upon Adria as the result of the mobbing of a bishop when he attempted to remove the archives of the episcopal see to Rovigo from Adria, where they have been kept since the third century. Adria was once a seaport, and the Adriatic takes its name from the city, but the sea has receded until now it is seventeen miles from the cathedral, in the walls of which there are still the iron rings where galleys were once moored. The papal interdict was used with special frequency in the thirteenth century, when whole countries, as France, England, Portugal, Sicily and Denmark, were in turn under interdicts for varying periods. The case of Venice in 1509 and again in 1606 is usually cited as the last use of the interdict before the case of Adria, although it has occasionally been invoked since then against single churches or individuals.

The publication known as the London Queen asserts that nearly every gentleman, as well as every cowboy, in the United States carries a revolver, and to this fact it attributes the numerous murders in this country growing out of the relation of the sexes. It is to be doubted if there are relatively more murders of that kind in this country than in other civilized countries; but it is undoubtedly true that the carrying of deadly weapons does tend to promote killings of every description. In those countries where the knife is an almost indispensable portion of the dress or equipment, stabbings are quite as frequent as gun play is in the wildest portions of America. But the London publication is mistaken in supposing that revolvers are carried by any large portion of the men in America who call themselves gentlemen. In the prevalent styles of masculine dress it would be very difficult for a man to carry a concealed revolver without producing a suspicious bulge at some portion of his anatomy. The Southern fire-eater of the old days customarily wore a long-skirted, loose frock coat, and with a little practice his pistol could be pretty well concealed under his armpit, or in his hip pocket. But with the close-fitting sack coat and trousers of to-day such concealment is impossible. In overcoat weather the problem of concealment is easier; but when the overcoat is temporarily removed discovery would become imminent. The average man would rather run the risk of going weaponless than to incur the ridicule of a bulging pocket or the revealing sag of a heavy piece of metal when he hangs up his overcoat. Perhaps it is to the fashion of clothes more than to the laws against the carrying of concealed weapons that we owe the present almost universal discarding of the gun-carrying habit.

FACTS ABOUT ARSENIC.

Poisoning of Cows Leads to Foundation of Prosperous Mine.

Arsenic is mined in Japan, Italy, Portugal, Spain, Germany, England and within a limited area in the United States. Its uses are many. As a poison it has been known from very early times. The peasant women of Austria consume large quantities of it, having faith in its virtues as a beautifier, and the men of the same region are addicted to its use in the mistaken belief that it increases their bodily strength and endurance.

Arsenic is a useful mineral. It is used in the manufacture of glass, white metal, Paris green and a great variety of paints, in printing calico, in making toilet soaps, cosmetics and complexion powders; in the manufacture of fireworks and as a constituent of many alloys. For these and similar purposes between 5,000 and 6,000 tons are imported into the United States every year. The average value of white arsenic may be placed at about $85 per ton.

It was only a few days ago that arsenic ore was discovered in Virginia; then the moutain top around the present mining town of Brinton was almost an unknown wilderness. The story of its discovery is most interesting. A farmer, among the foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains, had cleared a new field there for the pasturing of his cows. Before long the animals sickened and died. At first it was thought that the trouble lay in a spring which bubbled from the rocks in apparent purity. Upon analysis it was found that this water contained arsenic in such quantities as to render it dangerous either to man or beast. Upon this chance hinged the founding of a prosperous mining town, that of Brinton, which speedily became a busy center of industry. This mine is located at the summit of a mountain, 3,000 feet above the sea level.

The ore body averages 25 to 30 per cent pure arsenic. It is found in fissure veins, cropping out at the surface and extending into the earth for an unknown distance. Twenty distinct veins have been uncovered, outcropping for a distance of seven miles, so that the deposits are extensive enough to supply the needs of the United States when once the industry shall have been put upon an extensive basis.

From the time when the ore enters the crushers until the finished products reaches the casks it is untouched by human hands. It is carried along from point to point by automatic arrangements through each process of manufacture. The impalpable dust and poisonous gases generated are so dangerous that the atmosphere of the plant has to be kept pure by artificial means. As a further precaution the works are provided with hot and cold baths, of which the men are required to make use as soon as their daily task is completed.

BREAKFAST FRUIT.

The Best Said to Be Oranges, Grapes and Fresh Olives.

Of all breakfast fruits the orange is deservedly the most popular. It is a food that is distinctly health-giving. Orange juice adds greatly in reducing the amount of putrefaction found in the intestines of nearly all persons who are submitted to clinical laboratory tests.

Grapes are another fruit that should always be eaten freely when obtainable. Apples are preferably eaten before retiring, and two are about twice as good as one. The apple habit, persisted in, often works rather surprising results with persons who are naturally listless. Lemons can hardly be eaten as a fruit, but lemonade is a valuable beverage. When used as a laxative fresh figs should form the dessert. When not obtainable the dried figs form a good substitute.

Of the value of bananas there seems some reasonable doubt. Many persons complain that they find them indigestible. They are quite likely to reach this conclusion if the banana be eaten frequently as the needless complement of an already hearty meal. On the other hand, there can be no doubt that the growing popularity of the fresh olive is fully deserved. It surely ranks with the orange and the grape and is, of course, much ahead of either in cases of sluggish intestines or constitutional thinness.—H. Irving Hancock in Good Housekeeping.

Didn't Care for Him.

Little Eleanor's mother was an American, while her father was a German.

One day after Eleanor had been subjected to rather severe disciplinary measures at the hands of her father she called her mother into another room, closed the door significantly and said, "Mother, I don't want to meddle in your business, but I wish you'd send that husband of yours back to Germany."—Ladies' Home Journal.

THE PASSING OF EUROPE'S ROYAL REPROBATE.

Leopold, of Belgium, a Strange Combination of Man and Monster—King Who Boldly Defied Decencies and Flaunted His Scandals in the Face of His Subjects—His Hatred of His Daughters—The Horrors of the Congo, from Which He Reaped Bloodstained Millions.

When Leopold II., King of Belgium, died recently there passed from earth one of the most remarkable monarchs of Europe—a man whose characteristics ran the entire gamut from kingly dignity to brazen immorality, a man who was as famous for his business ability as he was infamous for his meretricious conduct.

A giant in physique, a master of diplomacy, a prodigious worker, a lover of his country and its people, a monarch of mingled austerity and democracy, a faithless husband, a cruel and unnatural father, a marvel of tenderness to the children of the streets and a monster of cruelty as the personal owner of the Congo region, a breaker of hearts and the victim of heartbreaking misfortune, adorable as a king and a stench in the nostrils as a man, implacable in his hatreds, conscienceless in his treatment of his own daughters, tireless in the service of his country and equally tireless in pursuit of pleasure, lovable and approachable by the plain people, shameless in his vices. Such was Leopold.

EX-EMPRESS CARLOTTA.

As a ruler who had done much to promote the welfare of his country and to safeguard its every interest, Belgians mourn his loss. As one whom they would have preferred to respect, but whose actions made him a national disgrace, his passing is a relief. Leopold was almost 75 years of age.

THE LATE KING LEOPOLD OF BELGIUM.

His magnificent physique and splendid constitution had been wrecked by his excesses, else he would have been still in his prime at that age.

Leopold's Striking Career.

In the annals of Europe Leopold II. will be remembered as the only monarch of recent times who openly and deliberately set himself to make money out of his position. His friends declared with pride that he was fit to be his own finance minister; his critics saw in his Congo Free State administration the most cold-blooded exploitation of uncivilized races undertaken since the days of Cortes and Pizarro. In addition, his private life and family relations have been a scandal to Europe. His treatment of his two elder daughters has been notorious. It has been suspected that he squandered the fortune of his sister, the insane ex-Empress Carlotta, of Mexico. He stinted his youngest daughter in the necessaries of her position, and his relations with the Baroness Vaughan, the daughter of a janitor whom he raised to the nobility, amazed even the boulevardiers of Paris by their boldness.

Yet for twenty years after he became king the little that was known of Leopold was favorable. He was the son of Leopold I., the ruler whose influence over Queen Victoria of Great Britain was so valued by her and so beneficial to her people. Born in 1835, he was brought up so strictly that some moralists have said his later libertinism was in the nature of a reaction. He found his principal relaxation in travel. Before he was 21 he had visited a large part of Asia Minor, and after his marriage with the Archduchess Marie Henriette of Austria in 1853, he traveled to the Holy Land, to India and China. He was about to set off for Japan, which at that time had only recently been opened to Europeans, when the death of his father, in 1865, forced him to assume the burdens of a king.

For a time men spoke well of the young king. His great height and military carriage made him a dignified figure. His family life seemed happy, and was, at any rate, not disturbed by open scandal, and tales were told of the laborious days he spent in his castle at Laeken, working over affairs of state.

During the Franco-Prussian war his country was in a delicate position, situated, as it was, so near the scene of the early battles with no natural frontiers. Leopold, however, steered a course of rigid neutrality, and when French fugitives from Sedan crossed his boundary he interned them until the end of the war. As a whole the country prospered, and, secure in the neutrality guaranteed to it by the concert of Europe in 1832, it played a leading part as a promoter of international agreements on such matters as neutrality in war and hygiene.

The change of public feeling toward the king is associated with the series of unpleasant incidents in which his family has been concerned and with the administration of the Congo Free State. Leopold's sister, Carlotta, was married to the Emperor Maximilian of Mexico. His execution drove her violently insane and for more than forty years she has been referred to as "Poor Carlotta" more frequently than in any other way. According to her marriage settlements her fortune, which she had received from her father, King Leopold I., should have passed into the care of Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, brother of Maximilian, but Leopold II. refused to pay it over.

The ex-Empress has been kept in confinement ever since, and persistent rumors have been current that not only had the king squandered all her fortune, but that he had kept her shut up longer than her mental condition warranted, in order to prevent awkward inquiries.

Leopold's only son, Leopold Ferdinand, died in 1869, when 9½ years old. His eldest daughter, the Princess Louise, married in 1875 Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg, nephew of Queen Victoria, and afterward caused a scandal which startled Europe. After over twenty years of married life, in which she had a good deal of cause to complain of her husband, she eloped with a young lieutenant of Austrian Uhlans named Keglevitch. She met him in Vienna at the palace of her sister, the Crown Princess Stephanie. Kegevitch's attentions aroused so much comment that her husband fought a duel with him; and a few weeks later, in 1898, she ran away with her admirer. At once all the power of the Austrian empire was turned against the couple. Keglevitch was arrested and imprisoned, with only a pretense of a trial, on a charge of forging notes of 575,000 florins. The princess was not only divorced, but was confined for years in a lunatic asylum in Saxony.

Leopold's second daughter, Stephanie, has had a hardly less exciting career. She was married in 1881 to the Archduke Rudolph, crown prince of Austria. The story of his love affair with the Baroness Marie Vetsera, ending in his being murdered in the hunting lodge at Meyerling, shocked Europe. Emperor Francis Joseph befriended the widowed Stephanie, and in 1890, when she desired to marry Count Elemer of Lonyay, willingly gave his consent to the match. King Leopold, however, was bitterly opposed to it, and refused to be reconciled to his daughter, even on the intercession of the pope.

Meanwhile the youngest of Leopold's daughters, Princess Clementine, has lived unmarried in Belgium. Many suitors for her hand have been mentioned from time to time, and it is believed that she would not have been averse to marrying. The selfishness of the old king prevented his giving his consent, while his avarice forced his daughter to live in very plain circumstances. At one time it was announced that Leopold's ill treatment of Clementine had become so pronounced that she was about to enter a nunnery.

In 1902 Queen Marie Henriette lay dying. Stephanie, who had lost her archducal rank upon her remarriage, hastened to her mother's deathbed. Leopold turned her out of doors and threatened to treat Clementine in the same manner if she dared talk with her sister.

In more recent years there have been numerous scandals attending the efforts of the three daughters to secure their share of their mother's fortune, which Leopold refused to give up. The miserable old man has done everything to impoverish his daughters. He has sold their mother's jewelry and household treasures—even her dresses—to dealers. While the wrath of the civilized world has been growing in the last few years against Leopold on account of the Congo, his subjects have been shamed by the stories of his scandalous personal conduct.

The Congo Horror.

It would take pages to give a comprehensive history of the Congo outrages for which Leopold is held responsible and which have marked him as a monster of greed and cruelty.

His personal possession of the Congo Free State in Africa came about through the mutual jealousy of the European powers and his own presumptuous ambition. In 1876 he convoked a conference of explorers and geographers to discuss the development of Africa. There was founded the International Association for the exploration and civilization of Africa and, owing to the preoccupation of the European powers in the eastern question, the association secured an important priority in the Congo region. The original organization was succeeded by the International Association of the Congo and in 1884, under protestations of an intention to bring free trade and civilization to the benighted negroes, the Congo Free State was established, under the tutelage of Belgium. In the following year Leopold, to the astonishment of the world, assumed sovereign power over the new state. Singularly enough his remarkable claim was not disputed and soon came to be accepted as a fact.

The Congo Free State was thus made, not a province or colony of Belgium, but merely subject to Belgium's king. In other words the vast African territory, with its millions of black savages, became a personal possession of Leopold. Then the king sent to the Congo Free State a Belgian governor general and hundreds of subordinates. From that time forward he used his African domain as a mine of wealth, selling concessions and forcing tens of thousands of the natives into practical slavery.

A few cotton cloths or colored handkerchiefs are offered to the chiefs in return for men. If they fail to supply them their villages are burned. Soldiers raised under such conditions and held in practical slavery have been armed with the best of rifles and ammunition and have been allowed to tyrannize over their fellow countrymen. On the slightest provocation they have been let loose to raid, pillage, mutilate and kill. Their officers have had little control over them, and sometimes, it has seemed, little desire to control them.

But of all the abuses to which irrefutable testimony has been brought, the worst has been the exploitation of Leopold's monopoly in rubber. To European and American traders Leopold's regime has meant the setting up of a monopoly and the exclusion of all but government employes. Occasionally an outrage such as the execution of the ex-missionary, Stokes, in 1895 and the imprisonment of the Austrian trader Rabenick, in 1901, has aroused foreign indignation. But the worst of the system has been felt by the natives.

On them has been imposed a rubber tax to raise which has meant almost a decimation of the population. The officials of the Free State have been egged on by a system of payment for results to exact from the miserable population every ounce that is possible. To get the rubber the natives have been forced to take long journeys from home, and have been visited with mutilation and death if they failed in their search. Villages have been fired, women have been attacked and children have been left with feet and hands lopped off to die in the forests. Roger Casement, the British consul at Boma, estimated that in the ten years before 1904 the population of one district had been reduced 60 or 70 per cent as a consequence of the Free State's administration. Against this frightful system European nations and the United States have protested in vain.

Leopold's Successor.

The successor to the royal rake of Europe is his nephew, Prince Albert, son of Leopold's brother, the late Prince Philippe, Count of Flanders. He is not quite 35 years of age, is married to the Princess Elizabeth, of Bavaria, and has two sons and a daughter. He succeeds his uncle because the Galic law bars women from the throne. He is a democratic man, a civil engineer, a great traveler and a sociologist of note. In 1898 he visited America and spent some time in the northwest in company of James J. Hill, the railroad magnate. He is beloved by the Belgian people who gladly welcome him to the throne.

At one time it looked as though his marriage might prove as unfortunate as those of others of the Belgian royal family. In spite of the three children born to them, two years ago the princess returned to her parents at Munich declaring her intention of never revisiting Belgium, but they have since been reconciled.

NEW KING AND QUEEN OF BELGIUM.

PRINCE ALBERT of Belgium

THE CROWN PRINCESS ELIZABETH

Napoli.

My ol'a son name' Napoli,
He eesa beega lad;
He no work een da barber shop
Da sam' hees ol'a dad.
He lik' for do mooch beega theeng,
"No leetla job," he says;
He go to Cambreedge ev'ra morn
For deega beeg subway.

He gatta twelve doll' ev'ra week
For work eights hours a day;
For Dago boy weeth no mooch school
Eees pretta gooda pay.
He dress up nights an' com' een shop,
But no geev me da han';
Baycause he deega dat subway
He feels he's beega man.
—Boston Herald.

The Decline of the Drama.

"How many actresses were present at the big reception?"

"Three!"

"Eh! Why, I heard it stated there would be at least fifty!"

"There were at least fifty women of the stage present, but only three of them could act."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Simple Enough.

"One writer says that genius is the capacity for taking pains. Genius, however, has never been satisfactorily defined."

"It's simple enough. Genius is the capacity for existing without regular meals."

SIGNS UPON WHICH MILLIONS OF DOLLARS CHANGE HANDS.

Pandemonium so Great Voices Cannot Be Heard—Sign Language Enables Brokers to Make Deals.

Pandemonium and the stock exchange and board of trade have become almost synonymous, yet most of the trading so far as wheat is concerned could be done by deaf mutes. The crook of a finger may mean the sale of thousands of bushels of grain on the floor of the exchange, and a simple motion of the hand may be expressive of a deal which might take hundreds of words to express on paper.

Staid, substantial business men may apparently be performing the five-finger exercise which is the bane of their little daughter's music lessons, yet his entire business may be dependent upon a seemingly meaningless wiggling of digits. Positions of the hands which would make shadow animals of fierce aspect against the wall, may be signaling a deal of momentous import.

A sign language as universal as the Morse telegraphic code is used on every Chamber of Commerce floor, particularly in times of stress and flurries. It is a code of signals which is instantly recognized and means the same on the floors of the boards of trade in Kansas City, Chicago, Duluth or New York, and every trader is acquainted with it.

Yelling frantically at the top of his voice, one trader may want to sell wheat, and do it quickly, but in the pandemonium he is unable to determine what the equally frantic individual across the pit will pay for it. The man with wheat to sell clenches his fist and turns it downward; it is a sign that he wants to sell at an even cent. If the trader opposite wants to buy at an even cent, he waves his clenched fist aloft.

SIGN LANGUAGE ON 'CHANGE.

Sticking the forefinger out means the buyer will pay an eighth of a cent over the even figure. The finger must be tilted up, like a "This way to the gallery" sign, otherwise to point downward would indicate a desire to sell.

Fractions are expressed in this fashion: One-quarter, by sticking out the first two fingers of the hand; three-eighths, by three fingers; three-fourths, by the whole hand stuck out, the thumb and fingers rigid and close together. The thumb tilted upward means the trader wants to buy at seven-eighths. With the hand reversed and the thumb protruding downward, the opposite is expressed.

Split quotations come close to being physical culture exercises, a split, in pit parlance, being a term for a difference either way from the market price of one-sixteenth. The sign for this is a cross between doubling the fist and relaxing outward the first two fingers.

Wonder.

She runs to meet me down the street
And I'm as happy as a king.
I wonder is it me she loves
Or just the candy that I bring?
—Detroit Free Press.

Appropriate Decoration.

"I see where 'Cook hats' are to be all the rage this winter. I wonder how they will be trimmed."

"I should judge with wreaths of the ice plant."

ONE OF UNCLE SAM'S NAVY WAR DOGS DAMAGED IN COLLISION.

THE UNITED STATES BATTLESHIP GEORGIA.

(Sister of the Nebraska, Which Collided with the Georgia on the Southern Drill Grounds.)

ATCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS.

Every man thinks his brutality is "tact."

Fishing seems to be the favorite form of loafing.

Any woman closely associated with a man can make or break him.

None of us realize how much people talk about us behind our backs.

Talk with any man five minutes, and he will say the trouble with him is, he is too meek.

Every shiftless man is a liar; he acquired the habit in giving excuses.

We despise a man who doesn't appreciate a friend; friends are so rare.

Out of one hundred people who try to save money, ninety-five will make the attempt very feebly.

Even when times are very good, things will not come your way unless you carefully start them.

There are so many kinds of meanness that people now talk about the meanest kind of meanness.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

If it is necessary to stir rice, use a fork.

Always cook oats in boiling water and sprinkle them in a few at a time.

Mop off linoleum once a month with boiled linseed oil and it will look like new.

Dip a new broom in a good soap suds once a week and see how much longer it will last.

When laundering starched articles in winter always add borax to the starch and the cuffs and collars will not lose shape.

By adding one tablespoonful of butter or a half cup of cream to the batter, pancakes can be baked without greasing the griddle.

Always soak such things as dried corn, beans, hominy and rice over night, and it will save your fuel. It will not take one-third as long to cook them.

WHAT WISE MEN HAVE SAID.

Luck is a small matter.—U. S. Grant.

Who sows courtesy, reaps friendship.—Basil.

A good resolve will make any port.—Horace.

Make your life your monument.—Ben Jonson.

In all things let reason be your guide.—Solon.

SPLINTERS.

Dog bite—Frankfurter lunch.

Phonograph dealers usually have a good line of talk.

The man with the long head usually has a short tongue.

Biggs—Isn't there a deep ring to that man's voice? Wiggs—Yes, he must have a hollow head.

You had better not make any New Year's resolutions unless you have a bottle of good glue handy.

JANUARY

0460

L1134

The Redemption of David Corson

By CHARLES FREDERIC GOSS

Copyright, 1900, by The Bowen-Merrill Company. All Rights Reserved

CHAPTER XXIII.

The period of our country's history in which these characters were formed was one of tremendous moral earnestness. In that struggle in which man pitted himself against primeval forest and aboriginal inhabitant, the strongest types of manhood and womanhood were evolved, and those who conceived the idea of living a righteous life set themselves to its realization with the same energy with which they addressed themselves to the conquest of nature itself. To multitudes of them, this present world took a place that in the fullest sense of the word was secondary to that other world in which they lived by anticipation.

David Corson was only one of many who, to a degree which in these less earnest or at least more materialistic times appears incredible, had determined to trample the world under their feet. He awoke next morning with an unabated purpose and at an early hour set resolutely about its execution. He bade a brave farewell to Pepeeta, exhorted her to seek with him that preparation of heart which alone could fit them for the future, and then with a bag of provisions over his shoulder and an axe in his hand started forth to carry out a plan which he had formed in the night.

He began to prepare for himself a temporary booth which should shelter him until he had erected his cabin; and the rest of the day was consumed in this enterprise. At the close this simple task was done, so easy is it to provide a shelter for him who seeks protection and not luxury! Having once more satisfied his hunger, he built a fire in front of his rude booth, and lay down in its genial rays, his head upon a pillow of moss. The stillness of the cool, quiet evening was broken only by the crackling of the flames, the quiet murmurs of the two little rills which whispered to each other startled interrogations as to the meaning of this rude invasion, the hoot of owls in the tall tree tops, and the stealthy tread of some of the little creatures of the forest who prowled around, while seeking their prey, to discover, if possible, the meaning of this great light, and the strange noises with which their forest world had resounded.

There came to the recumbent woodsman a deep and quiet peace. He felt a new sense of having been in some way taken back into the fraternity of the unfallen creatures of the universe, and into the all-embracing arms of the great Father. He fell asleep with pure thoughts hovering over the surface of his mind, like a flock of swallows above a crystal lake. And Nature did take him back into that all-enfolding heart where there is room and a welcome for all who do not alienate themselves. Her latchstrings are always out, and forests, fields, mountains, oceans, deserts even, have a silent, genial welcome for all who enter their open doors with reverence, sympathy and yearning. A man asleep alone in a vast wilderness! How easy it would be for Nature to forget him and permit him to sleep on forever! What gives him his importance there amid those giant trees? Why should sun, moon, stars, gravity, heat, cold, care for him? How can the hand that guides the constellations—those vast navies of the infinite sea—pause to touch the eyelids of this atom when the time comes for him to rise? When the sleeper woke, refreshed and rested, in the morning, it was to take up the routine of duties which were to be only slightly varied for many months to come.

One after another the great trees succumbed to the blows of his axe and from their prostrate forms he carefully selected those which were best adapted to the structure of his cabin, while over the others he piled the limbs and brush and left them to dry for the conflagration which at the end of the hot summer should remove them from the clearing.

When the rainy days came he spent his time in the shelter of his little arbor cutting the "shakes," or shingles, which were to furnish the roof of Pepeeta's home.

The days and weeks fled by and the opening in the forest grew apace. He measured it by night with a celestial arithmetic, using the stars for his triangulations, and as one after another of them became visible where before they had been obscured by the foliage of the trees, he smiled, and felt as if he were cutting his farm out of heaven instead of earth. It was really cut out of both!

His Sundays were spent at the old homestead with his loved ones, and once every week Pepeeta came with Steven to bring him luxuries which her own hands had prepared, and to pass the afternoon with him at his work in the "clearing."

Those were memorable hours, possessing that three-fold existence with which every hour can be endowed by the soul of man—anticipation—realization—recollection. In this way a single moment sometimes becomes almost synchronous with eternity.

It would have been impossible to tell which of the three was happiest, but Pepeeta was always the center of interest, attention and devotion. Her whole nature seemed to be aroused and called into play; all her countless charms were incessantly evoked; her inimitable laughter resounded through the woods and challenged the emulous birds to unsuccessful competition. Seriousness alternated with gaiety, coquetry with gravity. Some of the time she spent in gathering flowers to adorn her lover's booth, and some in carrying to the rubbish pile such limbs and branches as her strength would permit her to handle.

Nothing could have been more charming than the immense efforts that she put forth with such grace, to lift with all her might some branch that her loved had tossed aside with a single hand! The attitudes into which these efforts threw her body were as graceful as those into which the water threw the cresses by its ceaseless flow, or the wind bent the tree tops by its fitful gusts.

Steven was frantic with delight at the free, open life of the woods. He chased the squirrels and rabbits, he climbed the trees to gaze into the nests of the birds, and caught the butterflies in his hat.

David entered into all their pleasures, but with a chastened and restrained delight, for he could never forget that he was an exile and a penitent.

There were two days in the season when the regular routine of the woodsman's work was interrupted by functions which possess a romantic charm. One was when the Friends and neighbors from a wide region assembled to help him "raise" the walls of his cabin.

From all sides they appeared, in their picturesque costumes of homespun or fur. Suddenly, through the ever-open gates of the forest, teams of horses crashed, drawing after them clanking log chains, and driven by men who carried saws and "cant hooks" on their broad shoulders. Loud halloos of greeting, cheerful words of encouragement, an eager and agreeable bustle of business, filled the clearing.

Log by log the walls rose, as the horses rolled them into place with the aid of the great chains which the pioneers wrapped around them. It was only a rude log cabin they built—with a great, wide opening through the middle, a room on either side, and a picturesque chimney at either end; but it was not to be despised even for grace, and when warmth and comfort and adaptability to needs and opportunities are considered, there have been few buildings erected by the genius of man more justly entitled to admiration.

When this single day's work was ended there remained nothing for David to do but think and daub the walls with mud, cover the rude rafters of the roof with his shakes, build the chimneys out of short sticks, cob-house fashion, and cement them on the inside with clay to protect them from the flames.

The other day was the one on which, at the close of the long and genial summer, when the mass of timber and brushwood had been thoroughly seasoned by the hot suns, he set his torches to the carefully constructed piles.

Steven and Pepeeta were to share with him in the excitement of this conflagration, and David had postponed it until dusk, in order that they might enjoy its entire sublimity. He had taken the precaution to plow many furrows around the cabin and also around the edge of the clearing, so the flames could neither destroy his house nor devastate the forest.

Such precautions were necessary, for nothing can exceed the ferocity of fire in the debris which the woodsmen scatter about them. When the dusk had settled down on this woodland world and long shadows had crept across the clearing, wrapping themselves round the trees at its edge and scattering themselves among the thick branches till they were almost hid from view, David lighted a pine torch and gave it into the hands of the eager boy, who seized it and like a young Prometheus started forth. A single touch to the dry tinder was enough. With a dull explosion, the mass burst into flame. Shouting in his exultation, the little torch-bearer rushed on, igniting pile after pile, and leaving behind him almost at every step a mighty conflagration. At each new instant, as the night advanced, until ten, twenty, fifty great heaps were roaring and seething with flames! Great jets spouted up into the midnight heavens as if about to kiss the very stars, and suddenly expired in the illimitable space above them. Immense sparks, shot out from these bonfires as from the craters of volcanoes, went sailing into the void around them and fell hissing into the water of the brooks or silently into the new-plowed furrows.

The clouds above the heads of the subdued and almost terrified beholders, for no one is ever altogether prepared for the absolute awfulness of such a spectacle, were glowing with the fierce light which the fires threw upon them. Weird illuminations played fantastic tricks in the foliage from which the startled shadows had vanished. The roar of the ever-increasing fires became louder and louder, until in very terror Pepeeta crept into David's arms for protection, while the child who had fearlessly produced this scene of awful grandeur and destruction shouted with triumph at his play.

"Thee's a reckless little fire-eater!" said David, watching his figure as it appeared and disappeared. "How youth trifles with forces whose powers it can neither measure nor control! It was well that I drew a furrow around our cabin or it would have been burned."

His gaze was fixed on the little cabin which seemed to dance and oscillate in the palpitating light; and touched by the analogies and symbols which his penetrating eye discovered in the simple scenes of daily life, he continued to soliloquize, saying, "I should have drawn furrows around my life, before I played with fire!"

"Nay, David," replied Pepeeta, "we should never have played with fire at all."

"How wise we are—too late!"

"Shall we walk any more cautiously when the next untried pathway opens?" he added, somewhat sadly, as he recalled the errors of the past.

"We ought to, if experience has any value," said Pepeeta.

"But has it? Or does it only interpret the past, and not point out the future?"

"Something of both, I think."

"Well, we must trust it."

"But not it alone. There is something better and safer."

"What is that, my love?"

"The path-finding instinct of the soul itself."

"Do you believe there is such an instinct?"

"As much as I believe the carrier pigeon has it. It is the inner light of which you told me. You see, I remember my lesson like an obedient child."

"Why, then, are we so often misled?" he asked, tempting her.

"Because we do not wholly trust it!" she said.

"But how can we distinguish the true light from the false, the instinct from imagination or desire? If the soul has a hundred compasses pointing in different ways, what compass shall lead the bewildered mariner to know the true compass?"

"He who will know, can know."

"Are you speaking from your heart Pepeeta?"

"From its depths."

"And have you no doubts that what you say is true?"

"None, for I learned it from a teacher whom I trust, and have justified it by my own experience."

"And now the teacher must sit at the feet of the pupil! Oh! beautiful instructress, keep your faith firm for my sake! I have dark hours through which I have to pass and often lose my way. The restoration of my spiritual vision is but slow. How often am I bewildered and lost! My thoughts brood and brood within me!"

"Put them away," she said, cheerily. "We live by faith and not by sight. We need not be concerned with the distant future. Let us live in this dear, divine moment. I am here. You are here! We are together; our hands touch; our eyes meet; our hearts are one; we love! Let us only be true to our best selves, and to the light that shines within! Oh! I have learned so much in these few months, among these people of peace, David! They know the way of life! We need go no farther to seek it. It lies before us. Let us follow it!"

"Angel of goodness," he exclaimed, clasping her hand, "it must be that supreme Love reigns over all the folly and madness of life, or to such a one as I, a gift so good and beautiful would never have been given!"

She pressed his hand for response, for her lips quivered and her heart was too full for words.

And now, through the ghastly light which magnified his size portentiously and painted him with grotesque and terrible colors, the child reappeared, begrimed with smoke and wild with the transports of a power so vast and an accomplishment so wonderful.

The three figures stood in the bright illumination, fascinated by the spectacle. The flames, as if satisfied with destruction, had died down, and fifty great beds of glowing embers lay spread out before them, like a sort of terrestrial constellation.

The wind, which had been awakened and excited to madness as it rushed in from the great halls of the forest to fan the fires, now that it was no longer needed, ceased to blow and sank into silence and repose. Little birds, returning to their roosts, complained mournfully that their dreams had been disturbed, and a great owl from the top of a lofty elm hooted his rage.

It was Saturday night. The labors of the week were over. The time had come for them to return to the farm house. They turned away reluctantly, leaving nature to finish the work they had begun.

(To be continued.)

LIGHTHOUSE FOR ALASKA.

Government Putting Up a Modern Station at Cape Hinchinbrook.

C. W. Leick, chief draughtsman of the engineering department in charge of light-house construction for Alaska, has returned to this city on the lighthouse tender America from Cape Hinchinbrook, where the government is at present erecting a light, a Cordova (Alaska) dispatch says. To shipping men Mr. Leick explained the high class of light which the government is erecting at this important point, and much gratification is felt for the protection which this light will offer.

In speaking of the character of the light Mr. Leick said the main building is to be two stories high, built in a hectagon or oblong shape, with the light tower in the center, which is to be built of reinforced concrete. The building is to be thoroughly modern in every respect. On the lower floor will be baths and lavatories, engine room, work shop, store rooms and a tank room for the storing of oil.

The second floor is to be used for the living rooms of the keepers. There are four bedrooms, sitting and dining room, kitchen and pantry. The entire building will be heated by a hot water plant. The water supply comes harnessed by a huge concrete cistern of 15,000 gallons capacity, situated underground to prevent freezing in winter.

About forty feet from the main building is a small fireproof structure in which paints and oils will be stored. A complete set of carpenter and machinist tools will be carried, and supply of lumber, so that the station will be equipped to repair any ordinary damage.

The light proper at the top of the concrete tower is twelve feet in diameter and eighteen feet high, constructed principally of plate glass. The light will be of the third class order, but with new improvements which gives it the same power as the first order light. It is a white flash light with at least 20,000 candle power, and can be seen at a distance of twenty to twenty-five miles at sea.

In connection with the light is a huge fog signal or air siren, which is operated by two coal oil engines and an air compressor, and during fog or thick weather can be heard many miles at sea.

When the light-house is completed and accepted by the government, Mr. Leick stated, it will be the finest equipped light along the Alaska coast and cost approximately $125,000.

Owing to the recent loss of a scow-load of materials containing the plate glass, light, copper plates and a lot of lumber, the permanent light will not be completed this fall, as expected. A temporary light will be maintained, however, which the shipping men are very thankful for.

Fair Enough.

"Why do you hand me this almanac?" inquired the prominent citizen.

"So that you may pick out the anecdotes to be attached to your interview," explained the man who was getting up the magazine article. "It is only fair to give you a choice."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Questionable.

"Your tickets were complimentary, were they not?"

"Well," replied the man who had seen a painfully amateur entertainment, "I thought they were until I saw the show."—Tit Bits.

Experiments in abrasion conducted at a French mint have proved that aluminum coins will be less rapidly worn by use than coins made of gold silver or even bronze.

The longest pipe line in the world is that which extends from the Oklahoma oil wells to New York harbor.

And So It Is.

I said to my friend: "Tell me my faults, and I will know you are my friend." And he told me my faults, and I spurned him, for I thought him a fool."

I said to a second friend: "Tell me my faults, frankly." And he said I had no faults, and I spurned him, for I knew he was a fool."

I said to my third friend: "Tell me all my faults." And he told me my faults, and I thanked him. And he spurned me, for he knew that I was a hypocrite.—Exchange.

Near the End.

"Hello, Thirty-Nine!" said the first messenger boy to the other, who was just starting out with a message, "how fur have yer got ter go?"

"Oh," replied "Thirty-Nine," pulling out his book, "on'y about six chapters. I'm just where Handsome Harry gits on the villain's trail."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Youthful Prudence.

"Ain't you goin' ter save me, Willie?"

"Aw, wot's de use, Mame—I ain't a marryin' man!"

Clever.

"She insists that her paternal ancestor came over on the Mayflower."

"But I thought they proved to her that there was no such name on the Mayflower register?"

"They did. And now she says he was a stowaway."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Between Girls.

"Deep breathing seems to have lost vogue, don't you know."

"Well, it isn't safe in these new gowns."—Washington Herald.

Alarming the Bride.

A clergyman, noticing the simple appearance of the couple he had just married, decided to give them a few words of advice.

He explained to the young man his duties as a husband, and then told the young lady how she should conduct herself, winding up with the old injunction that she must look to her husband for everything, and, forsaking father and mother, follow him wherever he went.

The bride appeared very much troubled at this, and faltered out:

"Must I follow him to every place he goes?"

"Yes," said the clergyman; "you must follow him everywhere until death doth you part."

"Gracious!" cried the girl. "If I had known that before I would never have married a postman."—Spare Moments.

Her Bright New Cook.

Mrs. Blank prided herself on her ability to train her servants, and she had just been bragging about the treasure she had in her new colored cook when the following dialogue occurred:

"Now, Amaranth, I'll come out and fry the chicken, but I want you to have it all ready for me. Dress it carefully and be sure to singe off every hair."

"Yas'm."

"Then cut it up just as I showed you the other day. Do you remember?"

"Yas'm."

"Wash and drain it well. You understand?"

"Yas'm." Then, as an afterthought: "Shall I kill it?"—The Circle.

Pinches All 'Round.

She—My new gown is just lovely; it's a perfect fit.

He—Satisfied on that point, eh?

She—Yes, I know it's a good fit, because it pinches me so—

He—Well, it doesn't pinch you half as much as it does my pocketbook.—Catholic Standard and Times.

Wrong Diagnosis.

"I understand that you told Jinx he was seriously ill, doctor?"

"Indeed, he is."

"Poor fellow! He is down to his last penny, too!"

"Why, I thought he had loads of money! Perhaps he is not so ill as I thought; I will go and see him at once."—Houston Post.

A PAIR OF JOKES.

"Hey, janitor, come quick! Dere's a man fell down de coal hole!"

"All right, sonny, I'll look into it!"

Applicant—Will I be expected to do all the heavy work, sir?

Mr. Boggs—Oh, no. My wife always makes the biscuits!

The Neat Retort.

Mrs. Buttin—Mercy, Mrs. Brown, somebody told me your daughter was at Wellesley! I didn't dream she could be as old as that!

Mrs. Brown—She isn't. The dear child ought to be in the kindergarten, but she's so frightfully precocious, you know.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Got a Good Start.

"To what do you attribute your unvarying success?"

"To being picked early for the village fool. Nobody ever tried to get me to indorse a note or go into a scheme. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

Scrambled Wisdom.

"That young Skimmer is awfully bright. He knows a little of everything. You'll like him."

"No, I don't care for these hashed mentalities."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

One Way.

Bobby—Say, dad, do you kill the bulls and bears in Wall street with a gun?

Father—No, my son. They get them in a corner and pinch them to death. —Puck.

Excellent Prospects.

"What makes you think you will coin money out of that mining prospect?"

"Our ad writer has inspected the property, and feels confident he can write it up to advantage."—Puck.

Real Estate Enterprise.

Snubbubs—What do you intend to do with that lot you bought at Swamphurst?

Commute—I am thinking some of making a fishing preserve of it.—Brooklyn Life.

The Usual Bright Reply.

"Waiter, how do you account for the hair on this lettuce salad?"

"If dey am hair on it, boss, dat must be head lettuce."—St. Louis Star.

The Reason Why.

"Can you tell me why singers and actresses make farewell tours?"

"That's the reason—that they may farewell."—Baltimore American.

Well Rehearsed.

"For forty years I have been practicing what I preach."

"You must have it letter perfect by this time."—Washington Herald.

Dauntless.

"Sir, I wish to make your daughter my wife!"

The old man hesitated. "Hadn't you better see her mother first?" he asked, gently, after thinking a moment.

"I've seen her mother, and it doesn't make any difference—I'm willing to take the chances!" exclaimed the youth, with all the ardor of honest love.—Puck.

A Little Social Affair.

A woman, dirty and disheveled, went into a public dispensary with her right arm bruised and bleeding. As the surgeon applied the necessary remedies he asked: "Dog bite you?"

"No, sor," the patient replied, "another loidy."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Another Secret.

She—She told me you told her that secret I told you not to tell her.

He—The mean thing! I told her not to tell you I told her.

She—I promised her I wouldn't tell you she told me, so don't tell her I told you.—Boston Transcript.

Fame.

"He is well known to the public?"

"Yes, indeed. For years he has been the first man to claim the invention after the inventor patented it.—Puck.

White House Baby in Society.

Marthena Harrison, who was a White House baby during the administration of her grandfather, President Benjamin Harrison, will be introduced in society this winter in Washington. Mrs. Russell B. Harrison, her mother, decided upon the capital instead of Indianapolis, where the family lives. It is becoming a custom for families that have been prominent in official life in Washington to return for the social launching of their daughters. Miss Harrison will have the social support of many of the families most prominent now in the capital. Senator Elkins was Harrison's Secretary of War, and he and his wife are deeply interested in the granddaughter of the former president. The John W. Fosters will give a reception in Miss Harrison's honor. The girl will have her cousin, Miss Mary McKee, as a companion during the season. Miss McKee has been two years in society. She was also a White House baby when Harrison was president, and the two girls are inseparable friends.

Civil War Stories

Howard Loved His Men.

The recent death of General O. O. Howard brings to light the following story, hitherto never made public, showing the man's method of dealing with his subordinates and the esteem in which he was held by them.

Colonel Yates of Michigan was given permission to enroll a sufficient number of mechanics to comprise a regiment at the beginning of the Civil War. He went from shop to shop in the different towns of Michigan, and before long had secured the requisite number. He promised each man $17 a month—quite an advance over the infantry—and outlined to a great degree their duties. They were to do no fighting, but were to be held in reserve, and were as heavily armed as regulars. They were soon in the field, and were detailed to all sorts of mechanical work, often being far in advance of the regular troops, building bridges, blockhouses, railroads, repairing locomotives and cars, and history says that they were a very efficient regiment, and were many times exposed to the cavalry of the enemy.

When they received their first pay it was, to their surprise, the same as that paid to the infantry, instead of the $17 promised. Naturally indignant, they complained to Colonel Yates and everyone having anything to do with the matter, but finally decided to await another pay day. The next time they received the same amount. The boys got together, but could formulate no plan of action. They were in the land of hostilities, and desertion was not possible, even if contemplated. Finally, my brother, Garland B. St. John, a private in this engineer's corps, said to his bunkmate, "Doc, let's stock arms," and Doc Weber said: "If you'll start it, we will follow." This action was not entered into blindly, for they knew what the consequences would be. The next morning after breakfast my brother said, "Come on, Doc," and they were joined by a third, and then by others, until fifty rifles stood in that stack. Of course, they were all arrested and sent to the guardhouse.

My brother, being the leader, was asked what he was going to do, and he replied: "We will stand trial, and I want General O. O. Howard to defend us." This was granted, and this grand and just man took care of the case before the powers higher up. He had seen and knew of the work of the mechanics, and explained that they were even more useful than the infantry in many instances, and being mechanics and engineers, ought to receive the pay promised at the time of their enlistment. The result of the affair was their acquittal, and a granting of their full pay from the day they were mustered into the service.

It is needless to say that no one ever held a warmer place in the hearts and memory of the men of that First Michigan engineers and mechanics than did General O. O. Howard. The regiment proved its loyalty and efficiency all through the war, notably in the building of the waterworks at Chattanooga, which stood the test of a quarter of a century. Many a pontoon bridge they threw across a river for the troops to cross on while a rain of bullets from the foe was poured upon them.

And now, like most of those in the corps who have ere this met the last great enemy—my brother among the number—this grand old Christian warrior, General Howard, has gone to his reward.—S. H. St. John, in the Rocky Mountain News.

Rally on the Sutler.

How many old vets will recognize the significance of the heading of this article? When rations were scarce and the worn-out soldier about discouraged, how his pulse would quicken at the cry of "Rally on the sutler!" and visions of cans of condensed milk, lobsters and canned goods, floating in mid-air, would arouse him to energetic action.

While in camp near the terminus of Grant's City Point railway, south of Petersburg, in 1865, a few of the boys belonging to my regiment, myself included, wandered up the railway track to Meade's Station, where, we heard, a large amount of sutler's goods were being accumulated. Rations were, for some unexplained reason, getting scarce, and as greenbacks were getting scarcer we determined to forage a little on our own account.

The night was dark but not stormy, just the one for a successful raid. Arriving at the low wooden structure used as a station, we found the platform crowded with boxes and barrels awaiting transportation to the distant regiments. We also found a guard posted to see that none but the rightful owners appropriated the property.

Soon after our arrival a crowd began to assemble near the old building, whose significant looks and mysterious actions soon alarmed the guard, and before the sutlers began to remove their goods the whole of the second relief was posted in and around the station. This hostile precaution would have discouraged any but hungry soldiers; but they came there for grub, and grub they meant to have. None were found bold enough to try forcing the guard, but somehow all became unusually accommodating. One sutler succeeded in getting his vehicle loaded and started to leave the station.

Now was our time. As the proprietor of the establishment sat on the box in front, he had no means of learning what was going on in the rear. Some twenty or more veterans literally "froze" to the hind wheels and endboard, with feet braced securely in the yielding soil, while as many more officiously assisted the willing horses on either side, that is, to hold it. At length the wagon started, not ahead, but over sidewise. Oh! how the boys did strive to save that craft from going over; but some way it would go, and as boxes and cases rolled out they suddenly took legs and ran away. I succeeded in getting a quantity of sea biscuit and some potatoes, and by a little rapid pedestrianism eluded the guards, who made an effort to surround us.

Sixty Men Bent a Brigade.

In his article on the career of Maj. Henry Young, the famous Civil War scout, in Harper's Magazine, W. G. Beymer gives a vivid account of one of the most daring of his adventures.

"This expedition was made within a few days after the men had been selected, dressed in the gray uniforms and armed with two revolvers each—carried in the tops of the high boots—and the short, terrible Spencer carbines. Night had fallen when they left the camp, and for a long time the men rode without knowing where they were going or the work that lay before them; then Young halted and carefully instructed them and told them his purpose. Sixty men were to attack an entire brigade of confederate cavalry! They rode on again in the darkness—perhaps blacker now to each man as he considered the desperate chances. After a time they halted and drew off into the edge of a forest bordering a road on which Maj. Young had learned the confederate column would travel; and there followed a wait that must have seemed endless—the dreaded inaction just before battle. The well-trained horses stood with drooping heads, like statues; the raw November night chilled as though a corpse had suddenly risen and breathed upon them; and still the confederates did not come; the strain must have been horrible. Then above the dry-bone knock and creak of the bare branches of the forest behind them there came a new sound—the sound of a distant cavalry column, trotting.

"Young gave a signal, and the men stole out from among the trees, leading the horses; at the roadside they mounted, and waited. The head of the column approached, and they fell in with it and jogged along, slouching in the saddles as did the worn, sleepy confederates, to whom they seemed but a returned scouting party, dully noted, instantly forgotten.

"Maj Young suddenly whirled his horse about, and fired both barrels of his shotgun in the faces of the confederate troopers. His men followed him; the shotguns roared like artillery; buckshot raked the column down whose bloody lanes the Yankees rode at the charge, firing their revolvers on either side without mercy. The attack, coming out of their midst, was a blinding shock to the confederates. The rest is all told in one word—pandemonium. And all but one union soldier came through that charge down the entire length of the column."

Why Gen. Early Escaped.

In Harper's W. G. Beymer narrates a new chapter of history in telling how the famous scout, Harry Young, had Gen. Early in his power and let him go.

"In retaliation for the capture of Gilmor, Jesse McNeill, at the head of a band of sixty-five rangers, had captured Gens. Crook and Kelly from their beds in hotels in the heart of the large town of Cumberland. That, like Gilmor's capture, was done by an armed party of men—a performance all dash and excitement, and with the penalty, if taken, of merely an enemy's prison. When Maj. Young set out alone for Staunton a few days later to capture Gen. Early from his headquarters in the midst of his army, it was a deed that was akin to madness. By every rule of war he was a spy, and nothing could have saved him. What a story could be told by the man who faced death each moment of those days and nights. He could have taken Early; for two nights he stood sentry at his very door, while the faithless Confederate guard—with whom he had changed places—went into the town sweet-hearting! But with nearly sixty miles to travel in an enemy's country, winter-bound and hampered by a prisoner, he realized that some time in the ensuing pursuit he must either free Early or kill him, and he would not wish to do either—once he had him. Young afterward said to Gen. Edwards, 'Had Early been guilty of murdering prisoners or of sanctioning it, I could and would have taken his life, but I did not consider it civilized warfare to kill him under the circumstances.' Did Gen. Jubal Early ever learn who had guarded him as he slept?—and ever after see in each sentry at his door a living sword of Damocles?"

A Modern Joan.

"During the Civil War," said the old Confederate soldier, "the 17th Mississippi was marching down a street in Williamsburg in what seemed an ugly endeavor to escape the dangers of the battle General Longstreet was waging against the Federals. Suddenly the door of a house opened, and a pretty girl rushed into the street and came to halt near the moving troops.

"'Turn back, soldiers, turn back!' she cried.

"But, unmoved, the wearied men trudged stolidly on. Undismayed, the girl took a fresh stand.

"'Turn back, men—for the sake of the women of the South and all you hold dear!' she cried. 'Turn back and fight. If your captain won't lead you, I will.'

"Just then the commands ran down the line: 'Halt! About face! Double quick!' and as they were being obeyed a wild yell sounded high above the din of the distant battle.

"Imagining that she was being taken at her word and that her appeal had been the cause of the halt and about facing, the lovely maiden, her face all ablaze with high and desperate resolve, rushed to the head of the column, evidently intending to lead it.

"The next second her ardor cooled, for having caught her eye, one of the boys said, in the tones of one reasoning with a small sister:

"'Don't go with us, sissy—don't think of going; you might tear your dress.'

"I've often wondered," concluded the Confederate veteran, "just how Joan of Arc would have fared at the hands of the humorous American private."

Time waits for no man, but the musical conductor can beat it.

THE WAVERLY HOTEL

CLYDE OBERLIN, Prop.

Warm Meals and Lunch served at all hours, day or night.

Fine line of Candies, Cigars and Tobacco.

East Side Broadway

Dr. Harrison

PHYSICIAN and SURGEON.

BUTLER, - IND.

Dr. Bulson

OFFICE AND RESIDENCE 219 WEST WAYNE STREET

FORT WAYNE.

PRACTICE LIMITED TO DISEASES OF THE EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT.

GLASSES ADJUSTED.

E. B. DUNTEN,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.

Prompt, Careful and Efficient Attention given to All Legal Business.

Office over Phillips drug store, Butler.

BEECHLER & SON,

DENTISTS.

CROWN AND BRIDGE WORK

Plates and all Dental Surgery given prompt attention. Office over Shapland's store. Sunday 9:30 to 12 o'clock

BUTLER, INDIANA.

FRANK A. BRINK

Attorney-at-Law

Notary Public.

Special Attention Given to Collections

Dr. W. F. Shumaker

Special Attention Given to Chronic Diseases

OFFICE HOURS

7 to 8 a. m. 1 to 3 p. m.

7 to 8 p. m.

5 DROPS

TRADE MARK

THE STANDARD REMEDY FOR ALL FORMS OF

RHEUMATISM

LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, NEURALGIA, KIDNEY TROUBLES, CATARRH, ASTHMA and KINDRED DISEASES

GIVES QUICK RELIEF

Applied externally it affords almost instant relief from pain, while permanent results are being effected by taking it internally, purifying the blood, dissolving the poisonous substance and removing it from the system.

DR. C. L. GATES

Hancock, Minn., writes:

"A little girl here had such a weak back caused by Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble that she could not stand on her feet. The moment they put her down on the floor she would scream with pains. I treated her with '5-DROPS' and today she runs around as well and happy as can be. I prescribe '5-DROPS' for my patients and use it in my practice."

TEST "5-DROPS" FREE

If you are suffering with Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble or any kindred disease, write to us for a trial bottle of "5-DROPS."

"5-DROPS" is entirely free from opium, cocaine, morphine, alcohol, laudanum and other similar ingredients.

Large Size Bottle "5-DROPS" (300 Doses) $1.00. For Sale by Druggists.

SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE COMPANY

Dept. 80. 174 Lake Street, Chicago

He Hustled.
He Advertised.

He put himself and his business before the people, and is now reaping his reward. If you desire to reach the buying classes you must patronize the newspaper that is widely circulated. ... You take no chances when you advertise in

This Paper.

JANUARY

0461

L1134

900 DROPS

CASTORIA

A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of

INFANTS / CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.

Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed -
Alx Senna -
Rochelle Salts -
Anise Seed -
Peppermint -
Bi Carbonate Soda -
Worm Seed -
Clarified Sugar -
Wintergreen Flavor.

A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.

Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
NEW YORK.

At 6 months old
35 DOSES – 35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Our Correspondence

We will be pleased to have a letter each week from each one of our correspondents.

BUTLER MARKETS

PRODUCE

The following prices are paid for produce and other farm products by Butler merchants:

Eggs	$ 30
Butter	24
Lard	14
Potatoes	40
HAY, GRAIN AND WOOL
Wheat (per bu.)	$ 1.20
Oats	45
Rye	70
Corn (per cwt.)	70
Red Clover (per bu.)	7.75
Alsike (per bu.)	6.75
Hay	14.00
POULTRY
chikens	11

Spencerville

Miss Jane Bishop is on the sick list at present. She is under the care of Dr. Shook.

Dennis Poorman's little boy at Concord is very ill at this writing with poor hopes of recovering.

Sherman Ricketts and family, Mr. Cass, wife and son spent Sunday with C. B. Jackson and wife.

Cal Means and Lloyd Stevens caught four skunks one day last week for which the boys received $10.25. Pretty good for one day.

Charley Bishop is now safely moved on the Huffman farm.

Guy Strong and Albert Sherer are hauling logs for Smith & Randal, of Fort Wayne.

Geary Wasson is filing horses teeth. He claims that he can do a good job.

I would like an offer for any one, or all, of several houses in Butler, owned by people not living here. If you want a home, this is your chance.
Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

Moores

The proceeds of the oyster supper at the school house were $5.25.

Mrs. Elmer Truit and son, of Auburn, visited with her parents, Thos. Lysher and family Sunday.

E. A. Eakright has been ill with the rheumatism.

Miss Cora Ames, of Butler, spent Thursday with Nellie Bunge.

Otis Lautzenhiser and wife, Albert Keller and family, Fred Oiler and wife and August Blum and wife spent Saturday evening with Wm. Albright and family.

Mrs. John Mutzfeld spent a few days last week at Auburn with her daughter, Mrs. L. A. Staley.

Ray Dangler and family have moved in the house vacated by Miles Shreffler.

Mrs. Chas. Ridge and daughter, Esther, visited several days last week with her parents, F. Bunge and wife.

Mrs. John Oiler visited at Waterloo Tuesday with her sister, Mrs. Elmer Pontius.

Goldie, daughter of Andrew Boyd, is very ill with typhoid fever.

A gentleman from Michigan has been in this community for some time trying to interest the farmers in raising sugar beets.

Work 24 Hours A Day

The busiest little things ever made are Dr. King's New Life Pills. Every pill is a sugar coated globule of health, that changes weakness into strength, languor into energy, brain-fag into mental power; curing Constipation, Headache, Chills, Dyspepsia, Malaria. 25c at Stone's drug store. 1-1m

Newville

A number of young people from here attended church at Milford Sunday evening.

A jolly crowd were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Nelson Saturday evening. Games were played and a fine lunch served.

George Coulon and Miss Iva Firestone, of Butler, were guests of Don Blair and wife Sunday afternoon and evening.

Romeo Headley and wife are the proud parents of a little girl since January 14.

Belle Blair was a visitor at Butler Monday.

Rachel Pryer is here from Edon the guest of Leslie Strong and family.

Rev. F. A. Thomas is holding a meeting at Cedar Lake.

Elmer Wyatt and wife were at Hicksville Friday.

Jim Harter, of St. Joe, was a visitor at this place Monday.

Henry and Leslie Strong visited friends at Hicksville Monday.

Rhetoricals at school this Friday afternoon. The teachers would be glad to have all the patrons attend.

The proceeds at the Aid, Thursday, amounted to $5.15. The following officers were elected for the new year: President, Mrs. Whitehurst; vice-president, Clara Brunson; secretary, Blanche Tomlinson; treasurer, Mrs. Abels.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is not a common, every-day cohgh mixture. It is a meritorious remedy for all the troublesome and dangerous complications resulting from cold in the head, throat, chest or lungs. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

Gypsy Hill

Many farmers in this vicinity are marketing their hay and taking advantage of the fine sleighing.

Mrs. Wesley Wyckoff, who has been seriously ill for some time, is slowly improving at this writing.

Wm. Dohner and Chas. Dohner, with their families, visited at the parental home Sunday.

Mrs. Maggie Gibson returned to Auburn Wednesday after spending a few weeks with her sister, Mrs. J. H. Miller.

John Riser and wife and George Hull and wife were guests Sunday at the home of Arthur Steckley and wife.

Mrs. David Steckley, who has been afflicted with paralysis for some time, passed away last Monday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Val Moughler, at Garrett. The deceased was 70 years of age and formerly a resident of this vicinity.

Mrs. Romain Campbell, of Butler, was the guest of her aunt, Mrs. J. N. Miller, last week.

Wm. Miller was given a delightful surprise last Tuesday evening by a number of his friends, the event being planned by Mrs. Miller. The evening was spent in a social atmosphere of pleasant hospitality.

Phillip Ramsey, an aged resident of this vicinity, is still in a critical condition.

Chas. Arford and daughter, Mildred, are reported on the sick list.

Miss Flora Pearson is employed as a domestic at the home of J. H. Miller.

Edgerton

Everything is lively around town these fine days.

Father Kieble was at Toledo on business last Thursday.

Chas. Smith was at Toledo last Wednesday and Thursday.

E. M. Gabriel was at Bryan on business last Monday.

John Boos has sold his farm, three miles east of town, to Chas. Myers.

George Strole has sold his farm of 40 acres to Art Strausberger.

Our stock buyers are afraid to buy stock on account of the boycott on meat.

J. A. Jinnings was at Toledo last Thursday on business.

Goldie Biasdel got her arm severely sprained last Tuesday by falling on her way home from school.

Francis Helwig broke her right arm last Saturday evening. She slipped on the ice and fell.

Burley Haverstock and wife, of Butler, were calling on friends at Edgerton last Tuesday.

Mrs. Perkins fell and broke her arm one day last week.

Smithfield

Oliver Shaffer and wife have gone to San Antonio, Texas, to visit relatives and see the country. They expeot to be gone three weeks.

Mildred and Delbert Bowman are keeping house and taking care of the stock during Mr. and Mrs. Shaffer's visit in Texas.

John Kiplinger and wife visited with Henry Snyder and family Friday. Mr. Snyders' have a choice collection of photo postals of trained wild animals and other fine views sent them by their son who is in the navy in Alaska.

Born to Elmer Smith and wife, a son. They now have a family of six sons and one daughter.

Elmer Newcomer, wife and two children were guests of John Kiplinger and wife Sunday evening.

Mrs. Emma Myers, of Shepherd, Mich., is very low with cancer. She is a sister of George and Sarah Pierson of this place.

Albert Kauffman and family and John Kiplinger and wife visited with Perry Porter and family Sunday. Mr. Porter has killed fifty rabbits this winter.

Delinquent Sewer Assessment Sale

Of city lots and land returned delinquent for the non-payment of sewer assessments as follows, including interest and costs:

WALNUT STREET LATERAL NO. 5

E. L. Fosdick, lot No. 258, O. P., $59.70.
E. L. Fosdick, lot No. 259, O. P., $59.70.
E. L. Fosdick, iot No. 260, O. P., $56.11.
E. L. Fosdick, lot No. 261, O. P., $78 69.
E. L. Fosdick, lot No. 262, O. P., $78.69.
Lucinda Hoover, lot No. 271, O. P., $78 69.

I, Sam G. Stone, treasurer of the city of Butler, Indiana, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and complete list of all the lands and lot in said city of Butler, Indiana, returned delinquent for the sewer assessments for Walnut street lateral sewer No. 5, and Willow street lateral sewer No. 12, for which a waiver was not signed, except such as are in litigation with the delinquent interest and costs, to the best of my knowledge and belief.

Notice is hereby given that so much of the foregoing lands and lots as may be necessary to discharge said assessment, costs and interest due thereon or due from the owner or owners thereof at the time of the sale will be sold at public auction at the council chamber in the city hall in the city of Butler, Indiana, on the 3rd day of March, 1910, unless such assessment, interest and costs are previously paid. Sale to commence at 10 o'clock a. m. on said day and continuing from day to day until all have been offered for sale.

SAM G. STONE,
1t Treasurer City of Butler, Indiana.

THE BABY TURTLE.

He Has to Paddle His Own Canoe From the Moment of Birth.

Just so soon as a baby turtle emerges from the egg off he scuttles down to the sea. He has no one to teach him, no one to guide him. In his curious little brain there is implanted a streak of caution based upon the fact that until a certain period in his life his armor is soft and no defense against hungry fish, and he at once seeks shelter in the tropical profusion of the gulf weed, which holds within its branching fronds an astonishing abundance of marine life. Here the young turtle feeds unmolested while his armor undergoes the hardening process.

Whatever the young sea turtle eats and wherever he eats it, facts not generally ascertained, one thing is certain—it agrees with him immensely. He leads a pleasant sort of life, basking in the tropical sun and cruising leisurely in the cool depths.

Once he has attained the weight of twenty-five pounds, which usually occurs within the first year, the turtle is free from all danger. After that no fish or mammal, however ravenous, however well armed with teeth, interferes with the turtle.

When once he has withdrawn his head from its position of outlook into the folds of his neck between the two shells intending devourers may struggle in vain to make an impression upon him.—Harper's Weekly.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy never disappoints those who use it for obstinate coughs, colds and irritations of the throat and lungs. It stands unrivalled as a remedy for all throat and lung diseases. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 1-1m

Benton Beard favors the Herald with a copy of the Chickashaw (Oklahoma) Daily Express. Among some of the good things the paper says concerning its home state, are:

Can cultivate as much rice land as South Carolina.

More granite than Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine combined.

More petroleum than Pennsylvania West Virginia and Ohio combined.

More marble than Nevada, New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

Is second in the production of cotton from a monetary standpoint.

More iorn than any other state save Pennsylvania; more copper than any other state save Montana.

Second in gypsum.

Fourth in developed kaolin, the finest fireproo material known to science.

Second in cattle; third in money products of same.

Seven thousand square miles of land underlaid with coal, and few of its mines more than opened.

More magnesia and dolomite rock than all the rest of the states.

More rivers with natural drainage capacity than any other state save Colorado.

Is sixth in the production of potatoes.

Is eight in railroad mileage; first in number of miles in the past five years first in number of systems started in 1909.

Oklahoma is first inproduction of peanuts.

Second in production of cantloupes.

Third in the production of watermelons and seventh in musk melon production.

It is first in tonnage of alfalfa; third in money value produced.

It is fifth in vegetables, with less than a tenth of the state trying to cultivate the garden products.

With an acreage of fiftieth Oklahoma is tenth in the production of orchard production.

LINCOLN'S LESSON.

The Way He Learned to Tell When a Thing Is Proved.

Abraham Lincoln was once asked how he acquired his wonderful logical powers and his acuteness in analysis.

Lincoln replied: "It was my terrible discouragement which did that for me. When I was a young man I went into an office to study law. I saw that a lawyer's business is largely to prove things. I said to myself, 'Lincoln, when is a thing proved?' That was a poser. What constitutes proof? Not evidence; that was not the point. There may be evidence enough, but wherein consists the proof? I groaned over the question and finally said to myself, 'Ah, Lincoln, you can't tell.' Then I thought what use is it for me to be in a law office if I can't tell when a thing is proved?

"So I gave it up and went back home. Soon after I returned to the old log cabin I fell in with a copy of Euclid. I had not the slightest notion of what Euclid was, and I thought I would find out. I therefore began at the beginning, and before spring I had gone through the old Euclid's geometry and could demonstrate every proposition in the book. Then in the spring, when I had got through with it, I said to myself one day, 'Ah, do you know when a thing is proved?' and I answered. 'Yes, sir; I do. Then you may go back to the law shop,' and I went."

Tombs of Abelard and Heloise.

Of the hundreds of thousands who make a pilgrimage to Pere Lachaise on All Saints' day few doubt the authenticity of the most famous tombs. One in particular is never questioned—that of Heloise and Abelard, the story of whose unhappy love is so grandly told by Pope. This monument is the work of Alexander Lenoin, the sculptor, and dates toward the end of the revolution. The tomb was built by Lenoin with fragments of a chapel of the convent of the Paraclete at Nogent-sur-Marne, of which Heloise was the abbess. Lenoin managed to bring some glass from the windows of the old chapel, and two medallions which adorn the tomb the sculptor purchased from a religious house in Paris. This is all that is genuine about the tomb.—London Globe.

That Headache!

"This is such a beautiful treat," said the impecunious man at the matinee where they went on her pass, "that I want to take you to dinner afterward if my headache gets better."

"Is your headache getting better?" she asked him after the second act.

"It's terrible," said he. "I can hardly see."

After the third act she again approached the subject. "How does your headache seem to be getting?" she queried solicitously.

"Worse and worse," he frowned.

When the performance was over he held his head with both hands. "My head aches so," he moaned, "I'm afraid I'll die of it."

"I knew it," said she as they walked on home.—New York Press.

Enlightened.

"Before I married," said Mr. Henpeck, "I didn't know what it meant to support a wife."

"I presume you know now."

"Yes, indeed. I looked up the word 'support' in the dictionary and discovered that one of its meanings is 'endure.'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Spoiling a Poet.

"He has been spoiled as a poet."

"How so?"

"A judge recently gave him thirty days in default of a ten dollar fine."

"How does that spoil him as a poet?"

"Oh, it gave him an exaggerated idea of the value of his time."—Pittsburg Post.

A Ready Compliment.

She—Some day I want to show you our family tree. He (looking at her admiringly)—I should like to see it. I am sure it must be a peach.—Somerville Journal.

NEBULA HYPOTHESIS.

One of the Most Interesting Propositions of Science.

WHAT IT ACTUALLY MEANS.

That the Sun, Planets and All Matter Were Once a Vast Mass of Incandescent Gas All Jumbled Together in an Enormous Chaotic Cloud.

Everybody has heard the phrase, the nebula hypothesis, but what is it?

In a few words this is the meaning of "nebula hypothesis:" That the sun, the planets and all that is in them were at one time in the inconceivably remote past a vast mass of chaotic, incandescent gas all jumbled together in an enormous nebula, or cloud.

To begin with, the first conception that science has dared to make, however, takes us one step further back Without mentioning the origin of matter itself science conceives that in the beginning all matter was uniformly distributed throughout space — that there were no stars, no planets, no satellites, but that all space was filled with the matter we now have divided up into very fine particles some distance apart. The consistency of such material was perforce very thin indeed, much more rarefied than the highest vacuum we can obtain now by air pumps. From this state to the nebulous state the theory has a missing link, one that can only be satisfied by supposing divine command, for it assumes, in the words of Professor Todd, that "gradually centers of attraction formed and these centers pulled in toward themselves other particles. As a result of the inward falling of matter toward these centers, the collision of its particles and their friction upon each other the material masses grew hotter and hotter. Nebulae seeming to fill the entire heavens were formed—luminous fire mist, like the filmy objects still seen in the sky, though vaster and exceedingly numerous." This process is supposed to have gone on for countless ages, faster in some regions than in others. Many million nebulae were formed and set in rotation around their own axes. This happily can be explained by science. Whenever particles are attracted toward a center and are kept from falling directly to this center a whirlpool is formed, rotating in one direction. An example of this, though humble and not exactly analogous, is the rotation of water in a basin when the stopper is pulled out of the bottom. Gravity attracts the water immediately above the hole, which starts flowing out, thus leaving a space to be filled. The rest of the water rushes in from all sides to do this, and the whirlpool is the result.

Now each of these whirling nebulae became exceedingly hot, and each formed what is known as a star or sun, our sun being one. The earth and other planets had not then come into separate existence, of course, as it is supposed that they were thrown off later from the sun.

Our sun in its nebulous form and rotating swiftly on its axis gradually flattened at its poles on account of centrifugal motion. This phenomenon is entirely familiar to those who have seen a ball of clay on a potter's wheel gradually flatten. The motion was so swift and the mass so nebulous that the sun to be took the shape of a disk. As time went on the outer part became cool and somewhat rigid, while the inner part continued its cooling and contracting. Thus the inner part drew away from the outer, leaving a ring of matter whirling around on the outside. This breaking off of the ring is supposed to be hastened by the inability of the outside to keep up the swift motion of the central mass, both on account of the slight cohesion and of the centrifugal force. But this particular part of the argument has nothing to stand on if the first law of motion is true.

In the successive stages of the sun's contraction this process was repeated over and over again, until several rings were whirling around the central orb. They would necessarily be in the same plane. Now, these rings, not being uniform in mass or thickness, would each gradually accumulate toward the densest portion until they, too, would form a ball which would subsequently flatten, and if the substance continued nebulous and the ball was large enough they would also slough rings.

Of course the rings the sun discarded have become the planets, which, as required by the theory, are all very nearly in the same plane. The rings that the planets formed have become moons or satellites. So we are driven to conclude that our sun at one time filled all the space from his present position to the farthest planet in the solar system.

From this theory there is another thing that we have to believe, and that is that every star in the heavens has gone through this same process and has a family of planets sailing around it, just as our sun has. It would be impossible to see these planets, of course, for it is impossible to see a star, even with the greatest telescope, except as a mere point of light.

As regards the proving of this nebula hypothesis, of course it cannot be done. But everything points to its accuracy. Many nebulae are seen even now among the stars that seem to be going through the delayed process of world forming. Around one of the planets of our own solar system, Saturn, are three rings, which are probably destined in time to become moons, in the opinion of some scholars.—A. T. Hodge in New York Tribune.

W. S. Troyer
Auctioneer and Salesman

Leave orders at this office or Central Grocery.

I speak three different languages.

"ANOTHER'S SHOES."

A Phrase That Had Its Origin in an Ancient Custom.

The expression "stepping into another's shoes," like many another common phrase, had its origin in an ancient custom.

The old Norse law required that a person to be adopted must step into a previously prepared shoe. This shoe was made from the skin taken from the right hind leg of a "three-winters-old bull."

The skin was flayed from above the hock, and out of this the shoe was made. The person to be adopted stepped into this shoe, taking into his arms one at a time, it is presumed, the younger sons of the man making the adoption. If there were also sons who were of age they stepped into the shoe afterward, by this sign showing their consent to the adoption.

A man in this way could adopt an illegitimate son, making him his lawful heir, but in that case the father was obliged to step into the shoe first. If there were any full grown sons, they stepped into the shoe afterward; if there were no full grown sons, then the next of kin did the stepping, and without his consent, by the way, this special adoption could not be made.

Witnesses to the ceremony in the use of the shoe were required to establish its legality.

It will be seen that this was considered an important ceremony, and since so much "shoe stepping" was done it is not strange that the expression as now used passed into common speech.—Chicago Record-Herald.

OSTRICH BATTLES.

The Great Birds, as Strong as Horses, Box With Their Feet.

Ostriches battle for supremacy with as much ferocity as stags, bulls, buffaloes and other animals. An ostrich fight is amusing, inasmuch as it amounts practically to a boxing match with the feet, wherein the combatants lightly dance around each other.

There is, however, this difference—if any human boxer could hit as hard with his hands as can an ostrich with its feet the championship would be decided by a single blow. In sparring the ostrich stands on one foot, with the other foot and the wings raised, the bill wide open and the neck distended. He strikes with the force of a trip hammer.

Sometimes on an ostrich farm a keeper will become involved in such a mixup, in which event it is not infrequently the case that the human emerges from the scrap with a broken leg, arm or head.

Under modern training an ostrich equals a horse in power and indeed can perform many of the "stunts" whereof his equine colleague is capable. In one respect, however, he excels the horse, for by the aid of its wings the ostrich can leave behind the swiftest running thoroughbred. In harness an ostrich has at Hot Springs, Ark., paced in about a horse's time.—Harper's Weekly.

His Unlucky Day.

Even the least superstitious are often struck by the misfortunes which attend some persons on certain dates. A large firm in the city has in its employ a living instance of the fact. On June 12 an employee lost his left arm by coming in contact with machinery. The accident disabled him for his then employment, and he was given that of a messenger. On another June 12 he was run over in the Strand while on an errand. Result, a broken leg. The next accident was a fall on the stairs in the firm's buildings—again June 12—the right arm broken this time. The fourth mishap on another anniversary broke three ribs. The firm took the case into consideration and issued an order that in future the employee was to take a holiday on that date, an order with which he has now complied for several years.—London Chronicle.

His Second Thought.

A politician named Blank got a place for a clerk during one of the sessions of the legislature of his state. The clerk was very grateful, says the Saturday Evening Post. At the end of the session he came around to Blank and said: "Mr. Blank, I want to tell you how much I am indebted to you for your kindness in getting me the place I have had. It meant more to me, Mr. Blank, than you may think. I thank you from the bottom of my heart. Also I want to say, Mr. Blank, that if there ever comes a time when I can do anything for you—anything at all—you are to command me. I will do anything you may ask me to do. I am at your service."

Blank thanked the man, and he started to go. As he reached the door he turned and said, "Of course, Mr. Blank, I would prefer that it should be something honorable."

Could Fill the Bill.

Superintendent—What we want is a night watchman that'll watch, alert and on the qui vive for the slightest noise or indications of burglars, somebody who can sleep with one eye and both ears open and is not afraid to tackle anything. See? Applicant—I see, boss. I'll send my wife around.—Lippincott's.

Took It Back.

"I give you my word, the next person who interrupts the proceedings," said the judge sternly, "will be expelled from the courtroom and ordered home."

"Hooray!" cried the prisoner.

Then the judge pondered.—Judge.

More than we use is more than we need and only a burden to the bearer. —Seneca.

NEW YORK CLIPPER
IS THE GREATEST
THEATRICAL & SHOW PAPER IN THE WORLD.
$4.00 Per Year. Single Copy, 10 Cts.
ISSUED WEEKLY.
SAMPLE COPY FREE.
FRANK QUEEN PUB. CO. (LM),
ALBERT J. BOHER, Manager. PUBLISHERS, 47 W. 28th St., New York.

Make Your Wife Happy
WITH A
MOTOR WASHER

Operated by City Water Pressure.
Costs from 2 to 4c per Week.
It Works while You Rest.

SOLD ON A GUARANTEE. Your Money Refunded if Not Satisfactory

We also Carry a Large Line of Washers and Wringers
AT THE RIGHT PRICE
Call and see before you buy

Rickey Hardware Company

DeKalb County FARMERS' INSTITUTE

TO BE HELD AT

ST. JOE	Feb. 7 and 8
CORUNNA	Feb. 9
BUTLER CHAPEL Butler Twp.	Feb. 10

Mr. Martindale and Prof. Goss of Purdue to be State Workers at St. Joe.

Martindale at Corunna and Buler Chapel.

These able men will be supported by home talent. All of which is worthy your time to hear.

We will spend the entire time in talks and discussions pertaining to the betterment of farm life.

All sessions will commence as follows: 8:30 morning session; 1:30 afternoon session; 7:00 evening session.

Try not to be tardy, for we will not wait for you.

Butler Chapel ladies will serve meals.

Everybody should be present at these meetings.

A. M. WIDNEY, Chairman.

She doesn't Worry about Cooking

The Mother's Oats Free Fireless Cooker is doing her work. And much better than she could do it.

Suppose she falls asleep. When her husband comes home and wakens her, all she will have to do is to go to the Fireless Cooker and take out the perfectly cooked and steaming hot dinner that will be all ready. Nothing that's put in the Mother's Oats Fireless Cooker can burn or boil over. It cooks everything and several things at once.

It's especially planned to prepare that ideal food—which are not like "others'" oats. They're not only rolled (to make easy cooking) but are crushed (to make easy digestion). Easy work for the cook and easy work for the stomach.

Mother's Oats

If you are a user of MOTHER'S CEREALS: Mother's Oats, Mother's Corn Meal (white or yellow), Mother's Wheat Hearts (the cream of the wheat), Mother's Hominy Grits, Mother's Corn Flakes (toasted), Mother's Coarse Pearl Hominy, Mother's Old Fashioned Steel Cut Oatmeal, Mother's Old Fashioned Graham Flour, you can get a Mother's Oats Fireless Cooker free with coupons. Ask your grocer.

THE GREAT WESTERN CEREAL COMPANY
OPERATING MORE OATMEAL MILLS THAN ANY OTHER ONE CONCERN
AKRON BOSTON NEW HAVEN NEW YORK PHILADELPHIA CHICAGO PITTSBURGH ALBANY ST. LOUIS

0462

L1134

FEBRUARY

0463

FEBRUARY

L1134

butler public library

THE DEKALB COUNTY HERALD

VOLUME XLI — BUTLER, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1910 — NUMBER 5

DANIEL W. WEITZ, President — HENRY M. SHOWALTER, Vice-President — WALTER SNIDER, Cashier
ALBERT L. SHULTZ, Vice-President — AMOS SNYDER, Vice-President

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK
Paid-up Capital, $25,000.00
BUTLER, IND.

WE, the undersigned, owners of The First National Bank of Butler, Indiana, respectfully solicit your business.

If we were in the grocery business or the mercantile business we are sure some of our friends would trade with us. BUT we are in the BANKING BUSINESS, and will appreciate a share of your patronage just the same as if we were in any other business.

We guarantee you every accommodation consistent with conservative banking.

Respectfully yours,

D. M. Ball	Frank Creager	J. G. Hamilton	Jno. Penick	G. W. Snider
M. Baker	Eli Doty	C. L. Hamilton	Wm. Platt	Jno. H. Smith
John Baxter	Wm. Elden	M. D. Hussellman	J. B. Pessell	H. M. Showalter
Jeff. N. Boyle	Frank Funk	L. H. Harrison	D. W. Riser	Thos. Tomlinson
A. F. Brindley	W. H. Grube	W. O. Kenan	W. L. Richey	D. H. Tomlinson
Sam Brown Estate	Byron Gride	Geo. King	Geo. L. Rowe	Henry Wilson
Ad. Christofel	Jacob Gunsenhouser	Benj. Myers	T. E. Simons	J. D. Wilcox
Fred Countryman	G. F. Gengnagel	Walter Monahank	A. L. Shultz	Chas. Wagoner
F. W. Carpenter	B. F. Hurraw	Saml. Noragon	C. S. Shultz	Saml. Wolff
A. B. Countryman	Jno. B. Hawkins	G. F. Nichols	Amos Snyder	Wm. Whetsel
Chas. Capp	Sam Hook	Silas Nodine	Walter Snider	D. W. Weitz
E. D. Creager	S. G. Haverstock	Danl. Lochamier	Fred W. Snider

SHOE SUPREMACY

Supremacy in any line of business is not attained through any act of providence—it's the inevitable result of right kind of management, fair dealing with the purchasing public, and having the right goods at right prices. We call your attention to a selection of some of the highest class of shoes that are manufactured—lines that assure you the perfect fit and the best of wearing qualities. The prices you will find no higher than you will be asked for the other kinds.

BURT AND PACKARD

Men's Burt and Packard guaranteed "BURRO JAPS" Shoes in both patent and dull leather. There is no leather made that will outwear "BURRO JAP." It has the finest finish of any leather produced.

LA FRANCE

The Ladies' Goodyear Flexible Welts in LaFrance Shoes have to be worn in order to find out the ease and comfort they give. Just as flexible as a turn single sole shoe, and more comfortable and restful to the foot.

RED SCHOOL HOUSE

The Children's "RED SCHOOL HOUSE" Shos have been some of the best wearing shoes that we have ever handled. We have them in patents as well as dull leather. In style and finish they are equal to any.

J.C. BROWN & SON

The Central Grocery

Is Always in Line with Fresh
Staple and Fancy Groceries

Trade With Us and You will be Satisfied

Always Fresh

Perfection Wafers — Perfection Chocolates
Ginger Cookies — Graham Wafers
Raisin Cookies — Vanilla Wafers
Snow Gems — Ginger Snaps

Potato Crisps that are always fresh
Bulk Olives, the best in the market

Don't forget about those SUPERIOR HERRING that we sell for
6c per Pound

We are headquarters for the DENISON SUPERLATIVE COFFEES
Prices 20, 25, 30 and 35c

PRESTON & PRESTON
PHONE 91

REPORT OF THE CONDITION OF The First National Bank

OF BUTLER, No. 9286

At Butler, in the State of Indiana, at the Close of Business, Jan. 31, 1910

RESOURCES

Loans and Discounts	$39,673 44
Overdrafts, secured and unsecured	1,167 08
U. S. Bonds to secure circulation	25,000 00
Premiums on U. S. Bonds	428 65
Banking House, Furniture and Fixtures	2,837 50
Due from National Banks (not reserve agents)	9,508 55
Due from approved Reserve Agents	3,581 76
Checks and other Cash Items	201 60
Notes of other National Banks	65 00
Fractional Paper Currency, Nickels and Cents	277 60
Specie	3,128 30
Legal-tender notes	165 00
Total	$87,284 48

LIABILITIES

Capital Stock paid in	$25,000 00
Undivided Profits, less expenses and taxes paid	176 02
National Bank Notes outstanding	25,000 00
Individual deposits subject to check	10,322 50
Time certificates of deposit	26,785 96
Total	$87,284 48

WALTER SNIDER, Cashier.

E. P. Masters Sells Out

After a period of twenty-seven years in the general produce business in this city, E. P. Masters has sold out to Beard Bros., C. W. and Charles Beard, who will conduct the business on about the same plan as Mr. Masters has done, except, perhaps on a somewhat larger scale.

C. W. Beard needs no introduction to our readers, having resided here for a number of years and has also been in the produce business. Charles Beard is at present a resident of Toledo, Ohio, but will become a citizen of Butler within a few days. Beard Bros. are honest and energetic men and will start out with the full confidence of the people over the county. They have had abundant experience in this business and will undoubtedly make it win.

Mr. Masters holds other interests in this city, and his past record as a man of integrity and sound business judgements are his well known qualifications. It is hoped that Butler may not be so unfortunate as to lose this estimable family. The HERALD wishes both parties the best of success in the future.

Notice---Aldrich Hotel

Certain of my competitors have circulated the report that the Aldrich Hotel will be closed. I wish to state that this is not true, and that the Aldrich Hotel is open and will stay open. E. J. VanKeuren, Prop.
5-1

Mrs. Chas. Potter, who has been quite ill, is some better.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS GIVE BIG BANQUET

In Honor of Bryan and Edgerton At Close of Second and Third Degree Work.

BRYAN CONFERRED DEGREE

In Highly Creditable Manner--Witty Toasts and a Smoker Closed Enthusiastic Meeting.

Butler Lodge No. 158, K. of P., held another one of her elaborate banquets and smokers Tuesday evening in their new hall, about two hundred of the well tried Knights being present.

Responding to an invitation from our home lodge, Bryan came over and conferred third degree on Esquire Heywood, doing the work in a highly creditable manner. The Bryan team is a good one and shows much improvement in the past year.

Edgerton also received a bid, and knowing there was something good in store for them accepted and turned out very generously in numbers.

After the Bryan team had finished the third degree work, Butler, just as a filler, put on a second, Hoyt Cook being the lucky page to receive the honor of riding the goat before the distinguished audience.

The work over, lodge closed and everybody took in the moving picture show which holds forth below the lodge room. By the time the show was over the white apron brigade had supper well under way and the members and visitors were asked to be seated and the first course was then served.

The menu was very elaborate, being served in four courses as follows: Sandwiches, wafers, oysters, oranges, bananas, olives and pickles. The second course was wafers and coldslaw. The third was mashed potatoes, gravy, bread and butter, coffee. The fourth was ice cream and cake followed by a smoker.

Brother Luther Knisely was selected toastmaster and acquitted himself in his usual pleasant way. The Bryan brothers were called upon and a large number responded with remarks concerning Pythianism and their appreciation of the hospitality of the Butler boys. The last brother to be called upon for a toast was Brother J. D. Mitchell, the K. of P. poet, which is known the county over because of his poetical nature. He responded with an original poem which brought the applause of every member.

Train time was now only a few minutes off, and the visitors left feeling that they had had a good run for their money and having a feeling of closer relation for the Hoosier Brothers. Come again, boys.

Alumni Meeting

A number of the Butler high school graduates met in the K of P reading rooms last Friday evening and after electing officers for the spring meeting discussed ways and means for the success of the reception to be held in May. It is the present intention to do away with the tedious after dinner talks, and substitute a few short pithy asts and a pleasant idea is on foot to break up the restraint and formality hitherto so unpleasant, and bring about a most social evening. This work needs the attention of all the graduates being a most worthy affair, every member who is prond of his alma mater is requested to be present at the same place of meeting on Friday evening February 11. The following officers were elected:

President—Miss Besse Wiley.
Vice President—Miss Josie Hawkins.
Secretary—Cleve Grube.
Treasurer—James Diehl.

Obituary

Rosa Belle Donaldson was born at Peru, Ind., June 9, 1866, departed this life January 27, 1910, at Detroit, Mich.

She was united in marriage to Johnnie Greene, Nov. 18, 1882. To this union were given five children. Two infant daughters, with the husband, had preceded her. Three sons, two brothers and a host of friends are left to mourn, but not as those who have no hope. Mrs. Greene accepted Christ when quite young and remained a faithful christian all through life. For five years she has been a great sufferer.

Funeral services were held at Detroit Friday afternoon. Saturday forenoon the remains were brought to Butler, accompanied by the three sons, and short services were held at the home of Mrs. Gehring conducted by Elder D. A. Shaw of the Church of Christ, assisted by Rev. Albertson of the Methodist church. Interment in Butler cemetery.

SCHOOL NOTES

Pithy Paragraphs From Our Public Schools

FRESHMEN NOTES

Mr. Bean has been humming a new song for the benefit of the algebra class. Though not able to understand each verse we found the chorus to consist of three words, namely: "Bright, bright, bright."

One of the Sophomore girls has a pimple on the side of her nose. She is also love sick, and we have been considering the advisability of calling a doctor.

Exams this week! We are all on the average of nervous prostration.

Eliminate, eliminate! At last we know what that word means. Oh, dear, if we could only eliminate those simultaneous equations.

Oh, yes, we are all aware of the fact that we are likely to be Sophomores next week, but we will never be like the Sophomores of the present. We will be far more intelligent.

The Botany class is doing laboratory work this week.

Monday the faculty obtained a large pair of scissors and clipped the wings of the mighty Seniors. They will never again soar so high.

Last Friday was moving day at the B. H. S. Several of the scholars were requested by Mr. Austin to change their seats. This they did and they seem to be enjoying their new quarters.

Loving glances fly back and forth between E. C. and J. B. so thick and fast that we who sit in the back seats, sometimes find it difficult to see the front of the room.

R. T. is fond of fishing. So are a couple Freshie girls, only he didn't know it!

Attempt to Black Mail

On Dec. 24, 1909, I received an anonymous typewritten letter containing threats, false statements and curses. It also contained a sample letter which the writer said would be sent to 20 or 25 of our neighbors for the purpose of destroying my reputation if I did not agree to certain conditions within three weeks. On Jan. 10, 1910, I received another letter stating that the time would be up on the following Sunday. I deemed such letters unworthy of notice.

I was born and reared on the farm where I now live and a great many of my neighbors have known me all my life. I had confidence enough in them to know that they would not believe the trash sent out by a person who was too cowardly to give his name.

Last Saturday a great many of my friends and neighbors received such letters. I never knew before that I had so many friends. Words of sympathy came to me from all sides and I truly appreciate the noble stand they have taken in my behalf and heartily thank them for the loyalty shown me.

BRULAH B. YARLOT.

Nelson Swift of Fayette was the guest of his mother over Sunday.

Robert Elden and friend, Mr. O'Hair, of Angola were the guests of the former's parents, Sunday.

Clarence Vescelus, wife, and son are expected Saturday for several days visit with relatives.

Miss Fay Moughler returned to this city Wednesday after spending several days in Wauseon, Ohio.

Earl Greenwalt was initiated into the Modern Woodmen Monday evening.

One of the most pleasant events of the season was held at the home of Mrs. Fay Tyson, when the twelve members of the L. G. H. club held their annual meeting, Tuesday. The day was all that could be expected as regards to the weather. Every lady came prepared to do her part, and even Mr. Woodchuck stepped in unawares to anyone and hid himself, as is his custom, but they did not propose to be out done and offered a prize for the one who could find him. After a merry chase, Mattie Bowman brought forth Mr. Hog and got the prize. The ladies were then invited to the dining room where they were to hunt their places at the table. The table was so loaded with good things that it was necessary for Mrs. Tyson to put twelve props under it. After they had partaken to their hearts content not saying anything about stomachs, we repaired to the parlor where a delightful program was rendered, each and telling what she knew about Mr. Hog. Mrs. Curtis Craun proved to be the greatest historian and promised the ladies, should we live another year, to have the gentleman speak for himself. After a jolly good time we adjourned hoping to have many more such pleasant meetings. President, Mrs. E. H. Fosdick; secretary, Mrs. D. D. Melroy; treasure, Mrs. Henry Bowman.

Additional Locals

The remains of Mrs. Johnnie Greene, of Detroit, Mich., but formerly of this city, was brought here last Saturday for burial. A very brief service was held at the home of Mrs. Gehring.

While entertaining a few callers Tuesday evening Mrs. Wm. Mutzfeld was very pleasantly surprised by about eighteen of the most comical looking people in Butler. Each one carried a little parcel which they deposited on the table, and later in the evening as the parcels were opened it proved to be something tempting to the appetite. Music and games were the order of the evening and a jolly good time was had by all until a late hour.

The Royal Neighbors initiated into the mysteries of the order, Tuesday evening, Mrs. O. A. Garber and Earl Eckright. After the work an elegant supper was served by the committee.

Mrs. Geerge King is quite sick.

Sherd. Tey Eyck and wife, of Auburn, were in the city Tuesday.

Mrs. L. L. Daniels and daughter are expected Feiday evening to spend Sunday with Chas. Campbell and wife.

Mrs. Barnes is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Kepler, in the country.

Potatoes 35 cents per bushel, any quantity. See Frank Harpster. 5-1

Harry Done received his card last Tuesday for completing the boiler maker's trade at Topeka, Kan. Harry is a steady, industrious young man, and his many friends congratulate him on his success. He has a position at Elmwood Place, Ohio, at his trade.

Mrs. Frank Brown, of Kendallville, was the guest of Mrs. A. Dove, Friday.

J. E. Lowe and C. L. Reed have purchased the Hamilton lumber yard.

Oren Hook and wife, of St. Joe, spent Monday with Christ. Riser and wife.

Mrs. L. L. Shoemaker and daughter Marjorie spent last week with her father, Geo. E. Scott, and family.

Frank Praul, wife and son, Russel took dinner Sunday with Dr. O. W. Hiner and wife.

Henry Grube and son Cleve were in Edgerton, Saturday, on business.

Mrs. J. W. Miller and sons Reuben and Robert spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey, of Blakeslee.

Mr. and Mrs. James Firestone, son Homer, and Mrs. Henry Grube and son Andrew spent Sunday with Mrs. Elizabeth Cannon.

Carl Gerner, of Waterloo, made The Heral a fraternal call Wednesday. He informed us that Ab. Kelly is critically ill in the west.

Alvin Livingood has purchased the old Oberlin house owned by Ed. Elden and will move it onto a vacant lot, where it will undergo repairs.

One of the staunchest admirers of Gov. Tom Marshal, is Fred Griggs, the cement king, of this city.

There is one thing quite vivid in Butler at present, and that is that there is less "knocking" than ever before in the history of the town. The spirit of "boost" has taken hold of the people. Instead of "knocking," as was quite common with some a few months ago, people ase declaring their faith in our little city. We are glad to see this progressive, optimistic spirit prevail. Keep her going.

Miss Allie Wartenbe left last Wednesday for Lexington, Ky., where she will attend college.

Mrs. S. B. Braden left Friday for her home in Edon, after spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Webster.

The chicken pie supper given by the Christian ladies, last Saturday, was a financial success.

D. A. Shaw will have charge of the morning services at the Christian church next Sunday.

John Coats was able to be out last Sunday for the first time since his severe accident.

Mrs. W. C. Webster was on the sick list the first of the week.

John Conrad and wife, of Summit, visited with John Penick and wife Sunday.

Mrs. Boon Madden spent Sunday in Edgerton, the guest of Harriet Helwig and daughter.

Mrs. Frank Blaker is visiting her parents in Blakesley this week, also an uncle who is visiting them from the west.

Wm. Field and wife were the guests of relatives in Edgerton, Sunday.

Jake Cook and wife visited friends in Waterloo Sunday.

John Swinehart is moving his family to Butlea this week.

Noal Spakes was the guest of Hoyt Cook Sunday.

John Pinck visited with Sam Frick at Waterloo Sunday.

We would Rather Show You Than Tell You

So our invitation to inspect our stock is always in force, and it includes everybody. These's no special day, no best time to look at our

... Furniture ...

Come any time that you please, and stay as long as you are interested. We claim that this stock of ours will do its own arguins, and we would far rather show you than tell you.

A. F. BRINDLEY
Furniure and Undertaking

VALENTINES FOR EVERYBODY!

WE have just received the largest and most beautiful assortment of all kinds of valentines ever shown at our store, consisting of the new and staple designs in Comics, Post Cards and Fancy Patterns

GEDDES' DRUG STORE

Valentines

New and Novel. Up-to-Date Designs

Valentine Post Cards

Call and See Them, at

STONE'S DRUG STORE

0464

L1134

FEBRUARY

DeKalb County Herald

BUTLER, INDIANA.

A. S. POWERS, - - - Publisher.

Alabama is neither dry nor wet. Something like 'alf and 'alf.

The Monroe doctrine is safe. Germany backs off from sharing our burden in Latin America.

An inventor who should solve the clothes problem for the changeable fall weather would be a wonder.

There are, after all, some reasons for being sincerely thankful. Neither Nan Patterson nor little Evelyn is making any noise.

Kermit Roosevelt recently killed two bongoes. We don't know just what a bongo is, but the probabilities are that it is just as fierce a man-eater as the yamyam.

The products of the farms of this country were worth $869,000,000 more in 1909 than in 1908. The farmers are in imminent danger of forfeiting public sympathy.

The spectacle of Congress going to work heroically to cut down the national expenditures $50,000,000 or so would be almost worth working up into a thrilling lyric.

A French scientist claims to have caused a dead dog to bark, but a greater achievement for him would be to invent a way to keep a live dog from barking at 4 a. m.

While he was in England King Manuel was snubbed by a chorus girl with whom he tried to flirt. The name of the piece in which the chorus girl is to star has not been made public.

By becoming reconciled to strict retirement Abdul Hamid has exhibited good judgment. He knows he could never feel at home hanging to a lamp post, with a rope around his neck.

Sorry to interrupt Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont to ask her why we never hear of women flocking to Colorado to gain a voting residence, while they fall over each other in the rush for Nevada to gain a divorce residence.

Eugene Higgins, the wealthy New York yachtsman, has given $5,000 to a man who saved him from drowning. Considering the fact that Mr. Higgins is worth several millions, this can hardly be regarded as an indication that he is much of an egotist.

Miss Isadora Duncan, the dancer, has left this country in disgust, saying that she will never return because the American people who have money do not appreciate art. The trouble with Miss Duncan was that she didn't do her barefoot specialty in a musical comedy.

Coal enough in the earth for seven thousand years is the reassuring announcement of the Geological Survey. At the end of that time, if the human race has not passed beyond the need of any fuel whatever, it ought to have learned how to utilize the vast stores of solar energy which are now going to waste daily.

One of the large department stores in Chicago has appointed an official censor of the dress of its saleswomen. The woman who has accepted the difficult position is a believer in simplicity. A black or white tailor-made shirtwaist, black skirt, hair without any artificial adornments, and an absence of fashion exaggerations are her ideas of what is fitting. "Rats," "puffs," false curls, paint, powder and other make-up accessories are forbidden.

"Patience, philosophy, humor, good luck, steadfastness, health, persistence, clear-headedness, sympathy, diplomacy, persuasiveness, positiveness, gentleness, open-mindedness, force, enthusiasm, pointedness, clairvoyance, independence, friendliness and charm." Such is the equipment which Chicago's new superintendent of schools prescribes for the ideal teacher. The fortunate possessor of all these qualities would be successful in any occupation, for they come near including every virtue of mind and character.

The high price of cotton has led German textile experts to study the possibilities of other fibers. A company at Chemnitz is reported to have succeeded in using the fiber contained in the seed of the kapok, or silk-cotton tree of the tropics. Heretofore no one has been able to spin this fiber on account of its brittleness in the natural state; but a German chemist has found a way to treat it which produces a tough, soft and silky yarn. The experiment, whatever its outcome, emphasizes the possibilities to industry of the thorough technical education in which the Germans have so far surpassed the rest of the world. For the man of the highest scientific training, possible fortunes lie on every hand.

Chinchilla fur is likely to be scarce if the slaughter of the small South American rodents which produce it continues at the present rate. In Chile, for example, there are no game-laws, and the hunters, attracted by the rapidly increasing price of the skins, are exterminating the animals. In 1903 less than 12,000 skins were exported at about a dollar and a half apiece. Two years later the price became so attractive that more than a million and a half skins were sent out of the country. This has been accompanied by so great a destruction of the animals that less than a tenth as many skins could be exported the next year, in spite of the fact that the price had risen to nearly double that of 1903. Last year less than 40,000 skins were sent abroad, and they sold for about four dollars apiece.

Every one who has occasion to consult an atlas—and that means practically every grown-up person—finds it annoying that the maps of adjacent portions of territory are drawn to different scales. At the fifth International Geographic Congress, which met in Berne in 1891, Prof. Albrecht Penck made the interesting suggestion that all the map-making nations should decide upon a common scale, and co-operate in the making of a map of the world. He recommended a scale of one to one million—about sixteen miles to an inch. A map of Pennsylvania on scale would measure about twenty inches from east to west, and nine and a half inches from north to south. Professor Penck also advised that the sheets be so bounded by parallels and meridians that any one sheet would match the sheets representing contiguous territory, no matter by what nation the sheets were made. The suggestion was much discussed at that meeting and in subsequent congresses. Last year, when the society met in Geneva, an international committee was appointed to consider details and formulate practical methods of co-operation. Upon the recommendation of this committee, the British government invited the leading countries of the world to send delegates to a meeting in London, for the standardization of the proposed map, upon the scale mentioned, of one to one million. The delegates met at the British foreign office. The representatives of the United States were two members of the Geological Survey. Good maps contribute to a knowledge of history and geography, promote agriculture and industry, and further the advance of civilization. In the matter of maps made by the government itself, this country has no need to blush. On the other hand, in what may be called commercial maps, those which are made by private companies for sale singly or in atlases, the United States is far behind some European nations.

ADVENTURE WITH GRIZZLY

Captain Williams, an old-time trapper, who voyaged alone in a frail canoe for hundreds of miles on the great rivers of the interior, had many thrilling adventures, one of which is related below. Captain Williams always took the precaution at night of tying his canoe to the shore with a piece of rawhide about twenty feet long, which let the canoe swing from the bank that distance. In case of attack from Indians, he could cut the cord that bound him to the shore, and glide off without noise. He always slept in his canoe.

One night he was roused from sleep by the trampling of something in the bushes on the bank. Tramp! tramp! tramp! sounded the footsteps, which were approaching the canoe.

The captain's first fear was of Indians, but reason told him that no Indian bent on mischief would approach the canoe in that careless fashion. Peering intently into the darkness, Captain Williams watched the shore, and soon discovered a grizzly bear coming toward him, its head upraised as it sniffed the air.

The captain snatched his ax, deeming that the best weapon to defend himself from such a foe, and stood with it uplifted, ready to strike the huge aggressor.

The bear came on, and placed its fore paws upon the stern of the canoe, and nearly upset it.

Like a flash descended the ax upon one foot, which was instantly withdrawn; but the bear held on with the other foot.

The captain raised the ax again, and brought it down on the animal's head. Instantly it let go the canoe, and sank, stunned, into the water.

Although Captain Williams watched intently for the grizzly's reappearance nothing more was seen of it. In the morning two of the bear's claws were found in the canoe, severed by that doughty blow of the trapper's ax. They were fondly preserved as trophies of the adventure, and were always exhibited when the captain told the story of his encounter with the grizzly.

The Order of the Bath.

The last Knights of the Bath made according to the ancient forms were at the coronation of Charles II., when various rites and ceremonies, one of which was bathing, were enforced.

According to Froissart, the court barber prepared a bath, and the candidate for membership in the order, having been undressed by his esquires, was thereupon placed in the bath, his clothes and collars being the perquisites of the barber. He was then removed from the water to the words "May this be an honorable bath to you" and was placed in a plain bed quite wet and naked to dry. As soon as he was quite dry he was removed from the bed, dressed in new and rich apparel and conducted by his sponsors to the chapel, where he offered a taper to the honor of God and a penny piece to the honor of the king. Then he went to the monarch and, kneeling before him, received from the royal sword a tap on the shoulder, the king exclaiming, "Arise, Sir——," and then embraced him, saying, "Be thou a good knight, and true." — London Strand Magazine.

Harold Chose the Easier Way.

Maynard had been naughty, and his father, after showing him his fault, had sent him up to his room to ask God to forgive him for being a bad boy. Three-year-old Harold was present, but seemed to take no notice of the conversation. It was his turn, however, before many days to receive punishment, and his father took him across his knee. "Oh, don't, papa," he said. "I would rather go upstairs and pray."—Delineator.

John's Great Loss.

"For goodness' sake, Harriet, why so sad?"

"The cook's left, but that isn't the worst of it. She took with her the recipe book for all the things John's mother used to make."—Brooklyn Life.

Our idea of a born diplomat is a man who can make a homely woman believe that her mirror lies.

The Wand of Sleep OR The Devil-Stick

By the Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," Etc.

THE WAND OF SLEEP is a story of the most unique construction, original plot and peculiar action. It deals with that strange phase of West Indies life known as "fetich," or "voodooism." A beautiful girl is beloved by three different men, two of whom fall victims to the effects of the devil-stick, or the "wand of sleep," as it is called. The girl's nurse, full of the superstition of her dark race, is a forbidding but fascinating character in this striking romance.

This serial will be welcomed for its novelty and freshness. It is full of stirring episodes, is well conceived and brilliantly written. It must receive great interest from readers who love a lively story, embellished with action and incidents that verge on the marvelous.

CHAPTER I.

Laurence Jen was a retired major, a bachelor, and the proprietor of a small estate. He had been all over the world, a soldier in African campaigns, as in South American insurrections. On leaving the service he decided that it was better to be a Triton in the country than a minnow in town; and acting upon this theory, he purchased "Ashantee" from a ruined stock broker. Formerly the place had been called Sarbylands, after its original owners; but Jen had changed the name, in honor of a campaign in which he had participated.

He had been present at the downfall of King Koffee in Africa; he had contracted during the expedition an ague which tormented him greatly during his later life, and he had received a wound and a medal. In gratitude for these gifts of fortune, the Major, with some irony, had converted the name Sarbylands into the barbaric appellation of a West African kingdom; and here, for many years, he lived with his two boys.

These lads, named respectively Maurice Alymer and David Sarby, were in no way related to the Major, but they had entered into his life in rather an odd fashion. Alymer was the son of a beautiful girl with whom Jen had been passionately in love, but she did not return his affection, and married one of his brother officers, who was afterwards killed in the Ashantee War. Jen cherished a hope that she would reward his love by a second marriage, but the shock of her husband's death proved too much for the fragile widow. She died within a week after receiving the terrible news, and left behind her a wailing infant, which was consigned to the cold charity of indifferent relatives.

It was then that the Major displayed the goodness of his heart and the nobility of his character. Forgetting his own sorrows, he obtained permission from the relatives to adopt the child, and to take charge of the trifle of property coming to the lad. Then he bought Sarbylands, set estate and house in order under the name of "Ashantee," and devoted his life to cherishing and training the lad in whose blue eyes he saw a look of his dead love. This Platonic affection, begotten by the deathless memory of the one passion of his life, filled his existence completely, and rendered him entirely happy.

With regard to David Sarby, he had passed with the estate to Jen. The boy's father, a drunkard, and a confirmed gambler, had been forced, through his vices, to sell his ancestral home; and within a year of the sale he had dissipated the purchase money in debauchery. Afterwards, like the sordid and pitiful coward he had always proved himself to be, he committed suicide, leaving his only son—whose mother had long since been worried into her grave—a pauper, and an orphan.

The collateral branches of the old Sarby family had died out; the relatives on the mother's side refused to have anything to do with a child, who—if heredity went for anything—might prove to be a chip of the old block, and little David might have found himself thrown on the parish, but that Major Jen, pitying the forlorn condition of the child, saved him from so ignominious a fate. His heart and his house were large enough to receive another pensioner, so he took David back to the old deserted mansion, and presented him to Maurice as a new playfellow. Henceforth the two boys grew to manhood under the devoted care of the cheerful old bachelor, who had protected their helpless infancy.

The Major was fairly well-to-do, having considerable private property, and he determined, in the goodness of his heart, that "the boys," as he fondly called them, should have every advantage in starting life. He sent them both to school, and later called upon them to choose their professions. Maurice, more of an athlete than a scholar, selected the army, and the delighted Major highly approved of his choice. Of a more reflective nature and studious mind, David wished to become a lawyer.

Both lads proved themselves worthy of Jen's goodness, and were soon in active exercise of the professions which they had chosen. Maurice joined a regiment, and David was admitted to the bar. Then the Major was thankful. His boys were provided for, and it only remained that each should marry some charming girl, and bring their families to gladden an old bachelor's heart at "Ashantee." The Major had many day-dreams of this sort; but, alas! they were destined never to be fulfilled. Fate began her work of casting into dire confusion the hitherto placid lives of the two young men.

Frequently the young barrister and the soldier came to visit their guardian, for whom they both cherished a deep affection. On the occasion of each visit Jen was accustomed to celebrate their presence by a small festival, to which he would ask two or three friends. With simple craft, the old man would invite also pretty girls, with their mothers; in the hope that his lads might be lured into matrimony.

The Major was a confirmed bachelor, but he did not intend that his boys should follow so bad an example. He wished Maurice to marry Miss Isabella Dallas, a charming blonde from the West Indies; and David he designed as the husband of Meg Brance. But Jen was mistaken in thinking that he could guide the erratic affections of youth, as will hereafter be proved. Sure enough, the lads fell in love, but both with the same woman—a state of things not anticipated by the Major, who was too simple to be a matchmaker.

On this special occasion, however, no ladies were present at the little dinner, and besides Jen and his two boys, Dr. Etwald was the only guest. About this man with the strange name there is something to be said. He was tall, he was thin, with a dark lean face, and fiery, watchful dark eyes. For three years he had been wasting his talents in the neighboring town when he should have been shouldering his way above the crowd of mediocrities in the metropolis. The man was dispassionate, brilliant, and persevering; he had in him the makings, not only of a great physician, but of a great man; and he was wasting his gifts in a dull provincial town. No one knew who Etwald was, or whence he came, or why he wasted his talents, and such secret past, which he declined to yield up to the most persistent questioner, accentuated the distrust caused by his somber looks and curt speeches. Provincial society is intolerant of originality.

Etwald had become acquainted with Jen professionally, and having cured the Major of one of his frequent attacks of ague, he had passed from being a mere medical attendant into a closer relationship of a friend. The boys had met him once or twice, but neither of them cared much for his somber personality, and they were not overpleased to find that the Major had invited the man to meet them on the occasion of this special dinner.

But Jen—good simple soul—was rather taken with Etwald's mysticism, and, moreover, pitied his loneliness. Therefore he welcomed this intellectual pariah to his house and board; and on this fine June evening Etwald was enjoying an excellent dinner in the company of three cheerful companions.

Major Jen sustained the burden of conversation, for Maurice was absent-minded, and David, physiognomically inclined—was silently attempting to read the inscrutable countenance of Etwald. As for the latter, he sat with his brilliant eyes steadily fixed upon Maurice. The young man felt uneasy under the mesmeric gaze of the doctor, and kept twisting and turning in his seat. Finally he broke out impatiently in the midst of the Major's babble, and asked Etwald a direct question.

"Does my face remind you of anyone?" he demanded, rather sharply.

"Yes, Mr. Aylmer!" replied Etwald, deliberately, "it reminds me of a man who died!"

"Dear me!" said Jen, with a sympathetic look. "Was he a friend of yours, Doctor?"

"Well, no, Major, I can't say that he was. In fact," added Etwald, with the air of a man making a simple statement, "I hated him!"

"I hope you don't hate me?" said Maurice, rather annoyed.

"No, Mr. Alymer; I don't hate you!" replied the doctor, in a colorless tone. "Do you believe in palmistry?" he asked, suddenly.

"No!" said Maurice, promptly.

"All rubbish!" added the Major.

"What do you say, Mr. Sarby?" asked Etwald, turning to the lawyer.

"I am a skeptic also," said David, with a laugh. "And you?"

"I am a believer."

Here Etwald rose and crossed over to where Maurice was sitting. The young man, guessing his errand, held out his left hand with a smile. Etwald scrutinized it closely, and returned to his seat.

"Life in death!" he said, calmly. "Read that riddle, Mr. Aylmer. Life in death."

CHAPTER II.

"Life in death!" repeated Maurice, in puzzled tones. "And what do you mean by that mystical jargon, doctor?"

"Ah, my friend, there comes in the riddle."

"Paralysis?" suggested David, in a jesting manner, but with some seriousness.

"No; that is not the answer."

"Catalepsy?" guessed Major Jen, giving his moustache a nervous twist.

"Nor that either."

Maurice, whose nerves were proof against such fantasies, laughed disbelievingly.

"I don't believe you know the answer to your own riddle," he said, calmly.

Etwald shrugged his shoulders.

"I don't know for certain, Mr. Aylmer, but I can guess."

"Tell us your guess, doctor; as it interests me so nearly, I have a right to know."

"Bad news comes quickly enough in the telling," said the doctor, judiciously, "so I shall say nothing more. Life in death is your fate, Mr. Aylmer; unless," he added, with a swift and penetrating glance, "you choose to avert the calamity!"

"Can I do so?"

"Yes, and in an easy manner. Never get married."

Maurice flushed crimson, and, resenting the mocking tone of Etwald, half rose from his seat, but, without moving a finger, Etwald continued in a cold tone:

"You are in love with a young lady, and you wish to marry her!"

"Quite right! quite right!" broke in Major Jen, heartily. "I want Maurice to marry."

"Then you want him to meet his fate of life in death!" said Etwald, curtly.

The others stared at him, and with the skepticism of thoroughly healthy minds refused to attach much importance to Etwald's mysticism. Jen was the first to speak, and he did so in rather a stiff way, quite different from his usual jovial style of conversation.

"My dear Etwald, if I did not know you so well I should take you for a charlatan."

"I am no charlatan, Major," rejoined Etwald, coolly. "I ask no money for my performance. I repeat my warning to Mr. Aylmer. Never get married!"

"I am afraid it is too late for me to take your advice, doctor," said Maurice, merrily. "I am in love."

"I know you are, and I admire your taste."

"Pardon me, doctor," said Maurice, stiffly. "I mention no names."

"Neither do I, but I think of one name, my friend."

"Now you are making a mystery out of a plain common-sense question," said David, irritably. "We all know that Maurice is in love," here he raised his eyes suddenly, and looked keenly at his friend, "with Meg Brance."

Major Jen chuckled and rubbed his hands together in a satisfied manner. Etwald bent his somber looks on Maurice, and that young man, biting his lip, took up the implied challenge in Sarby's remark, and answered plainly:

"I am not in love with Meg, my dear fellow," said he, sharply; "but if you must know, I admire"—this with emphasis—"Miss Dallas."

The brow of Sarby grew black, and in his turn he rose to his feet.

"I am glad to hear it is only 'admire,'" he remarked, slowly, "for had the word been any other I should have resented it."

"You! And upon what grounds?" cried Aylmer, flashing out in a rage.

"That is my business."

"And mine, too," said Maurice, hotly. "Isabella is——"

"I forbid you to call Miss Dallas by that name," declared David, in an overbearing manner.

"You—you—you forbid me!"

(To be continued.)

THE PRICE OF FRUIT.

It Was Exorbitant, but It Had to Be Paid.

"I been having quite a visit with Cerintha Malling," announced Mrs. Bonney, omitting the usual greetings and lowering her ample person cautiously into her friend's, Mrs. Binns', largest easy chair. "She's back from South Equity. Come last night. I saw her chimney smoking first thing this morning, and run right over. She's had a grand time with her mother's folks, and just bubbling over with talk about 'em. 'Twas reel int'resting, if they are strangers; but it got more so when they weren't—one of 'em, that is. You remember Luella Vose, to the old academy?"

"Hateful little mean snip!" rejoined Mrs. Binns, with energy. "Course I do. Always telling tales, and forgetting her luncheon a-purpose, and begging other people's, and never sharing a thing of her own with anybody, though her mother kept a candy store—course I remember. What about her?"

"Nothing, except she's the same old Luella, only more so," replied Mrs. Bonney, chuckling. "But, 'cording to what Cerintha tells, she's got her come-uppance at last. She married as soon as she quit the academy, and settled out to South Equity on a farm. He wa'n't exactly well-to-do, and he wa'n't poor, either. A nice place, but some close calculating to keep it going, I guess——"

"Luella could tend to that!" ejaculated Mrs. Binns.

"She did—a mite too close, too. Her husband's uncle from Illyria way stopped over a day with her once, when her husband wa'n't home, and Luella entertained him. He found his dinner kind o' slim, likely; and when she sent her boy to show him round the place afterward, he picked a pear here and a bunch o' grapes there, and ate 'em. The boy didn't say anything, and he ate what he wanted, and said good-by, and went on home.

"The next day he got a bill. Yes, he did, Susan Binns! A bill for three pears at 3 cents a pear, 9 cents, and one bunch o' prime grapes of a new-fangled sort, one dime! Nineteen cents for a nibble in his own nephew's orchard!"

"Land o' Goshen!" ejaculated Mrs. Binns. "Did he pay?"

"He paid," said Mrs. Bonney, grimly, "and that was five years ago. He's just died, and it seems he was a good deal better off than anybody'd s'posed. He left his other nephews a thousand apiece, but Luella's husband only got a hundred, 'having such a thrifty wife to make the most of his property, that more would be unnecessary.' That's what the will said. Kind of high price for fruit, Susan, wa'n't it—both ways?"

"Talk of your mean men," said Mrs. Binns, drawing a long breath, "when a woman does set out to be mean, she's the meanest critter in the universe. But I'm sort of sorry for the husband."—Youth's Companion.

Race Dangers.

"Pop!"

"Yes, my boy."

"This paper says that no race is safe from cholera."

"Is that so? Well, my son, you mustn't go in any more of those Marathons, then!"—Yonkers Statesman.

FINDS BIG REVOLT AGAINST W. H. TAFT

Wyoming Leader Says Tariff Law Has Made Democrats Out of Western Republicans.

PARTY PROMISES "NOT KEPT."

Trickery of G. O. P., Adds Former Governor, Augurs Well for Its Rival to Elect a President.

The people of the Rocky mountain region are in open revolt against the Taft administration, according to John E. Osborne, former governor of Wyoming and recently congressman-at-large from that state, who was in Chicago the other day.

Mr. Osborne is Democratic national committeeman for his state. He said the people of the mountain states voted for Taft because they believed, that he would carry into effect the Roosevelt policies in all matters excepting the tariff, and that in that he would be guided by the views of the Democratic party as presented to the people.

"Had they believed they would be tricked as they have been," added the former governor, "they would have voted for Bryan, notwithstanding past differences on the money question.

"The repudiation by the administration of its pre-election promises to reduce the tariff and take the taxes off of the west and the small cities of America has disgusted the Republican voters west of the Rocky mountains.

"The Payne-Aldrich bill, increasing the taxes in excess of any bill ever in existence, is regarded by the western Republicans as a display of defiance of their will and a willingness on the part of the Taft administration to trick the people whenever it is to the pleasure of the trust magnates or the financial dictators of New England and the east. They regard the whole proceeding as a sacrifice of the middle west, its cities and its industries, for the benefit of the Atlantic coast and at the dictation of the financial interests of the east, who are jealous of the rapid growth and advancement of the west."

Mr. Osborne, who is a large wool grower—his properties extending through Wyoming, Colorado and Utah—discussed the tariff on wool.

"The wool growers of the west are not deceived by the fact that the tariff was increased on wool," he said. "It benefits them nothing. Everything else is so expensive that if they realized the increased profits on the wool, they are still at great financial loss.

"But the tariff does not aid them, because the wool manufacturers of the east say to the wool growers, 'By our trust arrangement we will pay you just so much for your wool, matters not how little; you will either take it or it will rot in your bins.'

"The wool growers can't sell their wool outside of the United States to compete with the foreign markets. They must, therefore, accept the dictated price of the wool trust of New England.

"This is the policy that has made Democrats in the great middle west and the Rocky mountain states on the tariff question. All the Democratic party needs to do is to nominate some man representing the western spirit, which is really the American spirit of fair play, justice and honesty in public affairs.

"The Republicans in the west are now clamoring for Roosevelt to be renominated. They are doing this because they feel that no other man would have a chance against any reputable Democrat standing on the Democratic policies."

Mr. Osborne was one of the executive committee conducting the last national campaign. Referring to the prospective nominee in the next presidential election, he said that there was no particular man just now, but the prospects were that a man from the west would be named for President and another from one of the southern states for Vice President.

"The time has passed," he added, "when New York or the Atlantic coast coterie, who are for any policy if it is for their financial benefit and in opposition to the west, will dictate the policy of the Democratic party."

The First Gun of the Battle.

Administration organs may disregard the dollar dinner at Des Moines. The administration will not. Standpatters may sneer at the 700 men who gathered to indorse Senator Cummins in his policy of electing progressives to replace the machine congressmen from Iowa. They should remember Indiana.

Seven hundred Iowa Republicans enthusiastic for tariff reform are not to be sneered at. By the Aldriches, the Boutells, and other willing servants of the eastern tariff barons they are to be feared, for they indicate the beginning of the end for tariff roguery.

President Taft may have believed that the west was in a mood to tolerate present tariff conditions. Perhaps the natural reluctance of certain western Republicans to speak unpleasantly to the chief magistrate may explain his illusion. But the Des Moines dinner should leave no doubt.

The west is determined to secure tariff reduction, no matter what eastern trust is hit. Senator Cummins has fired the first gun in the battle. The congressional campaign will see hot fighting all along the line.

The voters of the west will send real tariff revisionists to Washington. If Republican candidates refuse to pledge action the next congress will contain a majority of Democrats elected to reduce the tariff burden which the working west carries for the benefit of the idle east.—Chicago Journal.

Another Panama Project.

The people of the United States will learn with mixed feelings of the proposition to construct a railroad from Panama City to David, 274 miles, rails and rolling stock to be supplied second hand from the canal work and construction to be undertaken by the canal commission.

Vice Consul General Guayant in a communication published in the daily consular report says that the isthmian canal commission is "inclined to give this proposition favorable consideration" on the ground that it will furnish an outlet for second-hand material that might otherwise have to be disposed of at a great loss, and work for a good part of the labor that "will be stranded on the isthmus" when the canal is completed.

The great American taxpayer can not be blamed for inquiring whether he is under obligation to furnish life jobs for Panama laborers. He does not doubt that Panama would profit by the proposed railroad. Nor does he question Mr. Guayant's statement that the proposed line would pass directly through the richest section of the republic.

But he may be pardoned for a natural curiosity as to the identity of the gentlemen who own the vast tract of territory to which the railroad is to provide access at his expense.

An Insurgent on High Prices.

President Taft will have to find some other reason for the increased cost of living than the increased output of the gold mines before he can convince the Western tariff insurgents that the Aldrich tariff is not robbing the purchasers of highly protected goods, as everybody knows it was deliberately intended to do.

Senator Clapp, of Minnesota, whose constituents are not protected in any of the schedules, cannot be convinced that a tariff which adds injury to insult by impudently raising, beyond the limit of tolerance, the import taxes on such necessaries as cotton and woolen goods, does not add to the annual expense account of the average American family.

If the Aldrich tariff was not intended to accomplish this very result there is no sense in it. The higher duties do not go into the Treasury of the United States, because the average American family cannot afford to buy the better foreign goods after they have paid the custom-house tax of 100 per cent or more ad valorem. The prohibitive custom-house tax only places it in the power of the protected monopolist to charge the consumer an unearned profit of half or three-quarters the amount of the tax on goods which he would not buy if he were not coerced by a Congress which legislates in the interest of greed and avarice.

Raise the price of a man's coat, as Senator Clapp puts it, and the man must get more money from somewhere to pay the difference, or go coatless. If he is a farmer, he must hold out for the best prices he can exact for his produce, or he will not have money with which to meet the tax collector, after having paid his forced contributions to the beneficiaries of Aldrich legislation.

The Aldrich-Taft-Cannon tariff combine cannot convince Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas and Wisconsin that the tariff monopolies have any divine right to rob them simply because they are just now enjoying an unusual degree of prosperity. The tariff is still the burning issue of the immediate future.—St. Louis Republic.

The Missing Turk.

Sarah Bernhardt was once playing at Marseilles in a spectacular play in which she made her entree accompanied by six Turkish slaves. A line on the program announced that these six Turks would accompany Mme. Bernhardt, but when the time came for them to go on one of the youngsters had disappeared. Sarah mustered the five in order and made her entrance with a grand flourish. The house was crowded, but not a handclap greeted her as she appeared. Then a still, small voice in the gallery murmured something in an indignant tone. Fifty voices immediately took up the strain, and in ten seconds more the whole house was shouting the same phrase.

Bernhardt strained every nerve to catch what they were complaining about. She knew the phrase began with "Manque," but the rest of it was lost in the general hubbub. For a full minute the tumult continued. Then Sarah, muttering things below her breath, rushed like a fury down to the footlights. In the front row the actress had spotted one may who was not taking part in the hullabaloo. Pointing at him, the actress exclaimed sternly: "You seem to be the only sensible person in the house. Tell me what on earth they are kicking up this row for?"

The man rose, bowed to the actress and remarked in very bad American-French, "Madam, you are sky one Turk."

Inhaling Water.

Undoubtedly the majority of bathers who are drowned meet their deaths from cramp. Cramp is liable to seize anybody at any moment, and when it comes in deep water few swimmers have sufficient presence of mind to turn on their backs and wait quietly until the attack has departed. So they go under. But there is another danger quite as imminent as cramp, though it is probably less known. This is water inhaling. A swimmer or even a wader is always liable to inhale spray through his nostrils, which, passing through the pharynx and behind the epiglottis or windpipe guard, gets into the windpipe and causes death. As one would expect, water inhaling is almost wholly confined to the sea and very rarely occurs in fresh water. All the same, it may happen anywhere.

He Owns Up.

"Own up, now. Who's the head of your family?"

"My wife used to be," admitted Mr. Enpeck. "But since my daughters are grown up we have a commission form of government."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Exceedingly Rapid.

"Were the colors fast on the new goods you bought?"

"Fast? My dear, they fairly ran into one another, they were so fast."—Baltimore American.

THE WAVERLY HOTEL

CLYDE OBERLIN, Prop.

Warm Meals and Lunch served at all hours, day or night.

Fine line of Candies, Cigars and Tobacco.

East Side Broadway

Dr. Harrison

PHYSICIAN and SURGEON.

BUTLER, - IND.

Dr. Bulson

OFFICE AND RESIDENCE 219 WEST WAYNE STREET

FORT WAYNE.

PRACTICE LIMITED TO DISEASES OF THE EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT.

GLASSES ADJUSTED.

E. B. DUNTEN,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.

Prompt, Careful and Efficient Attention given to All Legal Business.

Office over Phillips drug store, Butler.

BEECHLER & SON,

DENTISTS.

CROWN AND BRIDGE WORK

Plates and all Dental Surgery given prompt attention. Office over Shaw-land's store. Sunday 9:30 to 12 o'clock

BUTLER, INDIANA.

FRANK A. BRINK

Attorney-at-Law

Notary Public.

Special Attention Given to Collections

Dr. W. F. Shumaker

Special Attention Given to Chronic Diseases

OFFICE HOURS

7 to 8 a. m. 1 to 3 p. m.

7 to 8 p. m.

5 DROPS

TRADE MARK

THE STANDARD REMEDY FOR ALL FORMS OF

RHEUMATISM

LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, NEURALGIA, KIDNEY TROUBLES, CATARRH, ASTHMA and KINDRED DISEASES

GIVES QUICK RELIEF

Applied externally it affords almost instant relief from pain, while permanent results are being effected by taking it internally, purifying the blood, dissolving the poisonous substance and removing it from the system.

DR. C. L. GATES

Hancock, Minn., writes:

"A little girl here had such a weak back caused by Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble that she could not stand on her feet. The moment they put her down on the floor she would scream with pains. I treated her with '5-DROPS' and today she runs around as well and happy as can be. I prescribe '5-DROPS' for my patients, and use it in my practice."

TEST "5-DROPS" FREE

If you are suffering with Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble or any kindred disease, write to us for a trial bottle of "5-DROPS."

"5-DROPS" is entirely free from opium, cocaine, morphine, alcohol, laudanum and other similar ingredients.

Large Size Bottle "5-DROPS" (300 Doses) $1.00. For Sale by Druggists.

SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE COMPANY

Dept. 80. 174 Lake Street, Chicago

He Hustled. He Advertised.

He put himself and his business before the people, and is now reaping his reward. If you desire to reach the buying classes you must patronize the newspaper that is widely circulated. ... You take no chances when you advertise in

This Paper.

0465

L1134

FEBRUARY

CONGRESSIONAL CRANIUMS

The heads that gather under the dome of the Capitol to wrestle with the problem of lawmaking for the greatest nation in the world are big heads, long heads, square heads, knotty heads, says the Washington Post. He who applies the doggerel "Little head, little wit; big head, not a bit," to the highest representative body of the nation goes wrong, for these heads are monstrous large and their owners are here because they had the wit to get elected over a thousand aspirants to the places they occupy.

These men get fitted with hats in Washington. From the shops they frequent have been selected at random the registers of their craniums. Practically all of them have big heads—heads a quarter larger than the general run among the men of the nation. The average for Congressmen would be as high as 7⅛, and as a matter for common knowledge a number 7 head is bigger than most. There is the exceptional small head that gets to Congress and succeeds there, but the hatband burster is the general rule.

For that matter the beetling brow is lodged in other high places even overtopping Congress. The present occupant of the White House wears a hat registering to the unusual notch of 7½. His strenuous immediate predecessor fell below this record in expanse of phrenological circumference by only a single point, and wore a skypiece that was designated 7⅜.

The head of the Hon. Nicholas Longworth, for instance, is as wide in front as behind, and were it unadorned it would be difficult to tell whether it was coming or going. It is the most regular head in Congress, a complete oval, twice as long as wide. It is a 7¼, as is the head of Senator Perkins, of California. The greatest contrast in heads in Congress is this year removed. It existed between John Wesley Gaines, of Tennessee, and John Dalzell, of Pennsylvania. The former had the largest head in Congress, and the latter one of the smallest.

The widest head in Congress is that of Representative Hitchcock, of Nebraska. It is a 7⅛ and broadens out above the ears. Representative Pearre, of Maryland, has the head which contrasts most strongly with this, for it is long and narrow. The Hitchcock head is 50 per cent wider than the Pearre head.

Speaker Cannon has just an average, full 7¼ head. The baby's foot, represented by the head of Senator Cullom, would appear to be affected with bunions, for it widens out greatly and knottily toward the back. Senator Hale has one of the longest heads in Congress. It is 7⅞, a size larger than that of Senator Frye. The head of Senator La Follette is only a 7. The others are like or intermediate between these types.

The representative is heavier than the Senator, more pugnacious, blockier, nearer the mass of the people. He fights more and differently for his place, and the differing conditions require a different man to survive. There is, aside from the type, a considerable sprinkling of the slim, wiry man who depends upon his very wit or upon cunning to hold his place instead of the geniality and physical force of the majority. A head of large circumference is naturally proportionate to a large body, and it is likely that the great physique of the successful Congressman is responsible for the size of his head rather than any special mental qualification.

Congress prints a directory of its members in which each man writes his own biography. From this the man with a weakness for figures can readily work out a great many of the elements that go to make up the average Congressman. It is almost possible to put all these contributing elements into a kettle, boil them together, and dip out sufficient to make one man, the composite Congressman.

According to this system, the member of the Sixty-first is: Lawyer, two-thirds; merchant, one-tenth; soldier, one-eighth; professional politician, one-fifteenth; newspaper man, one-sixteenth; farmer, one-thirtieth; banker, one-thirtieth. Then there is a bare trace of numberless callings running all the way from cowboy to college president. Here are the figures for the House, so far as it is possible to ascertain callings:

Lawyers, 255; merchants, 34; politicians, 23; newspaper men, 20; farmers, 10; manufacturers, 9; bankers, 14; insurance men, 4; engineers, 3; doctors, 4; cowboys, 4; authors, 2; labor leaders, 2, and one each of actors, naval officers, teamsters, horse traders, auctioneers, hotel men, preachers, and princes.

The most remarkable predominance of any given line of activity that entered into the lives of great numbers of embryonic Congressmen was that of teacher. Two-thirds of the men who sit on the House side have at some time or other taught school, and mention the fact in their biographies. The stamp of the pedagogue is strong upon Congress. There seems to be some subtle influence wielded by the schoolroom which leads to public life, or there are traits of character which lead a man to teach school and then lead him further to essay politics.

Another character who finds the gate wide open that leads to political pastures green is the old soldier. There are forty-eight soldiers in the House of Representatives despite the remoteness of any war of importance and a lack of representation of the regular army.

The frock coat sits well upon the Congressman, and he does not look out of place in a cutaway, no matter how greatly out of style. He prefers it somewhat shiny and not too well pressed. The folks back home must not think he is a "dude." His shoes are stout, and his garments ample. The soft hat is still largely in evidence, despite the trend of fashion toward the villages. There are more soft hats in Congress than stiff hats, and they are more likely to stay there. Many Congressmen have never found it necessary to have a hat conformed to their heads, for those made of felt adapt themselves.

The fact is that members of Congress have big heads; that they are big men physically; that they wear frock coats and are prone to assume that air of mental abstraction.

The composite Congressman is proportionate to his cranium. He is a big, full, well-rounded, masterful man. He would not long be a Congressman were he not. He congregates en masse at Washington and legislates for the 90,000,000. He is their sort of man, and his mistakes are their mistakes. He is the best product that the 392 districts can turn out. The only way to improve upon him is to improve the ideals of the constituents. Then if there are better men in their districts they will be elected. But today the people are getting what they want. The men in the present Congress are more than representative—they are in a general sense the ideals of the people.

WILLIAM ATHERTON DU PUY.

END OF OLD PORK RATIO

Alfalfa Pasture Wrecks the Ancient 10-to-1 Valuation of the Fattened Hog.

THE PIG A PROFITABLE PRODUCT

Porkers Never So High and Likely to Be Higher Yet—Farmers Scorn the Price of Corn.

Another ratio once held sacred in the middle west has gone to join in the limbo of the dead the belief that 16 to 1 was just right as between silver and gold and also that the price of wheat was indissolubly linked with that of silver. The third one to depart was the 10 to 1 ratio between the price of hogs and the price of corn, says a writer in the New York Sun.

For a good many years it was figured that in order to come out even the man who fattened hogs for market must get 5 cents a pound when corn was selling at 50 cents, 6 cents when corn was 60, and so on. Experiment has demonstrated that with corn at 50 cents and a big lot of alfalfa ready at hand to be judiciously fed the growing porkers a pound of pork will cost about 3½ cents.

In view of the fact that hogs have been bringing $7.25 at the home market and have been both higher and lower within a dollar range for more than a year, some light may be thrown upon the exodus of the dollars from the city to the farm in contradistinction to the exodus of the farmers' children from the farm to the city.

The average hog ready for market weighs about 220 pounds. At $7.40 a hundred this means nearly $16 for each animal. Most of these are raised as a side line on farms and on ranches, following cattle, where they are almost a clear profit, but on the hog ranches as high as 5,000 are marketed a year, but half that number is nearer the average. Some hogs go as high as $30. Selling an animal for $16 that cost to raise only about $8 or $9 is a very profitable business, especially if one can market 2,000 hogs a year. Some of the big packing concerns are engaged in hog raising on a large scale, not only in order to get two profits but to keep their establishments running when there is a shortage of shipments.

Much of the new money in hogs comes from alfalfa. Tests showing the feeding values prove that alfalfa is worth 45 per cent more than timothy, and one acre of it will pasture thirty hogs for six months.

The United States is the largest producer of hogs in the world. Americans are essentially a pork-eating people. About 40 per cent of the world's hogs are marketed in this country and more pork is produced here than in Russia, Germany and Austria combined. Early maturity has had a great deal to do with increase in pork eating. The packers are calling all the time for young hogs to slaughter, just as they want beef cattle that mature early. The eighteen-month-old hog, once the staple of the market, is being pushed out by the six-month feeder, and farmers were quick to see that it was poor business to feed a hog for the longer period when he got a better price, pound for pound, for those fed from four to six months.

Hogs get clean sleeping places every night. In feeding pens one often finds a system of pipes that carry the water and liquid food from a central place of deposit in quantities sufficient to nourish and so distribute it that there is no overfeeding. Some of the most modern hog pens are provided with a patented trough that does not permit the pig to be so ill-mannered as to put his feet into the trough at any time.

Up till as late as four or five years ago cholera, the deadliest enemy to profitable hog-raising, was deemed incurable. The scientists have studied long over the problem and in most localities they have convinced the older and stubborn advocates of the theory that cholera could not be cured or prevented that they have found the germ, as well as a way to kill it and prevent contamination. As a result a good many hog-cholera mixture firms that did a thriving business for years are winking out after a career the scientists say was profitable mostly to themselves.

The Redemption of David Corson

By CHARLES FREDERIC GOSS

Copyright, 1900, by The Bowen-Merrill Company. All Rights Reserved

CHAPTER XXIV.

At last—the springtime came!

The potent energy of the sun opened all the myriad veins of the great trees, wakened the hibernating creatures of the dens and burrows from their protracted sleep, caused the seeds to swell and burst in the bosom of earth, and sent the blood coursing through David's veins, quickening all his intellectual and spiritual powers.

And then, the end of his exile was near! In a few weeks he would have vindicated the purity of his purpose to attain the divine life, and have proved himself worthy to claim the hand of Pepeeta!

All the winter long he had plied his axe. Once more, now that the snow had vanished, he set fire to the debris which he had strewn around him, and saw with an indescribable feeling of triumph and delight the open soil made ready for his plow. He yoked a team of patient oxen to it and set the sharp point deep into the black soil. Never had the earth smelled so sweet as now when the broad share threw it back in a continuously advancing wave. Never had that yeoman's joy of hearing the ripping of roots and the grating of iron against stones as the great oxen settled to their work, strained in their yokes and dragged the plow point through the bosom of the earth, been half so genuine and deep. It was good to be alive, to sleep, to eat, to toil! Cities had lost their charm. David's sin was no longer a withering and blasting, but a chastening and restraining memory. His clearing was a kingdom, his cabin a palace, and he was soon to have a queen! He had reserved his sowing for the last day of his self-imposed seclusion, which ended with the month of May.

On the day following, having accomplished his vow, he would go to the house of God and claim his bride! This day he would devote to that solemn function of scattering the sacred seed of life's chief support into the open furrow!

No wonder a feeling of devotion and awe came upon him as he prepared himself for his task; for perhaps there is not a single act in the whole economy of life better calculated to stir a thoughtful mind to its profoundest depths than the sowing of those golden grains which have within them the promise and potency of life. Year after year, century after century, millions of men have gone forth in the light of the all-beholding and life-giving sun to cast into the bosom of the earth the sustenance of their children! It is a sublime act of faith, and this sacrifice of a present for a future good, an actual for a potential blessing, is no less beautiful and holy because familiar and old. The Divine Master himself could not contemplate it without emotion and was inspired by it to the utterance of one of his grandest parables.

And then the field itself inspired solemn reflections and noble pride in the mind of the sower. It was his own! He had carved it out of a wilderness! Here was soil which had never been opened to the daylight. Here was ground which perhaps for a thousand, and not unlikely for ten thousand years, should send forth seed to the sower; and he had cleared it with his own hands! Generations and centuries after he should have died and been forgotten, men would go forth into this field as he was doing to-day, to sow their seed and reap their harvests.

He slung his bag of grain over his shoulder and stepped forth from his cabin at the dawn of day. The clearing he had made was an almost perfect circle. All around it were the green walls of the forest with the great trunks of the beeches, white and symmetrical, standing like vast Corinthian columns supporting a green frieze upon which rested the lofty roof of the immense cathedral. From the organ-loft the music of the morning breeze resounded, and from the choirs the sweet antiphonals of birds. Odors of pine, of balsam, of violets, of peppermint, of fresh-plowed earth, of bursting life, were wafted across the vast nave from transept to transept, and floated like incense up to heaven.

The priest, about to offer his sacrifice, the sacrifice of a broken heart and contrite spirit, about to confess his faith; in the beautiful and symbolic act of sacrificing the present for the future, stepped forth into the open furrow.

His open countenance, bronzed with the sun, was lighted with love and adoration; his lips smiled; his eyes glowed; he lifted them to the heavens in an unspoken prayer for the benediction of the great life-giver; he drew into his nostrils the sweet odors, into his lungs the pure air, into his soul the beauty and glory of the world, and then, filling his hand with the golden grain, he flung it into the bosom of the waiting earth.

All day long he strode across the clearing and with rhythmical swinging of his brawny arm lavishly scattered the golden grain.

As the sun went down and the sower neared the conclusion of his labor, his emotions became deeper and yet more deep. He entered more and more fully into the true spirit and significance of his act. He felt that it was a sacrament. Thoughts of the operation of the mighty energies which he was evoking; of the Divine spirit who brooded over all; of the coming into this wilderness of the woman who was to be the good angel of his life; of the ceremony that was to be enacted in the little meeting house; of the work to which he was dedicated in the future, kindled his soul into an ecstasy of joy. He ceased to be conscious of his present task. The material world loosened its hold upon his senses. His thoughts became riveted upon the elements of that spiritual universe that lay within and around him, and that seemed uncovered to his view as to the apostle of old. "Whether he was in the body, or out of the body, he could not tell!" Finally he ceased to move; his hand was arrested and hung poised in mid-air with the unscattered seed in its palm; his eyes were fixed on some invisible object and he stood as he had stood when we first caught sight of him in the half-plowed meadow—lost in a trance.

How long he stood he never knew, but he was wakened, at last, as it was natural and fitting he should be.

Fulfilling her agreement to come and bring him home on the eve of their wedding day, Pepeeta emerged like a beautiful apparition from an opening in the green wall of the great cathedral. She saw David standing immovable in the furrow. For a few moments she was absorbed in admiration of the grace and beauty of the noble and commanding figure, and then she was thrilled with the consciousness that she possessed the priceless treasure of his love. But these emotions were followed by a holy awe as she discovered that the soul of her lover was filled with religious ecstasy. She felt that the place whereon she stood was holy ground, and reverently awaited the emergence of the worshiper from the holy of holies into which he had withdrawn for prayer.

But the rapture lasted long and it was growing late. The shadows from the summits of the hills had already crept across the clearing and were silently ascending the trunks of the trees on the eastern side. It was time for them to go. She took a step toward him, and then another, moving slowly, reverently, and touched him on the arm. He started. The half-closed hand relaxed and the seed fell to the ground, the dreamer woke and descended from the heaven of the spiritual world into that of the earthly, the heart of a pure and noble woman.

"I have come," she said, simply.

He took her in his arms and kissed her.

"Thee is not through yet?"

"So it seems! I must have lost myself."

"I think thee rather found thyself."

"Perhaps I did; but I must finish my labor. It will never do for me to let my visions supplant my tasks. They will be hurtful, save as incentives to toil. I must be careful!"

"Let me help thee. There are only a few more furrows. I am sure that I can sow," she said, extending her hand.

He placed some of the seed in her apron and she trudged by his side, laughing at her awkwardness but laboring with all her might. Her lover took her hand in his and showed her how to cast the seed, and so they labored together until every furrow was filled. It was dark when they were done. They lingered a little while to put the cabin in order, and then turned their faces towards the old farmhouse.

"It was here," Pepeeta said, as they approached the little bridge, "that we met each other and yielded our hearts to love."

"And met again after our tragedy and our suffering, to find that love is eternal," David added.

They stood for a few moments in silence, recalling that bitter past, and then the man of many sins and sorrows said, "Give me thy hand, Pepeeta. How small it seems in mine. Let me fold thee in my arms; it makes my heart bound to feel thee there! We have walked over rough roads together, and the path before us may not be always smooth. We have tasted the bitter cup between us, and there may still be dregs at the bottom. It is hard to believe that after all the wrong we have done we can still be happy. God is surely good! It seems to me that we must have our feet on the right path." He paused for a moment and then continued:

"I have brought thee many sorrows, sweetheart."

"And many joys."

"I mean to bring thee some in the future. The love I bear thee now is different from that of the past. I cannot wait until to-morrow to pledge thee my troth! Listen!"

She did so, gazing up into his face with dark eyes in which the light of the moon was reflected as in mountain lakes. There was something in them which filled his heart with unutterable emotion, and his words hung quivering upon his lips.

"Speak, my love, for I am listening," she said.

"I cannot," he replied.

(The end.)

EUSAPIA PALADINO SPIRITUALIST

Commonplace to the point of downright stupidity, uncultured, illiterate and ill-tempered, Mme. Eusapia Paladino is the last person on earth with whom one would associate spiritual or supernormal powers. Yet this Italian peasant woman is known the world over as "the despair of science." Men like to be deceived but not learned men. Oddly enough, it is just this class of thinkers whom Mme. Paladino has completely puzzled and in many cases convinced. "Princess of Darkness" is but one of the many terms applied to the famous medium, and those who were her fellow passengers on an Atlantic liner solemnly and impressively swear, singly and collectively, that no human being ever bore that title more deservedly.

The story of that trip across the Atlantic is no fairy tale, no collection of airy imaginings, but the honest statement made by every passenger—of as harrowing an experience as ever fell to the lot of human beings. At first it was not known to any one on the boat, besides the members of her family, who accompanied her, that Mme. Paladino was a passenger. It wasn't long, however, before Dr. Eduardo Oreti, the ship's Italian doctor, suspected the truth, and the woman was questioned as to her identity. Of course, when the news spread a seance was at once demanded. Seance followed seance, and at each her powers were displayed to such an extent that many of the more nervous passengers were literally overcome with horror. If ghostly arms appearing from tenantless berths, a ghastly hand drifting across a ship's state-room, and spirit kisses brushing the cheeks lightly but with startling certainty, were quite sufficient to chill the blood of the most ardent scoffers on the ship, can it be wondered at that the women were reduced to a state of nervous collapse?

"I called for my mother," said one man upon his arrival in New York, "and felt a light embrace. I felt distinctly the sign of the cross placed upon me—tapping, you know, at my forehead, breast, and right and left shoulders. This was repeated. Then I felt a kiss, and two slight pressures on my cheeks as of a pair of lips brushing me. Then a head appeared over my shoulder. I do not want ever to witness such an exhibition again."

During all of these strange demonstrations Mme. Paladino was, apparently, in a trance, her body stiffened and her eyes closed. Each of her hands were held and her feet were accounted for by the persons who sat on either side of her. Many, in fact, most, of those who crossed with the medium are still skeptical in regard to spiritualism and spirits, but each one, upon being questioned, has said that he, or she would not for any consideration go through with such an ordeal again.

According to Lombroso, from the time Eusapia Paladino was a little girl she had manifestations, either mediumistic or hallucinatory, whichever they were, without being at all able to explain them to herself—such as hearing raps on pieces of furniture on which she was leaving, having her clothes or the bed covers stripped from her in the night, and seeing ghosts or apparitions. As she grew up she developed wonderful powers as a medium and for years that "business" has been her sole occupation. Men have called her a trickster of the deepst dye, but that some of her "tricks" are beyond all human explanation every one who has witnessed them admits.

The American visit of the medium is to be in no sense a moneymaking scheme for any one but Mme. Paladino. The funds necessary to reimburse her for her services have been raised by subscription.

The list of American scientists who, it is stated, will form a committee of investigation include President Stanley Hall, of Clark University; Prof. Hugo Von Meunsterberg, of Harvard; Dr. Morton Prince, of Boston, editor of the Journal of Abnormal Psychology; Dr. Charles L. Dana, the alienist; Prof. William James, Dr. Edward S. Pickering, professor of astronomy at Harvard; Dr. Charles F. Minot, of the Harvard Medical School; Dean William R. Newbold, of the University of Pennsylvania; Dr. R. W. Wood, professor of physics of Johns Hopkins; Dr. Joseph Jastrow, professor of psychology of the University of Wisconsin; Dr. Robert Kennedy Duncan, professor of physics and chemistry in the University of Kansas; Prof. Trowbridge, of Princeton, and Dr. D. S. Miller, professor of philosophy at Columbia.

Papa's Portion.

Everybody works poor father!
He sits 'round all day.
Eyebrows blue with bother
Over the bills to pay.
Works without cessation
Trying to save his vest—
They get— { a swell vacation, the titivation, the education,
Father gets the "rest."
—Lippincott's Magazine.

Precedent.

"Will that young man ever go home?" demanded the irritated head of the house.

"I guess so, father," replied the mater familias. "He always has gone."—Washington Herald.

The Application.

Unto those who talk and talk
This proverb should appeal:
The steam that blows the whistle
Will never turn the wheel.
—Chicago News.

A Sign.

Whenever you hear people referring to any one as "an original genius" you may be sure that they are prepared to make excuses for him.—Chicago Record-Herald.

With Others.

There was a young person named Ted;
Automobiles had gone to his head;
Wreathed in gasoline smiles,
He sped thousands of miles,
And he'll probably scorch when he's dead.
—Lillian Russell.

COOK'S WIFE MAY SEEK DIVORCE.

MRS. F. A. COOK AND DAUGHTERS, HELEN (AT LEFT) AND RUTH.

Mrs. Frederick A. Cook is reported to have engaged a lawyer to institute divorce proceedings against the Arctic explorer. Mrs. R. O. Stebbins, Mrs. Cook's closest friend, disclosed the crisis in the family. "Dr. Cook," said Mrs. Stebbins, "is considerably indebted to his wife for money advanced during the several years of their married life. When Dr. Cook made money out of his recent lectures she wished to be reimbursed. From all I have learned he did not give her any of this money." Before her last marriage Mrs. Cook was Mrs. Marien Hunt, widow of a Philadelphia surgeon. She married Cook six years ago.

ATCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS.

It is easy to show another man his painful duty.

It is fortunate that not all people guilty of contempt of court show it.

Every man is a reformer until reform tramps on his toes. Then how he yells.

A good many important events occur in the course of a year, but very few of them originate in a mass meeting.

When you hear anyone say, "I like cold weather," take a second look, and you will find the speaker is young.

Tell a woman a truth so palpable she cannot deny it and she will say: "Now you are trying to be sarcastic."

Usually a man does not have time to work on his own scheme, he is bothered so much by other schemers.

We wish the Bible readers would investigate and report: Did Job blame the troubles that befell him on his wife?

PROVERBS OF PEOPLE.

One learns by suffering.—French.

Each person for his own skin.—Turkish.

Oil and truth will get uppermost at last.—Italian.

He that wants hope is the poorest man alive.—Irish.

The corruption of the best becomes the worst.—Latin.

He that will not be counseled cannot be helped.—French.

SPLINTERS.

Hard-headed—Goats.

Leads a fast life—The convict.

The cheap kind of talk is cheap.

The gardener always does considerable patchwork.

All the world is a stage and every man wants to be in the limelight.

Boyce—Did Smith build his house on rocks? Joyce—No; on credit.

Man never sees any clouds in the sky when he is looking into the future.

Touching Verse.

At first she touches up her hair
To see if it's in place
And then with manner debonnair
She touches up her face.
A touch to curls behind her ear,
A touch to silken collar,
And then she's off to hubby dear—
To touch him for a dollar.
—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Good-By, John.

"Old Moneybags says that if I will marry him he will make me a present of a lovely automobile."

"But what will become of Jack?"

"I will give Jack up for the present."
—Houston Post.

Appealing.

"There are no birds in the last year's nest!"
But sympathy to win
This fact much more appeals to us:
No coal in this year's bin.
—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Moisture.

"Does your wife cry when she gets angry?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Meekton. "It isn't the heat of her temper that distresses me so much as the humidity."
—Washington Star.

Mixing Baby.

Baby's in the ice-cream freezer,
Willie turns the crank to squeeze her.
Ma says: "Dear, the way that's fixed You'll have that child completely mixed."
—Life

SURE ENOUGH WAYBACKERS.

Scotchmen Who Still Believe in the Return of the Stuarts.

According to Harry Lauder there are people in Scotland beside whom the man who still votes for Andrew Jackson is as a little child, the New York Morning Telegraph says. Imagine folk of the present year and generation being still loyal to the long-departed Stuarts, and still hoping to see them on the British throne—and yet Harry ran across some of them only last summer.

The comedian says that he spent a couple of weeks exploring the old glens and hills of northern Scotland and penetrated into regions where tourists were never seen before. At last, cooped in a little dell called Glen Larchie, he found a little knot of highlanders, who paid their taxes with reluctance, growled and glowered at the name of the king and asked Harry if he had any news from the "king across the water." Mr. Lauder, who, like all Scots, knows well that "the king across the water" is the highland term for a Stuart, explained that there was nothing doing in the line of a restoration, but the people of Glen Larchie wouldn't have it so.

"Mon, mon," said one old patriarch of the glen, "ye are prejudiced. It canna be lang noo before the king shall come to his ain and a' true highlanders shall sing doon wi' the Sassenach. And then, mon, they wha hae been loyal and true shall come ta guid reward, and they wha hae been traitors a' these years shall ken the vengeance o' Culloden!" And the old gentleman tapped the scabbard of a long-rusted broadsword with such emphasis that Harry was glad to escape and make his way hurriedly out of Glen Larchie, where the folk still love a Stuart king.

In the sandy deserts of Arabia, whirling winds sometimes excavate pits 200 feet in depth and extending down to the harder stratum on which the bed rests.

FEBRUARY

0466

L1134

DeKalb County Herald

A. S. POWERS, Editor and Publisher

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

ONE YEAR, $1.50 SIX MONTHS, 75c THREE MONTHS, 40c

The Herald is entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, Butler, Indiana

It May Be Pneumonia

"A hard chill, pain through the chest, difficult breathing. Then fever, with great prostration." If this should be your experience, send for your doctor. You may have pneumonia! If your doctor cannot come at once, give Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. When he comes, tell him exactly what you have done. Then do as he says. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Keep the bowels in good condition. One of Ayer's Pills at bedtime will cause an increased flow of bile, and produce a gentle laxative effect the day following.

Editorial Notes

Agreed

According to President Taft the postal deficit was $17,000,000. "This deficit," says the president, "is due to the insufficient revenue from second-class matter and the expense of the rural free delivery system."

"The president is correct," says the railroad magnate who receives from the government 800 per cent more per pound for hauling the mails than he charges for hauling express.

"The president is correct," says the manager of the express company, who draws a dividend of 300 per cent on his stock, and would draw more if the periodical postage rate were higher.

"The president is correct," says the government official whose department sends millions of pounds of matter through the mails free of charge.

So far as we have heard, however, these are about the only people who agree with the president's findings.

Itch Relieved at Once

That terrible itch disappears with the FIRST DROPS of a simple compound of oil of wintergreen, thymol and glycerine mixed in D. D. D. Prescription. This soothing, healing lotion, used externally kills the eczema germ instantly.

Heretofore the D. D. D. remedy has been sold only in $1.00 bottles; but as a special offer, any sufferer in this town who has never tried D. D. D. can now try this remedy in a special bottle at 25c. It cures the itch instantly. We KNOW this. Stone's Drug Store, Butler, Ind.

To Fight Mail Order Houses

Declaring that the mail order houses and particularly those in Chicago, are in a fair way to ruin the country by destroying the cities and villages, the Michigan Knights of the Grip, in their convention declared war on the firms that sell their goods through the medium of Uncle Sam's postoffice department. The resolution says:

"We consider that, if done along logical lines, through common sense and good reasoning, consumers should be informed that the value of their farms depends to a certain extent on the nearness of the farms to a good live town and that any agricultural town depends for its prosperity on the support of consumers.

"Further the consumers should be educated to the fact that a continual support of mail order houses means the annihilation of the hustling villages and towns which on an average today pay about 30 per cent of all taxes. If they succeed in destroying these towns and villages the consumer must pay this extra tax and charge it, pro rata, to the cost of mail order goods."—Ex.

Staggers Skeptics

That a clean, nice, fragrant compound like Bucklen's Arnica Salve will instantly relieve a bad burn, cut, scald, wound or piles, staggers skeptics. But great cures prove its a wonderful healer of the worst sores, ulcers, boils, felons eczema, skin eruptions, as also chapped hands, sprains and corns. Try it. 25c at Stone's drug store. 5-1m

Ladies shampoo and massage. First class barber work and baths. West side Broadway, Tomlinson's old stand. Give us a call. M. J. Harrigan, Prop.

CHILDREN

In disorders and diseases of children drugs seldom do good and often do harm.

Careful feeding and bathing are the babies' remedies.

Scott's Emulsion

is the food-medicine that not only nourishes them most, but also regulates their digestion. It is a wonderful tonic for children of all ages. They rapidly gain weight and health on small doses.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send 10c., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each bank contains a Good Luck Penny.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., N. Y.

A Matter of "Collective Wisdom"

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, a thick-and-thin republican paper, warns all surgents to beware. It says:

"Everybody who remembers the schisms which have taken place in the republican party, or who has read about them, knows the unhappy fate which befell most of their participants. The lesson ought not to be lost on anybody whose recollection goes back to 1896, to say nothing of the previous insurrections. Let all the dissidents of 1910, remember that the collective wisdom of the republican party is greater than that of any of its members, or that of any dozen or score of them."

But the trouble with the republicans just now is that they do not know what is the republican party. There are two (at least two) pieces of it, and the "collective wisdom" of each piece is at odds with the other. In Indiana the "collective wisdom" of the two factions cannot be reconciled, and up to the present time neither faction knows for sure which it is that in the end must endure the "unhappy fate" that is in store for somebody. As treason is only odious when it fails it seems to be up to the insurgents to make good or retire from the fray, unwept, unhonored and unsung.

Mrs. Wheeles, Freetown, Ind.

Women get run down without knowing just what is the matter with them, and doctors don't seem to understand their case. Mrs. Isabelle Wheeler, Freetown, Ind., was nervous and debilitated and could find no help until she took Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and that cured her. She says people came to her for miles around to ask what medicine she took that did her so much good. This remedy is absolutely guaranteed to do what is claimed, and if you want to try it before buying, send your address for a free sample bottle to Pepsin Syrup Co., 119 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1 a bottle. 5-1m

As to "Faithful Custodians"

It is the president's apparent impression that the true friends and faithful custodians of the Roosevelt-Taft policies are Aldrich and Cannon.—Indianapolis Star (Rep.)

If it were thought worth while someone might ask what the "Roosevelt-Taft policies" are. What the country knows is that Mr. Taft approved the Aldrich-Cannon tariff bill and said it was "the best tariff law ever enacted." He also favors the ship subsidy grab and apparently the central bank scheme, both of which are fathered by Aldrich and Cannon. Both Cannon and Aldrich have stood by Mr. Taft in the Ballinger-Pinchot row, which seems to be some sort of policy, and both of them agree with his opinions concerning "solidarity" and the insurgents. Both of them also will hold up his hands on the matter of withholding patronage from the "rebels." Altogether, there seems to be pretty thorough agreement between the president and Aldrich and Cannon on many things, whether they are "Taft-Roosevelt policies" or some other kind.

DANGER IN DELAY

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Butler People to Neglect

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Butler.

W. S. Chapman, Cherry Street, Butler, Ind., says: "I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Phillips' drug store and they have always brought the best of results. I was subject to attacks of backache for several years and often when I stooped sharp pains suddenly darted through my kidneys, making it almost impossible for me to straighten. This trouble was generally worse after I caught cold and at such times I was in great distress. When Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me, I at once began their use and in return for the benefit they brought, I am pleased to endorse them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. 4-2

HERALD ADVERTISING BRINGS RESULTS. TRY IT.

INTERESTING TRIP BY F. W. SWANTUSCH

I presume the readers of this paper have given up ever seeing the Yellowstone trip written by me. I would have liked to abandon the same had I not promised to do so as have found it to be a much greater task than I had anticipated it to be. For the benefit of those who have never heard or read of Yellowstone park I will give a short introduction.

The park is 62 miles long and 54 miles wide, almost square, and is located in Montana, Idaho and Wyoming, lying mainly in the last named state, and is largely covered with dense timber. It lies among the Rocky mountains, the average elevation is over 7,000 feet and is a land of perpetual charm. It contains more amazing phenomena and more freaks of nature than any other locality on earth. The tourist travels a circuit of 146 miles through that world-famed section and becomes so absorbed with strange wonders wrought by Nature's infinite hands that he seems a child again gazing into the silent night trying to solve the mysteries of the (Milky Way) that singular trail among the stars. Here is an area of 3,348 square miles. Nature has crowded more marvelous phenomena than in any other region in the world—mountains, plains and streams, boiling springs and frying pans, seething craters and hissing jets, steaming rivers from realms of fire, hills and vales of forest and meadows, geysers gushing high in the air, lakes and canyons that rival all the charms of Switzerland are some of the sights that lured so many thousands of tourists from all parts of the globe to this amazing region who have given it the name "The Wonderland of the World." The park is governed by rules and regulations of the Department of the Interior and is presided over by a superintendent who has his headquarters at Fort Yellowstone which is in the park. Under his command are four troops of U. S. Cavalry for the purpose of protecting all park property and the interests of all visitors and arresting all violators of park rules. No firearms are allowed to be carried or used in the park. This accounts for the wild animals being so gentle as no one is allowed to shoot or chase them.

Arriving at Gardiner by N. P. R. R. we now take a three seated coach in which we drive the entire trip through the park (146 miles). We start on road to Mammoth Hot Springs. This road has an elevation of 200 feet to the mile along Gardiner river, such a wild mountain stream that its dashing rivers as a good index to the succession of great surprises all along the journey. No doubt you have all heard the expression made "you can't believe anything you hear and only half what you see," and that is surely demonstrated along on this road. At one point to gaze ahead it looked as if we were driving down hill, turn and glanced to the side of the road there the water was running in the direction which seemed to be up hill. I first thought it was in my eyes alone, but I spoke to the driver and another tourist and asked how it looked to them and they saw it the same as I did, and since coming home I have spoken to people who went through the park and they say the same thing I have never heard of anyone being able to explain this false signt. A few miles drive brings us up to Mammoth Hot Springs, which is the headquarters for the officials of the park, Fort Yellowstone being located here. A few minutes drive brings us up to Liberty Cap, a strange rock. After passing Devil's Thumb, a similar freak near by, we come to Queen of all Terraces Minerva. This is a perfect charm, being almost white as snow and moulded with such symmetry and beauty that one imagines at first that it is the work of skilled hands rather than the result of playful chance in the mountain wilds with water, heat and shifting sediment. How simply formed, and yet how amazing in its beauty. Hot Springs, a little way back, laden with sediment white as snow, pour their waters incessantly over this spot, leaving behind a deposit which has solidified and formed into the most exquisite terraced ground that eyes have ever seen. This with pulpit, Angel, Jupiter and Cleopatra terraces nearby, all formed in the same manner but of various colors, form such an imposing sight that "terrace land" seems more appropriate than Mammoth Hot Springs. A jaunt of two miles more upon our journey brings us up to Silver Gate which is the entrance to a region of solemn gray rocks known as Hoodoos. Over a space of twenty acres these dismal monuments of silence thick as forest trees and standing high as 300 feet, present a grim spectacle indeed. So weird and solemn is this place that the mind reverts to days of spooks, specters, hobgoblins and ghosts. Twenty acres of this singular formation of gray rocks thrown so closely together with no trees or grass among them, and fashioned odd figures of every kind known to reality and imagination, present a sight not only unique but impressive in the solemn silence that prevades this region. Passing out of hoodoo land through Golden Gate canyon (here the wind blew the fiercest of any place in the park, it seems to come down the canyon and at this point there is a small opening between two high mountains) we had to close our eyes coming around the bend as it seemed to pick up the gravel on the road and blow it into our faces. We drive by Rustic Falls into a beautiful plateau known as Swan Lake Flat. This is a little valley with an elevation of over 7,000 feet. From this point we see the following prominent peaks: Electric, little Quadrant, large Quadrant, Mt. Dome, Anther's Peak and Mt. Holmes, all huddled closely together. Another point of interest is Three Rivers Peak, whose rain and melted snows are the sources of the Madison, Gardiner and Gallatin rivers. A short drive across the flat brings us to the first local camp, Willow Creek. Here we drive one and one-half miles off the main road to a unique sight, Sheep Eaters Cliff. This is composed of almost perpendicular columns of rock lying against one another very much resembling the Giant's Causeway, a world renowned curiosity between England and Ireland. Sheep Eaters Cliff is the only formation in the world which is similar to the Giant's Causeway in appearance. Returning to Willow Creek camp we commenced our five and one half days camp life. Supper was awaiting us and every one seemed to have a splendid appetite and enjoy the meal. We had arrived but a short time when some one said there was a bear near by, so I took my kodak to get a snap of him, but when I got close enough to him he grabbed a chunk of meat out of the garbage pile and away he went. This camping ground is located in a beautiful pine grove near Willow Creek which is filled with speckled trout. Starting out on second days trip the cook wagon, tent wagon and the balance of camping outfit started ahead of us so as to have meals ready and tent pitched when we arrived. We had an 8x10 tent with two iron portable beds assigned to us with plenty of comfortables and blankets to keep warm in the high altitude.

(Coutinued next week.)

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

The Cause of Colds

Good Advice Regarding the Prevention of Coughs and Colds

If people would only fortify and strengthen the system, the majority of cases of coughs, colds and pneumonia might be avoided. These troubles are frequently due to weakness, which produces a catarrhal condition of the mucous membrane, which is an internal skin of the body. When this skin is weakened it becomes easily infected with germs which cause many of the diseases to which flesh is heir. Healthy mucous membranes are essential safeguards of the body's general health.

An excellent aid in the prevention of coughs, colds, pneumonia, and such like infectious diseases, is a remedy that will prevent or cure catarrh.

We have a remedy which we honestly believe to be unsurpassed in excellence for the prevention of coughs, colds and all catarrhal conditions. It is the prescription of a famous physician, who has an enviable reputation of thirty years of cures gained through the use of this formula. We promise to make no charge for the medicine should it fail to do as we claim. We urge everybody who has need of such a medicine to try Rexall Mucu-Tone.

It stands to reason that we could not afford to make such statements and give our own personal guarantee to this remedy if we were not prepared to prove the reasonableness of our claim in every particular, and we see no reason why anyone should hesitate to accept our offer and try it. We have two sizes of Rexall Mucu-Tone, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Sometimes a 50 cent bottle is sufficient to give marked relief. As a general thing the most chronic case is relieved with an average of three large bottles. You can obtain Rexall Remedies in Butler only at our store—The Rexall Store. Geo. W. Geddes. 1t

Life on Panama Canal

has had one frightful drawback malaria trouble that has brought suffering and death to thousands. The germs cause chills, fever and ague, billiousness jaundice, lassitude, weakness and general debility. But Electric Bitters never fail to destroy them and cure malaria troubles. "Three bottles completely cured me of a very severe attack of malaria," writes Wm. A. Fretwell, of Lucama, N. C., "and I've had good health ever since." Cure Stomach, Liver and Kidney Troubles, and prevent Typhoid. 50c. Guaranteed by Stone's drug store. 5-1m

Feb. 4, 1910.

Dear Sir:

You will be interested to know that I have just received my 1910 Spring and Summer Samples and Styles.

My line represents the best product of the foremost woolen mills, both in this country and abroad, while the styles I show are up to the minute and consist of the eastern and western fashions.

If you are anticipating having either a Suit, Trousers or Spring Top Coat made this season, I am ready to serve your wants. Come in at your earliest convenience, so as to avoid the annual Easter rush. I guarantee to give you satisfaction in fit and workmanship, and to do as well or better by you than any other merchant tailor handling A No. 1 goods could expect to do.

Awaiting an early visit to examine my line, and soliciting your continuous patronage, I remain

Yotrs sincerely,

OTT GROFF,

The Tailor

One door south of Post Office.

P. S.--We also do Cleaning, Pressing and Repairing.

Eat What

You want of the food you need Kodol will digest it.

You need a sufficient amount of good wholesome food and more than this you need to fully digest it.

Else you can't gain strength, nor can you strengthen your stomach if it is weak.

You must eat in order to live and maintain strength.

You must not diet, because the body requires that you eat a sufficient amount of food regularly.

But this food must be digested, and it must be digested thoroughly.

When the stomach can't do it, you must take something that will help the stomach.

The proper way to do is to eat what you want, and let Kodol digest the food.

Nothing else can do this. When the stomach is weak it needs help; you must help it by giving it rest, and Kodol will do that.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today, and purchase a dollar bottle, and if you can honestly say, that you did not receive any benefits from it, after using the entire bottle, the druggist will refund your money to you without question or delay.

We will pay the druggist the price of the bottle purchased by you.

This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family.

We could not afford to make such an offer, unless we positively knew what Kodol will do for you.

It would bankrupt us.

The dollar bottle contains 2½ times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is made at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

SOLD AT GEDDES' DRUGSTORE

Used the World over

No other article of human food has ever received such emphatic commendation for purity, usefulness and wholesomeness from the most eminent authorities.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Royal has always received the highest award when exhibited or tested in competition

LUCKY IMITATION.

An Experience With the Russian Autocrat Marshal Gourko.

Marshal Gourko, the famous Russian general, was a terrible autocrat. On one occasion an impersonator of celebrated men was performing at a theater in Odessa. One evening he received a mysterious message, which read, "Study General Gourko." In Russia it is better not to inquire into matters that one does not understand, and so the artist spent an hour in privately impersonating the autocratic Russian.

Just as the evening performance was about to commence an order of arrest signed by Gourko was presented to the impersonator, and without explanation he was led through the streets to the marshal's palace and into an apartment where the terrible man was seated. "They tell me that you impersonate celebrated men," he roared. "Impersonate me!"

Giving a hasty look at Gourko, the performer turned to the mirror to "make up." It was an anxious time, for if the marshal should take exception to the representation he had unlimited power to inflict punishment. The impersonator dragged himself together and turned to the marshal a copy of his own face and overbearing manner. Gourko burst into a roar of laughter, and the dangerous moment was over.

Notice to Non-Residents

State of Indiana, DeKalb County, ss:

In the DeKalb circuit court, March term, 1910, Anna Inhoof and Bertha Creager, Benjamin McDonald is Butler, Indiana; Hannah Sherwood, Ivan Mathews and Silas Mathews, Angola, Indiana; Alice Mathews, Terre Haute, Indiana; that the residence upon diligent inquiry is unknown of the defendants Charles Mathews, Sarrah Updike, Sarah Manahan, Mary Mathews, Albina Mathews, Henry Mathews, Amelia Mathews, Benjamin Mathews, Anna Carey, Elnora Toner, Martha J. Miller, S. Bruce Miller, whose true christian name to plaintiff is unknown; Oliver Hershiser, Sarah L. Hershiser, Oliver F. Hershiser, Jacob Landis, Leonard Shull, Jacob Shull.

The children, descendants and heirs, the surviving spouse, the creditors and administrators of the estate, the devisees, legatees, and trustees of the last will and testament and the successors in interest respectively of each of the following named and designated deceased persons, to-wit:

Martha J. Miller, S. Bruce Miller, whose true christian name to plaintiff is unknown, Oliver Hershiser, Sarah L. Hershiser, Oliver F. Hershiser, Jacob Landis, Leonard Shull, Jacob Shull.

The children, descendants and heirs, the surviving spouse, the creditors and administrators of the estate, the devisees, legatees, trustees and executors of the last will and testament and the successors in interest respectively of the deceased widow of each of the following named and designated deceased persons, to-wit: S. Bruce Miller, whose true christian name to plaintiff is unknown, Oliver Hershiser, Oliver F. Hershiser, Jacob Landis, Leonard Shull, Jacob Shull.

All of the women once known by any of the names and designations above stated who may have changed their names and who are not known by some other name, the names of whom are unknown to plaintiff.

The spouses of all the persons above named and designated as defendants to this action who are married, the names of whom are unknown to plaintiff are hereby notified that an action has been commenced against them in said court, to quiet title, release mortgage and sell real estate by Frank Creager executor of the last will and testament of Sarah Casey deceased, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 21st day of March, 1910, being the 13th juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences the 7th day of March, 1910.

Witness, the clerk of said court, this 19th day of January, 1910.

W. A. AUSTIN, Clerk.

E. B. DUNTEN, Plaintiff's Atty 3-4

Butler's New Cigar

Red Star

A PLEASANT SMOKE

For Sale by Dealers and at the Factory

TRY ONE

And Help a Home Industry

W. H. GRINDLE, Manufact'r

TRANSFERS OF DEKALB COUNTY REAL ESTATE

For two weeks ending January 29, 1910, by Charles O. Borst, abstracter:

Keyser Township—Frank Ashley to W. Rugman, s w ¼, sec. 25, $1400.

Curtis Eckhart to J. B. Mager & W. H. Coffinberry, part s e ¼, sec. 26, $2200.

B. A. Simon et al to W. H. Root part e ½ s w ¼ & s w ¼ & part w ½ s w ¼, sec 31, $6000.

W. H. Root to P. B. Simon, part e ½ s w ¼ & s e ¼ & part w ½ s w ¼, sec. 31, $6000.

E. W. Atkinson, trustee, to Auto Co., quarter block in sec 4, $4300.

Wilmington Township—P. L. Baker to F. E. Lyon, und ½ s e ¼, sec. 26, & n e ¼, sec. 35, $1416.

D. Smurr Spurgeon to J. V. & C. Smurr, und ½ s e ¼ n e ¼ & und ½, 5 acres off east side e ½ s w ¼ n e ¼, sec. 8, $1500.

Concord Township—M. T. Bishop to W. H. & H. A. Kimes, e ½ s w ¼ & 16 acres off east side w ½ s w ¼, $4500.

F. T. May to John & Jane Hull, n w ¼ n e ¼, sec. 8, $2325.

C. Curie to K. of P. lodge, burial ground, sec. 4, $650.

Union Township—M. A. Weaver to C. E. Eckhart, s ½ w ½ n w ¼, sec. 20, $3750.

H. Krueger to F. A. Krueger, 20 acres off south side n ½ s w ¼, sec. 24, $2400.

Smithfield Township—T. Elliott to S. J. Fisher, 27 acres off south side s ½ s e ¼, sec. 9, $1890.

S. J. Fisher to A. Codrad et al w ½ n e ¼ & 20 acres off w end n ½ s e ¼, sec 9, $1890.

H. Nodine to J. Stametes, und ½ of 55 acres off south end e ½ n e ¼, sec. 36, $1000.

S. J. Fisher to J. Hohl, 50 acres off s side s ½ s e ¼, sec. 9, $3500.

Richland Township—C. W. Feagler et al to P. & E. M. Miser, 18 20 acres off west end of 29.27 acres off north side, sec. 13, $11.90.

Franklin Township—C. Imhof to J. Pifer, part n ½ n w ¼, sec. 10, $1500.

Fairfield Township—W. Simons to J. & L. C. Simons, und ½ w ½ n w ¼ & n ½ w ½ s w ¼, sec. 9, $2000.

City of Auburn—A. B. Dunebarger to E. M. Ryan, lots 3, 5, 6, 11, 18, 22, 23, 28, Riverside add., $2408.

E. E. & P. Casebeer to J. Piffer, 38, block 6, F. P. add., $85.

R. Jones to R. H. Askew, lot 4, W. add., $1200.

M. A. Ehlers to State Mission Board, part lot 12, W. add., $1.

City of Garrett—B. L. & I. Co. to Teeters & Little, lot 8, block 62, $170.

A. McFillen to D. S. Stewart & Chas. H. Roy, lot 10, block 2, Oz. add., $1.

C. Linkenhelt to D. S. Haag, lot 41, Link add., $105.

C. Linkenhelt to D. Haag, lot 42, Link add, $115.

I. McDanel to L. S. Brown, lot 2, block 73, K. add., $1800.

B. L. & I. Co. to Ella Klein, lot 8, block 75, $175.

J. F. Reed to I. I. McDanel, part lot 3, block 56, $2600.

Town of Butler—A. G. Jones, adm. to W. A. & F. J. Craun, lots 29, 30, Dan. add., $90.

H. Wilson to W. H. Oberlin, lot 145 Egnew's add., $350.

P. Bryan to L. L. & I. E. Bryan, lot 3, John's add., $500.

J. V. Smurr to D. S. & L. Spurgeon, part lot 4, O. P., $300.

A. J. Fisher to F. Creager, lot 9, Linkenfelter's add., $700.

Town of Ashley—I. Hovarter to L. & F. Troup, lot 12, block 29, $400.

A. B. Stine to J. B. Wilkinson, lots 6, 7, 8, 9. 10, 11, block 31, $5000.

Town of Corunna—J. Simons to W. Simons, lots 51, 52, O. P., $1000.

L. Lower to J. & L. Simons, lots 51, 52, $1.

Town of Waterloo—S. L. Goodwin to M. Goodwin, lots 151, 152, O. P., $1.

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS

WITH Dr. King's New Discovery

FOR COUGHS COLDS PRICE 50c. & $1.00. Trial Bottle Free

AND ALL THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.

GUARANTEED SATISFACTORY OR MONEY REFUNDED.

Exclusive Right

FOR

Lowney's Candies

For the city of Butler direct from the factory

Quality and freshness GUARANTEED

Fresh Oysters

George Stout

THE CLOTHES WE MAKE

Fit the man as the feathers fit the bird. The make, style, fit, finish and prices are all perfect. Our spring stock is now awaiting your inspection. Be glad to see you any time.

ED MAY

If your grocers can not satisfy you with their bread? Try the

Home Bakery

The best tasting bread in the city. has no equal. Bread 4c a loaf.

Anton Panhuysen

REAL ESTATE

We have some splendid farms and other excellent properties or investment.

We have the Thompson Opera House for sale and many other properties in Butler.

Farms from 40 to 160 acres. It will pay you to see us before buying. We are in the business to stay and are able to place you right.

Wilcox & Creager

WABASH

No 2—Express	6:48 a. m
No 28—Mail	9:03 a. m
No. 6—Toledo Mail & Exp	5:12 p. m
No. 78—Local Freight	9:50 a. m
WEST BOUND
No. 9—East Mail	4:29 a. m
No. 11—Ft. Wayne Mail & Exp	10:16 a. m
No. 3—Express	8:17 p. m.
No. 79—Local Freight	2:04 p. m.

All trains daily except Local Freights.

O. C. WATERMAN, Agent, Butler, Ind.

FEBRUARY

0467

L1134

VALENTINES

A Nice Line of Valentines.

All Kinds and Varieties. Valentine Post Cards from 1 cent up.

AT

PHILLIPS' DRUG STORE

JEWELRY AND DRUGS

Local and Personal

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

Thomas Rudd spent Monday in Auburn.

Glen Seibert is at Hicksville, Ohio, this week.

Keep your eye on Butler. It is going to grow.

Doris Hamilton, is on the sick list with tonsilitis.

Sweet juicy steaks and roasts at the new meat market. 5tf

The best cleaning fluid ever heard of at May's tailor shop. 5tf

John Hamilton is spending the week at Fort Wayne.

The First National bank solicits your fire insurance. tf

Geo. A. Powers was at Lima, Ohio, Monday on business.

Rev. Davis will preach at Jerusalem next Sunday morning.

John Baxter of Auburn was in the city Monday on business.

Wm. Moughler has recently moved to Butler from the country.

Robert White spent Sunday at Auburn the guest of his parents.

F. B. Tilbury spent Sunday at Napoleon, Ohio, and Fort Wayne.

Rev. Davis and wife spent last Wednesday in Pleasant Lake.

The revival meetings at Big Run commenced last Sunday evening.

Helen Garber spent Sunday with James Wiley and wife, near Artic.

Fred Briggs will sell you cement blocks cheaper than anyone else. tf

Sunday dinners at the Cottage hotel only 25 cents. Give us a call. 2-tf

Ernest Pearson of Elyria, Ohio, was the guest of his parents over Sunday.

Dr. M. M. Acker went to Battle Creek, Mich., Saturday for treatment.

Joe Daniels' are moving into the Mack property on Depot street this week.

Mrs. Chas. Dohner, who has been seriously ill, is some better at this writing.

M. E. Krontz has been very sick for several days, but at present writing is much improved.

Mrs. Anna Stoner returned to this city Tuesday after several weeks visit at Montpelier, Ohio.

Jake Coll, wife and baby spent Sunday with her parents, Isaac Dohner and wife, in the country.

Earl Donaldson, of Frankfort, Ind., attended the funeral of his aunt, Mrs. Johnnie Greene, at this place Saturday.

Mrs. Walter Bell and children, of Wauseon, Ohio, are expected here Friday for a visit with A. J. Price and wife.

There is one number of the lecture course before the series is completed. This will be a lecture by John Woodruff, March 30th.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Donaldson, of Huntington, attended the funeral of the former's sister, Mrs. Johnnie Greene, Saturday.

Mrs. Sam Squires, of Auburn, spent Friday and Saturday with Walter Hallauer and wife. Mr. Hallauer and wife returned home with her for a visit.

Mrs. Sarah Meyers, who resides in Franklin, township, was given a postal card shower on Monday, it being her seventy-ninth birthday. She received sixty-eight postal cards.

W. R. Holden has purchased the C. R. Squires bankrupt stock at Hicksville and will combine with that a stock from Paw Paw Mich., and both lots will be closed out at Hicksville, commencing Saturday.

"Fritz" Feik of Garrett says that that town will raise $500,000 for the court house provided it is moved to Garrett, and that half that sum can be raised if it is taken to Waterloo. It is no josh that Waterloo is likely to be the county seat in the future.

Milo Husselman has been busier than a tramp before breakfast since Nov. 8, working on the city books and has just got them up to date. He is preparing a new water record and bring the bond records up to date and making other improvements.

The Murch restaurant changed hands the first of the week, and as a parting remembrance, Mr. Murch presented the editor with a nice juicy mince pie. The Murch family have added to their list of friends since their venture into the restaurant business. The new proprietors, Mrs. Ackerman and Mrs. Conroy, will close the doors for two weeks while improvements are going on inside. They will not serve regular meals, but will do a first-class short order and rooming business.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

See Fred Briggs for cement blocks. tf

Wm. Powell was on the sick list the first of the week.

Get your charcoal in any quantity at May's tailor shop. 5tf

Dr. H. T. Berkey was at Fort Wayne Friday on business.

The L. T. club met with Mrs. Chas. Noragon Wednesday afternoon.

J. G. Willock left Monday for Mt. Clemens, Mich., for treatment.

Frank Blaker of Chicago was the guest of his family here, Sunday.

Phone orders promptly delivered at the new meat market. 5tf

Miss Mary Strong spent Sunday with her parents in Newville.

Miss Amelia Kester of Chicago is the guest of A. S. Kester and wife.

Miss Letha Enzor took dinner Sunday with Miss Beulah Howard.

Miss Mildred Kenestrick spent Sunday at Auburn the guest of friends.

Russell Fee was absent from school Wednesday on account of sickness.

The Bay veiw circle met with Mrs. Curtis Craun, Wednesday afternoon.

Sunday dinners at the Cottage hotel only 25 cents. Give us a call. 2-tf

The Culture club will meet with Mrs. Jasper Ocker next Tuesday afternoon.

Levi Wolff, of Auburn, was the guest of Jerry Bolinger and family Sunday.

Mrs. L. J. Diehl and Miss. Tinnie Fetterhoff spent Friday in Auburn on business.

Mrs. Wm. Stamen, of near St. Joe, spent Saturday with Mrs. C. L. Hamilton.

W. A. Craun and wife took dinner Sunday with their son, Curtis Craun and wife.

Sherm Moore and wife and Mrs. Wm. Moore and son, Russell, spent Sunday at Auburn.

Miss Edyth Wagoner, of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday with her parents, Chas. Wagoner and wife.

If you want to send money away buy a New York draft of the First National bank. tf

Mrs. Elizabeth Fosdick returned home Monday after several weeks visit with relatives at LaGrange.

Mrs. George Wagner, of Pleasant Chapel, has been the guest of her mother at Fremont, Ind.

Miss Gloria Madison, a well known pianist and singer of Fort Wayne, has accepted a position at the new Crystal Palace.

C. J. Coats has an 80 acre farm he will trade for a smaller piece. If he cannot do this, will take Butler city property in exchange. tf

Mrs. Lesta Oberlin and Mrs. Brown Mumaw spent Sunday at Edon, Ohio, the guests of Jacob Mumaw and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Knisely and granddaughter, Ethel Tess, returned home Monday from a three weeks visit in California.

WANTED—50 ladies and gentlemen at once at McGuire's Telegraph School, Edgerton, O. Good positions furnished when competent. tf

Mrs. E. Washman and children, of Concord, were the guests of her mother, Mrs. Martin Steele, over Sunday.

If Ab Kelly will be patient perhaps the county seat will be moved to Waterloo and that would save him the trouble of taking his printing plant to Auburn.

John Schneider has purchased a lot on Oak street of W. A. Mason and will erect a modern dwelling the coming spring. There ought to be at least twenty-five new residences go up in this city this year.

A. F. Brindley, the undertaker, has purchased the stock and good will of his competitor, Eugene Treesh. Mr. Treesh will move to Corunna. People do not die fast enough in Butler for two undertakers to prosper, hence the change.

Preston & Preston have had a novel machine or cart made which they use for delivering goods. It resembles a tricycle and has a box attached to the rear which carries the groceries in perfect safety. Frank Brown holds the patent and all rights are reserved.

M. F. Creager went to Kendallville, Monday, and foreclosed a chattle mortgage on a moving picture outfit and removed same to Butler. The owner of the machine had disposed of the property, but when confronted with the law he got it back and turned it over to Mr. Creager.

The preliminaries for the paving of Main and Broadway goes merrily on, and while the council no doubt have much free advice offered them it will be well for the honorable body to take the Irishman's advice, "Listen to all and judge for themselves." Surveyor Frank McDowell, of Auburn, who put the paving in at that place has been employed as an assistant for Surveyor Eakright.

Those who attended the convention and helped to select democratic county chairman last week were W. S. Troyer, from No. 1; Alex Seltenright, No. 2; J. Pessell, No. 3; Wm. Mutzfeld, No. 4; John Baxter, No. 5; John Moore, No. 6. Frank M. Kircher was the man chosen for county chairman and Mr. Curie, Concord township, vice chairman. The HERALD congratulates the delegates on their choice of chairman, and presume Mr. Curie is all right, although we have never made his acquaintance.

Mrs. Frank Needham and daughter, Marguerite, are on the sick list.

Jim Newman spent Sunday at Bryan, Ohio, with his family.

The Dorcas Society met wit Mrs. E. A. Karle Wednesday afternoon.

Fresh oysters each Wednesday at the new meat market. 5tf

Miss Amelia Kester spent Thursday in Cherubusco.

Phosa Scoville spent Sunday with her mother in Angola.

Mrs. Frank Lyons has been on the sick list the past few days.

Mrs. G. L. Vernier spent Wednesday in Toledo the guest of selatives.

Mrs. Sherman Robinett spent Monday with relatives near Hamilton.

Pay your bills by check. Deposit with the First National bank. tf

Will sell one lot only, now cheap. you will pay more later. W. C. Tomlinson. 3-tf

Misses Grayce Poper and Edyth McDonald spent Sunday in South Bend.

George Oberlin and wife of near Newville spent Sunday with L. J. Diehl and wife.

Try our preparation to keep moths out of clothing and carpets, at May's tailor shop. 5tf

John Hablawetz, of Coldwater, Mich., was in the city Monday on business.

Herman Kessler and William Bailey of Auburn ware in this city, Monday, on business.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Dempsey have purchased the Joe Webster property on West Oak street.

Mrs. Geo. Berkey, of Wakarusa, is the guest of her son, Dr. H. T. Berkey and wife, this week.

Jim Coleman and wife of near Auburn took dinner, Sunday, with J. S. Robinett and family.

FOR SALE—Good general purpose mare and spring colt. Address Rev. E. E. Bergman, Waterloo, Ind. 4-2

FOR SALE—About 800 white oak fence posts, 7½ feet long. Will be sold reasonable. A. R. Zimmerman. Home phone 1813¼. 4-2

Mrs. Hardy Meyers and daughter, Marguerite, of Auburn, were the guests of her sister, Mrs. H. T. Berkey last week.

FOR TRADE:—An improvdd twenty acre tract of land in Michigan. Value about fifteen hundred dollars. Want Butler property. Wallace C. Webster.

The Ladies of the Missionary society gave a Missionary Tea at the home of Mrs. S. G. Stone Tuesday evening. About $5.75 was cleared.

Maude Kline passed through this city Monday enroute for her home in Auburn after spending Sunday with her father in Spencersville.

Mrs. Charles Potter and Mrs. J. N. Boyle will entertain the Ladies Aid society, Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Boyle. All are invited.

Do you want a small farm of less than fifteen acres in DeKalb county? Sandy soil, the very best for gardening and poultry. Small house and barn. Requires a down payment of $200. Wallace C. Webster. 4tf

Mrs. Rufus Warrick entertained at dinner, Tuesday, Mrs. Charles Imhoof, Mrs. Irene Hollinger and children, Mrs. Jacob Gunsenhouser, Mrs. Isaac Hollinger and Mrs. Ruth Warrick, of Waterloo.

The young folks at Zion organized a Y. P. C. E. last Friday evening with the following officers: President, Clarence Hinkle; vice-president, Lou Wise; secretary, Letta Eddy; treasurer, Stanley Evertt.

The coming summer Seth Aldrich will devote his time exclusively to his trade which is spouting and roofing. He has ordered a car load of material and is ready to figure with you now. If you have or anticipate any work of this kind it will pay you to see him.

The Butler poultry fanciers who were successful in carrying away prizes from the big poultry show at Toledo last week, were D. D. Melroy, five firsts three seconds and two thirds, also best display of Partridge Rocks, for which he received a silver cup. George Stout took first on cockerel and first on pen in the Silver Spangled Hamburg class. Henry Witt received first on cockerel and first on pullet in the Black Minorca class. A very good representation for Butler.

An attack of the grip is often followed by a persistent cough, which to many proves a great annoyance. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been extensively used and with good success for the relief and cure of this cough. Many cases have been cured after all other remedies had failed. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 5-1m

FREE!

How many people in Indiana at the coming census?

Can you guess?

One barrel Grabill flour free to the person making nearest correct guess.

One guess given with each 25 pounds of Grabill flour.

CRAUN'S FEED STORE

PHONE 54

Read your own HERALD.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

Ralph Orwig of pleasant Lake spent Sunday with Victor Davis.

Mose Eakright, who has been on the sisk list is some better.

C. L. McDonald spent Sunday in Edgerton the guest of friends.

Ed Elden of Buffaloo was in the city Sunday the guest of relatives.

Bert Shapland, of Kendallville, was in the city Monday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Everetts spent Sunday with her parents at Moorsville.

Mrs. Henry Grube and son, Andrew spent Sunday with Mrs. E. Cannon.

Sunday dinners at the Cottage hotel only 25 cents. Give us a call. 2-tf

Home rendered leaf lard, strictly pure at the new meat market. 5tf

Cleaning and repairing neatly done to your satisfaction at May's tailor shop. 5tf

Miss Zella Rush returned to Detroit Saturday after several weeks visit with relatives.

E. Chase Bryant, of Cincinnati, Ohio, spent Sunday with J. J. Mack and family.

Mrs. J. N. Boyle spent Sunday in Auburn the guest of her mother, Mrs. Anna Silvers.

We have some 5 per cent money to loan on mortgage security. First National Bank. tf

Mrs. William Brown of near Jerusalem spent Wednesday with Mrs. Jacob Cook.

I have for sale, houses in all parts of the city. Wallace C. Webster 46-tf

Mrs. F. D. Fanning is spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Potter, near Hamilton.

John C. Fetterhoff of Elkhart was in the city, Tuesday, the guest of his daughter, Tinnie.

Grandma Finke has returned home from an extended visit with her daughter, Mrs. Wise, at Artic.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tyson of Detroit are the proud parents of a baby boy since Friday January 28.

Mrs. A. S. Kester is in Bryan this week. Her daughter, Mrs. Hollinger, underwent an operation.

Charles Brindley, father of A. F. Brindley, has been in the city several days this week on business.

Miss Ethel Baker of Fort Wayne is expected this week for a visit with her parents, Alex Baker and wife.

I. L. Warrick, of Bridgewater, Ohio, was the guest of his brother, R. J. Warrick, Saturday and Sunday.

J. E. Firestone and wife spent Saturday night and Sunday with her brother, George A. Wagoner, and wife in the country.

A. L. Haley will go to Kenton, Ohio, Saturday where he will assist in evangelistic meetings. He will be gone at least a month.

John Groff of Edgerton spent Saturday evening with friends here. He leaves for Montana about February 18 where he has accepted a position.

C. L. Harper, the new meat market man, has purchased the Kenestrick property on West Oak street, and will move his family here in the near future.

Mrs. Martin Heffelfinger spent Sunday in Fort Wayne thh guest of her mother, Mrs. McCaffery. Mrs. McKinsey of Auburn took care of Mr. Heffelfinger during her absence.

Two hundred dollars cash, and monthly payments, will purchase one of the best business properties on Broadway. Why do you rent? Wallace C. Webster. 5tf

The Moler Barber College of Chicago, Ill., wants men to learn the barber trade. They offer splendid inducements and a short term completes. They mail free a beautiful catalogue and ask all our readers to send for it. 5-2

The revival meetings at the U. B. church continue with increasing interest. Three stood up Tuesday night and committed themselves to the Saviour. The meetings begin at 7:30 p. m. Sunday services at 10:30 and 7:00. Sunday school at 9:30. Everybody welcome to all these services. Come and bring some one with you.

If troubled with indigestion, constipation, no appetite or feeling bilious give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial and you will be pleased with the result. These tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and strengthen the digestion. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 5-1m

The Knisely Dry Goods Co.

Big Clearance Sale of OVERCOATS!

DURING THE MONTH OF FEBRUARY WE WILL GIVE A

Discount of 33⅓ Per Cent

FROM OUR REGULAR LOW PRICES ON ALL MEN'S YOUTHS' AND BOYS' WINTER OVERCOATS

This is an Opportunity to Secure an Overcoat for Less Money than you will Ever find the Same Quality of Goods again.

CALL AND LOOK THEM OVER

ZION LACE INDUSTRIES, ZION CITY, ILLINOIS

ZION LACES and many interesting features in their manufacture are on exhibition in one of our show windows. This display is educational and every person should see it.

From 3,400 to 4,500 bobbins are required to thread one lace machine, besides the beam and warp, making a total—when the machine is threaded—of 13,000 threads in actual work. When a machine is fully threaded there are 6,700 miles of cotton on it, enough to reach from here to England and nearly back again.

See the illustrations of the various machines in operation—where they take in the thread and turn out the dainty, attractive laces—also skeins of yarns, yarn spools—pieces of lace just as they come from the machines. Especially interesting is the process of clipping, scalloping and separating. The exhibit is so unique and the values so unusual that a visit will be of material interest to you.

SPECIAL SHOWING OF

NEW EMBROIDERIES AND LACES

5000 Yards New Embroideries, Special Values

5,10,15,25c

Every sale we make is intended to win appreciation and instill confidence

Knisely's

G. L. Vernier spent Sunday at Toledo, Ohio.

Mrs. Ruth Warrick, of Waterloo, is the guest of her son, R. J. Warrick.

Mr. Haines of Buffaloo was in the city, Wednesday, on business.

Miss Anna Kinney of Fort Wayne spent Sunday with Charles Wagoner and wife.

The Swanton wreck caused quite a consternation among the Masons who had gathered at the depot expecting to go on No. 23, Wednesday evening, to Kendallville when Agent Dannells informed them that the train would be at least two hours late, and the Lord only knew how much later. After considerable argument it was decided to secure a sled and drive to Waterloo and go by way of the interurban. After a long and toilsome journey their destination was reached and the degrees of Royal and Select Masters were conferred on two candidates followed by light refreshments and a general good time, returning home at a late hour reporting the Kendallville companions royal entertainers.

A few minutes delay in treating some cases of croup, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor often proves dangerous. The safest way is to keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and at the first indication of croup give the child a dose. Pleasant to take and always cures. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 5-1m Chares McConkey of Elkhart was the guest of his parents over Sunday.

LEARN Telegraphy

Big money for 8 hours work; easily learned; positions furnished. Write today.

THE STANDARD TELEGRAPH ACADEMY, Lima, O.

53-

DON'T BUY YOUR FENCE

Until you get our prices on Peerless wire fence.

Let us order it for you direct from the factory.

Big reduction in prices for 30 days.

CRAUN'S FEED STORE

Phone 54

GOLD FISH

AT

The Racket Store

Aquarium, 2 Gold Fish Pebbles and Plant ALL FOR 10c

Larger Acquariums and Fish, also Castles, at Reasonable Prices

Fresh FISH FOOD for Sale

While it is often impossible to prevent an accident, it is never impossible to be prepared—it is not beyond any one's purse. Invest 25 cents in a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and you are prepared for sprains, bruises and like injuries. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 5-1m

Boys and Girls How would you like to own a DANDY BICYCLE? We will give any boy or girl a first class bicycle FREE. All we ask is a few hours work after school. Write for secret. State age. Self-Help Club, Box 62, 4 West 29th Street, New York City.

It has taken Thousands of Dollars and Years of Labor to Develop the Famous

"BLACK CROSS" COFFEE

They employ the most expert blenders, who spend every day mixing and trving out these special brands. That's the reason when you buy a pound of "BLACK CROSS" that the strength is just right and the flavor delightful. 20, 25, 30, 35c

This is the Time of Year to Enjoy MINCE PIE

If you use "NONE SUCH" they will always be good.

If you want a change, take Lake Shore Pumpkin, 12c; Raisins, 10c; Dried Peaches, 10c; Dried Apricots, 15c; Apples, per can 10c; Pie Peaches, per can 10c.

Special: Best Sliced Pineapple at 20c; Sweet Cider Jell at . . 60c

Drink "INDIAN" COFFEE, at 17c per Pound

The Oberlin Grocery Company

0468

L1134

FEBRUARY

BACKACHE--A SIGNAL OF DISTRESS

A WARNING THAT MUST NOT BE IGNORED

Pain in the back is the kidneys' signal of distress. If this timely warning is ignored, kidney disease silently fastens its deadly grip--for kidney sickness first shows itself in pains and disorders in other parts, and the real cause is too often hidden until fatal Bright's disease or diabetes has set in. Suspect the kidneys if you are rheumatic and nervous or have lame back, painful, too frequent or scanty urination, weak heart, dizzy spells, headaches, bloating or neuralgia. What you want is a special kidney medicine—not an experiment, but one that has stood the test for years. Doan's Kidney Pills relieve weak, congested kidneys—cure backache—regulate the urine.

A KIDNEY REMEDY OF 75 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS began curing lame backs and sick kidneys 75 years ago. The demand led a nearby druggist, James Doan, to prepare it for sale. From him the magic formula passed to the present proprietors. Now as in those early days, Doan's Kidney Pills are made from only the purest drugs and are absolutely non-poisonous. They are used and praised all over the civilized world.

Doan's Kidney Pills Make Lasting Cures

Mrs. Solomon Sawyer, 420 W. Jackson St., Brazil, Ind., says: "I do not think there is a better kidney remedy on the market than Doan's Kidney Pills. I suffered from kidney and bladder trouble for seven or eight years, and there was a constant, dull pain across the small of my back which was almost unbearable. Damp weather greatly aggravated the complaint, and there were other annoying kidney disorders that made me feel miserable. My health finally became affected and the doctors seemed unable to help me. Having my attention called to Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply at F. W. Schultz's drug store and had taken them only a short time when I began to improve. Before long I was free from the trouble and my kidneys were restored to a healthy condition."

The above statement was made on Sept. 15, 1906, and on Jan. 4, 1909, Mrs. Sawyer said: "I have more faith in Doan's Kidney Pills than ever. I willingly confirm the statement I gave in their favor over two years ago, as they deserve all the credit that can be given them."

Charles Hansing, 524 Bouthillier St., Galena, Ill., says: "I am only too pleased to give Doan's Kidney Pills my endorsement, in the hope that other kidney sufferers will profit by my experience. For a month or more I suffered from a steady, dull ache across the small of my back, and if I sat down for awhile, it was all I could do to get up. Often I was compelled to place my hands on my knees as a support, so severe was the pain in my back. I did not rest with any comfort and any sudden movement sent sharp twinges through my kidneys. After plasters, liniments and various remedies which I took had failed to help me, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and the contents of two boxes effected a cure. I have never lost an opportunity of saying a good word for this medicine since."

The above statement was given in Feb., 1907, and on Mar. 31, 1909, Mr. Hansing said: "During the past two years I have had no need of Doan's Kidney Pills, having been free from kidney complaint. I take pleasure in confirming all I have heretofore said regarding the merit of this remedy."

A TRIAL FREE Try Doan's Kidney Pills without cost. Mail this coupon to FOSTER-MILBURN CO., Buffalo, N. Y., and a free trial package will be mailed you. We want every sufferer to test our remedy without expense. CNU

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

If the Pain Is There It's Your Kidneys

Sold by all dealers. Price 50 cents. FOSTER-MILBURN CO., Buffalo, N.Y. Proprietors.

FASHION HINTS

Here are two of the season's popular types in small hats.

The upper one is of black velvet, banded with ermine, and a fat little willow plume hanging from the left side.

The lower one is more "suity" and is of silk beaver, trimmed with one of the crosses between a quill and a feather, held in place by a dull gold rose.

Gratitude.

"Hello!"

"Hello!"

"Is that the grocery and meat market?"

"Yes."

"This is Mrs. Kildeer. You have my order for an eight-pound turkey, haven't you?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Well, change it to a sixteen-pound turkey. I've just got my divorce papers!"

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take LAXATIVE BROMO Quinine Tablets. Druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. GROVE'S signature is on each box. 25c.

Back in the Corridors of Time.

Plato had just dubbed Aristotle the "Intellect" of his school.

"In fact," said Plato, "he comes pretty near being the Philander Knox of my scholastic cabinet."

For, in the best educational circles in those days, it was considered better to be brainy than to be brawny.—Chicago Tribune.

Touched on the Raw.

Paul Witstach, the brilliant playwright, author and Mansfield authority, said of Mr. Mansfield at a dinner in New York:

"Mr. Mansfield's dignity was very great. He conducted himself toward others in a dignified way. He expected others to conduct themselves toward him in like manner. But once, in Chicago, Mr. Mansfield was touched on the raw by a manager. It was the first night of a Cyrano de Bergerac tour. The great actor, his delicate nerves aquiver, was making up with his dresser's help, when the manager rushed into the dressing room without knocking, slapped Mr. Mansfield heartily on the back and shouted:

"'The house is packed. There ain't even no more standin' room. Now, Dick, old man, sail in and show 'em what yer made of.'

"The dresser used to say if he hadn't hustled that manager out, Cyrano would have run him through with his sword."

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten-fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists. Price, 75c. per bottle. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Leaves Millions to Charity.

The will of the late Mrs. Franziska Speyer, widow of George Speyer, a partner in the banking house of Speyer & Co., of New York, London and Frankfort-on-the-Main, bequeaths between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000 to benevolent objects. The gifts include $1,000,000 to the Frankfort Academy of Social and Commercial Science and $1,000,000 for the furtherance of the research into the subject of cancer and lupus. Large sums are left to a long list of institutions, among those being societies for the aid of actors, orchestra musicians, journalists and artists. A fund is set aside to be used in pensioning employes in the banks of Speyer & Co. in New York, London and Frankfort-on-the-Main.

A Burning Eruption Covered Her from Head to Feet.

"Four years ago I suffered severely with a terrible eczema, being a mass of sores from head to feet and for six weeks confined to my bed. During that time I suffered continual torture from itching and burning. After being given up by my doctor I was advised to try Cuticura Remedies. After the first bath with Cuticura Soap and application of Cuticura Ointment I enjoyed the first good sleep during my entire illness. I also used Cuticura Resolvent and the treatment was continued for about three weeks. At the end of that time I was able to be about the house, entirely cured, and have felt no ill effects since. I would advise any person suffering from any form of skin trouble to try the Cuticura Remedies as I know what they did for me. Mrs. Edward Nenning, 1112 Salina St., Watertown, N. Y., Apr. 11, 1909."

Primitive Mills in Brazil.

Vice Consul De Young, writing from Santos, directs attention to the small corn-grinding machines in Brazil:

"In the interior of Brazil a primitive method of producing cornmeal by pounding instead of grinding is practiced. The instrument, known as a 'mojollo,' works automatically and consists of a tree trunk balanced on the bank of a stream, one end of the trunk being hollowed out to form a large cup, while the other end is in the form of a pestle. Water filling the cup depresses that end of the log, whereupon the water runs out and the other end falls back to its original position, the pestle striking the corn. Some modern corn grinders have recently been introduced, but there is a good field for a very small and inexpensive grinder to take the place of the 'mojollo' in the interior, where flour mills are rare and each family grinds its own corn."

Children Who Are Sickly.

Mothers should never be without a box of Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for Children. They break up colds in 24 hours, cure Feverishness, Constipation, Headache, Teething Disorders and Stomach Troubles. Over 10,000 testimonials. At all Druggists, 25c. Ask to-day. Sample mailed FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

Her Indorsement.

"I want to get this check cashed," said the fair young matron, appearing at the window of the paying teller.

"Yes, madam. You must indorse it, though," explained the teller.

"Why, my husband sent it to me. He is away on business," she said.

"Yes, madam. Just indorse it—sign it on the back, so we will know and your husband will know we paid it to you."

She went to the desk against the wall, and in a few moments presented the check triumphant, having written on its back:

"Your loving wife, Edith."

Free to Our Readers.

Write Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago, for 48-page illustrated Eye Book Free. Write all about Your Eye Trouble and they will advise as to the Proper Application of the Murine Eye Remedies in Your Special Case. Your Druggist will tell you that Murine Relieves Sore Eyes, Strengthens Weak Eyes, Doesn't Smart, Soothes Eye Pain, and sells for 50c. Try It in Your Eyes and in Baby's Eyes for Scaly Eyelids and Granulation.

There are more tobacco, silks, hides and jewels being imported by New York City than there were one year ago.

OLD TIME ENGLISH.

Words as They Were Pronounced In Shakespeare's Day.

The innovation of pronouncing Shakespeare's words as they were probably pronounced in his own day was carried out at a fete arranged at University College, London. The experiment inspired this comment by the Manchester Guardian:

For "one touch of nature" Shakespeare probably said "own tooch of natter," and, very much like a modern Irishman, he would say "A haste that wants discoorse of rayson." It would be "Loov's Labber's Lost" and the "Midsoommer Neecht's Drame." Scraps of Hamlet" would sound thus:

"A hasta that wants discoorse of rayson
Would haave moorned longer."
"Be thay as pure (French u) as grass (grace)."
"A broken vooice and his whole foonction shooting (suiting)
With forms to his consayt."
"To take arms against a say of troobles."

Our ancestors of even some 150 years ago, said "Room" for Rome, "cheer" for chair, "obleeged" for obliged, "greet boul" (the "ou" as in "out") for "great bowl," and, further back, Milton would say "biling water."

Resourceful.

"So you run your own motor car?"

"Certainly," answered Mr. Chuggins. "Would not think of trusting its delicate mechanism to a chauffeur."

"And you know what to do in case anything goes wrong?"

"Yes. Push her up to the side of the road and telephone to the repair shop."—Washington Star.

A WOMAN DOCTOR

Was Quick to See That Coffee Was Doing the Mischief.

A lady tells of a bad case of coffee poisoning and tells it in a way so simple and straightforward that literary skill could not improve it.

"I had neuralgic headaches for 12 years," she says, "and suffered untold agony. When I first began to have them I weighed 140 pounds, but they brought me down to 110. I went to many doctors and they gave me only temporary relief. So I suffered on, till one day a woman doctor told me to use Postum. She said I looked like I was coffee poisoned.

"So I began to drink Postum and I gained 15 pounds in the first few weeks and continued to gain, but not so fast as at first. My headaches began to leave me after I had used Postum about two weeks—long enough to get the coffee poison out of my system.

"Since I began to use Postum I can gladly say that I never know what a neuralgic headache is like any more, and it was nothing but Postum that made me well. Before I used Postum I never went out alone; I would get bewildered and would not know which way to turn. Now I go alone and my head is as clear as a bell. My brain and nerves are stronger than they have been for years."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Do You Enjoy Poor Health?

If you do, we have nothing to say, but if you are afflicted with any of the diseases of women, and want relief, write us for a sample of PISO'S TABLETS. They are an ideal home treatment, clean and easy to use, and being applied directly to the diseased surface, the beneficial results are immediately felt. We will send you a week's treatment free, if you will write at once.

For sale by all druggists. Trial package and a treatise entitled "Causes of Diseases in Women" sent free on receipt of accompanying coupon. Write your name and address PLAINLY and address THE PISO COMPANY, DEPT. B., WARREN, PA.

Name _____

Post Office _____

State _____

Women's Interests.

Woman's Friendship.

It is a wondrous advantage to a man, in every pursuit of vocation, to secure an adviser in a sensible woman. In woman there is at once a suitable delicacy of tact and plain soundness of judgment which are rarely combined to an equal degree in man. A woman, if she really is your friend, will have a sensitive regard for your character, honor and repute. She will seldom counsel you to do a shabby thing, for a woman friend always desires to be proud of you. At the same time her constitutional timidity makes her more cautious than your male friend. She, therefore, seldom counsels you to do an imprudent thing.

A man's best female friend is a wife of good sense and good heart, whom he loves and who loves him. If he has that he need not seek elsewhere. But supposing the man to be without such a helpmate, female friendship he must still have, or his intellect will be without a garden, and there will be many an unheeded gap in even the strongest fence. Better and safer, of course, such friendship where disparities of years or circumstances put the idea of love out of the question. Middle life has rarely this advantage; youth and old age have.

We may have female friendships with those much older and those much younger than ourselves. Molier's old housekeeper was a great help to his genius; and Montaigue's philosophy takes both a gentler and loftier character of wisdom from the date in which he finds, in Marie de Gournay, an adopted daughter, "certainly beloved by me," he says, "with more than paternal love, and involved in my solicitude and retirement as one of the best parts of my being." Female friendship, is, indeed, to man the bulwark, sweetener and ornament of his existence. To his mental culture it is invaluable; without it, all his knowledge of books will never give him a knowledge of the world.—Manford's Magazine.

Design for Portiere.

Darning is one of the simplest stitches in embroidery, and some very pleasing results are obtained when this stitch is used as a background. It is quickly and easily done, especially on crash or burlap or any loosely woven fabric. The Byzantine design given here is to be repeated as a border across the end of a portiere. With a yard-stick or ruler mark off a border six inches wide, and place the design at regular intervals one inch up from the lower border line. Transfer the design on the material by means of carbon paper, or, if dark material is used, a white stamping outfit.

To do the darning, carry the embroidery silk diagonally across the background of the border like running stitch in sewing with a short stitch on the under side and a longer stitch on the right side. The next row of stitches lies parallel with this, with a narrow space between. The beauty of the work lies in the fact that the stitches of one line come opposite the spaces of the preceding line, and this alternation is carried out with each line added until the space is filled. When the lines and stitches are irregularly placed the effect is exceedingly pleasing. The stitches must end exactly upon the outline of the design. The figure is to be outlined after the darning is completed.—Boston Herald.

DARNED WORK DESIGN.

For Soiled Clothing.

Brush the garments carefully first, and then apply the liquid with a woolen cloth, going religiously over every spot. This should be done with care, using especial diligence with the soiled spots. After sponging, rinse in ammonia water, and before the garment is thoroughly dried press it between two dark cloths.

Soap bark is an effective cleaner of woolen skirts, and men's clothes, as it is a quick eradicator of grease and dirt. Get 5 cents' worth of the soap bark, pour it over a quart of boiling water, steep it gently over a fire for two hours, keeping the heat low, so that the water will not boil away. Then strain through a piece of cheesecloth and it is ready to use.

For the Nervous.

Nervous people ought to cultivate the practice of sleeping after the noon meal. A short nap at that time will strengthen the nerves and make it much more liable that the rest of the body will be passed in some sort of comfort. One of the principal difficulties that beset a nervous woman is that she becomes too tired in the latter part of the day to digest food or go to sleep. Thus it is that the evening meal generally disagrees with her. Often a short nap in the middle of the day will prevent this.

For the Too-Thin Woman.

The thin woman with a slender figure should never make a mistake of wearing a tight-fitting princess dress unrelieved by trimming in the front. It makes her look flat chested and too much like a lath to be admired by any one, however partial. The same woman appears a totally different creature if she wears a waist made with some fullness in the front. Fluffy white waists are especially becoming to the slender maiden. She is decidedly the type that can stand dressing up. A frock that would make a plump woman look overdressed and fussy will have an entirely different appearance on a thin person.

Fads and Fancies in Dress

The army cape and overcoat are fashionable wraps for late fall days.

Velveteen is a fashionable and practical material for the long dressy coat.

Prune-colored cloth, with long ties and gold ornaments, make a handsome theater cloak.

Black still indicates that it means to rule in tailor as well as in afternoon gowns.

Stripes prevail in the latest French flannels, and some of them are highly effective.

Colors are the same in names as last year, but this season they are of duller hues.

Every well fitted wardrobe will have a black suit or costume of some sort this season.

Some lovely oxidized gold, silver and pewter embroideries are available for the adornment of reception and evening gowns.

There is a new button for outdoor garments made of wood. It is inlaid, stained and polished in beautiful colors and harmonious designs.

A curious finish to tailor-made suits for afternoon wear is the lapel of oriental embroidery, with collar of black velvet or moire.

New stoles are of chiffon, edged with fur to match the muff. This is the first season that this type of stole has appeared, and it is expected that it will be fashionable.

Jet fringe which comes in lengths with Vandyke shapes can be cut to good advantage and used as a bodice trimming, with one or two loose points at the front.

Laundering Lace Curtains.

When there are no frames on hand large lace curtains may be pinned on a clean carpet and allowed to dry evenly in this way. Curtains that are dried on a clothes line are so pulled out of shape by the process that they can seldom be hung properly. Inexpensive Nottingham and other lace curtains which do not require ironing, are best dried on frames. Wash them clean and starch them slightly. Pin them on the light wooden frames, which come for this purpose, and on which they may be evenly dried. If they are ironed they are likely to be pulled out of shape.

Needlework Notes.

A novelty is the "college robe," which any girl can make.

Braiding done in colored silk cord is a fancy of the moment.

A silk crocheted buckle with a ribbon bow is a novelty in neckwear.

Bits of old Japanese embroidery are used to cover buttons for evening capes.

Currants make an effective bit of color on white linen and are not difficult to embroider.

Pin tucks in a Greek key design formed a dainty finish on a child's white muslin party frock.

Of all flowers used in embroidery the wild carrot, or Queen Ann's lace, is the most exquisitely dainty.

Prefer Husbands to Votes.

Elinor Glyn and Wyette Guilbert are announced as recent members of anti-suffrage associations. Mrs. Glyn has joined an English society and Mme. Guilbert has been proposed for membership in an association in this country. Both women are said to have declared their inability to understand why any woman should wish to vote when she has health and a good husband.

Girl Messengers in Berlin.

A girl messenger service has been organized in Berlin designed to supplement the service given by boys. In addition to being hired to deliver letters and packages, the girls are called upon in emergencies to do light housework and to look after children while mothers are shopping.—Argus.

Cleaning Carpet on Floor.

To clean a carpet without taking up, take a cup half full of corn meal mixed with salt and sweep well when spots are left; then take oxgall or ammonia. Both are very good things to make the carpet as bright as a new one.

To Polish Glass.

After windows, mirrors, and, in fact, any glass, even cut glass, have been washed, a most beautiful polish can be obtained by rubbing with tissue paper. Save all the tissue paper that comes into the house and use it for this purpose.

Remedy for Burns.

For burns and scalds nothing is so effective as lime water and sweet oil. Take equal parts of each, shake well in a bottle, then apply. Old muslin is very good and will not "draw." Saturate well and tie on.

A Woman's Citizenship.

A case without precedent as to nationalization is that of Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch. This daughter of Elizabeth Cady Stanton is not an American citizen because she married an Englishman. Now she is about to take out naturalization papers. She is president of the New York Quality League for Self-Supporting Women, but she could not vote if women had the franchise. According to the law of nations, a woman is a citizen of her husband's country. There is no case on record where a married woman has made an attempt to transfer her citizenship.

When Skirts Are Long.

There is confusion in the minds of many concerning skirts. There is so much talk about smart gowns being five inches from the floor for evening and nearly six inches for morning that women wonder if there is any hour in which the long, graceful skirt is worn.

The strict decree of fashion in New York, says one authority, is this: Skirts five or six inches from the ground for street wear; skirts that sweep over the floor in a round train for the afternoon, and skirts five inches from the floor for evening.

This is the decree! Every one does not have to abide by it, but numbers of women will accept it in part, if not in whole. They may not have every evening gown made short, or every afternoon frock made long, but they will assuredly have one of each kind to show that they know what is being done in the world of fashion.

Good Thing Overdone.

The fact that a young woman, 5 feet 1 inch in height, was able to frustrate and almost knock out a 6-foot robber, by hitting him over the head with a purse containing her week's salary, is an interesting illustration of the large improvement that has taken place in recent years, both in the force of woman's muscle and in the size of the woman's salary. It may also, to the wary, seem a warning that some good things may be carried too far. A woman with money has been one of the legitimate pursuits of aspiring but impecunious youth since the beginning of time, and it will be sad evidence of the passing of some of the customs of good old days, should the combination, once so attractive, become in the new civilization a thing to be avoided like the hind leg of a mule.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Old-Fashioned Furs.

The more quaint and old-fashioned our fur garments are this winter the better, it seems. Early Victorian styles are the fad, promoted by the enthusiasm which the play, "Helena Ritchie,"

"EARLY VICTORIAN" FUR CAPE.

is arousing, and all sorts of quaint old-time styles are coming in. This little pelisse—as it would have been called in the days of our grandmothers—is of white ermine, bordered all around with sealskin and lined with white brocaded satin finished all around with a little pleated ruffle. The pendant cord ornaments add to the old-fashioned look of the cape and muff.

To Open a Can.

In case a screw top on a can sticks, strike the cover lightly with the handle of an old knife if there is no tack hammer convenient, while you turn the can. In a few moments the most stubborn cover will open with simply a slight twist.

Cheap Disinfectant.

A cheap disinfectant to use in scrubbing or washing utensils in a sickroom is made by adding a teaspoonful of turpentine to every bucket of hot water. Turpentine is a powerful disinfectant, and will dispel all bad odors.

Left-Over Paint.

If a can of paint has to be left open, stir it thoroughly, so as to dissolve all of the oil, then fill with water. When it becomes necessary to use the paint pour off the water and you will find it as fresh as when first opened.

That Was Different.

"My mistress isn't at home, ma'am," said a servant to a visitor.

"Oh, indeed! Will you please tell her that when I saw her peeping from the front window as I came up I felt very much afraid she was?"

Folly.

All men have follies. Those of the wise man are known only to himself; those of the fool to all men but himself.—Smart Set.

Careful Mary.

Such sweet, red lips!
I stoop to kiss
My little neighbor, Mary.
"Not on my mouf," said four-year-old;
"Tidn't sanitary!"

For Insomnia.

A glass of hot milk taken just before retiring will often induce sleep for those troubled with insomnia.

Ghosts.

No man can look for peace so long as any old love letters written by him remain undestroyed.—Atchison Globe.

To Teach Them to Swim.

All the girls in the Boston public schools are to be taught to swim.

JOLLY JOKER

Mrs. Henpeck—Who were the three wise men, Job? Mr. Henpeck—Bachelors.—Life.

"My brother broke his leg yesterday." "Accidentally?" "We presume so. He had nobody to spite."—Kansas City Journal.

"Here's a picture that my aunt painted," said Mrs. Keephouse, showing a visitor through the flat. "It's a pretty frame, though."—Newark News.

Sapleigh—The doctor says there's something the matter wth my head. Sharp—You surely didn't pay a doctor to tell you that!—Boston Transcript.

"This advertisement savors of pessimism." "What's that?" "Gentleman offers to exchange a Christmas present for something useful."—Kansas City Journal.

Bill—I see a man is trying to drift across the Arctic Circle. Where do you suppose he'll bring up? Jill—Oh, on the lecture platform, probably.—Yonkers Statesman.

"Would you marry a woman who had been divorced?" "Well, I don't know. A good deal would depend on what she had been doing with her alimony."—Chicago Record-Herald.

He—So your husband has given up smoking? It requires a pretty strong will to accomplish that. She—Well I'd have you understand that I have a strong will.—New Zealand Free Lance.

The Conversationalist (to well known authoress)—I am so delighted to meet you—it was only the other day—I saw something of yours—about something or other—in some paper!—Sketch.

"Did you have any assistance when you made your appearance as a singer?" "Yes," answered the amateur soloist. "There was a policeman keeping order in the gallery."—Washington Star.

The Lady Fare—You can not cheat me, my man. I haven't ridden in cabs for twenty-five years for nothing. The Cabby—Haven't you, mum? Well you've done your best.—New Zealand Free Lance.

"I was nearly killed yesterday." "What happened?" "I was having tea in the garden when an airship passed over wth one of those didn't-know-you-were-underneath fools in it!" —St. Louis Republic.

Mrs. Younglove — John, are you aware that you haven't kissed me for a week? Mr. Younglove—Y-yes, darling. I was just waiting to see how long it would take you to notice it.—Boston Transcript.

"Helen," said her mother, "if you are naughty you can't go to heaven." "Well," said Helen, "I can't expect to go everywhere. I went to 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' once, and to the circus twice."—The Housekeeper.

Sapleigh—Bah Jove, you know, an idea has occurred to me—— Miss Pert (interrupting)—Pardon me, Mr. Sapleigh, isn't that more than a mere occurrence? I should call it an event.—Boston Transcript.

Her Father—Yesterday I won the prize in the lottery, and to-day you come and ask me for my daughter's hand. Suitor—Yes, you know, one bit of good luck always brings another.—Meggendorfer Blaetter.

First Chauffeur—You're a bum driver. Second Ditto—Say, what I know about automobiles would fill a library. First Chauffeur—Yes, and what you don't know about 'em would fill a morgue.—The Club-Fellow.

Traveling Salesman—Well, Mr. Jabez, did you get in to see the Hudson Fulton celebration? Farmer Jabez—No; I didn't come nigh the place 'cause d'ye know, I don't believe either of 'em ever reached the pole!—Puck.

Joynes—I tell you, Singleton, you don't know the joys and felicities of a contented married life, the happy flight of years, the long, restful calm of—— Singelton—How long have you been married? Joynes—Just a month.—Tit-Bits.

"I am going to embark in some sort of business, and want to know whether you think there is much money in moving pictures?" "There was for a fellow who moved a half-dozen of ours," said the flat dweller. "He charged us $10."—St. Louis Star.

"To-morrow will be my birthday," remarked the fair typewriter maid, "and I'm going to take a day off." "Huh!" sneered the bookkeeper, who had loved and lost, "why don't you take five years off as you did the last time you had a birthday?"—Chicago Daily News.

"Can I get the silver service for the fire department?" inquired the young man at the free library. "The what?" asked the girl at the desk. "The silver service for the fire department—the questions they ask you when you take the silver service examinations you know."—Newark Evening News.

Stubb—What's the trouble, old chap? You look angry enough to fight. Penn—Oh, I'm sizzling. It took me an hour to button my wife's waist in the back and then I told her a joke and she laughed so much the buttons all flew open. What's the use in telling a woman a joke, anyhow?—Chicago News.

Not an Umpire.

A clergyman startled his drowsy congregation the other day as follows: "My dearly beloved friends, permit me to remind you that I come here to preach, not to act as umpire in a snoring match."

The Explanation.

Fred—There seems to be a lot more fuss made of Miss A.'s singing than Miss K.'s, and I am sure Miss K. has by far the richer voice. Jack—Ah, yes, but Miss A. has by far the richer father.

What the man with a good job needs is a fire-insurance policy.

0469

L1134

FEBRUARY

A COUNTRY WHOSE SOIL SPELLS WHEAT

And Out of Whose Farms Thousands Are Growing Rich

What President Taft and Others Think About Canada

Another Fat Year for the Canadian West

Our Canadian neighbors to the north are again rejoicing over an abundant harvest, and reports from reliable sources go to show that the total yield of 1909 will be far above that of any other year.

It is estimated that $100,000,000 will this year go into the pockets of the western farmers from wheat alone, another $60,000,000 from oats and barley, while returns from other crops and from stock will add $40,000,000 more. Is it any wonder then that the farmers of the Canadian West are happy?

Thousands of American farmers have settled in the above mentioned provinces during the past year; men who know the West and its possibilities, and who also know, perhaps better than any other people, the best methods for profitable farming.

President Taft said recently, in speaking of Canada:

"We have been going ahead so rapidly in our own country that our heads have been somewhat swelled with the idea that we are carrying on our shoulders all the progress there is in the world. We have not been conscious that there is on the north a young country and a young nation that is looking forward, as it well may, to a great national future. They have 7,000,000 people, but the country is still hardly scratched."

James J. Hill, speaking before the Canadian Club of Winnipeg a few days ago, said:

"I go back for 53 years, when I came west from Canada. At that time Canada had no Northwest. A young boy or man who desired to carve his own way had to cross the line, and today it may surprise you—one out of every five children born in Canada lives in the United States. Now you are playing the return match, and the Northwest is getting people from the United States very rapidly. We brought 100 land-seekers, mainly from Iowa and Southern Minnesota, last night, out of St. Paul, going to the Northwest. Now, these people have all the way from five, ten to twenty thousand dollars each, and they will make as much progress on the land in one year as any one man coming from the Continent of Europe can make, doing the best he can do, in ten, fifteen or twenty years."

It is evident from the welcome given American settlers in Canada that the Canadian people appreciate them. Writing from Southern Alberta recently, an American farmer says:

"We are giving them some new ideas about being good farmers, and they are giving us some new ideas about being good citizens. They have a law against taking liquor into the Indian reservation. One of our fellows was caught on a reservation with a bottle on him, and it cost him $50. One of the Canadian mounted police found him, and let me tell you, they find everyone who tries to go up against the laws of the country.

On Saturday night every bar-room is closed at exactly 7 o'clock. Why? Because it is the law, and it's the same with every other law. There isn't a bad man in the whole district, and a woman can come home from town to the farm at midnight; if she wants to, alone. That's Canada's idea how to run a frontier; they have certainly taught us a lot.

On the other hand, we are running their farms for them better than any other class of farmers. I guess I can say this without boasting, and the Canadians appreciate us. We turn out to celebrate Dominion Day; they are glad to have us help to farm the country; they know how to govern; we know how to work."

Another farmer, from Minnesota, who settled in Central Saskatchewan some years ago, has the following to say about the country:

"My wife and I have done well enough since we came from the States; we can live, anyway. We came in the spring of 1901, with the first carload of settlers' effects unloaded in these parts, and built the first shanty between Saskatoon and Lumsden. We brought with our car of settlers' effects the sum of $1,800 in cash, today we are worth $40,000. We 'proved up' one of the finest farms in Western Canada, and bought 320 acres at $3 per acre. We took good crops off the land for four years, at the end of which we had $8,000 worth of improvements in the way of buildings, etc., and had planted three acres of trees. Two years ago we got such a good offer that we sold our land at $45 per acre. From the above you will see that we have not done badly since our arrival."

Prof. Thomas Shaw, of St. Paul, Minnesota, with a number of other well known editors of American farm journals, toured Western Canada recently, and in an interview at Winnipeg said, in part:

"With regard to the settlement of the West I should say that it is only well begun. I have estimated that in Manitoba one-tenth of the land had been broken, in Saskatchewan one-thirtieth, and in Alberta, one-hundred and seventy-fifth. I am satisfied that in all three provinces grain can be grown successfully up to the sixtieth parallel, and in the years to come your vacant lands will be taken at a rate of which you have at present no conception. We have enough people in the United States alone, who want homes, to take up this land.

What you must do in Western Canada is to raise more live stock. When you are doing what you ought to do in this regard the land which is now selling for $20 an acre will be worth from $50 to $100 per acre. It is a good land as that which is selling for more than $100 per acre in the corn belt.

I would sooner raise cattle in Western Canada than in the corn belt of the United States. You can get your food cheaper and the climate is better for the purpose. We have a better market, but your market will improve faster than your farmers will produce the supplies. Winter wheat can be grown in one-half of the country through which I have passed, and alfalfa and one of the varieties of clover in three-fourths of it. The farmers do not believe this, but it is true."

Keeping pace with wheat production, the growth of railways has been quite as wonderful, and the whole country, from Winnipeg to the Rocky Mountains, will soon be a net-work of trunk and branch lines. Three great transcontinental lines are pushing construction in every direction, and at each siding the grain elevator is to be found. Manitoba being the first settled province, has now an elevator capacity of upwards of 25,000,000 bushels; Saskatchewan, 20,000,000, and Alberta about 7,000,000, while the capacity of elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur on the Great Lakes, is upwards of 20,000,000 more.

Within the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta there are flour and oatmeal mills with a combined capacity of 25,000 barrels per day, and situated along some famous water powers in New Ontario, there are larger mills than will be found anywhere in the prairie provinces.

Last year the wheat crop totalled over 100,000,000 bushels. This year the crop will yield 30,000,000 more. A recent summary shows that on the 1st of January, 1909, the surveyed lands of the three western provinces totalled 134,000,000 acres, of which about 32,000,000 have been given as subsidies to railways, 11,000,000 disposed of in other ways, and 38,000,000 given by the Canadian government as free homesteads, being 236,000 homesteads of 160 acres each. Of this enormous territory, there is probably under crop at the present time less than 11,000,000 acres; what the results will be when wide awake settlers have taken advantage of Canada's offer and are cultivating the fertile prairie lands one can scarcely imagine.

WESTERN CANADA

What Governor Deneen, of Illinois, Says About It:

Governor Deneen, of Illinois, owns a section of land in Saskatchewan, Canada. He has said in an interview:

"As an American I am delighted to see the remarkable progress of Western Canada. Our people are flocking across the boundary in thousands, and I have not yet met one who admitted he had made a mistake. They are all doing well. There is scarcely a community in the Middle or Western States that has not a representative in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta."

125 Million Bushels of Wheat in 1909

Western Canada field crops for 1909 will easily yield to the farmer $170,000,000.00 in cash.

Free Homesteads of 160 acres, and pre-emptions of 160 acres at $3.00 an acre. Railway and Land Companies have land for sale at reasonable prices. Many farmers have paid for their land out of the proceeds of one crop. Splendid climate, good schools, excellent railway facilities, low freight rates, wood, water and lumber easily obtained.

For pamphlet "Last Best West," particulars as to suitable location and low settlers' rate, apply to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to the following Canadian Gov't Agents: W. H. Rogers, 34 Floor Traction Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Ind., and H. M. Williams, Room 10, Law Building, Toledo, Ohio. (Use address nearest you.)

Please say where you saw this advertisement.

Let us do your Printing using

Eagle Linen

for your office stationery. You can get the paper and envelopes to match.

It is the real thing. Take no stand.

FARM AND GARDEN

Why Boys Leave the Farm.

An official connected with an eastern agricultural college has made a summary of the reasons given by 155 sons of farmers for abandoning the pursuit of their fathers. Sixty-two of this number said that farming does not pay. A strong argument can be made on the idea that it pays better than other forms of business. The secretary of agriculture has stated that the products of the soil in this country in 1905 reached a value of $6,000,000,000, which is a good deal of wealth to divide up as a reward in one industry. Seventeen of the young men said the hours of labor on the farm are too long. No doubt they meant at certain seasons, but this is a detail open to adjustment. Twenty-six thought social advantages on the farms are not equal to those in cities, which is also a matter of opinion. Sixteen said they had a natural bent for something else, which is a point that deserves consideration always. Others objected to farm monotony, and fifteen said they would return to farming as soon as they made a pile of money at something else.

Many of these young men are the victims of illusion, and, unfortunately, of a kind curable only by experience. Probably they are not aware that 90 per cent of those who branch out into general business fail to accumulate any considerable wealth, while the positive wreckage in means, health and comfort is large. A farm is never monotonous to a good farmer. It is rather a book of fresh interest each succeeding day. A surplus at the end of a year is the rule on the farm; in the city a surplus is the exception, and the style of family living, on the whole, is in favor of the country. But statistics show that plenty of boys remain on the farms. The farming population of the United States in 1900 was four times as large as in 1850, and the value of their property increased five fold, or from $4,000,000,000 to $20,000,000.

Do Farmers Read Bulletins?

I have noticed one thing in particular while traveling in some of our best agricultural states, and that is, when I see a number of well dressed farmers discussing beef and milk rations, feeding young animals for a healthy development, nitrogen, potassium and phosphorus and their functions in plant growth and protein and carbohydrates and their functions in animal growth, I am invariably in a prosperous and up-to-date community. Now, the question is, do the best and most intelligent farmers read their bulletins and keep in touch with their station workers and read the agricultural press, or does the reading of these bulletins and agricultural papers make more intelligent farmers? It is one or the other considered from either standpoint, for these bulletins and agricultural papers are not read by the poor and uneducated class of farmers, neither do they circulate as freely among the poorer farmers as they do among the farmers in the better agricultural communities. — Agricultural Epitomist.

Stick to the Farm!

"Stick to the farm," says the President
To the wide-eyed farmer boy,
Then he hies him back to the White House home,
With its air of rustic joy.

"Stick to the farm," says the railroad king
To the lad who looks afar,
Then hikes him back on the double quick
To his rustic private car.

"Stick to the farm," says the clergyman
To the youth on the worm fence perch,
Then he lays his ear to the ground to hear
A call to a city church.

"Stick to the farm," says the doctor wise,
To those who would break the rut,
Then hies him where the appendix grows
In bountiful crops to cut.

—McLandburgh Wilson in New York Sun.

Vitality of Seeds.

The period for which the seeds of different plants maintains their vitality varies a good deal. The seeds of some vegetables are worthless after they are two years old, while the seeds of other plants improve with age until a certain period. For instance: the seeds of artichokes are good until they are three years old; asparagus, four years; beans, two years; kidney beans, one year; beets, ten years; broccoli, four years; cabbage, four years; carrot, one year; cauliflower, four years; celery, ten years; corn, three years; cucumber, ten years; egg plant, three years; endive, four years; kale, four years; leek, two years; lettuce, three years; melon, ten years; pea, two years; okra, two years; onion, two years; pumpkin, ten years; radish, four years; salsify, two years, spinach, four years; squash, four years; tomato, two years, and turnips, four years.

Grafting Trees for Nuts.

The experiment of growing walnuts on oak trees is, according to newspaper reports, being conducted successfully by E. M. Price of Sacramento, Cal., who has a large number of new species about his home. The nuts are said to grow about three times as large as those in the market. The product is the result of cutting the limbs of walnut trees and grafting them into oaks.

No Use for the Horns.

When cattle were raised on the range a good set of horns was necessary for protection. An all-wise creator put them there for that purpose. On the farm a cow or a steer is not in need of horns. Breeders are breeding them off very rapidly. Even the long-horned Hereford has a polled strain now, and it is predicted by many that within twenty-five years a horned animal of the bovine race will be a curiosity. On the other hand, advocates of horns say the hornless strain of every horned breed is undersized, and until it can come up to those that have horns in size and weight people will want the horned cattle of both shorthorn and Hereford breeds. However, there is no reason for leaving the horns on after they are there. The time to take them off is when the animal is young, and the way to do it is with any of the prepared horn killers. But take them off with the saw rather than let them go. It is more humane to do it than not to do it.—Farmers' Mail and Breeze.

Brush for Soil Wash.

There is nothing quite so good as fine brush to catch and hold soil wash. Where small trees are used to fill a gully the top of the tree should be placed toward the head of the gully, so that all soil and trash coming down will be caught in the forks of the branches. If the tree is placed in the opposite direction the descending trash will slip more easily by and over it. For the same reason, in filling a gully with brush and branches, the tops of the brush should be placed upstream.

Where gullies have been formed during the summer by soil washing it is well to fill them as early as possible in the fall while the leaves are still on the brush with which they are filled. When they are filled early and before the leaves of the trees have fallen, many leaves, as well as grass and weeds that may be blown about the fields by fall and winter winds will be caught in the brush to decay, will help fill and will form good soil. The brush itself will decay in a year or two, so that when the gully is filled it cannot only be plowed over, but will become the best soil. Never fill a gully with soil, unless some brush or similar material is put in the bottom to hold the soil.

In mending a steep place in the roadside, briers, brush and all fence row mowings make good material to lay down to place the dirt upon. If rocks are available it is best to first lay brush in the place to be filled, then place the rocks upon the brush, and last the dirt upon the rocks and brush. These will hold and bind the dirt until it becomes settled and firm, and it will be less subject to washing and being cut up by travel in wet weather. Never burn a bit of brush on the place, but put it to some good use.

Breeding Swine.

In breeding swine or live stock of any kind the breeder should have a well defined object in view, a point toward which to work, a type, an ideal, if you will, well fixed in his mind.

All hogs of the same breed are not alike, and it is this fact that makes improvement of any breed possible. There are different types of the same breed for the breeder to select from, and the intelligence and judgment used in the selection of the animals reserved for breeders will sooner or later demonstrate the success or failure of the breeder. Of course, methods of feeding and care cut an important figure. Many men who are good feeders of swine are very poor breeders, but few good breeders are poor feeders.

The tendency of all our improved animals is to revert backward toward the original type, and in the case of swine it should be borne in mind that while there is no stock that can be so rapidly improved by judicious selection, care and feed, there is none that will degenerate so quickly under neglect.—Kansas Farmer.

Scab in Sheep.

The disease commonly called sheep scab is one of the oldest known, most prevalent and most injurious maladies which affect sheep. It is a contagious skin disease caused by a parasitic mite. Investigation has shown that the disease is not hereditary, as the parasites which cause it live on the external surface of the body. It is possible, however, for a lamb to become infected from a scabby mother at the moment of birth or immediately thereafter. The treatment must consist of external cures to "purify the blood." Proper hygienic conditions alone, though of importance in connection with the subject of treatment, cannot be relied upon to cure scab. The only rational treatment consists in using some external application which will kill the parasites. By far the most rational and satisfactory and the cheapest method of curing scab is by dipping the sheep in some liquid which will kill the parasites.

Forcing Plants to Bloom.

A newly discovered plan for forcing plants for securing blooms out of season consists of immersing shoots by inversion in water at a temperature of 30 to 35 degrees C. for nine or 12 hours, and afterward keeping the plants in a dark, moist chamber at a temperature of about 25 degrees until the leaves commence to appear, after which the plants are grown under ordinary greenhouse conditions. Lilacs, azaleas, spiraes, etc., treated as above during the middle of November were in bloom at Christmas or early in January.

Silo Feeding.

Not only must the silo be erected, shelter must be provided for the cattle during winter. Then if corn is fed in the form of silage there will be successful results. A great many farms buy stock cattle in the fall of the year, turn them into stalk fields and resell them toward spring as feeders. If the market is normal there will usually be a profit, but it, nevertheless, is a wasteful practice. A much greater profit would be secured from silo feeding as mentioned.

The Cost of Keeping a Cow.

According to careful experiments, the cost of keeping a cow a year with the best of feed and shelter, labor and interest on the investment included, all told, amounts to $55. If, then, the cow can not be made to produce more than $55, she is not worth keeping. A good cow ought to produce at least $110, or double the cost of her keep.

Dolphin and Flying Fish.

A ship was lying at anchor at Boca Grande, says the Punta Gorda Herald, lately when the crew observed a dolphin chasing a flying fish, both coming directly toward the ship. On nearing the vessel the flier arose in the air and passed over the bow just abaft the foremast. As it did so the dolphin went under the ship and, coming up on the other side, sprang from the water and caught the flying fish on "the fly" just as it was curving gracefully down in its descent to the water.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. Easy to take.

Precocious Foresight.

"Tommy," said the teacher, "you have made some inexcusable mistakes in your geography lesson."

"Yes'm," said the precocious youth. "When I'm a man I'm going to be an explorer. I want to avoid the minute accuracy which will lead people to discredit my observations."

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS. PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

Trouble in His Brain Pan.

"Doctor," said the little Boston boy, "you are an alienist, are you not?"

"Yes," answered the distinguished physician, "that is the particular branch of medical practice to which I devote myself. Can I do anything for you?"

"You can assist me, perhaps, in allaying a serious apprehension that has arisen in my mind. This morning, doctor, I found myself saying 'fossiliferous' when I was trying to say 'palaeontological.' Does that indicate aphasia, or is it merely temporary heterophemy?"

Lead pencils were first made in the United States in 1811 by William Monroe, at Concord, Mass.

TRIALS of the NEEDEMS

RESOLVED—THAT WHENEVER I AM BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED, SUFFER WITH INDIGESTION OR ANY LIVER TROUBLE, I WILL TAKE A PAW-PAW PILL—10 PILLS 10¢.

Munyon's Paw Paw Pills coax the liver into activity by gentle methods. They do not scour, gripe or weaken. They are a tonic to the stomach, liver and nerves; invigorate instead of weaken. They enrich the blood and enable the stomach to get all the nourishment from food that is put into it. These pills contain no calomel; they are soothing, healing and stimulating. For sale by all druggists in 10c and 25c sizes. If you need medical advice, write Munyon's Doctors. They will advise to the best of their ability absolutely free of Charge. MUNYON'S, 53d and Jefferson Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.

Munyon's Cold Remedy cures a cold in one day. Price 25c. Munyon's Rheumatism Remedy relieves in a few hours and cures in a few days. Price 25c.

Scarcely Negotiable.

"Well, you have heard my voice," said the aspiring cantatrice. "Can you recommend it as good security for a loan to be repaid in a year or two?"

"For the most part, yes, madam," answered the cautious manager; "but I really could not indorse your high notes."

Late Polar Controversy.

The king of France marched up the hill with 40,000 men.

"I wish plenty of witnesses," he explained.

His purpose accomplished, he forthwith marched down.—New York Sun.

Red Cross Ball Blue

Should be in every home. Ask your grocer for it. Large 2oz. package, 5 cents.

The figures of this country's wheat crop indicate not only a larger home consumption as a result of increased population, but also a larger consumption per capita.

PERRY DAVIS PAINKILLER has no substitute. No other remedy is so effective for rheumatism, lumbago, stiffness, neuralgia, or cold of any sort. Put up in 25c, 35c and 50c bottles.

Mrs. Fred Wilmerding, once a leader of fashion in Paris, has opened a curiosity shop in Florence, hoping thereby to retrieve her fortunes.

Stops Lameness

Much of the chronic lameness in horses is due to neglect.

See that your horse is not allowed to go lame. Keep Sloan's Liniment on hand and apply at the first sign of stiffness. It's wonderfully penetrating — goes right to the spot — relieves the soreness — limbers up the joints and makes the muscles elastic and pliant.

Here's the Proof.

Mr. G. T. Roberts of Resaca, Ga., R.F.D. No. 1, Box 43, writes: — "I have used your Liniment on a horse for sweeny and effected a thorough cure. I also removed a spavin on a mule. This spavin was as large as a guinea egg. In my estimation the best remedy for lameness and soreness is

Sloan's Liniment

Mr. H. M. Gibbs, of Lawrence, Kans., R.F.D. No. 3, writes: — "Your Liniment is the best that I have ever used. I had a mare with an abscess on her neck and one 50c. bottle of Sloan's Liniment entirely cured her. I keep it around all the time for galls and small swellings and for everything about the stock."

Sloan's Liniment will kill a spavin, curb or splint, reduce wind puffs and swollen joints, and is a sure and speedy remedy for fistula, sweeney, founder and thrush.

Price 50c. and $1.00

Sloan's book on horses, cattle, sheep and poultry sent free. Address

Dr. Earl S. Sloan, Boston, Mass., U. S. A.

When You're Hoarse Use PISO'S CURE

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS AND COLDS

Gives immediate relief. The first dose relieves your aching throat and allays the irritation. Guaranteed to contain no opiates. Very palatable.

All Druggists, 25c.

VETERINARY COURSE AT HOME

$1200 year and upwards can be made taking our Veterinary Course at home during spare time; taught in simplest English; Diploma granted, positions obtained for successful students; cost within reach of all; satisfaction guaranteed; particulars free. Ontario Veterinary Correspondence School, Dept. 10, London, Canada

USE

SAFETY ANTI-PAIN CAPSULES

HEADACHE · LAGRIPPE · NEURALGIA

PRICE—10 CENTS.

THE HOUSEHOLD

Roast Partridge.

Clean and open the bird as you would any fowl, lay in strong salt water three or four hours, not more; if not then ready to use put away on ice. Make a dressing of bread crumbs, butter, salt and pepper and to each bird allow four or five oysters in the stuffing. Replace in a pan and put over them some butter, pepper and enough water to make a gravy; sift a little flour over all. Lay a small piece of pickled pork on each breast, baste frequently and bake forty-five minutes in a good oven. Serve with currant jelly.

Mock Turtle Soup.

This soup is favored by those who prefer thick soup. The basis is a stock prepared from the hind shins of beef and knuckles of veal, thickened with browned flour and flavored with a blend of spices, herbs and sherry. To the stock is added cubes of meat cut from parboiled calves' heads and simmered until tender. Mock turtle soup should be very smooth and seasoned to suit the taste of the consumer.

Victoria Chicken.

Make a sauce of one-fourth cup of butter, one-fourth cup of flour and one cup chicken stock. To this add a cup mushrooms (may be omitted), one cup drained peas, one-half cup tomato pulp and a cup and a half of chicken, cut into small pieces with scissors. Add what seasoning is necessary. Serve on toast or in croutards. The bits of turkey, goose or chicken picked from the bones will do for this nicely.

Escalloped Cabbage.

Chop a head of cabbage quite fine, and scald. Melt two tablespoons of butter in a saucepan and smooth with two of flour, a dash of cayenne. Add two tablespoons of melted butter and the juice of half a lemon. Pour into a buttered dish and bake in a slow oven until firm. Serve hot with white sauce.

Suet Paste.

One pound of sifted flour, one teaspoonful of salt, six ounces of beef suet, one cupful of ice water. Remove all the fibers from the suet and chop it fine. Rub in the flour and salt with the hands. Then add enough water to make a soft dough. Roll out. To be used for meat pies and apple dumplings.

Cauliflower Fritters.

Break up a boiled head of cauliflower and dip each sprig in slightly warm bechamel sauce and lay on a dish to cool. Then dip each one in a rich egg fritter batter, and fry until a delicate brown. Drain on brown paper, lay on a hot dish and garnish with fried parsley.

Ice Cream Made Without Eggs.

Two quarts milk, one pint cream, one-third box of gelatin, sugar and flavor to taste. More cream and less milk makes it still better. Heat a little of the milk to dissolve the gelatin in.

Red Currant Ice.

Soak one tablespoonful gelatine in cold water to cover. When soft dissolve in one cup boiling water. Mix with it 2 more cups water, 2 cups sugar, 2 cups red currant juice and the juice of a lemon. Freeze.

Hints About the Home.

Windows may be kept from icing by rubbing glass with a sponge dipped in alcohol.

For a change try putting a dozen chopped raisins in a boiled frosting, adding them just before spreading on the cake.

If the lamp wick moves up and down with difficulty, a simple remedy is to pull out a few threads at either side of the wick.

Turpentine should be sprayed or sprinkled in the haunts of cockroaches. It will often quite destroy the pests and will always disperse them.

A clean fire for grilling purposes can be obtained by sprinkling over it a little powdered niter. This is used by all first class chefs and grill cooks.

Paraffin used on the tops of preserve glasses can be saved until the next season by washing in cold water and putting in a tin box with an air-tight lid.

Old pie pans that are too battered for ordinary use can be stood in the bottom of the kettle closet to hold the kettles. This prevents blackening of the floor.

To prevent rust on polished steel, dissolve one ounce of bleached shellac in one pint and one-fifth of spirit of wine; warm the steel and give it a flowing coat of this lacquer.

Carpets should be beaten on the wrong side first and then, more gently, on the right. Never put a carpet down on a damp floor, for this often results in the carpet becoming mildewed.

To remove the bitter taste from cooked cranberries before taking from the fire add a pinch of baking soda. Then skim off the green scum, put through a sieve and it is ready for use.

Squash or custard pie is much nicer if the pastry is made and spread on the plate the day before baking. This discovery was made by preparing pies on Saturday for Sunday's baking and eating.

A square of house flannel of the stoutest and coarsest description made into a bag and put over the broom is the best means of sweeping boards or linoleum. When slightly dampened it takes up instead of scattering the dust.

Coffee taffy is a new confection. Instead of water, use coffee to dilute the sugar. Cook in the usual manner and pull the taffy the same as the old-fashioned variety. As it begins to stiffer roll the candy in ground nuts and break into desired lengths.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Trial Kidney Remedy Free.

The proprietors of Doan's Kidney Remedy offer in another part of this paper a free trial of their renowned specific for Kidney diseases. By cutting out the coupon in another column and sending it to Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., a trial of the remedy will be sent without charge. This shows the confidence of the proprietors in the efficacy of the remedy, else they would not undergo this great expense.

The Light of Truth.

"The late Henry C. Lea, of Philadelphia," said a Boston publisher, "was the world's foremost authority on the Spanish Inquisition. To this subject he devoted his life. He was a realist. He sought only the truth. He threw romantic lights over nothing. He believed that the truth gave the best effects of all. Once, to illustrate the striking effects that the truth gave, he said that Byron—though it is not generally known—put a second enclosure in the envelope to his wife containing the beautiful lines:

Fare thee well! And if forever,
Still forever fare thee well!

"The second enclosure was a butcher's bill, on which, in his fine hand, the poet had scrawled:

"'Please look over this, as I don't believe we had so much meat in the time stated.'"

The Professor.

The Doctor—One of my patients has been so worried by fear of burglars that she is in danger of losing her reason.

The Professor—Just a woman's reason!

Did you ever have a good, old-fashioned boy's stomach ache? Of course you have. A little dose of Hamlins Wizard Oil will chase away a colicky pain in the stomach like magic.

No Formalities.

"You had a housewarming the other evening, Mrs. Guernsey? You didn't say a word about it to me!"

"O, it was quite impromptu and informal, Mrs. Jipes. The janitor turned on the heat."

All Up-to-Date Housekeepers Use Red Cross Ball Blue. It makes the clothes clean and sweet as when new. All Grocers.

Would Be Taken Care Of.

"I fear I am not worthy of you."

"Never mind about that," responded the young lady with the square jaw. "Between mother and myself we can effect the necessary improvements."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A TRIFLING COUGH will become a permanent one unless stopped. A[illegible]'s Lung Balsam will surely stop it. A 25c bottle [illegible]ne enough for that. Sold by all druggists, 25c. [illegible] $1.00 bottles.

Obituary Poem.

This is the end of the story,
Whispered with bated breath;
The north pole sent this message:
"I am dying—talked to death!"
—Denver Republican.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

Camphor oil is manufactured by Parsee merchants. At Foochow, China, they control seventeen distilleries, and export most of the produce to India.

Sleeping with Feet Raised.

Among the pernicious things that we have all been doing without knowing it is sleeping with a pillow under our heads. No longer if we value health and happiness may we bury our weary heads in these soft and soothing depths. It is the feet that want elevation, not the head, says a German doctor, and a pillow isn't big enough to raise them to the required height. The doctor has the foot end of his bed elevated about eight inches and says that in this position his circulation is better and that his brain and nerves have profited thereby.

Are the millions wrong — those millions who use candy Cascarets? They seek what you seek—bowel action; but they choose a gentle way. Instead of harsh cathartics, which make the bowels hard, they use a natural yet effective help. 25

CUT THIS OUT, mail it with your address to Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Ill., and receive a handsome souvenir gold Bon Bon Box FREE.

AGENTS WANTED. To introduce our beautiful Spring Suitings, Silks and fine Cotton Fabrics. Large sample outfit free, by express prepaid. No money required. Liberal credit to responsible agents. Write and secure territory now. National Dress Goods Co., (Dept. B) 260 W. Broadway, New York City.

TEXAS RANCHES and farms, $2.00 an acre and up. Mild climate, good crops and fine lands cheap. On easy terms, enchancements of value certain. Write for list. Ganahl Walker, 228 W. Commerce St., San Antonio, Texas.

RESPONSIBLE AGENTS. Big money maker. All localities to introduce Antifire. Sells on sight. 10c covers mailage and sample. Free Booklet. Antifire Co., 224 W. 35th St., New York.

ABOUT TOBACCO and its effects. Book for tobacco users and non-users. Instructive reading. Send $1 for copy and agent's terms to the Slocum Publishing Co., Toledo, Ohio.

FOR SALE—Developed mines. Any size tract of mineral timber, fruit vineyard and farm land. R. L. Workman, St. Joe, Ark.

When writing to Advertisers please say you saw the Adv. in this paper.

Stomach Blood and Liver Troubles

Much sickness starts with weak stomach, and consequent poor, impoverished blood. Nervous and pale-people lack good, rich, red blood. Their stomachs need invigorating for, after all, a man can be no stronger than his stomach.

A remedy that makes the stomach strong and the liver active, makes rich red blood and overcomes and drives out disease-producing bacteria and cures a whole multitude of diseases.

Get rid of your Stomach Weakness and Liver Laziness by taking a course of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—the great Stomach Restorative, Liver Invigorator and Blood Cleanser.

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine of known composition, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

CURES CONSTIPATION, BILIOUSNESS, RHEUMATISM, STOMACH AND LIVER COMPLAINT

GET A 25c BOX ALL DRUGGISTS

Nature's Remedy NR-TABLETS-NR

EASY—SURE TO ACT

BETTER THAN PILLS FOR LIVER ILLS

A. H. LEWIS MEDICINE CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

0470

L1134

FEBRUARY

CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS

Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

Our Correspondence

We will be pleased to have a letter each week from each one of our correspondents.

Smithfield

People took advantage of the fine winter weather Sunday. There were quite a number of parties enjoying a a good old bobsled ride.

Mrs. Emma Porter, of Angola, was in Waterloo Saturday transacting business and calling on friends.

John Kiplinger and wife visited Albert Kauffmans' and Mr. and Mrs. John Lowe Tuesday. Mrs. Lowe has been in poor health for several weeks.

Mrs. Katie Porter and daughter, Mabel, visited the past week with her sister, Mrs. Minnie King, of near Ashley.

Will Stuller, wife and son, Ralph, visited Mr. Stuller's brother and family at Edon, Ohio, Sunday.

Albert Kauffman received a message Saturday from his brother who resides at Chicago that his brother's wife died. She leaves a husband and two small children and many other relatives to mourn her departure.

Perry Porter, wife and daughter, Mabel, Pearl Lowe and John Durst were Sunday guests of John Kiplinger and wife.

Mrs. John Kiplinger received a photo postal of the Purdue University campus LaFayette, Ind., Thursday, from her niece, Grace Lowe, stating she was well and enjoying her studies, but was lonely to hear from her friends.

Norris Chapel

The L. A. S. meets with Mrs. Thell Wilson Thursday of this week for all day's work.

Miss Minnie Crooks is sewing for Mrs. John Souders this week.

O. M. Nimmons and wife entertained Wm. Metcalf and family at dinner last Sunday.

Thell Wilson and wife visited Sunday with the latter's brother, Ward Baughman and wife.

Trustee Brandon called a meeting last Tuesday night at school house No. 5, for the purpose of letting the wood job. Chris Beard being the lowest bidder is to furnish the wood for next year.

A copy of the Butler Record has again been brought to our notice, wherein practically the same statements in regard to centralization of schools are made again that were made some time ago. We do not care to argue the question with them for they evidently know little of the situation and needs of the country people, but what we aim to do is to put the people of the country to thinking so that when some one with some selfish motive tries to tell them what is best for their children they will have thought the matter over for themselves. We are not posing as a public instructor as the Record accuses us, but we do know some things about the public school system of Indiana. One of our leading educators of this county, one who has had a wide experience in matters pertaining to schools, has been heard to say, "Keep your children in the country schools." Why does he say this? A greater per cent of the children from the district schools are stronger both mentally and physically than those of the town schools, notwithstanding the educational advantages of centralization in the towns. Educational advantage is of great value, but we claim that certain other things cannot be sacrificed for this alone. The Record states that the only real problem in regard to centralization is the transportation of the pupils. Let a plan first be perfected and demonstrated then it is time enough to bring it before the people. Don't try put a one side, unmatured plan upon the country people or it will be sure to fail as it has already done in many places. The country people are willing to be educated, but they are not willing to be blindly persuaded into things that are not for the general welfare of their children.

Nervous Prostration

"I suffered so with Nervous Prostration that I thought there was no use trying to get well. A friend recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine, and although skeptical at first, I soon found myself recovering, and am to-day well."
MRS. D. I. JONES,
5800 Broadway, Cleveland, O.

Much sickness is of nervous origin. It's the nerves that make the heart force the blood through the veins, the lungs take in oxygen, the stomach digest food, the liver secrete bile and the kidneys filter the blood. If any of these organs are weak, it is the fault of the nerves through which they get their strength. Dr. Miles' Nervine is a specific for the nerves. It soothes the irritation and assists in the generation of nerve force. Therefore you can hardly miss it if you take Dr. Miles' Nervine when sick. Get a bottle from your druggist. Take it all according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.

D. V. HIER, V. M. D., M. F.
Veterinary Surgeon and Dentist
Attends promptly answered day or night
OFFICE AT RESIDENCE
PHONE NUMBER 21

Needed the Year Around

You needn't suffer with sick headache, indigestion, constipation or any other trouble arising from disordered stomach, liver or bowels. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will cure you and keep you well. It is a wonderful laxative and regulator. It is safe and pleasant to take and should be in every American household. Tens of thousands already use it. It is absolutely guaranteed to do what is claimed and if you want to try it before buying, send your address for a free sample bottle to Pepsin Syrup Co., 119 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1 a bottle. 5-1m

Do you know that croup can be prevented? Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It is also a certain cure for croup and has never been known to fail. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 5-1m

BUTLER MARKETS

PRODUCE

The following prices are paid for produce and other farm products by Butler merchants:

Eggs	$ 26
Butter	24
Lard	14
Potatoes	40
HAY, GRAIN AND WOOL
Wheat (per bu.)	$ 1.20
Oats	45
Rye	70
Corn (per cwt.)	85
Red Clover (per bu.)	7.75
Alsike (per bu.)	6.75
Hay	14.00
POULTRY
chi kens	.11

Franklin

Mrs. Frank Schrader spent Saturday and Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Chas. Potter, near Hamilton, who is quite ill.

Will Rohrbaugh and family, of Waterloo, moved in this neighborhood last week.

Bert Huntington, wife and daughter, Vernie, are spending a few days with friends at Newville.

Little Frank Rose was quite sick last Sunday night.

Little Cecil Fifer, who has been very sick the past week, is improving.

Milan Mann and family were the Sunday guests of Milton Anthony and family.

One of Milton Anthony's little girls is on the sick list at present.

C. G. Huntington entertained Arthur Deems and wife and Mrs. Minnie Thomas and daughter at dinner Sunday.

Bert Rose and wife spent Sunday with Cleve Rose and wife.

Mrs. George King was on the sick list last week, but is some better at present.

Misses Olive Fifer and Zella Huntington called on Mrs. Freeman Fifer Sunday.

C. G. Huntington was at Hicksville last Tuesday on business.

Charles Ratts and wife spent Sunday at the parental home.

Grandpa Oberlin and Frank Huntington and wife spent Sunday afternoon with John Huntington and wife.

While Mr. and Mrs. Milton Anthony and oldest son were out milking a week ago Sunday evening some cloth near the stove caught fire and set the couch aud carpet on fire, and the three little ones in the house were nearly suffocated with smoke when the parents came in. The fire was soon extinguished and not much damage done.

Mr. Johnson had a sale of personal property Tuesday and will move this coming spring near Chicago.

Sam Stickler snd wife moved last week on one of Sam Noragon's farms in west Franklin which was vacated by Mr. Moughler.

Church of Christ Items

Elder Coleman, of Berea, Kentucky, has accepted a call to this pastorate. The call was extended by the unanimous vote of the church on last Lord's day.

Elder Coleman will not be able to locate here and assume his duties before March 1.

Elder Shaw filled the pulpit last Lord's day morning and will continue to preach each Lord's day morning until the new minister arrives unless otherwise announced.

The young men's class of the Bible school are going to put forth special efforts to increase their attendance.

Prayer meeting and teachers' meeting at the usual hour Thursday evening.

On Friday evening there will be a business meeting of the Christian Endeavor in the church basement. Refreshments will be served. All are invited.

The Best Hour of Life

is when you do some great deed or discover some wonderful fact. This hour came to J. R. Pitt, of Rocky Mt., N. C. when he was suffering intensely as he says, "from the worst cold I ever had, I then proved to my great satisfaction, what a wonderful Cold and Cough cure Dr. King's New Discovery is. For, after taking one bottle, I was entirely cured. You can't say anything too good of a medicine like that." Its the safest and best remedy for diseased Lungs, Hemorrhages, La-Gripe, Asthma, Hay Fever, any Throat or Lung Trouble. 50c.$1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Stone's drug store. 5-1m

RAILWAY MAIL CLERKS WANTED

The Government Pays Railway Mail Clerks $800 to $1,200, and Other Employees Up to $2,500 Annually

Uncle Sam will hold spring examinations throughout the country for Railway Mail Clerks, Custom House Clerks, Stenographers, Bookkeepers, Departmental Clerks and other Government Positions. Thousands of appointments will be made. Any man or woman over 18, in City or Country can get Instruction and free information by writing at once to the Bureau of Instruction, 115 E Hamlin Building, Rochester, N. Y. 52-8m

Ladies shampoo and massage. First class barber work and baths. West side Broadway, Tomlinson's old stand. Give us a call. M. J. Harrigan, Prop.

HERALD ADVERTISING BRINGS RESULTS. TRY IT.

TRUSTEE'S REPORT

To Advisory Board, of Newville Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, For Year 1909.

Receipts Township Fund.

June 28	From Emery E Shook	$ 257 56
	St Joe Valley bank interest	10 31
July 31	" " " " "	2 98
Sept 1	" " " " "	2 35
Nov 1	" " " " "	2 63
Dec 1	" " " " "	2 26
Dec 23	Emery E Shook	208 70
	Total	487 39

Receipts Tuition Fund.

Jan 23	From Emery E Shook	309 89
June 28	Emery E Shook	456 27
	From John Fetters	94 50
	St Joe bank interest	6 76
July 28	Emery E Shook	347 34
	W F Nimmons	5 00
31	St Joe bank interest	1 85
Sept 1	St Joe bank interest	2 24
Nov 1	St Joe bank interest	2 17
Dec 1	St Joe bank interest	1 99
23	Emery E Shook	381 52
	Total	$1609 53

Receipts Special School Fund.

June 28	From Emery E Shook	$ 209 51
Aug 13	St Joe Valley bank, Tp order	200 00
Dec 23	Emery E Shook	171 22
	Total	580 73

Receipts Road Fund.

June 28	From Emery E Shook	109 38
Dec 23	From Emery E Shook	24 86
	Total	134 24

Receipts Additional Road Fund.

June 28	From Emery E Shook	398 20
Dec 23	From Emery E Shook	9 95
	Total	408 15

Receipts Dog Fund.

May 31	From Willard Tustison	48 00

Receipts Poor Fund.

Apr 27	From County Commissoners	11 81

Disbursements Township Fund.

Jan 18	To O D Inhofe	97
Feb 3	Henry Shaffer, Ditch ass'm't	5 00
6	J E Buchanan, Pub report and Trustee Abel	12 05
	John Whitehurst, Service as trus.	50 00
	The Courier Co, Pub report and trustee Abel	12 05
Apr 5	Orland Hatch, Work on bridge	7 25
15	Walter Whitehurst, work on bridge	7 25
May 28	Clyde Hart, Holding exam.	6 00
12	C Leroy Leonard, Road leveler	35 00
June 3	John Whitehurst, service and rent	68 00
11	L H Higley, printing Com cards	8 75
22	Mrs F J Stage, music for Com	12 00
July 3	Wm Miller, stove	5 00
16	John Varner, wood	25 00
27	L H Higley, tansfer to Butler	64 00
28	H A Kees, transfer to St Joe	16 00
30	L W Turner, school supplies	14 75
Aug 5	Daniel Bodiker, mowing cemetery	6 00
18	C Leroy Leonard, school supplies.	21 80
	C L Coburn, hauling gravel	1 00
29	Wm Seely, hauling cement blocks.	15 00
Sept 11	Frank Shcoles, survey school ground	1 50
12	Walter Whitehurst, work on closets	24 25
15	John Whitehurst, trustee service.	25 00
24	George Engle, carpenter work	11 00
Oct 19	Rickey & Co, lock and hardware	7 55
26	Claud Tarney, hauling lumber	2 00
27	Geo Engle, carpenter work and mat	36 10
29	Wm Meek, plastering	6 60
	Walter Whitehurst, tending mason	3 75
Nov 6	John Whitehurst, trustee service	25 00
22	C L Coburn, hauling gravel	5 00
23	Fred Countryman, cement blocks	48 24
Nov 26	Isaiah Davis, insurance	1 97
Dec 14	Campbell Bros, insurance	14 40
14	John Whitehurst, trustee service.	50 00
18	W S Tustison, Insp super election.	2 00
20	D H Goble & Co, Check book & War	10 90
23	C Leroy Leonard, suppiles	4 50
24	Hixon Lumber Co, lumber and tile	75 65
24	L H Higley, pub notice tax levy	2 00
27	Frank Shook, Road book	5 00
29	Geo F Delong, adv board service	5 00
	B F Greist, adv board service	5 00
	O J Baker, adv board service	5 00
	Bell Telephone Co, telephone rent.	6 00
	John Whitehurst, trustee service	52 00
	J Whitehurst, handling school books	5 00
	John Whitehurst, office rent	12 00
	Total	$845 28

Disbursements Tuition Fund.

Jan 16	Clyde Hart, teaching	40 00
Feb 25	Carl Shull, teaching	100 00
Apr 2	Grace Magginis, teaching	185 49
3	Carl Shull, teaching	148 64
10	Clyde Hart, teaching	203 09
May 28	Chas Conghanour, trans to Cipio Tp	12 00
Oct 9	Clyde Hart, teaching	30 00
16	Goldie Hobbs, teaching	25 00
	Geo E Wilson, teaching	50 00
	Clyde Hart, teaching	25 00
Nov 5	Goldie Hobbs, teaching	35 00
20	Geo E Wilson, teaching	50 00
23	Godlie Hobbs, teaching	10 00
Dec 11	Geo E Wilson teaching	125 00
3	Goldie Hobbs, teaching	25 00
18	Ova A Enzor, teaching	150 00
23	Goldie Hobbs, teaching	15 00
28	Clyde Hart, teaching	200 00
	Total	$1429 22

Disbursements Special School Fund.

Jan 12	Sarah C King, janitor service	3 00
18	Mossman Yarnelle Co, repairs for sch hack	9 77
21	Robertson Nicholls, wood	52 93
22	Adson Beree, driving school hack	30 80
25	Mossman Yarnellee Co, school wagon repairs	1 78
Feb 1	Sarah C King, janitor work	3 00
5	Adson Beree, conveyance	14 00
6	Geo Engle, labor and mat for hack	7 25
8	John Varner, wood	10 00
Mar 13	Sarah King, janitor work	3 00
	Adson Beree, conveyance	37 80
16	Alvara Bear, school supplies	1 29
Apr 3	Carl Shull, institute work	23 52
6	W L Strong, conveyance	92 46
	Adson Beree, conveyance	21 30
	Sarah C King, janitor work	3 00
10	Clyde Hart, janitor work	33 81
June 3	J Whitehurst, repairing school hack	16 35
June 17	John Fetters, transfers	32 00
23	Robert Nicholls, wood	5 25
Aug 5	W F Krontz, wood	17 50
13	W C Paterson, special sch order no 1	140 00
	W C Paterson, In'st on order no 1	3 00
21	Jane Hatch, cleaning school houses	5 00
Sept 8	F H Cottrell, slating blackboards	4 25
	F B Kiger & Co, school supplies	13 25
20	Jane Hatch, cleaning school houses	5 00
21	Chas Zimmerman, mowing sch grd	1 00
24	John Miller, pulp plaster	1 60
Oct 5	Wm Meek, laying cement blocks	16 00
6	W L Strong, housing wagon	2 50
	C L Coburn, conveyance	8 00
19	P C Baker, conveyance	8 00
28	C L Coburn, conveyance	5 00
27	Geo Engle, carpenter work and mat	1 50
Nov 5	C L Coburn, conveyance	5 00
9	Alva Bear, mowing school yard	1 25
10	C L Coburn, conveyance	5 00
22	P C Baker, conveyance	20 00
	C L Coburn, conveyance	16 00
23	Robert Nicholls, wood	30 00
16	Jane Harter, janitor service	6 00
Dec 7	P C Baker, conveyance	10 00
14	C L Coburn, conveyance	10 00
15	Jennie Harter, janitor service	3 00
	Total	$740 24

Disbursements Road Fund.

May 31	Jacob Shaffer, supervisor work	40 00
July 3	Fred & Blanche Thomas, road rec'pt	3 20
28	W C Paterson road rec'pt of H Baily	2 07
Aug 5	C B Mason, road rec'pt	5 95
Sept 24	F J Krontz, road rec'pt	1 00
Oct 26	W F Benninghoff, supervisor work	15 00
Nov 13	J M Rhoads, laying tile	2 80
22	Wallace Abel, gravel	4 80
30	H A Kees, gravel	14 10
Sept 24	F J Sibert, road rec'pt	7 58
	Total	96 55

Disbursements Additional Road Fund.

May 20	W F Krontz, hauling boiler shell	2 00
24	Walter Whitehurst, work on roads	3 00
	M Hatch, work on roads	3 00
June 2	A J Cole, bridge lumber	5 00
May 31	Jacob Shaffer, mat for road level	13 00
June 1	Wallace Abel, gravel	3 15
24	J J Hart, tile	2 40
28	W F Benninghoff, supervisor work	15 00
July 2	Wm Seely, sawing road plank	1 10
Aug 18	E M Hobbs, repairs on bridge	1 00
Oct 1	Jacob Shaffer, supervisor work	40 00
20	Fred A Thomas, cement	2 30
21	W F Benninghoff supervisor work.	65 00
20	E Traxler, shoveling gravel	9 00
23	Walter Whitehurst, gravel	12 75
	Hugh Traxler, shoveling gravel	21 75
Oct 26	W F Benninghoff, hauling gravel	27 58
Nov 25	W F Benninghoff, supervisor work	20 00
30	Jacob Shaffer, supervisor deceased per Wilmot supervisor work	72 00
Dec 11	W F Benninghoff, supervisor work	11 00
27	H H Slaybaugh road rec'pt	5 04
29	H T Smith, bridge plank	42 00
	Total	377 07

Disbursements Dog Fund.

Oct 19	E Frees, sheep killed	10 00
	C M Groves, sheep killed	7 00
	Total	17 00

Disbursements Poor Fund.

Mar 29	Robertson Nicholls, wood	11 81
June 28	H H Slaybaugh, poor	11 81
Dec 27	H H Slabyaugh, poor relief	21 50
	Total	45 12

SUMMARY

	Township Fund	Tuition Fund	Special Sch. Fund	Road Fund	Ad.d Road Fund	Dog Fund	Poor Fund	Total of all Funds
Jan. 8 '09	Bla. last settlem't	$ 597 28	$ 755 37	$ 203 55	$ 143 61	$ 322 85	$ 51 14	$ 194 94	$ 2268 74
Dec. 31	Receipts	487 39	1609 53	580 73	134 24	408 15	48 00	11 81	3279 85
	Total Bal and rec'pts	1084 67	2364 90	784 28	277 85	731 00	99 14	206 75	5548 59
	Disbursements	845 28	1429 22	740 24	96 55	377 07	17 00	45 12	3550 48
	Balance	239 39	935 68	44 04	181 30	353 93	82 14	161 63	1998 11

JOHN WHITEHURST, Trustee.

Newville

Mrs. W. K. Miller came home from Hope hospital Saturday. She is feeling quite well again.

Wm. Blair was here from Butler, Monday, visiting relatives.

Elsworth Traxler and wife entertained a merry crowd Saturday evening, also Sunday evening.

Rev. Brock began his meeting at the U. B. church Monday night.

Mrs. H. B. and Frank Akins were in Auburn Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Huntington and daughter of Butler were visitors here.

Mr. and Mrs. Lew Griest of Hicksville visited friends here Saturday and Sunday.

Jim Bryant and wife of Butler spent Saturday and Sunday the guests of Irvan Farner's.

E. Inhofe has a sale Feb. 10. They will move to Butler in the near future.

The children of Sam Armstrong, also Mrs. Sam Baker's, have the chickenpox.

Geo. Bailey is here from Sherwood, visiting his prother, Harry Bailey.

Orlen Wilderson and Jane Paterson visited at West Milford Sunday.

Mrs. H. B. Akins is sewing for Mrs. Allen Countryman this week.

A party of 23 met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Al. Gingnagel Monday evening. A good time is reported.

Mrs. Wm. Meeks is improving slowly.

The meeting for examination of Census takers will meet at the Butler high school building February 5 at 10:00 o'clock instead of 1:00 as was announced last week.

Mrs. W. A. Mason entertained sixteen of her lady friends to a four course dinner served at the Aldrich Hotel, Friday, January 28, 1910. After which the afternoon was very pleasantly spent at her beautiful home on Depot street. Each one enjoying the music by Mesdames L. G. Harding and Eugene Oberlin. The ladies were then ushered into the dining room where frappe and fancy cakes were served. And on departing each one declared Mrs. Mason to be a royal entertainer.

The ladies of the L. T. club entertained their husbands at the home of Mrs. Claude Tyson last Thursday evening at a six o'clock dinner. The dinner was served in six courses, and the table was very prettily decorated with carnations and ferns. The waiters were the Misses Mable Murch, Besse Davis, Erma Voigt, and Florense Mutzfeld. After dinner the guests were then invited to the home of Chas. Madden where they indulged in five hundred, until a late hour. The honors were won by Mrs. H. T. Berkey and E. B. Dunton.

FREE TO YOU—MY SISTER

Free to You and Every Sister Suffering From Woman's Ailments.

I am a woman.
I know woman's sufferings.
I have found the cure.

I will mail, free of any charge, my home treatment with full instructions to any sufferer from women's ailments. I want to tell all women about this cure—you, my reader, for yourself, your daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you how to cure yourselves at home without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any doctor. I know that my home treatment is a safe and sure cure for Leucorrhœa or Whites, Discharges, Ulceration, Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Tumors or Growths; also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousness, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness, kidney and bladder troubles where caused by weaknesses peculiar to our sex.

I want to send you a complete ten days' treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember, that it will cost you nothing to give the treatment a complete trial; and if you should wish to continue, it will cost you only about 12 cents a week, or less than two cents a day. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. Just send me your name and address, tell me how you suffer if you wish, and I will send you the treatment for your case, entirely free, in plain wrapper, by return mail. I will also send you free of cost, my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISER"—with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Every woman should have it, and learn to think for herself. Then when the doctor says—"You must have an operation," you can decide for yourself. Thousands of women have cured themselves with my home remedy. It cures all, old or young. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain a simple home treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhœa, Green Sickness and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in Young Ladies. Plumpness and health always result from its use.

Wherever you live, I can refer you to ladies of your own locality who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all women's diseases, and makes women well, strong, plump and robust. Just send me your address, and the free ten days' treatment is yours, also the book. Write today, as you may not see this offer again. Address

MRS. M. SUMMERS, Box H, " " " " Notre Dame, Ind., U. S. A.

Make Your Wife Happy

WITH A

MOTOR WASHER

Operated by City Water Pressure.
Costs from 2 to 4c per Week.
It Works while You Rest.

SOLD ON A GUARANTEE. Your Money Refunded if Not Satisfactory

We also Carry a Large Line of

Washers and Wringers

AT THE RIGHT PRICE

Call and see before you buy

Rickey Hardware Company

DeKalb County FARMERS' INSTITUTE

TO BE HELD AT

ST. JOE . . Feb. 7 and 8
CORUNNA . . . Feb. 9
BUTLER CHAPEL Butler Twp. Feb. 10

Mr. Martindale and Prof. Goss of Purdue to be State Workers at St. Joe.

Martindale at Corunna and Buler Chapel.

These able men will be supported by home talent. All of which is worthy your time to hear.

We will spend the entire time in talks and discussions pertaining to the betterment of farm life.

All sessions wtll commence as follows: 8:30 morning session; 1:30 afternoon session; 7:00 evening session.

Try not to be tardy, for we will not wait for you.

Butler Chapel ladies will serve meals.

Everybody should be present at these meetings.

A. M. WIDNEY, Chairman.

Horse Sale!

Our third big horse sale for this year will be held at the Central Livery and Sale Stable, 111 North Lynn street

BRYAN, OHIO
Wednesday, Feb. 9

Auction promptly at one o'clock

50 to 100 Head of Horses

Horses of all classes—Drafters, Good Farm Chunks, Brood Mares, Match Pairs and High Actors.

The kind with plenty of size, bone and quality. This is a new and fresh lot of native horses, bought within 20 miles of Bryan.

We have to offer in this lot some very high class ones, some that are good enough to go on any market and will please the most exacting buyer. Out of the great number we have to offer we are sure you can find some that will suit you.

We will also offer two Clydesdale Stallions, Stamp of Darnley No. 8159 and Prince Wauseon No. 10323.

We invite you to come early so that you may see these horses hitched and work before the auction commences.

Remember every animal is sold under a guaranteed representation. Communications solicited and all correspondence promptly answered.

No postponement on account of weather.

THE ELDER HORSE MARKET, Bryan, Ohio
J. A. ELDER, Auctioneer

Struck a Rich Mine

S. W. Bends, of Coal City, Ala., says he struck a perfect mine of health in Dr. King,s New Life Pills for they cured him of Liver and Kidney Trouble after 15 years of suffering. They are the best pills on earth for Constipation Malaria, Headache, Dyspepsia, Debility. 25c at Stone's drug store. 5-1m

W. S. Troyer

Auctioneer and Salesman

Leave orders at this office or Central Grocery.

I Speak 3 different languages.

Notice

Notice is hereby given that on the 16th day of February, 1910, I the undersigned administratrix of the estate of James Scot McCormick, deceased, by virtue of an order of the DeKalb county circuit court made and entered of record on the 31st day of January, 1910, will offer for sale at public outcry between the hours of two o'clock and four o'clock p m. of said day at the law office of E. B. Dunten on the west side of Broadway street in the city of Butler, DeKalb county and state of Indiana, Letters Patent No. 941940 on revolving safes, the same being the property of said decedent.

SARAH YATES,
Administratrix of the Estate of James Scot McCormick Deceased.
E. B. DUNTEN, Att'y.

Herald Advertising Pays.

FEBRUARY

L1134

butler public library

THE DEKALB COUNTY HERALD

VOLUME XLI — BUTLER, DEKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1910 — NUMBER 6

DANIEL W. WEITZ, President — HENRY M. SHOWALTER, Vice-President — WALTER SNIDER, Cashier
ALBERT L. SHULTZ, Vice-President — AMOS SNYDER, Vice-President

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK
Paid-up Capital, $25,000.00
BUTLER, IND.
STOCKHOLDERS:

D. M. Ball	Frank Creager	J. G. Hamilton	Jno. Penick	G. W. Snider
M. Baker	Eli Doty	C. L. Hamilton	Wm. Platt	Jno. H. Smith
John Baxter	Wm. Elden	M. D. Hussellman	J. B. Pessell	H. M. Showalter
Jell. N. Boyle	Frank Funk	L. H. Harrison	D. W. Riser	Thos. Tomlinson
A. F. Brindley	W. H. Grube	W. O. Kenan	W. L. Richey	D. H. Tomlinson
Sam Brown Estate	Byron Gride	Geo. King	Geo. L. Rowe	Henry Wilson
Ad. Christofel	Jacob Gunsenhouser	Benj. Myers	T. E. Simons	J. D. Wilcox
Fred Countryman	G. F. Gengnagel	Walter Monahank	A. L. Shultz	Chas. Wagoner
F. W. Carpenter	B. F. Hurraw	Saml. Noragon	C. S. Shultz	Saml. Wolff
A. B. Countryman	Jno. B. Hawkins	G. F. Nichols	Amos Snyder	Wm. Whetsel
Chas. Capp	Sam Hook	Silas Nodine	Walter Snider	D. W. Weitz
E. D. Creager	S. G. Haverstock	Danl. Lochamier	Fred W. Snider

A Person Who Dresses Well

Usually works well, on the old principle that being well dressed establishes self confidence, and it brings also the confidence of others, who usually guage your abilities by the impression you give through your appearance.

The shoes we sell are modeled after the latest dictates of fashion, so that when you wear our shoes you may rest assured you are wearing shoes identical in cut and pattern with those worn in the great metropolitan cities of today.

They are not only up to date in style and finish, but will give the best of service. THEY ARE GOOD SHOES AT REASONABLE PRICES.

J. C. BROWN & SON

VALENTINES FOR EVERYBODY!

WE have just received the largest and most beautiful assortment of all kinds of valentines ever shown at our store, consisting of the new and staple designs in Comics, Post Cards and Fancy Patterns

GEDDES' DRUG STORE

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

Advertised Letters

Miss Ena Boyer.
Clarence Boyer.
Mr. Joseph Bradley.
Mr. M. L. Crane.
Mr. Arthur Driver.
Morris & Corkhill Co.
Mr. John Rutter.
J. Slyle.

THOS. RUDD, Postmaster.

REPORT OF THE CONDITION

AS RENDERED TO THE COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY OF

The First National Bank

OF BUTLER, No. 9286

At Butler, in the State of Indiana, at the Close of Business, Jan. 31, 1910

RESOURCES

Loans and Discounts	$39,673 44
Overdrafts, secured and unsecured	1,167 08
U. S. Bonds to secure circulation	25,000 00
Premiums on U. S. Bonds	428 65
Banking House, Furniture and Fixtures	2,837 50
Due from National Banks (not reserve agents)	9,508 55
Due from approved Reserve Agents	3,581 76
Checks and other Cash Items	201 60
Notes of other National Banks	65 00
Fractional Paper Currency, Nickels and Cents	277 60
Specie	3,128 30
Legal-tender notes	165 00
Redemption fund with U. S. Treasurer (5 per cent of circulation)	1,250 00
Total	$87,284 48

LIABILITIES

Capital Stock paid in	$25,000 00
Undivided Profits, less expenses and taxes paid	176 02
National Bank Notes outstanding	25,000 00
Individual deposits subject to check	10,322 50
Time certificates of deposit	26,785 96
Total	$87,284 48

State of Indiana, County of DeKalb, ss:
I, Walter Snider, cashier of the above named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

WALTER SNIDER, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 7th day of February, 1910.

WALLACE C. WEBSTER, Notary Public.

Correct—Attest:
D. W. WEITZ,
H. M. SHOWALTER,
A. JUDSON ARRICK, } Directors.

The Best Hour of Life

is when you do some great deed or discover some wonderful fact. This hour came to J. R. Pitt, of Rocky Mt., N. C. when he was suffering intensely as he says, "from the worst cold I ever had. I then proved to my great satisfaction, what a wonderful Cold and Cough cure Dr. King's New Discovery is. For, after taking one bottle, I was entirely cured. You can't say any thing too good of a medicine like that." Its the surest and best remedy for diseased Lungs, Hemorrhages, La Gripe, Asthma, Hay Fever, any Throat or Lung Trouble. 50c $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Stone's drug store. 5-1m

Notice---Aldrich Hotel

I desire to thank the firemen and others who assisted in putting out the fire at the hotel Monday.

E. J. VANKEUREN.

The Wellington

(Formerly the MURCH Restaurant) will open for business

Saturday, Feb. 12

LUNCH and SHORT ORDERS a specialty. Fine newly papered rooms and everything neat and clean, Nothing but the best will go over our lunch counter. Give us a trial and be convinced.

West Side Broadway, BUTLER, IND.

CONGRESSMAN CLINE INTRODUCES R. F. D. BILL

Congressman Cyrus Cline of this district, has introduced a bill to increase the compensation of rural delivery carriers to $60 per month for all routes twenty-four miles or less; for routes longer than twenty-four miles the excess in distance to be paid for at the rate of $3 a mile per month. The bill contains a paragraph that the postmaster shall provide for the extension of short routes and the curtailment of long ones so as to equalize the travel of carriers as nearly as practicable. Another specification is that no rural route shall be discontinued nor the service reduced to less than six trips a week without the approval of the representative in congress in that district.

HAD COLD RIDE ON TRAIN NO. 19

Taken Off at Kendallville Nearly Frozen---Discovered By Operator at Waterloo

When No. 19 passed through Waterloo Sunday the operator noticed the bodo of a man apparently frozen on the back end of the tender. He telegraphed ahead to Kendallville and the train was flagged and brought to a stop. Several of the station men went out to take him off supposing that he was frozen stiff but he managed to climb down himself. He was taken to the baggage room and at every step the ice cracked and fell from his clothes.

After he was thawed out and given some hot coffee he gave his name as Edward Riley and said his home was in New York and claimed that he was on his way to Chicago to obtain work. Having worked out of Toledo Saturday night on a freight he was forced by the cold to spend the night at Wauseon. When 19 stopped there the next day he thought it was a local and boarded it with the intention of getting off at the next station when he became cold.

He soon found that he had boarded a flyer and on his trip up was completely drenched twice when the train took water.

In speaking of it he said: "In the last few miles I knew that I could not hold on for many miles longer and felt that I was slowly but surely freezing to death and I thought over everything I ever did. I tell you, a fellow doesn't know how awful it is till he experiences it himself. It is a trip that I wouldn't take again for a hundred thousand dollars."

The man looked rather the worse for wear Monday as the ends of his fingers and other exposed portions were black and he said he had a terrible headache He did not bear the appearance of a professional hobo, one thing in particular being noted namely, that he wore gold-rimmed glasses, which article is not common among the gentlemen of the road. It will be remembered that Sunday was a very cold day and it is almost a miracle that he lives to tell of his experience.—Press.

A Surprise

Saturday evening about twenty-five neighbors and friends met at the home of Walter Cherry and wife and gave them a pleasant surprise, as they expected to move to their new home in Franklin township the following week. To say they were surprised would be stating it lightly.

The evening was spent in visiting and with music by the graphophone after which a supper of oysters, cake and hot coffee was served.

The guests departed at a late hour with many wishes for happiness and prosperity for the young people in their new home.

SCHOOL NOTES

Pithy Paragraphs From Our Public Schools

FRESHMEN NOTES

Those graphs are great grafts, all right.

The Misses Alta Farner and Mildred Tomlinson were B. H. S. visitors Wednesday afternoon.

Audra's coat had the swell sleeve Wednesday evening.

E. C., L. F. and B. O. interviewed Miss A. Wednesday after school.

Did we enjoy those tests? Well, I reckon we did!

We have commenced a new chapter in Botany on the subject of Angiospenns. It promises to be very interesting for some people.

We are now reading Pope's Iliad in English class. Some of us like it and others say it is "simply fierce."

Blanche Wilson has been absent several days because of sickness.

The Senior, Junior and Sophomore editors seem to be taking a long vacation. We beg to be allowed to politely suggest that they get busy.

A FRESHIES SOLILOQUY

I often wonder when I sit
With pencil in my hand
A diggin' into algebra
Working to beat the band.
If the faculty have ever known
The trials of high school days
Or if they always kept the rule
Which says that goodness pays.

Gee Whiz! A fellow daresn't look
Around the assembly room
Without hearin' an awful voice
Come like the crack o'doom
Asking him the question,
"Haven't you anything to do?"
Of course we have, but don't you think
We need some pleasure, too?

And if we try to pass a note
Just for a kind of lark
Out comes a little rigly book
Down goes a big black mark
They make us walk upon our toes
They can't let us alone
Won't let us smile across the room
Can't say our life's our own.

Wish the faculty were younger
And we could have a chance
To exchange places for a spell
Say, wouldn't we make them dance!
Well, I just rather think we would
And maybe—maybe then
They'd be a little kinder
When they got their place again.

M. A. C.

Acts Automatically

A self-acting sofa, just large enough for two, has been invented. If properly wound up, it will begin to ring a warning bell just before ten o'clock. At one minute past ten it splits apart, and while one half carries the daughter up stairs, the other half kicks the young man out of the door. They will come high, nevertheless severl parents in this city feel that one of these sofas will be a household necessity in the near future.

COMMISSIONERS ARE AGAIN IN SESSION

Will Select the Architect Who Will Furnish Plans for New Court House Before Adjournment

The county commissioners met this morning in regular monthly session and the matter of allowing bills occupied their attention during the initial day. Before adjournment the commissioners will dispose of some very important matters, however, chief among which will be the selection of an architect who will draft the plans for the new court house. There are four favorable contenders for the contract, Mahurin & Mahurin, of Fort Wayne, coming in for their share of commendation as do the other three. The commissioners have been very cautious in this matter and will select the firm whom they think will render the best service for the least amount of money.

There was but very little transpiring about the court house today, this being due to the expiration of the term of court. No important actions were filed.

The next term of court will convene on March 7, and during the term some very important litigations will be disposed of. The Ware case will be among the most important criminal cases.—Courier.

The Courier cannot give up the court house project, although Waterloo is more likely to secure the new edifice than any other town in the county.

Mrs. Knisely Passes Away

Eliza Jane Knisely, wife of T. J. Knisely of this city, passed away at the Knisely home on North Broadway, Monday morning, at 5:30. About four weeks ago Mrs. Knisely accompanied her husband on a trip to California and during the trip contracted a cold which resulted in her death, having been stricken with pneumonia. Besides the family physician two specialists of Fort Wayne were employed, but to no avail. It was apparent from the first that she could not recover, and when her physician let it be known the whole community was caused to mourn. She was a kind and good woman, and being in a position to aid the sick and poor, never lost sight of her opportunity, and many are the persons who can point to a time when this lady of high ideals assisted them in time of need.

As a token of respect all business houses in the city were closed during the funeral services which were held at the Methodist Episcopal church Thursday afternoon. This paper will publish full obituary in our next issue.

Resolutions of Respect

In memory of Jennie Knisely, Past Matron of Forest Chapter No. 44, O. E. S., of Butler, Ind., who died February 8, 1910.

"So let her sleep that dreamless sleep,
Our sorrows clustering 'round her head.
Be comforted, ye loved who weep.
She lives with God—she is not dead."

Once again death hath summoned a dear sister, and the Golden Gateway to the Eternal City has opened to welcome her to her Heavenly home. She has finished her work in ministering to the wants of the afflicted, in shedding light into darkened souls and in bringing joy into the places of misery, and as her reward has received the plandit, "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter into the joys of thy Lord." And

WHEREAS, The allwise and merciful Father has called our beloved sister to that City not made with hands. And

WHEREAS, She having been a true and faithful sister of our chapter, therefore be it

RESOLVED, That Forest Chapter No. 44, O. E. S., in testimony of her loss, tenders to the family of our sister our sincere condolence in this deep affliction, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to each of the city papers and a copy to the Eastern Star.

E. P. MASTERS.
CARRIE M. FANNING.
EMMA C. KARLE.

Methodist Church Notes

The Sunday services will be of an evangelistic character. Gospel hymns and spiritual songs will be used. Our aim is to help people to see their need of Christ, and to confess Him. He calls and whosoever will may come. A beautiful, useful life may be yours. Today is the day of salvation.

The public invited to all our meetings. A brotherly greeting awaits you.

The Ladies' Aid society will meet at the parsonage on Friday at 1:30 p. m. Let all be present.

E. F. ALBERTSON, Minister.

We would Rather Show You Than Tell You

So our invitation to inspect our stock is always in force, and it includes everybody. These's no special day, no best time to look at our

... Furniture ...

Come any time that you please, and stay as long as you are interested. We claim that this stock of ours will do its own arguins, and we would far rather show you than tell you.

A. F. BRINDLEY
Furniture and Undertaking

YES, IT IS TRUE

ANYTHING IN THE GROCERY LINE YOU WILL FIND AT

The Central Grocery

Watch This Space

For you will always find something of interest to you

If the flour you have been using has not been satisfactory, try the "ARISTOS FLOUR" or the "PRIDE OF QUINCY" FLOUR. EVERY SACK GUARANTEED.

Try a jar of HEINZ'S Apple Butter, Peanut Butter, Baked Beans, or Pickles. WE HAVE THEM.

Ask us for the Receipt to make PEANUT BUTTER FUDGE. Something new.

PRESTON & PRESTON
PHONE 91

Valentines

New and Novel. Up-to-Date Designs

Valentine Post Cards

Call and See Them, at

STONE'S DRUG STORE

See THE HERALD for Fine Job Printing

0472

L1134

FEBRUARY

ILLINOIS FARMERS' HALL OF FAME

AT LAST the farmer is to be honored by being placed formally on the scroll of fame. The great agricultural State of Illinois is pointing the way for the rest of humanity in according their rightful honors to the tillers of the soil by establishing the Illinois Farmers' Hall of Fame, to be situated at the College of Agriculture of the State University at Urbana. In this Hall of Fame will hang portraits of those commanding figures in the realm of agriculture who have done things as notable in the struggle of man to obtain from the soil its last atom of productiveness as some of the warriors have done in wringing victory from the enemy's battalions.

The movement thus begun in Illinois is already attracting attention and arousing enthusiasm all over the United States and in foreign lands. The commission of the Illinois Farmers' Hall of Fame, which is in charge of the work of passing on the merits of names suggested for places in the hall, has received communications from numerous governors of states and from several foreign countries praising the idea and declaring that agriculture should long ago have been honored in some such way as that now started in Illinois. President Taft and Secretary of Agriculture Wilson have written in hearty commendation of the Hall of Fame.

Four men have thus far been chosen for places in the Hall of Fame by the commission. They are Cyrus Hall McCormick, the inventor of the reaping machine; Jonathan Baldwin Turner, the original promoter of the agricultural and industrial college; James N. Brown, the first president of the Illinois State Fair; the successful promoter of the introduction of the various improved breeds of horses, cattle, sheep and swine from Great Britain; a successful breeder and exhibitor of the best class of live stock; the first to introduce shorthorns into Illinois; Isaac Funk, who was selected as the best type of a successful pioneer farmer and a most worthy promoter of the science of agriculture in vogue in his day.

The life story of Mr. McCormick, the first of the men to be honored by the place in the hall, is the story of one of the greatest inventors the last century produced, though it was a particularly prolific century as to the men of inventive genius who lived in it. Mr. McCormick's invention of the reaper was an invention which not only brought him personally the greatest fame and a huge fortune, but it has done and is doing a vast amount of good throughout the world. Through the agency of the McCormick reaper man obtained more of the yield of the earth for this time and labor saving device means that greater areas have been placed under cultivation than would have been possible had no reaper ever been invented.

Mr. McCormick was born in Rockbridge County, Virginia, Feb. 15, 1809. His parents were both of Scotch-Irish descent. His father, Robert McCormick, was a well-to-do farmer, who himself had considerable mechanical ingenuity. Limited in his educational facilities, young McCormick obtained a fair common school education. He then began to work on one of his father's farms. When he was only 16 years old McCormick's inventive genius first became manifest. In 1826 he invented a finely made grain cradle, with which he helped to harvest crops. In 1831 he invented the hillside plow and two years later he invented a horizontal self-sharpening plow. Meanwhile the youthful inventor had been giving attention to the problem of cutting grain by machinery. He was convinced that hand labor must inevitably be superseded by some kind of a reaping machine and set himself to discover a principle which would apply practicably. He concluded that the necessary motion to cut the grain could be obtained by means of a crank attached to the end of the reciprocating blade. With his own hands he made his first machine on this principle.

This pioneer reaper consisted of three main features—a vibrating cutting blade, a reel to bring the grain within reach of the blade and a platform to receive the falling grain. This machine, drawn by two horses, was put to a practical test during the latter part of the harvest of 1831 in a field of oats within a mile of the McCormick homestead. The test proved to the satisfaction of the neighboring farmers, who had been invited to witness it, that a successful method of cutting grain by machinery had at last been evolved. Entering into a partnership with his father and two of his brothers, McCormick began to turn out his reapers in some quantity, after having made improvements on the pioneer machine. In 1844 the first consignment of the reapers was sent to the western prairies. In 1849 the sales amounted to 1,500 reapers.

In 1851 Mr. McCormick exhibited the reaper at the world's fair in London, and he afterward spent some time in bringing the machine to the attention of European agriculturists. There was hostility to the reaper at first in Europe, because it threatened to decrease the hand labor, but the Europeans were finally forced to adopt the McCormick machine because of its enormous economic advantages. The London Times declared, after the London world's fair, that the value of the McCormick reaper was equal to the entire cost of the exhibition. Mr. McCormick died on May 13, 1884.

Mr. Turner, the second of the candidates selected for the Hall of Fame, was for fourteen years a professor in Illinois College, from which he retired in 1847. In a convention of teachers held in Pike County in 1850 he suggested a plan for the establishment of a state university based upon the college and seminary fund—then estimated at about $300,000—which met with the approval of those present, and soon after he delivered an address at Griggsville in the same county, in which he gave utterance to his views in reference to a "system of national education."

This is believed to have been the prelude, if not the actual inception, at least so far as the West was concerned, of the measure which, in the next twelve years, was debated with constantly increasing interest in educational conventions, industrial associations and other deliberative bodies throughout the country.

Mr. Brown, the third candidate chosen for the Hall of Fame, was born at Bryant Station, Fayette County, Ky., October 8, 1806. After attending school at Lexington and Transylvania University, he located in Korrim County, Kentucky, and engaged in farming and breeding shorthorn cattle. He removed to Island Grove, in Sangamon County, Illinois, in the year 1834, and brought with him from Kentucky several shorthorn cattle. These were the first shorthorns brought to Illinois.

He engaged actively in farming, breeding and feeding cattle and the breeding of shorthorns, adding to his herd by purchase from the importations to Kentucky and Ohio from England. He was largely instrumental in forming the Sangamon County fair at Springfield.

The fourth of the chosen candidates, Isaac Funk, was born in Clark County, Kentucky, Nov. 17, 1797. His grandfather, Adam Funk, was a German emigrant, and his mother, whose maiden name was Sarah Moore, was one of the same thrifty and vigorous stock.

In 1807 the family moved to free soil in Fayette County, Ohio, and Isaac lived there until he was 23, spent a year at the Kanawha Salt Works in Virginia, then returned to Ohio, where for several years he worked on a farm for the stipend of $8 a month and "found." In 1824, with his brother, Absalom, he went to Illinois, first trying Sangamon County, but finally settling in McLean County, near the station now known as Funk's Grove. They built here a pole shanty, 12 by 14 feet, roofed with riven four-foot clapboards held down with weight poles instead of nails. The floor was carpeted in Indian fashion, with peeled elm bark. There was no window, and but one door, made of clapboards. As soon as the house was completed, they began to break the virgin sod of the prairie for corn, and bought and sold cattle.

For many years Isaac Funk grew corn on his black prairie soil, raised and bought and sold cattle, horses, mules and hogs; suffered privations, losses, disappointments and the hardships of him who blazes the way in new lands. At last he built a big, comfortable home; bought land until he owned about 25,000 acres of McLean County, and was worth at the time of his death close to $2,000,000.

Among the communications of approval received are those from the Mexican secretary of the department of agriculture, the Japanese minister of agriculture, and from the governors of Minnesota, Florida, Virginia, Kentucky, New Hampshire, Louisiana, Kansas, Mississippi, Massachusetts and South Dakota, and from the agricultural departments of numerous other states.

STATISTICS OF DIVORCE ARE WORSE THAN STARTLING

IF MARRIAGE is not already a total failure, it promises to become so if the present rate of increase in divorce continues. In the past twenty years nearly 1,000,000 wedded pairs have sought relief in the divorce courts of this country, and the number of divorces is on the increase to an extent out of all proportion to what should naturally follow from the increase in population. In spite of the discouragement of divorce by the passage of stringent laws, by the preaching of the churches, by the slowness of the courts to grant decrees, and by the efforts of certain social workers to make "the lower classes" satisfied with their lot in life, the steady march of divorce is in no wise halted, and the percentage of the speed at which it travels is at once alarming to those who think that divorce is an evil and interesting to those who are fond of probing into causes.

Not only is the divorce movement compounding itself in the United States, but it is also acquiring accelerated speed in all the Christian countries of Europe where it is tolerated. To those to whom all this spells social disintegration and decadence the figures are appalling. In France the number of divorces has increased from 2,602 in 1884 to 13,140 in 1904. In Norway the increase in divorces during the thirty-one years last past has been 881.8 per cent. In the same length of time the population of Norway has increased only 23.5 per cent. During the ten years last past the number of divorces granted by courts in Belgium has increased 619.9 per cent, while the increase in population in the same decade has been only 38.6 per cent. In Holland divorces have in twenty years increased 576.7 per cent, while the Dutch themselves have increased only 42.6 per cent. Roumania, and even Russia, show similar advances. France by no means heads the list with its 502 per cent. In England the increase in divorces has been 398.5 per cent, against an increase in population of only 43.2 per cent, and covenanting Old Scotland can figure up an increase in divorce of 428 per cent, while the population shows an increase of only 33.1 per cent. In the United States it appears that the greatest number of divorces are sought in the third and fifth years of marriage. It appears from the figures that wedded pairs get tired of each other in large numbers as the third year of marriage life rolls around.

Of course there are two sides to it. There is a man side and a woman side. There are bad wives and there are bad husbands, and there are husbands and wives that are both bad together. And then there are marriages in which a good woman—a perfectly useful and kind, good woman—and the same kind of a man convert each other into something not much better than beasts. What sort of relief are pairs like that to seek if not legal and final separation, with the privilege of trying their luck a second time? Divorce is sweeping the world like the cholera used to sweep it before Dr. Koch discovered the comma bacillus. To stop it a new social serum, or antitoxin, will have to be discovered by some German thinker who has nothing else to do.

PARENTS OF $75,000,000 BABY.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward McLean.

John R. McLean and Thomas F. Walsh, Washington multimillionaires, were made grandfathers by the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beale McLean, the latter formerly Miss Evelyn Walsh. The parents of the baby are the only children of the multimillionaires, and the little newcomer thus is heir to the combined McLean and Walsh fortunes. The wealth of McLean is estimated at $25,000,000 and of Walsh at $50,000,000.

SOMETHING FOR EVERYBODY

There are fourteen thousand oysters of full size in a ton.

Kissing and shaking hands are rarely practiced in Japan.

Japanese dead are buried in a squatting posture, chin upon knees.

There is record of wheat growing in China as far back as 3000 B. C.

The first recorded Thanksgiving was the Hebrew feast of the tabernacles.

Turkey has a government tannery for such products as are needed in the army.

At twenty-one, Alexander stood at the head of his army on the plains of Thessaly, Wilberforce entered parliament, and Tasso had begun his immortal poem, "Jerusalem Delivered," which took ten years to complete.

To check New Jersey's destructive forest fires, the State has ordered the railroads traversing its pine forests to clear the ground for fifty feet on each side of the tracks and plow up and gravel ten-foot strips to prevent the growth of brush again.

At twenty, Tintoretto was one of the most prolific and popular painters in Italy; Schelling had grappled with the philosophy of Kant; Galileo had discovered the use of the pendulum; Lafayette was a major-general, and Garrison voiced emancipation for the slave.

At twenty-two Paul Potter painted "The Young Bull," now in the museum at The Hague, said to be one of the finest animal pictures on canvas; Campbell wrote his "Pleasures of Hope," on which his fame as a poet rests; Farquhar had made for himself a lasting name as a dramatist, and Conde was the most famous military general of his time.

The ceremony of electing a mayor in a belfry was performed yesterday according to ancient custom in the parish church of Brightlingsea, when Arthur Lucas was chosen in succession to the Rev. Arthur Petwee, vicar of Brightlingsea, and six mariners who had married Brightlingsea women were admitted freemen of the port on payment of eleven pennies into the treasury.—London Standard.

The United States and the British empire produce 82.7 per cent of the world's gold supply. Germany and France, which produce no gold, and Russia, which produces only some $27,000,000 worth a year, feel compelled to hoard vast amounts of it to be prepared for emergencies, such as sudden war. This is the reason why the banks of these countries begin a process of hoarding gold whenever there is any likelihood of trouble.

Japan, the country that is not bound by traditions in her search for the best manner of doing things, has tried our national bank plan, and, finding it not at all satisfactory, has adopted the European plan of the central bank. The Bank of Japan is capitalized at $15,000,000. Its circulation at present is more than $170,000,000, and its deposits exceed $200,000,000. It issues all the notes of the country and thus controls the currency situation. Besides the Bank of Japan there are other semi-official banks filling various specific functions for the government.

The chairman of the Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada was asked, at Montreal, if the report was correct that they had bought the Ontario tobacco crop. His answer was that tobacco grown in Canada to-day was superior to the American-grown leaf from the same type of seed, for the reason that the soil in the United States has been used for a number of years and the Canadian soil is practically virgin soil for tobacco growing purposes, and therefore produced a better quality. The proof of this is that the consumption is constantly increasing.—Consular Reports.

Professor Ranke some time ago brought out a new fact concerning the brain of a man as compared with that of other animals. It has long been known that the brain of a man does not weigh as much as that of a whale, or an elephant, and that there are birds and apes whose brains are heavier than man's in proportion to the weight of their bodies. But Professor Ranke showed that the way to reveal the actual superiority of the human brain is to compare its weight with that of the spinal cord. Measured in this way, man's brain is proportionately far heavier than that of any of the lower animals.—Harper's Weekly.

Owing to the high price of cotton some German textile experts have been turning their attention to other fibers that might be used as a substitute for it. Recently a spinning company at Chemnitz has succeeded in spinning the fiber contained in the seeds of the kapok, or silk cotton tree of the tropics. In its natural state this fiber can not be spun owing to its extreme brittleness, but it is reported that Prof. Goldberg, of Chemnitz, has found a method of treating it to make it spinnable, and the yarn is described as having a peculiarly soft, silky feeling. The fiber has the advantage of being considerably cheaper than cotton, but no information is at hand showing the wearing qualities of fabrics made from kapok yarn.

In a French village a citizen had upon his land a part of an old building containing two very beautiful windows. He was in debt and embarrassed and eagerly closed with the offer of a rich archæologist, who bought them. Thereupon the government inspector, hearing of the bargain, arrived just in time to stop the masons from dislodging the windows. "You cannot," he said to the villager, "sell antiquities, my man." "But, excellency, I have used the money and paid my creditors." The villager was in despair, but the official was unmoved. "That's all right," he said, "the money is safe; the windows are no longer yours. But the buyer can't move a stone of them. He can, however, come with a campstool and sit down and look at his property as much as he likes."

TRIALS of the NEEDEMS

RESOLVED—THAT WHENEVER I AM BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED, BUFFETED WITH INDIGESTION OR ANY LIVER TROUBLE I WILL TAKE A PAW-PAW PILL. 10 PILLS 10¢

Munyon's Paw Paw Pills coax the liver into activity by gentle methods. They do not scour, gripe or weaken. They are a tonic to the stomach, liver and nerves; invigorate instead of weaken. They enrich the blood and enable the stomach to get all the nourishment from food that is put into it. These pills contain no calomel; they are soothing, healing and stimulating. For sale by all druggists in 10c and 25c sizes. If you need medical advice, write Munyon's Doctors. They will advise to the best of their ability absolutely free of Charge. MUNYON'S, 53d and Jefferson Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.

Munyon's Cold Remedy cures a cold in one day. Price 25c. Munyon's Rheumatism Remedy relieves in a few hours and cures in a few days. Price 25c.

As Exemplified.

"Man's inhumanity to man," chuckled the backer of the winning pugilist who had pounded the other chap to a jelly, "makes countless thousands cheerfully pay their good money to see it working."

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions, and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price, 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Another Delusion Shattered.

The messenger boy was hurrying.

"Dere goes de champeen prize fighter," he explained. "I want to git a good look at 'im."

DON'T NEGLECT THAT COUGH

It certainly racks your system and may run into something serious. Allen's Lung Balsam will check it quickly and permanently. For sale at all druggists.

After twenty years of experimenting an Edinburgh firm has brought out an essence of tea, which is said to preserve the qualities of the prepared leaf.

Only One "BROMO QUININE"

That is LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE. Look for the signature of E. W. GROVE. Used the world over to Cure a Cold in One Day. 25c.

Distinguished Refugees.

Among the distinguished men who have sought refuge in the United States from political oppression abroad were Talleyrand, whose subsequent career for brilliant achievement is without parallel in executive statesmanship; Joseph Bonaparte, elder brother of Napoleon, who lived at Bordentown, N. J.; Brillat-Savarin, author of the Philosophy of Food, who subsequently became an eminent judge in France; Tom Paine, author of the Rights of Man; Cobbett, the great political economist; Carl Schurz, Oswald Ottendorfer, founder of the New York Staats-Zeitung; Dr. Emil Pretorius, founder of the St. Louis Westliche Post; Gen. Franz Sigel, Thomas Francis Meagher, leader of the Irish Brigade in the civil war; Garbaldi, O'Donovan Rossa, John Boyle O'Reilly, the eminent poet, and Moreau, the only rival that Napoleon feared.

To these names of distinguished men who sought the protection of American law against pursuit by their political enemies elsewhere may be added that of Porfirio Diaz, now president of Mexico, who was at New Orleans in July, 1875, with a reward of $50,000 out for his apprehension.

Willing to Say Good-By.

"I pay as I go," declared the loud-mouthed person.

"No doubt you do," answered the quiet man, "but I'd rather see the style of your departure than the color of your money."

WHEN DINNER COMES

One Ought to Have a Good Appetite.

A good appetite is the best sauce. It goes a long way toward helping in the digestive process, and that is absolutely essential to health and strength.

Many persons have found that Grape-Nuts food is not only nourishing but is a great appetizer. Even children like the taste of it and grow strong and rosy from its use.

It is especially the food to make a weak stomach strong and create an appetite for dinner.

"I am 57 years old," writes a Tenn. grandmother, "and have had a weak stomach from childhood. By great care as to my diet I enjoyed a reasonable degree of health, but never found anything to equal Grape-Nuts as a standby.

"When I have no appetite for breakfast and just eat to keep up my strength, I take 4 teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with good rich milk, and when dinner comes I am hungry. While if I go without any breakfast I never feel like eating dinner. Grape-Nuts for breakfast seems to make a healthy appetite for dinner.

"My little 13-months-old grandson had been very sick with stomach trouble during the past summer, and finally we put him on Grape-Nuts. Now he is growing plump and well. When asked if he wants his nurse or Grape-Nuts, he brightens up and points to the cupboard. He was no trouble to wean at all—thanks to Grape-Nuts." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

LATEST PHOTO OF MARS.

Views Taken in France Show Many Changes on the Planet.

The latest news concerning the planet Mars states that a first snowfall has been observed on the Antarctic region of the planet. The news comes from Prof. Lowell, who states that two patches have appeared in latitude 65 degrees—one in longitude 100 degrees and the other in 190 degrees.

This year the planet Mars has been particularly interesting. In September and October it was nearer the earth than in the preceding years, and astronomers were busy directing their telescopes, great and small, at its shining surface. The beautifully drawn illustration of the planet given here was made at the observatory at Meudon by M. Antoniadi, an amateur astronomer and a draughtsman of great talent, well known for his previous works on the planetary surfaces. M. Deslandres, the director of the Meudon Observatory, had kindly put at his disposal the great double telescope of the observatory.

A RECENT PHOTO OF MARS.

Why?

"Pop?"

"Yes, my son."

"Why is it that a rooster makes more noise crowing than a hen does cackling, and he don't even lay a corner-stone?"—Yonkers Statesman.

A Timorous Admission.

I'd like to be a boy and plan
Youth's joys once more; but just the same
I'd rather be a hard-worked man
Than mingle in a football game.
—Washington Star.

SONG THAT HAS BEEN VOTED THE MOST POPULAR OF AMERICAN PATRIOTIC AIRS.

I WISH I WAS IN DIXIE'S LAND.

By Daniel D. Emmett.

I wish I was in de land ob cotton,
Old times dar am not forgotten,
Look away, look away, look away,
Dixie Land!
In Dixie land whar I was born in,
Early on one frosty mornin',
Look away, look away, look away,
Dixie land!

Chorus—
Den I wish I was in Dixie—
Hooray, hooray!
In Dixie land I'll took my stan',
To lib an' die in Dixie,
Away, away,
Away down south in Dixie.
Away, away,
Away down south in Dixie.

Old missus marry "Will-de-Weaber,"
William was a gay decelber,
Look away, look away, etc.
But when he put his arm around 'er
He smiled as fierce as a forty pounder,
Look away, etc.

Chorus—

His face was sharp as a butcher's cleaber,
But dat did not seem to grieb 'er
Look away, etc.
Ole missus acted de foolish part
An' died for a man dat broke her heart
Look away, etc.

Chorus—

Now, here's a health to de next ole missus,
Ah! all de gals dat want to kiss us,
Look away, etc.
But if you want to drive 'way sorrow
Come an' hear dis song to-morrow,
Look away, etc.

Chorus—

Dar's buckwheat cakes an' Injun batter,
Makes you fat, or a little fatter,
Look away, etc.
Den hoe it down and scratch your grabble,
To Dixie's land I'm bound to trabble,
Look away, etc.

Chorus—

DIXIE
AMERICA
HOME SWEET HOME
SONGS OF THE PEOPLE
SONGS OF THE CAMP
SONGS OF THE WAR
SONGS OF THE NAVY
SONGS OF THE NATION
SONGS OF THE HEART
SONGS OF THE SOIL
SONGS OF THE SEA
SONGS OF THE WORLD
SONGS OF THE OLD FARMHOUSE
SONGS OF THE OLD ARMY
SONGS OF THE OLD NAVY
SONGS OF THE OLD SCHOOL
SONGS OF THE OLD CHURCH
SONGS OF THE OLD HOME
SONGS OF THE OLD FIRESIDE
SONGS OF THE OLD FAMILY
SONGS OF THE OLD FRIENDS
SONGS OF THE OLD LOVE
SONGS OF THE OLD HEARTH
SONGS OF THE OLD ROAD
SONGS OF THE OLD MILL
SONGS OF THE OLD BRIDGE
SONGS OF THE OLD GATE
SONGS OF THE OLD WELL
SONGS OF THE OLD TREE
SONGS OF THE OLD BIRD
SONGS OF THE OLD FLOWER
SONGS OF THE OLD BROOK
SONGS OF THE OLD RIVER
SONGS OF THE OLD LAKE
SONGS OF THE OLD MOUNTAIN
SONGS OF THE OLD VALLEY
SONGS OF THE OLD PLAIN
SONGS OF THE OLD FOREST
SONGS OF THE OLD GARDEN
SONGS OF THE OLD ORCHARD SONGS OF THE OLD VINEYARD SONGS OF THE OLD FIELD
SONGS OF THE OLD MEADOW SONGS OF THE OLD PASTURE
SONGS OF THE OLD BARN
SONGS OF THE OLD STABLE
SONGS OF THE OLD CELLAR
SONGS OF THE OLD ATTIC
SONGS OF THE OLD CHIMNEY
SONGS OF THE OLD FIREPLACE
SONGS OF THE OLD HEARTH
SONGS OF THE OLD ROOF
SONGS OF THE OLD WALL
SONGS OF THE OLD FENC

0473

L1134

FEBRUARY

Why Do You Suffer?

from woman's peculiar ills, when we are ready and willing to send you a week's treatment of PISO'S TABLETS entirely free? Their use is the most modern and scientific way of treating the diseases of women, because they are applied directly to the diseased surface, and at once begin their work of healing. They are small, effective, clean and easy to use, and cannot fail to benefit those who use them. They are an ideal home treatment. A woman writes, "It is a wonder working Tablet."

For sale by all druggists. For samples and a treatise entitled "Causes of Diseases in Women" address us on the accompanying coupon. Write your name and address PLAINLY and address THE PISO COMPANY, DEPT. C., WARREN, PA.

Name .....

Post Office .....

State .....

Unfortunate New Yorkers.

In New York we have become so hardened to eating the strange products of the cold storage vaults that the fresh foods of our childhood would probably seem unpalatable. To the diner accustomed to the pale tasteless chicken of our hotels and restaurants, a real full-blooded broiler, slain within the current year, would taste "strong" and obnoxiously assertive. Similarly, a really fresh egg, neither iced nor partically hatched might seem to our sophisticated palates to possess too many of the attributes of the ingenue.—New York Evening Sun.

Conditional.

The witness had sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

"That is," he stipulated, "if that hook nosed lawyer over there will let me do it."

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOR ALL KIDNEY DISEASES

FOR RHEUMATISM BRIGHT'S DISEASE DIABETES BACKACHE

NUMBER 375 "Guaranteed"

SICK HEADACHE

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, TORPID LIVER. They regulate the Bowels. Purely Vegetable.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. Genuine Must Bear Fac-Simile Signature Brent Good

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.

Save the Baby—Use

PISO'S CURE

THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS AND COLDS

Should be given at once when the little one coughs. It heals the delicate throat and protects the lungs from infection—guaranteed safe and very palatable.

All Druggists, 25 cents.

Down in the dumps

—from over-eating, drinking—bad liver and constipation get many a one, but there's a way out—Cascarets relieve and cure quickly. Take one to-night and feel ever so much better in the morning. 900

CUT THIS OUT, mail it with your address to Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago, Ill., and receive a handsome souvenir gold Bon Bon Box FREE.

VETERINARY COURSE AT HOME

$1200 year and upwards can be made taking our Veterinary Course at home during spare time; taught in simplest English; Diploma granted, positions obtained for successful students; cost within reach of all, satisfaction guaranteed; particulars free. Ontario Veterinary Correspondence School, Dept. 10, London, Canada

AGENTS WANTED. To introduce our beautiful Spring Suitings, Silks and fine Cotton Fabrics. Large sample outfit free, by express prepaid. No money required. Liberal credit to responsible agents. Write and secure territory now. National Dress Goods Co. (Dept. B) 260 W. Broadway, New York City.

ABOUT TOBACCO and its effects. Book for tobacco users and non-users. Instructive reading. Send $1 for copy and agent's terms to the Slocum Publishing Co., Toledo, Ohio.

WANTED Active and ambitious young BASEBALL PLAYERS for 1910 minor league teams, to take the place of players drafted by major league clubs. Address Box 909, Rochester, N. Y.

Prompt Obedience.

"Harold," peremptorily spoke the stern father, "you are spending a good deal of money on booze and tobacco."

"Yes, sir."

"And you look disreputable."

"Yes, sir."

"Stop it at once! Put the lid on yourself!"

Hastily thanking him, the young man went out, bought a $5 hat, and had it charged to the stern father.—Chicago Tribune.

When Rubbers Become Necessary

And your shoes pinch, shake into your shoes Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder for the feet. Cures tired, aching feet and takes the sting out of Corns and Bunions. Always use it for Breaking in New shoes and for dancing parties. Sold everywhere 25c. Sample mailed FREE. Address, Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

The Blot on His Past.

"Haven't you anything to confess to me before it is too late?" she asked. "Remember that it will be much better for us to part even now than it will be after to-morrow. Think. Isn't there in your past something that you have hidden from me? Don't be afraid to confess it. I will forgive you if it is not too terrible, and then we can begin our married life with no shadow to darken the pathway before us."

"Well, Bessie," he replied, as he avoided looking into her eyes, "there is something. I am going to throw myself upon your mercy. Don't judge me too severely. Have pity. I once carried on a stamp flirtation with a girl for two months."

Racy Metaphor.

The Archbishop of Canterbury is a great example of a ready wit, according to the Pathfinder. He was going with a number of clergymen in to a luncheon, after some ecclesiastical function one day, when some dignitary observed:

"Now to put a bridle on our appetites!"

Quick as lightning the archbishop retorted, "Say, rather, now to put a bit between our teeth."

All Tired Out.

Do you feel dull, occasionally—out of sorts—Headaches and Dizziness? The fault is due to with your stomach or your liver. The safe, sure and easy way to get rid of either trouble is to take NATURE'S REMEDY, Take an NR Tablet tonight—it will sweeten the stomach and regulate the liver, kidneys and bowels. Easy to get, Get a 25c Box. The A. H. Lewis Medicine Co., St. Louis, Mo.

His Own Method.

"Did you say you wanted to abolish our tyrannical system which enables persons who do little or nothing to exact tribute from hungry strugglers?" asked the chairman of the meeting.

"That's what I said," answered the Socialist orator, "and it got great applause."

"Yes. But don't you say it again. Remember, you got your start in life from tips while you were waiter in a restaurant."—Washington Star.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.

PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

A Vegetable Cameo.

Spain is the land of the onion—a fact which tempted Mr. Shaw, the author of "Spain of To-day," to fall into the appended easy verse:

All returned travelers are sure to appreciate it for its feeling for truth rather than its resemblance to the form of "The Ancient Mariner."

Garlic, garlic everywhere
Except in what you drink.

Yellow Clothes Are Unsightly.

Keep them white with Red Cross Ball Blue. All grocers sell large 2oz. package, 5 cents.

Microscopic Mechanism.

Mymecides, an ancient carver, was so proficient in microscopic mechanism that he made an ivory ship, with all its decks, masts, yards, rigging and sails, in so small a compass that it might have been hidden under the wing of a fly. He also made a chariot with four wheels and as many harnessed horses, which took up scarcely more room than the ship.

Constipation causes many serious diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One a laxative, three for cathartic.

Let the Debtor Beware.

Briggs—A safe conversational rule is, When in doubt talk of the weather. Griggs—Safe nothing! I met my tailor yesterday, and on my speaking of the weather he replied, "Yes, it is unsettled, and that reminds me of that little bill of yours."—Boston Transcript.

Strong Healthy Women

If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the many women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can be remedied.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Cures the weaknesses and disorders of women. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in motherhood, making them healthy, strong, vigorous, virile and elastic.

"Favorite Prescription" banishes the indispositions of the period of expectancy and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It quickens and vitalizes the feminine organs, and insures a healthy and robust baby. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits.

It Makes Weak Women Strong. It Makes Sick Women Well.

Honest druggists do not offer substitutes, and urge them upon you as "just as good." Accept no secret nostrum in place of this non-secret remedy. It contains not a drop of alcohol and not a grain of habit-forming or injurious drugs. Is a pure glyceric extract of healing, native American roots.

FARMER'S CORNER

The Milking Shed.

A plan that has been proven successful, not only in the improvement of the milk, but in the saving of the manure, is to have a separate barn or shed to do the milking in. This can be a comparatively cheap structure, as it would be intended to keep the cows in it only during the process of milking.

The barn, however, should be constructed in a substantial and sanitary way. After the cows are milked they are turned into a roomy shed or barn, where they remain loose and can eat forage or lie down at will. There are in this shed racks and troughs for feeding hay and ensilage in.

In the milking shed the cows are fastened by means of rigid stanchions, and the feed mangers, where the concentrates are fed, are built high enough to prevent the cow from lying down, thus she remains clean until the milking is done.

The floors should be of concrete, and there should be a gutter behind the cows. These stables should be thoroughly cleaned out each day, and, if possible, washed occasionally, so that there will be as few flies as possible and no offensive odors. There should be no hay or feed stored in this barn and it should be well ventilated, so that the air will be pure and free from dust.

This is about the most practical way to keep cows clean. The feeding shed, which could and really should be the lower floor of the main feed barn, should be well ventilated and bedded, for in there the cows are allowed to run at large and the manure is allowed to accumulate, being covered up each day with new bedding. This plan saves absolutely all of the manure with the least amount of handling, it being hauled directly to the land in the spring.—Southern Agriculturist.

Method of Pulling Stumps.

A very handy device for pulling stumps from old orchards, and can pull 200 or more a day by this means, is shown. The limbs are cut off and the stumps (E) left as long as possible. A short rope or chain with a single pulley is attached to the stump. The anchor rope or chain with a single pulley is attached to the top of stump (C). The anchor rope (B) which runs through the pulley is fastened to the bottom of a stout stump (A).

FOR PULLING STUMPS.

A pair of steady horses is attached to the rope and always pull toward the anchor stump. With a steady pull there is no jumping or jerking, and they will walk right off as if pulling a loaded wagon. Use about sixty feet of one-inch rope, which costs $2.40 and the pulley $1.75, making a total cost of $4.15.

Better Breeding Each Time.

No line of breeding requires more thought and study than horse breeding. This is why so many fail in producing the highest types. One of the essentials is knowing the type of sire to breed the mare to. Many farmers will breed a light mare to a heavy horse or the very opposite, and the result is nothing tangible in the way of improvement. Every farmer should know what kind of an animal he has and be able to select a sire to breed her to that will give an improved offspring. With a proper selection made here the remainder will be easy.

It is well to note at the outset that no horse is absolutely perfect. Every animal has some defect, be it large or small. The defects in the mare should therefore be carefully noted, and the sire selected should be especially strong in the weak points the mare may have. It should be hardly necessary to mention that it is never a good plan to cross breeds. To make a success of the business the horse breeder must select one breed and stick to it.

Preventing Diseases.

The poultry papers are flooded with letters asking remedies for fowl diseases. Many of the letters may be read between the lines and give a story of conditions which should not exist. Nearly all poultry ailments are preventable if a few simple rules are observed.

Plenty of grit is necessary. It may be placed in the water, in which charcoal should be also be placed. The water must be clean, and if allowed to accumulate, the droppings from the fowls is a most prolific breeder of disease germs.

The henhouses must be well ventilated and dry at all times. Drafts and damp floors claim a heavy toll.

Impure food and soured mashes cause inflammation and other diseases of the digestive organs. Any chickens showing symptoms of an unhealthy condition should be at once isolated from the flock. Better care can be given it, and the danger of infecting other fowls is removed.—Farm and Ranch.

Hogs for Turning Over Money.

The hog commends itself to the general farmer on account of its prolific qualities. A sow will produce two litters of six to a dozen each per year and the farmer can turn his money over several times with hogs while he is waiting for other animals to mature.

Hogs require a little more care at times than other some animals, but the man who likes to work with them and is willing to study their needs and give them regular care will find them a most profitable adjunct to the farm. They can be turned into money or food as the owner chooses.

To Simplify Sugar Beet Culture.

The Department of Agriculture is experimenting with a view to obtaining a single germ beet seed. Last year's investigations were successful in increasing the percentage of the single germ seed to 50 per cent, as compared to 26 per cent for the year previous. By methods of selection from single-seed plants this percentage may be still further increased.

The ultimate establishment of a single germ beet will revolutionize sugar beet growing, since the several sprouts sent up by the ordinary seed, all of which must be carefully removed by hand, constitutes the most difficult problem in beet raising.

Handy Barrow for Winter.

I have had many a tussle in trying to push a wheelbarrow through drifts of snow. My pigpen is some distance from the other buildings, and it is very necessary to have some sort of conveyance for the feed. After having tried my patience to the limit for several winters, I finally devised the scheme shown in the cut. I made a large runner and put it on the barrow in place of the wheel. This skips over the snow in fine shape, and runs fully as easy as a wheel does on solid ground.—C. W. Beecher in Farm and Home.

USEFUL BARROW.

Butter from Sweet Cream.

The quality of butter seems more affected by the degrees of ripeness at which the cream is churned than by any other one thing. It is now becoming the fashion in some quarters to churn sweet cream. It is said that the butter keeps longer and some like it better, though a moderate degree of ripeness produces butter of the most popular flavor. It is well known that over-ripe cream makes an ill-flavored butter, and the wonder is that so much of it is produced. Negligence and procrastination account for most of it.

Swine Breeding.

A swine breeder of experience and good judgment says: "The best show pig may come from the smallest sow in the herd, but it is not safe, as a rule, to select breeders from that class. We want the most size in the shortest time, and we can safely forego a little of the fattening tendency, provided we secure in the prospective breeder ranginess and a tendency to growth. I don't care how good the individual, if only three or four pigs were farrowed in the litter I would not reserve one of them for a breeder."

Trimming Fruit Trees.

Apple trees and other fruit trees that were trimmed in the winter and spring will produce sprouts around the scars the following summer. Much future labor may be saved if the orchard is gone over every few weeks during the summer and these sprouts rubbed off or cut off. Not allowing them to grow will conserve the food supply of the tree, and it will be used for growth in desired branches.

Barrel Traps for Rats.

Two effective devices for trapping rats are made with barrels as shown here. Coarse brown paper, with cross slits, is stretched across the barrel head in the one case and a light cover of wood hinged on a rod in the other plan. The best bait is usually food of a kind that the rats do not get in the vicinity.

Creating Interest in Boys.

Better lighted farm houses, music and inviting reading matter on the sitting room table have done much to solve the problem of keeping the boys on the farm. Make home attractive, and don't crowd the work too hard.

Farm Notes.

Alfalfa is growing in favor as a rotation crop.

Give the colts plenty of room to run about in.

The plow has its share in the good roads movement.

Fit the collar to the horse, not the horse to the collar.

Owls are vermin destroyers. Encourage their presence on the farm.

It is a poor policy to feed inferior grain to horses—especially to the work team.

On cold nights do not leave the cows out to sleep on the damp ground where they may be chilled.

The manure heap is not the farmer's bank unless he gets it out on the land. Then it returns goods interest.

A fortune is awaiting the propagator of a hardy red raspberry. But quality must be sacrificed for hardiness.

Timothy and clover mixed makes good hay, because the timothy holds the clover up and the curing is easier.

If the cows teats have a tendency to get hard, keep a bottle of vaseline handy and use it occasionally to soften the parts.

Have you found out that the larger vines have no place in the garden? Plant pumpkins and squashes in the larger fields.

The addition of roots to an already complete ration of silage, clover hay and grain for a dairy cow stimulates both milk and butter fat production.

Make every square rod on your farm pield its quota of profit. Some use can be found for even the poor strips. Study out how you can best use all your land.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

Another Prune Whip.

One pound of prunes, half cup of sugar, whites of six eggs, half cup of chopped walnuts. Boil the prunes, drain and chop them in a wooden bowl, add the sugar and nuts. In a large bowl whip the whites of the eggs until perfectly dry, then stir the nuts and prunes in carefully. Have ready buttered a three-pint melon mold, set this in a pan containing about an inch of water and bake in a very moderate oven for one hour. This will not fail.

Cream of Chicken Glace.

This with tomato jelly is a most delicious salad course for a fish dinner. Strain through a flannel one-half cup chicken broth, heat and add a tablespoon soaked gelatin. When set fold in a cup of cream whipped (a cup before whipping), and one cup of diced white meat of fowl. Mold in individual molds and serve with cubes of tomato jelly. Of course it should be seasoned, preferably with a little celery and paprika.

A Doughnut Hint.

Doughnuts are much improved if they are coated with a layer of sugar as soon as they are taken from the stove. The best way to powder them is to put a small amount of confectioner's sugar in a paper bag and put several doughnuts in the bag at a time and then shake the bag, holding the top of the bag closed. This will coat them with sugar quickly and more evenly than any other way.

Fruit Cheese.

For fruit cheese, one of the most healthful confections for the children, use half a pound each of raisins, currants, dates, figs and blanched almonds and two pounds of English walnuts. Grind them all fine, mix well and pack tightly in a dish under a cover. Let the mixture stand for two or three days, and then cut into squares and roll in sugar.

Nut Fudge.

Dissolve two squares of chocolate in one cup of milk and add two cups of granulated sugar. Then add a tablespoonful of butter. When the mixture has cooked so that you can see the bottom of the pan when stirring remove from the fire and beat until nearly cold. Add one cup of hickory nuts chopped rather fine, and pour into buttered pans and mark out in squares before thoroughly cooled.

Dumplings for Chicken Stew.

Into a pint of flour sift a heaping teaspoonful of baking powder and one quarter teaspoonful of salt. Work in a tablespoonful of shortening and wet with enough milk to make a dough that can be rolled out. Roll out, cut into strips or rounds, and drop into the boiling gravy. Cook steadily for ten minutes and serve.

Cheese Cake or Pie.

Line a deep pie plate with good pastry and fill with a mixture of two teacupfuls of cottage cheese rubbed very soft with three tablespoonfuls of rich cream, half cup of sugar, the juice and grated rind of a lemon, half a tablespoonful of melted butter and three eggs beaten light. Bake in a good oven.

Never Failing Layer Cake.

Cream three tablespoonfuls of butter with one and a half cups of powdered sugar, add one and a half cups of milk, three eggs, beaten light, and three cups of flour, sifted, with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. This will make four layers.

Puree of Beans.

Select a small grade of soup bean and cook in salted water until sufficiently tender to press through a sieve. Add to this bean pulp or puree sufficient highly seasoned soup stock to make a slightly thickened soup and serve hot.

Hints About the House.

Decorated china plates should be put away with round pieces of canton flannel between them.

Serve crisp celery with cold meat. It is always appreciated, and is a nerve tonic of considerable effectiveness.

For washing coarse clothes soft soap is the best, and it has the advantage of going further than hard, yellow soap.

A new flavor can be given to cooked prunes by adding a few slices of lemon. Another method is to cook them with a bag of spices.

Enameled baths may be cleaned of stains with a rag dipped in salt mixed with paraffin. Afterward rinse well with hot water to remove oil, and dry with a cloth.

If your corn does not pop well, it may be because it is old. Soak it in cold water for fifteen minutes, drain and try again. Better results will undoubtedly be obtained.

To remove scratches on furniture dip a woolen rag in boiled linseed oil and with it well rub the scratched article, which should then be varnished with shellac dissolved in alcohol.

When making glue you will find that the addition of a little glycerin increases its adhesive quality and makes it more elastic. One part of glycerin to three parts of glue is the right proportion.

To cook a pumpkin easily halve it, remove the seeds and bake in oven. When tender scoop pumpkin out with a spoon and rub through a colander. Scorching is prevented and time saved by this method.

Japanned ware should be washed with a sponge dampened in warm water and dried immediately with a soft cloth. Obstinate spots can quickly be removed by rubbing them with a woolen cloth dipped in a little sweet oil.

SOFT, WHITE HANDS

May Be Obtained in One Night.

For preserving the hands as well as for preventing redness, roughness, and chapping, and imparting that velvety softness and whiteness much desired by women Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, is believed to be superior to all other skin soaps. For those who work in corrosive liquids, or at occupations which tend to injure the hands, it is invaluable.

Treatment.—Bathe and soak the hands on retiring in a strong, hot, creamy lather of Cuticura Soap. Dry and anoint freely with Cuticura Ointment, and in severe cases spread the Cuticura Ointment on thin pieces of old linen or cotton. Wear during the night old, loose gloves, or a light bandage of old cotton or linen to protect the clothing from stain. For red, rough, and chapped hands, dry, fissured, itching, feverish palms, and shapeless nails with painful finger ends, this treatment is most effective. Cuticura Remedies are sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole proprietors, Boston, Mass.

90,000 AMERICAN SETTLERS GO TO CANADA.

The Year 1909 Has Shown an Increase of Over Eighty Per Cent in American Settlement.

Recent advices from Canada, our next door neighbor, the neighborly country across the boundary line, are that upwards of ninety thousand settlers from the United States went into Western Canada during the past year, most of them for the purpose of taking up and settling upon the vacant lands, 160 acres of which are given free by the government, and lands adjoining held by railway and land companies are selling at from nine to fifteen and twenty dollars per acre. Even if thirty or forty dollars per acre were paid, the price would then be low, as the lands produce wonderfully, and at these higher figures there is a large interest on the money and labor invested. The ninety thousand settlers of this year, followed about sixty thousand last year, and for several years the figures have been running into these large figures. There must be a reason for it. It may be found in the single phrase, "They are satisfied." Nothing attracts people more than the success of others, and the news of this reaching other thousands causes them to investigate. The investigation in this case is always satisfactory. The splendid land of Iowa, of Indiana, of Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio and other states has risen to a high value, and it is worth every dollar asked for it. But there is not room now for all on these lands. With the ever increasing demand for grain there comes the ever increasing demand for land. Canada is the only country on the continent in a position to supply it. Land there that costs, say, $15 an acre, produces on a reasonable calculation twenty-five bushels of wheat to the acre, or about $20. The most liberal calculation as to cost makes the cost to produce $7.50 per acre, leaving a balance of $12.50 per acre. The $7.50 carries good wages for the farmer, and all other conceivable contingencies. With conditions like this, covering the entire area of about 500,000 square miles, it is readily understood why 90,000 Americans should follow the 60,000 last year. Canadian government agencies at different points in the Union are always ready to give information regarding the free homestead lands, ready to advise the settler as to the districts which would suit him best.

To Be Sure.

"I see," observed the boarder who was looking over the newspaper, "an item here to the effect that wood pulp is likely to be used soon in the making of soups and plum pudding."

"Well, why not?" said the argumentative boarder. "Nothing is impossible to science. Don't you know that the Saratoga chip of commerce is made from basswood, shaved thin across the grain?"

DAVIS' PAINKILLER has no substitute. No other remedy is so effective for rheumatism, lumbago, stiffness, neuralgia or cold of any sort. Put up in 25c, 50c and 50c bottles.

A Wabash Avenue Opinion.

"Speaking of good things, I'd like to show you something in the London Punch that——"

"You can't show me nothin', Jack Johnson's got a punch that has all them furriners gaspin' fur breath!"—Chicago Tribune.

If you use ball blue, get Red Cross Ball Blue, the best ball blue. Large 2oz. package, 5 cents.

Bound to Make a Sale.

"Wouldn't you like to try a bottle of my celebrated eye remedy? Only 20 cents."

"No; there's nothing whatever the matter with my eyes."

"Well, it's equally good for removing corns. As a corn remedy I sell it for 10 cents."

Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna

acts gently yet promptly on the bowels; cleanses the system effectually; assists one in overcoming habitual constipation permanently.

To get its beneficial effects, always buy the genuine.

MANUFACTURED BY THE CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.

SOLD BY LEADING DRUGGISTS 50¢ A BOTTLE

Answer This Question

When shown positive and reliable proof that a certain remedy had cured numerous cases of female ills, wouldn't any sensible woman conclude that the same remedy would also benefit her if suffering with the same trouble?

Here are two letters which prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Fitchville, Ohio.—"My daughter was all run down, suffered from pains in her side, head and limbs, and could walk but a short distance at a time. She came very near having nervous prostration, had begun to cough a good deal, and seemed melancholy by spells. She tried two doctors but got little help. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Purifier and Liver Pills she has improved so much that she feels and looks like another girl."—Mrs. C. Cole, Fitchville, Ohio.

Irasburg, Vermont.—"I feel it my duty to say a few words in praise of your medicine. When I began taking it I had been very sick with kidney and bladder troubles and nervous prostration. I am now taking the sixth bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and find myself greatly improved. My friends who call to see me have noticed a great change."—Mrs. A. H. Sanborn, Irasburg, Vermont.

We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful—or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the letters are published without their permission, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

What more proof can any one ask?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

THE Famous Rayo Lamp

Once a Rayo user always one

THE STEADY WHITE LIGHT

The RAYO LAMP is a high-grade lamp, sold at a low price. There are lamps that cost more, but there is no better lamp at any price. The Burner, the Wick, the Chimney-Holder—all are vital things in a lamp; these parts of the RAYO LAMP are perfectly constructed and there is nothing known in the art of lamp-making that could add to the value of the RAYO as a light-giving device. Suitable for any room in any house. Every dealer everywhere. If not at yours, write for descriptive circular to the nearest Agency of the

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (Incorporated)

For DISTEMPER Pink Eye, Epizootic, Shipping Fever and Catarrhal Fever

Sure cure and positive preventive, no matter how horses at any age are infected or "exposed." Liquid, given on the tongue, acts on the Blood and Glands; expels the poisonous germs from the body. Cures Distemper in Dogs and Sheep and Cholera in Poultry. Largest selling live stock remedy. Cures La Grippe among human beings and is a fine Kidney remedy. 50c and $1 a bottle; $5 and $10 a dozen. Cut this out. Keep it. Show to your druggist, who will get it for you. Free Booklet, "Distemper, Causes and Cures." Special agents wanted.

Spohn Medical Co. Chemists and Bacteriologists Goshen, Ind., U. S. A.

HAMLINS WIZARD OIL GREAT FOR PAIN

THE OIL THAT PENETRATES

FASHION HINTS

Draped sleeves are back again as the newest sleeve touch. There are many ways of doing them, but the accompanying sketch shows one of the most attractive arrangements.

She who has remodeling in her mind sees boundless possibilities for the slightly worn waist of her silk gown—a little chiffon, net, or novelty stuff, and there you are.

Tour of the World.

A series of 50 post cards in colors will be mailed to any address upon receipt of 15 cents in coin or stamps. Address The Evening Wisconsin Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

Reading rooms have been opened for children in Copenhagen by the women.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething; softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

WESTERN CANADA

What Prof. Shaw, the Well-Known Agriculturist, Says About it:

"I would sooner raise cattle in Western Canada than in the corn belt of the United States. Feed is cheaper and climate better for the purpose. Your market will improve faster than your farmers will produce the supplies. Wheat can be grown up to the 66th parallel 100 miles north of the International boundary. Your vacant land will be taken at a rate beyond present conception. We have enough people in the United States alone who want homes to take up this land." Yearly

70,000 Americans

will enter and make their homes in Western Canada this year. 1909 produced another large crop of wheat, oats and barley, in addition to which the cattle exports was an immense item.

Cattle raising, dairying, mixed farming and grain growing in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Free homestead and pre-emption areas, as well as lands held by railway and land companies, will provide homes for millions.

Adaptable soil, healthful climate, splendid schools and churches, and good railways.

For settlers' rates, descriptive literature "Last Best West," how to reach the country and other particulars, write to Supt. of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the following Canadian Gov't Agents: W. H. Rogers, 3d Floor Traction Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Ind., and H. M. Williams, Room 30, Law Building, Toledo, Ohio. (Use address nearest you).

Please say where you saw this advertisement.

Fort Wayne List

PILES PAY IF CURED

We pay postage and send FREE RED CROSS Pile and Fistula Cure.

REA CO., DEPT. 85, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

F. W. N. U. - - - - No. 4—1910

When writing to Advertisers please say you saw the Adv. in this paper.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES

Save the voice in all kinds of weather. Singers and public speakers find them invaluable for clearing the voice. There is nothing so effective for Sore Throat, Hoarseness and Coughs. Fifty years' reputation. Price, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00 per box. Samples mailed on request.

JOHN I. BROWN & SON, Boston, Mass.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Illinois

0474

L1134

FEBRUARY

DeKalb County Herald

A. S. POWERS, Editor and Publisher

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

ONE YEAR, $1.50 SIX MONTHS, 75c THREE MONTHS, 40c

The Herald is entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice, Butler, Indiana

It May Be Pneumonia

"A hard chill, pain through the chest, difficult breathing. Then fever, with great prostration." If this should be your experience, send for your doctor. You may have pneumonia! If your doctor cannot come at once, give Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. When he comes, tell him exactly what you have done. Then do as he says. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J.C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Keep the bowels in good condition. One of Ayer's Pills at bedtime will cause an increased flow of bile, and produce a gentle laxative effect the day following.

Editorial Notes

The Tariff Responsible

Commenting on the connection of the tariff with the enormous increase in the cost of the necessaries of life, the Philadelphia Record says:

"Were the dearness confined to meats, to which public opinion and public action are mainly directed, this might be regarded as an exceptional and fortuitous phenomenon. But it is seen that wherever the duty on an article is so high as to make its importation unprofitable the cost of the rival domestic commodity is the greatest. The same goods of which the prices at home are driven to an exhorbitant height are sold for less in foreign markets. American meats are sold by the beef trust in London at prices at which consumers in Philadelphia would be glad to obtain them even by the exercises of self denial. The steel trust makes no denial or concealment of the fact that it sells its products for less in foreign markets than at home; and this is justified by the political economists of protection with the plea that it prevents stagnation in trade and gives constant employment to labor. Whilst Andrew Carnegie declares that protection is not needed by the greatest of the trusts, Judge Gary (head of the trust) admits as much by saying that he is concerned solely for the independent manufacturers, and proceeds forthwith to secure a prohibitory duty on building materials of steel.

"But the patient and long-enduring American consumers are at last on the march. The cry has gone up throughout the land that the spoliatory system that makes dear their necessaries of living must come to an end. One by one the fallacies and humbugs that propped it are falling away amid the contempt of its former votaries. The great self-denying movement of the people against dearness of necessaries of living is but the preliminary step to removing the cause. He who puts his ears to the ground may hear the tread of the coming millions."

A Moral

A duck which stuck faithfully to business during the summer and laid several dozens of large, fawn-colored eggs, complained that she wasn't appreciated. "See that hen over there," said the duck; "she hasn't laid as many eggs as I have, nor as big, but she has books written about her and verses composed in her honor, while nobody is saying a word about me."

"The trouble with you is," said the wise old rooster that was standing near "that you don't tell the public what you have done. You lay an egg and waddle off without saying a word, but that sister of mine never lays one without letting every one in the neighborhood know about it" If you want to cut any ice in this community you must learn to advertise.

Staggers Skeptics

That a clean, nice, fragrant compound like Bucklen's Arnica Salve will instantly relieve a bad burn, cut, scald, wound or piles, staggers skeptics. But great cures prove its a wonderful healer of the worst sores, ulcers, boils, felons eczema, skin eruptions, as also chapped hands, sprains and corns. Try it. 25c at Stone's drug store. 5-1m

FOOD FOR A YEAR

Meat	300 lbs.
Milk	240 qts.
Butter	100 lbs.
Eggs	27 doz.
Vegetables	500 lbs.

This represents a fair ration for a man for a year.

But some people eat and eat and grow thinner. This means a defective digestion and unsuitable food. A large size bottle of equals in nourishing properties ten pounds of meat. Your physician can tell you how it does it.

Scott's Emulsion

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send 10c., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each bank contains a Good Luck Penny.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., New York

Takes Taft to Task

Dr. Immanuel Pfeiffer, president and founder of the Postal Reform League, Inc., has issued an open letter to President Taft sharply criticising the president's references to the financial system and especially the postal situation.

With regard to the president's statement that the deficiency in postage on second-class mail is a subsidy to newspapers, country weeklies and magazines, Dr. Pfeiffer says:

"It is hard for me to see how you have managed to crowd in so many mis-statements in so few words. It is difficult for me to realize how you dare to misinform congress to the extent you have. I cannot believe they are made because you are entirely ignorant upon matters of so great importance.

"The government is simply following the time-honored custom to promote a liberal distribution of educational and news matter for the benefit of the nation, and it is misleading to call it a subsidy, especially as it has been proved that the government derives an enormous benefit from the business created through the advertising columns of said publications.

"Had you the interest of the common people at heart you would never have made such a wicked recommendation as to put an extra tax of $17,500,000 on the people's reading matter. The rate charged for carrying the mail is the same now as in 1878, although freight charges have been very much reduced since, in many cases as much as 100 per cent. Why did you not state to congres that the reason of the absurdly high rate is that the United States government permits the railroad companies to rob the nation by charging it a much higher rate than is charged by the express companies for the same service?"

With regard to the deficiency in the rural mail delivery, Dr. Pfeiffer suggests that a local parcel post at a rate of 3 cents per pound for the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound would meet the deficit. This would add fully $15,000,000 and perhaps $50,000,000 to the postal receipts, he says. —New York World.

Merchants who constantly talk about people trading at home and enlist the co-operation of the local newspaper man to help fight the mail order houses should set the "trade at home" example by following their own advice. Particularly should they do so if they desire the aid of the editor in the fight for home trade. Just how a merdhant can ask the newspaper to make a fight against mail order business when he himself patronrzes a mail order house when he wants envelopes, is beyond the comprehension of the average country editor, and shows an inconsistency incomparable in the actions of men. Trade at home, Mr. Merchant, if you would have others do so. The mail order houses sell goods cheaper than you can just as the Dayton print shop sells envelopes cheaper than the local printer can buy them. Trade at home and then you are consistent in asking others to do so.—Fayette Review.

Worthy of Confidence

An Offer Backed By One of Our Most Reputable Concerns

We pay for all the medicine used during the trial, if our remedy fails to completely relieve you of constipation. We take all the risk. You are not obligated to us in any way whatever, if you accept our offer. That's a mighty broad statement, but we mean every word of it. Could anything be more fair for you?

A most scientific, common-sense treatment is Rexall Oderlies, which are eaten like candy. Their active principle is a recent scientific discovery that is odorless, colorless and tasteless; very pronounced, gentle and pleasant in action, and particularly agreeable in every way. This ingredient does not cause diarrhoea, nausea, flatulence, griping or any inconvenience whatever. Rexall Oderlies are particularly good for children, aged and delicate persons.

If you suffer from chronic or habitual constipation, or the associate or dependent chronic ailments, we urge you to try Rexall Oderlies at our risk. Remember you can get them at Butler only at our store. 12 tablets 10 cents; 36 tablets 25 cents—The Rexall Store. Geo. W. Geddes, It

CARAVAN BREADMAKING.

Afghans Use Cobblestones, While Turcomans Like Sand.

The bread of the Afghan caravan was cooked by heating small round cobblestones in the fire and then poking them out and wrapping dough an inch thick about them. The balls thus formed were again thrown into the fire, to be poked out again when cooked. The bread tasted well there in the desert, although in civilized communities the grit and ashes would have seemed unendurable.

After good fellowship had been established the Afghans actually sold us some flour, says a writer in the National Geographical Magazine. The camp where we used it a little later happened to be beside the sandy bed of a trickling salt stream, which was drinkable in winter, but absolutely unusable in summer, when evaporation is at its height and the salt is concentrated.

"See," said one of our Turcomans as we dismounted; "here is some sand. Tonight we can have some good bread."

When some dry twigs had been gathered he proceeded to smooth off a bit of the cleanest sand and built upon it a hot fire. When the sand was thoroughly hot he raked off most of the coals and smoothed the sand very neatly. Meanwhile one of the other men had made two large sheets of dough about three-quarters of an inch thick and eighteen inches in diameter. Between these he placed a layer of lumps of sheep's tail fat, making a huge round sandwich. This was now spread on the hot sand, coals mixed with sand were placed completely over it, and it was left to bake. Now and then an edge was uncovered, and a Turcoman smelled it appreciatively and rapped on it to see if it was yet cooked. When the top was thoroughly baked the bread was turned over and covered up again. It tasted even better than the Afghan bread after it was cooled a little and the sand and ashes had been whisked off with a girdle. The Turcomans are so accustomed to life in the sandy desert that they think it impossible to make the best kind of bread without sand, while the Afghans, who live in the stony mountains, think that cobblestones are a requisite.

THE ZANZIBARIS.

Dense Stupidity and Amusing Blunders of the Natives.

In the "Autobiography of Sir Henry M. Stanley" the author says of the colored natives of central Africa:

"Good as the majority of Zanzibaris were, some of them were indescribably and for me most unfortunately dense. One man who from his personal appearance might have been judged to be among the most intelligent was after thirty months' experience with his musket unable to understand how it was to be loaded. He never could remember whether he ought to drop the powder or the bullet into the musket first. Another time he was sent with a man to transport a company of men over a river to camp. After waiting an hour I strode to the bank of the river and found them paddling in opposite directions, each blaming the other for his stupidity and, being in a passion of excitement, unable to hear the advice of men across the river, who were bawling out to them how to manage their canoe.

"Another man was so ludicrously stupid that he generally was saved from punishment because his mistakes were so absurd. We were one day floating down the Kongo, and, it being near camping time, I bade him, as he happened to be bowman on the occasion, to stand by and seize the grass on the bank to arrest the boat when I should call out. In a little while we came to a fit place, and I cried, 'Hold hard, Kirango!' 'Please God, master,' he replied and forthwith sprang on the shore and seized the grass with both hands, while we, of course, were rapidly swept down river, leaving him alone and solitary on the bank. The boat's crew roared at the ridiculous sight, but nevertheless his stupidity cost the tired men a hard pull to ascend again, for not every place was available for a camp.

"He it was also who on an occasion when we required the branch of a species of arbutus which overhung the river to be cut away to allow the canoes to be brought nearer to the bank for safety actually went astride of the branch and chopped away until he fell into the water with the branch and lost our ax. He had seated himself on the outer end of the branch."

A Bunch of Kicks.

"I'm in hard luck!" sighed the steel rail.

"Look at me! I get nothing from morning till night but hot air," groaned the pumping engine.

"I'm always in hot water," sighed the boiler.

"Consider my plight," cried the macadam road, "invariably walked over and trodden under foot."

"I'm used to it, for I'm always up against it," philosophically remarked the wall paper.

"You're none of you as badly off as I am," said the furnace, "for, no matter where I go, I'm generally fired."—Baltimore American.

The Editor Won.

A London paper described a children's excursion as a "long white scream of joy" and was called to account by a correspondent, who said that a scream could be long, but not white, whereupon the editor justified himself by urging that "a hue is often associated with a cry."

Every heart contains perfection's germ.—Shelley.

MILD LIQUID CURES ECZEMA

Skin Sufferers! Drop Greasy Salves and Nasty Medicines

That mild, soothing liquid, D. D. D. Prescription, stops the awful itch with the first drops. A prescription of acknowledged value.

Get a trial bottle at 25c. It will take away the itch right away and you will sleep soundly. We assure you personally of the merits of this remedy; for we KNOW. Stone's Drug Store, Butler, Ind.

Ordinance No. 67

An ordinance fixing and establishing the salaries of the officers of the city of Butler, Indiana.

SECTION 1. Whereas, Ordinance No. 41, expired on the 1st day of January, 1910, and whereas, there is now no ordinance in effect regulating and establishing the salaries to be paid to the separate officers of the city of Butler, Indiana, that the annual salary of the following named city officials for the period beginning with the 1st day of January, 1910, and thereafter, shall be as follows, to-wit: Mayor, $150; clerk, $225; treasurer, $200; each councilman, $75; marshal, $600; city attorney, $200, to which shall be added reasonable compensation for services in preparing and litigating cases in court involving matters other than prosecutions of violations of city ordinances; secretary of board of health, $25; city engineer, $3 per day for work actually done and performed for and in behalf of said city.

SECTION 2. Be it further ordained that the salaries above provided, for the mayor, clerk, treasurer, councilmen, city attorney and secretary of board of health shall be payable quarterly, as follows: One fourth (¼) upon the last regular meeting night of the common council in the months of March, June, September and December of each year; that the salaries of the marshal, deputy marshal and city engineer shall be payable upon the first regular meeting of the common council in each month in such sum as shall at said time have been fully earned upon a pro rate basis as such salary shall compare with the calendar months of each year.

SECTION 3. And whereas, there is now no ordinance existing regulating the matters to which this ordinance appertains and whereas, an emergency exists for the immediate taking effect of this ordinance, it is therefore ordained that the same shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage.

The above and foregoing ordinance was duly passed in open meeting of the city council on the 7th day of February, 1910.

Attest:

L. C. BUEHRER, City Clerk.

Presented by me to the mayor of the city of Butler, Indiana, this 7th day of February, 1910.

L. C. BUEHRER, City Clerk.

Approved and signed by me this 7th day of February, 1910.

W. J. MONDHANK, Mayor.

Better Than Spanking

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

Good News

"I write to tell you the good news that Cardui has helped me so much and I think it is just worth its weight in gold," writes Mrs. Maryan Marshall, of Woodstock, Ga. "I do hope and trust that ladies who are suffering as I did, will take Cardui, for it has been a God's blessing to me, and will certainly help every lady who is suffering."

E 52

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

No matter if you suffer from headache, backache pains in arms, shoulders and legs, dragging-down feelings, etc., or if you feel tired, weary, worn-out and generally miserable—Cardui will help you. It has helped thousands of other weak, sick ladies and if you will only give it a trial, you will be thankful ever after.

Nervous Prostration

"I suffered so with Nervous Prostration that I thought there was no use trying to get well. A friend recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine, and although skeptical at first, I soon found myself recovering, and am to-day well."

MRS. D. I. JONES,
5800 Broadway, Cleveland, O.

Much sickness is of nervous origin. It's the nerves that make the heart force the blood through the veins, the lungs take in oxygen, the stomach digest food, the liver secrete bile and the kidneys filter the blood. If any of these organs are weak, it is the fault of the nerves through which they get their strength. Dr. Miles' Nervine is a specific for the nerves. It soothes the irritation and assists in the generation of nerve force. Therefore you can hardly miss it if you take Dr. Miles' Nervine when sick. Get a bottle from your druggist. Take it all according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.

DEMOCRATIC QUILL PUSHERS MEET IN CONVENTION

Governor Thomas R. Marshall Warmly Greeted---Pays Tribute to Country Editor

The democratic state convention will be held in advance of the republican state convention this year if the Indiana Democratic Editorial Association which held their annual banquet at Indianapolis last Thursday and Friday is permitted to have its way. The proposition was advanced before the democratic editors in their annual banquet at the Denison hotel by Clay W. Metsker, of Plymouth, vice chairman of the state association.

"We editors," said Mr. Metsker, "were assembled in Indianapolis two years ago when it became known that the state committee favored holding the convention after the republicans had made their nominations. We hastily declared ourselves for an early convention and the decision of the state committee was rescinded. Our position on the temperance question was first proclaimed. The republicans were compelled to come to our platform or take an extreme ground. They did the latter and lost the fight.

"We demonstrated that a convention prior to that of the republicans was wisdom two years ago and in my candid judgment we should fix our convention date before that of the republicans in the campaign upon which we are about to enter"

GOVERNOR WARMLY GREETED

Governor Thomas R. Marshall, who with Mrs. Marshall arrived late at the banquet, reiterated his former expressions on the powers and prerogatives of a state executive. The Governor and Mrs. Marshall were greeted with loud applause by the democratic editors when they appeared during the address of Robert J. Aley, state superintendent of public instruction.

"If I have succeeded as governor of Indiana," said Mr. Marshall, "it was because I did not exercise powers which I had no right to exercise. During the turbulent session of the late state legislature no man was threatened and no man was bribed by me."

The banquet was attended by seventy-five democratic editors. Frank D Haimbaugh, of Muncie, was toastmaster. Mr. Haimbaugh was introduced by W. S. Chambers, of Newcastle, the retiring president of the association. In his opening remarks Mr. Haimbaugh told his fellow craftsmen that he brought them good tidings of great joy. He said his native city, Muncie, had elected the entire democratic ticket for the first time since the city was incorporated. The announcement was received with applause.

Mr. Haimbaugh presented Mr. Metsker, of Plymouth, who will be elected president of the association if the precedent is followed. Mr. Metsker said it is an easy matter to be a politician.

Governor Marshall paid a tribute to the country editor, the country lawyer and the country preacher. He spoke of the early principles of the fathers who framed the constitution and deplored the fact, he said, that the country is drifting into a condition in which a few men assume the prerogative of thinking for the whole people. Class distinctions he thought had developed in recent years.

"I am opposed to a rearrangement of the edifice formerly constructed upon the principles of freedom, but which it is now planned to adorn with a Queen Anne front and a Mary Anne rear."

The governor received continued applause when he cited the text of republican resolutions recently adopted in the state of Indiana. Mr. Marshall's hearers caught the point to his reference immediately.

"We indorse the administration of President Taft, we express our confidence in the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill and we urge a united effort in behalf of the re-election of Senator Albert J. Beveridge," is the way the republican platforms read, said Mr. Marshall.

Mr. Marshall told an apt story with reference to his appearance during the address of Dr. Robert J. Aley.

"I was amused," he said, "when a boy in the country and the sexton appeared at the rear door of the country church and called out. 'Dr. Smith is wanted.' I used to feel that the call was made for advertising purposes."

"I like the good old fashioned lawyer," he said, "who tried everything from a cow case to a murder charge. I like the country editor and the country preacher. The history of the world discloses that the city would become a festering sore, but for the fact that the boys and girls from the country are moving constantly to the city. Upon the shoulders of the country rests, for weal or woe, the permanency of our institutions.

"I may be one of the fifty-seven varieties of democrats," said the speaker, "but I believe that I am the kind that appeals to the democracy of the state of Indiana.

"A great many people in Indiana think it wise to urge the town council to pass an ordinance to arrest vagrant chickens when one is found trespassing. We have enough laws to put the beef trust out of business and compel a price that the ordinary man can afford to pay for a beefsteak."

Governor Marshall closed with an admonition that the party workers must be willing to give and take, but that they must stand together on a united platform in the present campaign.

Many mixtures are offered as substitutes for Royal. None of them is the same in composition or effectiveness, so wholesome and economical, nor will make such fine food.

ROYAL Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

Royal is the only Baking Powder made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar

Things to Remember

Some things you ought to know in abbreviated form:

Indianapolis is to have a million dollar hotel in the near future.

Fort Wayne is to have a new theater backed by New York capitalists.

There are fourteen cities and towns in the United States bearing the name of Butler.

Columbia City has a "Jack the Squeezer."

The Waterloo Press celebrated its 50th birthday last week.

The size of ladies hats is on the increase, while shirt waists, well, we're too modest to mention that.

The insurance department of the Knight of Pythias will be moved from Chicago to Indianapolis.

That a man's mental caliber is judged by the number of suckers he has caught in the net of deception.

Jefferies and Johnson will decide the pugilistic championship at Salt Lake City.

A youth in New York is making a good living teaching ladies, who have invested in a dog for the first time, how to whistle.

A large number of boys and girls have gone to death coasting during the winter.

A merchant at Auburn is said to be so stingy that he never tells a joke at his own expense.

In 1810 nearly all the Latin American countries established their independence as nations free from Spanish control.

President Taft is still talking, but not saying much, and doing less.

Dr. Cook is in a private hospital nursing a bad cold contracted at the north pole.

The baby that cries the hardest may some day laugh the loudest.

Horses practical wireless telegrahy long before man thought of it.

Tom Marshal is at present in fair way to be our next president. Here's hopin'.

Notice to Non-Residents

State of Indiana, DeKalb County, ss:

In the DeKalb circuit court, March term, 1910, Anna Inhoof and Bertha Creager, Benjamin McDonald is Butler, Indiana; Hannah Sherwood, Ivan Mathews and Silas Mathews, Angola, Indiana; Alice Mathews, Terre Haute, Indiana; that the residence upon diligent inquiry is unknown of the defendants Charles Mathews, Sarrah Updike, Sarah Manahan, Mary Mathews, Albina Mathews, Henry Mathews, Amelia Mathews, Benjamin Mathews, Anna Carey, Elnora Toner, Martha J. Miller, S. Bruce Miller, whose true christian name to plaintiff is unknown; Oliver Hershiser, Sarah L. Hershiser, Oliver F. Hershiser, Jacob Landis, Leonard Shull, Jacob Shull.

The children, descendants and heirs, the surviving spouse, the creditors and administrators of the estate, the devisees, legatees, and trustees of the last will and testament and the successors in interest respectively of each of the following named and designated deceased persons, to-wit:

Martha J. Miller, S. Bruce Miller, whose true christian name to plaintiff is unknown, Oliver Hershiser, Sarah L. Hershiser, Oliver F. Hershiser, Jacob Landis, Leonard Shull, Jacob Shull.

The children, descendants and heirs, the surviving spouse, the creditors and administrators of the estate, the devisees, legatees, trustees and executors of the last will and testament and the successors in interest respectively of the deceased widow of each of the following named and designated deceased persons, to-wit: S. Bruce Miller, whose true christian name to plaintiff is unknown, Oliver Hershiser, Oliver F. Hershiser, Jacob Landis, Leonard Shull, Jacob Shull.

All of the women once known by any of the names and designations above stated who may have changed their names and who are not known by some other name, the names of whom are unknown to plaintiff.

The spouses of all the persons above named and designated as defendants to this action who are married, the names of whom are unknown to plaintiff are hereby notified that an action has been commenced against them in said court, to quiet title, release mortgage and sell real estate by Frank Creager executor of the last will and testament of Sarah Casey deceased, and that the same will be heard and determined on the 21st day of March, 1910, being the 13th juridical day of the next term of said court, which commences the 7th day of March, 1910.

Witness, the clerk of said court, this 19th day of January, 1910.

W. A. AUSTIN, Clerk.

E. B. DUNTEN, Plaintiff's Atty. 3-4

C. J. Coats has an 80 acre farm he will trade for a smaller piece. If he cannot do this, will take Butler city property in exchange. tf

Shoppers Guide

Butler's New Cigar

Red Star

A PLEASANT SMOKE

For Sale by Dealers and at the Factory

TRY ONE

And Help a Home Industry

W. H. GRINDLE, Manufact'r

The Crystal Theatre

IS HERE TO STAY

Fine Views, Illustrated songs and Cartoons are the Features.

Located in Oberlin Block.
F. M. TILBURY, Prop

The Flour Of Quality

White Wonder Flour

Butler Milling Co

TRY OUR

Merido Coffee

17 cents per pound hard to beat.
L. H. McINTURF

DONT FORGET

Oliver Plow Day

FEB. 14, 1910

Aldrich Bros.

FARM IMPLEMENTS

ARCADE

BILLIARD & CIGAR STORE

Your 1909 Patronage was Appreciated. We ask a share of your 1910 trade.

FOR

Nifty Clothes

BOYS

See Ott, The Tailor

O. W. HINER, V. M. D., M. F.

Veterinary Surgeon and Dentist

All calls promptly answered day or night

OFFICE AT RESIDENCE

Exclusive Right

FOR

Lowney's Candies

For the city of Butler direct from the factory

Quality and freshness GUARANTEED

Fresh Oysters

George Stout

THE CLOTHES WE MAKE

Fit the man as the feathers fit the bird. The make, style, fit, finish and prices are all perfect. Our spring stock is now awaiting your inspection. Be glad to see you any time.

ED MAY

If your grocers can not satisfy you with their bread? Try the

Home Bakery

The best tasting bread in the city. has no equal. Bread 4c a loaf.

Anton Panhuysen

REAL ESTATE

We have some splendid farms and other excellent properties or investment.

We have the Thompson Opera House for sale and many other properties in Butler.

Farms from 40 to 160 acres. It will pay you to see us before buying. We are in the business to stay and are able to place you right.

Wilcox & Creager

WABASH

No 2—Express	6:48 a. m
No 28—Mail	9:03 a. m
No. 6—Toledo Mail & Exp	5:12 p. m.
No. 78—Local Freight	9:50 a. m

WEST BOUND

No. 9—Fast Mail	4:29 a. m
No. 11—Ft. Wayne Mail & Exp	10:16 a. m
No. 3—Express	8:17 p. m.
No. 79—Local Freight	2:04 p. m.

All trains daily except Local Freights.

O. C. WATERMAN, Agent, Butler, Ind.

FEBRUARY

0475

L1134

VALENTINES

A Nice Line of Valentines.

All Kinds and Varieties. Valentine Post Cards from 1 cent up.

AT

PHILLIPS' DRUG STORE

JEWELRY AND DRUGS

Local and Personal

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

Rovell Pessel is on the sick list.

Sweet juicy steaks and roasts at the new meat market. 5tf

The best cleaning fluid ever heard of at May's tailor shop. 5tf

The Crystal theater has installed a set of opera chairs.

The First National bank solicits your fire insurance. tf

J. O. Gee spent Sunday with relatives at South Milford.

Charley Groff, of Toledo, spent Sunday with relatives here.

Harley Sechler spent Sunday at St. Joe the guest of friends.

Milo Husselman spent Tuesday in Fort Wayne on business.

Francis Greenwood left Saturday for Toledo where she will visit.

Wallace C. Webster can sell your property, either city or farms.

Miss Effie Bogart of Spencerville, is expected Saturday for a visit.

Miss Gloria Madison spent Sunday with her mother at Fort Wayne.

Elder Braden, of Edon, Ohio, was in the city Monday on business.

Mrs Davis went to Pleasant Lake, Tuesday, for several days visit.

John Zimmerman, of Summit, was the guest of Jake Cook's Tuesday.

Jake Cook and wife entertained Sim Spake and wife to dinner, Sunday.

Fred Briggs will sell you cement blocks cheaper than anyone else. tf

The Lady Maccabees will have public installation at their hall February 18.

Sunday dinners at the Cottage hotel only 25 cents. Give us a call. 2-tf

Mrs M B Bryant will return to her home in Three Rivers, Mich Saturday.

Mrs Chas Madden ente tained Mesdames Harrison and Dunton Sunday.

Rev Davis will preach at Zion next Sunday morning and at Big Run in the evening.

James T Ravett and wife are making an extended tour through the western states

Hoyt Cook and Noal Spakes spent Sunday in Spencerville, the guests of friends

E R Powers, the monument dealer of Angola, was in the city, Saturday on business.

Misses Hilda Whitman and Gladys Zimmerman spent Sunday with their parents here.

Roy Koffel, a mail clerk on the L.S. & M. S. railroad, is making Butler his stopping place.

F. L. Kiplinger is in New York this week buying goods for the Knisely Dry Goods Co.

E. W. Bryan and wife visited with Sarah Imhoff and Fred Carr, east of Butler, Sunday.

Mrs. Clyde Wilson spent the fore part of the week visiting with friends at Fort Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crowl, of South Milford, spent Sunday with Burl Haverstock and wife.

The Misses Rosalie and Besse Wiley and Mildred Kenestrick spent Sunday with O. A. Garber and family.

Mrs. Clark Snyder has been very sick at the home of her parents, Henry Wilson and wife, north of Butler.

Mrs. Clarence Clark and children, of Montpelier, visited with her parents, E. C. Murphy and wife, Sunday.

Mrs. Belle Clark and children, of Montpelier, Ohio, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Murphy.

K. H. Hawk and wife, formerly of Edon, Ohio, now of Auburn, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Craun.

Clyde Gaff, who now lives on Jeff Boyle's farm east of town, expects to move on the David Riser farm about March 1.

A. S Kester and wife are keeping their granddaughters, Virginia and Mildred Hollinger, while their mother is in the hospital at Toledo.

Wm. Blaker was the guest of his sister, Mrs. John Barber, near Adrian, Mich., the latter part of last week. Mrs. Barber is in quite poor health.

Miss Edna Fridenberger returned home Saturday evening from spending several days at Waterloo. Her aunt, Mrs Jennie Rohrbaugh, accompanied her home.

Mrs Clark Brown entertained at supper last Tuesday evening the following guests: Mr and Mrs Henry Showalter and son, Mrs Lulu Keep and son, Mr. and Mrs Geo. Powers and family and Mrs. Perry Applegate and daughter.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery

Donna Daniel is on the sick list.

See Fred Briggs for cement blocks. tf

Mrs. Jay Norford is quite ill with heart trouble.

Get your charcoal in any quantity at May's tailor shop. 5tf

Phone orders promptly delivered at the new meat market. 5tf

F. W. Nimmons will move onto his farm the coming spring.

Albert Dove has been on the sick list the past few days.

Mrs. Luther Knisely spent Sunday with her mother at Bryan.

Mr. Hurt of Montpelier spent Sunday with Mrs. Grace Edyvean.

Miss Besse Elliott of Fort Wayne is the guest of her parents.

Miss Clela Funk spent Sunday in Jackson Mich., with friends.

If you have property you want sold, list it with Wallace C. Webster.

A. R. Zimmerman and wife are spending a few days in Chicago.

Merritt Sechler spent Sunday with Joe Miller and wife, east of town.

J. George Wagner's household goods arrived from New York Wednesday.

Sunday dinners at the Cottage hotel only 25 cents. Give us a call. 2-tf

Charles Capp and Ed Karle attended the horse sale at Bryan Wednesday.

Miss Grayce Showalter of Fort Wayne spent Sunday with her mother.

Mrs. Jerry Barber fell on the ice last Thursday morning and broke her left arm.

Godfrey Willman and wife of Edgerton spent Sunday with J. J. Mack and family.

Byron Cosper is moving his family into the Leonard property on Green street.

Mrs M. B. Bryant spent Monday in Auburn, the guest of Miss Josephine Bryant.

Mrs. Dill of Toledo was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Wesley Mutzfeld, Sunday.

FOR RENT—An eight room house, after about March 1. Inquire of D. H. Knisely. 6 2

Mable Oberlin returned home Tuesday after several days visit with her uncle in Toledo.

Mrs. J. O. Gee and Mrs. Johnson left Thursday for several days visit at Edgerton, Ohio.

If you want to send money away buy a New York draft of the First National bank. tf

Miss Ethel Baker returned to Fort Wayne Tuesday evening after a short visit with her parents.

Mesdames Sarah and Bertha Knott, of Waterloo, were the guests of J. N. Boyle and family Sunday.

F M Tilbury, proprietor of the Crystal Palace, will move his family here from Napoleon, Ohio, about April 1.

Leslie Tappen has rented the Frank Jackson farm, southeast of Angola They expect to move about March 1.

WANTED—50 ladies and gentlemen at once at McGuire's Telegraph School, Edgerton, O. Good positions furnished when competent. tf

Harold Tess, who is attending school at Connersville, was called home Monday by the death of his grandmother, Mrs. T. J. Knisley.

A meeting of the alumni association will be held in the K of P hall this (Friday) evening at 7:00 o'clock. All members are urged to be present.

Mr. Tanner of Napoleon spent Saturday and Sunday with Ralph Tilbury. Mr. Tilbury accompanied him home Sunday evening for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Zimmerman and daughters, Gladys and Tisha, and Mr. and Mrs. Ozro Treman were the Sunday guests of Oviat Campbell and wife.

Surveyor McDowell, of Auburn, is in the city this week assisting in getting out the specifications for the paving of Broadway and Main streets. This office is doing the printing, which requires over 100,000 ems.

After twenty-eight years in the barber business in Butler, during which time he has done his best toward populating the town, "Toad" Latson has sold his business to M. J. Harrigan, Mr. Harrigan taking possession at once. "Toad" has always been an enthusiastic advocate of his home town and in favor of anything for the advancement of Butler. He will go to Michigan and look up a location where he will go into the potato and poultry business. The HERALD joins his many friends in wishing him the best there is in life.

J. George Wagner, manager of the Gas Engine Co., has been having troubles galore since coming to Butler. Besides all the complications naturally arising from starting his plant, he has had sickness in his family who have been living in New York. But Riley says, "I have noticed great success is mixed with trouble more or less, and it's the man who does the best, that gets more knocks than all the rest" However the clouds are clearing away. Mrs Wagner is gaining in health, shipments for three engines per day are arriving, and by March 1, a full force of men will be put on. Mr. Wagner and his son, George, who is a machinist, are here and the goods and other members of the family will soon arrive. The power was turned on Wednesday for the first time, and from now on the engine factory will be a busy place.

Ora Knisely is quite ill.

Mrs. Ed May is on the sick list.

Henry Witt and wife spent Sunday in Kendallville.

Jolie Latson says he don't see how any one can loaf.

Fresh oysters each Wednesday at the new meat market. 5tf

Pay your bills by check. Deposit with the First National bank. tf

Lydia Bogart spent Sunday in Spencerville, the guest of friends.

Mrs. James Newman of Bryan spent Sunday with her husband here.

Oliver Bunyard, of near Grabill, spent Sunday with J. S. Robinett and family.

Mrs. J. H. Latson expects to spend the latter part of the week in Spencerville.

Will sell one lot only, now cheap. you will pay more later. W. C. Tomlinson. 3-tf

John Potter has accepted a position in Toledo, and left for that place Monday.

Jesse Thomas of South Bend spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives here.

Try our preparation to keep moths out of clothing and carpets, at May's tailor shop. 5tf

I want more low priced residences. I have the purchasers. Wallace C. Webster.

Mrs. Frank McDonald and daughter, Helen, of Garrettare the guests of relatives here.

Mrs. Will Devore and son, Leniol, are spending the week with her parents in Edgerton.

Harry Latson spent Saturday and Sunday in Toledo, the guest of Guy Griffith and wif.

Oliver Riser, of Toledo, was the guest of his parents, Christ Riser and wife, over Sunday.

Mrs. Jennie Beerer visited over Sunday at Kendallville at the home of her brother, W. H. Smith.

Robert White will leave the first of next week for Kokomo, where he has accepted a position.

There will be preaching services at the Church of God Sunday morning and evening by the pastor.

Rev Herendeen has just closed a successful revival at Columbia City. There were thirty conversions.

Mary Latson returned home last Thursday from Toledo, where she has been caring for her sister.

Mrs. Day Wyatt was taken to Hope hospital at Fort Wayne, Monday, where she will undergo an operation.

Mrs. M. J. Jones entertained Mr. and Mrs L L. Daniel and daughter, Helen, of Auburn and C. W. Campbell and family to dinner, Sunday.

FOR TRADE:-- An improvdd twenty acre tract of land in Michigan. Value about fifteen hundred dollars. Want Butler property. Wallace C. Webster

Myrtle Miser, who has been working in Toledo, came home Saturday evening and has accepted a position with the Butler Company.

F. C. Carpenter, who has been spending several weeks with relatives here, will return to his home at Elgin, Ore. John Blaker will accompany him home

Do you want a small farm of less than fifteen acres in DeKalb county? Sandy soil, the very best for gardening and poultry. Small house and barn. Requires a down payment of $200. Wallace C. Webster. 4tf

W. H. Grindle was in Toledo, Wednesday, advertising his famous Red Star cigar. He has placed several boxes with local dealers and they are becoming the favorite among the smokers.

Electric light wires caused a small fire in the Aldrich hotel Monday morning. The fire company responded to the signal and soon had the flames under control. The damage will not exceed $25.00. No insurance.

An attack of the grip is often followed by a persistent cough, which to many proves a great annoyance. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been extensively used and with good success for the relief and cure of this cough. Many cases have been cured after all other remedies had failed. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 5-1m

A change was made in the wind mill department of the Butler Company Monday when F. W. Swantusch was promoted to general superintendent of power, construction, etc., and John Schneider was promoted to superintendent of manufacture. Mr. Schneider has been in the employ of the company about five years, during which time he has demonstrated his ability as a first class machinist. His many friends will be pleased to note his advancement.

In a letter from Dr. Fred W. Terflinger of Logansport, Ind., concerning the condition of John J. Sise, formerly of this city, he says: "I am happy to inform you that your father, Mr. Jno. J. Sise, has so far recovered from the fracture of the hip as to be able to be up in the sitting room with his fellow patients, though walking with extreme difficulty. This exceeded our most sanguine expectations, as we thought the accident fatal, but a small per cent showing such excellent results as this. I believe that he is now out of any danger from that source. He is quite pale and weak from his long confinement, but is beginning to gain strength."

The Moler Barber College of Chicago, Ill., wants men to learn the barber trade. They offer splendid inducements and a short term completes They mail free a beautiful catalogue and ask all our readers to send for it. 5-2

Read your own HERALD.

Karavan Coffee at Diehl's grocery.

Frank Needham is on the sick list

Sunday dinners at the Cottage hotel only 25 cents. Give us a call. 2-tf

Mrs. Manton Bryant spent Wednesday in Edgerton the guest of relatives.

Home rendered leaf lard, strictly pure at the new meat market. 5tf

Cleaning and repairing neatly done to your satisfaction at May's tailor shop. 5tf

Robert Davis and Arthur Mutzfeld spent Sunday in Fort Wayne.

We have some 5 per cent money to loan on mortgage security. First National Bank. tf

Remember I have bought the J. H. Latson barber shop on east side of Broadway and want to see all my old customers and many new ones. M. J. Harrigan. tf

Two hundred dollars cash, and monthly payments, will purchase one of the best business properties on Broadway. Why do you rent? Wallace C. Webster. 5tf

A loss of $4,500 was caused by fire early Monday morning at the Bryan Steam Laundry when the wash and engine rooms were entirely destroyed. The laundry occupied the south room on the brick block owned by Long and Riggs on the west side of the court square. The part destroyed was the large frame addition at the rear of the brick building.—Democrat.

If troubled with indigestion, constipation, no appetite or feeling bilious give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial and you will be pleased with the result. These tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and strengthen the digestion. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 5-1m

The HERALD editor is in receipt of a letter from Rev. Theo. F. Frech, a former pastor of the Methodist church of this place. Among other things Rev. Frech says Butler seems more like home to him than any other place. The family are all well. Claude is at home, Herbert is in his second year at De Pauw and Arlie in his third year in high school. Rev. Frech is now pastor of the second M. E. church of Anderson, Ind. He has many friends here who will be glad to hear from him and his family.

H. V. Norford, chief engineer of the Fort Wayne Traction Co., was here Wednesday to look after the condition of the mill. The water has cut a deep channel from the ditch to the mill and it was thought if allowed to run much longer it might do considerable damage to the mill and endanger the road. Girt Gnagy was given the job of filling in stone and stopping the water from cutting further. Mr. Norford says the company will put in a concrete wall in the spring to keep the water back from the road. They will also fix the flume and do some extensive repairing on the mill. The greatest need at the present is the concrete wall to hold back the water and not take chances of its breaking through the road. The north gates also need some extensive repairs and it is hoped the company will make a complete job of it when they begin.—Hamilton News.

The Consolidated Manufacturing Company recently located in Angola received a severe jolt last week when it was announced that F. M. Rudd's bank at Bronson, Mich., had closed its doors. Mr. Rudd was one of the main push in the new factory and it was the understanding that the plant would be free from indebtedness when it located in Angola and the $57,000 subscribed by Angola people would furnish a good working capital for the plant. Later developements indicate that the concern has some very large debts unprovided for. The plant is located and there seems to be no doubt but that its products are in great demand and with sufficient capital it could be made to pay handsome dividends. Mr. F. E. Jackson, of Angola, has been appointed general manager and it is to be hoped the concern may prosper.

Life on Panama Canal

has had one frightful drawback malaria trouble that has brought suffering and death to thousands. The germs cause chills, fever and ague, biliousness jaundice, lassitude, weakness and general debility. But Electric Bitters never fail to destroy them and cure malaria troubles. "Three bottles completely cured me of a very severe attack of malaria," writes Wm. A. Fretwell, of Lucama, N. C., "and I've had good health ever since." Cure Stomach, Liver and Kidney Troubles, and prevent Typhoid 50c. Guaranteed by Stone's drug store. 5-1m

The Knisely Dry Goods Co.

Big Clearance Sale of OVERCOATS!

DURING THE MONTH OF FEBRUARY WE WILL GIVE A

Discount of 33⅓ Per Cent

FROM OUR REGULAR LOW PRICES ON ALL MEN'S YOUTHS' AND BOYS' WINTER OVERCOATS

This is an Opportunity to Secure an Overcoat for Less Money than you will Ever find the Same Quality of Goods again.

CALL AND LOOK THEM OVER

ZION LACE INDUSTRIES, ZION CITY, ILLINOIS

ZION LACES and many interesting features in their manufacture are on exhibition in one of our show windows. This display is educational and every person should see it.

From 3,400 to 4,500 bobbins are required to thread one lace machine, besides the beam and warp, making a total—when the machine is threaded—of 13,000 threads in actual work. When a machine is fully threaded there are 6,700 miles of cotton on it, enough to reach from here to England and nearly back again.

See the illustrations of the various machines in operation—where they take in the thread and turn out the dainty, attractive laces—also skeins of yarns, yarn spools—pieces of lace just as they come from the machines. Especially interesting is the process of clipping, scalloping and separating. The exhibit is so unique and the values so unusual that a visit will be of material interest to you.

SPECIAL SHOWING OF

NEW EMBROIDERIES AND LACES

5000 Yards New Embroideries, Special Values

5, 10, 15, 25c

Every sale we make is intended to win appreciation and instill confidence

Knisely's

WEAK, WEARY WOMEN

Learn the Cause of Daily Woes and End Them

When the back aches and throbs,
When housework is torture.
When night brings no rest nor sleep,
When urinary disorders get in,
Women's lot is a weary one.
There is a way to escape these woes.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure such ills.
Have cured women here in Butler.
This is one Butler woman's testimony.

Mrs. J. N. Firestone, R. F. D. No. 2, Butler, Ind., says:

"Last fall when I was having a severe spell of backache and was scarcely able to get about on account of the terrible pains through my kidneys, I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. After using them a short time, my trouble disappeared and I felt much better in every way. Knowing Doan's Kidney Pills to be a good kidney remedy, I heartily endorse them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. 6-2

A few minutes delay in treating some cases of croup, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor often proves dangerous. The safest way is to keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and at the first indication of croup give the child a dose. Pleasant to take and always cures. Sold by Geo W. Geddes. 5-1m

Flour Contest

The manufacturers of GRABILL FLOUR will give One Barrel of Grabill Flour

Free!

to the person guessing nearest the population of Indiana at the coming census. One guess given with each 25 pounds of Grabill Flour.

Craun's Feed Store

Phone 54

LEARN Telegraphy

Big money for 8 hours work; easily learned; positions furnished. Write today.

THE STANDARD TELEGRAPH ACADEMY, Lima, O.

53

GOLD FISH

AT

The Racket Store

Aquarium, 2 Gold Fish Pebbles and Plant ALL FOR 10c

Larger Acquariums and Fish, also Castles, at Reasonable Prices

Fresh FISH FOOD for Sale

While it is often impossible to prevent an accident, it is never impossible to be prepared—it is not beyond any one's purse. Invest 25 cents in a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and you are prepared for sprains, bruises and like injuries. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 5-1m

Boys and Girls How would you like to own a DANDY BICYCLE? We will give any boy or girl a first class bicycle FREE. All we ask is a few hours work after school. Write for secret. State age. Self-Help Club, Box 62, 4 West 29th Street, New York City.

It has taken Thousands of Dollars and Years of Labor to Develop the Famous

"BLACK CROSS" COFFEE

They employ the most expert blenders, who spend every day mixing and trving out these special brands. That's the reason when you buy a pound of "BLACK CROSS" that the strength is just right and the flavor delightful 20, 25, 30, 35c

This is the Time of Year to Enjoy MINCE PIE

If you use "NONE SUCH" they will always be good.

If you want a change, take Lake Shore Pumpkin, 12c; Raisins, 10c; Dried Peaches, 10c; Dried Apricots, 15c; Apples, per can 10c; Pie Peaches, per can 10c.

Special Best Sliced Pineapple at 20c; Sweet Cider Jell at . . 60c

Drink "INDIAN" COFFEE, at 17c per Pound

The Oberlin Grocery Company

FEBRUARY

0476

L1134

DeKalb County Herald

BUTLER, INDIANA.

A. S. POWERS, - - - Publisher.

Advice is one thing we never have to advertise for.

Have the people who yearned for an old-fashioned winter any complaint to make?

What does the telephone-telegraph merger think about the Standard Oil decision?

Love laughs at locksmiths, but the other trades people are not so much of a joke.

Some investigator has discovered that limburger cheese will cure cancer. Pass the cancer.

Doctors may say what they please about the "bacteria in a handshake." The handshake is here to stay.

Zelaya says he had a good excuse for shooting two Americans. Likewise he had a good head on them.

When a fellow feels like throwing himself down and worshipping a girl, he should wait. She will probably throw him down herself.

The Belgian royal family will mourn a year for King Leopold, but most of the mourners will probably insist on having an eight-hour day.

It will take the new king of Belgium a long time to accumulate as voluminous and variegated a record as that of his predecessor.

An Indiana judge has decided that a mule is a horse. That settles it for the mule. It can no longer hope to become an automobile or an aeroplane.

Perhaps, after all, James J. Hill is wrong. There may be no danger of us starving to death while Mr. Wilson is at the head of the agricultural department.

The Chicago man who has settled $13,000 a year on his wife and daughter as pin money has set an example that most married men will promptly decline to follow.

The Argentine Republic pants for war with Bolivia, and Bolivia pants for war with Argentine Republic. This pair of pants constitutes the latest thing in international breaches.

While it is pleasing to be assured of the blamelessness of Mrs. O'Leary's cow, it is disconcerting to learn that Chicago's great fire was caused by the spontaneous combustion of green hay.

One of Horace Greeley's old compositors has bobbed up to say that Horace's handwriting was easier to read than that of some others. Isn't that a knock at Greeley after all these years of fame?

A St. Louis man has been sentenced to serve two years in prison because he took another's automobile for the purpose of indulging in a joy ride. It is thus made to appear that the joy rider is not above the law, after all.

Much has been written about Horace's Sabine farm, but according to an archeologist, who thinks he has discovered the site of it, the Roman poet did his farming on two acres. He raised there neither potatoes nor melons, but cultivated the muses, and made the farm yield a crop that is still in a good state of preservation.

Only one merchant vessel flying the American flag passed through the Suez Canal last year; but according to the report of the United States consul at Cairo, two hundred and thirteen vessels of other countries passed through on voyages from American ports, and a hundred and ninety-two bound for American ports. The greatest number of vessels passing through were British, the next greatest were German, and the Dutch came third. Some day American ships will carry the American cargoes.

A city can be great without being big, and if one-half of the energy expended by chambers of commerce and boards of trade in booming their cities were devoted to bettering them the results would be more satisfactory, even from a business standpoint. There are already a number of relatively or actually small American cities to which people of means are moving by choice because they are desirable places to live in or in which to bring up children. Civic virtue is becoming an asset that the shrewd business man will not long overlook.

A new national association has been organized for the study and prevention of infant mortality. Its formation is the outcome of a conference in New Haven, at which were present about two hundred delegates, most of whom are either physicians or persons connected with charitable or philanthropic enterprises. In all ages and all civilizations the number of children who died during their early years has been appalling. Although the rate of infant mortality is lower now than it was formerly, the lessened evil makes a deeper impression upon the public conscience. The New Haven conference brought together specialists in infant nutrition, officials engaged in administering depots for the distribution of pure milk, nurses employed in the house-to-house teaching of hygiene for mothers, superintendents of hospitals and children's homes, managers of seaside and country resorts, and many others, each familiar with some corner of the field; yet the conference was unanimous in accepting the fundamental principle that poverty is the great cause of infant mortality. "Where the white hearse stops most often, you will find the weakest place in your municipal housekeeping," said the speaker. It is true, and its truth comes home to every man and woman in the land. The farmer who neglects to wash his milkcans endangers the lives of children fifty miles away. The thoughtless pollution of a stream or the careless spitting on the sidewalk may rob some mother of her baby. These are individual responsibilities. There are others no less important. To pay good wages, to keep tenement-house property in order, to vote for men who believe in parks and playgrounds, clean streets and pure food, is to save the state's most valuable possession—the lives of the children, and no one who neglects such obligations is entirely guiltless.

The idea that a school teacher shall have the power to weed out "undesirable" pupils and prevent them from having the privilege of higher education is spreading. Minnesota is a recent convert. In the high schools of that State, according to a new rule, teachers shall decide what pupils shall have the right to enter the University of Minnesota. The university authorities insist upon this rule. They estimate that 64 per cent of the freshmen who failed last year in university work might have been kept from entering the university if the high school teachers had had the right to say in advance whether they were fitted for higher education. And, quoting the same official, "It would prevent two-thirds of those unfitted for scholastic work from wasting their time." Whether the time spent in college, even by the dullest of dunces, is actually wasted, is a mooted question. While the future results of such a rule are entirely problematic, we may at least venture a more or less prophetic guess by recalling the judgment passed upon some of our illustrious "dunces" in history by their teachers. Dr. Chalmers was expelled from the parish school as a dunce for whom there was no hope, and yet, notwithstanding the teacher's contrary opinion, English literature owes him much. Isaac Newton, who was always at the bottom of his class, would stand little chance of getting higher education in Minnesota. "Dunce he is and dunce he will remain," said Professor Dalzell of Walter Scott, who became the most distinguished of his students. It was the collective opinion of Chas. Darwin's teachers that a duller boy had never been within the school walls. Henry Ward Beecher, Geo. Moore, Adam Clark and innumerable other historic "dunces" mutely protest against the folly of asking the school teacher to decide the future of men.

Divorced While You Wait.

The matrimonial yoke, lightly assumed by the negro, is just as lightly cast aside, says Harris Dickson in Success Magazine in an article entitled "The Negro's Idea of Marriage." If it be "on the book with licenses," sometimes the parties get a divorce. The chancery courts in Southern States generally set aside one day for the hearing of divorce cases, and the chancellor grants them in one-two-three order as they are reached. Five to ten minutes per case is generally sufficient. This is not because of any carelessness in the courts, but because the fact are plain, and contests are rarely made. It is the same story over and over again with sickening regularity—desertion, cruelty, a rival. "Big bugs" get divorces in the court house, others dispense with a formality which makes little or no difference in the social prestige of the parties. Sometimes, so the story goes, an obliging justice of the peace will alter a matrimonial misfit.

The 'Prince Charming' of the Senate.

One day a fluffy little thing asked the usual question of her male escort, according to a writer in Success Magazine.

"Where is Beverage?" he repeated, scanning the pit where the statesmen were tariffing. And then he located the Indianian for her. At this inopportune moment Mr. Beverage arose and waved an emphasizing hand at the Vice President. He turned a terrifying scowl on the stand-patters. He struck an Ajax pose as he faced the gallery. Incidentally, one might have observed that Mr. Beveridge was not at all dissatisfied with himself.

"Oh," gasped the fluffy little thing in the gallery, "he doesn't look a bit like that in his pictures."

"Naw," replied her escort, "this is his fighting face."

Which suggests the thought that Mr. Jim Jeffries and Mr. Jack Johnson and other distinguished masters of the uppercut are not, as a class, alone in their possession of "the fighting face."

The Class Smiled.

If Jennie Jones had obeyed the teacher's command literally, she would have subverted the discipline of the schoolroom far more than by her original offense. A writer in the New York Times tells the story:

One of the girls in a Brooklyn teacher's class was busily chewing gum, in defiance of school law. To make her crime the more heinous, she was sitting with her feet sprawled out in the aisle.

The teacher, entering the room suddenly, was quick to call attention to the misbehavior.

"Jennie Jones," she said, sharply, "take that gum out of your mouth and put your feet in!"

One Idea of Economy.

"What do you mean when you tell people they ought to economize?"

"I mean," said Mr. Dustin Stax, "that they ought to go slow in patronizing most business enterprises in order that they may have more money to spend with mine." — Washington Star.

Legal Opinion.

Heiress (signing her will)—It's just as well to take the precaution, as "only the good die young" you know.

Lawyer—Ah, I always think there's a mistake in that proverb. It should be "only the young die good."—London Opinion.

Title of a new serio-comic song: "Prices Are So High, and I'm So Poor."

Age and ague are not easily shaken off.

SHAWN BHUI O'CONNOR.

From the glens an' airy peaks
Of McGillicuddy's Reeks
Shawn Bhui O'Connor
Draws the raw delights o' life.
Snare an' gun an' huntin'-knife
Are his all, for ne'er a wife
Wears his name upon her.
Just his native hills alone
An' his wild sweet will can own
Shawn Bhui O'Connor.

Save for powder an' for shot
Village streets would know him not—
Shawn Bhui O'Connor.
But the priest o' Ballymore
Often finds beside his door
Tribute for his frugal store,
Knowing well the donor;
An' for gift o' grouse an' hare
Oft repays with kindly prayer
Shawn Bhui O'Connor.

Mighty hunter, yet a child,
Shaggy nurslin' o' the wild—
Shawn Bhui O'Connor.
Relic o' the primal man
Ere the Saxon rule began,
Erin's lord an' sacristan
Of her virgin honor,
May the peace o' God's free air
Keep you ever in its care,
Shawn Bhui O'Connor.
—Catholic Standard and Times.

JOYCE.

It was really most annoying. I searched through my pockets again, but was still unsuccessful in finding any money. To make matters worse, the only other passenger in the 'bus was that pretty girl I had often seen coming out of The Lindens.

How absurd I should look when the conductor came in and demanded the fare. Suddenly a bright idea occurred to me. I leaned forward.

"Er—pardon me—er—addressing you, but you see—er—your face is familiar to me, and—er—" I paused lamely.

My fair companion stared at me.

"You live at The Lindens. I have seen you going in and coming out several times," I said, "and I thought I would risk speaking to you, for you can help me out of a great difficulty. Will you lend me twopence?"

My companion stared at me uneasily for a moment or two, and then she burst into a peal of delicious laughter.

"It must be a great difficulty if twopence is necessary to remove it," she said presently in grave tones.

Then, of course, I explained my absurd position, renewing my apologies for speaking to her as I had done.

"Of course, I shall be glad to be of assistance to you," she said, "although it is only in a very small way."

"It is awfully kind of you," I said; "I will repay the debt this evening."

"Oh, please no," she entreated. "It's only twopence; please don't trouble

"WHAT NAME SHALL I GIVE?"

about it. But I get out here—good morning to you."

* * * * * *

It was a long time since I had taken so much trouble with my toilet as I did that evening, but at length I was satisfied, and I sallied forth to call at The Lindens. I had previously taken the opportunity to look up the directory, and found the name against The Lindens was Denison.

"I want to see Miss Denison, please," I said to the pleasant-faced housekeeper who answered my ring.

"Yes, sir; will you come inside?" she replied. "What name shall I give?"

"Gilbert Braithwaite," I said, and then I added, "you had better tell her I have called to pay a debt."

"Yes, sir." Shortly afterward the door opened and an elderly lady with very decided features entered the room.

"You wish to see me?" she said.

"Er—no!" I stammered. "I wanted to see Miss Denison."

"I am Miss Denison," the prim lady replied. "What debt is it you talk about? I owe no man anything, neither does any man owe me."

"There is some slight error," I said quickly. Then a bright idea struck me. "You have a younger sister, perchance!" I suggested.

"Dinner is served, miss," suddently came a familiar voice from the doorway.

I dropped my umbrella and hat and jumped to my feet. There, framed in the doorway, stood my benefactress, attired in the black and white costume of a maid.

"Um—ah!" I remarked, blinking like an owl.

"Oh!" she replied, blushing furiously.

Miss Denison stared from me to the other.

"Joyce," she said, "you may retire."

"But I wish to speak to that—er—young lady," I cried. "I owe her twopence."

I was conscious that my remark sounded ridiculous, but it was the truth. However, Miss Denison cut me short.

"I do not allow my maid to have any followers," she said in dignified tones.

I dined alone at my favorite Soho restaurant, and then made my way back to my chambers to enjoy a solitary pipe. All the while I was thinking of Joyce.

"Serving maid or queen!" I cried joyously. "I will woo her!"

After some thought, I decided to commence my campaign with a letter. I posted the letter on the following morning. But the days went by and no answer came to my letter. I took to haunting the neighborhood of The Lindens every evening, but never once did I set eyes on Joyce again. I received my letter back from the post-office marked, "Gone, no address."

* * * *

I will not go into the details of the following weeks. I put the matter into the hands of a private inquiry agent. He said he had personally interviewed the keeper of every registry office in London, but with no result.

That summer we were particularly busy, and toward the autumn I decided to spend a month by the sea and combine business with pleasure. I chose Littlebourne and took with me a large pile of manuscripts to read. I discovered a retired nook in the midst of some rocks half a mile beyond the end of the front, and here I spent most afternoons, wading through the MSS. One afternoon, when I was exceedingly bored, I suddenly became conscious that a girl was seated on some rocks about five yards away from me.

"Surely," I said to myself, "I know that figure." In another moment the blissful revelation came to me. It was Joyce.

"Miss Joyce," I cried.

"You?" she murmured, blushing visibly.

"At last I have found you," I said. "Do you know, I have been searching everywhere I could think of for you."

For a few seconds we stared at each other, and in another moment we were both laughing heartily.

"It is queer that we should meet down here like this. Are you holiday-making?"

"Yes," I replied; "and you?"

"Oh, I am in a situation down here now."

"Whereabouts?" I asked.

"I'm afraid I can't tell you," she answered.

"No, I suppose not," I muttered, "it was through me you lost your last situation."

"Oh, that didn't matter," she said. "I was going to leave shortly."

"Now look here, we'll make a bargain," I cried. "I won't try to find out where you are now employed if you will promise to meet me occasionally."

"Oh, but you are a gentleman and I am only a parlor maid. We are too far apart to be friends."

"Not at all," I cried. "What do petty distinctions like that matter?"

* * * *

I am not going to recite the details of our excursion on the following day. This was but the first of several and in this manner a fortnight passed rapidly away. I must confess that my work suffered, but I did not trouble about that. I tried to make up for it by slamming into my reading when I did not see Joyce. She manifested interest in my work and I often told her of the stuff I was reading.

One afternoon we rambled away along the cliffs.

"I ran through 80,000 words this morning," I said. "It was a novel, and its title was Vanity."

"Yes," she replied. "Was it any good?"

"Not the slightest," I replied.

"What was the author's name?" she asked.

"Arthur Lester," I replied.

There was silence for a few minutes. Suddenly looking up, I saw my companion's eyes were filled with tears.

"Joyce!" I cried, anxiously. "Joyce, what is the matter?"

"Oh, nothing much," she murmured brokenly.

"There is a great deal the matter," I said. "Tell me—what is it?"

For a moment she hesitated, then her head dropped.

"I—I am Arthur Lester," she murmured.

"Joyce," I whispered. "Joyce, dear, I am so sorry. I had no idea."

"I ought to have told you," she murmured, though she did not draw herself away from me. "I thought it would be such a surprise for you, for I thought it would be accepted. That was why I was a parlor maid. As you will remember, I described some old maids in my book, and in order to get an intimate knowledge of them I obtained a position at The Lindens. I am staying now with my aunt, who is an invalid. That is the service I referred to that I am in down here."

"How splendid of you!" I cried. "What you must have gone through for the sake of your book."

"But it wasn't any good," she replied.

"But it was some good," I insisted, for otherwise we should never have come together."

Once more her head drooped, but this time it rested on my shoulder. Joyce was mine at last.—E. Newton-Bungey in M. A. P.

Following the Band.

Once upon a time a Philadelphia lawyer came South. He had a pair of big spectacles, an inquisitive mind, and he wanted to know, says Harris Dickson, in Success Magazine. With his Southern friend he was hurrying to the court house. A negro parade blocked the street; negroes in carriages, on horseback, on foot; negroes with swords and axes; stumpy negroes with Masonic banners, lean negroes with Pythian devices, fat negroes with Odd Fellows' insignia, mescelleanous negroes with miscellaneous emblems.

The Philadelphian pushed through the crowd and ran back in great excitement. "What's it all about? What are they doing?"

The Southern couldn't explain, but beckoned to a very intelligent young negro—who, by the way, was a prominent politician—and asked, "Tom, what's the occasion of all this parade?"

The young negro laughed. "Now, Jedge, you ought to know dat a nigger don't need no 'casion for a parade."

Tom had spoken a mouthful. Pageantry appeals to the negro's tropical imagination. Churches and lodges furnish most of the social life that he knows. He does not ask why the brass band is playing; he keeps step with the fellow that beats the drum and is happy.

Dangerous.

Invalid Husband—Did the doctor say that I was to take all that medicine?

Wife—Yes, dear.

Invalid Husband—Why, there's enough to kill a donkey!

Wife—Then you'd better not take all of it, John!

The United States geological survey reports that in 1908 California produced $18,761,559 in gold, 1,647,278 ounces of silver valued at $873,057, and 706 ounces of refined platinum valued at $13,414.

The Australian state of Victoria spends nearly $500,000 a year in its warfare against the destructive rabbit.

DIZZY HOME OF BUDDHIST MONKS.

THE ROCK-PERCHED MONSTERY OF PARO-TAK-TSANG.

Mr. Claude White in his recently-published book, "Sikkim and Bhutan," and in his lecture at the opening session of the Royal Geographical Society, has brought to notice the fact that Bhutan is a country full of picturesque forts and quaint monasteries. The forts were built for defense during the many years in which the country was plunged in a constant state of internecine warfare and are placed in the most commanding positions, whilst the monasteries are hidden away in inaccessible and secluded spots. These monasteries were founded by holy men, disciples of Buddha, who in order to practice one of their principal tenets, that of contemplation, have chosen some lonely place in which to carry on their devotions undisturbed by the outer world. It was in this way the famous and sacred monastery of Paro-tak-tsang was founded by Guru Padma Sambawah, who lived in a small cave, which is still pointed out, under the main temple (the central building in the picture). The shrine is all but inaccessible, and the only approach to it crosses a gorge of some 1,000 feet deep, with nearly perpendicular sides, down which steps have been cut in cracks in the rocks and where a false step would precipitate the traveler many hundreds of feet into the torrent below. A string of prayer flags is seen stretched across the gorge.—London Sphere.

POLITICS OF THE DAY

Extravagance at Washington.

Recklessness in expenditures is responsible for the ruin of many a happy home. Extravagance is a habit that grows rapidly either in the family or in business. One extravagant member of the household, or one executive who is careless with his firm's money, can start a regular carnival of extravagance.

This is likewise true of a city, a state or a nation. The astounding increase of expenditures at Washington is due to the example of extravagance in high places in recent years. The present scale of national finance is something to set poor men thinking and increase the animosity of those who regard the rich as their enemies.

Not so many years ago the American people regarded with apprehension the extravagance of expending $75,000 a year for salary of the President of the United States and upkeep of the White House. To-day we expend annually $289,420 for the same purpose.

The Presidential garage and stables cost $40,000 a year, or more than $100 a day, to maintain. The greenhouse supplies flowers for the President's table at a cost of $9,000 a year, or almost $25 a day. How do these expenditures strike the man in the street who earns perhaps $2 a day, and must support a wife and two or three children on that meager income?

Hundreds of eastern millionaires have been made by the Republican high tariff which gives them the privilege of taxing the West for their private profit. These rich men and their families spend money like water for their own comfort and amusement, but do not pay anything like their proportionate share of taxation.

The appropriations for expenses of national government in 1890 were $340,000,000. For the year ending June 30, 1910, they are $1,044,014,298.23. The two-dollar-a-day head of a family of five pays, directly or indirectly, $62 of this expense bill.

Our national extravagance is a reflection of the individual extravagance engendered among the beneficiaries of the tariff. Its burden is not upon the bond-holding rich, but upon the wage-earning poor.—Chicago Journal.

The Casting Out of Pinchot.

President Taft will find it difficult to convince the American public that dismissal of Gifford Pinchot was for the public good and not for the benefit of lumber pirates, mining magnates and land thieves, from whom the public believes Mr. Pinchot has earnestly striven to protect the public domain.

Since Mr. Pinchot took up the work of the national forestry commission, in 1896, and established forestry in the Adirondack mountains, he has been devoted to the preservation of natural resources.

For twelve years he has been head of the forestry service, fighting the money interests, preventing them from stealing public property and incurring their deadly enmity. The interests have used every effort to secure Mr. Pinchot's dismissal, bringing strong political influence to bear, bribing newspapers, sending printed articles decrying him broadcast to every publication they thought might notice their screeds.

The public naturally regards the dismissal of Mr. Pinchot as another instance of President Taft's surrender to the interests.

It is significant that Congress voted to take from the Speaker the power of appointing the committee to investigate the Pinchot-Ballinger trouble. A committee not foreordained to serve the interests can throw a welcome light into places at present distinguished by their total lack of illumination.—Chicago Journal.

Splitting Up the G. O. P.

Even the stoutest apologists for President Taft as a pacificator sacrificing political promises on the altar of party solidarity now announce that he will throw his full power against the insurgents and in favor of the reactionaries.

Even since Mr. Taft's Winona speech, in which he took occasion to praise the statesmanship of Senator Aldrich, the West has foreseen the final lineup of the president with the Aldrich forces. Therefore open announcement of his position is not a surprise.

The people of the West know now where they stand. They know that the election of congressmen who will do the bidding of Aldrich means ship subsidies and a central bank for the benefit of eastern money kings, and the highest possible tariff to pile up riches for eastern tariff barons.

The West is weary of government of, by, and for the mill bosses and financial magnates of New England and New York. President Taft's alliance with the standpatters leaves but one road open to freedom for the West. Congressmen who will work for the West must be sent to Washington, and Aldrichism must be taught by defeat in councils of state that the United States does not exist to serve the convenience of a few selected interests in one corner of the country.

Mr. Knox's Break with Mexico.

In deliberately seeking an alliance with Brazil to break down the influence of Mexico in the affairs of Latin America, Secretary Knox is entering upon a scheme of international politics which is so full of the possibilities of danger to the peace and safety of the nation that it should never be undertaken without the consent of the people given in a national election.

The Mexican government is much more closely in touch with the sentiment of Latin America than the State Department at Washington can be. Though the attitude assumed by Mexico in the Central American situation is displeasing to Secretary Knox, it is seemingly well fortified in the resentment which Latin America feels at American dictation and interference in the affairs of its little republics.

If the American navy and the American marine corps are used to drive a president out of Nicaragua there is no one of the South American republics which can feel safe from similar interference whenever its government proves displeasing to the powers that be in Washington. The only result that can follow Mr. Knox's policy is that the United States will be feared and hated from the Rio Grande to Cape Horn.

The Monroe doctrine does not make the United States responsible to Europe for the debts or the doings of these American republics. There is nothing in the Constitution or the laws of the United States which authorizes the government at Washington to assume such responsibility or to meddle in the internal affairs of a country with which we need to cultivate friendship and commerce.—St. Louis Republic.

A Republican Crisis.

Western voters will be glad to know that President Taft and his advisers have decided that the Republican party must stand or fall in the coming Congressional election according as it has fulfilled the pledges made in the presidential campaign by enacting them into law.

Notwithstanding the president's approval of Senator Aldrich and the Aldrich-Taft tariff, the western mind is satisfied that the pledge which brought Judge Taft most of his western vote was not fulfilled by that tariff.

The "insurgency" of western congressmen against the Aldrich tariff bill was inspired by the attitude of western voters, who voted for Mr. Taft because he had promised them tariff reduction, but who will vote against his candidates for congress this fall because the promise has not been carried out.

President Taft's action in withholding patronage from congressmen who refuse to betray their constituents and accept the yoke of eastern mill bosses and captains of finance makes the issue strikingly clear. The revolt of western voters against Aldrichism and all that it signifies will surprise him, but he can blame no one but those whose advice has blinded him to facts and whose anxiety to serve the eastern trusts exceeds their regard for Mr. Taft or the Republican party.

The Muddle at Washington.

We do not believe with members of the Cabinet at Washington that there was anything in the dignity of the President which made intolerable the continuance of Gifford Pinchot in the office of chief forester until the congressional investigation of his and Secretary Ballinger's case had determined the facts. * * * The investigation will be the basis of the judgment which the people of the country will reach; which will decide for the public whether the discharged official was justified in his course or not. Mr. Taft has acted as an administrative officer would act were he not taking into consideration the force of public opinion which, whether misled or not, is always the all powerful element in American national life.—Chicago Tribune (Rep.).

FILIPINO WOMEN.

Their Cares Begin Early, and They Win Husbands by Hard Work.

"Filipino women know how to win husbands," says an American woman who is living at Manila. "It is a common thing in the islands to see a girl, young and brown and strong, crushing rice with a heavy wooden mallet, while around her sit a number of admiring swains, looking on, but never dreaming of offering to help. And the girl doesn't expect it. She pounds cheerfully away, and by and by her reward comes in a husband to work for.

"Life accustoms the Filipino woman to labor at a very early age. As a tiny girl," quotes the New York Press, "she is rarely seen without an appendage in the shape of a baby brother or sister perched on her little brown hip. When she grows a few inches taller and a few degrees stronger she is pressed into service as a water carrier, bearing heavy jars of water poised gracefully on her head from the river to her home. Now, too, she works in the fields, and a vivid bit of color she makes in her short kilted scarlet skirt. When she becomes a woman—and she is a woman at fifteen or before—she may have a small shop to tend, and there is the rice to beat and much other work to do.

"Marriage brings no vacation. She is pretty sure to have many children to care for. She tends the fields, cooks and frequently has a stall in the market for several hours a day. But when the women are really old then their rest time comes. They sit quietly by looking on as life goes past them, but taking part no more. In spite of the hard labor they have had there is generally a very peaceful look in the brown, wrinkled faces of these old women."

Again the Practical Joke.

A volatile bartender of Rochester, N. Y., noting that a patron, Edwin Barrett, slept soundly in the saloon, heated a copper coin until it had reached the white stage and then deposited it on the knee of the slumbering one. The joke was entirely successful, as the coin burned the flesh, caused blood poisoning and necessitated the amputation of Mr. Barrett's leg above the knee.

No Use.

"You say Jones is down and out? Why, it was only a little while ago that he told me he had the key of success."

"He did, but the poor fellow wasn't able to find the keyhole."—Cleveland Leader.

Tired of the Game.

"Billingsly tells me he has moved his gasoline tank into his garage."

"But that's awfully dangerous, isn't it? The garage may catch fire at any moment."

"That's what Billingsly hopes."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE WAVERLY HOTEL

CLYDE OSERLIN, Prop.

Warm Meals and Lunch served at all hours, day or night.

Fine line of Candies, Cigars and Tobacco.

East Side Broadway

Dr. Harrison

PHYSICIAN and SURGEON.

BUTLER, - IND.

Dr. Bulson

OFFICE AND RESIDENCE 219 WEST WAYNE STREET

FORT WAYNE.

PRACTICE LIMITED TO DISEASES OF THE EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT.

GLASSES ADJUSTED.

E. B. DUNTEN,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.

Prompt, Careful and Efficient Attention given to All Legal Business.

Office over Phillips drug store, Butler.

BEECHLER & SON,

DENTISTS.

CROWN AND BRIDGE WORK

Plates and all Dental Surgery given prompt attention. Office over Shapland's store. Sunday 9:30 to 12 o'clock

BUTLER, INDIANA.

FRANK A. BRINK

Attorney-at-Law

Notary Public.

Special Attention Given to Collections

Dr. W. F. Shumaker

Special Attention Given to Chronic Diseases

OFFICE HOURS

7 to 8 a. m. 1 to 3 p. m.

7 to 8 p. m.

5 DROPS

TRADE MARK

THE STANDARD REMEDY FOR ALL FORMS OF

RHEUMATISM

LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, NEURALGIA, KIDNEY TROUBLES, CATARRH, ASTHMA and KINDRED DISEASES

GIVES QUICK RELIEF

Applied externally it affords almost instant relief from pain, while permanent results are being effected by taking it internally, purifying the blood, dissolving the poisonous substance and removing it from the system.

DR. C. L. GATES

Hancock, Minn., writes:

"A little girl here had such a weak back caused by Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble that she could not stand on her feet. The moment they put her down on the floor she would scream with pains. I treated her with '5-DROPS' and today she runs around as well and happy as can be. I prescribe '5-DROPS' for my patients and use it in my practice."

TEST "5-DROPS" FREE

If you are suffering with Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble or any kindred disease, write to us for a trial bottle of "5-DROPS."

"5-DROPS" is entirely free from opium, cocaine, morphine, alcohol, laudanum and other similar ingredients.

Large Size Bottle "5-DROPS" (300 Doses) $1.00. For Sale by Druggists.

SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE COMPANY

Dept. 80. 174 Lake Street, Chicago

He Hustled.
He Advertised.

He put himself and his business before the people, and is now reaping his reward. If you desire to reach the buying classes you must patronize the newspaper that is widely circulated. ... You take no chances when you advertise in

This Paper.

0477

L1134

FEBRUARY

The Wand of Sleep OR The Devil-Stick

By the Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," Etc.

CHAPTER II.—(Continued.)

"Come, come, boys!" said Jen, annoyed at this scene between two hot-headed young men, who were not yet gifted with the self-restraint of experience. "Don't talk like this. You are at my table. There is a stranger, or shall I say a friend, present!"

"Say a friend," observed Etwald, calmly, "although I am about to say that which may cause these two young gentlemen to look upon me as an enemy."

"What do you mean?" asked Maurice, turning his still frowning face towards this strange and enigmatic man.

"What I say, Mr. Aylmer. You—admire Miss Dallas?"

"Why bring her name into the question? Yes, I admire Miss Dallas."

"And you, Mr. Sarby, I can tell from your attitude, from your look, you love Miss Dallas."

David was taken aback by this strange speaking.

"Yes. I—I—I do love Miss Dallas."

"I guessed as much," resumed Etwald, with a cold smile. "Now it is strange——"

"It is strange that a lady's name should be thus introduced," said Jen, annoyed at the tone of the conversation. "Let us drop the subject."

"One moment, Major. I wish us three to understand one another"—here the doctor hesitated, then went on in an impassive voice—"about Miss Dallas!"

"Why do you speak of her?" asked Maurice, hoarsely, while David looked loweringly at Etwald.

"Because I love her!"

"You love her!"

The two young men burst out simultaneously, with the speech in tones of sheer astonishment, and stared at Etwald as at some strange animal. That this elderly man—Etwald was midway between thirty and forty, but that looked elderly to these boys of twenty-five—should dare to love Isabella Dallas was a thing unheard of. She so young, so beautiful; he so somber, pale, and worn with intellectual vigils; with a mysterious past, a doubtful present, and a problematic future.

Maurice and David, divided the one against the other by their passion for the same woman, united in a feeling of rage and contempt against this interloper, who dared to make a third in their worship of Isabella. They looked at Etwald, they looked at one another, and finally both began to laugh. Jen frowned at the sound of their mirth, but Etwald, in nowise discomposed, sat unsmilingly in his seat waiting for further developments.

"Oh, it is too absurd!" said Maurice, resuming his seat.

"Why?"

Etwald put the question with the greatest calmness, stared steadily at the young man, and waited for the reply, which he knew would be difficult to make.

"Oh, because—because——"

"Never mind explaining, Mr. Aylmer. I can guess your objection. I am too old—too plain—too poor for this charming young lady. You, on the contrary, are young, passing well off, and handsome; all the gifts of fortune are on your side. Decidedly," added the doctor, "you hold the best hand. Well, we shall see who will win this game—as we may call it."

"And what about me?" said David. "You forget that I am a third player. Come, Etwald, you have prophesied about Maurice; now read my fate."

"No," said Etwald, rising. "We have talked long enough on this subject. It is plain that we three men are in love with the same woman. You can't blame me, nor I you. Miss Dallas is a sufficiently beautiful excuse for our madness. I spoke out, simply because I want you both to understand the position. You are warned, and we can now do battle for the smiles of this charming lady. Let the best man win!"

"Nothing could be fairer than that," said Jen, quickly; "but I agree with you, doctor, that the subject has been sufficiently discussed; but, indeed, if you will pardon me saying so, it should never have been begun. Let us go to the smoking room."

Thither the three young men went in the wake of the Major. It was a comfortable room, with one wide window, which at the present moment was open. Outside the light of the newly-risen moon bathed lawn and trees and flowers in a flood of cold silver; and the warm radiance of the lamp poured out rays of gold into the wonderful white world without. The three men sat down in comfortable chairs.

Self-contained as ever, Etwald looked up at the wall near him, and seemed to be considering a decoration of savage arms, which looked barbaric and wild, between two oil paintings. When Jen came back with the cigars, his gaze followed that of his guest, and he made a remark about the weapons.

"All those came from Ashantee and the West Coast of Africa," said he, touching a vicious-looking axe. "This is a sacrifical axe; this murderous-looking blade is the sword of the executioner of King Koffee; and this," here he laid his finger lightly upon a slender stick of green wood, with a golden top set roughly with large turquoise stones, "is a poison wand!"

"A poison-wand!" echoed Etwald, a sudden light showing in his cold eyes. "I never heard of such a thing."

David, who was watching him, had an instinctive feeling that Etwald was telling a lie. He saw that the man could hardly keep his seat for his eagerness to examine and handle the strange weapon. However, he said nothing, but watched and watched, when Maurice made a remark about the stick.

"Oh, that is Uncle Jen's greatest treasure," he said, smiling. "He can tell twenty stories about that innocent-looking cane!"

"Innocent-looking!" echoed Jen, taking down the green wand. "How can you say such a thing? Look here, Etwald," and he laid the stick on the table. "No, don't touch it, man," he added, hastily, "there is plenty of venom in it yet. 'Tis as dangerous as a snake bite. If you touch this slender iron spike projecting from the end, you die!"

Again David noted that the tigerish light leaped up in the eyes of Etwald, but he had sufficient control of his features to preserve a look of courteous curiosity. He carefully handled and examined the instrument of death.

It was a little over a foot long, of a hard-looking green wood; the handle of gold was coarsely moulded in a barbaric fashion round the turquoise stones, and these, of all hues from green to the palest of blues, were embedded like lumps of quartz in the rough gold. Round this strange implement there lingered a rich and heavy perfume, sickly and sensuous.

"See here!" said Jen, pressing, or rather squeezing, the handle. "I tighten my grip upon this, and the sting of the serpent shows itself!" Whereupon Etwald glanced at the end of the wood and saw a tiny needle of iron push itself out. When Jen relaxed his pressure on the gold handle, this iron tongue slipped back and disappeared entirely.

"I got this at Kumassie," explained Jen, when he had fully exhibited the gruesome mechanism of the stick. "It belonged to the high priest. Whenever he or the king disliked any man, who was too powerful to be openly slain, they used this wand. What excuse they made I don't know, but I suppose it had something to do with fetish-worship. However, the slightest touch of this needle produces death!"

"It is poisoned at the tip?"

"Not exactly. The needle within is hollow, and a store of poison is confined in the handle up here. When squeezed these turquoise stones press a bag within, and the poison runs down to the point of the needle. In fact, the whole infernal contrivance is modeled upon a serpent's fang."

"But it is quite harmless now," said David, as Jen replaced the wand in its old place on the wall, "else you wouldn't have it there."

"Well, no doubt the poison has dried up," said Jen, with a nod. "All the same I shouldn't like to prick myself with that needle. I might die," finished the Major, with the naive simplicity of a child.

Etwald said nothing. With his eyes fixed upon the devil-stick, he meditated deeply. The barrister, whose belief was that Etwald knew more about the wand than he chose to say, watched him closely. He noticed that the doctor eyed the stick, then, after a pause, let his gaze wander to the face of Maurice. Another pause, and he was looking at David, who received the fire of this strange man's eyes without blanching.

There was something so mesmeric in the gaze that David felt uncomfortable, and as though he were enveloped in an evil atmosphere. To his surprise, he found that his eyes also were attracted to the stick, and a longing to handle it began to possess him. Clearly Etwald was trying to hypnotize him for some evil purpose. By an effort of will David broke through these nightmare chains and rose to his feet. The next moment he was in the open air, in the cold moonlight, breathing hard and fast.

Within, Maurice and the Major were talking gaily, and the sound of their voices and laughter came clearly to the ears of David. But silent in his deep chair sat Etwald, and the burning glance of his eyes seemed to beam menacingly through the air, and compel the young man to evil thoughts. David looked at Etwald dark and voiceless; and over his head, in the yellow lamplight, he saw the glittering golden handle of the devil-stick.

CHAPTER III.

Some little distance from the Major's abode stood a long, low rambling house on a slight rise. Surrounded by deep verandahs, it was placed in the middle of emerald green lawns, smoothly clipped; and these, lower down, were girdled by a belt of ash, and sycamores, and poplars, which shut out the house from the high road. The mansion, with its flat roof and wide verandas had a tropical look, and indeed it had been built by a retired Indian nabob, at the beginning of this century. When he died the house had been sold, and now it was occupied by Mrs. Dallas, who leased it because of its suggestion of tropical habitation. She came from the West Indies, and had lived in "The Wigwam," as the house was called, for over ten years.

Mrs. Dallas was a large, fat, and eminently lazy woman, who passed most of her time in knitting, or sleeping, or eating. Her husband had died before she had come to this country, and it was the desire to preserve her daughter's health which had brought her so far from the sun-baked islands which her soul loved.

Her languid Creole nature and lethargic habits were unsuited to brisk, practical grey skies, the frequent absence of sunlight, and the lack of rich and sensuous coloring. Often she threatened to return to Barbadoes, but she was too lazy to make the effort of again settling herself in life. With all her longings for the fairy islands of the West, she was out of place in this northern land, and so was Dido.

This latter was a tall and massively framed negro woman, with very little of the black about her. She looked rather like a priestess, with her stern face and stately mien; and, indeed, in the West Indies, it was known among the negroes that Dido was high in power among the votaries of Obi. She could charm, she could slay by means of vegetable poisons, and she could—as the negroes firmly believed—cause a human being to dwindle, peak, and pine, by means of incantations.

This black Canidia had left a terrible reputation behind her in Barbadoes. Dido was not a favorite in the servants' part of "The Wigwam," but for this unpopularity she cared little, being devoted to Isabella Dallas. She adored her nursling. The girl was about twenty years of age, tall and straight, with dark hair and darker eyes, with a mouth veritably like Cupid's bow, and a figure matchless in contour. With her rich southern coloring and passionate temperament—she was of Irish blood on the paternal side—Miss Dallas looked more an Andalusian lady. She had all the loveliness of a Creole woman, and bloomed like a rich tropical flower with poison in its perfume, amid the roses.

If Mrs. Dallas was a bore—and her friends said she was—the daughter was divine, and many young men came to "The Wigwam" to be spellbound by her beauty. More men than the three who had dined at "Ashantee" were in love with Isabella.

Upon her Dido exercised a powerful, and it must be confessed, a malignant influence. She had fed the quick brain of the girl with weird tales of African witchcraft and fanciful notions of terrestrial and sidereal influences. Isabella's nature was warped by this domestic necromancy, and had she continued to dwell in the West Indies, she might almost have become a witch herself. Certainly Dido did her best to make her one, and taught her nursling spells and incantations, to which the girl would listen fearfully, half-believing, half-doubting. But her contact with the sunny side of life saved her from falling into the terribly abyss of African superstition; and how terrible it is only the initiated can declare. It only needed that she should be removed from the bad influence of the barbaric Sybil to render her nature healthy and fill her life with pleasure.

But Dido was like a upas tree, and the moral atmosphere with which she surrounded Isabella was slowly but surely making the girl morbid and unnatural. Mrs. Dallas—versed in the negro character—half-guessed this, but she was too indolent to have Dido removed. Moreover, strange as it may appear, she was more than a trifle afraid of the negress and her unholy arts.

Maurice had met with, and had fallen in love with, Isabella, and she returned his affection with all the ardor of her passionate nature. His handsome and frank face, his sunny nature and optimistic ideas appealed strongly to the girl who had been environed from her earliest infancy by the pessimism of Dido.

Maurice saw well how Isabella had deteriorated under the bad influence of the negress, and he did his best to counteract her insidious morality and morbid teachings. He laughed at Isabella's stories and superstitions, and succeeded in making her ashamed of her weakness in placing faith in such degraded rubbish. While with him Isabella was a bright and laughing rill; quite another sort of being to the grave and nervous creature she was while in the presence of Dido. She felt that if she married Maurice his bright, strong nature would save her from a lamentable and melancholy existence; and as all her affections and instincts inclined to the young man, she hoped to become his wife.

(To be continued.)

HIGH CLIMBING.

Experience of a Steeplejack in the Air with a Maniac.

Steeplejacks often find themselves in tight places while exercising their perilous profession. Joseph Smith, famous throughout England as the "Lancashire Steeple Jack," and whose business is so prosperous that he travels about the country in a private car, told an Inter Ocean writer the following exciting episode in his career:

He and his mate were engaged at the top of a lofty factory chimney, 200 feet in height, when his mate suddenly went raving mad and tried to commit suicide by leaping over the top. As the madman went over Smith caught him by the ankle, and notwithstanding the maniac's plunging and kicking, Smith held bravely on.

Leaning over the platform, he endeavored with his disengaged hand to reach the belt which all steeplejacks wear around their waist, but he could not manage it. Presently the crowd who had assembled saw the struggling body slowly, by sheer strength, raised till the belt came within reach. The madman, finding his efforts at self-destruction being thwarted, turned on his preserver and bit his thumb to the bone.

He was, however, despite his struggles, drawn upon the platform, and then began another terrible struggle. Many were the conjectures among the crowd as to the meaning of the fearful scene at the top of the chimney. One individual, who "seed it aw," asserting positively that "they've been wrestling and feighting, and Smith threw t'other, who went o'er th' edge o' t' stage."

Suddenly Smith raises his hand and delivers a blow with the hammer on the head of the man he has just lifted out of the reach of death! There is no more struggling. The man has quite enough now!

The crowd looked at one another in amazement, wondering what it all means. "Mit as well 'ave dropt 'im to t' foot of t' chimney as knock 'is brains out wi' a 'ommer," says one man grimly. Smith is standing up working at his ropes. He kneels down and in a few minutes the head and shoulders of his companion are hanging over the edge of the stage, Smith having attached a rope to him. The next moment he pushes him off and slowly lowers him to the ground.

There is a rush to the foot of the chimney. "He's dead!" passes through the crowd. A doctor is soon in attendance. Smith descends rapidly to the ground with a smile on his face, actually laughing. "How is he, doctor?" he asks. "He's very bad," is the reply. "I don't think, however, the blow has done more than stop his struggles. He's still in the fit."

Talking Low.

"What am I offered for this silver set?" asked the auctioneer; "speak up!"

"Ninety cents," came from a voice in the crowd.

"You're talking pretty low, neighbor," was the auctioneer's retort.—Yonkers Statesman.

Between Friends.

Miss Homeleigh—Perhaps you won't believe it, but a strange man tried to kiss me once.

Miss Cutting—Really! Well, he'd have been a strange man if he'd tried to kiss you twice.—Illustrated Bits.

Nip and Tuck.

He—I wouldn't marry a girl who put on false hair.

She—And I wouldn't marry a man who put on a false front!—Boston Herald.

The government is endeavoring to predict the spring freshets by gauging the snowfall in the mountains.

COATS for COLD WEATHER

Fur-trimmed coats are in first favor. They equal the entire fur coat in popularity and are considered a trifle smarter for everyday street wear. The sketch shows three of these coats and one Buster Brown coat, over which is worn a fur mantle.

Women and Civilization.

Woman had little to do directly with the shaping of old civilization, but we can not help thinking that our modern sense of life and its more real and human investment are largely and directly due not only to spiritual qualities and distinctively feminine, but to feminine initiative. In the clarified light of the soul womanhood has been translated.

The woman is still the mother, but maternity has for our modern vision a significance which is not merely physical, but spiritual—in its fullest meaning it is the liberation of humanity for finer uses. She is nearer than man to the new Nature, as she was to the old. But our ultra-modern naturalism has a pellucid atmosphere, full of light, and there is a clearer vision of truth. The humanities and, we might also say, the divinities, have been transformed. A delusive network of sophistication has vanished. The terms "masculine" and "feminine" have no longer their old elemental or conventional meanings.

There is, or there is becoming, a new woman and a new man, and the distinction between them is not one of "spheres." No exaltation of life, here or hereafter, could be humanly interesting or at all human in which woman did not have her proper share and her peculiar distinction. This share and this distinction woman has had in the great modern renaissance. She first brought the creative imagination within homely bounds. But here we touch upon a field to which we must give separate consideration. —Harper's.

Fads and Fancies in Dress

The new colors are all subdued, delicacy and refinement adding charm to their beauty.

Wide wale serges and other coarse weaves are worn by girls more than the smooth cloths.

The newest coiffure is flat in front and piled heavily over the ears. It is called the Brittany.

Jet buttons are a favorite mode of adding the invaluable touch of black to a colored garment.

The new felt hats are lovely, the felt in many cases being difficult to distinguish from cloth.

Many of the handsomest silk gauzes have printed borders which work well into the new draperies.

The spherical button in gilt and also in silver is appearing among the novelties in dress trimming.

Black waists are popular and are shown in net, crepe, voile, messaline, taffeta, moire and satin.

An extremely smart white felt hat with a brim that dips on one side has two quills as sole trimming.

There is little limitation upon the length of sleeves, but the general tendency is toward shorter ones.

Coats for fancy wear have lace insertion on the collar. It is usually placed to form an inset panel. Again, lace is used on the cuffs, entirely covering them, and a belt is designed of lace on the cloth and cut to point low at the front. All pieces are stitched to the jacket.

Only Woman Surgeon.

Dr. Rose Ringgold is the only woman contract surgeon in the United States army. When on duty she wears a divided skirt and a uniform coat. She is especially interested in the hospital problem of an army in the field, and has made a study of the work of the Japanese hospital corps in the war with Russia.

ABOUT THE BABY

Food for the Baby.

Make a thin paste with two tablespoonfuls of flour and boil it in a quart of water for fifteen minutes (pour paste in water while it is boiling). Then skim half pint of cream off a quart of milk. To this cream add one and one-half pints of the above gruel and two tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar. If milk sugar can be obtained substitute four tablespoonfuls of it in the place of the granulated. This amount is for twenty-four hours, one-quarter of a pint to be given every two and one-half hours as a feeding.

If the baby won't retain the milk, feed it the plain gruel mixed with the sugar.

This is an old nurse's recipe and has stood the test of time, bringing little ones back to strength and health when all other foods have failed.

Health and Beauty Hints.

A mixture of white of egg and red pepper is good for neuralgic headache. Apply it to the base of the brain.

A harmless lotion for chapped hands is made of glycerin cut with lemon. It is as healing as it is softening.

For chapped hands render pure mutton tallow and while it is still hot dissolve gum camphor in it, as much as desired. This is an excellent remedy for chapped hands and lips.

Olive oil taken internally is excellent for biliousness and will do much to improve a yellow, pimpled skin. Commence by taking a spoonful before breakfast and one at bedtime.

A hacking cough is quickly relieved if a single drop of oil of tar is placed on a piece of lump sugar and eaten slowly. This also gives relief to persons with an incurable cough.

Oatmeal whitens the skin and the girl who appreciates the value of the bath keeps a supply of oatmeal bags on hand, always using them whenever she takes a warm bath—and this is often.

Back to the Curves.

Couturiers are following closer the lines of the figure than at the beginning of the season. That is to say that now since Parisians have returned from the country and invested in new corsets, their figures are somewhat more reasonable. The corsetiers have decided that they have been murdering the feminine figure long enough, making only lines and angels where curves ought to be. However, things have not yet adjusted themselves, and the normal figure will not be with us until next spring.

Folding the Skirt.

To fold a dress skirt properly for packing and so avoid the crease down the middle of the front breadth, fasten the skirt band and pin the back to the middle of the band in front. Lay the skirt on a table or other flat surface, right side out, with the front breadth down. Smooth out all creases and lay folds flat. Then begin at the outer edges and roll each side toward the center back until the two rolls meet. In this way the hang of the skirt is not injured, there are no wrinkles and the front breadth is smooth and flat. If the skirt is too long for the trunk fold it near the top and place a roll of tissue paper under the fold.

For Invalids.

Beef Juice.—Take lean round steak. Heat it slightly in a pan over the fire, then squeeze in a warm lemon squeezer. Season with a little salt. Serve in a colored claret glass, as invalids often object to beef juice on account of the color.

Baked Milk.—Put the milk in a jar, covering the opening with white paper, and bake in a moderate oven until thick as cream. May be taken by the most delicate stomach.

Glycerin and Lemon Juice.—Half and half on a piece of absorbent cotton is the best thing to moisten the lips and tongue of a fever-parched patient.

Onion Gruel.—Boil a few sliced onions in a pint of fresh milk, stirring in a little oat meal and a pinch of salt; boil until the onions become tender, and take at once.

Hairdressing Styles.

Some Noted Bachelors.

Among the illustrious men who passed through life in single blessedness may be mentioned Sir Isaac Newton, Thomas Hobbes, author of "The Leviathan"; Adam Smith, the father of political economy; Chamfort, the greatest of French talkers; Gassendi, Galileo, Descartes, Spinoza, Locke, Kant, Bishop Butler, the author of the "Analogy"; Bayle, Liebnitz, Hume, Gibbon, Macauley, Buckle, Pitt, Charles James Fox, Leonardo da Vinci, Raphael, Michael Angelo, Sir Joshua Reynolds, the artist Turner, Handel, Beethoven, Schopenhauer, Rossini, Mendelssohn, and Meyerbeer.

The Explanation.

"Charlie, dear," queried the fair maid at the ball park, "why does that man behind the hitter wear such a big bib?"

"That," explained Charlie, "is to keep his shirt front from getting mussed when the ball knocks his teeth out." —Chicago News.

Next!

A Mississippi woman has just begun a seven years' term in the penitentiary for stealing half a pound of butter and five eggs.

Civil War Stories

With the Guerrillas.

In the spring of 1865, when the war was nearing its end, a train of open boxcars left Huntsville, Ala., for Nashville, Tenn. It was filled with Union soldiers bound on various errands. There were several detachments going up into Tennessee on different kinds of duty; there were a few who were going north on furlough; and there was one, Joe Wagner, who had been discharged for disability and was bound for his western home. He had been a good soldier, had seen much campaigning and fighting in the last four years, and hated to leave before his regiment did. But a long pull of fever had thoroughly weakened him, and when the surgeon bluntly said to him, "Joseph, just as sure as you don't get up in the cool northern air we shall bury you here in Alabama,' he made no more objection to taking his discharge.

He had, of course, turned in his gun and accoutrements before leaving Huntsville, retaining his blanket and overcoat. And the habit of bearing arms in the enemy's country had become so confirmed in him that he purchased a good revolver and metal cartridges for it before starting. It was well for him that he was thus thoughtful.

The weather was mild, the way through the woody and mountainous country of northern Alabama was picturesque and pleasant. Spring odors filled the air. The discomforts of traveling in this style of car, which the transportation quartermaster was in the habit of thinking good enough for a lot of soldiers, were much alleviated by the good temper and jolly humor of the men. Probably it would have been the same if the whole journey had been taken through a cold and driving rainstorm, as the soldier's fixed motto was "make the best of it." But in the mild atmosphere, the bright sun and the bursting bloom of the young spring, they laughed, sang and jested, and would have danced had there been room in the crowded cars. Occasionally they were serious, and then some one would tell some blood-curdling tale of the atrocities of Dick Colton, a well known guerrilla of that region, whose doings were much talked about at Huntsville. And then the sergeants (for there were no officers along) would caution the men to keep their muskets in hand, as they might be fired on from the woods.

Joe Wagner was weak, as has been said, and the weary, rocking motion of the train put him to sleep about the middle of the afternoon. He had found a place to lie down at the rear end of the last car, and with his overcoat rolled up and put under his head for a pillow he was reposing comfortably on the hard boards, when a great mishap occurred to him. At an earlier hour of the journey, some of the independent American soldiers aboard, in search of greater comfort, had kicked out the end boards of this car, that they might sit with their legs dangling over. Some of them were in that position when Joe went to sleep, and his disaster was almost certain to happen. As the train rounded a sharp curve, going about fifteen miles an hour, this car gave a lurch and Joseph and his overcoat rolled out on the track together.

He was a little bruised and a good deal shaken up and astonished. Before he could get to his feet the train had disappeared round the curve, and in the momentary bewilderment the soldier did not know whether the mountains had fallen on him or he had been struck by a solid shot. When his senses and the truth came to him, he picked up his overcoat and ran round the curve. The train was in sight, but was fast disappearing. He shouted and waved his overcoat, but attracted nobody's attention. He perceived that he was in a "fix."

Yet not a very bad one.

Our soldier sat down on a rock and carefully reviewed the situation. The sun was at least three hours high. There was some chance of another train passing north before dark, though that he could not depend upon. But he knew that there were detachments of infantry guards at exposed points along this road at no great distance apart. Since leaving Huntsville he had observed two or three. The correct thing for him to do was to take to the track and reach the first guard post as speedily as possible. The soldiers there would take care of him till another train came along and they would flag it for him and send him on his way.

This was a good plan, and he started out briskly to execute it, trusting that his strength would not fail him. But the plan was not to be accomplished without serious impediments, of which the first presented itself before he had traveled a hundred yards. Two men, dressed in homespun, each carrying a shotgun, came out of the woods and stood on the track before him.

Now, my veteran reader, it is possible that you and I, had we been in Joe Wagner's shoes just then, might have had the nerve to attempt what he did, for we should have known that we were in the most serious danger. But I doubt if many of us would have had the quickness, the readiness to act as he did; and I suppose that the afternoon's talk on the train about the guerrillas of this region had prepared him to be desperate, as well as quick.

The men stood with their guns held loosely in their hands, probably expecting an easy and unresisting prey in the apparently unarmed soldier. Joe walked carelessly along toward them.

"Well, Yank, come along with us," one of them said.

Joe's pistol was out in a flash, and thrust right into the man's face.

"Drop that gun!" was the stern command.

The guerrilla jumped back and attempted to raise his gun. As he did so, he fell dead with a bullet through his skull.

The whole thing was so quickly done that the pistol was covering the other man before he clearly understood what had happened.

"Drop that gun—or I'll kill you!" roared Joe.

The guerrilla hesitated. The soldier looked determined. "Quick!" he said, with his finger on the trigger. "You're a dead man if you don't throw it right down."

The man obeyed.

"You're Dick Colton's men, are you?" Joe asked.

"None o' your business," was the surly response.

"All right; I ain't making any mistakes. I want you to understand that if you don't do what I tell you, and be mighty quick about it, I'll shoot you, too. Face about to the north, and march! Hurry up! I've no time to waste. There! now keep on. If you try to bolt or turn, I'll put two or three balls through you."

In the excitement that keyed him up, there was not much danger that Joe's strength would give out. He had some fears that the report of his pistol might call other guerrillas from the woods, but Providence favored him, and he drove his prisoner before his revolver five miles, to the next guard-post. The guerrilla was then locked up until he could be conveyed to Huntsville; Joe Wagner was a hero among his comrades that night, and in the morning they sped him on his way to Nashville, with adieus and good wishes.

"I don't know what such a chap as that will ever do out of the army," the sergeant said, as he watched the disappearing train.—Chicago Ledger.

He Got Even With the General.

I was on picket with one Gid Sabins, near Nashville, when our forage train got into a hornet's nest outside. In the racket a lot of good-sized shoats came by our post and I lifted one. We "skun" him nicely, and when we were relieved, about sundown, we fell in the rear with our pig between us on a gun. We were congratulating ourselves on our good luck when we heard a noise in our rear, and on looking back we saw our Brigadier General Willich and his staff coming right for us. We gave the pig a fling in some tall weeds, and passed on. General Willich halted us and asked why we threw it down. I told him I was afraid it would scare his horse. He said:

"Vare you got dot big?"

"I bought it," I replied.

"Vare did you py him?" came next. "Well, general, I might as well tell it straight now as at any time," I replied, feeling that I had been caught; "I stole it."

"Oh, I think so. You take him up and come mit me!"

Well, when I got to his quarters he gave me a stint to go and get my tent and stay there under guard till I ate that hog all up without any salt, bread or coffee! I stood it one meal, when the guards who were over me offered to trade bread, salt, and coffee for fresh meat, and if I ever was on light duty and "fared sumptuously," I did one week there. He was very much surprised that I ate it in one week, and more so that I was well. But he gave me some fatherly advice and told me to go back to the boys. Boys of Company E, do you remember this little episode in our four years and five months and over?

A Heavy Battle.

In the year 1862 I enlisted in Company C and was taken down the Mississippi on a steamboat as far as St. Louis, and from there to the fort, where I remained two months. My first battle was in the night—a dark, drizzly, rainy night. Part of the regiment was fighting and part sleeping in a cornfield in which were rivulets of water. We used to roll over and let the water run by, and then roll back and try to sleep again. We moved to a little mound the next morning, and there stayed for two days, during which we could obtain no water, as we supposed, save that in the horse tracks. After we had been there two days we started off and crossed over to the other side of the little mound on which we had encamped. There was as nice a spring of water as ever bubbled above the ground. We felt so annoyed at having drunk rainwater when a good, cool spring was so handy that as we marched to Pensacola we destroyed a tract of land just about one mile in width, out of pure spite.

On reaching Pensacola, we thought we were going to have a hard fight to capture the fort. We threw up intrenchments and made ready for a heavy battle; but when the time came to storm the fort we made a bold dash and found only three old, gray-headed men on guard. A more surprised company than ours was never before seen.

A Want Easily Supplied.

Business can seldom be bettered by artificial and temporary expedients. An illustration is given in a story taken from the Washington Star. During the Civil War a certain Tim Greeley bought the eggs for his mess. Cracked eggs could be bought at half price.

One day Tim walked into the sutler's with his basket on his arm.

"Gimme two dozen best cracked eggs," said Tim.

"Cracked eggs all out," said the sutler.

Tim nodded toward the egg crate in the corner.

"Well, crack us up some, can't ye?" he asked.

The Polite Way Around.

"Then I am to consider myself rejected?" asked the young suitor.

"You are to consider your proffer of marriage returned with thanks and the regret that it is impossible at this time to accept it," said the daughter of the magazine editor.—Exchange.

Falling Off.

"That fellow worries too much about business."

"Think so?"

"Yes; it hurts his game of golf."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The German iron and steel industry is apparently as busy and prosperous as the Americans.

FEBRUARY

0478

L1134

900 DROPS

CASTORIA

A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of

INFANTS CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.

Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER

A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.

Fac Simile Signature of

NEW YORK.

At 6 months old 35 DOSES – 35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Our Correspondence

We will be pleased to have a letter each week from each one of our correspondents.

Moores

Rev. Brock will fill his appointment at this place Sunday afternoon. Sunday school will also be in the afternoon.

Lola, the little daughter of Milan Albright who has been ill with bronchial trouble, is better.

J. O. Lautzenhiser and wife visited at W. H. Forrests' Sunday.

The sixty-fifth Sunday school convention will be held at the People's church, Sunday afternoon and evening, Feb. 13.

Mrs. Fred Bunge and daughter, Nellie, spent Sunday near Auburn with James Weeks and daughters.

F. Albright has purchased a new cream separator.

John Oiler and wife took dinner Sunday with P. T. Rhoads and wife.

The Ladies' Missionary society of Dillon Chapel will meet with Mrs. E. A. Eakright Thursday evening of this week. A literary program has been prepared.

Goldie Boyd, who has typhoid fever, is some better.

Murl Lower, of Hamilton, spent Saturday and Sunday with Frank Albright and family.

Mrs. August Blum, Jr., is on the sick list.

Franklin

Burr Imhof and wife spent Sunday with his parents.

C. G. Huntington was at Auburn Monday.

J. J. Thomas, of South Bend, spent Saturday and Sunday with friends at this place.

Bert Rose and wife were at Hamilton Saturday.

Milton Anthony and family spent Sunday with Wm. Mann and family.

Mrs. George King is again very low at present and is again under the care of a trained nurse.

Mrs. Anna Graffin spent Saturday night and Sunday with her parents, Oliver Rosenberry and wife.

Wm. Brown and family spent Sunday with F. A. Huntington and wife.

Arthur Deems and wife spent Saturday night at Edgerton with relatives.

Mrs. Klinkle spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Charles Potter.

Walter Cherry is moving on his farm he recently purchased of Dr. Shumaker.

Mrs. Nellie Yarlot and daughter, Leora, are visiting in this neighborhood this week.

Mrs. George Wagner returned home one day last week after a visit with her mother at Fremont, Ind.

Mrs. Clem Mitchell is on the sick list at present.

Spencerville

It is so funny that the ice always freezes with the slippery side upwards.

There is still one of the greatest revival meetings at the M. E. church that has been for years. We understand there has been 61 converts up to the present time. Let the good work go on, God knows the town needs it badly.

Most everybody is ready to sell out. There has been three or four men from Ohio looking at farms, and everybody is going to sell out at once. Boys, you will have more buyers before you all sell out.

Ad Kline has got his new peanut roaster and will need an engineer. Ad flies around like a red squirrel putting up hickory nuts.

A drunk in town now costs $4.50. That is what Justice Allen charges the boys if they fight any.

John Means has been in the vicinity of Butler selling trees. He has taken a lot of orders. He has a nice delivery for Auburn, Spencerville and Butler. John is right after orders every day.

Mrs. Wheeles, Freetown, Ind.

Women get run down without knowing just what is the matter with them, and doctors don't seem to understand their case. Mrs. Isabelle Wheeler, Freetown, Ind., was nervous and debilitated and could find no help until she took Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and that cured her. She says people came to her for miles around to ask what medicine she took that did her so much good. This remedy is absolutely guaranteed to do what is claimed, and if you want to try it before buying, send your address for a free sample bottle to Pepsin Syrup Co., 119 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1 a bottle. 5-1m

Newville

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Blair entertained a crowd of married folks Saturday evening. Ice cream and coffee were served. A good time was had.

Archie Dean is here from Auburn visiting relatives.

Ruth Griest, of Hicksville, Sundayed with her parents of this place.

Audrey Rex, while handling a revolver and not knowing it was loaded, accidently shot into the front panel of her piano.

Sarah Kincade and Freda Fell got quite a severe fall on the ice. Dr. Brunson was called, but found no bones broken, and both are able to be back in school.

Mrs. Day Wyatt left for Hope hospital, Monday, for an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hobbs, of Fort Wayne, Sundayed at the home of Elmer Hobbs.

Dr. Bowman, of St. Joe, was called to see Mrs. E. Inhofe Monday.

Frank Ronk expects to move his family on the farm with his people east of here.

Cal Tomlinson is here from Toledo visiting.

Mrs. Ohler is on the sick list.

The proceeds of the aid last Thursday amounted to $4.50.

After a short vacation with her mother, May Nichols returned to her work in Chicago.

Do you know that croup can be prevented? Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It is also a certain cure for croup and has never been known to fail. Sold by Geo. W. Geddes. 5-1m

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS

WITH Dr. King's New Discovery

FOR COUGHS COLDS PRICE 50c & $1.00. Trial Bottle Free

AND ALL THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.

GUARANTEED SATISFACTORY OR MONEY REFUNDED.

TRANSFERS OF DEKALB COUNTY REAL ESTATE

For the week ending February 5, 1910, by Charles O. Borst, Abstracter:

Jackson Township—M. J. Frederick to J. M. Henderson, part e ½ n w ¼, sec. 26, $3950.

W. D. Miller to A. Moore, 1 acre n w corner s w ¼ n w ¼, sec. 9, $250.

Newville Township—A. B. Countryman to A. & L. Poth, 73 acres in sec. 4, $4960.

O. Gilbert to J. E. Hook, n w ¼ s e ¼, sec. 32, $2200.

Concord Township—F. J. White to B. Hamilton, part s e ¼ s w ¼, sec. 15, $80.

Richland Township—C. W. Feagler et al to J. & E. Weseman, e ½ n w ¼, ex. 15 acres off north end, sec. 15, $100.

City of Auburn—A. McRider to L. M. Boland, 43 F. 3rd, $1300.

A. Romine to C. & M. Cook, part 110 W. add., $30.

J. Crum to P. A. Baker, 4 N. C. add., $1000.

M. Herman to B. B. Bennison, 85, 86 W. add., $2200.

L. M. Boland to M. E. Myers, 43 F. 3rd add., $1600.

M. E. Hendershot to J. D. Myers, 1 F. 1st add., $2000.

City of Garrett—M. C. Hart to R. E. Holmes, 1 block, 2 T. S. add., $300.

R. F. Maloney to I. A. Steclerk, part 3 and 4, block 56, $2600.

City of Butler—F. A. Brink to W. C. Webster, part 147, Eg. add., $900.

C. E. Lint to S. & J. Topper, 20 Ling. add., $50.

E. D. Kenestrick to C. C. Harper, 77 O. P., $2200.

Town of St. Joe—B. T. Bowen to J. Gill, 6 Grill's add., $950.

Spencerville—E. A. Fales, ex. to G. Bowser, out lot, $450.

Council Proceedings

Council met in regular session, Mayor Mondhank presiding, Councilman Harding absent. The following bills were allowed:

Wm. Mutzfeld & Sons, mdse...	$ 1 10
Geo. M. Jones Co., coal.....	26 50
Claud Tyson, hauling cinders..	4 25
Bert Oberlin, labor on streets..	75
Dan Freeburn, labor on streets	75
J. B. Mumaw, labor on streets	2 25
Theodore Cole, labor on streets	2 75
The Bobbs-Merrill Co., Thornton's Laws.....	7 50
Wm. B. Burford, records as required by law.....	10 00
A. S. Powers, stationery and printing.....	5 00
Daniel Moughler, hauling coal	16 80
New Jersey Car Spring & Rubber Co.....	75 00
Fort Wayne Electric Works, repairing meters.....	17 92
Wm. Holtzberg, salary.....	50 00
The F. Bissell Co., supplies....	15 31
The Electric App. Co., supplies	17 95
Geo. M. Jones Co., coal.....	35 55
Keystone Lubricating Co., oil	3 75
Jackson Sewell, salary.....	22 50
J. L. Norford, salary.....	37 50
S. S. Hall, salary.....	25 00
D. J. Plowe, salary.....	22 50
Indianapolis Blue Print & Supply Co., supplies	3 60
Milo D. Husselman, labor on city records.....	24 00
L. S. & M. S. Ry., freight on coal.....	47 31

Salary ordinance passed on third reading.

City depository reported $10.66 interest for January.

Adjourned to meet Thursday, Feb. 10, at 7:30 p. m.

A Communication

Fort Wayne, Ind., Feb. 9, 1910.

To the Editor:

Will you kindly publish as a matter of news that the Grand Army of the 12th Congressional District of Indiana and the adjoining counties south and west will hold a meeting and reception to Department Commander Orlando A. Somers at Fort Wayne on Wednesday, February 16.

The reception to Commander Somers will be held at the Randall hotel in the afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock and the camp-fire in the evening at the assembly room of our court house commencing at 8 o'clock.

The committee on arrangements is preparing a fine program for their entertainment, and they will spare no pains in making this an enjoyable occasion.

All ex-soldiers whether members of the G. A. R. or not are cordially invited, as it will give our Commander great pleasure to meet and greet them at this district meeting.

Yours very truly,

B. W. Skelton, Sec'y.

RAILWAY MAIL CLERKS WANTED

The Government Pays Railway Mail Clerks $800 to $1,200, and Other Employees Up to $2,500 Annually

Uncle Sam will hold spring examinations throughout the country for Railway Mail Clerks, Custom House Clerks, Stenographers, Bookkeepers, Departmental Clerks and other Government Positions. Thousands of appointments will be made. Any man or woman over 18, in City or Country can get Instruction and free information by writing at once to the Bureau of Instruction, 115 E Hamlin Building, Rochester, N. Y. 52-3m

HERALD ADVERTISING BRINGS RESULTS. TRY IT.

Additional Locals

Of interest to you. Read the Central grocery ad.

Try those salt fish that you can buy at the Central grocery.

Mrs. Wm. Aldrich fell and broke her arm, Wednesday morning.

Potatoes 35 cents per bushel, any quantity. See Frank Harpster. 6-1

I have for sale, houses in all parts of the city. Wallace C. Webster. 46-tf

Hiram Wolff and wife, of near Waterloo, were the guests of Mrs. J. H. Smith Tuesday.

John Eakright has moved his family here from Auburn and occupies the Hazelett home on Depot street.

There will be a box social in the Christian church basement next Tuesday evening, Feb. 15. Everybody is cordially invited.

Mrs. John Huntington and Mrs. Freeman Fifer and baby, of Franklin township, were the guests of Mahala Huntington this week.

The revival meetings at the U. B. church are still in progress. The interest is increasing and some are being saved. Rev. Overmyre, of Waterloo, is assisting in the meeting. Come and hear him. Services every evening at 7:30. Sunday services at 10:30 and 7:00.

The Herald has discontinued the old stereotyped form of church announcements which were formerly run, not because the churches and our readers were not welcome to them, but because we thought it would be betterto run new announcement each week. We want the news from all the churches in the city. In fact a church department will be a feature of the Herald if the ministers will furnish us with suitable data for this apartment. This can be made an interesting feature of this paper by each minister reporting the news of his church and the various auxiliaries. Let us start next week.

A Pleasant Surprise

On Friday evening of last week a number of the G. A. R. boys decided there was a comrade in the city who needed their services. So after a little skirmishing satisfactory arrangements were made with the wife and fourteen of the boys proceeded to the pleasant home of L. J. Diehl on East Main street and took possession.

At eight o'clock the comrade was notified at the store by phone that he was needed at home immediately. The parlor, occupied by the boys, was darkened, and as he came rushing into the kitchen inquiring, "What's the matter," you can imagine his surprise when the boys began to sing, "Marching Through Georgia." As each comrade placed a souvenir card in his hand he was informed that the 63rd milestone had been reached and that he was no longer a kid of fourteen summers beating a drum for the Union soldier. He said, "Well, boys, you've got me, I thank you for this visit, that's all I can say now."

A number of the Relief Corps ladies hearing what was up thought they would surprise the boys by putting in an appearance also, but Mrs. Diehl surprised them by locking their wraps in another room.

Then in a very brief time with the help of her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Hiner, the dining room table was spread and twenty-six full stomachs could testify to the superior quality and abundance of the repast.

On general principles we are opposed to keeping late hours, but after congratulations for Mrs. Diehl and wishing Lee many happy returns of the day, we were sure it was bed time when we reached home.

One Of The Boys.

A Birthday Surprise.

Twenty-three of the Junior class surprised their schoolmates, Miss Ethel Baker, of Fort Wayne, and Harry Hatch, at the home of the former's parents, last Monday evening, it being their nineteenth birthday anniversaries. The rooms were very prettily decorated in pink and white ribbon, potted plants and carnations.

One of the main features of the evening was the birthday cake, with its nineteen layers and nineteen candles. The class presented Miss Ethel with a handsome pocket-book, and Harry with a beautiful scarf pin. Ethel was also, presented with a beautiful bracelet and a watch and fob from her mother and brother, besides the many valuable, as well as useful, presents.

The out-of town guests were Mrs. M. B. Bryant of Three Rivers, Mich., Joe Baker of Albion, Mesdames John and Ed Londfield of Fort Wayne, and Mrs. Devitt of Grabill.

At a very late hour, the guests departed wishing Miss Ethel and Harry many happy returns of the day.

Following is some of the good things the Bryan Democrat had to say last week about the K. of P. banquet:—The Butler lodge has one of the finest homes in the state of Indiana, there is a true spirit of friendship predominating in their every day life, they have the secret of co-operation and their success, and when the Bryan Knights departed for home they were impressed with the genuine hospitality extended them and expressed their thanks for this cordial treatment at the hands of their Butler brethren and hope that in the future prosperity will mark their pathway. About 30 went to Butler from Bryan.

FRANK SWANTUSCH'S TRAVELS

It is delightful camping in the mountain, although a trifle chilly in the morning it soon gets warm after the sun is up a few hours. We generally rise about 5 a. m. then the savages (as the roust abouts' are names) come and bring warm water to tents for washing ourselves, they also get wood up for camp fires, which we have every night, around which we all gather evenings to sing songs and tell stories until a late hour. We generally camp at a brook or close to a spring. We had all comforts that camp life could afford and were wishing for our home friends to share this pleasure with us.

There were thirty tourists and thirteen of the help in our camp. We soon got acquainted and were all out for a good time and every one said we surely had it.

Returning to our day's jaunt, we stop at spring of Apollinaris Waters for refreshing drink. A little further on we come to the Obsidian Cliff which is a solid mountain of glass, this the Indians used for arrow heads at one time. Next we reach Twin lakes, they are about same size, one has a bluish tint while the other has a brownish hue. Roaring mountian is at the base of lower lake and is dotted with steaming jets which continually throws out steam similar to boiler blowing off. A little distance further along the road is the Devil's frying pan, which is a hot spring of thick pasty mud always sizzling and frying and has the smell of sulphur. Few miles farther brings us to Norris Basin, where we see first genuine geyser.

Descending into the basin we see vast stretch of troubled land, acres of steam jets, hot springs of various forms and such huge steam vent as Hurricane and Black Growler, the latter being the greatest steam vent in the Park. It keeps up a continuous tumult (like steam blowing off on a boiler) and has force enough to run all mills in Montana, could it be utilized. Here is also Monarch geyser and the Minute Man Geyser which plays every minute. Next is the Bath tub which was formerly called, Devil's Ink well, and the Caster which are hot water pools playing at irregular intervals. Then we pass the Teeter Rocks which are large boulders balanced on small bases so small that it looks like a pivot, in Gibbon River. Chocolate springs are near by in which are hot chocolate colored waters.

Our tents are now pitched and lunch is waiting us near the mouth of Gibbon Canyon. We then went to visit Gibbon Paint Pots which are most fascinating in the Park, as bubbles arise through the boiling mud and assume the shape of Calla Lily, Cabbage rose and other flowers, there formation resembling other real blossoms. The next we pass is Lone Tree Boulder which is a huge rock with a lone pine growing upon its very top. Beryl springs just below is a hot water pool 40 ft. circumference, whose boiling water reflects different colors. A little farther we reach the Iron spring which have been pronounced among the best medical springs. We now come to the Gibbon Cascades, a waterfall of 80 ft. and of rare beauty. The road is here in places as high as 200 ft. above the bottom of the Canyon, here is a fine scenery and the charm of this canyon cannot be over drawn. Another queer feature is that pine trees growing out of solid rock with apparently no soil to support them.

Leaving the river now we ascend for four miles, then we descend abruptly to Firehole river known as Riverside, here we turn along the river to Firehole cascades where we alight and walk 300 ft. to get a better view of them. Boarding coaches again we follow Firehole river for six miles to Niz Perce Creek where the Niz Perce Indians crossed in the summer of 1877 on there bloody expedition against the whites. Crossing creek at its mouth we continued to lower Geyser basin not far from Fountain hotel, where tents are pitched for the night. Here we spend the night in the most picturesque spot, that could be selected for a camping spot.

The following morning we drive to Fountain Geyser and to Mammouth Paint Pots thence to Firehole lake, here are seen in three different places gas burning under the water (a great many tourists miss this sight as it is off the main road.) Next is Hell's half acre, here is Black Warrior which plays irregular and is noted for having a black cone and Great Fountain geysers (which is one of the oldest and largent and most fascinating when it plays,) Raspberry Pool, Surprise Pool, Firehole Pool, Buffalo spring and White Dome geyser.

Passing White Dome we drive to Old Excelsior. This gigantic pioneer of Geyser land has not endeavored to play for twenty years, but when the last eruption occurred, it tore out more than half an acre of surface. The waters from its cavity flow into Firehole river showing brilliant colors along the bank. When it last played it threw an immense volume of water 50 ft. in diameter, straight in the air 250 ft. high. Near here is the grandest and most complete sight of the kind on the globe. It is Prismatic lake, 400 ft. long and 250 ft. wide and in its depth every color in the prism is seen, hence its name.

This marvel of beauty reposes upon the very top of a mound of gray sediment covered in different places with deposite of purple, brown and red sediment covered in different places with high and deposit of purple brown and red sediment lying in broad streaks over the mound. The water flowing from all sides over the lake's radiant margin gently falls over small benchlike formation in numerous rills rippling down all sides of this wonderful knoll. The water is 146 degrees fahrenheit and steam arising there which hangs above the lake in clouds reflecting the hues of the rainbow. Turquoise is another notable feature here, its name indicates its coloring.

Along our road we come to Silent Pool, Forget-me-not Pool and Biscuit basin, the last named containing Sapphire Pool, Jewel Geyser, Shell Pool, Silver Globe Geyser, Black Pearl Pool, Ideal Pool and Gem Pool. We next arrive at Aetemesia Geyser known only since 1886, thence driving to Restless Geyser and the Morning Glory spring.

(Continued next week)

CUPID'S PRANKS RECORDED HERE

He was warned against the woman—
She was warned against the man—
And if that won't make a weddin',
W'y there's nothin' else that can.

An exchange publishes the following article: "Married at Flimstone, by the Rev. Windstone, Mr. Nehemiah Sandstone and Miss Wilhelmina Whetstone, both of Limestone. Look out for brimstone."

Charles Kinsley, junior member of the firm of Olds & Kinsley, one of Auburn's leading mercantile establishments, was quietly married Tuesday night to Mrs. Sophia Kiner, one of the most highly respected ladies of that city. This piece of Cupid's handywork comes as a surprise to the large circle of friends, notwithstanding all indications pointed that way. After the church hour Tuesday night, the couple repaired to the home of the bride, and with the assistance of the officiating minister, Rev. W. B. Freeland, spoke the words that upites their lives until death do them part.—Garrett Press.

P. J. Ellis and Miss Bessie C. Hacklell were married at Auburn last Thursday upon the orders of Sheriff Thomas. The couple went to Auburn about four weeks ago where they procured rooms and lived as man and wife. After a short grilling by the officers, Ellis made a clean breast of it and said that as soon as acquired sufficient funds he would make the girl his wife, adding that he thought the world and all of her. The necessary documents were procured and the young victims of Cupid's dart went before Justice Green who tied the naughty knot.

A line to young wives—If you have not learned the art of cooking before marrying, you have taken a long chance. But take this tip, begin now; study the cook book and let the fashion plates alone. Your venture is far more likely to be a success, and your offsprings will be stronger.

Needed the Year Around

You needn't suffer with sick headache, indigestion, constipation or any other trouble arising from disordered stomach, liver or bowels. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will cure you and keep you well. It is a wonderful laxative and regulator. It is safe and pleasant to take and should be in every American household. Tens of thousands already use it. It is absolutely guaranteed to do what is claimed and if you want to try it before buying, send your address for a free sample bottle to Pepsin Syrup Co., 119 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill. It is sold by all druggists at 50c and $1 a bottle. 5-1m

Eat What

You want of the food you need Kodol will digest it.

You need a sufficient amount of good wholesome food and more than this you need to fully digest it.

Else you can't gain strength, nor can you strengthen your stomach if it is weak.

You must eat in order to live and maintain strength.

You must not diet, because the body requires that you eat a sufficient amount of food regularly.

But this food must be digested, and it must be digested thoroughly.

When the stomach can't do it, you must take something that will help the stomach.

The proper way to do is to eat what you want, and let Kodol digest the food.

Nothing else can do this. When the stomach is weak it needs help; you must help it by giving it rest, and Kodol will do that.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today, and purchase a dollar bottle, and if you can honestly say, that you did not receive any benefits from it, after using the entire bottle, the druggist will refund your money to you without question or delay.

We will pay the druggist the price of the bottle purchased by you.

This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family.

We could not afford to make such an offer, unless we positively knew what Kodol will do for you.

It would bankrupt us.

The dollar bottle contains 2½ times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is made at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

SOLD AT GEDDES' DRUGSTORE

Make Your Wife Happy WITH A MOTOR WASHER

Operated by City Water Pressure.
Costs from 2 to 4c per Week.
It Works while You Rest.

SOLD ON A GUARANTEE. Your Money Refunded if Not Satisfactory

We also Carry a Large Line of

Washers and Wringers

AT THE RIGHT PRICE

Call and see before you buy

Rickey Hardware Company

DeKalb County FARMERS' INSTITUTE

TO BE HELD AT

ST. JOE . .	Feb. 7 and 8
CORUNNA . . .	Feb. 9
BUTLER CHAPEL Butler Twp.	Feb. 10

Mr. Martindale and Prof. Goss of Purdue to be State Workers at St. Joe.

Martindale at Corunna and Buler Chapel.

These able men will be supported by home talent. All of which is worthy your time to hear.

We will spend the entire time in talks and discussions pertaining to the betterment of farm life.

All sessions will commence as follows: 8:30 morning session; 1:30 afternoon session; 7:00 evening session.

Try not to be tardy, for we will not wait for you.

Butler Chapel ladies will serve meals.

Everybody should be present at these meetings.

A. M. WIDNEY, Chairman.

Horse Sale!

Our third big horse sale for this year will be held at the Central Livery and Sale Stable, 111 North Lynn street

BRYAN, OHIO

Wednesday, Feb. 9

Auction promptly at one o'clock

50 to 100 Head of Horses

Horses of all classes—Drafters, Good Farm Chunks, Brood Mares, Match Pairs and High Actors.

The kind with plenty of size, bone and quality. This is a new and fresh lot of native horses, bought within 20 miles of Bryan.

We have to offer in this lot some very high class ones, some that are good enough to go on any market and will please the most exacting buyer. Out of the great number we have to offer we are sure you can find some that will suit you.

We will also offer two Clydesdale Stallions, Stamp of Darnley No 8159 and Prince Wauseon No. 10323.

